USE CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. It unites in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

COMPLETE EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT FOR EVERY HUMOUR.

Cuticura The Set, $1. Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, 25c., to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, 50c., to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS, 25c., to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid CUTICURA RESOLVENT, as well as for all other blood purifiers and humour cures. Each pill is equivalent to one teaspoonful of liquid RESOLVENT. Put up in screw-cap pocket vials, containing 60 doses, price, 25c. CUTICURA PILLS are alterative, antiseptic, tonic, and digestive, and beyond question the purest, sweetest, most successful and economical blood and skin purifiers, humour cures, and tonic-digestives yet compounded.

I Reckon the REVENUE of the POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT for the year ending June 30th 1902 will be $120,000,000.
What do you Estimate?
I figure it will be about $120,500,000.

A FORTUNE FOR A GUESS

$15,000 GIVEN AWAY

IN 1000 CASH PRIZES, to those making the nearest correct estimates of the total Postal Revenue of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1902.

First Prize $5,000; Second $2,000; Third $1,000

VALUABLE INFORMATION: To aid in forming your estimates, we furnish the following figures which we obtained direct from the Post Office Department at Washington, D. C., giving the gross or total revenue of the department for each and every year from 1897 to 1901 inclusive. The fractional part of a dollar is not considered.

The Total Revenue of the Post Office Department for the year

1897 WAS $82,665,462,
1898 WAS 89,012,618, INCREASE 7.68 PER CENT
1899 WAS 95,021,384, INCREASE 6.75 PER CENT
1900 WAS 102,354,579, INCREASE 7.72 PER CENT
1901 WAS 111,631,193, INCREASE 9.06 PER CENT

The Total Revenue for the first half of the year was $58,876,016. What will the Total Revenue be at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1902?

Send your estimate and 12c in postage stamps to the PRESS PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION, DETROIT, MICH., and we will send you a copy of our Catalogue, and a certificate which will entitle you to share in the prizes.

PRESS PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION, Detroit, Michigan

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL FOR RHEUMATISM ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

Cole's Carbolisalve
The Great Skin Remedy
will stop the pain of burns and scalds at once and there will be no scar. Don't wait until someone gets burned but Keep a box handy. 25 and 50 cents by all druggists.

Four Years' Test Has Placed the Twentieth Century Churn in the Lead

Best Butter makers and Dairymen in the United States are using this churn, made of IXXX Tin Plate and Three Coat Granite. Temperature of cream regulated by using hot or cold water in reservoir on the outside of churn body. Also, gravity and Deep Setting Separators. Satisfaction guaranteed. Thousands now in use. Write for circular and prices. THE DAIRY IMPLEMENT CO., Lima, Ohio, U. S. A.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

The Red Lake Falls Courier continues to announce candidates desirous of securing the nomination for various county offices, but fails to state which party they will affiliate with.

...Editor Egley, of the Erskine Echo, says in his paper last week that if Ezra G. Valentine is "received as warmly at other places as he was at McIntosh, Fosston and Bemidji his nomination is an assured fact."

The river and harbor bill provides for an appropriation of $10,000 for surveys of the Red and Red Lake rivers and their tributaries, with a view to the improvement of their navigation. This will not accomplish much, but if the item passes it will help some.

H. E. Ives has resigned as chairman of the Peoples' Party county committee, giving as his reasons that he does not longer wish to affiliate with that party. It is understood that Mr. Ives has joined the ranks of the independants and that he will support Van Sant for governor.

Following the lead of Chairman H. E. Ives, two members of the county committee—K. M. Hansen, of this city, and J. L. Johnson, of Hilaire—have sent their resignation to the secretary of the Populist county committee. The secretary will have to resign before long or he will be the whole committee.

Will the Populists have a ticket in the field in Red Lake county this year? The present county officials belonging to the Populist party are all candidates for re-election, but they are undecided whether or not they will run on the Populist or Democrate ticket. They do not care so much about which party they cast their lot with, but of course they naturally want to be with the winners.

Congressman Morris, about to retire purposes to do what no congressman desirous of staying in office would dare to do. He will lead a movement for an increase in the salaries of congressmen. The retirement of many congressmen because there is no attraction for them in an office that pays much less than they can earn in private life makes the question of higher salaries a live one. It does seem, as a general proposition, as if $5,000 ought to be salary enough for a congressman willing to live in republication simplicity. Perhaps a congressman can live on this amount, but will it not be wise to increase his salary so that he will not think it advisable for him to leave office? We must remember that if we expect the plain people to keep control of the government most of our congressmen must remain men of limited means. We must pay our congressmen well enough so that they can afford to serve us.—Minneapolis Journal.

OF GREATER INTEREST to our lady customers than all the well-filled bottles of drugs and medicines is the corner of the store where PERFUMERY, SOAPS, TOILET ARTICLES, COSMETICS, etc., are gathered. The collection is in every way worthy of the interest it creates. The goods are of excellent quality and any so good cannot be had at these prices. One can be bright and sweet at little cost.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Town Tales.

Wm. Lennon was in the city Tuesday.

Joe Smith was up from Crookston last week.

Wm. Murphy went to Germantown yesterday.

A. W. Smith, of Fosston was in the city yesterday.

P. O. Bergh was down from Rollis the first of the week.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Curtis yesterday.

Mrs. C. A. Nason and son returned to this city yesterday.

J. M. Bishop is up from Iowa looking after his interests here.

Mrs. Wm. Murphy went to St. Hilaire yesterday to visit friends.

Joe Markham, the Bemidji hotel keeper, was in the city yesterday.

Will Vaughan was down from Germantown the first of the week.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

J. E. Morrisey, of Crookston, was in the city the first of the week.

A successful shoe social was held last evening by the Royal Neighbors.

Miss Florence Wallin left Monday for Crookston to consult an eye specialist.

Judge of Probate Knight was in the city the first of the week from Red Lake Falls.

B. J. Bakke of Newfolden, was in the city last week after a load of supplies for his store.

D. N. Winton and C. E. Winslow returned from a trip to the lake the first of the week.

A. Turner, of Liscomb, Iowa, is in the city looking the town over with a view of locating here.

James McMahon returned to this city from a trip to North Dakota the first of the week.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. Umbriet on Wednesday, June 11th.

Mrs. O. W. Siminson left Monday for Osakis where she will visit friends and relatives for a few weeks.

C. W. Johnson was down to Crookston last week transacting business for the firm of Rollis & Johnson.

The members of the Swedish Lutheran congregation will meet Sunday at the Zion church at 3:30 p. m.

Guy Grove, a member of the John Grove land company, was in the city yesterday looking for farm land.

A large number of people enjoyed an excursion up the Red Lake river Sunday on the steamboat Marguerite.

The members of the Modern Woodmen lodge will give a dance in the Odd Fellow's hall on the evening of June 26.

Deputy Auditor Ford, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county auditor was in the city last week.

Charles Helm, the genial clerk at the Hotel Ogahmah, purchased the two lots on which is located the old Wallin store last week.

Leonard Peterson was over to Warren last week to give the people of that place pointers on how to build an electric light plant.

Miss Bessie Bailey returned to Sorum, where she is teaching school, the first of the week, after a short visit with friends in this city.

Mrs. F. J. Stebbins and children and Miss Goldie Hill leave tomorrow for St. Charles, Minn., where they will visit for several weeks.

A crew of men is at work up the Red Lake river driving piling for the pupose of preventing logs floating into the rice beds near the outlet.

There was a movement on foot to run an excursion train to Cass Lake Sunday, but enough could not be secured to insure the expense of the trip.

The city schools close tomorrow for the summer vacation and all of the teachers leave on that day for their respective homes, and will not return until next fall.

Mrs. Flanders, who had been in the city visiting Mrs. F. H. Kratka left Monday for Fargo where she will visit for a short time before returning to her home in Minneapolis.

Carl Johnson wanted to find out whether or not powder would burn and on Sunday touched a match to some. He found that it would and his face now resembles a Boer soldier.

Thom Severson, of Rollis, is building a steamboat which will run up and down the Thief river transporting the supplies for the large army of settlers in that section.

John W. Hilsabeck, of Marshalltown, Iowa, has purchased lots 3 and 4, block 32, original townsite, of J. M. Bishop. He will build a home and remove his family here this summer.

D. P. O'Neill returned to this city the first of the week from a trip to his farm in Norman county. He reports that Valentine has a great many friends in that county and will receive strong support there.

Reports from the town of Holt are to the effect that a very severe hail storm passed over that section the first of the week. Windows in many houses were broken, but owing to the fact that grain is not very high, the crops were not damaged.

A number of the business men of this city have received copies of the report of the state drainage commission with the compliments of Ezra G. Valentine, president of the board and candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman. It is interesting reading.

Morning service of the Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock next Sabbath at the tent. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper administered. S. S. at 12:12, Jr. C. E. at 3 p. m. Union services at the tent. Union services of the young peoples societies at the M. E. church at 7:00 p. m.

Union revival meetings are being held in the tent this week by Rev. Peart and Rev. Dade, of this city, and Rev. McHenry, of Crookston. An effort is being made to have Rev. Petran, of Albert Lea, come here and hold revival meeting during the last two weeks in June, and if he is secured a larger tent will be engaged.

P. Meehan spent a few days in the city the first of the week looking after his interests here. He was enroute to his home in Milwaukee from the Pacific coast, where he has been looking over some timber lands with a view of purchasing. He will go out again in a short time and probably buy considerable timber.

J. F. Landeel, of Alexandria, is one of the many that has been in this section during the past week looking over the ceded Red Lake reservation lands. Mr. Landeel is one of the county commissioners of Douglas county and says that a large number of people from his section will be up here to take claims when the land is opened for settlement.

J. M. Perkins expects to commence in a short time locating claims on the portion of the Red Lake reservation which has been ceded to the government. Mr. Perkins is well acquainted with the land and will spend the summer in finding the section lines, etc., which information he will sell to settlers when the land is opened up.

C. Chelin has opened up a boarding house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 7, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 25th, 1902, viz: TROND P. HAMRE, H. E. 2800, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 6, 7 and 8, Sec. 34, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil Knudson, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Samuel Heasley, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
John Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.
Soren Bergeland, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

may 15 june 19.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 9, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 21, 1902, viz: INGVARD IVERSON, H. E. 20483, for the SW¼, Sec. 12, Tp. 153 N., R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Henry Carlson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Ole Moe, of Strandquist, Minn.
Bjorn Thoreson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Carl Syverson, of Strandquist, Minn.

A. F. GEORGE, Receiver.

may 15 j 19

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 17, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 1st, 1902, viz: JOHN PHILIPP, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the W½ SE¼ and E½ SW¼, Sec. 30 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Louis Hamre, of Germantown, Minn.
Thomas Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Hans Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Almon Johnson, of Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON Register.

may 22 j 26

District Court, Red Lake County. } ss. State of Minnesota, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Clara Bell King, Plaintiff, against Sivert King, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the Above Named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District of the state of Minnesota, at the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county of Red Lake, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the city of Crookston, in the county of Polk, and state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

DEFOREST BUCKLEN, Plaintiff's Attorney, Crookston, Minnesota.

may 22 june 26

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17193, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 1[illegible] N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Mathens J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 5 july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 22nd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. NELSON, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 23 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder Eid, of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaar, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 5 july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17132, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 5 et july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 1 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 14th 1902, viz: ANDREAS MOVIG, H. E. 17831, for the NE NE¼ and SE¼ NE¼, Sec. 15, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Per P. Liden, of Ringbo, Minn.
Edvard Petterson, of Ringbo, Minn.
Henry Lundell, of Ringbo, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Ringbo, Minn.

SYVESTER PETERSON, Register.

may 8 June 12

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 1, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 14th, 1902, viz: EDVARD PETTERSEN, H. E. 17004, for the SE¼ SW¼ Sec. 11, and E½ NW¼ Sec. 14, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Movig, of Ringbo, Minn.
Per P. Liden, of Ringbo, Minn.
Henry Lundell, of Ringbo, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Ringbo, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

may 8 june 12

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land office at Crookston, Minn., April 12, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the district of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 13th 1902, viz: WILHELM BERGSTROM, H. E. 1[illegible], for the SW¼ NE¼, N½ SE¼ and SE¼ NW¼, sec. 15, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Kjelgren, of Holt, Minn.
Andreas Movig, of Holt, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Holt, Minn.
Ole Bergstrom, of Holt Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

may 8 june 19

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

C. L. Dobner, President. H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - -	$10,000
Surplus and contingent fund,	8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis. & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of

Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Hotel Ogahmah.

C. A. ROBBECKE, Prop.,

STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS TO HUNTING AND PLEASURE PARTIES.
NEWLY ENLARGED AND REFITTED THROUGHOUT.
BUS LINE IN CONNECTION.

Modern Methods

Hamm's Beer is honestly Brewed from the best of barley and hops in the only modern brewery in the Northwest. Perfect sanitary conditions and a modern refrigerating plant keep the beer absolutely pure and wholesome while aging. To get the best order

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO. St. Paul, Minn.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES

REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.

Thief River Falls - - - - Minn.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1902. NUMBER 23

THE FOURTH

Will Be Celebrated Here in Glorious Style.

As usual Thief River Falls will celebrate the Fourth of July this year, and it be under the management of that organization that always know how to make a success of anything it undertakes—the Thief River Falls Fire department. At a meeting of the department held last Saturday evening an executive committee consisting of Robert McGinn, James Bulman and Dennie LeSarge was appointed to have charge of the celebration, and they are now busy preparing a program. It is needless to say that it will be a good one and Thief River Falls will celebrate the Fourth in glorious style.

The committee soliciting funds for the celebration succeeded in raising about $500 thus far and it is thought that this can be greatly increased.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

Well, Well, Who Are We?

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

5 per cent discount

on all purchases of $2 or more made on Saturday, June 14. Our prices are right because we sell for cash.

CONTRACT LET.

For Building Ditch In Town of Holt.

James Meehan and K. M. Hanson were at Warren last Friday to attend the letting of the contract for the building of the ditch in Holt township. The contract was let to a party from Indiana, who will do the work with a steam dredger he having bid a fraction less than 12½ cent per yard.

A large delegation of farmers were also present, and endeavored to restrain the auditor from letting the contract, but in this they were unsuccessful. The ditch will have to be completed before the 1st of December and will drain a large and rich tract of land.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of Independent School District No. 18 will be held on the third Saturday in July this year. The terms of two of the members of the board—E. E. Zeh and C. E. Winslow—expire at this time, and the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. S. F. Staples will also have to be filled at this time. Both Messrs Winslow and Zeh will undoubtedly be re-elected, and it is greatly to be regretted that Mrs. Staples longer refuses to serve, as she has been a valuable member of the board, and it will be hard to find another person who will give more freely of time for the benefit of the public schools.

Business Change.

The firm of Rollis & Johnson was dissolved last week, O. J. Rollis retiring from the firm, and the business will be conducted by C. W. Johnson, in the future. Mr. Johnson is a progressive young business man and will be sure to do a good business.

Notice.

Bids will be received for the erection of a two story brick opera house 50x80 feet up to June 14, 1902. Plans and specifications can be seen at the C. O. D. Clothing store. The right is reserved to reject and all bids. Bids must be in the hands of S. Kenison on or before June 14, at 2 p. m.

The Markets.

Wheat	60c
Oats	50c
Flax	$1.60
Rye	50c
Butter	15c
Eggs	12½c
Potatoes	75c

TOMORROW

Local Ball Team Goes to the Falls.

The local base ball team goes to Red Lake Falls to play a game with the team down there. A return game will be played here on the Fourth of July for a purse of $75 put up by the firemen.

Revolutionize Farming.

George E. Barth of Gervis township, Red Lake County, says the Red Lake County Courier, has this week received letters patent on a steam plow invented by him, and if the machine proves as satisfactory as the model indicates and is capable of performing the work claimed for it, a revolution in the present methods of farming is promised

The object of the invention is to provide in connection with the frame of a wheeled plow, or analogous machine, a series of orbitally moving shovels carried by similarly movable standard on which the shovels are mounted so as to oscilate, the shovels and standards being provided with means whereby the shovels are adapted to be automatically feathered, tilted laterally, during certain portions of their movement, thus enabling the shovels to scoop up the earth and turn the same over upon the hills between the furrows formed by the shovels.

A further object of the invention is to provide a wheeled plow having novel steering mechanism and provided with means for connection with a traction engine, whereby the wheeled plow is automatically steered by the traction engine during the progress of both machines across the field. The construction of the plow and steering mechanism therefore admits of the plow being either coupled to a traction engine or having a suitable engine or motor mounted upon the frame of the plow for both propelling the plow along the field and imparting movement to the shovels.

The construction of the machine has the advantage of enabling furrows or ditches to be formed without leaving a hard and closely packed surface at the bottom of the furrow or ditch. While especially adapted for plowing, cultivating and the like, the machine is also well adapted to the purposes of ditching and grading.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

WAY DOWN.

Bids for Heating Plant Go to Bedrock.

The school board has been exceedingly fortunate in securing bids for the heating plant for the new high school. The contract was let Monday afternoon to T. M. McGuire, of Minneapolis, he being the lowest bidder. The price at which he secures the work—$1542—is considered very low, and a member of another Minneapolis firm that was here stated that last week secured a very similar contract for $3160. The following were the bids.

T. M. McGuire	$1543
J. E. Morrisey	1680
Pond & Hasty Co	1700
W. F. Porter	1848
Herly & Co	2159
Tunstead Heating Co	1763
Fred Kreatz	1781
Sexton & Phillips	1645
C. C. Jackson	1900
J. P. Mooney	1563
Crookston Co	1912

AN EXCURSION

From This City to Cass Lake Sunday.

A special excursion train will run from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls, Sunday to Cass Lake. A game of base ball between the Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls base base ball clubs will be one of the attractions. The train will leave this city about 6 o'clock in the morning and return at about 12 in the night.

Red Lake Bill.

Up to the time of going to press nothing has been heard from Washington regarding the Red Lake bill. The bill would have been acted upon last week had it not been for the absence of Congressman Sherman, chairman of the Indian committee. Action will probably be taken this week or not at all, is the opinion of many. Congress will adjourn July 1st.

Roseau county will soon be connected by telephone with the outer world. The poles are set from Roseau to Ceor postoffice and a few more days will bring the work to a close, then the wires will be put up, instruments put in and Roseau will be within calling distance

The Nonpareil man of the Minneapolis Journal has figured it out this way: "This matter of looping the loop on a bicycle is a very simple thing. All you have to do is to follow the black streak with your front wheel and keep your nerve about you. If you neglect these simple precautions you go about a million feet in the air and land on the ground somewhere else like an eight-ton safe falling out of a fourteen story window. Looping the loop is said to be a most exhilarating pastime, and people who in a former incarnation were flies and used to walk on the ceiling are said to be quite successful at it. Feats like this furnish a most successful form of enjoyment to a crowd and make a fine drawing card for children's day at a street fair.

Central Mercantile Company.

A good clean up-to-date stock of general merchandise. Qualities and prices to suit all. Best assortment in all our branches. Call and let us show you some bargains. - - - - - -

Phone No. 19, The Brick Store.

AN INSTITUTE.

For the Farmers Will Be Held Here.

A state farmer's institute will be held in this city on Thursday, June 26. There is nothing of more benefit to the farmers than these institutes, and everyone should make it a point to attend, even at the expense of neglecting necessary work for a day or two, as the benefits to be derived are great. The institutes are entirely free, all of the expense being paid by the state of Minnesota. Remember the date, Thursday, June 26, at the city hall in Thief River Falls.

A curious feature of the American commercial invasion of Great Britain is this: that a large portion, if not the majority, of the flags with which that country is decorating itself, in honor of the close of the South African war and of the coming coronation of King Edward, are manufactured in the United States. This applies not only to the cheap printed flags of all sizes, but to the finer ones made of bunting as well.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES

REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.

Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson

-- Proprietors of --

City Dray and Transfer Line.

Great Northern Express Handled

Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

Geo. Tupper, B. S., M. D. Martin Strand, M. D.

Drs. Tupper & Strand

Physicians and Surgeons.

Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 37.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,

Physician and Surgeon.

Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,

DENTIST.

Office over First National Bank.

James McIntyre,

ATT'Y AT LAW

Office in First National Bank Building.

Dr. A. Ekern,

(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)

Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.

GRAND FORKS NORTH DAKOTA

Office in Herald Block.

Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m

LAW OFFICE OF

PERL W. MABEY

PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 89.
Office first door north of News building.

C. Chelin has opened up a boarding house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

ALWAYS GOOD

In purity and wholesomeness Hamm's Beer cannot be excelled. This is due to Honest Brewing.

The capacity of Hamm's Brewery is double the output, so that the brewing may continue to be a purely natural process, and that the beer may be properly aged.

HAMM'S BEER

THEO. HAMM BREWING CO. St. Paul, Minn.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris, 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

MILES IS SENT FOR

ORDERED TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

COURT-MARTIAL IS THREATENED

GENERAL MAY HAVE TO FACE CHARGE OF BETRAYING SECRETS.

HASTENS BACK FROM FOR RILEY

ABSOLUTELY REFUSES TO SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THE MATTER.

Kansas City, June 7. — The Journal says: Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, passed through Kansas City last night on his way from Fort Riley to Washington, called there by President Roosevelt and threatened with immediate court-martial on a charge of having betrayed official secrets. Gen. Miles passed through here the day before, attended by several other members of a board convened to observe long-gauge gun tests at Fort Riley, to be so engaged for several days, but he came back yesterday afternoon entirely alone, and in such haste that he had not even reserved a sleeping car berth. A Journal reporter read to Gen. Miles a special dispatch saying that in the White House of having furnished details of the scandal involving Lieut. Arnold to Senator Culberson. Gen. Miles' comment was: "Senator Culberson seems to have made an answer as full as any one could make, and as explicit as Senator Beveridge or any one could demand."

He Was Suspected

"But, for yourself, general?"

"I repeat, that Senator Culberson seems to have made the reply for which you are asking."

"There is a second dispatch, general," was then remarked, "to the effect that you are peremptorily ordered back to Washington to face charges."

Gen. Miles would make no reply to this question. He left for Washington at 6:30 last night, a short time after his arrival from Fort Riley. While here he did not leave the union station.

GRATITUDE OF NATION

Is Shown in the Grant of Fifty Thousand Pounds to Lord Kitchener.

London, June 7.—In accordance with King Edward's message to the house of commons the government leader, A. J. Balfour, in the house yesterday afternoon asked for a vote of £50,000 to Lord Kitchener, and it was granted. As a remarkable coincidence, parliament on June 6, three years ago, voted its thanks and £30,000 to the same general for his services in Egypt. Mr. Balfour, in supporting the motion, referred to Lord Kitchener's rapid promotion. He said it had been given to few public servants to compass so much work for their country in so short a time as Lord Kitchener, who, besides being commander-in-chief in South Africa, was commander-in-chief designate of India. He found the army in South Africa in a state of disorganization or dislocation, consequent upon ill success which attended the British arms at the early stage of the campaign, and he executed his duty with admirable energy and skill.

TRAINMEN KILLED.

Frightful Death of Engineer, Brakeman and Car Inspector on Canadian Pacific.

Calgary, N. W. T., June 7.—A serious accident occurred on the Canadian Pacific railroad five miles east of here. Owing to the recent heavy rains a culvert had become undermined and a freight train dashed into the culvert, which gave way, precipitating the engine into the stream. Engineer Charles Dorin and Brakeman Dunn and Car Inspector J. Crosey were thrown under the engine and pinioned there in eight feet of water and drowned. The train was telescoped and six freight cars piled on top of the engine. The passenger train was fortunately late, or more frightful loss of life would have occurred.

POPULAR CHOICE.

All England Approves Selection of Herbert as Ambassador to United States.

London, June 7.—The universality of the approval of the appointment of the Hon. H. Herbert as ambassador to the United States in succession to the late Lord Pauncefote, is quite unusual. No dissent is heard anywhere. The afternoon newspapers distribute their congratulations equally to the foreign secretary, Lord Lansdowne, on his good choice, and to Mr. Herbert on his good fortune.

ARE GLAD IT IS OVER.

Great Relief and Satisfaction at Conclusion of Peace.

Cape Town, June 7. — Reports which have been received here from all quarters indicate the greatest relief and satisfaction at the conclusion of peace. The Boer delegates are all in the field to bring in the various commandoes and most of the latter have been ordered to converge on the railroad lines and surrender to the nearest British officer. Commandant Fouche, the only rebel whose intentions were doubtful, has already come in. Preparations are being made to resume the night train service to all points.

Killed in a Landslide.

Rome, June 7. — Signor Riva, a professor in the University of Rome, and Count Gino Prinetti, a cousin of the Italian minister of foreign affairs, were killed in a landslide while ascending Mount Grigna, Switzerland.

Murderer Dies at His Own Hands.

Kansas City, June 7.—Frank Robinson of Nevada, Iowa, who killed Gertrude Rawlings last week and also shot her suitor, Albert Ferguson, died this morning of bullet wounds self-inflicted just after the murder.

The News Of the Week

Washington Notes.

The senate passed the Lodge Philippine bill after a debate lasting seven weeks and two days.

The remains of Lord Pauncefote will be conveyed to England on the Brooklyn the last of the month.

Prince Maha Vijika, son of the king of Siam, will tour the United States for several weeks during the coming autumn.

An interchange of letters between President Roosevelt and Gen. Brugero shows the utmost cordiality between this country and France, and an assurance of its continuance.

A favorable report has been ordered by the house committee on public lands presented by Representative Jenkins of Chippewa Falls, Wis., for the relief of settlers on Wisconsin Central railroad lands.

Charles H. Ham, president of the United States board of general appraisers, has forwarded his resignation to the secretary of the treasury, to take effect Aug. 1. Ill health is given as the cause.

The senate committee on naval affairs has decided to postpone indefinitely consideration of the bill of the late Representative Cummings of New York, for thirty more submarine torpedo boats.

The president has promised Representative McLaughlin of California and John F. Hughes of Los Angeles, the organizer of "Teddy's Terrors," that he would visit Los Angeles some time during the spring of 1903.

The Morris bill, relating to the pine forests within the Indian reservations in Minnesota, provide for the sale of the Indian timber, and also provides for the adoption of a system of reforestation, is not likely to pass.

There has been a family reunion at the government's expense in Italy. The head of the family is Rear Admiral Crowninshield, who no sooner arrived in European waters than he assembled his squadron and proceeded to Castillamare di Stabia, Italy, where his son, Casper S. Crowninshield, holds the position of consular agent.

Secretary Hay has received a telegram from United States Consul McWade, at Canton, saying that Marshal Su has telegraphed the Chinese government that he has captured Kwej Choo, Kwang Nan perfecture, on Yun Nan frontier, Tonkin. Mr. McWade says that the rebels have fled to the hills northwest of Nan Ning.

The comptroller of the currency has reopened the case of the State of Ohio for interest on loans effected by the state for the purpose of raising money to arm and equip troops for service in the War of the Rebellion. The comptroller reverses the former ruling, and finds there is due the state $456,559, which will be certified to congress for an appropriation.

The appointment of Col. Grigsby of South Dakota to be United States district attorney for Alaska was a personal appointment of the president's, urged by Representative Marshall of South Dakota, who is related to Col. Grigsby. None of the other members of the delegations from the Dakotas knew anything about the appointment until it was made.

It is given out that the war department knows of no law or regulation in force in the Philippine islands which will prevent any native of those islands who may so desire, not under arrest and against whom no charge of any offense is pending, from coming to the United States and stating his views or desires to the president or either house of congress.

People Talked About.

A dispatch from Rome says that Mgr. Falconiox, the papal delegate in Canada, has been definitely selected to succeed Cardinal Martinelli as papal delegate to the United States.

Charles D. Busby of Nutley, N. J., for the last seven years with the Armour Packing company in the foreign and canned meat departments, is dead at Kansas City as a result of an operation.

The Rev. Joseph Vignon, the superior of La Salette community in Parkville, Conn., has been appointed general secretary of the Salette Order throughout the world. He will take up his residence in Switzerland of in Rome next October.

Lyman D. James, brother-in-law of Marshall Field of Chicago, died suddenly at Williamsburg, Mass., aged sixty-six. He was a trustee of the state insane hospital at Northampton and a former member of the legislature.

Michael H. King, a contractor and politician well known throughout the state, died suddenly at Des Moines, Iowa, from apoplexy. He was a member of the Des Moines board of public works and the city council.

Rev. Dr. William McAtee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Danville, Pa., is dead from a surgical operation. Dr. McAtee was a graduate of Princeton college and seminary. His pastorates had been at Chicago, Madison, Wis., and Danville.

Foreign Notes.

Incendiaries burned the French barracks at Pekin.

A number of people were injured in a raid by a mob on the bake shops at Lemberg, Austria.

Tests at Berlin upon four men for two years, by the imperial health office, has demonstrated the harmfulness of borax.

M. Fremiet, the French sculptor, has completed the model of a bronze statue of Col. Howard of Revolutionary fame, for Baltimore.

The Exchange Telegraph says that Sir Thomas Lipton has definitely decided to challenge for the America's cup next year.

A document containing terms of surrender was signed in Pretoria by all the Boer representatives, Lord Milner and Gen. Kitchener.

King Alfonso has signed a decree authorizing the issuance of a loan of 338,000,000 pesetas in 5 per cent internal redeemable bonds.

Charles Gassot, a wealthy merchant, has bequeathed to the corporation of London his art collection, valued at £70,000, with the exception of four pictures, which are to be given to the National gallery.

Replying to a question in the house of commons, the war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, said the total number of Boer prisoners in South Africa and elsewhere was 25,565, of which 783 were under 16, and 1,025 were over 60 years of age.

The Guaygran, a mud volcano, situated near the village of Kobi, Caucasia, has been in eruption. The outburst was accompanied by cannon-like reports. The country around for some distance was enveloped in flame. A few sheep herders were burned.

Sins and Sinners.

Mrs. Kingdon, mother of Mrs. G. J. Gould, was robbed at a New York hotel of diamonds and money to the value of $3,000.

The arrest of Tyler Crothers, at Noblesville, Ind., develops the fact that Lucius Stout, a wealthy farmer of Hamilton county, was buncoed out of $31,000 a few days ago.

Tom Harless, a farmer of Berkley, Ala., was robbed by two men and then nailed to a tree, where he remained several hours.

John Baldwin, leading politician of Sedalia, Mo., is under arrest, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, S. L. Lipscomb.

Dynamite placed under the choir loft of the Oak Park Methodist church at Tampa, Fla., caused considerable damage and seriously injured five persons.

Because his wife insisted that he pay $5 arrears due for board, Oscar Webb, colored, shot and killed her and her aged mother, Julia Waller, and then shot himself. He cannot live.

At Des Moines, Iowa, Sonny Brafford, a mere boy, but an old offender, was sentenced to twenty years imprisonment for highway robbery. He participated in a hold-up in which $4 was obtained.

The Anderson county (Tenn.) grand jury has returned indictments against Maj. E. C. Camp and the Coal Creek Mining company for criminal misdemeanor. The indictments result from the recent Valley mine disaster, in which 216 lives were lost.

The residence of Mrs. Belle Smith, near Hardin, Mo., was burned to the ground, and Mrs. Smith with two daughters were cremated. The coroner's jury at Hardin decided that the victims came to their death by suffocation at the hands of unknown parties.

Jacob Simon, a justice of the peace in Paterson, N. J, has been arrested for receiving stolen property. Frederick Kreyer, a silk manufacturer, was arrested later as an alleged accomplice. Numerous silk robberies recently from Paterson mills have puzzled the police, and the arrests are the first move to clear up the affair.

Accidental Happenings.

A tornado recently struck La Crosse, doing considerable damage and injuring several people.

Four persons recently lost their lives in a disastrous fire at Rockaway Beach, New York, which caused a property loss of $120,000.

A deluge of rain for days has placed a large part of Manitoba under water. The streets of many towns are raging torrents, and much damage has been done.

A Baltimore & Ohio engine blew up near Piedmont, W. Va., instantly killing Fireman Robert Graham of Cumberland, Md., and E. Smith of Rowlesburg, W. Va.

A car carrying forty passengers and a freight car collided on the new Paltz & Poughkeepsie electric line two miles from Highland, and a dozen passengers were badly hurt.

The Illinois Car and Equipment company's plant at Hegewisch, a southern suburb of Chicago, burned. The company was engaged in the building of railway freight cars and employed 1,160 men, practically the entire population of the town. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

A southbound Southern Pacific express was wrecked at Gilryan, Cal. The two locomotives were thrown into the ditch, followed by a mail and express car. Engineer White and Fireman Van Tassel were crushed to death and the passengers badly shaken up. A switch had been tampered with.

Harry Hicks, an aeronaut, was killed at Kingston Point, N. Y., a summer resort. When the balloon had reached an altitude of about 2,000 feet Hicks commenced the descent by means of a parachute, going slowly to about 800 feet above the Hudson river, when he lost his hold and fell, striking head first, on a sandbar. He was a nephew of Charles Kabrick, well known as a balloonist.

General.

The Louisiana legislature has extended the "Jim Crow car" for negroes to the street railways.

Twelve Odd Fellows of Elgin, Ill., furnished skin from their arms to be grafted on the limb of a brother's wife.

The Chicago bacteriologist will test the edibility of the seventeen-year locusts, whose advent in the parks is feared.

A smallpox patient escaped from the Dowie authorities at Zion City. He is supposed to have returned to his home in Chicago.

The Interstate and West Indian Exposition of Charleston, S. C., shows a deficit. The loss will probably fall on the bondholders.

A man giving the name of J. H. Anderson, who claims to be the husband of Miss Helen Gould, is under arrest at Tarrytown, N. Y.

The British remount commission at Kansas City, which has been purchasing and shipping mules, will be disbanded within a few days.

Sir William James Richmond Cotton, chamberlain of the city of London since 1892, is dead. He was lord mayor of London in 1875.

BRUTAL STABBING AFFRAY.

Row Started in Dance Hall May Cause Death of Victim.

Granite Falls, Minn., June 8.—A stabbing affair occurred here last evening. Two days ago two suspicious characters struck town and last evening attended a dance in Townley's hall. One of them picked a quarrel with Ted Tierney, who, wishing to avoid trouble, left the hall and was followed by the big man, who gives the name F. S. Smith, alias George C. Arnson. As soon as the street was reached he plunged a knife into Tierney twice, once in the breast and then in the side. Tierney fell and was picked up and taken to the hospital, where he lies in a dangerous condition. Smith, or Arnson, was arrested and is now in jail.

BIG STRIKE THREATENED.

Great Northern Boilermakers Demand More Pay.

Spokane, Wash., June 8. — A strike that may extend from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean is imminent unless concessions are made within the next twenty-four hours to the Great Northern railway boilermakers at Hillyard, a suburb of Spokane, who have made a demand for an increase in wages. The machinists at Hillyard are understood to be in sympathy with the boilermakers and may back them if necessary. The boilermakers at Hillyard have asked for an increase in wages of from $3.50 to $4 a day. It is understood here that the demand extends throughout the entire system of the Great Northern railway, to-day being the day chosen for action.

FOUND DEAD IN A WELL.

Rich Farmer Near Tyler Finds Solace in Death.

Tyler, Minn., June 8.—Brooding over domestic troubles, Louis Larson, a wealthy and highly-esteemed farmer living seven miles northeast of this place, committed suicide by jumping into a well containing ten feet of water. The body was discovered about three hours after the tragedy by his sons. The body was removed from the well about 3 o'clock in the morning, Dr. Coxe making the descent into the well and bringing the lifeless form to the surface. Mr. Larson is an old settler, sixty-one years old. He leaves a wife and eight children, four of them by a former marriage. His estate is valued at $50,000.

WILL SELL FINE STOCK.

Southern Minnesota Breeders Effect Organization.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 8.—Breeders of fine stock from Mower, Le Sueur and Freeborn counties met here and decided to organize the Southern Minnesota Live Stock association. W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, presided and was made temporary chairman, with R. C. Blackmer of this city secretary. A committee composed of Messrs. A. C. Wedge, Albert Lea; J. J. Furlong, Concord, Mower county, and John A. Timpane of Le Sueur, will draft a constitution and by-laws, the chairman and secretary to be ex-officio members. One object of the association is to hold sales of fine stock.

HIS MIND A BLANK.

Duluth Doctor Knows Not How He Got to San Francisco.

Duluth, June 8.—Dr. T. T. Storey, a prominent Duluth physician who mysteriously disappeared several weeks ago, has been heard from in San Francisco. In a letter to his wife he says that since leaving Duluth his mind has been a perfect blank and he does not know how he reached the California city. The only thing he can remember is that a man by the name of Watson befriended him at Seattle, and he says if Watson can be found much of the mystery would be explained.

NORTH DAKOTA PROHIBS.

Cold Water Party Will Nominate a State Ticket June 13.

Fargo, N. D., June 8—Chairman D. H. Stowe of the prohibition party, has called a convention of his cold water associates to meet in Fargo June 13. It is a rush order, as no notice has been given before. The call states that the convention will nominate a full state ticket. As it is the first convention to be called, it will have the honor of setting the pace for the campaign. The call states that each county is entitled to a delegate for every ten votes cast for the prohibition candidate in 1900.

Given Five Years in Prison.

Glenwood, Iowa, June 8.—Earl Garman, who, on April 15, attempted to kill his father, L. M. Garman, a grain dealer here, yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted murder and was sentenced by Judge Thornell to serve five years in the penitentiary at Fort Madison. The shooting was the result of a quarrel between the father and son over some property.

Pleads Guilty to Murder.

Racine, Wis., June 8.—Joseph Minett, in the circuit court of Racine county, pleaded guilty to the charge of murdering John Mulaney of Waterford on Monday last, and Judge Belden sentenced him to the state prison at Waupun for life. Louise Brown, the woman whom Minett assaulted at the time he murdered Mulaney, will recover.

Horses Killed by Lightning.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, June 8.—Anthony Sheker, a prominent farmer of Elkhorn township, lost six head of horses, valued at $300, by lightning. Lightning struck the cupola and followed the track of a hay carrier to the stalls. Mr. Sheker had barely left the barn when the lightning struck.

Fire Destroys Business Houses.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, June 8. — Fire at Farnhamville, near here, caused a loss of $20,000. The postoffice and a number of buildings were burned.

Destroyed by a Tornado.

Savanna, Ill., June 8. — A tornado passed through York township this afternoon, destroying ten barns and a church, unroofing buildings and killing much stock. The financial loss will be considerable. Trains were delayed.

Swept by a Tornado.

Rennsaler, Ind., June 8.—A tornado passed over the North portion of this county yesterday, cutting a swath six miles long and 200 yards wide. Alexander Leach, wife and child of Virgie were fatally injured.

SEE HOW WE GROW

NORTH DAKOTA GETS THE LARGEST CLICE OF THE IMMIGRATION.

30,000 BECOME FLICKERTAILS

FINE HOMESTEADS HAS BEEN THE ATTRACTION WHICH DREW THEM.

NORTHWEST GETS ABOUT 60,000

MINNESOTA AND NORTH DAKOTA ALSO PROFIT BY THE INFLUX.

Sixty thousand people have been added to the population of the Central Northwest since the first of the year. This is equal to the immigration into Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northern Wisconsin for the entire twelve months of 1901. For the first year since immigration to the Northwest took such a positive turn, there will be a steady, moderate movement throughout the summer with increased travel in the fall months. Industrial agents, in close touch with the situation, place the total immigration for the Central Northwest at 100,000. It is believed that the estimate on immigration into the "Greater Northwest" will reach the figure predicted the first of the year—200,000.

In the Central Northwest North Dakota has taken the big piece of the persimmon. Since Jan. 1, 30,000 have been added to the population. North Dakota was credited by the census of 1900 with 320,000 inhabitants. The immigration of last year, together with that of the past four months, will bring the Flickertail state's total population up to 380,000, which demonstrates the wonderful possibilities of North Dakota between now and the taking of the next census. Minnesota's gain through this year's immigration is about 15,000; South Dakota's, 10,000, and Northern Wisconsin, 5,000. South Dakota can now lay claim to a population of 425,000, an increase of 25,000 people in two years. Immigration has furnished Minnesota with a net gain of 30,000 people in the past two years.

Returns from the hundreds of railway stations on the various lines show that 7,000 full car loads of homeseekers' household and farming effects have gone into the Central Northwest since Jan. 1. This number includes only full car loads, and does not take into consideration the several thousand less than car lot shipments. North Dakota and Minnesota received 5,000 of these, by far the greater portion of which went to North Dakota. South Dakota took 1,300 or 1,500 and Northern Wisconsin about 600. While railroad statistics on immigration are entirely lacking in completeness, enough is known to show that at the railway stations in the Northwest more car loads of homeseekers' effects have been received since Jan. 1 than during all of 1901, which was considered remarkable for its immigration record.

Homeseekers' travel has been steady since the first of the year. The moderate winter weather of January and February gave it an early start. March and April, as usual, were the big months. May is making a reasonably good and rather surprising record. The fall months, up to Nov. 1, are expected to furnish a magnificent close.

Homestead land in North Dakota has been the attraction which has given the state the major portion of the homeseeker movement this year. This, assisted by the excellent crop record of 1901, and the advertising done by the land companies and the railroads, has sent thousands of people of small means, looking for a farm, to the Flickertail state. Other sections of the Northwest have homesteads to offer, but the free farms of North Dakota have been more advantageously situated, and in a country adapted to the small farmer as well as to stock raising. At the beginning of the year there was more opportunity of this kind for the renter of Iowa in Western North Dakota than in any other section of the Northwest. Consequently, the big movement headed that way. Landseekers by thousands have gone to Minnesota. Thousands have gone to South Dakota. There has been a good settlement in the forest lands of Wisconsin; but the industrial agents say that the big advertising of free farms in North Dakota was a large factor in taking the best of the homeseeker travel to that state.

This year's immigration has pushed the outposts of settlement in North Dakota beyond the Missouri river. In South Dakota the homeseeker has taken many of the lands close up to the banks of the "Big Muddy," and now threatens the trans-Missouri domain with invasion. Cut-over timber lands of Minnesota and Wisconsin have been peopled. The investor has spread his buying all over the Northwest, and the well-to-do farmers seeking homes in Minnesota and the Dakotas are included in this class. Settlement in North Dakota has been characterized by big increases in population in the western part of the state. In South Dakota the homeseeker has been partial to no particular section. In Minnesota the Red River valley has been favored, and a large number of settlers have invaded the central counties. The wealthy Iowa farmer, looking for opportunity "In the North," has crossed the line and settled in the southern counties.

The railroads have always been a big factor in promoting settlement in the Northwest. This is to be one of the most successful years in the history of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo immigration departments. Settlement has been general along the main line of the Northern Pacific, in North Dakota, and heavy on all of its North Dakota branches. The Great Northern has carried thousands into Northwestern North Dakota. The Soo has promoted settlement along all of its lines in North Dakota, and especially in the northern portion of the state. In Wisconsin the Soo has done most of its work in a few counties. The Northwestern has directed its homeseekers to Northwestern Wisconsin. The Milwaukee road is responsible for most of the movement into Western South Dakota. The Washburn road has aided in the development of new sections of the Missouri slope.

The valleys of the Mouse and Des Lacs rivers, in Northwestern North Dakota have received more of the homeseekers' movement than any other section of the Northwest. So many people have gone to that region that the lines of settlement have been pushed beyond the valley proper into the higher lands, west of the main line of the Soo and along the main line of the Great Northern. The territory into which all of these people have gone extends from Rugby to a short distance beyond Minot, on the main line of the Great Northern, and north to the international boundary. The Soo and the Great Northern have given this district special attention. The Great Northern has been gradually covering that portion of the state with settlers since 1894, when it brought the first train loads of Dunkards from Pennsylvania and Indiana and settled them along the St. John and Bottineau branches of the Great Northern to the East. Last year this settlement could have been traced on its journey west by the immense number of filings in the Devils Lake land office. This year the big business was transferred to the land office at Minot. Since Oct. 1 last the Minot land office has registered over 8,000 homestead filings, the most of these having been on land north of the Great Northern's main line. The "cattle country" has been invaded by the small farmer, and the Mouse River valley has been turned over to the producers of grain.

This brings within the area of cultivation and production the entire territory north of the main line of the Great Northern in North Dakota, from the Red river west to twenty-five miles beyond the Soo road. Each year has seen the invasion of the virgin prairie completed to a new outpost. When the Great Northern planted the Dunkard colonies at Devils Lake and other points on the main line and on the St. John branch, they spread out in all directions in search of farms. Gradually the wide stretch of country between the Langdon and St. John branches was settled, and the invasion continued west to the Bottineau line. This year the intervening space was overrun, and the Soo and Great Northern met on common ground in their efforts to people Northwestern North Dakota.

In Central North Dakota another new area has been opened to cultivation by the Soo and Northern Pacific. This district saw the earliest successes of the Northern Pacific in immigration. A portion of the Dunkard movement settled near Carrington and New Rockford seven years ago. Near Harvey some Russians have settled. The building of a branch line west from Carrington by the Northern Pacific opened up a new country towards the Missouri river. Both railroads have succeeded in placing several thousand homeseekers in this locality, which embraces portions of several large counties.

On the Missouri slope some of the best land in that part of North Dakota has been purchased by land companies, all of whom have aided in advertising that section. The Missouri has been crossed, and homeseekers have taken land in a region which a year ago was but sparsely settled. All of these settlers north of the main line of the Northern Pacific are close to the river. On the east slope of the Missouri the Washburn road has done its principal work.

PLANTING FODDER CORN.

Results of Experiments of the North Dakota Experiment Station in 1900 and 1901.

Since there is said to be a considerable acreage in the Red River valley that could not be planted to wheat and other grains, on account of too much moisture in April and the first two weeks of May, there has been a great deal said about planting corn. The North Dakota Experiment station, in Bulletin No. 51, has some interesting facts regarding experiments carried on at the station during 1900 and 1901.

In 1901 two plots of corn were planted each week, beginning with May 18 and ending with July 2. One plot was planted in drills six inches apart, the other in drill rows three and one-half feet apart. The planting was done with a grain drill set to sow two and one-half bushels of oats to the acre. The six-inch drills received no cultivation except harrowing once after sowing and once after the corn was up. The corn planted in drill rows two and one-half feet apart was harrowed and cultivated and kept free from weeds. The experiment was carried on partly under fall and partly under spring plowing. The plots planted after June 8 were on spring plowing, the others on fall plowing. The corn on all plots was cut on Sept. 7 to 9, weighed green and put into the silo. The average yield of air-dry fodder, six-inch drills, was three tons, 1,954 pounds. The thickly-planted corn which was not cultivated, produced on the average, one ton 620 pounds more per acre than the corn which was planted in drills and cultivated. The largest yield of air-dry fodder in each trial was produced by the corn planted June 8. The early-planted corn did not yield so much fodder as that planted later, but the proportion of ears to stalks was much greater in the early-planted corn.

In the season of 1900 twenty acres of fodder corn, planted in eighteen-inch drills, July 10, on land fall-plowed and kept cultivated up to the time of plowing, yielded about four tons of dry fodder to the acre in fifty-seven days. Late planting allows opportunity for cultivation and cleaning the land before planting and assuring a clean field for the following crop of wheat or flax. On the other hand, the corn planted early will be nearer ripe when harvested, and will cure better and in a shorter time than the greener, late-planted corn. In 1898 corn planted May 24 gave nearly two tons of dry fodder and yielded 1,500 pounds of ears. Corn planted May 31, yielded 4,423 pounds of dry fodder and 1,406 of ears. Corn planted June 15 yielded about the same amount of fodder and 890 pounds of ears. The maturity at cutting was "dough to hard," "dough" and "milk to dough," in the order of the dates of planting. The largest yield of ears was produced by the earliest-planted corn, and the largest yield of fodder by the late-planted corn.

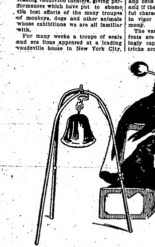
Aged Men Takes His Own Life.

Ellsworth, Wis., June 5.—A. Schaffenberg, an old man residing near Diamond Bluff, committed suicide by hanging.

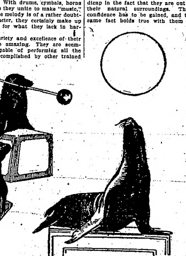
TRAINED SEALS

(Wm. L. Mallabar, in Pearson's Magazine.)

To most people a seal is a rather stupid cross between an animal and a fish, whose only value is to provide the material for very expensive raiment. When the fact of a seal being used in a public performance is brought forward, the mind instantly flies to thoughts of a tank of water in which a few seals listlessly swim around and perfunctorily go through a number of minor tricks. It is only within the past few years that seals and sea lions have been seen on the stages of the leading vaudeville theaters, giving performances which have put to shame the best efforts of the many troupes of monkeys, dogs and other animals whose exhibitions we are all familiar with.



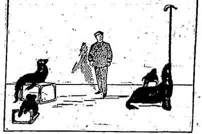
The "Drum-Major" of the "Seal-Skin Band" holding his botan in his mouth, and a little seal ringing the bell with his flipper.



"A large ball is tossed in the air and caught, spinning, on the nose of one of the sea-lions."

For many weeks a troupe of seals and sea lions appeared at a leading vaudeville house in New York City, and by courtesy of the management, facilities were granted to the writer to interview the trainer of the troupe and to secure photographs of the animals during their performance.

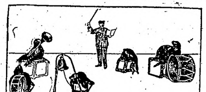
It must be admitted that the performance given by these animals is little less than marvelous. It is no exaggeration to say that they show an almost human appreciation of what they are doing. Watch one of them as the trainer advances with a long pole, something like a billiard cue, on the end of which reposes a small fish. The pole is held upright, and a sea lion carefully places his nose in position to support the butt end. Several times he draws back his head and looks along the pole still outstretched in the trainer's hand. Finally it is adjusted on the very tip of his nose to his liking, and, as the trainer steps back, releasing his hold of the pole, the sea lion shuffles across the stage balancing it with all the steadiness and watchfulness of a human juggler. He travels the full length of the stage, his eyes fixed intently upon the top of the pole, and rapidly swings his head, now sideways, now backward or forward, so as to maintain the balance. His companions follow him on his course; in their eyes you can read the hope that he will stumble or lose his balance for then the prize will be theirs. One, indeed, gives him a slight push to accelerate the downfall, but the quick eye of the trainer sees the action, and he is recalled to his seat. The pole-balancer at length reaches his station, a box about three feet high at the farther end of the stage. His paws grope for the box; he cannot see it, for his whole attention is concentrated on the top of the pole. Now he lifts himself up, higher, a little more, and he is on the top of the box; a word from the trainer, the pole is thrown in the air, and the fish comes down into its destined place—between the jaws of the sea-lion.



One of the "star" performers of the troupe of trained seals travelling about the stage, and balancing upon his snout a long pole upon the end of which rests a fish.

"The Seal-Skin Band" is another of their wonderful acts. Every animal is equipped with some instrument, and at a signal each one attempts to outvie the others in noise-making. With drums, cymbals, horns and bells they unite to make "music," and if the melody is of a rather doubtful character, they certainly make up in vigor for what they lack in harmony.

The variety and excellence of their feats are amazing. They are seemingly capable of performing all the tricks accomplished by other trained animals, and surpass them in many instances. It is in the balancing acts they show their superiority. A large ball is tossed in the air and caught, spinning, on the nose of one of the sea-lions. Then it is passed from one to another, bouncing up in the air, caught, passed, and repassed, never being allowed to drop to the floor. A game of ball takes place; one seal tosses the ball from his nose to the batsman, who strikes at it, and as it whirls across the stage another sea-lion catches it in mid-air and balances it until the batter is declared "out!" The final one of the balancing tricks is one of the most surprising. A hat is placed on the tip of the animal's nose, upon it are balanced six large wooden bricks, upon them is an iron frame somewhat like a three-legged stool upside down, and in the center of this stool is a large ball. They make a tower of about four feet, and the sea-lion travels across the stage to his station, balancing them as he did the pole. He mounts his box and gives his head a toss, with the result that the whole structure collapses, and, as the articles fall to the stage, he catches the ball on his nose, holds it for a few minutes, and finally tosses it to his trainer.



The "Seal Skin Band." "Every animal is equipped with some instrument, and at a signal each one attempts to outvie the other in noise-making."

Training these animals is far from easy work. They vary in intelligence as do humans, and there is a big handicap in the fact that they are out of their natural surroundings. Their confidence has to be gained, and the same fact holds true with them as with other animals; viz., they must be taught by kindness and not by fear.

They are great eaters, consuming about seventy-five pounds of fish per day. At the conclusion of every trick successfully performed they receive a small piece of fish, for, like most of us, they do their best when a tangible reward is in sight.

It is hardly within the bounds of possibility that now a seal's intelligence is made known, they will ever be adopted as household pets. Excepting to those persons with a large aquarium they will hardly appeal in this capacity. But it is now proven beyond the possibility of a doubt that they have a far larger degree of intelligence than any of our domestic animals. Until, however, they are trained to the point where they can live entirely out of the water, and can also eat such food as is general to the ordinary household they have but small chances of being adopted as fireside companions. The most we can do at present is to read Rudyard Kipling's "White Seal" with a better appreciation, and the knowledge that what he did was entirely within the capacity of every seal.

Earl of Oxford's Family Ghost.

It is interesting to note, in connection with the late earl's burial, that his coffin when brought from London, where he died, was not driven three times round the church at Wolterton, although this is the first time the formality had been omitted. The tradition held that Horatio, second Earl of Orford, destroyed the tombs of the Scalmers, former possessors of the place, and one of the unhappy ladies of this family, finding no rest, is said to still haunt the churchyard, always searching for the remains of her relations. To mollify her uneasy spirit, every Earl of Orford at his burial is driven in his hearse three time round the church before he is laid to his rest.

A Little Hair Ribbon

By SOPHIE HAMMOND.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

A garden in old Annapolis, crowded with blooms and fragrance; a child upon a rustic bench, with a lapful of flowers and a busy, serious face; a boy on the wall above, morosely watching her—these are what the June sun shone down upon, long ago.

The child's eager fingers had deftly put the flowers together, and one hand dragged the pink ribbon from her hair. With an effort of generosity she selected a sprig of heliotrope from the rest.

"You may have that, Tom," she said, tossing it upon the wall.

The ribbon tied about the stems, and the arrangement held out for a moment's anxious inspection, she sprang to her feet, and running down the path and up the steps of the veranda, pushed open the green-shuttered door of the hall.

At the farther end her father was taking leave of a two-days' guest—a young man in a scarl. uniform and much gold lace, whose horses and servant stood at the steps. The little girl went forward swiftly and held out the flowers to the visitor, looking shyly up into his face.

The young soldier took them gallantly. "This is indeed an honor," he said, with a quick smile—"a posey from the fairest lady in all this fair province! Mistress Betty may be sure they shall be among my treasured possessions—that I shall keep them always."

The child drew back, and ran to the big window to watch the departure, straining her eyes to catch the last glimpse of the red coat as it disappeared through the trees, a spot of excitement burning on each cheek. He had been pleased—a real soldier, who had fought the Indians—he was going to keep her flowers forever!

"La, child, you have worked yourself into a very fever!" the voice of her governess exclaimed. "Go out for a walk with your cousin, do, and cool your cheeks. And be sure you don't turn back until you reach the gate."

Betty got her hat obediently. Tom was cross—he didn't like her hero; but nothing could mar the beauty of the day for that proud, happy little heart.

The grass was checkered with shade and sunshine all down the avenue. Near the end, the blue bay, with its dots of white sails, came in view. They had reached the great stone gate posts—and between them lay her flowers, in the dust!

The boy picked up the soiled ribbon. "Never mind, Betty," he said, though his eyes were full of anger. "He's not worth crying for."

The little teeth shut down sharply on the red lip. "I'm not crying," she said.

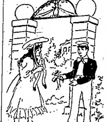
* * *

Eight peaceful years had passed, and then another wherein there was no peace—for the colonies were shaking themselves free of leading strings.

But in the little water-lapped city there were no signs of the strife. The June sun was shining down again, serenely, on the garden, and the flowers were giving out their lavish mingling of odors on the still air.

In the morning room, through the open windows of which the garden sounds and scents were drifting, a white-capped spinster, the governess of yore, was pouring out a continuous flow of tea for herself, and grievances to the morose young officer before the fire-place.

"I never go away," she protested injuredly, "but something happens. The whole town has greeted me with questions about Betty's new beau, and I with never a word to answer! Betty tells me nothing, but only laughs. She has gone off now to make the black and white cockades that the commander-in-chief has ordered in compliment to our French allies, and he has followed her. Your uncle, I suppose, is satisfied. For my own part I believe he is a Tory—his refusing a commission is certainly suspicious; though, to be sure, his manners are charming; and I confess he seems not to have aged a month since he staid here before, ten years ago. What is your opinion of the match, captain?"



The boy picked up the soiled ribbon.

The young man put down his cup. "His manners, as you say, are his strong point," he answered, contemptuously; "but my cousin, of course, will choose to suit herself," and taking up his hat he turned from the room.

The woman sighed, and poured herself another cup of tea. "He is as taciturn as ever," she murmured; "though considering the dance Betty has led him all these years he takes it remarkably quiet, poor boy!"

The object of her pity had paused outside the door, and then aimlessly crossed the hall to his uncle's study; but before his hand had touched the knob the door opened and their visitor came out and passed him, his usually bland face wearing so black a look that the younger man stopped to glance curiously after him. Then he pushed open the door.

A girl sitting by a little sewing table lifted her face as he entered—a face not beautiful, but which had worked untold mischief in its short career.

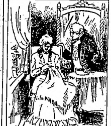
"What is the matter with Peyton, Betty?" he asked abruptly.

"We had a discussion," said the girl, with a laugh, "and I told him the story of a certain little bunch of flowers as a moral—which ruffled his temper."

Her cousin came nearer, and looked down at her sternly.

"You have danced with him, and ridden with him, and led him on, until the whole town couples your names together; and for a childish grudge—"

Betty gave a little shrug. "He spoiled one day for me," she said;



Looked down at her sternly.

"one of the happiest of my life. I am not likely to let him spoil another."

Then her whole manner changed. "Now, Tom," she said, impressively, "prepare to be sufficiently grateful; I'm going to give you my colors to wear to the war."

But the young man flushed darkly. "No, you will not," he said, through his teeth. "You have had all the amusement at my expense that you are likely to have, madam. You spend your whole time making fools of men; you are not worth—"

A pair of brown eyes had been raised mockingly to his, and kept there. For a moment or two he held out, then the old charm proved too strong, and he put his arms around her.

Betty settled her head, with a faint laugh, against his shoulder. "You always were a bear, Tom, you know," she said softly. Then she flashed another glance into the intense face above her. "Do you want to know what made me tell him about those flowers?" she asked, very low. "I helped Chloe pack your boxes yesterday—and I found that old hair ribbon in your desk."

POPE DID NOT WANT NEW GOWNS

Leo's Disinclination to Spend Money for His Own Uses.

This story is told to illustrate the pope's dislike of spending money on himself: The other day Pio Centra, his old and tried personal attendant, opened the discussion while dressing him in the morning, by remarking that his gown was not as new as it might be. "I suppose I have your holiness' permission to order your gowns for the jubilee?" he added.

"What gowns for the jubilee?" replied Leo XIII. sharply. "I have three sets already, and certainly require no more. Why should I spend good money for what I do not want?"

"But, holy father,' protested Contra, who knows his master's weakness, "supposing some one of the great personages who are received by your holiness should notice a defect such as this (pointing to an invisible spot on one sleeve)? He might think you had put on your old clothes, not considering him worthy of the best."

After a pause Leo XIII. said with a sigh: "Well, perhaps you are right. Order them—but only one, mind you; and my poor people will have to go without so much bread. How dreadful to be obliged to spend so much money on one's clothes."

When Lord Raglan Speaks.

The idiosyncrasies of orators provide an almost inexhaustible study, says the London Leader. One of the strangest habits of a speaker is assuredly that possessed by Lord Raglan. The habit is only observable at post-prandial functions, at which the moment the son of the famous field marshal rises to speak he arranges on the table in front of him everything within his reach, just as if he were playing an intricate war game.

Bottles of every size and shape, glasses, salt cellars, knives and forks and even the very table decorations themselves are pressed into the service, and by the time the noble lord resumes his seat the disposition of his imaginary troops, which is productive of no little amusement to those around him, is complete.

Fortunate is the man upon whose face nature has written a letter of credit.

THE VOLCANOES OF KAMCHATKA.

Lava Flows and Earthquakes Disturb Land and Sea.

Kamchatka has many volcanoes, the only ones in Russian territory that are still active. They are unusually impressive. Their summits are always smoking and often glow with molten lava, though they are clad in eternal snow and are covered with glaciers.

The volcanic eruptions are very grand, but being witnessed only by a few natives or Russian officials they awaken but little attention in the west. About forty of the mountains are of volcanic origin, but of these not more than twelve are still active.

One of these remarkable eruptions occurred last fall at the Avacha volcano, 8,210 feet high, on the southeast coast of Kamchatka. The eruptions were accompanied by subterranean rumblings that were audible for sixty miles. These phenomena are often attended by violent earthquakes which sometimes raise the waves to a great height, flooding the coast and sweeping away the tents of the natives. This was the case during the recent eruption.

The accounts that have been sent to St. Petersburg of this eruption say that a more magnificent and awful spectacle was probably never presented. Lava flowed in deep streams down the sides of the mountains. The streams looked like wide, molten rivers. From fissures in the earth noxious gases escaped, destroying animal and vegetable life near the mountain. Even fish were killed by thousands in the neighboring streams.

The volcanic eruptions in Kamchatka probably surpass those of any other part of the world in violence and duration. An eruption mentioned by Krashmoninnikov lasted four years, from 1727 to 1731, and that of 1737, which was far more violent, discharged vast lava streams, melting the glaciers and sweeping avalanches of ice and water into the surrounding valleys.

TEARS OF BENEFIT TO THE EYES

One's Sight Is Clearer After a Copious Flow of the Salty Liquid.

Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech, implying the lack of balmy tears that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

The reason some women weep more easily than others, and still more readily than the sterner six, has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate more easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion; their sympathetcic nature—the term is used in a medical sense—is less developed, and the eye is therefore protected from shocks. Consequently, a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptuously scorns tears as a woman's practice.

Their Consolation.

They were tossing about on the wild and restless ocean in a small, open boat, at least 100 feet from the beach. He was struggling manfully to battle with the surging waves and to pull for the shore; she was sitting in a heap in the stern of the frail barque, holding on like grim death, and mentally vowing that she would never again be tempted by her lover's daring spirit to venture so far from land.

"I know we shall go over," she shrieked, as the boat gave another lurch. "Oh, George, try and manage it!"

"I will," replied he, firmly. "I could get along splendidly if the waves did not make it go all ways at once. Don't be afraid, Sarah. We're getting nearer, aren't we?"

"A little. Oh, George, what shall we do if the boat is lost?"

"Don't you worry yourself about that, my dear," said George, soothingly. "You mustn't worry yourself about other people's business. It isn't our boat."

And he continued his fight with the cruel, remorseless waves.

Precedent Established.

A beginner in newspaper work in a southern town who occasionally "sent stuff" to one of the New York dailies picked up last summer what seemed to him a "big story." Hurrying to the telegraph office he "queried" the telegraph editor: "Column story so and so. Shall I send?" The reply was brief and prompt but to the enthusiast unsatisfactory. "Send 600 words was all it said. "Can't be told in less than 1,200," he wired back. Before long the reply came: "Story of creation of world told in 600. Try it."—New York Post.

Americans in Burke's Peerage.

The names of five American naval officers appear in the 1902 edition of Burke's peerage. Admiral Schley's daughter married a brother of the present earl of Wharncliff, the daughters of Commodore Price and Magruder became respectively duchess of Marlborough and Lady Abinger; Lieutenant H. T. Stockton married a daughter of Sir Matthew Onslow, and Paymaster Rodney married his cousin, a granddaughter of Sir Hugh Owen. Of the naval officers named only Schley and Rodney survive.

There is no love without jealousy.

PRAYING FOR RAIN

COAL MINERS THINK A HEAVY DOWNPOUR WOULD HELP THEM.

WOULD DAMAGE THE MINES

THE REMAINING UNION MEN WILL BE OUT THIS WEEK, SAYS MITCHELL.

SOFT COAL MEN ARE ALSO OUT

LEADERS CLAIM THAT NINETY PER CENT HAVE QUIT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 10. — Strike headquarters of the anthracite coal miners were very dull yesterday and presented a deserted appearance. There were no mine workers about the place excepting President Mitchell and his secretary, all others who are detailed here from various parts of the coal fields having gone to their homes to spend Sunday.

Among the reports sent in were several to the effect that additional engineers had stopped work Saturday night and that several fire bosses who had taken the places of strikers had also quit. At a meeting of engineers at Pittston Saturday night thirty engineers who had not obeyed the strike order decided not to go to work to-day. The few union men who are still at work Mr. Mitchell says will be out during the week. Most of the general superintendents of the big coal companies were seen yesterday, but, as a rule, they had nothing to say on anything bearing on the strike. One superintendent admitted that a good many companies are scratching pretty hard for good competent men to run their engines and pumps. Any number of volunteers have come forward, but the men desired are not so plentiful.

Favored by Dry Weather.

The coal companies have been favored by a long spell of dry weather. Now and then there has been some rain, but not enough to do any damage in the way of flooding the mines. The strikers are wishing for a heavy fall of rain. They are of the belief that most of the lower levels of the mines are filling because the companies are short-handed, and that the pumps cannot keep up with the water that is draining into the workings. A heavy rain, they say, will send a correspondingly heavy volume of water into the mines, which would overwhelm many pumps.

President Mitchell was in telephone communication with National Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mineworkers at Indianapolis, yesterday, over the situation in the West Virginia soft coal field, where a strike was inaugurated Saturday. Mr. Mitchell said there was nothing to be given to the public at this time because he had not received full particulars of the situation in that region. To-day begins the fifth week of the suspension of anthracite coal mining, and a settlement of the dispute seems to be no nearer than it was when the strike began May 12.

Soft Coal Men Out.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 10.—There is comparatively no new developments in this, the second day of the Flat Top coal strike. The local strike leaders are still very sanguine, stating that their claim that 90 per cent of the men had responded to the call was undoubtedly true, and that not 5 per cent of the men would return to work to-day. Quiet reigned over the entire field yesterday, and but for the discussion by small parties of miners along the railway tracks no one would have suspected that thousands of men were out.

J. P. MORGAN IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Is Ordered to Take Complete Rest From All Brainwork.

Venice, June 10—Coincident with the report that Wall street is taking steps to protect the vast interests represented in J. Pierpont Morgan's financing schemes comes the news that Mr. Morgan is seriously ill. Upon his arrival here, when a correspondent attempted to speak with him, one of his party intervened abruptly, saying:

"Mr. Morgan can see no one on business of any kind. He has been ordered to take complete rest from his brain work. He has not come here for any business purposes, but solely for a vacation."

Mr. Morgan looked ill. He wore an overcoat, although the weather was hot, and went straight aboard his steam yacht Corsair in a launch which was awaiting him at the railway station steps.

MURDERERS SENTENCED.

Nebraska Instigator and Tool Are Disposed Of.

Alliance, Neb., June 10.—Judge Westover sentenced August F. Jahnke to life imprisonment for the murder of Michael Slenk last April. Oliver Olson, who did the shooting at the instance of Jahnke, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and received a sentence of twenty years' imprisonment. Alfred Jahnke, a brother of the convicted man, held as accomplice, was reprimanded by the court and discharged.

Confesses to Murder.

Pine Bluff, Ark., June 10.—B. F. Newton, a prominent merchant of Montrose, has been arrested and has confessed to the killing of a journeyman painter. Newton claims he killed the man in self-defense.

Negro Filled With Bullets.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 10. — John Wymick, a colored miner, charged with an attack on Mary Green, was arrested and soon afterward taken from jail at Bondtown and dragged a short distance from jail and riddled with bullets.

Crash Kills Three.

Logansport, Ind., June 10.—Three men were almost instantly killed in a Panhandle passenger train at Jewell station. The men were in a buggy and attempted to cross in front of the fast approaching train.

JURY WARNED OF BRIBES.

Men Who Held the Fate of Nevin A. Gardner Cautioned Against Subornation.

Minneapolis, June 10. — Rumors of jury bribery followed the threats of murder Saturday in the trial of Irwin A. Gardner, the special police officer charged with bribery. Saturday morning W. B. Anderson was found guilty of contempt of court for threatening the life of Prosecuting Attorney Al J. Smith, and, just as court closed for the day, Judge Harrison delivered a charge warning the jury against having any communication with outsiders. For several days the air has been rife with rumors of attempts to tamper with the jury, and it is known that the court has received some definite information regarding an attempt to sign to a certain juryman that $2,500 had been paid over to a relative for his benefit. Judge Harrison informed the jurors that if any attempt had been made to communicate with them, or if any one had been trying to engage their attention by means of signs, it was their duty to report to him at once.

STEAMER IS CUT NEARLY IN TWO.

The George G. Hadley Crashes Into and Sinks the Whaleback Thomas Wilson at Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., June 10.—The whaleback steamer Thomas Wilson, Capt. Cameron master, was cut almost in two by the steamer George C. Hadley, Capt. Fitzgerald master, a half-mile south of the Duluth canal Saturday, and nine men went down. They were mostly of the night crew, who had not time to get out of their bunks before the vessel went to the bottom. The Wilson was coming toward the canal, and the Hadley going out, both loaded. Just before reaching the canal, and when opposite the Wilson, the Hadley was given orders by a tug to go to Superior. Immediately she sheered off for the Superior entry, and crashed directly into the Wilson. The Wilson went down so quickly that it did not seem possible to save a life.

SCHOOL SELLS LARGE TRACT.

Cornell University Disposes of 48,000 Acres of Land in Wisconsin for $250,000.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 10.—Charles McArthur, agent of Cornell University, who returned from the East yesterday, authorized the statement that Cornell University had sold 48,000 acres in Clark, Chippewa, Taylor, Eau Claire, Gates, Price and Vilas counties for $250,000 to James L. Gates. This leaves Cornell university with only 55,000 acres in Wisconsin, this acreage being in Sawyer, Iron and Ashland counties. The recent transaction means an advance of $1 to $2 per acre in Wisconsin lands.

VAN SANT AND TORRANCE.

Both Will Speak at the G. A. R. Encampment at Brookings.

Brookings, S. D., June 10.—The committee having charge of the preparations for the G. A. R. encampment which is to be held in this city June 17, 18 and 19, has secured the league baseball teams of Rock Rapids and Sheldon, Iowa, to play June 18 and 19. Commander-in-Chief Eli Torrance will speak on the 18th. Gov. Van Sant will be present one day during the encampment. Col. A. S. Frost, who commanded the South Dakota regiment in the Philippines, will be present during the entire encampment.

FATAL RIOT IN ST. PAUL.

Pistols and Guns in Ugly Street Battle.

St. Paul, June 10. — A battle was fought with pistols and shotguns at 5 o'clock last night between three citizens and about thirty Italians employed in a camp on the Chicago Great Western road at the end of the Concord street car line, resulting in the serious injury of four men, one of whom will die. The battle is said to have resulted from insults offered to two women who were passing the camp of the laborers. Pistols were used, but which side began the shooting is not clear.

FIND PLATINUM MINE.

Valuable Discovery Is Made Not Two Miles From Custer.

Custer, S. D., June 10. — It is stated that a platinum mine has been opened up within two miles of this city. The mine is owned by C. W. Robbins, James Demereau and others, and it is said to be one of the best and most important discoveries made for some time in the Black Hills. The ore vein is more than twenty feet wide. The ore has been sent to some of the best known experts in the country, who have given it a large percentage of platinum.

Student Is Obstreperous.

Madison, Wis., June 10. — A hazing bee which started in fun late Saturday night came near ending disastrously. After Harry Hermann of New London had been ducked in the lake he went home and procured a revolver, in order, as he maintains to defend himself. Later he appeared on the street and was "rushed" by the crowd and in the melee the revolver was discharged, the bullet lodging in the leg of Philip C. Koplin of Lavell. This enraged the students, who captured Hermann and gave him a second ducking. Several other shots were fired but failed to take effect.

Less Work and Fewer Men.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 10.—On the first of next month the force of deputy internal revenue collectors in this district, which embraces the States of North and South Dakota, will be reduced from four, the present number, to three. The reduction in the number of deputies is due to the fact that the business of the internal revenue collector for the district will be very materially reduced in volume by the abolition on July 1 of the remainder of the war taxes imposed for the purpose of carrying on the war with Spain.

Bank Wrecker Found Guilty.

Whatcom, Wash., June 10. — John Dix, charged with wrecking two banks in this city while under his control, was found guilty of larceny and embezzlement. Dix was arrested in London, Eng., about four months ago.

Firemen at New Ulm.

New Ulm, Minn., June 10—The state firemen's convention commences its session here to-morrow. The local company has prepared very elaborately for the entertainment of their guests. The city is handsomely decorated.

FOR HER CHILDREN

WOMAN LIVING NEAR NEW ULM PUTS UP A DESPERATE FIGHT.

THE KIDNAPPER IS DRIVEN OFF

HE MAKES STRENUOUS EFFORTS TO CAPTURE HER LITTLE CHILDREN.

MYSTERIOUS BABY SNATCHER

ALREADY HAD ONE INFANT IN A BOX IN HIS BUGGY—EASILY ESCAPES.

New Ulm, Minn., June 10. — With an unidentified child in a box in his buggy, that disclosed its presence by crying, a stranger near West Newton, this county, drove rapidly away from the residence of E. Lippman, a wealthy farmer, after being foiled in an attempt to kidnap two of the Lippman children.

The man drove to the house while Mr. Lippman was absent and inquired for him. His actions were queer and when he attempted to entice two of her children into his buggy, Mrs. Lippman's suspicion was aroused. Failing to persuade the boy to enter his buggy by bribes, he grabbed him, and Mrs. Lippman rushed out of the house. A struggle ensued and the mother's frantic efforts won. The boy was no sooner safe behind his mother than the stranger made a dash for the little girl. Mrs. Lippman desperately attacked the man and after a hard fight succeeded in rescuing the girl. She then took the two into the house. Just as she entered her youngest child, a mere babe,

Was Heard to Cry.

The mysterious child-snatcher excitedly demanded to see the little one, but the brave woman barred the way, refusing to admit him. He pleaded to be allowed to see the infant and as he talked a wail was heard from the buggy. The startled woman immediately surmised that the man had already stolen one child. The cry seemed to emanate from a box that stood in plain view.

Mrs. Lippman sprang toward the wagon, forgetting her own children's danger in her sympathy for the child in the wagon. The man was too quick for her, however, for he leaped into the wagon and drove off at mad speed. He has not since been seen in the neighborhood, and the identity of the child in the box is a mystery.

Mr. Lippman is a wealthy man and it is conjectured that the kidnapper had gained information concerning the family and hoped to secure a ransom for the children. The vicinity is wildly excited over the occurrence and children are carefully guarded.

BREAD FINDS DEAD BODY.

Mercury in a Loaf, Drifting on Lake Michigan, the Indicator.

Green Bay, Wis., June 10—The body of Ollie Goeben has been recovered from Fox river, in which he was drowned on Tuesday last. In the search for the body a peculiar method was resorted to. A loaf of bread containing several ounces of mercury was placed in the water near where he was last seen and allowed to drift. It followed a circuitous course through the piling, and, finally, at a point about seventy-five feet from where it was launched, came to a standstill. The plan was suggested by a sailor, who claimed to have seen it successfully tried before.

SHE TEARS HIS EAR OFF.

Husband and Wife Engage in a Terrific Fight at New Ulm.

New Ulm, Minn., June 10. — Because Baptist Groebner wanted to punish his ten-year-old son for some slight offense and his wife objected, the two quarreled and a terrific fight occurred. When hostilities ceased the father's ear was hanging by a mere shred of skin. Mrs. Groebner had her husband arrested on charge of cruelty to herself and child and he paid the fine. Now he swears vengeance upon his neighbors, who, he avers, are persecuting him and prevailed upon his wife to have him arrested.

ROOSTER REFUSES TO BLUSH.

Lightning Rod Men Sell a Contrivance That Does Not Work.

Little Wolf, Wis., June 10.—Richard Klotzbucker has sworn out warrants for three men, who he claims have swindled him on a lightning rod deal. It is alleged that they put up rods on his farm property, among them a painted rooster, which was guaranteed by the dealers to turn red six hours before every storm, but which failed to do so, and the agreed price was to be $30. When the bill was presented it was for $300, and after some discussion Klotzbucker settled for $150.

Sold Booze to Redskins.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 10. — James Murphy of Egan appeared before Judge Carland of the United States court in this city and withdrew his motion for a new trial on the charge of selling liquor to Indians. He was convicted of this offense by a jury during the April term of the federal court. He was fined $100 and sentenced to a term of sixty days in the Moody county jail at Flandrau, where he has been taken.

Seeks Death in River.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 10—John Morton, commonly known as "Jack the Ripper," committed suicide by drowning. The body was found last night. He was thirty-eight years old.

Michigan's Oldest Man Dies.

Saginaw, Mich., June 10.—When getting out of bed at 3:30 yesterday morning to get a chew of tobacco Daniel Smith, the oldest man in Michigan, dropped dead. He never smoked or used liquor, but chewed day and night. He was born Jan. 21, 1791.

Amid Much Noise.

Washington, June 10. — The navy department has been informed by Moran Bros at Seattle, Wash., that they will lay the keel of the big battleship Nebraska on the Fourth of July.

ON CRATER'S EDGE

SCIENTISTS AGAIN BRAVE AWFUL DANGERS OF MONT PELEE.

MOST TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE

GEORGE KENNAN, PROF. HEILPRIN AND ONE OTHER MAKE ASCENT.

EXPOSED TO GREAT DANGERS

MR. KENNAN PAYS A HIGH TRIBUTE TO BRAVERY OF PROF. HEILPRIN.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, June 5.—George Kennan, accompanied by Messrs. Jaccaci and Varian, arrived here at 11 o'clock yesterday morning after an absence of twelve days. Prof. Angelo Heilprin, president of the Philadelphia Geographical society, who is in Martinique under the auspices of the National Geographical society, and Mr. Leddbetter, are expected to reach Fort-de-France to-day.

Prof. Heilprin, Mr. Kennan and Mr. Varian have ascended Mont Pelee. They stood on the very edge of the crater and looked down on the incandescent mass within. This ascent was made last Sunday, and it was the second time Prof. Heilprin climbed the mountain. All the explorers are in perfect health and good spirits. No accidents occurred on the trip up the mountain, although the explorers were exposed to many hardships and dangers. In an interview with the Associated Press Mr. Kennan said:

"I must preface all I have to say by paying the highest possible tribute to Prof. Heilprin. He is modest and brave, a superb mountaineer and the

Nerviest and Pluckiest Man

I ever knew. Prof. Heilprin's first ascent of Mont Pelee last Saturday with Mr. Leddbetter was a most awful experience, yet he started a second time undaunted.

"Five of us started for the crater of the volcano last Sunday and three of us reached our objective. We found the crater to be a huge chasm, or crevasse, with perpendicular walls. We could not see down into the crater more than 150 feet; it was like looking into a white-hot furnace. What we thought to be a cone of cinders in the crater was learned in reality to be a huge pile of gigantic rocks piled up one upon the other. The whole vast bed of the old crater and of Lake Palmiste is emitting steam through thousands of orifices.

"The ascent to Lake Palmiste is up a long and sharp incline covered with ashes. These had been soaked by the rain, and as we proceeded there were terrifying gorges full of hot volcanic debris on each side of us. Every footstep dislodged ashes, and our footing

Was Most Insecure.

There were also clouds of sulphurous smoke, through which the sunlight swept at intervals. The ascent was the most terrifying experience of my life, yet Prof. Heilprin, the previous day, had sat enveloped in darkness on the lip of what was once Lake Palmiste and had descended the horrible arete in a thunder storm of volcanic clouds and almost complete darkness. Mr. Leddbetter was with him.

"On Sunday, June 1, the five members of our party, Prof. Heilprin, Mr. Leddbetter, Mr. Jaccaci, Mr. Varian and myself, started to make the ascent. Mr. Jaccaci came down with mountain fever on the arete and Mr. Leddbetter became exhausted. They did not reach the crater. June 2 we rested and went to La Trinite, and on the 3d we arrived here safe and sound.

"The traveling was exceedingly rough, trying and fatiguing. The vegetation was loaded with ashes which fell upon us at the least touch. We were often but happily there was not the slightest accident. I am now going to thoroughly examine the Le Precheur area.

Exposed to Great Dangers

"I forgot to say we planted another record stake alongside the crater on the summit. Prof. Heilprin is well and will probably come into Fort-de-France this morning."

Mont Pelee is quiet but great volumes of steam are issuing from the volcano. The lower mud craters, however, are still pouring forth torrents. The Le Precheur district is said to be caving in, but this report has not been verified.

Almost all the newspaper correspondents who were here left for home on the United States steamer Dixie last Saturday.

United States Consul Ayme has been sick for two days as a result of his three weeks of hard work, in which he was unaided. Mr. Ayme has rested and is again at work. He has been ordered home to report, and will leave for the United States on the first opportunity.

PRESIDENT'S WESTERN TRIP.

He Will Visit the North Star State on Sept. 25.

Washington, June 5.—It was decided at the White House yesterday that President Roosevelt will visit several Northwestern states, including Minnesota, during September. Sept. 25 is the date given for the appearance of the president in the North Star state, and the present arrangements are completed as follows: The president will leave Washington Sept. 21 and be in Detroit Sept. 22, in Chicago Sept. 23, Milwaukee Sept. 24 and St. Paul Sept. 25. He will go further west, the dates and places not being arranged, and will return to Springfield, Ill., in October.

Won by Minnesotans.

Baltimore, June 5.—Among the recipients of fellowships awarded by the trustees of Johns Hopkins university are the following from Minnesota: G. O. Berg, Sacred Heart; Earnest G. Martin, St. Paul, in physiology.

Dr. Barrows Dead.

Oberlin, June 5.—After nine days' illness with pleuro-pneumonia, John Henry Barrows, president of the Oberlin college, died at 2:50 o'clock yesterday morning. Dr. Barrows was unconscious at the time of death.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Threatened Uprising of Negroes Frustrated by Quick Action of Whites.

Meridian, Miss., June 10.—The threatened uprising of the negroes which so alarmed the people north of here, has been frustrated by the determined stand of the whites who armed themselves and placed the leaders of the gang, Green Johnson and Nate Moore, under arrest. A call for the negroes to band themselves against the whites was addressed to Nate Moore and was signed by a negro Baptist preacher named Ruffin. The latter said bands of negroes would form at El Rio, Kemper county, thirty-five miles northeast of here, and march to Green Johnson's house, and from there start through the country and kill all the whites, destroy their farms and burn their houses. As soon as the whites learned of the purposes of the negroes, who outnumbered the whites two to one, they armed themselves with Winchester rifles and in a short time had so intimidated the negroes that it is now thought the uprising is at an end. The people of the threatened districts, however, are very much alarmed and will be on the alert until all danger has passed. The people of Marion, from which news of the uprising and threats first reached this city, are much wrought up and prepared for emergencies at a moment's notice.

FOUR MEN WANTONLY ATTACKED.

One Dies Instantly, Another Bleeds Almost to Death and Two Get Away.

Marion, Ind., June 10—At 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning while Charles Sloderbeck, Henry Poe, James Lacey and Jacob Gotschalk were walking to their homes in Roseburg, five miles west of Marion, they were overtaken by two men in a buggy, who demanded the return of a whip, a fly net and robe alleged to have been stolen, and at the same time commenced firing. Lacey fell dead at the first shot, the bullet passing through his heart. Gotschalk fell from a wound in the shoulder and nearly bled to death. Sloderbeck and Poe escaped, but five shots were fired at them. The assassins are unknown. The officers are pursuing them.

HE COUGHS UP SPEECH.

Man Wounded in Battle Coughs Up a Wad of Impediment and Now Can Talk.

Kokomo, Ind., June 10. — After forty years William Chapman of this city has recovered his lost voice. In 1862 he was wounded in battle, a piece of shell entering his neck. The wound healed but it left Chapman speechless. He remained in the field to the end of the war, and was also wounded in the leg. On account of the latter injury he receives a pension. Mr. Chapman last week was seized with a violent fit of coughing. He finally coughed up a big lump of something that looked like a cysted ulcer. In the center was a piece of the shell that hit him in battle forty years ago. Mr. Chapman's speech was instantly restored.

A CRUCIAL MOVE IN COLOMBIA.

Government Forces Concentrating to Make Concerted Land and Sea Attack.

Colon, Colombia, June 10—All the government troops who were stationed here, numbering over 1,200 men, left for Panama this morning.

At Panama they will join forces with the government troops at that port, who number several thousand, and the combined army will start immediately to attack the Colombian insurgents by land and by sea. Some of the troops embarked at Panama to-day.

GUNS AND CLUBS USED.

West Virginia Republicans Batter Their Chairman — Bruises and Blood Prevail.

Welch, W. Va., June 10.—The Republican convention for the nomination of a state senator here almost ended in a riot. Guns and clubs were used. The chairman was carried from the hall, bruised and bleeding. The fight was between the followers of Senator N. B. Scott and J. L. Caldwell, a candidate to succeed Scott in the United States senate.

MOUNTAIN FALLS ON TOWN.

Russian Village Destroyed by Enormous Landslide.

Vladikavkaz, Russia, June 10. — The village of Cambulata, in a mountain pass of the Uruch range, has been destroyed by a landslide. A large rent suddenly appeared in the mountain, which shortly afterward toppled over on the village and the neighboring farms. The inhabitants escaped.

KRUGER DECLINES.

Will Not Have England His Benefactor Even Now.

Amsterdam, June 10.—It is reported here that Mr. Kruger has declined the facilities offered by Great Britain for his return to South Africa, but has accepted Queen Wilhelmina's proffer of a Dutch vessel to convey him to South Africa when he decides to return there.

GETS PAY FOR HIS ARM.

Jury Awards Complainant $1,075 for His Loss.

Fargo, N. D., June 10.—Ferres Rahel sued Fred Bonon of Richland county in the United States court for $15,000 damages for the loss of an arm in a feed-mill. The jury awarded him $1,075.

Result of an Old Grudge.

Chillicothe, Mo., June 10.—In a street fight here Harvey Gibbens was shot and fatally wounded by his brother-in-law, John Galvin, the result of an old grudge. Galvin recently secured Gibbens' arrest on the charge of stealing a Bible from him. Galvin is under arrest.

Pays Half a Million.

London, June 10. — The Exchange Telegraph company understands that the price paid by J. Pierpont Morgan for the famous Consul Guttman collection of antique silver and bronzes in Berlin is $500,000.

Two Killed in a Storm.

Columbus, Ga., June 10. — A heavy wind and thunder storm which passed over this city yesterday caused the death of two people, perhaps fatally injured a third, and did considerable property damage.

ON THE DIAMOND

ST. PAUL BADLY WALLOPS THE MILWAUKEES IN TWO GAMES.

MINNEAPOLIS WINS AND LOSES

INDIANAPOLIS DEFEATS COLUMBUS AND TOLEDO DOWNS LOUISVILLE.

SCORES IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, CHICAGO AND BALTIMORE ARE THE WINNERS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Columbus	27	16	.628	Kan. City	20	20	.500
Indianap	23	14	.622	Milwaukee	16	23	.410
St. Paul	24	15	.615	Minneap	14	23	.380
Louisville	24	16	.600	Toledo	9	28	.243

At St. Paul.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Milwauke.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	1	1	0	0	Bourgeois 2b	1	3	1	2
Shay ss	3	4	4	2	Hallman rf	4	0	0	0
Dillard lf	1	3	0	0	Runkle 1b	2	5	2	0
Kelley 1b	2	12	0	0	McBride cf	0	2	0	1
Huggins 2b	0	2	7	0	Dungan lf	1	3	0	0
Shannon cf	2	0	0	0	McAndws 3b	0	1	0	0
Lumley rf	0	0	0	0	Clingman ss	1	3	3	3
Peirce c	3	5	0	0	Speer c	2	4	0	0
Stimmel p	1	0	2	0	Altrock p	0	2	8	0
Totals	13	27	13	2	Totals	11	‡23	14	6

‡Stimmel out, bunt third strike.

St. Paul ....3 2 0 0 0 1 4 0 x—10
Milwaukee ....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—3

Earned run—St. Paul. Two-base hit—Kelley. Sacrifice hits—Huggins, Stimmel. Stolen bases—Geier, Shay, Huggins, Clingman, Speer. First base on balls—Off Stimmel 1, off Altrock 2. First base on errors—St. Paul 3, Milwaukee 1. Hit by pitcher—By Stimmel, Clingman. Left on bases—St. Paul 7, Milwaukee 9. Struck out—By Stimmel 4, by Altrock 3. Double plays—Huggins to Shay to Kelley; Huggins to Shay to Geier. Wild pitch—Altrock. Time—1:40. Umpire—Ward. Attendance—6,722.

The Second Game.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Milwauke.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	0	4	4	0	Bourgeois 2b	0	4	3	0
Shay ss	1	2	1	1	Hallman rf	1	0	0	0
Dillard lf	2	0	0	0	Runkle 1b	1	8	0	0
Kelley 1b	1	11	0	1	McBride cf	0	2	1	0
Huggins 2b	0	3	2	1	Dungan lf	1	1	1	0
Shannon cf	1	3	0	0	McAndws 3b	0	3	4	0
Lumley rf	0	1	0	0	Clingman ss	0	3	0	0
Peirce c	0	2	1	0	Cross c	1	3	1	0
Cribbins p	0	1	4	0	Elliott p	1	0	1	0
Totals	5	27	12	3	Totals	5	24	11	0

St. Paul ....1 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 x—2
Milwaukee ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Earned run—St. Paul. Sacrifice hits—Cribbins, Dungan. Stolen bases—Geier, Kelley. First base on balls—Off Cribbins 1, off Elliott 3. First base on errors—Milwaukee 3. Hit by pitcher—By Cribbins, Dungan. Left on bases—St. Paul 2, Milwaukee 7. Struck out—By Elliott 2. Double plays—Geier to Huggins to Kelley; Huggins to Kelley; Dungan to Bourgeois; McBride to Clingman; Bourgeois to Runkle. Time—1:25. Umpire—Ward.

At Columbus.

Columbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Indianap.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hart cf	0	2	1	0	Hogriever rf	1	1	0	0
Meany rf	0	0	0	0	Kuhn lf	0	5	0	0
Viox lf	1	1	0	0	O'Brien ss	1	1	2	0
Grim 1b	0	14	0	1	Kihm 1b	3	15	0	0
Evans 2b	0	1	3	2	Babb 3b	1	2	0	0
Turner 3b	0	2	3	1	Coulter cf	0	1	0	0
Nattress ss	0	2	4	1	Fox 2b	1	2	4	1
G. Fox c	0	1	1	0	Woodruff c	0	1	0	0
Bailey p	0	0	3	0	Kellum p	0	1	0	0
Totals	1	24	15	5	Totals	7	27	12	1

Columbus ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Indianapolis ....0 0 0 0 0 2 0 1 x—3

Stolen bases—Hogriever, Woodruff. Sacrifice hits—Meany, Kuhn 2. Double plays—Hart to G. Fox; Nattress to Grim. Struck out—By Kellum 1. Base on balls—By Bailey 3, by Kellum 1. Hit by pitcher—By Bailey 2, by Kellum 1. Time—1:38. Umpire—Ebright.

At Toledo.

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Louisville.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Knoll lf	1	1	0	0	Kerwin rf	2	1	0	1
Burns 2b	1	4	4	0	Clymer cf	1	0	0	1
Smith 3b	1	1	2	0	Gannon 1b	0	12	0	0
Turner 1b	1	12	0	0	Gansel 2b	0	1	0	0
Coggswell rf	0	0	0	0	Flournoy lf	0	0	2	0
Myers ss	1	0	1	0	Tannehill ss	3	4	4	0
Gilks cf	1	5	1	0	Sales c	1	6	2	0
Kleinow c	0	3	0	0	Schaub 3b	1	2	1	0
McNeil p	1	0	1	1	Dunkle p	0	0	0	0
Totals	6	27	10	1	Totals	8	x26	15	2

xTwo out when winning run scored.

Toledo ....0 0 0 0 0 4 0 0 1—5
Louisville ....0 1 0 1 2 0 0 0 0—4

Two-base hits—Smith, Clymer, Tannehill 2, Schaub. Sacrifice hits—Burns, Coggswell, Gilks, Schaub. Stolen bases—Knoll. Double plays—Smith to Burns to Turner; Schaub to Tannehill to Gannon. Struck out—By McNeil 3, by Dunkle 4. Passed ball—Kleinow. Base on balls—Off Dunkle 8, off McNeil 2. Hit with ball—By McNeil 2. Time—1:50. Umpire—Haskell. Attendance—3,500.

At Kansas City.

First Game.

Kan.City.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
O'Brien 2b	3	2	1	0	Quillin ss	0	1	1	2
Nance cf	1	0	0	1	Phyle 3b	1	0	0	[illegible]
Grady 1b	0	1	0	0	Byers 3b	1	1	0	1
Foreman rf	1	0	0	0	Lynch cf	0	2	0	1
Gear lf	2	4	0	0	Werden 1b	2	13	0	0
Beville c	2	7	0	0	Wilmot rf	0	2	0	0
Rothfs rf-1b	2	6	1	1	McFarland lf	1	1	1	0
Lewee ss	3	1	1	1	Grant 2b	0	0	2	0
McBride 3b	0	1	2	0	Zalusky c	1	4	2	1
Wolfe p	0	1	5	1	Sporer p	1	0	8	0
Totals	14	27	10	4	Totals	7	24	14	5

Kansas City ....2 0 4 0 3 1 1 0 x—11
Minneapolis ....0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2

Earned runs—Kansas City 5, Minneapolis 1. Two-base hits—Gear, Lewee, Byers. Sacrifice hits—Foreman, McBride, Lynch, Wilmot. Stolen bases—Nance, Rothfuss, Lewee. Bases on balls—Off Wolfe 2, off Sporer 2. Hit by pitched ball—By Wolfe 3. Struck out—By Wolfe 3, by Sporer 2. Passed ball—Beville. Time—2:05. Umpire—Tindill.

Second Game.

Kan.City.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
O'Brien 2b	2	5	0	2	Quillin ss	0	2	5	3
Nance cf	0	0	0	0	Phyle 3b	0	0	2	1
Grady 1b	0	11	0	0	Lynch cf	2	4	0	0
Gear lf	2	2	0	0	Werden 1b	1	8	0	0
Smith c	1	5	3	0	Wilmot rf	0	0	0	0
Rothfuss rf	1	1	0	0	McFarland lf	1	0	1	1
Lewee ss	2	5	4	0	Grant 2b	3	6	5	0
McBride 3b	1	3	0	0	Zalusky c	1	8	0	0
Easton p	0	0	0	0	Chapelski p	0	0	2	0
Foreman p	2	0	4	1	Figgemeier p	0	0	0	0
Totals	12	27	16	4	Totals	8	27	14	5

Kansas City ....0 0 0 0 0 0 2 3 1—6
Minneapolis ....5 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—8

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Philadel	22	15	.595	Baltimore	19	20	.487
Chicago	21	15	.583	Detroit	17	19	.472
Boston	22	17	.564	Washington	18	21	.462
St. Louis	18	18	.500	Cleveland	13	26	.333

At Chicago.

Chicago ....1 3 0 4 3 2 1 0 x—14
Washington ....1 2 1 3 0 0 0 0 0—7

At St. Louis.

St. Louis ....0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Boston ....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1

At Detroit.

Detroit ....0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0—2
Philadelphia ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 0—3

At Dayton, Ohio.

Cleveland ....1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2
Baltimore ....0 0 0 2 0 0 0 4 0—6

THE NATION'S PROSPERITY

PRESIDENT J. J. HILL MAKES A GREAT SPEECH

"Commercial Expansion" the Text of an Address Before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association in Which He Shows the Part Taken by Railroads, Demonstrates Why There Must Be Competition Between Them, and Indicates the Evils of Government Ownership.

At a banquet given in Chicago by the Illinois Manufacturers' association on the evening of June 5, Mr. J. J. Hill made one of the most notable speeches of his life. He considered the railroad question, its ownership and management very exhaustively and also talked of general business interests and trusts. The speech is very lengthy, but below will be found its most important features:

Commerce is the exchange of commodities, and the term is generally understood to include the buying and selling between individuals, and, in a wider sense, between communities and nations. Behind its adventurous leadership has followed civilization and Christianity to the remotest parts of the world. The commercial nations of the world have, at all times, exercised the strongest influence for good among the nations of the earth. The development of commerce is the effort by a country to find a market for its own productions, or to supply itself with material for its necessities, or to further increase its means of commercial expansion. The commercial expansion of a nation is the best index of its growth. Commercial growth is both domestic and foreign. Following the Civil war came a period of the history of our country of internal development, which has been the wonder of the world. Since the close of the war in 1865, the enormous territory west of the Mississippi has grown from frontier settlements into great, populous and wealthy states. The population of the United States in 1865 was about thirty-four millions. The succeeding thirty-five years ending in 1900, carried it to seventy-six millions, and to-day, we are increasing at the rate of a million and a half a year. The various census reports show that the population of the United States about doubles every thirty years, so that by 1930 we would, at this ratio, have a population of one hundred and fifty millions of people.

In the past the public domain suited to cultivation of the soil, producing every useful crop, has furnished homes for the multiplying population. To-day we have about reached the limit of our public domain which can be made to furnish homes for an intelligent and enterprising population. In many of the Western states are enormous areas of the best land which, with irrigation, can be made Productive in the Highest Degree.

One hundred and sixty acres of land, with a certain supply of water, which will insure to the husbandman a bountiful harvest, is equal to twice that area where the land is subject to the natural conditions of either too much or too little rainfall. One-half of the population of the United States is occupied directly or indirectly in the cultivation of the land, and I think fully one-half of the entire capital of the country is invested in farms and their belongings, and when we come to the questions of intelligence, patriotism and good citizenship, the agricultural population stands out to-day as it has in the past, as the great Sheet Anchor of the Nation.

The wealth of the world comes from the farm, the forest, the mine and the sea. While our country has been blest with wonderful mines of coal, iron, gold, silver and all the other valuable mineral productions, with magnificent forests of useful timber, still the farm has, from the beginning, been the foundation of our growing wealth and greatness. During the last three years the balance of our trade with other nations, that is, the amount we have sold in excess of what we have bought, has averaged about seven hundred millions of dollars annually, and two-thirds of this has come to us through the export of the produce of the soil. I do not wish in any manner to belittle the importance of our growing manufactures, or their relative value in the commerce of the country. The security of their foundations has always rested upon the agricultural growth of the nation, and in the future it must continue to rest there. Every manufacturer, every merchant, every business man throughout the land is most deeply interested in maintaining the growth and development of our agricultural resources.

In the past we have been in the habit of feeling that "Uncle Sam was rich enough to give us all a farm," but to-day, as I said before, the arable land suitable for agriculture, without an artificial supply of moisture, is practically all occupied.

In a few limited communities of the West irrigation has been commenced by what may be called "Individual Effort." Owing to diverse laws, made to suit particular interests, the irrigation of large areas is attended by greater difficulties than can be well surmounted by individual effort. The policy of a broad, comprehensive, national plan of irrigation has been urged upon congress with but little success in the past. However, an enterprise of such magnitude and importance to the nation as a whole, which importance will grow as our population grows, cannot be turned aside or lost sight of, for the reason that every citizen of every state in the Union is in the question. President Roosevelt, who has spent some of his time in the semi-arid regions of the West, has taken an active interest in this subject, and if his efforts, and of others who are working for the same end, result in success, future generations will rejoice in the memory of this work, while they build for themselves comfortable homes in the thousand valleys covering that portion of the country which is now given up as grazing ranches for cattle and sheep. With proper irrigation these valleys will furnish homes for intelligent and industrious people, and the number of cattle and sheep raised on the land will increase many fold.

Deeply and Vitally Interested

For the first time in the history of this country, thousands of our farmers from states like Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, are seeking homes in the Canadian Northwest, owing to the cheap lands offered in that country, and to the difficulty of securing such lands in the United States. A wise system of irrigation by the general government can be made not only self-sustaining but a source of income. Lands, that without irrigation are given away or sold at a nominal price, can be sold as fast as they are furnished with water, at ten dollars an acre or upwards, and the cost would be little, if anything, more than half that sum.

I cannot urge too strongly on the part of every man who wishes his country well, and who desires that all shall be prosperous, in order that he himself may be prosperous with them, the importance and the growing necessity of taking care of our public domain in such a way as to preserve it for generations now unborn.

I feel sure that no one here to-night ever expected to see the time when farmers and farmers' sons from the best states of the West would be forced to leave their country and their flag to seek homes in a foreign country.

The United States has many social questions to settle in the near future, and nothing in this connection will take the place of its ability to provide good homes for those who desire to sit under their own vine and fig tree.

Land without population is a wilderness and population without land is a mob.

Railway Importance.

Considering the question from a broad national standpoint, the next interest in importance to agriculture is the railway interest of the country. The entire railway growth is within the memory of men living. Twenty-five years ago it was not supposed possible that railways would ever be able to carry heavy and cheap commodities, which were up to that time almost exclusively shipped by water. Great elevators were built in Chicago, Milwaukee and other lake ports, to hold the grain for the season of open water, in order that it might move to market at a fair rate. Early builders of railways never realized the service to be rendered to the country by the railways. I think I am safe in saying that next to the christian religion and the common schools, no other single work enters into the welfare and happiness of the people of the whole country to the same extent as the railway; no other work could have made it possible to occupy the enormous stretches through the interior of our country and people them with cities, towns and villages.

While the railways have to answer for many mistakes of judgment, or of intent, on the whole the result has been to create the most effective, useful, and, by far, the cheapest system of land transportation in the world. In England the average amount paid by the shipper for moving a ton of freight one hundred miles is $2.33; in France, $2.10; in Austria, $1.90; in Germany, where most of the railways are owned and operated by the government, $1.84; in Russia, also government ownership, where the shipments are carried under conditions more similar to our own than in any other country as respects long haul, $1.70; in the United States the average cost is 73 cents, or less than 40 per cent of the average cost in Europe. And this is done while every article used by the railroads, including labor, costs more in this country than it costs in Europe, with the exception of coal and right of way. Wages in the United States are, as a rule, more than twice as high, and this high cost in the United States is constantly increasing. Take, for instance, the material in an ordinary box car, the cost of which has increased in the past three years over 20 per cent. You gentlemen whose manufactured articles are sold throughout the country are always able to base your selling price on the cost of production, and when your raw material and labor increases the cost, your prices are advanced, but, notwithstanding the enormous advance in wages, in material of every kind, the rates of transportation in the United States have gone steadily down from year to year until they are by comparison so much lower than those of any other country that there is no comparison between them.

If these results have been accomplished under all the changing conditions of financial prosperity and adversity in the past thirty years, have we not, as a nation, reason to rejoice in what has been accomplished rather than to seek to destroy or appropriate the means which have brought about these results?

When we consider what has been accomplished by the railway companies in the past thirty years, the singularly low rate of transportation which prevails, the average cost being not to exceed one-third of what it was thirty years ago, the reduction of freight classifications from fifty or more to three, the increase by thousands of through routes and rates, the improvement of facilities for transportation in roadway, equipment and terminals, has not the country abundant reason to congratulate itself on what has been accomplished? And I will say further, that all this has been brought about by the railway companies in their efforts to serve the public and help themselves rather than by any legislative or other interference. The railways of the country are subject to the interstate commerce law. It is said that carriers do not observe the law; that rates are unreasonable; that the public are oppressed. To remedy the evils growing, as is claimed, out of the violation of the law, government ownership is suggested by some, and an increase of the power of the interstate commerce commission by others.

Government ownership means the control and operation of railways by government officials. A mere statement of the proposition arouses in the mind of almost every thoughtful man the fear that such power would end in the destruction of the government itself.

Price of Transportation.

If the earnings which the railways are entitled to receive were to be derived solely from traffic beginning and ending on their respective lines, the rates or price of transportation would necessarily be much higher than it is. The interest of the public served by the railways is largely in the increase of the volume of interstate and international traffic over the lines. Take, for instance, the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific from Lake Superior and the Mississippi river to Puget Sound. All the interstate traffic they can obtain from the great freight producing area south of Lake Superior and east of Chicago must come to them across the lakes, which are closed to navigation one-half of each year, or around the south end of Lake Michigan by way of Chicago. To increase the volume of traffic and thus be able to reduce rates, these two companies must secure a share of the interstate traffic from the territory named and must also be able to reach territory furnishing market for the freight produced along their lines and return freight to be transported over their lines and by steamship connection with the Pacific coast terminals.

If the stock of the railway is held as an investment by those interested in the territory served by the lines, in increasing the volume of traffic and in reducing rates, the territory will be built up and rates will be lowered.

If the question of the ownership of stock was left to the public served by the lines of the railways of the country, would it not be for the interest of the public to have such ownership placed in the hands of those who had acquired it as an investment and whose interest is directly connected with the building up of the lines and building up the territory served by them?

Railway Competition.

There has been during the past year a great deal of public discussion about railway competition and a large amount of volunteer literature has been written on the subject. It is always a safe basis to assume that no business will continue for any length of time if the result of its transactions is a loss, and this is equally true of your business and of that of the railways. No individual, community or nation can afford to build up its commerce on the foundation that railways will destroy each other for the general benefit. This has been done in some cases in the past and the roads which have followed this course have gone through the portal of bankruptcy into the hands of rival owners, and, in some cases, into the hands of owners whose greater interest is in other directions, and whose object in obtaining them has been more to restrict the growth of the country than to increase it.

Competition in railway rates is either active or inactive. All railway rates are the subject of conference between the lines interested, followed by an agreement as to rates, and the conditions of the business of the country demand that this course must always be followed. All rates are by law made public, and whatever rate is adopted by one road must be adopted by the others, or they will lose their share of the traffic. In this there is no active competition. When competition is active, tariffs are disregarded and private rates are made to large shippers and rebates paid, amounting, as has been published, to enormous sums in the yearly aggregate. To prevent this active competition, both the federal government and the several states have enacted laws which have been a dead letter on the statute books until public opinion has demanded that the various commissions take some action under the law. The recent activity of the interstate commerce commission has resulted, I believe, to a large extent in correcting this abuse, and, if they follow it up with the power conferred upon them by the act of congress, the entire system of private rates will be abolished to the advantage of the trade of the whole country, and of the railroads as well.

There is however a competition between the railways which will continue to exist as long as the railways are run, and that is the competition of markets; the necessity of building up the various interests of the country served by the respective railway lines.

In this the competition lies between the producer and the railway in one locality, acting together, against the producer and the railway in another locality, competing for the business. If the railway is to increase its traffic, it can only be done by increasing the business of its customers. This same principle applies to the occupation and cultivation of the land along the lines of railway throughout the country, and particularly applies to the lines west of Chicago. Unless the farmer can make money by the cultivation of his land, either through selling his wheat, his grain, his cotton or his stock, with a profit to himself, the time must come when he will cease to cultivate the land, and the railway is left, as it were, in a desert.

Low Rates on Necessities.

For the past twenty years or more I have had some experience in opening up and peopling new states, and have always adopted as a fixed policy the making of rates on the products of the country seeking a market, and the necessities of life, such as coal, lumber and building material, at the lowest rates the company could afford, looking more to our profit from the lighter articles of merchandise and shelf goods consumed in the country. At times we have been criticised for this, this criticism mainly coming from merchants who have desired a lower rate.

The following will illustrate our answer and the reason for the course we have pursued: Take a farmer in Iowa with a hundred acres of wheat yielding, say, twenty bushels to the acre, two thousand bushels, or sixty tons. A reduction of 5 cents a hundred, or $1 a ton, would amount to him to $60 per annum. If he visits the country store once a week for fifty-two weeks and takes away from the store each week fifty pounds of merchandise, in a year he will have taken twenty-six hundred pounds, the entire freight on which would not have averaged 40 cents a hundred, or $10.40, so that if the railway carried the merchandise for nothing and charged an additional 5 cents a hundred on his grain, the farmer would be worse off by nearly $50 a year. This illustration I hope makes plain the statement that the prosperity of the people served by the railway is the only path to prosperity for the railway. The railway and its patrons must always prosper together or suffer together. The greater the volume of business the lower the rates can be made. If, for instance, a railway has to raise $1,000,000 on a traffic of 1,000,000 tons, a single calculation shows that its profits must be $1 a ton; if there are 2,000,000 tons, 50 cents a ton, and if there are 4,000,000 tons, 25 cents a ton will bring the same profit. In order to secure this intelligent railway management is constantly called upon to secure for the producers on its various lines a market for their productions, and, if possible, a return load for the car carrying such product to market. We have on the Pacific coast the largest body of first-class saw timber left in the United States. When I first visited that country, with a view to extending our lines to the coast, I saw at once that unless we could carry their lumber to market at a price that would enable them to manufacture and ship it with a profit, our railroad would have no business. The first and great crop of that country is its lumber. We made a rate of 40 cents a hundred for two thousand miles, or four mills a ton per mile, on this lumber, in order that we might load back the cars that carried out the merchandise to the West. This rate was necessarily met by other roads and the result was the expansion of the lumber trade of Washington and Oregon, so that to-day it is over ten times what it was nine years ago, and, in place of seeking additional loads for our cars from the West, we are now seeking additional loads for our westbound cars going out to be loaded with lumber for the great treeless states of the Middle West, and the development of this Pacific coast lumber traffic will work a greater change in the Oriental trade of the country than all the efforts of all the men engaged in that traffic.

Additional Tonnage

To enable us to keep pace with the enormous demand for this lumber, was the moving cause of our building the through which we will be prepared this fall to meet not only the rates of other transcontinental lines both in the United States and Canada, but we will meet the rates made by steamer from the Atlantic ports via the Suez canal. Every manufacturer reached by any railway in the United States can ship his goods to the Orient by rail to the Pacific coast and thence by steamer, at rates that will compete with water transportation from the Atlantic seaboard to the East by way of the Mediterranean and Suez canal. Were it not for the certainty that there is a carload of lumber waiting for every empty car that we can furnish on the Pacific coast, we could not carry the Oriental business at twice the rates we will offer.

Largest Ships in the World,

Much has been said about the increase of Traffic in the East.

I will use as an illustration what has occurred in Japan. Twenty years ago the foreign trade of Japan was not to exceed $1 per capita of the population. To-day this trade is equal to $6 or $7 per capita of its population. Twenty years ago it amounted to about $40,000,000 and to-day it amounts to about $250,000,000, of which the United States' share is less than one-fifth. Ten years ago we exported about $5,000,000 annually to Japan, and imported from her about $20,000,000. Now, our exports to Japan amount to $30,000,000, or six times as much as they were ten years ago, and the increase in our imports has been very small. In 1890 the entire foreign trade with China amounted to about 10 cents per capita. With a good stable government which will protect the Chinaman in the fruits of his own labor and enterprise, there is no reason why the Chinese trade should not increase as rapidly as that of Japan has increased. The Chinaman is the best merchant of the two. Should the Chinese trade increase to $3 or $4 per capita, it would amount to more than the entire exports of the United States, and surely, this trade is worth striving for. The Oriental trade has built up cities of the Old World which are now in ruins. Its value runs back to the very dawn of history. Byzantine enjoyed this trade for a time, and, later on, it built up Venice, the city of merchant palaces, which for years was the gateway from the East into Europe. When the Portuguese sent their ships around the Cape of Good Hope, followed by the Spaniards, they took possession of this trade and transferred it from the backs of camels to their galleons. From them it passed under the control of the Hanseatic league, and the cities of Holland and Belgium. Early in this country, Great Britain, through a wise and farseeing policy, inaugurated by her ablest statesmen, took possession of the trade, and has retained it to the present time, for the reason that she furnished the lowest rates of transportation to and from those countries. We are now preparing to challenge her for such share of this business as can be furnished by the manufactures of the United States. A country where labor is paid from 10 to 25 cents a day cannot indulge in many luxuries, and our trade with the Orient must be largely in the necessities of life and such articles as they cannot produce.

We have already built up a large demand for American cotton, which, a few years ago, was unknown in China and Japan.

This cotton mainly goes from Texas and other Southwestern states, and it may surprise you to learn that seven-eighths of it, during the past year, has gone by the way of Puget sound ports. With Manila as an American port in the East, and the best ships that can be built, we should be able to maintain ourselves as a nation in the control of a large share of this traffic.

Our balance of trade some years has been double the production of gold and silver in the whole world, and logically, it should continue the time would come when we would have all the gold and silver and our Customers Would Be Bankrupt.

This condition would only be less fortunate for ourselves than for them. Our customers must have the means to pay us and to get this means they must sell something to somebody. We have enjoyed all the benefits of a protective tariff for many years, and whatever good it can do in the way of building up infant industries has already been accomplished. The growth of our enormous iron and steel industries, which are pointed out as the result of our protective tariff, can be more surely traced to our enormous resources in the iron mines of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota than from all other sources. The cheap production of the highest grade of ore in these mines and the low rates of transportation to Lake Erie ports have done more to build up the iron and steel industries of the United States than all the tariffs that have ever been placed upon the statute books, and to-day, if these mines were closed, our superiority in the iron and steel trade of the world would be gone forever.

On Trusts.

There is another subject I think will not be devoid of interest to the manufacturers of Illinois, and that is the so-called trusts or combinations of capital. In a country as large as ours, carrying on enormous undertakings, large amounts of capital are necessary, and this capital can be more readily furnished by corporate ownership than in any other way. There are a few individuals in the country who might furnish fifty or a hundred millions of dollars with which to carry on any particular branch of business, but there is no certainty that they would furnish one dollar. A man with that amount of money does not need all the trouble and annoyance attending a large business of any kind, so that it is necessary that this work shall be done through corporate effort, and no harm is likely to come to the country growing out of the magnitude of the business. Has the enormous business of the Krupp company in Germany injured the German nation, or any of its people? On the contrary the nation and the people are proud of the name of Krupp. Can anyone in this country point out an injury inflicted on the people which can be traced to the magnitude of the Carnegie company? The only serious objection to trusts has been the method of creating them, not for the purpose of manufacturing any particular commodity in the first place, but for the purpose of selling sheaves of printed securities which represent nothing more than good will and prospective profit to the promoters.

If it is the desire of the general government through congress to prevent the growth of such corporations, it has always seemed to me that a simple remedy was within their reach.

Under the constitutional provision allowing congress to regulate commerce between the states, all companies desiring to transact business outside of the state in which they are incorporated, should be held to a uniform provision of federal law, that they should satisfy a commission that their capital stock was actually paid up in cash or in property, at a fair valuation, just as the capital of the national banks are certified to be paid up by the controller of the currency. It is only fair to a dealer in Minnesota or California or Oregon, that if a company claims to have ten, twenty or fifty millions of capital, desiring to do business in that state, that the dealer should know that the company's solvency has been passed upon by a federal commission and that its capital was what it was advertised to be. With that simple law, the temptation to make companies for the purpose of selling prospective profits would be at an end, and, at the same time, no legitimate business would suffer nor would any number of individuals, desiring to engage in business through a corporation, suffer any hardship because their actual capital was as they advertised it to be. We have been as a nation too ready to look to state and federal legislation for remedies which are beyond their power to give.

The laws of trade are as certain in their operation as the laws of gravitation. You might as well try to set a broken arm by statute as to change a commercial law by legislative enactment. You may obstruct and delay for a time, but, in the end, the inexorable law of experience, and the survival of the fittest, will prevail.

NORTH DAKOTA SENATORS.

Splendid Work Done in the United States Senate by the Men From This State.

W. W. Germaine wires the Minneapolis Journal from Washington:

"A summing up of the legislation enacted by the present congress, or which will be enacted before adjournment, indicates that the North Dakota delegation has done good work.

"First and foremost comes the irrigation measure. Here many conflicting interests contended for supremacy. The representatives of the cattle-growing states wanted a measure favorable to their interests, while senators and representatives from the agricultural states in the semi-arid region wanted legislation beneficial to them. Frequent meetings were held, the result of which was the introduction of the Hansbrough-Newlands bill, a compromise measure satisfactory to all parties. It passed the senate with few opposing votes, and has been reported to the house and will be considered within the next ten days.

"The omnibus public buildings bill, with its provision for a new public building at Grand Forks, has become a law.

"The sundry civil appropriation bill carries an item of $100,000 for continuing construction work at Fort Lincoln, near Bismarck. This item was put in the bill at Senator Hansbrough's request, notwithstanding the report of the army post board which favored the abandonment of Fort Lincoln and the improvement of Fort Yates.

"The senate has passed the bill for the ratification of the Devils Lake Indian treaty, and it has been reported favorably from the house committee on Indian affairs and is now on the house calendar. Chairman Sherman, of the Indian committee, has been directed by the committee to secure a day or two for the consideration of the bills reported by that committee, and Mr. Marshall believes that this bill will be one of those acted upon at that time.

"The river and harbor bill contains authority for the survey of Lake Traverse and Big Stone lake, with a view to the conservation of the water supply and the prevention of floods in the Red River valley, which was put in by the senate, and the agricultural appropriation bill carries an item of $110,000 for continuing investigations under the bureau of plant industry. This amount is an increase of $10,000 over that allowed by the house. Senator Hansbrough wanted to make it $25,000 more, but the house conferees refused to consent to such an increase. This appropriation will permit of extensive investigations in the cultivation of macaroni wheat, in which the farmers of North Dakota are much interested.

"The senate has passed bills granting 20,000 acres of land for the benefit of a school of forestry, and one introduced by Senator McCumber for an Indian agricultural school, to be located at Mandan, to cost $100,000. Senator Hansbrough is also trying to get recognition for the North Dakota men who served with Young's scouts in the Philippines, but he is up against a hard proposition, owing to the opposition of members of the military affairs committee, who do not want to appear in the attitude of turning down a board created by congress to pass on the awards of merit for soldiers who served in the Orient.

"Last, but not least of the measures that have received the active support of the North Dakota delegation is the oleomargarine bill, which has become a law and will go into effect July 1. Senator Hansbrough, by reason of his position on the agricultural committee, had much to do towards getting this bill reported.

Double Suicide.

Austin, Tex., June 6.—The dead bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wachler were found in their residence in the Eastern part of this city late yesterday afternoon with their heads nearly severed and a note said they wanted to die.

ALL ARE PLEASED

DISARMAMENT OF BOERS IS PROCEEDING SATISFACTORILY.

TRANSVAAL STAFF COMES IN

MAJORITY OF THE BOERS SEEM GLAD THAT THE WAR IS AT AN END.

EVEN CHEER FOR KING EDWARD

THANKSGIVING SERVICES HELD THROUGHOUT THE BRITISH DOMINIONS.

London, June 10. — The war office has received the following message from Lord Kitchener, under yesterday's date:

"The disarmament of the Boers is proceeding satisfactorily and satisfaction expressed everywhere. Up to yesterday 4,622 rifles had been received."

Dispatches to the Associated Press from Pretoria confirm the statements made in Lord Kitchener's communication to the war office and say that the whole staff of the late Transvaal government, with a bodyguard of sixty men, surrendered last Saturday.

The following formalities are observed when Gen. Botha, Gen. Dewet or any of the Boer commanders accompany the British officers who are detailed to receive surrenders:

The Boer leader goes to meet a commando and returns at its head. The Boers who come in are generally dressed

In Dilapidated Clothing,

but have a smart and soldierly bearing. Those who are to surrender are assembled and the Boer leader delivers an address to his men, urging them to listen to the British officer who has been detailed on this work. The British officer then makes a speech to the men of the commando in which he informs them of the admiration of King Edward and the British nation for the Boer resistance and the bravery of their people, and that the authorities will do the utmost to enable them to settle on their farms. A meal is provided for the Boers, after which the formal surrenders occur. In many such instances the Boers have cheered King Edward and they have sometimes expressed surprise that no army was sent out to receive their surrenders. The majority of them appear to be glad that the war is at an end and that they will now be able to join their families.

Americans Among Them.

Among the men who surrendered to the British authorities at Balmoral, Cape Colony, were four Americans, who will be granted free passage to Delagoa Bay.

A striking sign of the altered conditions in South Africa is that Lord Milner, the British high commissioner, rode from Pretoria to Johannesburg last Saturday accompanied only by two staff officers.

A few of the Boer women still inveigh against surrender, but general feeling among them is in favor of making the best of the situation.

Throughout the dominions of the British empire, and especially in all the principal towns in South Africa, thanksgiving services for the return of peace were held yesterday. Lord Kitchener attended a thanksgiving service at Pretoria at which 5,000 British troops were present.

YAQUIS ARE KILLED.

Travel About Hermosillo Is Now Perfectly Safe.

Tucson, Ariz., June 10.—Advices from Hermosillo say that the Yaqui trouble is practically settled and that travel is perfectly safe throughout Sonora. Gov. Torres is in the field with a sufficient force to quell any rebellion that may arise. The report of the killing of the son of Ricardo Johnson, a well known mining man, by Yaqui Indians, is denied at Hermosillo. The fight in which the forces, under Gov. Isabel killed twenty Yaquis, practically ended the trouble. It is estimated that not over 100 Yaquis are out and these are in hiding from the troops. All that remains is to round up these and then the trouble will be at an end.

GIRL'S BODY IS CRUSHED TO PULP.

Deliberately Places Her Head Between Revolving Cogwheels.

Paris, June 10. — Mlle. Tangy visited the Creusot shops Saturday with a dozen friends. While the group stood watching the huge cogs commanding the rail mills the girl, twenty-nine years old and pretty, deliberately placed her head between the cogs, which drew her in and crushed the upper part of her body to a pulp. A cry of horror arose and several of the party fainted. Some of the workmen hid their faces, while others ran about howling like crazy persons. One stumbled upon red-hot rails, which burned him so badly that he will die.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

One Man Killed and Three Probably Fatally Wounded.

Alpena, Mich., June 10.—An excursion train on the Detroit & Mackinaw railway, which left here yesterday morning for Saginaw, consisting of one baggage car and twelve coaches and carrying over 500 people was wrecked at Black River while running forty miles an hour. One man was killed, three were probably fatally injured and nearly fifty others received injuries of various degrees of severity, ranging from bruises and cuts to broken limbs.

Poison His Last Cue.

New York, June 10.—Robert Jefferson Ferral, an actor, said to be the son of a prominent San Francisco attorney, killed himself by taking poison. His friends say he had been despondent for some time. He was twenty-five years old.

Chief of Police Suicides.

David City, June 10.—Joseph Calvin, chief of police of David City, committed suicide by shooting himself yesterday. He was despondent because of failing health.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

Plentiful rains in portions of South Australia and New South Wales have relieved the drouth and the outlook is now more hopeful.

King Victor Emmanuel has presented Sig. Giolitti, the minister of the interior, with a life-size portrait of himself in token of his esteem.

Solva Brininall, one of the early pioneers of Chicago, and until two years ago president of the Drovers' National bank, died at the family residence. He was eighty-five years old.

It is believed at Milwaukee that Charles Hill, who died at Los Angeles, leaving an unclaimed fortune of $142,000, is in reality Michael Hill, a former Milwaukeean who disappeared nineteen years ago.

Prof. Friedrich Hirth, holder of the chair of Chinese philology at the University of Munich, has accepted the offer of the Chinese chair at Columbia university, New York, and will begin his lectures there next October.

Ferdinand Boener, A. M., professor of modern language at Harvard university since 1870, is dead. He was born in New York city in 1832 of French parentage, passed his childhood in Normandy, and as a young man taught French in St. Louis.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, June 10. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 74 @ 75c; No. 2 Northern, 72 @ 74c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 57@58c; No. 3, 56@57c. Oats—No. 3 white, 40@41c; No. 3, 39@40c.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 76 1-4c; No. 1 Northern, 73 1-2 @ 74 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 72 1-2c.

Duluth, June 10.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 75 5-8c; No. 1 Northern, 72 5-8c; No. 2 Northern, 71 1-8c; No. 3, 69 5-8c; Manitoba, 71 3-8c; flax, $1.75; oats, 49c; rye, 56c.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 10. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 76 1-2@77c; No. 2 Northern, 75 1-2@76c; July, 71 1-8c. Rye dull; No. 1, 58 1-2c. Barley lower; No. 2, 70c; sample, 65@70c.

Chicago, June 10.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 79@80c; No. 3 red, 77@79c; No. 2 hard winter, 74 3-4c; No. 3 hard winter, 74c; No. 1 Northern spring, 72 3-4@74 3-4c; No. 2 Northern spring, 72 1-4@73 1-4c; No. 3 spring, 69@71 3-4c. Corn—No. 2, 61@61 1-4c; No. 3, 60 1-2@60 3-4c. Oats—No. 2, 39@39 1-2c; No. 3, 38 1-4@39c.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 10.—Cattle—Beeves, $6@7; cows, bulls and mixed, $3@5.50; yearlings and calves, $3@4.60. Hogs, $6.80@7.10; bulk, $6.90@7.

Chicago, June 10. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.25@7.70; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.25; cows, $1.50@6; heifers, $2.50@6.50; calves, $2@6.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $6.90@7.40; good to choice heavy, $7.30@7.47 1-2. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $5.25@6; fair to choice mixed, $4.60@5.25; Western sheep, $5.25@6; native lambs, $5.25@7; Western lambs, $5.25@7; spring lambs, $7.50.

South St. Paul, June 10. — Cattle—Choice butcher steers, $6.40@6.75; good, $5.75@6.25; choice cows and heifers, $5.25@5.75; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.60; good to choice feeding steers, $3.50@4.50. Hogs—Prices range $6.75 @ 7.15; bulk, $6.85@6.95. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.65@6; good to choice fat lambs, $5.50@5.75; good to choice yearling wethers, $5.50@5.75.

ENVOY REID ARRIVES.

America's Representative at the Coronation Is in London.

London, June 10.—Whitelaw Reid, the special envoy of the United States to the coronation of King Edward, who arrived at Queenstown yesterday on the Cunard line steamer Umbria, is now comfortably settled in the capacious Brook house here.

Mr. Reid's plans have hardly yet been determined. To-morrow he will present his credentials to Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary; and next Wednesday he will dine with Mr. and Mrs. Choate upon the occasion of their dinner to King Edward and Queen Alexandra. A number of formal dinners have been arranged in Mr. Reid's honor, while Brook house itself will be the scene of many brilliant gatherings before the special embassy returns to the United States.

REPULSED BY MILITIA.

Mob Attempts to Get Hold of a Negro Prisoner.

Hattiesburg, Miss., June 10.—An attempt was made by a mob to attack the county jail here in which was confined Walter Blankhead, a negro charged with having attempted to assault Mrs. Garner, a white woman living near here. A company of military ordered out by Gov. Longino, however, repulsed the mob which afterward dispersed. Further trouble is feared and additional troops have been dispatched to relieve the military on duty. At the request of the governor a preliminary trial will be given Blankhead to-day.

ONCE MORE IN FELLOWSHIP.

Gov. Jefferson Davis Joins Another Baptist Church.

Little Rock, Ark., June 10.—Gov. Jefferson Davis yesterday accepted the invitation of the Baptist church of Russellville, his home, and joined that church. The governor's friends claim this is a vindication of him by his home people against the action of the Second Baptist church of Little Rock in withdrawing fellowship from him. It is alleged by the governor's friends that the action taken by the church at Little Rock was the result of resentment for the part he took in the race for United States senator.

New Warden at Waupun.

Madison, Wis., June 10.—E. S. Harvey, formerly deputy warden of the Chicago house of correction, was elected deputy warden of the Wisconsin state prison.

Desperado Captured.

Cripple Creek, Colo., June 10. — Pug Ryan, said to have been the leader of a gang of desperadoes, who in a fight several years ago with a posse of Breckenridge officers, killed one of the latter, has been arrested here. Ryan escaped from the Leadville jail a week ago with several other prisoners. He will be tried for murder.

Kruger Will Stay in Holland.

Brussels, June 10. — Mr. Kruger declares that he will end his days in Holland.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XII—(Continued.)

"Another one," Bell replied. "Oblige me by opening yonder parcel. There you see in the print that I purchased to-day for £5. This, this, my friend is the print that was stolen from Littmer's lodgings in Amsterdam. If you look closely at it, you will see four dull, red spots in the left-hand corner. They are supposed to be blood-spots from a cut finger of the artist. I am prepared to swear that this is the very print, frame and all, that was purchased in Amsterdam from that shady scoundrel, Van Sneck."

"But Littmer is credited with having one in his collection," David urged.

"He has one in his collection," Bell said, coolly. "And, moreover, he is firmly under the impression that he is at present the happy possessor of his own lost treasure. And up to this very day I was under exactly the same delusion. Now I know that there must have been two copies of the plate, and that this knowledge was used to ruin me."

"But," Steel murmured, "I don't exactly see—"

"I am coming to that. We hunted high and low, for the picture, but nowhere could it be found. The affair created a profound impression in Amsterdam. A day or two later Van Gulden went back to his duty on the Belgian frontier, and business called me home. I packed my solitary portmanteau and departed. When I arrived at the frontier I opened my luggage for the customs officer, and the whole contents was turned out without ceremony. On the bottom was a roll of paper on a stick that I quite failed to recognize. An inquisitive customs house officer opened it, and immediately called the lieutenant in charge. Strange to say, he proved to be Von Gulden. He came up to me, very gravely, with the paper in his hand.

"'May I inquire how this came among your luggage?' he asked.

"I could say nothing. I was dumb. For there lay the Rembrandt. The red spots had been smudged out of the corner, but there the picture was.

"Well, I lost my head then. I accused Von Gulden of all kinds of disgraceful things. And he behaved like a gentleman—he made me ashamed of myself. But he kept the picture, and returned it to Littmer, and I was ruined. Lord Littmer declined to prosecute, but he would not see me and he would hear of no explanation. Indeed, I had none to offer. Enid refused to see me, also, or reply to my letters. The story of my big gambling debt, and its liquidation got about, Steel, and I was ruined. Some enemy had done this thing, and from that day to this I have been a marked man."

"But how on earth was it done?" Steel cried.

"For the present I can only surmise," Bell replied. "Van Sneck was a slippery dog. Of course he had found two of those plates. He kept the one back, so as to sell the other at a fancy price. My enemy discovered this, and Van Sneck's sudden flight was his opportunity. He could afford to get rid of me at an apparently dear rate. He stole Littmer's picture—in fact, he must have done so, or I should not have it at this moment. Then he smudged out some imaginary spots on the other, and hid it in my baggage, knowing that it would be found. Also, he knew that it would be returned to Littmer, and that the stolen plate could be laid aside, and produced at some remote date as an original find. The find has been mine, and it will go hard if I can't get to the bottom of this mystery now. It is strange that your mysterious trouble and mine should be bound up so closely together, but in the end it will simplify matters, for the very reason that we are both on the hunt for the same man."

"Which man we have got to find, Bell."

"Granted. We will bait for him as one does for a wily old trout. The fly shall be the Rembrandt, and you see he will rise to it in time. But beyond this I have made one or two important discoveries to-day. We are going to the house of the strange lady who owns 218 and 219 Brunswick Square, and I shall be greatly mistaken if she does not prove to be an old acquaintance of mine. There will be danger."

"You propose to go to-night?"

"I propose to go at once," Bell said. "Dark hours are always best for dark business. Now, which is the nearest way to Longdean Grange?"

"So the House of the Silent Sorrow, as they call it, is to be our destination! I must confess that the place has ever held a strange fascination for me. We will go over the golf links and behind Ovingdean village. It is a rare spot for a tragedy."

Bell rose and lighted a cigar.

"Come along," he said. "Poke that Rembrandt behind your books, with its face to the wall. I would not lose that for anything, now. No, on second thoughts, I find I shall have to take it with me."

David closed the door carefully behind him, and the two stepped out into the night.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Good Dog."

Two dancing eyes of flame were streaming up the lane towards the girls, a long shadow slanted across the white pathway, the steady flick of hoofs drew nearer. Then the hoofs ceased their smiting of the dust and a man's voice spoke.

"Better turn and wait for us by the farm, driver," the voice said. "Bell, can you manage, man?"

"Who was that?" Enid whispered. "A stranger?"

"Not precisely," Ruth replied. "That is Mr. David Steel. Oh, I am sure we can trust him. Don't annoy him. Think of the trouble he is in for our sakes."

"I do," said Enid, deftly. "I am also thinking of Reginald. If our dear Reginald escapes from the fostering care of the dogs we shall be ruined. That man's hearing is wonderful. He will come creeping down here on those large, flat feet of his, and that cunning brain will take in everything like a flash. Good dog!"

A hound in the distance growled, and then another howled mournfully. It was the plaint of the beast who had found his quarry, impatient for the gaoler to arrive. So long as that continued Henson was safe. Any attempt at escape, and he would be torn in pieces. Just at the present moment Enid almost hoped that the attempt would be made. It certainly was all right for the present, but then Williams might happen along on his way to the stables at any moment.

The two men were coming nearer. They both paused as the dogs gave tongue. Through the thick belt of trees lights gleamed from one or two windows of the house. Steel pulled up and shuddered slightly, in spite of himself.

"Crimson blinds," he said. "Crimson blinds all through this business. They are beginning to get on my nerves. What about those dogs, Bell?"

"Dogs or no dogs, I am not going back now," Bell muttered. "It's perfectly useless to come here in the daytime; therefore, we must fall back upon a little amateur burglary. There's a girl yonder who might have assisted me at one time, but—"

Enid slipped into the road. The night was passably light, and her beautiful features were passably clear to the startled men in the road.

"The girl is here," she said. "What do you want?"

Bell and his companion cried out simultaneously: Bell because he was so suddenly face to face with one who was so very dear to him; David, because it seemed to him that he had recognized the voice from the darkness, the voice of his great adventure. And there was another surprise, as he saw Ruth Gates side by side with the owner of that wonderful voice.

"Enid!" Bell cried, hoarsely. "I did not expect—"

"To confront me like this," the girl said, coldly. "That I quite understand. What I don't understand is why you intrude your hated presence here."

Bell shook his handsome head mournfully. He looked strangely downcast and dejected, and none the less, perhaps, because a fall in crossing the downs had severely wrenched his ankle. But for a belated cab on the Rottingdean road he would not have been here now.

"As hard and cruel as ever," he said. "Not one word to me, not one word in my defense. And all the time I am the victim of a vile conspiracy—"

"Conspiracy! Do you call vulgar theft a conspiracy?"

"It was nothing else," David put in, eagerly. "A most extraordinary conspiracy. The kind of thing that you would not have deemed possible out of a book."

"And who might this gentleman be?" Enid asked, haughtily.

"A thousand pardons for my want of ceremony, David said. "If I had not been under the impression that we had met before I should never have presumed—"

"Oh, a truce to this," Bell cried. "We are wasting time. The hour is not far distant, Enid, when you will ask my pardon. Meantime, I am going up to the house, and you are going to take me there. Come what may, I do not sleep to-night until I have had speech with your aunt."

David had drawn a little aside. By a kind of instinct, Ruth Gates followed him. A shaft of gray light glinted upon her cycle in the grass by the roadside. Enid and Bell were talking in vehement whispers—they seemed to be absolutely unconscious of anybody else but themselves. David could see the anger and scorn on the pale, high-bred face; he could see Bell gradually expanding, as he brought out all his strength and firm power of will to bear.

"What will be the upshot of this?" Ruth asked, timidly.

"Bell will conquer," David replied. "He always does, you know."

"I am afraid you don't take my meaning, Mr. Steel."

David looked down into the sweet, troubled face of his companion, and thence away to the vivid, crimson patches beyond the dark belt of foliage. Ever and anon the intense stillness of the night was broken by the long-drawn howl of one of the hounds. David remembered it for years afterward. It formed the most realistic chapter of one of his most popular novels.

"Heaven only knows," he said. "I have been dragged into this business, but what it means I know no more than a child. I am mixed up in it, and Bell is mixed up in it, and so are you. Why we shall perhaps know some day."

"You are not angry with me?"

"Why, no. Only you might have had a little more confidence in me."

"Mr. Steel, we dared not. We wanted your advice and nothing more. Even now I am afraid I am saying too much. There is a withering blight over yonder house that is beyond mere words. And twice gallant gentlemen have come forward to our assistance. Both of them are dead. And if we dragged you, a total stranger, into the arena, we should morally have murdered you."

"Am I not within the charmed circle now?" David smiled.

"Not of our free will," Ruth said, eagerly. "You came into the tangle with Hatherly Bell. Thank Heaven you have an ally like that. And yet I am filled with shame—"

"My dear young lady, what have you to be ashamed of?"

Ruth covered her face with her hands for a moment and David saw a tear or two trickle through the slim fingers. He took the hands in his, gently, tenderly, and glanced into the fine gray eyes. Never had he been so moved to a woman like this before.

"But what will you think of me?" Ruth whispered. "You have been so good and kind and I am so foolish. What can you think of a girl who is all this way from home at midnight? It is so—so unmaidenly."

"It might be in some girls, but not in you," David said, boldly. "One has only to look in your face and see that only the good and pure dwell there. But were you not afraid?"

"Horribly afraid. The very shadows startled me. But when I discovered your errand to-night, I was bound to come. My loyalty to Enid demanded it, and I had not one single person in the world whom I could trust."

"If you had only come to me, Miss Ruth—"

"I know, I know now. Oh, it is a blessed thing for a lonely girl to have one good man that she can rely upon. And you have been so very good, and we have treated you very, very badly."

But David would not hear anything of the kind. The whole adventure was strange to a degree, but it seemed to matter nothing as long as he had Ruth for company. Still, the girl must be got home. She could not be permitted to remain here, nor must she return to Brighton alone. Bell strode up at the same moment.

"Miss Henson has been so good as to listen to my arguments," he said. "I am going into the house. Don't worry about me, but send Miss Gates home in the cab. I shall manage somehow."

David turned, eagerly, to Ruth.

"That will be best," he said. "We can put your machine on the cab, and I'll accompany you part of the way home. Our cabman will think that you came from the house. I shan't be long, Bell."

Ruth assented, gratefully. As David put her in the cab Bell whispered to him to return as soon as possible, but the girl heard nothing of this.

"How kind—how kind you are," she murmured.

"Perhaps, some day, you will be kind to me," David said, and Ruth blushed in the darkness.

CHAPTER XIV.

Behind the Blind.

There was a long pause till the sound of the horse's hoofs died away. Bell was waiting for his companion to speak. Her head was partly turned from him, so that he could only watch the dainty beauty of her profile. She stood there, cold and still, but he could see that she was profoundly agitated.

"I never thought to see the day when I should trust you again," she said. "I never expected to trust any man again."

"You will trust me, darling," Bell said, passionately. "If you still care for me as I care for you. Do you?"

The question came keen as steel. Enid shivered and hesitated. Bell laid a light hand on her arm.

"Speak," he said. "I am going to clear myself. I am going to take back my good name. But if you no longer care for me, the rest matters nothing. Speak."

"I am not one of those who change. God pity me," Enid murmured.

Bell drew a long, deep breath. He wanted no assurance beyond that.

"Then lead the way," he said. "I have come at the right time; I have been looking for you everywhere, and I find you in the hour of your deepest sorrow. When I knew your aunt last she was a cheerful, happy woman. From what I hear, she is now suffering, you are all suffering, under some blighting grief."

"Oh, but if you only knew what that sorrow was, Hatherly!"

"Hatherly! How good the old name sounds from your lips. Nobody has ever called me that since—since we parted. And to think that I should have been searching for you all these years when Miss Ruth Gates could have given me the clue at any time. And why have you been playing such strange tricks upon my friend, David Steel? Why have you—What is that?"

Somebody was moving somewhere in help. Enid started forward.

"It is Williams coming from the stables," she said. "I have so arranged it that the dogs are holding up my dear cousin, Reginald Henson, who is calling upon Williams to release him. If Reynolds gets back to the house now we are ruined. Follow me as well as you can."

Enid disappeared down a narrow, tangled path, leaving Bell to limp along painfully in her track. A little way off Henson was yelling lustily for assistance. Williams, who had evidently taken in the situation, was coming up leisurely, chuckling at the discomfiture of his enemy. The hounds were whining and baying. From the house came the notes of a love song passionately declaimed. A couple of the great dogs came snarling up to Bell and laid their grimy muzzles on his thighs. A cold sensation crept up and down his spine as he came to a standstill.

"The brutes!" he muttered. "Margaret Henson must be mad, indeed, to have these creatures about the place. Ah! would you? Very well, I'll play the game fairly, and not move. If I remain quiet I shall have a pleasant night of it. Let us hope for the best, and that Enid will understand the situation."

Meanwhile Enid had come up with Williams. She laid her hand imperiously upon his lips.

"Not a word," she whispered. "Mr. Henson is held up by the dogs. He must remain where he is until I give you the signal to release him. I know you answered his call, but you are to go no further."

Williams assented, willingly enough. Everything that tended to the discomfort of Reginald Henson filled him with a peculiar and deep-seated pleasure.

"Very well, miss," he said, demurely. "And don't you hurry, miss. This is the kind of job that calls for plenty of patience. And I'm really shockingly deaf to-night."

Williams retreated, leisurely, in the direction of the stables, but his malady was not so distressing that he failed to hear a groan and a snarling curse from Henson. Enid fled along the track, where she found Bell, standing patiently, with a dog's muzzle at either knee. His face was white and shining, otherwise he showed no signs of fear. Enid laid a hand on the head of either dog, and they rolled like great cats at her feet in the bushes.

"Now come swiftly," she whispered. "There is no time to lose."

They were in the house at last, crossing the dusty floor, with the motes dancing in the lamp light, deadening their footsteps and muffling the intense stillness. Above the stillness rose the song from the drawing room; from without came the restless murmur of the dogs. Enid entered the drawing room, and Bell limped in behind her. The music immediately ceased. As Enid glanced at her aunt she saw that far-away look had died from her eyes, that the sparkle and brightness of reason were there. She had come out of the mist and shadows, for a time, at any rate.

"Dr. Hatherly Bell to see you, aunt," Enid said, in a low voice.

Margaret Henson shot up from the piano like a statue. There was no welcome in her face, no surprise there, nothing but deep, unutterable contempt and loathing.

"I have been asleep," she said. She passed her hand dreamily over her face. "I have been in a dream for seven long years. Enid brought me back to the music again to-night, and it touched my heart, and now I am awake again. Do you recollect the 'Slumber Song,' Hatherly Bell? The last time I sang it you were present. It was a happy night—the very last night in the world to me."

"I recollect it perfectly well, Lady Littimer," Bell said.

"Lady Littimer! How strange it is to hear that name again. Seven years since then. Here I am called Margaret Henson, and nobody knows. And now you have found out. Do you come here to blackmail and rob me like the rest?"

"I come here entirely on your behalf and my own, my lady."

(To Be Continued.)

Foraker's Dig at Philadelphia.

United States senators have occasionally followed the custom of newspapers in hitting humorously at Philadelphia, and Senator Foraker stopped in a serious debate recently to indulge his sense of humor. The senator was having a passage at words with Senator Penrose over the Chinese exclusion bill. Foraker had asserted that the courts have decided that no Chinese except laborers may be excluded under the present law, and he had alluded to a decision of the supreme court.

Senator Penrose suggested that the Fifty-seventh Federal Reports contain a different decision.

"Yes," said Senator Foraker, "but long subsequent to the Fifty-seventh Federal Reports, the supreme court decided, as I have said. The old report is not modern law." Then he told his story:

"The senator from Pennsylvania reminds me of the man who was going around gathering up last year's almanacs and calendars.

"What can you do with them?" some one asked him.

"Why, I intend to sell them in Philadelphia," he said.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Faith Rewarded.

Substantial answers to prayer are childhood's fondest expectations.

Rob wanted a drum, and asked his mother to get him one.

His mother answered that if he would be a good boy for three days, and pray to God for it, He probably would give him one.

"Do you think He would, honest?" asked Rob.

"Yes, I think He would."

"Well, then, I'll be good for three days and then I'll ask Him."

He kept his promise, and his mother purchased a drum to reward his faith. On the evening of the third day Rob prayed earnestly, and wound up with: "And now, do please send me that drum."

His mother heard him. While he slept she placed the drum upon his bed.

When he wakened in the morning he gazed at it in astonishment, then exclaimed:

"Where in the dickens did God get that drum?"—Charles McIlvaine, in Lippincott's.

Forced Into Matrimony.

J. A. Howell is noted for his genius as an inventor. So devoted was he for years to the development of torpedo warfare that most of his friends were greatly surprised when he found time to get married. Some years after this auspicious event a brother officer called at the admiral's home, and found the distinguished sailor seated on his doorstep and contemplating several of his children who were playing on the lawn in front of the house.

"It is strange to think of you as a father, Howell," remarked the visitor. "There was a time when no one thought of you as a married man. What induced you to take a wife?"

"Well," returned the admiral, meditatively, "I got tired of hearing myself referred to as only 'the father of the modern torpedo.'"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Could Get the Whisky.

While Police Commissioner Partridge was taking a quiet look about Manhattan on Sunday, to see how the excise law was being enforced, a thinly-clad, forlorn specimen of humanity shuffled up to him and said:

"Say, boss, I'm perishin' with the cold. Gi'me the price of a drink?"

As the man's hand closed over the dime the commissioner gave him, the latter suddenly thought of the excise law.

"I guess you'll have to take coffee," said Col. Partridge. "New York is having a dry Sunday."

"Oh, that's all right," said the thirsty one. "Trust me to get the whisky."—New York Times.

Knocked Into a Cocked Hat.

The expression, "knocked into a cocked hat," is familiar to everyone, but perhaps its origin is not so generally known. Cocked-hat was a variety of the game of bowls, in which only three pins were used, set up at the angles of a triangle. When, in bowling ten pins, all were knocked down except the three at the corners, the set was said to be "knocked into a cocked hat," whence the popular expression, for depriving anything of its main body, character or purpose.—Liverpool Post.

All Close.

Mrs. Towne—Have you any close neighbors, dear?

Mrs. Stubbs—Yes; they are all close. So close that you couldn't borrow a flat-iron or a cup of sugar to save your life.—Philadelphia Record.

TURN MIGHTY STREAM

Sticks in Sand Sufficient to Change the Current of the Swift Mississippi.

In this region, too, the river is bordered with busy cities—Dubuque, Keokuk, Quincy, Davenport, Rock Island, Moline—thriving railway towns, full of factories, colleges, fine residences, and all the evidences of energy and culture. Most of them are built upon hills, and all on high ground. Seen from the river they present the finest views of themselves, something the cities of the flat country farther down never do.

It is a swift water that rushes past these cities. At low water, which is usually in summer and fall, the current drops to three inches an hour or less. But at high water, when it stands thirty or forty feet higher on its banks, it sweeps along at nine miles an hour with irresistible impetus.

Imagine what that means in a big river—nine miles an hour. We are so used to railroad trains that run sixty or seventy miles an hour that it does not seem an overwhelming speed. But consider that when a railroad train is once checked its power is gone. Interfere with the progress of the Mississippi and the river piles up against the obstruction, sweeps around it, over it, under it, and momentarily grows stronger about it. The power waxes until it sweeps away the fret.

Yet such is the contrariety of this mighty stream that while it will overthrow the strongest obstacle to its course that can be built, it will yield to the slightest. One could hardly find a more striking illustration of the power of slight things than the sharp contrast between the behavior of the river against a powerful check and against a slight one. For years the government engineers struggled to direct the river with massive stone dikes. When the river could not overthrow one of these it dug under it, and so wrecked it. Money without end was spent on dikes. There was a mighty one below Gold Dust landing in Tennessee. It stood longer than most of them, but a flood in the river at last conquered and swept it away.

How, then, can the river be directed? Simply by a few sticks set in the sand. A row if piling, sometimes with a few brush hurdles, accomplishes it. The river sweeps through, eddies behind it, dropping sand and building up a bar. Nowadays, traveling down the river through stretches, that once were broad and shallow, one finds them narrow and deep, with sandy sides, over the tops of which can be seen just the tips of the piles that accomplished the mighty change.—Ainslee's Magazine.

The beadle of the parish is always of the vicar's opinion.

WRITERS WELL PAID

Modern Authors Munificently Rewarded, as Compared with Their Predecessors.

Early American writers were poorly rewarded. Washington Irving was the first who made any notable success in literature. His Sketch Book brought him $600. During the forty subsequent years of his life his writings from sales and copyrights brought him, it is estimated, $205,383.

Bryant received no compensation whatever for his Thanatopsis and even at the age of 83 he could not buy a modest home with all he ever received from his poems.

No single production of Edgar Allan Poe brought him over $100 and only two seem to have reached that figure. He sold The Raven for $15, The Bells for the same, though he afterward received $10 for a lengthened and revised copy.

Longfellow's executors estimated that the plates and copyrights of all his work were worth $30,000. The Hanging of the Crane brought the poet $3,000, of which he gave $1,000 to the friend who negotiated the sale, certainly a liberal commission. Keramos brought him $1,000, and these two were the culminating prices for his single productions, though he was an industrious worker for more than fifty years.

While Hawthorne was hoarding the $1,800 he received for The Scarlet Letter, Mrs. Stowe was counting her thousands from Uncle Tom's Cabin, which brought her $10,000 in the first four months after its publication in book form. For the serial rights she received $300.

Emerson, at 74, found his last volume the only one that approached a remunerative sale.

There is a vast difference, in the matter of compensation, between the authors of the old days and modern writers. The latter are well paid for their labors and unfortunately it does not seem that their work is anything the better on that account.

Tragedies Due to Dreams

Medical Science Has Long Record of Such Cases.

The recent remarkable case of Henry C. Krause, who strangled his mother, has served to recall other instances on record in the history of medical jurisprudence where crimes have been connected with dreams and hallucinations.

One of the oldest cases of the kind is that of the English gamekeeper who was killed by his son. Both were guarding from poachers the preserves on which they were employed, when the son, wearied with the long vigil, fell asleep. Upon being suddenly awakened he seized his fowling piece and slew his father, evidently, in his half-awake condition, acting under the delusion that he was attacking a poacher. He was tried and convicted, but later was pardoned on the ground that, because he did not know what he was doing, there was no criminal intent to the action.

Marc, the noted English alienist, tells of the famous case of a peddler who fell asleep on the highway, having by his side a sword cane which he carried as a protection against robbers. A traveler in passing stooped to arouse him, thinking he might be either ill or intoxicated. The peddler sprang up and stabbed him to death with the sword cane. He was convicted at his trial, although he pleaded that he did not know what he was about when he committed the act.

Another case cited by Marc is that of Bernard Schedmaizeg. Attacked by a phantom in a dream he struc at it with a hatchet and awoke to find that he had murdered his wife, who was the reality of the phantom with which he had struggled. He was acquitted of the charge of murder, the jury in this case accepting the plea that he had done it unconsciously.

From Cleveland, O., comes an account of a well authenticated case, that of a prominent resident of that city. Out hunting and camping with a party of friends, he was suddenly awakened from sleepone morning and shot a member of the party in the back, inflicting a wound which caused paralysis.

In 1878 Simon Frazer, a Scotchman, dreamed that he was attacked by a wild beast, which he killed in his vision. When he awoke he found that he had dashed out his child's brains against the bedpost.—New York Press.

TRULY A VALUABLE TYPEWRITER

Witty Reply of an Authoress Who Used a Pen.

A New York bachelor author, who writes on a machine, wrote a note recently to a spinster authoress, who still works by hand, and incidentally called her attention to the fact that if she wished him to do so he would secure a machine for her at $5 per month, guaranteed to write poetry, able articles, fiction, etc. A day or so later he received a reply written in a beautifully clear, round hand to this effect:

"My Dear Mr. ——: This is my typewriting machine. Isn't it nice? It is called the Blank typewriter. It is sound, kind, in good repair, warranted to travel well in single harness and if you do not say it is the nicest machine you ever knew I shall refuse to believe that you were born when knighthood was in flower. It is warranted, like yours, to write able articles, poetry and fiction with equal facility, but, unlike yours, it is not for sale at $5 a month. Its original cost was large and I have put so many improvements on it since that I cannot dispose of it save at a considerable advance—and even then should be unwilling to part with it except to a responsible person warranted to treat it with care."

At present, says the Detroit Free Press, the author is striving strenuously to become a millionaire, so that he may secure the services of this inimitable typewriter.

Made a Queer Family.

The son of ex-Alderman Griner has started a small but interesting menagerie at his home on North Franklin street. It consists of a cat, her two kittens, and two groundhogs. The groundhogs were caught in the timber northwest of the city by the boy when they were quite small, and put with the cat, who had two tiny kittens. The mother cat adopted the groundhogs into her family, and she distributes her affections between the four little ones as evenly as possible.

The family is probably the happiest in the city; at least ex-Alderman Griner thinks so, and he has watched the interesting group for some days with considerable interest.—Danville (Ill.) News.

Three States Out of Debt.

There are three states which have no debt—Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois. There are three states which have almost no debt—California, Montana and Nevada.

A tombstone marks the dividing line between here and there.

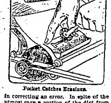
WORK OF INVENTORS.

NEW IDEAS AND DISCOVERIES OF VALUE TO THE WORLD.

Simple Device Which Will Add Materially to the Life of a Typewriting Machine—Simplicity in Wall Paper Hanging—About Bronze.

Keep Dirt Out of Machine.

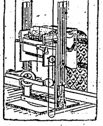
If you will take a glance at almost any typewriter you will be sure to find down in the bed and coating most of the working parts of the machine an accumulation of dirt, which has come from nothing else but the erasings which are blown or brushed from the paper after removing a letter or word in correcting an error. In spite of the utmost care a portion of the dirt from each erasure falls into the machine, not only causing it to have an untidy appearance, but, worse still, tending to greatly increase the natural wear of the mechanism. To get rid of this dirt, it is customary to have the machine cleaned at intervals at considerable expense, and it is a question then if the machine is in proper shape, as it would have to be taken almost entirely to pieces to get out all the fine particles. There is no doubt the better plan would be to utilize the neat little device shown in our illustration, consisting of a pocket formed at the lower edge of a slotted metal plate to catch the erasings as they are brushed from the paper. The upper portion of the plate is curved to fit against the roller, and the slot is so shaped that the eraser can be moved vertically or horizontally. The slotted plate pressed against the paper holds it perfectly rigid under the friction of the roller, and, as the plate is of thin sheet metal, it is an easy task to brush the dirt into the pocket. The device will fit any machine, and is easily adjusted against the platen over the error. This is the invention of N. J. Smith, Philadelphia, Pa.



Pocket Catches Erasings.

Machine for Hanging Paper.

Below we illustrate the latest thing in the way of automatic machinery, the paper-hanger, invented by Julius M. Glickman of Cleveland, O. According to the inventor, about all the operator of this apparatus has to do is to turn the crank and place the machine in a new position after each piece of paper is attached to the wall. The paper is placed in the machine in a single roll and is automatically cut to the proper length, paste applied and the paper put on the walls while the operator is doing nothing but revolving the wheels by means of the crank. The invention consists of a carriage arranged to travel on a vertical track and carrying a roll of paper, a paste-holder, a rotary pastebrush, pressure brushes and a knife for severing the paper at the proper moment. The roll of paper in unwinding is made to come in contact with the paste-carrying brush, passing thence to the wall. The turning of the crank causes the supporting carriage to rise in its toothed guides, carrying the pressure brushes across the paper as fast as it is put in position. When the top of the room is reached the stoppage of the carriage is utilized to throw the long knife blade into a slot and sever the paper. The carriage is then pulled down by means of the chains and the supporting frame moved along to the next position on the floor.



Proposed New Names for the Months.

Not long ago M. Camille Flammarion proposed a new calendar with a new division of the year and new names for the months. His proposal has evidently borne fruit, for a little almanac has just been issued at Madrid in which the year is divided into four periods of three months each, all equal and all of ninety-one days. The new style of year begins March 21 and has an extra holiday to make up the 365 days which nature invented: The months are named in order: Truth, Science, Wisdom, Justice, Honor, Goodness, Love, Beauty, Humanity, Happiness, Progress, Immortality. It gives a vivid idea of the leisure at the command of certain of our fellow beings to read solemn pseudo-scientific fooling of the sort. The western continent is too busy to be much affected by it.

Inventor of the Calliope.

Joshua C. Stoddard, who died the other day at Springfield, Mass., at 87 years of age, was said to be the inventor of the steam calliope, the patent of which, it is claimed, was stolen from him by another man. The instrument which was made by him over forty years ago was much like the ones now used. Mr. Stoddard was always unfortunate with his inventions financially. His latest device was a fire escape, but it never became practical. His chief labor for many years was the care of his hives of bees and the production of honey, in which he was an expert. Mr. Stoddard was somewhat eccentric and religiously inclined, having contributed to religious newspapers. In appearance he was a striking patriarchal figure, with his long white beard and visionary eyes, which betokened the enthusiast.

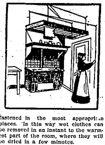
Expected Comets of 1902.

Two periodic comets are expected to return during the present year. The first was originally discovered by Tempie at Marseilles in 1869 and revolves about the sun every five and a half years. It was independently discovered by Swift in California in 1880 and was again found by Barnard at the Lick Observatory in 1891. It was not seen in 1880 and in 1897, nor between 1869 and 1880. It is expected to return early in December, 1902. The second comet was discovered by Swift in California in 1895, and its period is about seven years. It is not improbably identical with the comet discovered by Messier at Marseilles in 1770. It was expected to return in 1775, but in passing close to Jupiter its orbit was greatly altered. It will return toward the end of November, 1902.

Dries Clothes Indoors.

When clothes are hung up to dry in a kitchen or laundry they not only occupy a good deal of room, but they are an impediment to the free circulation of air, and for this reason a novel device, which is intended to do away with these undesirable features is meeting favor among housewives of Europe.

It consists of a small wooden box, to which are attached several cords. When clothes are to be dried this box can be raised to any desired height, and the cords can be stretched and fastened in the most appropriate places. In this way wet clothes can be removed in an instant to the warmest part of the room, where they will be dried in a few minutes.



The Commercial University of Milan.

Mr. Ferdinand Bacconi has founded a commercial university and presented it to the city of Milan, endowing it with a million francs ($200,000). The curriculum will comprise courses in political economy, finance, state accounts, statistics, the history of commerce, commercial geography, constitutional commercial and private law, international and industrial law, banking, as well as special courses not yet fixed upon. "University" is a large name for an establishment of so limited an endowment. Its object "is a scientific preparation for commercial life.' The scheme of study is interesting and suggests a program for the professorships of commerce newly founded in several American universities.

Experiment in Ballooning.

As the north-northeast wind blows quite constantly over the central Sahara from October to April, a French aeronaut, M. Les Desbureaux, believes that it should be easy to cross the desert by balloon from Tunis to the Niger. He proposes trying the experiment with a small unmanned balloon of about 4,000 cubic yards. This would carry a guiderope of considerable weight and an automatic discharger of water ballast, and will be expected to keep afloat for twelve days. In case of wreck on the way the chances favor the recovery of the registering apparatus with very valuable scientific data.

Where Bronze Is Weak.

An astonishing decrease in the tensile strength and ductility of bronze at temperatures above 400 degrees Fahrenheit has been reported by Prof. C. Bach of Stuttgart. With an alloy of 91 per cent of copper, 4 of zinc and 5 of tin, these properties were reduced above 6 per cent at 400 degrees, but about 50 per cent at 600 degrees. This discovery suggests caution in the use of bronze for engine parts in contact with superheated steam.

Where Storms Originate.

Records for thirty years show that 43 per cent of the storms of the British isles approach from some point between south and southwest. Not 1 per cent move westward.

PARIS TAKES TO HORSE FLESH

Over Two Hundred Shops Where Cheap Meat Is Sold.

The taste for horseflesh in Paris, which is demonstrated by the recent banquet, does not date back many years. It was under the second empire, during the expedition to Morocco, that it came into the dietary of the French soldier. The expeditionary column had nothing to live upon, so it slew and ate the horses, and everyone was agreeably surprised at the quality of the meat.

Emile Decroix, a veterinary surgeon with the troops, resolved to profit by the experience. Arrived in Paris, he set about popularizing the horse as food. He distributed meat gratuitously to the poor population. In his propaganda he interviewed the prefect and ministers and even had audience of the emperor. He opened the first hippophagous butchery in the Place d'Italie, in 1866. It was the siege of Paris that caused the flesh of horses to be regarded as a positive delicacy. That was thirty-two years ago. How has the notion progressed since? Paris has now 250 shops where they sell the meat; all are prospering. Last year 30,000 horses were slaughtered and eaten. Rouen, Toulouse, Lille, Orleans, have all taken to horse eating. The meat is cheaper than beef. Whereas one pays 3 francs the livre for good fillet of beef, it only costs a franc if you take horse.

The animal that was eaten the other day with such eclat had a singular history. It won several steeplechases at Auteuil and Bois-Colombes. It was an English mare and its name was Nell Gwyn. In November, 1893, the crowd on the course was very irritated at the defeat of the favorite in the preceding race. It revenged itself by throwing stones. One of the stones struck the left eye of Nell Gwyn and ruined the sight. Nevertheless, the noble beast won the race.—Pall Mall Gazette.

DEFENDS WOMEN'S USE OF CORSETS

French Scientist Tells Why They Are Needed by Women.

In an article on "Women's Clothing and Hygiene," contributed to the Revue Scientifique by M. Frantz Glenard, the author controverts popular ideas on the subject of the corset. He lays down the following propositions:

"1. The corset has its raison d'etre from the esthetic point of view.

2. Esthetics and hygiene may be reconciled in women's clothing, even in the corset.

"3. The corset may be of use in certain maladies."

Those statements, which he acknowledges are somewhat audacious on the part of a hygienist, he attempts to justify in the course of his article. As to the first, he remarks that the adoption of clothing by man is the result neither of modesty nor of a desire to protect the body against the weather; it is a result, he asserts, wholly of a desire for adornment—the same that leads the savage to tattoo himself. Men's costume has tended more and more to straight lines, signifying action, women's to curved lines, signifying, according to the author, that they are "made to please." "Rigidity and strength for man," he says, "suppleness and fascination for woman." The corset, then, is an attempt to preserve and accentuate the curved outline of the waist.

A Geological Fallacy.

Probably the most wild and unjustifiable of all the crude beliefs respecting geological resources is that which holds to the conviction that by going deep enough the drill is sure to find something of value, no matter at what point the work of boring is commenced. There are numerous wise persons in every community, estimable, influential and in the highest degree public spirited, who are convinced that the question, for example, of finding coal in their special locality is simply a matter of the depth to which the explorations are carried. Rock oil and natural gas are recognized as desirable products in every progressive community, and every such community contains persons, in other respects intelligent, who are ready to stake their own fortune and that of their nearest friends on the belief that oil and gas are everywhere underneath the surface, and that their sources can be tapped with the drill, providing only there is sufficient capital to keep up the process of drilling long enough.

His Saving Grace.

Economy is the order of the day among the reigning families of Europe. Whereas in times gone by the very word "royal" implied a reckless disregard for money and extravagance, it now stands for something perilously approaching close-fistedness. Extravagance is left to the now-rich. To begin with King Edward. It is no hearsay that as soon as he came to the throne he appointed his friend, Lord Farquhar, to be master of his household, and Lord Farquhar immediately set to work to do away with all unnecessary expenses, to dismiss all superfluous officials and servants, to get the largest possible returns for the smallest reasonable outlay, and to exact usual discounts for all cash payments. The savings thus effected are understood to amount already to close upon $125,000 a year.

For Ex-Confederate Home.

On June 3 next, the anniversary of Jefferson Davis' birth, collections will be made in every town in Mississippi in aid of the fund for the purchase of Davis' Beauvoir house, near Biloxi, Miss., for an ex-confederate home. More than one-half of the required amount, $10,000, has already been raised.

A JUDGE'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

MRS. JUDGE McALLISTER.

We would caution all people against accepting substitutes for Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd St., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drugstores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

A Hint to Girls.

It was a little thing, but the other day a young girl was noticed following her callers, two young men, into the hall, as they took their leave. She even accompanied them to the porch, this, undoubtedly, because she did not know how to say good-bye and dismiss them in the parlor. There was nothing formal in the call, which was merely a drop-in of some school boys; but it would have been a good time for that young girl to practice the little dignified conversation of the hostess, that presently she will so very much need. A girl may be all that is charming and companionable, and cordial and hospitable, yet preserve the ceremonious forms that are the necessities of social intercourse.—Harper's Bazar.

The New Silk Jackets.

Some of the new French silks show broche or moire backgrounds, while Watteau and Pompadour effects lend distinction to novel weaves of taffeta, peau de soie and foulard.

A number of the little black silk jackets of taffeta or other weave, are finished with cleft collar, revers, and elbow cuffs formed of chine silk or Pompadour brocade, and these look particularly smart when worn over a blouse-waist of cream net, lace or embroidered batiste, with collar and girdle of black velvet. On some of the more expensive French models made in this manner the black velvet accessories are embroidered over the colors of the flowered silk.—New York Post.

After Twenty Years.

Lusks Springs, Ind., June 9th.—It would be hard to find a happier man than Mr. William Catterson of this place has been for the last few weeks. For twenty years his wife has been an invalid with a complication of disorders, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and generally broken down constitution.

Mr. Catterson had done everything that loving care could suggest, but in vain—his wife only grew worse.

Recently, however, he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and determined to give them a trial, and was overjoyed at the splendid result.

From the very beginning of the treatment she commenced to improve, till now she is nearly well, and Mr. Catterson is rejoicing. He says: "Nothing ever did her so much good. We will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills for the good work they have done for us."

Why He Joined the Church.

W. E. More, of Fairfield, Ill., traveling representative of the Foley Medicine company of Chicago, was in the city Sunday, and while here was taken into full connection with the Methodist Episcopal church. He was converted five years ago in Fairfield, while Rev. W. T. Morris was pastor there. The Foley company has enjoyed a nice business in this county the last year.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. Samuel, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Poker Laws.

White—You don't like to play poker with Brown, do you?

Green—No; to tell the truth, I don't. But why did you think such was the case?

White—Because Brown says he likes to play with you.—Chicago News.

On the Move.

"They have two servants."

"Huh! That's nothing. We usually have two in our house—one going and one coming."—Philadelphia Press.

NO UNSIGHTLY SCARS result from Burns, Cuts or Scalds if you use Cole's Carbolisalve. Quick cure guaranteed or money refunded. 25c and 50c, at good druggists.

Only Time Could Tell.

"Hey!" shouted the cycle policeman, as the man in the big racing car started to go past him like a railroad train, "Ain't you riding a trifle more than eight miles an hour?"

"How do I know?" howled the speedmaker, over his shoulder. "I haven't ridden an hour yet."—Automobile Magazine.

Worry, being a child of fear, has inherited all its parents' evil traits of character.

Patent Had Expired.

Lou Field met Gus Rodgers on "The Rialto" a few days ago. After talking a few minutes, Fields said:

"Gus, what's become of those patent leather shoes you wore last winter?"

"They have gone to the wall, Louis."

"Why? Wasn't the leather good?"

"Yes," said Gus, with a sigh, "but the patent expired."—New York Times.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Frank Anderson, Walhalla, N. D., pedal balance; George Barth, Red Lake Falls, Minn., plow; Gaston Borch, Duluth, Minn., piano attachment; Samuel Digness, Hatton, N. D.; Thomas Howe, Owatonna, Minn., combined churn and butter worker; Frank Levy, Duluth, Minn., cutter; John Lindall, Two Harbors, Minn., ore chute and trap door.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Noah's Troubles.

"Confound that dinosaurus!" exclaimed Noah, as the ark gave such a lurch to starboard that the waves dashed against the roof. "I wish it would learn to stay on its own side of the boat!"

Then Noah seized a handspike and started below deck to shift the cargo.—Ohio State Journal.

DON'T EXPERIMENT WITH CROUP, cure the children quickly with Cole's Cough Cure. They like it. Every bottle guaranteed. Insist on getting the genuine. All good druggists, 25c and 50c.

An Argument.

"Friend Charles," asked a Quaker, "why does the use thy buffalo robe with the hair-side out?"

"That is the way the buffalo wore it," was the reply.

"But," retorted the Quaker, "the buffalo wore it with the hair side toward us."—Lippincott's.

WANTED—THREE CLASSES: INVENTORS, traveling salesmen and country agents; state class and write Patent Market and Novelty Works, St. Paul, Minn. Offers too good to publish.

Retaining Fee.

Guest—Are tips expected here?

Waiter—No, sah; we don't accept no vulgar tips, sah. We is free-bohn American citizens, sah, we is, and we wish to preserve our self-respect, sah.

"I am glad to hear that."

"Yes, sah. All we require is a retaining fee, same as lawyers, sah."—New York Weekly.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

In Revenge.

"He told his wife she ought to take cookery lessons."

"Did she?"

"Well, yes; she sent for her mother to come and give her a three-months' course."—Cassell's Journal.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Beth's Surprise.

Beth was delighted with her aunt's new changeable spring gown—"Oh, mama!" she exclaimed, excitedly, "the colors of Aunt Mary's new silk dress are all extemporaneous!"—Judge.

Stops the Cough and Works Off the Cold

Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. Price 25c.

A Delicate Point.

"It seems to make Scaddington's wife as mad as a hornet every time he boasts that he began at the foot and worked his way up."

"Well, he started as a bootblack, you know."—Chicago Record-Herald.

$20 A WEEK AND EXPENSES to men with rig to introduce our Poultry goods. Send stp. Javelle Mfg. Co., Dept. D, Parsons, Kan.

I could endure the present pain; but what shall I do this afternoon, or to-night, or to-morrow?

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75 cents

Your inferiors are of real help to you only when they know you are inflexible.

FACE HUMOURS

USING CUTICURA SOAP

Pimples, Blackheads, Red, Rough, Oily Skin Prevented by Cuticura SOAP

Millions of People use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use Cuticura Soap in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative purposes.

Complete Treatment for Humours, $1.

Consisting of Cuticura Soap (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle; Cuticura Ointment (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and Cuticura Resolvent Pills (25c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A Single Set is often sufficient to cure the severest case.

Cuticura Resolvent Pills (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid Cuticura Resolvent, 60 doses, price, 25c.

Sold throughout the world. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. Potter Drug and Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

"Accept" or "Except."

Police Commissioner Partridge, sitting as judge in the trial of Sergeant James Churchill last week, overruled most of the motions and objections of Attorney Otto Rosalsky, acting for the sergeant, to which Mr. Rosalsky made the usual exceptions. After this had gone on for some time the commissioner turned to Assistant Corporation Attorney Hutchinson and said:

"What does Mr. Rosalsky mean?"

Mr. Hutchinson explained the term, and the commissioner, laughingly, replied:

"Why, I thought he was showing courtesy to me by 'accepting' my rulings."—New York Times.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, (Specialist.) Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Fargo, N. D.

We, in the most part, feel able to endure the present, but constantly look for worse in the future.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL FOR SORE FEET ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

WISCONSIN FARMS in DUNN, ST. CROIX and BARRON COUNTIES make the best homes on earth. Soil heavy; no stone. Some timber. Springs and streams numerous. No swamps or burned-over districts, but good, genuine hardwood soil, free from sand and pine stumps; 50 miles east of St. Paul on Wisconsin Central R. R. Improved and Wild Lands for Sale. Send for CATALOG. D. C. COOLIDGE, Secretary, Downing, Dunn County, Wisconsin.

Four Years' Test Has Placed the Twentieth Century Churn in the Lead

Best Butter makers and Dairymen in the United States are using this churn, made of IXXX Tin Plate and Three Coat Granite. Temperature of cream regulated by using hot or cold water in reservoir on the outside of churn-body. Also, gravity and Deep Setting Separators. Satisfaction guaranteed. Thousands now in use. Write for circular and prices. THE DAIRY IMPLEMENT CO., Lima, Ohio, U. S. A.

Cole's Cough Cure

TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT, SO WILL YOU.

SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

YOU CAN DO IT TOO

Over 2,000,000 people are now buying goods from us at wholesale prices—saving 15 to 40 per cent on everything they use. You can do it too.

Why not ask us to send you our 1,000-page catalogue?—it tells the story. Send 15 cents for it today.

Montgomery Ward & Co.

CHICAGO

The house that tells the truth.

IF CLAIMANTS FOR PENSION write to NATHAN BICKFORD, Washington, D. C., they will receive quick replies. B. 5th N. H. Vols. Staff 20th Corps. Prosecuting Claims since 1878.

N D N U —NO. 24— 1902

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS 25 CTS

ESTABLISHED 1879.

MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.

ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Judging from the sentiment of the newspapers published in his district, Albert Berg will not be a member of the next legislature.

The city council of East Grand Forks has decided to do some paving this year, and is advertising for bids to pave 27 blocks, which is expected to cost about $65,000.

It is not likely that Hon. C. G. Rapp, of St. Hilaire, will have any opposition for the Republican nomination for representative in this district. Mr. Rapp's record has made him decidedly strong with the people.

Judge Knight announced to friends when in the city last week that he would not be a candidate for re-election this fall. Mr. Knight has a large personal following in the county, and has defeated many good men in the past.

The Republican vote in Red Lake county will be much larger this year than ever before. Many of the Populist farmers around here have announced their intention of voting for Gov. Van Sant and the rest of the Republican ticket.

P. H. Konzen, of Hallock, is credited with a desire to represent Marshall, Roseau and Kitson county in the next state senate. There are lots of good men in that district and Mr. Konzen is one of them. If he is elected the people would never regret it.

John Morgan, of this city, one of the wheel horse Democrats of Red Lake county, announces that he will be a candidate for the state senate this year in the Sixty-first senatorial district, which comprises the counties of Red Lake, Beltrami and Norman. S. A. Swanson, of Red Lake Falls, is said to be after the Populist nomination, and while several have been mentioned as possible candidates for the Republican nomination no one has as yet made public his intention to enter the field.

Town Tales.

Tim Craig, came down from the Red lake last week.

V. K. Knight was up from Red Lake Falls last week.

A. Wright was down to Red Lake Falls Monday.

J. M. Bishop returned to his home in Iowa Tuesday.

James Meehan left Tuesday for St. Paul on business.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Perl W. Mabey Monday.

Wiley Tindolph was a Crookston visitor the first of the week.

A daughter was born last Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Herb Fordor.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fosberg Sunday.

Miss Farnsworth left the first of the week for her home in Wisconsin.

THE PAPER HANGER sent out from here will do satisfactory work and do it promptly. Our work-men are skillful. If you prefer to have the hanging done by someone else, however, we will merely sell you the Wall Paper. Have a very choice selection. The patterns are new, and many of them are exclusive with us. Our experience combined with the purchaser's good taste will result in a pleasing selection.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Money to loan on improved farms. L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

Frank Reibhter went up to the Red Lake Tuesday on pleasure trip.

J. E. Morrisey, of Crookston, was in the city the first of the week.

Seed flax for sale at St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator. $1.95 per bushel.

John Pederson and John Sorum came down from Rollis the first of the week.

Andy Cavanough returned to the city Monday from a trip to Crookston.

Wm. Lennon was in the city the first of the week enroute to the Red Lake county.

Allen Benzie went to Warren last week to clerk in his brother's store for a week.

Saturday is flag day, and every individual owning one should display it on that day.

Ben Christinnson returned from a trip to the Rainy River county the first of the week.

The city has been full of land seekers this week, and a number of sales of farms are reported.

H. M. Clark, one of the enterprising settlers of Rollis, was in the city the first of the week.

H. Lawson, local manager for the Samson land company, was a visitor in Crookston over Monday.

The Ladies Aid of St. Bernard's Church will meet with Mrs. M. Burns, Thursday afternoon, June 19.

About thirty people from this section left the first of the week for the Canadian Northwest to locate.

Will Vaughan was down from Germantown the first of the week after a load of supplies for his store.

The city has a crew of men at work on the East Side near Greenwood cemetery digging a ditch to the river

Prof. James Wilson and Miss Wilson left Tuesday for Lake City, where they will spend most of their vacation.

Senator W. B. Dickey arrived in the city last week from Zumbrota to superintend his farming interests west of town.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city,

Five Salvation Army girls arrived in the city the first of the week and held services in the Methodist church

Seed flax for sale at St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator. $1.95 per bushel.

Miss Nellie Hoffmaster, who has been teaching school in the town of Rollis, was in the city the first of the week enroute to her home at Warren.

W. B. Faller left Tuesday for St. Paul to attend a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows as a representative of the local Odd Fellows lodge.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Rollis and Johnson has been dissolved by mutual consent. C. W. Johnson will collect all bills assume all liabilities.

Mrs. J. C. Parr, of Argyle, is in the city visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. George Egly. Mrs. Parr is an artist of great ability and will give painting lessons here.

George Schlodfeldt the first of the week sold his farm near Germantown to Hartvig Clausen, of Iowa, for $1200. Mr. Schlodfeldt will return to his old home in Iowa.

The members of the Masonic lodge and their ladies enjoyed a social session Monday evening. The Berkholds, Himles and Berry furnished music for the occassion, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

K. M. Hanson, Andy Erickson and Anton Pederson left Monday for New Ulm as representatives of the local fire department to attend the meeting of state firemen's association to be held at that place June 10, 11 and 12.

Presbyterian services will be held in the tent Sunday at the usual hours.

Miss May Patterson arrived in the city yesterday from Iowa to visit her father, John Patterson.

Joe Ryson and A. Scribner have dissolved partnership and the livery business will be conducted by Joe Ryson in the future, who will run an up-to-date stable in every way.

Rev. Potran, of Albert Lea will arrive in the city next Tuesday, June 17 to hold union revival meetings. The pastors request that all the Christian people in the city take a part in the services.

A. C. Hanson has discovered some good brick clay on land he owns on the East Side, and is contemplating manufacturing the brick in the near future. A good brick yard here would undoubtedly prove a good thing for the owner.

E. E. Zeh, Chris Porter and Andy Smith have been elected delegates to attend the Northern Minnesota Firemens convention to be held at Cass Lake on June 26, 27, and 28. The running team of the department will not attend.

C. C. Boughton, wife and son arrived in the city the first of the week from Red Lake Falls, and in company with Phil Zeh, of this city, proceeded up to the Red Lake where they will visit Joseph Jerome and family for a short time.

K. M. Hansen and James Meehan, who have the contract for building the Theif River Falls ditch will continue the work, notwithstanding that County Attorney Grady has instructed the auditor not pay to any more ditch bills until the Grindeland law has been tested by the supreme court. The ditch is now partly completed, and if it were left in an unfinished condition it would be of more damage than benefit to the county.

ChasW. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

Council Proceedings.

June 5th, 1902.

Regular meeting of the City Council, June 5th, 1902.

C. L. Dobner presiding.

Alderman present, C. L. Dobner S. F. Staples Chas. A. Robbecke Matt Barzen Absent. D. N. Winton.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

Moved and seconded that the Union Surety and guaranty Co. Bond and surety of $10000 on the city Treasurers Bond be approved adopted.

By motion the clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for construction of sidewalk and grading for the same. Bids to be seperate.

Petition for improvement of Arnold Avenue refered to street committee.

Application from J. P. Rising to erect a frame building between Main and La Bree Avenues on the Second Street, rejected.

Frank Tilton reported paid for account of Cemetary fund....	85 00
K. M. Hanson reported paid for account of fines for May......	21 00
Leo Kuklinski reported paid for account of Alpina Show......	30 00
Leonard Peterson, reported paid for account of Elec. L. Dept...	251 30

City Treasurer receipts for said sums of money filed with the city clerk. Mayor and Clerk instructed to execute deed to Cemetary lot No. 78, of block 2 in favor of David E. Kendick.

The following bills were audited and allowed.

Chas. Evenson, for furniture for the Pest House..........	830 60
Collin Perkins, for being special police............	21 00
R. H. Farnest, for street work....	17 10
Joseph Klezel, for street work....	2 63
Theo Brett, hauling and responding to fire call........	5 25
N. Western, Stamp Works, 100 brasschecks........	1 50
H. Fant for telephone pole......	3 50
C. C. Jackson, & Co. for hardware	20 28
K. M. Hanson, sidewalk construction....	19 55
Theo Brett, hauling to reservation	1 00
E. J. Hamms, for street work....	1 50
J. W. Eastman, for printing......	4 50
Robert Lee, for street work......	7 50
John Risau, for street work......	2 00
M. Wagner, for street work......	9 38
Martin Peterson, for street work.	1 65
R. B. Vining, a combination Harrow and Scraper............	6 00
Ole Hammernes, for ditch work..	2 62
Julius Olson, for ditch work......	2 62
Frank Tilton, for Cemetary work	10 50
Ed Porter, for Cemetary work....	5 25
W. C. Smiley, for surveying land..	18 00
J. F. Mayns, for street work.....	21 83
W. J. Kelley, hauling and responding to fire call........	9 00
Joseph Hollan, for street work...	23 25
Albert Voss, for street work.....	6 10
Joseph Moraum, for street work..	9 15
James Novak, for street work....	17 25
Geo. W. Perkens special police..	6 10
F. Cernousek, street commissioner	31 50

RESOLUTION.

Alderman Barzen, seconded by Alderman Staples offered the following resolution and moved its adoption.

Be it resolved by the city council of the city of Thief River Falls, Minn., that the strip of land lying south of the middle line of second street original townsite bounded on the west by Atlantic Avenue and on the east by a tract of land known as the fraction be vacated as a public street and,

Further be it resolved that the value of the strip of land based upon the assesed valuation of the joining property be and is hereby declared to be forty-two (42) dollars.

Passed this 5th, day of June, 1902.

CHAS. A. ROBBECKE,
Vice President of the Council.

Approved this 10th day June, 1902.
C. L. DOBNER,
Acting Mayor

Attest:
LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the city council for the construction of sidewalks, and for grading for the same. Bids to be seperate.

For further information apply to the city clerk. Bids will be opened Thursday, June 19, 1902, at 8 o'clock p. m.

By order of the city council.

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 7, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 25th, 1902, viz: TROND P. HAMRE, H. E. 2960, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 6, 7 and 8, Sec. 31, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil Knudson, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Samuel Hensley, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
John Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.
Soren Bergeland, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVETER PETERSON,
Register,

may 15 june 19.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 9, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 21, 1902, viz: INGVARD IVERSON, H. E. 2043, for the SW¼, Sec. 13, Tp. 158 N., R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Henry Carlson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Ole Moe, of Strandquist, Minn.
Bjorn Thoreson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Carl Syverson, of Strandquist, Minn.

may 15 j 19 A. F. GEORGE, Receiver.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 17, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 1st, 1902, viz: JOHN PHILIPP, H. E. 4000, Chippewa Series, for the W½ SE¼ and E½ SW¼, Sec. 30 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Louis Hamre, of Germantown, Minn.
Thomas Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Hans Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Almon Johnson, of Germantown, Minn.

may 22 j 26 SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.

District Court, Red Lake County. } ss. State of Minnesota, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Clara Bell King, Plaintiff, against
Sivert King, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the Above Named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District of the state of Minnesota, at the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county of Red Lake, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the city of Crookston, in the county of Polk, and state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

DEFOREST BUCKLEN,
Plaintiff's Attorney,
Crookston, Minnesota.

may 22 june 26

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17195, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 153 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Matheus J. Lanke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Rannestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON,
June 5 July 10 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 22nd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. MILSON, H. E. 2822, Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 25 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder Rud, of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaur, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
june 5 july 10 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17132, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 150 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Matheus J. Lanke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Rannestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON,
june 5 6t july 10 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 1 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 14th 1902, viz: ANDREAS MOVIG, H. E. 17834, for the N½ NE¼ and SE¼ NE¼, Sec. 15, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Per P. Liden, of Ringbo, Minn.
Edvard Petterson, of Ringbo, Minn.
Henry Lundell, of Ringbo, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Ringbo, Minn.

SYVESTER PETERSON,
may 8 June 12 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 1, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 14th, 1902, viz: EDVARD PETTERSEN, H. E. 17601, for the SE¼ SW¼ Sec. 11, and E½ NW¼ Sec. 14, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Andreas Movig, of Ringbo, Minn.
Per P. Liden, of Ringbo, Minn.
Henry Lundell, of Ringbo, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Ringbo, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
may 8 june 12 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land office at Crookston, Minn., April 12, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the district of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 13th 1902, viz: WILHELM BERGSTROM, H. E. 1926, for the SW¼ NE¼, N½ SE¼ and SE¼ NW¼, sec. 15, Tp. 156, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Kjelsren, of Holt, Minn.
Andreas Movig, of Holt, Minn.
Matt Larson, of Holt, Minn.
Ole Bergstrom, of Holt Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
may 8 june 19 Register.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

C. L. DOBNER, President. H. G. DOBNER, Cashier. S. F. STAPLES, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - -	$10,000
Surplus and contingent fund,	8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis. & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE,

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of

Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against
Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
12j17 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1098, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 21, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 33, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 35, Tp. 155 N. R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Estellanden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Snave Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

A. F. GEORGE,
June 12 6t July 17 Receiver.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 25, 1902 viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 2207, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Nordhagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Setnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
June 12 july 17 Register.

Teachers Summer School.

To Teachers of Red Lake and Adjoining counties.

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls, and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefits from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teacher's Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
FRANK JEFFERS,
County Supt.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN. THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1902. NUMBER 24

FOR $1340

Contract Let for Building Road North.

The contract for the building of the road north of town was let last Friday evening by the city council to A. C. Hanson for $1340. There was but one other bid, that of Timothy Craig, who bid $2500 for doing the job. The road starts in at the end of Main avenue in the original townsite and runs one-half mile north, one-half mile west one-half mile north and one-fourth mile west to what is known as the Evenson corner. The road is to be graded up and covered with one foot of gravel the entire length. C. J. Knox gives the city a free right-of-way and all the gravel needed free of cost. When the road is completed, the people living north of here can not longer complain about the poor roads leading into Thief River Falls. The city council is being heartily endorsed by all the business men for the stand taken in building good roads.

Mr. Hanson has a large crew of men at work on the road and will have it completed in 60 days.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always tobe found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

Well, Well, Who Are We!

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store,

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

5 per cent discount

on all purchases of $2 or more made on Saturday, June 21. Our prices are right because we sell for cash.

FOR VALENTINE.

Farmers Are All for the Breckenridge Man.

"No man in the Red River Valley has given more freely of his time and money for the benefit of the people than Ezra G. Valentine," remarked a former to the News last week, "and as a reward I believe he should be given the Republican nomination by a large majority. This is said without casting any reflections upon the other candidates for the Republican nomination — Comstock, Grindeland and Steenerson—who are able men and would represent the Ninth district in congress in a creditable manner, but I believe that when a man has labored so long and hard for the interests of all the people as has Mr. Valentine that he is entitled to the plum. It can be truthfully said that he is the father of the drainage system in the Red River Valley, and as president of the state drainage board—a position which he has held since the creation of that body serving without salary,—he has spent nearly $200,000 of the state's money in building ditches, and of this amount over 99 per cent has been paid to contractors, [illegible] Not only this but he has given out of his own pocket $1000 to the state drainage board, and he is not a rich man by any means. His services to the state have been worth thousands of dollars, and if he is sent to congress I believe he will accomplish more for the district than can any other man, for he is a worker.

That Water Cure.

Up at Thief River Falls a scoffer at the Spanish-American war veterans— the heroes of Chickamanga— was treated with the famous Filipino water cure so thoroughly that it was necessary to summon a doctor to get him back to consciousness. Nothing but the solemn assertion of the veracious correspondent that Lieutenant Smiley (well known in this city as a most ardent champion of the young veterans) had no connection with the affair would set minds at rest concerning his attitude during the administration of the punishment. He must have been out of town when it happened.—Anoka Herald.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

RED LAKE BILL.

A Letter From Mayor F. H. Kratka.

A letter for Mayor Kratka which was dated at Washington, June 14 states that the committe on Indian affairs has adjourned for good, after passing a resolution requesting that a day be set aside for the consideration of Indian bills. The Red Lake bill is reported favorably by the entire committee and if a day is granted it will surely be passed. Mr. Kratka, who has been confined to his room since the 2nd of June, is now able to be out, and is fast gaining in health. Senator Clapp and Congressman Eddy looked after his affairs during sickness.

Sues Father-in-Law.

A regular term of municipal court was held Tuesday afternoon. There was but one case before the court and Judge Tarrant allowed the defendant until July 1 to prepare his case. It is a suit of Ole Olson, a farmer living west of here in the town of Numedal against his father-in-law, Ole Arneson. Olson took care of the defendant's stock during the winter, and alleges that he was to have $30 in [illegible] for doing this. He acknowledges the receipt of some $8.50, and is now bringing the suit to collect the balance. James Mc Intyre is attorney for Olson.

A Lien Filed.

A lien for $186,50 has been filed against the new Thief River Falls high school by James Meehan. Mr. Meehan alleges that a verbal contract was made with Mr. Bachelor, who has the contract for building the school house, to furnish 300 or 350 loads of sand at $1.10 per load. Sixty-five loads were delivered, and the contract was then revoked by Miss Francis for the reason that sand could be obtained cheaper from another party. The suit is commenced to collect for the 65 loads and loss of profits which would have been made had all the sand been delivered.

It's All Ready

The gasoline engines for the steamboat which is run up the Thief river arrived here the first of the week and have been placed upon the boat. It is now prepared to make regular trips up river, and no doubt will prove a profitable investment, as there is a great deal of freight to be carried up in that section every day.

TO GO NORTH.

The Great Northern May Build This Year.

This branch of the Great Northern railway will be extended north next summer, and it is possible that a few miles of road will be built this fall. A man well posted in Great Northern matters stated to the News last week that the road would go north on the west side of the Thief river and that the destination would be the Lake of the Woods. It will not go through Roseau, Badger or Warroad, but townsites will be established along the right-of-way, which will be owned by the company. There are no towns of any importance north of here, and the Great Northern figures that it can build towns, and have the profit from the sale of lots.

16 TO 17.

Local Club Defeats Red Lake Falls.

The Thief River Falls base ball club defeated the Red Lake Falls club on the ball grounds in this city Tuesday morning. The game was one continual round of errors from start to finish, which was caused by the fact that the grounds were very wet, and it rained a large part of the time. The Thief River Falls club was at all times in the lead, and won the game by a score of 16 to 17.

NEXT MONDAY

City Council Will Review Tax Assessments.

The city council will meet as a board of equalization next Monday forenoon and review the work of Assessor Evenson. It has the power to raise or lower the assessment [illegible] anyone has a kick that is the proper time to make it. The total valuation of real and personal property in Thief River Falls is between $400,000 and $500,000.

That "Wise Old City"

Montgomery, Ala., was delighted with the performance of the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette on February 16th, '97, and from the collection of testimonials from the most excellent of people we clip the following from that sterling gentleman and scholar, Rev. Dr. W. Dudley Powers, Rector of St John's Chapel: "Your entertainment was very satisfactory to all who saw it, and has received warm compliments from all to whom I have spoken. I regard it as a refined, artistic and pleasant entertainment. To me your company gave exceptional pleasure, and I shall always be glad to give any word of commendation that may be of any service to you." The best people are always the best pleased with Schubert's. Your last chance to hear them here is at the I. O. O. F. Hall on July 15.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

Central Mercantile Company.

A good clean up-to-date stock of general merchandise, Qualities and prices to suit all. Best assortment in all our branches. Call and let us show you some bargains. - - - - - -

Phone No. 19, The Brick Store.

THE CROPS.

Never Looked Better Than at Present.

Farmers in this section are very jubilent just at present over the excellent crop prospects. Never in the history of the country did crops look better as this [illegible] nothing happens a big crop will be raised.

Advertised Letters.

Bernhardt, F. J.
McGary Mrs. M.
Nelson, J. W.
Ruisner, Mrs. Freda.
Simpson, Charlie.
Willson, P. W.

Johnson, Geo.
Nelson, John
Olson, Ole A.
Shben, Ee.
Sullum, John.

The Markets.

Wheat.........................	60c
Oats..........................	50c
Flax..........................	$1.60
Rye...........................	50c
Butter........................	15c
Eggs..........................	12½c
Potatoes......................	75c

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

The Minnesota cow chewed her cud to the value of $23,088,000 last year, this amount of butter being the record for the state. Prof. T. L. Haecker of the State Agricultural College, says that within five years Minnesota will produce $50,000,000 worth of butter yearly. —Princeton Union.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

ChasW. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
— Proprietors of —
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, - - MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgeon.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank.

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building.

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS - - - NORTH DAKOTA
Office in Herald Block.
Hours 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m.

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 80.
Office first door north of News building.

C. Chelin has opened up a boarding house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans, 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris, 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF THE DAY'S GAMES AROUND THE THREE BIG CIRCUITS.

LONG STRUGGLE AT MILWAUKEE

ST. PAUL, INDIANAPOLIS, LOUISVILLE AND MILWAUKEE WIN.

IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO, BALTIMORE, PHILADELPHIA AND WASHINGTON ARE WINNERS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	29	16	.644	Kansas City	20	23	.465
St. Paul	26	16	.619	Milwaukee	18	24	.429
Indianapolis	25	16	.610	Minneapolis	16	26	.381
Columbus	28	19	.596	Toledo	10	32	.238

At St. Paul.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	2	3	3	0	Gear cf	0	2	0	1
Ferguson 2b	1	2	3	1	Nance 2b	0	2	2	1
Dillard lf	1	2	1	1	Grady 1b	1	10	1	0
Kelley 1b	2	0	1	0	Smith lf	0	2	0	0
Huggins ss	2	5	2	4	Beville c	1	3	0	0
Shannon cf	1	2	0	1	Rothfuss rf	1	1	1	0
Lumley rf	1	0	0	0	Leewe ss	0	3	2	0
Peirce c	2	3	0	0	McBride 3b	1	1	3	1
Chech p	0	1	2	0	McDonald p	1	0	3	2
					xForeman	0	0	0	0
Totals	12	27	12	7	Totals	5	24	12	5 xBatted for McDonald in the ninth.

St. Paul ....3 2 0 0 0 0 4 1 x—10
Kansas City ....0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 2—5

Earned runs—St. Paul 2. Two-base hits—Huggins, Rothfuss. Three-base hit—Huggins. Sacrifice hits—Ferguson 2, Peirce. Stolen base—Kelley. First base on balls—Off Chech 1, off McDonald 2. First base on errors—St. Paul 1, Kansas City 4. Left on bases—St. Paul 4, Kansas City 4. Struck out—By Chech 3, by McDonald 1. Double plays—Kelley to Chech; Grady to Nance; Leewe to Grady. Time—1:41. Umpire—Ward. Attendance—637.

At Milwaukee.

Milwauk.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Mpls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hallman rf	3	3	0	0	Byers c	2	7	5	0
Clingman ss	3	3	4	0	Phyle 3b	1	5	1	1
Bourgeois cf	0	2	0	0	Lynch cf	0	3	0	0
Shiebeck 2b	3	7	4	1	Werden 1b	0	13	0	1
Dungan lf	1	3	0	0	Wilmot rf	0	0	0	0
McAndrews 3b	0	2	4	0	McFarlan lf	0	5	0	0
Dunkle 1b	1	15	0	1	Grant ss	1	4	4	0
Speer c	2	7	0	0	Zalusky ss	1	4	5	5
Olmstead p	0	0	3	1	Newlin p	0	0	2	0
Herman p	0	0	1	1
xMcBride	0	0	0	0
Totals	13	42	16	4	Totals	6	†41	27	7

xBatted for Olmstead in the twelfth inning. †Two men out when winning run was scored.

Milwaukee .....0 1 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—5
Minneapolis ....1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—4

Earned runs—Minneapolis 1; Milwaukee 2. Two-base hits—Speer, Phyle, Clingman. Three-base hit—Clingman. Home run—Shiebeck. Base on balls—By Olmstead 6, by Newlin 2. Hit by pitched ball—Lynch. Stolen bases—Phyle 4, Lynch, Hallman 2, McAndrews. Sacrifice hits—Byers, Wilmot. Struck out—By Olmstead 4, by Newlin 1, by Herman 1. Double plays—Shiebeck (unassisted); Grant to Werden. Left on bases—Milwaukee 9, Minneapolis 10. Innings pitched—Olmstead 12, Newlin 14, Herman 2. Umpire—Tindill. Time—2:40.

At Louisville.

Louisville.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Columbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Kerwin rf	2	0	1	0	Hart cf	2	3	1	0
Clymer cf	1	0	0	0	Meaney lf	1	0	0	1
Gannon 1b	2	5	0	0	Viox rf	1	1	0	0
Ganzel 2b	1	2	1	0	Grim 1b	1	9	1	0
Flournoy lf	1	2	0	0	Evans 2b	0	2	2	1
Tannehill ss	2	2	5	0	Turner 3b	1	3	2	0
Spies c	0	7	1	0	Nattress ss	0	5	5	0
Schaub 3b	0	0	0	0	Fox c	1	4	1	0
Dunkle p	1	0	2	1	Wagner p	0	0	2	0
					Myers x	0	0	0	0
Totals	10	27	10	2	Totals	7	27	14	2

xBatted for Wagner in ninth.

Louisville ....0 0 2 0 0 0 3 0 0—5
Columbus ....0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

Left on bases—Louisville, 7; Columbus, 9. Three-base hit—Clymer. Sacrifice hits—Clymer, Nattress. Double play—Hart, Turner and Nattress. Stolen bases—Kerwin, Gannon, Ganzel, Flournoy, Spies. Struck out—By Dunkle 6, by Wagner 5. Hit by pitcher—Gannon, Spies.

At Indianapolis.

Indianap.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hogriever rf	1	0	0	0	Knoll lf	0	3	0	0
Kuhns lf	1	1	0	1	Burns 2b	1	2	3	0
O'Brien ss	2	3	0	0	Smith 3b	0	1	3	0
Kihm 1b	2	14	0	0	Turner 1b	1	11	0	0
Babb 2b	0	1	3	0	Coggswell rf	1	2	0	0
Coulter cf	1	2	0	0	Meyers ss	1	2	3	0
Fox 3b	1	0	2	0	Gilks cf-3b	2	2	0	0
Heydon c	2	0	1	1	Kleinow c	1	2	0	0
Sutthoff p	0	0	3	0	Pardee p	1	0	2	0
					xGraffius	0	0	0	0
					Mauch cf	0	0	0	0
Totals	10	27	14	2	Totals	9	24	11	0

xBatted for Pardee in ninth inning.

Indianapolis ....0 0 0 0 0 2 2 4 x—8
Toledo ....0 1 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—3

Bases on balls—By Pardee 0. Struck out—By Sutthoff 5. Hit by pitcher—By Sutthoff, Burns, by Pardee, Fox. Two-base hits—Coulter, Heydon, Pardee. Three-base hits—Kuhns. Sacrifice hits—Kihm, Myers. Stolen bases—Fox 2, Hogriever 2, O'Brien, Kihm, Burns 2, Myers. Left on bases—Indianapolis 9, Toledo 7. Umpire—Ebright. Time—2:07.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	26	15	.634	St. Louis	20	21	.488
Philadel	24	18	.571	Baltimore	21	23	.477
Boston	23	21	.523	Washington	20	24	.455
Detroit	20	21	.488	Cleveland	17	28	.378

At Chicago.

Chicago ....1 0 0 0 4 3 0 1 x—9
Boston ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

At St. Louis.

St. Louis ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Washington ....0 3 0 3 0 0 2 1 2—11

At Cleveland.

Cleveland ....1 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 0—4
Philadelphia ....0 0 1 0 4 0 1 0 0—6

At Detroit.

Detroit ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Baltimore ....3 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—4

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	34	9	.791	New York	18	24	.442
Chicago	23	20	.535	Philadelphia	20	26	.435
Brooklyn	24	22	.522	St. Louis	19	26	.422
Boston	19	22	.463	Cincinnati	18	27	.400

At Philadelphia.

Philadelphia ....2 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 x—4
Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

At Brooklyn.

St. Louis ....0 0 0 2 0 0 1 1 0—4
Brooklyn ....0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—2

At New York.

Cincinnati ....2 0 0 2 1 2 0 0 0—7
New York ....0 1 0 2 0 2 0 0 0—5

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Devils Lake Bats Out Enough to Defeat Winnipeggers.

Winnipeg, Man., Special, June 13.—Devils Lake batted out three runs in the sixth to-day and won from Winnipeg, 3 to 1.

Crookston, Minn., Special, June 13.—Cavalier 3, Crookston 1.

Grand Forks, N. D., Special, June 13.—Fargo again defeated Grand Forks, score 2 to 0.

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Denver Easily Defeats the Colorado Springs Team.

[illegible]

The News Of the Week

At the Capital.

Brig. Gens. Sumner M. Lincoln and Samuel M. Whiteside, recently promoted, have been retired.

The subcommittee on Indian affairs has submitted a report to the full committee completely exonerating Indian Commissioner Jones from any connection with the Standing Rock leases.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the secretary of the interior to induce him to approve the leases for grazing lands on the Cheyenne River Indian reservation, in South Dakota.

At the end of the fiscal year the United States will have on hand an available cash balance of about $206,000,000, the largest sum that has been held as free cash in the treasury for many years.

On the vote on an important bill during the past week it was revealed that about one-third of the entire membership of the house was absent. There is a rule providing for the reduction of pay for absence without leave, and it may be enforced.

To a small but lively group of members from the Northwest is given the credit for side-tracking subsidy legislation. Another bill which is likely to fail of passage is that making appropriations for the maintenance of schools of mines in the various states.

That the strict construction of the anti-oleomargarine act by the commissioner of internal revenue will be followed by test cases in the courts is generally expected. Oleo representatives have filed vigorous protests against the position that will undoubtedly be taken by Commissioner Yerkes.

Accidental Happenings.

Nineteen passengers were hurt in a railroad accident in Georgia.

Guatemalan arrivals at New Orleans report almost daily earthquake shocks in that region.

The Chicago Great Western passenger train rolled down a twelve-foot embankment near St. Joseph, Mo., due to spreading of the rails. No one was killed.

A picnic party returning to Nashville, Tenn., in a tally-ho, was struck by a Belmont avenue trolley car and fifteen persons were injured. The tally-ho was smashed.

A heavy wind and thunder storm which passed over Columbus, Ga., recently, caused the death of two people, perhaps fatally injured a third and did considerable damage to property.

The Beamont Lumber company's mill at Beaumont, Tex., the oldest in that section, burned, resulting in a loss of $250,000; well insured. In addition to the mill, a large amount of lumber and several freight cars were destroyed.

Five persons were more or less seriously burned and injured and fifteen private residences, two big grain elevators, and warehouses and coal yards were destroyed by fire at Philadelphia. Many families were rendered homeless. The loss will be over $250,000.

The Missouri State express on the Chicago & Alton collided with the rear end of a freight train standing on the track near the Blue river, just east of Kansas City. The engineer, B. V. Meade, and Fireman Landman jumped, the former receiving fatal internal injuries.

Personal.

Ferdinand Boerner, professor of modern languages at Harvard since 1870, is dead, aged seventy years.

Webster Davis has received $150,000 for his book, "John Bull's Crime." He is said to have secured a $25,000 position in New York city.

Dr. George W. Woods, a retired medical director of the United States navy, well known in army and navy circles, is dead at San Francisco.

Marie Stevens, the Florodora girl, who was taken to the Emergency hospital at Detroit, Mich., seriously ill with consumption, and was later discovered by her wealthy father in Chicago, is dead.

Otis Freeman, the oldest practicing physician in America, is dead at Freehold, N. J. Dr. Freeman was born in New Hampshire, Dec. 20, 1809. He continued in practice to within five days of his death.

Helen Vanderbilt Wackerman, the American girl who became insane after she had been requested to leave the home of the artist, Hubert Herkomer, for whom she had been posing, arrived in New York from Southampton aboard the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. She was accompanied by her mother, her uncle, Dr. Lewis G. Smith of Buffalo, and two trained nurses.

From Other Shores.

A secret congress has divided the money received for the ransom of Miss Stone.

A schoolboy of thirteen, grieving over the Boer surrender, killed himself at Vienna.

The prices of seats to view the coronation procession have fallen off over one-half.

Three dead and fifteen injured is the result of inadequacy of means to fight a fire in London.

Prince Stouda forced a duel on Prince de Tallyrand at Paris, and was wounded by the latter.

A balloon manned by Lieut. Baudic collapsed off Toulon, France, and the aeronaut disappeared in the ocean.

The bill granting amnesty to all American prisoners in Cuban prisons has been signed by President Palma.

The Academia Del Lineal, the chief scientific body of Italy, has awarded Sigor Marconi $2,000 for his wireless telegraph.

The position of general-in-chief of the rural guard has been tendered to Gen. Gomez, and it is believed he will accept.

Neuva, Mexico, was the scene of a bull fight recently, a wrestler throwing a wild bull as a side feature. One animal was killed.

Gen. Torres nearly annihilated a band of 600 Yaqui Indians in the San Man[illegible] mountains. [illegible] quarter to any found armed.

Sins and Sinners.

R. J. Ferral, an actor from San Francisco, committed suicide in New York.

Every negro has left Decatur, Ind., as a result of warnings of mob violence.

John Wymick, colored, for assaulting Mary Green, white, was taken from jail at Bluefield, W. Va., and shot.

Three white men, convicted of lynching a negro a year ago, were pardoned by the governor of Alabama.

C. E. Mackey, a promoter, had J. J. O'Toole arrested at New York, charged with a $5,000 swindle in Paris.

The third attempt on the safe of the Model bakery at Chicago, netted the burglars over $22,000, mostly in notes.

Cain Ford, one of the four negro murderers of Mrs. Jones, was taken from a sheriff's posse at Waterboro, S. C., and lynched.

Lou Henderson, paroled murderer, shot two policemen at Marion, Ind., who attempted to arrest him, and escaped.

Martha Bodmer, twenty years old, is missing from Appleton, Wis., and her parents believe she has eloped with a professional base ball player.

The threatened uprising of negroes at Meriden, Miss., has been checked for the present by the prompt arming of the whites; further trouble is expected.

Three men have been arrested at Abilene, Tex., while disposing of bank notes stolen from a Great Northern train at Wagoner, Mont., in January, 1901.

Two men in a buggy charged a crowd of five others at Marion, Ind., with a petty theft as an excuse, and then fired on them, killing one and seriously wounding another.

Robbers entered the apartment house of two wealthy Frenchmen, Baron Jaques Meyronnet de Saint Marc and Baron Andre de Neufliz, in New York, and secured jewelry valued at $3,000.

A mob of about fifty masked men broke into the jail at Salisbury, N. C., secured Harris and James Gillespie, two negro murderers, took them to the outskirts of the city, and hanged them to a tree, riddling their bodies with bullets.

Attorney Thomas F. McGarry was convicted by a jury in the Allegan circuit court at Grand Rapids, Mich., of the charge of bribery in connection with the Lake Michigan water supply scandal. He was granted a change of venue on the ground that he could not secure a fair trial in Grand Rapids.

Otto Jaehkel, correspondence clerk of Engelbert, Hardt & Co., a German firm, is a fugitive from justice, having so manipulated letters and cablegrams as to bring 200,000 marks into his possession, with which he absconded. Most of it was recovered from safety vaults in Chicago, through shadowing his wife.

For telling James Parker, twenty-two years old, that he lacked the courage to shoot a fly, James Crane, aged twenty-five, was shot and killed in a Brooklyn saloon. When he saw his victim fall Parker became excited, and fired four more shots at other persons in the saloon, none of which took effect. Parker surrendered to the police. He is a negro and came to Brooklyn from Kentucky.

Otherwise.

Gov. Odell will accept a renomination this fall, Senator Platt made the announcement for him.

The three largest button manufacturing concerns in the United States have formed a $3,000,000 trust.

A waiterless restaurant, only nickel-in-the-slot machines being used, has been opened in Philadelphia.

Prominent Democrats of Tennessee have indorsed Richard Olney of Massachusetts for president in 1904.

John Most is denied relief by the New York supreme court, and must serve his term of one year in the penitentiary.

Alfred Mace, son of the noted pugilist and an English evangelist, gives Dowie a hard name and declares he was hissed out of England.

Kansas farmers are erecting numerous co-operative elevators and warehouses, and propose to do away with the middlemen.

A general strike of all brewery employes in Chicago is threatened. The helpers demand $12 per week, instead of $7, the present scale.

Seventy homes are quarantined at Galva, Ill., on account of smallpox. Social gatherings have been prohibited, and even visiting is prevented as much as possible.

Six hundred employes of the Empire Bridge company at Williamsburg, N. Y., have struck for recognition of their union. Their action will delay work on many bridges in the West.

All discharged men belonging to the Stockyards Employes' union at Chicago have been reinstated by their employers and all demands of the union conceded, and a big strike averted.

Mark Twain recently unveiled the memorial tablet which enshrines the birthplace of Eugene Field at St. Louis. It is upon the front of a dingy tenement house in South Broadway.

In connection with the commencement exercises at Princeton, formal announcement has been made of a gift of $60,000 by the classes of 1900 and 1901, to be used for special purposes.

As a memorial to her late husband, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will give St. Bartholomew's church, New York, two sets of bronze doors, and an entire new front for the church, to cost $200,000.

Apprentices of the cruiser Chicago say, regarding the trouble between sailors and Italians at Naples, that the former were, as a class, subjected to great indignities and arrested and fined on flimsy pretexts.

Mark Twain, at the pilot's wheel for the last time on the Mississippi, which he helped to immortalize, and the Countess Rochambeau christening the craft with the name of the world-famous Missourian, were the stirring sights on the Mississippi excursion in honor of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition's distinguished French guests.

BURIED ALIVE IN A WELL.

Desperate Predicament of a Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, June 15.—Imprisoned at the bottom of a well forty feet deep Charles Barden of Upton avenue and Forty-ninth street lies covered with sand, while a crew of men are working with might and main to save him. Yesterday afternoon while Barden was working in the deep hole cutting a pipe, the gravel at the bottom gave way. Fortunately the board curbing formed a protection and prevented him from being crushed to death by the fall of sand. Barden's cries warned his companions at the surface of the earth that the cave-in had occurred. Assistance was quickly summoned and after several attempts to release the man it was found that the only way his rescue could be effected was by digging a trench. Willing hands at once set to work, but it is not thought that they can reach the bottom of the well for several hours. The man was still alive at an early hour this morning and is keeping up with remarkable fortitude.

WHALEBACKS ON MISSISSIPPI.

Will Be Used for the Transportation of Oil.

Duluth, June 15.—Whaleback steamers, the invention of Capt. Alexander McDougall of this city, will be used for carrying Texas oil up the Mississippi river. The St. Louis Steel Barge company, in which Capt. McDougall is interested, is the firm that will take up the oil carrying trade. The company now has three steamers, two of the largest whalebacks being engaged in carrying grain, but these will be converted into oil carriers. One of the boats will be used in the gulf trade, from Port Arthur to New Orleans, and the other will be used in river traffic. In addition, the new company, which will be known as the Sharp Oil Transportation company, will have twelve more whaleback boats, and the work will begin at once.

TESTIMONY IN TANKE TRIAL.

Evidence Submitted Strongly Against the Defendant.

Henderson, Minn., June 15. — W. W. Wilmert of Arlington, in the Tanke murder trial, yesterday morning testified that on the night of Dec. 31, 1898, he saw the defendant ride to the railroad station at Klossner, dismount and board the train for New Ulm. Witness said that in 1899 he worked on the Wellner farm, where, he declared, Mrs. Wellner, widow of the murdered man, and Tanke lived as man and wife. William Danheim testified that on the fateful night he had heard two shots fired, seemingly in the vicinity of the Wellner place. Other testimony tended to show that Tanke had at several times made remarks and threats alleged to clearly indicate his guilt. Mrs. Tanke's father testified as to finding the dead man's body.

ST. PAUL GIRL DISAPPEARS.

Disappointment in School Work Explains Her Behavior.

St. Paul, June 15.—Miss Inez Evans, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Col. E. D. Evans, 809 Marshall avenue, disappeared from her home in a mysterious manner Wednesday morning and all efforts to find her have been in vain. Miss Evans started for school Wednesday as usual but instead went to the Union station, but her parents have been unable to find any further trace of her. Miss Evans was a member of the class of 1902 of the Central high school, but recently failed to pass the examinations. She was greatly chagrined over the failure and her parents assign this as the cause of her disappearance.

SLIPPED A COG.

North Dakota Prohibition Convention a Fiasco.

Fargo, N. D., June 15.—The Prohibition convention called for Fargo yesterday to nominate a full state ticket turned out a fiasco as a result of misapprehension on the part of Chairman Stow. The few faithful who did come resolved themselves into an executive committee and discussed the situation with Chairman Stewart and Secretary Tate of the national committee, and a convention was called to meet at Hillsboro Aug. 5, when the plan of indorsing the nominees of the other parties or putting a straight ticket in the field will be determined.

LEAD ON THE BRAIN.

Wisconsin Lad's Think-Box Pierced by a Bullet.

Milwaukee, June 15—Little Emil Wagner of Wautoma, Wis., was taken home by his father last night, apparently having recovered from the effects of having his brain pierced by a bullet. The lead still remains in the brain, about two inches from the base of the skull. Emil can walk and play and has the use of his faculties. Dr. D. J. Hayes said he did not believe the little patient would suffer any inconvenience from the presence of the lead in his head. Emil is three years old. He was accidentally shot May 5 by a brother with a rifle.

LIBERTY IS BRIEF.

Boys Who Escaped From the Red Wing School Are Captured.

Hastings, Minn., June 15. — Deputy Sheriff Nicholson J. Steffen captured three of the ten escaped inmates from the training-school at Red Wing yesterday in the vicinity of Welch and took them back to the state institution. Two other boys were also captured by guards of the training school in the delayed passenger train here.

Accused Men Discharged.

Luverne, Minn., June 15—W. C. Hathaway and A. A. Ackerman, who were arrested at Le Mars, Iowa on the charge of grand larceny, were dismissed, the evidence against them being insufficient to warrant a prosecution.

Pat Brady Exonerated.

Hastings, Minn., June 15.—In circuit court here the case of the City of South St. Paul against Pat Brady was dismissed. Brady appealed from a decision of the municipal court which had fined him $5.

Suicide Follows Drinking.

Detroit, Minn., June 15.—N. W. Peterson, about thirty years of age, committed suicide by shooting with a revolver. He had been drinking hard for several weeks. He formerly resided in Red Wing.

MUST HELP CUBA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENDS A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

MAKES PLEA FOR RECIPROCITY

NEW REPUBLIC IS WEAK AND OUR ASSISTANCE IS NEEDED.

WOULD BENEFIT US AS WELL

PRESIDENT RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM PALMA ASKING FOR RELIEF.

Washington, June 15. — President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress yesterday afternoon reiterating his former recommendations for the passage of a law creating reciprocity with Cuba and presenting additional arguments thereon. The text of the message follows:

"I deem it important before adjournment of the present session of congress to call attention to the following expressions in the message which, in the discharge of the duty imposed upon me by the Constitution, I sent to congress on the first Tuesday in December last. (Here follows extracts from that document.)

"Yesterday I received by cable from the American minister in Cuba a most earnest appeal from President Palma for 'legislative relief before it is too late.'

Stands Alone.

"The granting of reciprocity with Cuba is a proposition which stands entirely alone. The reasons for it far outweigh those of granting reciprocity with any other nation, and are entirely consistent with preserving intact the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously.

"The present tariff law was designed to promote the adoption of such a reciprocity treaty and expressly provides for a reduction of not to exceed 20 per cent upon goods coming from a particular country, leaving the tariff rates upon the same articles unchanged as regards all other countries.

"Objection has been made to the granting of the reduction on the ground that the substantial benefit would not go to the agricultural producer of sugar, but would inure to the American sugar refiners.

This Can Be Fixed.

"In my judgment provision can and should be made which will guarantee us against this possible measure of doubtful policy, such as a bounty in the form of a rebate.

"The question as to which, if any, of the different schedules of tariff ought most properly to be revised does not enter into this matter in any way or shape. We are concerned with getting a friendly reciprocal arrangement with Cuba. This arrangement applies to all articles that Cuba grows or produces. It is not in our power to determine what those articles shall be; and any discussion of tariff as it affects special schedules or countries other than Cuba is wholly aside from the subject matter to which I call your attention.

Compared to Hawaii.

"Some of our citizens oppose the lowering of the tariff on Cuban products, just as three years ago they opposed the admission of the Hawaiian islands, lest free trade with them might ruin certain interests here. In actual events their fears proved baseless as regards Hawaii, and their apprehensions of damage to any interests of our own because of the proposed measure of reciprocity with Cuba seem to me to be equally baseless.

"In my judgment, no American industry will be hurt and many American industries will be benefited by the proposed action. It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by the American producer.

More Interest Needed.

"Events following the war with Spain and the prospective building of the isthmian canal render it certain that we must take in the future far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coast and waters.

"We expect Cuba to treat us on an exceptional footing politically, and we should put her in the same exceptional position economically. The proposed action is in line with a course we have pursued as regards all the islands with which we have been brought into relations of varying intimacy by the Spanish war.

"Porto Rico and Hawaii have been included within our tariff lines, to their great benefit, as well as ours, and without any feared detriment to our destinies. The Philippines, which stood in a different relation, have been granted substantial tariff concessions.

To Benefit Both.

"Cuba is an independent republic which has assumed special obligations as regards her international position in compliance to our request. I ask for her certain special economic concessions in return; these economic concessions to benefit us as well as her.

"There are few brighter pages in American history than the page which tells of our dealings with Cuba the past four years. On her behalf we waged a war of which the mainspring was generous indignation against oppression; and we have kept faith absolutely.

"It is earnestly to be hoped that we will complete in the same spirit the record so well begun and show in our dealings with Cuba that steady continuity of policy which it is essential for our nation to establish in foreign affairs if we desire to play our own part as a world power."

COMPANY'S MONEY.

Charge of Appropriating Thousands of Dollars Made Against Official.

New York, June 15.—Charles S. Shivler, who was secretary and treasurer of the American District Telegraph company in this city for many years, was arrested at the direction of District Attorney Jerome. He was accused by the company of peculations for half a dozen years, amounting to between $16,000 and $17,000. The case was referred to the grand jury.

STRIKERS ARE ZEALOUS.

Additions Constantly Being Made to Their Ranks.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 15.—The work of the strikers in attempting to bring out all men who are still in the employ of the coal companies goes steadily on. Their campaigns against the engineers, firemen and pumpmen is nearly over, most of these men being out, and the union is now paying more attention to the fire bosses, clerks and others who have taken the places of those who quit. Pressure is being brought to bear on them in every possible way. Quite a number of the fire bosses throughout the region have already stopped work because they had been asked to take the strikers' places, and at a meeting held here yesterday afternoon about a dozen more consented to join the strikers. The labor leaders hope to have more out on Monday. The company officials are aware of the attack on the fire bosses and they are making an effort to hold them.

VIOLENCE SUBSIDES.

Militia Still on Guard at Pawtucket, R. I.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 15. — Action which the authorities hope means the beginning of the end of the reign of violence incident to the street railway strike was taken yesterday by High Sheriff Hunter C. White removing his deputy sheriffs from the street cars. He did this on representations to him that the deputies accomplished no good purpose but incited the crowds to violence. After the withdrawal of these men the city became quiet. The 1,000 troops ordered out by Gov. Kimball are still on duty, but if conditions warrant they will be withdrawn gradually, the first installment to leave to-day. There was no rioting yesterday. Seven men were arrested for misdemeanors committed on Pawtucket avenue, the route of the cars from Providence to this city.

PROMOTION OF CROZIER.

Senate Discusses the Matter in Secret Session.

Washington, June 15.—With the exception of a few minutes devoted to the reading of the president's message the time necessary to confirm two nominations at the beginning of the session the senate spent the entire day in considering the nomination of Capt. William Crozier to be chief of the bureau of ordnance. The principal speeches of the day were made by Senators Cockrell and Proctor, the former favoring the confirmation and the latter opposing that course. The session adjourned without the senate reaching a conclusion on the question and no day was fixed for continuing consideration owing to pressure of other matters. Gen. Crozer's confirmation is generally conceded by his opponents.

GEN. WOOD SPEAKS.

Says He Used Cuban Money to Good Purpose.

Boston, June 15.—During his visit to this city yesterday Gen. Leonard Wood, former governor general of Cuba, expressed himself in no uncertain terms regarding the alleged irregularity in the expenditure of Cuban government funds in the interest of reciprocity. He declared that, acting as trustee for the island, he had spent the money to good purposes and had done simply what any good administrator would do in like circumstances. Commenting on President Roosevelt's special message to congress on reciprocity with Cuba, Gen. Wood spoke of it in the highest terms.

ORDERED FROM CHURCH.

Catholic Priest Would Not Allow Ladies Without Hats to Remain.

East Islip, L. I., June 14.—The residents of this section are very indignant over the action of Rev. Father Edward J. Duffy of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, in ordering two ladies to leave the church a day or two ago for not wearing their hats. The ladies were Mrs. Holleran of New York and her mother. They had stepped across the street from their hotel to attend a funeral in the church and were fashionably attired, but had failed to don their bonnets. Father Duffy ordered them to leave, saying: "This is no theater."

LEMLY IN POOR HEALTH.

Physical Condition May Compel Him to Retire.

Washington, June 15.—It is not probable that when Capt. Lemly, the present judge advocate general of the navy, comes before the promotion board in the regular course to pass his examination as a commander, he will be found in such physical condition that he may be obliged to retire. He has been in impaired health for some time past and has suffered severe domestic afflictions which have added to his physical troubles, predisposing him to retirement at an early date.

DON'T WANT TO LOSE HIM.

House Postpones Hobson's Retirement Bill.

Washington, June 15.—The house committee on naval affairs yesterday decided to postpone until next session the bill for the retirement of Naval Constructor R. P. Hobson on account of defective eyesight. The report states that only the gravest reasons would justify special legislation of this kind, and that with further rest Constructor Hobson may so far recover as to render the service to the navy for which he is so well fitted.

Three Persons Drowned.

Racine, Wis., June 15.—Three deaths from drowning are reported in Racine county. Leo Smollen, the four-year-old son of a mail carrier, was drowned in a cistern; the three-year-old son of John Welmer was drowned in a watering trough and John Buckenberger lost his life on Tichigan Lake by the capsizing of a boat.

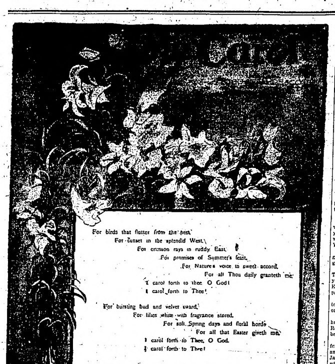
Demolished by a Tornado.

Memphis, Tex., June 15.—A tornado demolished two houses and severely injured seven people five miles east of here yesterday. The district visited by the tornado is isolated and no particulars have been received.

Two Are Drowned.

Chester, Pa., June 15.—Capt. Hannett Robbins of Port Morris, N. J., and Mrs. Pluma Haines of Camden, N. J., were drowned yesterday afternoon opposite this city by the capsizing of the sloop Henry S. Robbins.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.



For birds that flutter from the nest,
For sunset in the splendid West,
For crimson rays in ruddy East,
For promises of Summer's feast,
For Nature's voice in sweet accord,
For all Thou daily granteth me;
I carol forth to thee, O God!
I carol forth to Thee!

For bursting bud and velvet sward,
For lilies white with fragrance stored,
For soft Spring days and floral horde
For all that Easter giveth me,
I carol forth to Thee, O God.
I carol forth to Thee!

COOK'S ONLY QUALIFICATION.

Cowboy's Frank Explanation of Why He Was in Charge.

Ex-Senator Manderson of Nebraska, has not lost the art of story-telling, and being in Washington to look after the interests of the beet sugar growers, he spends some time at the capitol, where his company in the cloak room is always sought. Yesterday Gen. Manderson made this contribution to the symposium:

"Some years ago," he said, "I had occasion to make a trip across the plains and we camped out as we went along. The first night out I watched a cowboy cooking supper. I was quite interested, not only because I was hungry, but also because I imagined that the cowboy was some finely educated fellow, who knew how to enjoy good eating and who would cook to perfection. The supper, however, was simply vile. It could not be eaten. There was plenty of good stuff but it had been spoiled.

"'William,' I said to the man, 'what are your qualifications for cooking?'

"'I haven't any,' was his frank reply, 'I simply have a swollen leg and I can't ride.'"

Legacy for Fair False One.

One of the beneficiaries named in the will of the late James Finlayson is believed to be dead. Mrs. A. J. Mason was her name and she formerly resided in Tulare, where her husband managed the Grand Hotel until two years ago, when he disposed of it.

Finlayson's friends say that in the early '70s he was engaged to be married to the woman, but Mason, who was at that time a partner of Finlayson, won her affections and wedded her. At that time Finlayson vowed never to marry and he never did. When his will was opened recently it was found that he had bequeathed $15,000 to Mrs. Mason, or, in the event of her death, to her daughter, Annie.

Attorney James P. Sweeney has been endeavoring to locate Mrs. Mason, but his efforts have been fruitless. It is believed that she is dead and the whereabouts of the daughter is unknown.—San Francisco Examiner.

Gave Landlord Good Advice.

The Earl of Aberdeen owns something like 63,000 acres of land in Scotland, so naturally he is quite unknown to many of his tenants. He has not lost his passion for solitary rambles, and not long ago, while in a part of the district with which he was not familiar, he stopped beside a cottage fence to ask his way of an old man at work in the garden, and lingered after receiving the desired information to ask: "Is this good soil?"

"Aye," was the laconic response.

"What is your crop to be?" was the next question.

The worker looked up impatiently, then said, slowly and impressively: "If you were to hire an allotment, mon, and cultivate it, yo'd not come speiring around and wasting other folks' time."

Their One Failing.

They were neither of them brilliant scholars, but they liked to move with the time as regards their knowledge of current events, so the daily newspaper was regularly delivered at their humble domicile, and it was Jennie's duty to read out during breakfast time all the most interesting items of the day. One morning, after wading through the latest intelligence from the front, she turned to another page of the paper and said:

"Herbie, it says here that another octogenarian's dead. What's an octogenarian?"

"Well, I don't know quite what they are, but they must be very sickly creatures. You never hear of them but they're dying.

A Sufferer's Plea.

Lady—You are sure you have put the piano in good condition?

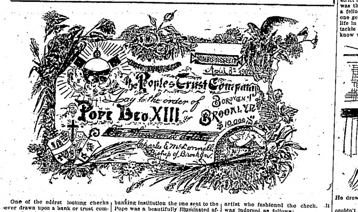
Tuner—Quite so, madam. I guess your daughter will find it as good as now when she resumes her practice.

Lady—I hope so. Did you do anything to it, by the way, besides tuning?

Tuner—Yes; I deadened the hammers.

Rear room boarder (sotto voce)—I wish, while you were about it, you had done the same to the hammerer.

Artistic Check Sent to Pope Leo.



One of the oddest looking checks ever drawn upon a bank or trust company has just been returned to the People's Trust Company of Brooklyn from Rome.

The check was signed by Bishop Charles E. McDonnell of Brooklyn and made payable to Pope Leo XIII. The amount it called for was $10,000, representing the Peter's Pence contribution in the diocese of Brooklyn toward the expense of the Vatican.

Unlike the ordinary check upon a banking institution the one sent to the Pope was a beautifully illuminated affair on parchment, with ornate elaborations of much artistic merit.

In the upper right hand corner was the coat of arms of the United States; in the lower right hand corner a clever drawing of the Brooklyn bridge; in the upper left hand corner the Papal insignia, and in the lower left hand corner Bishop McDonnell's coat of arms.

Ink of many colors was used by the artist who fashioned the check. It was indorsed as follows:

Special Order of His Holiness
Leo the XIII.
Cardinal Mocanni.

The check, which was dated April 3, was deposited in the Bank of Rome on May 8, and the amount it called for, equalling 52,500 lire, was placed to the credit of the Vatican.

A sitting hen constantly broods over the probable outcome of her mission.

The Wife and the Mistress

BY W. B. BARRETT.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was so dark and still in the woods that not a sound, save the scanty, almost noiseless plash of rain, could be heard by the two breathless listeners in the buggy. The woman was holding one hand out to feel the drops; her ears were sharpened until even the breaking of a twig made her start.

"There is nothing," she said at last. "We could hear a horse's hoofs two miles off."

"Go on, then, as fast as you can."

"You'll not forget that you're taking the name of John Whiting? I marked all your clothes with it this morning before I packed the valise and put those handkerchiefs that were father's with the same initials embroidered on them; and——"

Her companion broke in with a discordant laugh.

"I guess the old man would rise up in his grave if he knew it. He never took much stock in me anyway."

The woman shivered slightly.

"I was going to say," she continued without replying to his remark, "that you can't be recognized by the silver watch. It was never used, you know. Your gold one I've put away."

"You can give it to Bob when he grows up. And I say, Annie, are you going to let the children know?"

"Not more than I can help, Robert. The little ones need hardly hear of it yet a while, but, of course, Bob and Eleanor will. Nobody can keep the papers from them."

"It's rather rough on them," muttered the man. "I'm sorry for Eleanor."

"She will bear as a woman knows how to do and has to do. But, oh, Robert, why didn't you think of that before?"

"Why didn't I do a lot of things different? I've lived my life, that's all, and now I'm ready to drop out of it. Jackson was to blame, curse him, for winding me up so soon. It was he that got the bank directors here this month. He's had his evil eye on me all winter. Stop, will you? I heard something."

"Sh-sh! That was a call—a man's voice!" he whispered excitedly. "You hold the reins, if they come; I'll jump and cut." But it was the scream of a distant locomotive, followed by the dull roaring of the train. No other sound was audible in the silent woods save the soft falling rain.

"I should like to ask you one thing before we part," said his wife presently, in the calm, deliberate tone which is sometimes a feature of intense mental pressure. "How did you come to all this? Were you an honest man in the beginning, as—as I believed you to be—or have your friends been deceived in you all these many years?

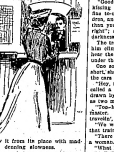
"I am asking as much for Bob's sake as my own. He is much like you and your temptations may be his. Tell me, was it that other woman?"

"What other?"—but he faltered over the interrogative lie. "Oh, well, if you know about her"—carelessly—"I suppose it may have been. A man can't keep up two establishments on the salary of a bank clerk. But you can't say I didn't provide for my family, Annie. Did you or the children ever want for anything?"

She drew in a quick breath.

"Not for material comforts, no; you kept us well housed and clothed and fed. But what you took the money for, then, was your—love—for her?"

"Why, if you want it in plain terms, yes. I'm like a good many other fellows, I guess." He laughed uncomfortably. "Now I suppose your next question will be, How did I come to fancy anybody so different from you, eh? Well, I may as well have it out with you. I don't mean any offense, you know, and I appreciate your being a good wife and all that. You won't find I ever breathed a word against you to anybody. But you were too strict in your ideas from the start, that was the trouble. You couldn't expect a fellow to live up to 'em. By Jove! one gets enough of the serious side of life in his business without having to tackle it when he's at home! Yes, I know what you'll say; but it's so. I couldn't go on being a respectable family man all my life, and after I met Kate I had some diversion. You were all right enough, and you know I was affectionate—you can't complain of anything, can you?—but a woman with a saucy little daredevil way like hers, I tell you, takes a man's fancy in spite of all he can do. She was more my kind, Annie; there's no use talking. I thought a lot of her. If she wanted diamonds or a saddle horse I had to get 'em for her. You never cared about such things, you know, and if she did, why——"



He drew it from its place with maddening slowness.

"See here," she interrupted. "You haven't the slightest conception of any brutality in what you are saying, I suppose; but please spare both her and me the comparisons. I didn't ask for any justification of your caring for her. But, if she loves you, why is she not with you to-night? Was there not sufficient of the daredevil spirit in her to face flight and danger with you?"

He did not answer at once; then he muttered with an attempt at lightness:

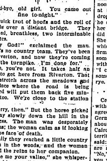
"Well, you know, Annie, all women haven't the grit that you have. And she's got other friends; she's too popular to give up all her chances for one." The bitter curl of his lip was hidden by the darkness.

"Robert," she said softly, "I want you to remember that one of the two women loved you. I know nothing about the other, and it does not matter—now. But when you think of to-night's ride, you may take that comfort to your soul; and you'll need comfort some day. It is breaking my heart to let you go like this."

The man made no answer. Then suddenly she drew in the horse till he stumbled back on his haunches.

"Listen!" she cried.

Through the stillness they could hear a new sound, painfully distinct;



"Good-bye, old girl. You came out fine to-night."

the quick trot of hoofs and the roll of wheels over a distant bridge. They listened, breathless, two interminable minutes.

"My God!" exclaimed the man. "that's no country team. They've been to Riverton, and now they're coming over the turnpike. I'm done for."

"No, you're not. It takes half an hour to get here from Riverton. That long stretch across the meadows and the place where the road is being mended will put them back five minutes, too. We're close to the station now."

"Hurry, then." But the horse picked his way slowly down the hill in the darkness. The man was desperately nervous; the woman calm as if looking into the face of death.

Finally they reached a little country station in the woods, and the woman handed the reins to her companion.

"Give me your valise," she whispered, "and keep well back. If they come drive away—anywhere. I'll meet them." Then she walked into the waiting room and called the station master, who was waiting outside.

"Going away?" he asked.

"Yes; one ticket to the Junction, please." He drew it from its place with maddening slowness. She tried not to snatch it as he held it out.

"Have I time to say good-bye to my husband before the train goes? He can't leave the horse to stand."

"Oh, yes; that's the whistle, but it's a mile off yet."

She kept the valise in her hand and walked back to the buggy.

"Here's the ticket, Robert. The man's busy and won't see you. Cross the track, and you can hide in that clump of bushes till the train comes. Then swing yourself up on the back platform. Quick!"—as he moved stiffly.

"Good-bye, old girl," he returned, kissing her hastily. "You came out fine to-night. Take care of the children, and don't let 'em hear any more than you can help. You'll get on all right"; and he sprang away into the darkness.

The train dashed up. She could see him climb on at its further end and hear the thump of baggage and boxes under the station master's hands.

One sob escaped her. Then with short, sharp puffs the train started and the cars dragged out of sight.

"Hey, there! Stop here, will you?" called a voice from a light wagon drawn by a sweating, galloping horse, as two men drove up to the platform.

"Too late," answered the station master. "What d'ye want? You ain't travelin', are you?"

"We want the man that got off on that train."

"There wasn't any man, nobody but a woman."

"What kind of a woman?"

"A little one—not up to my shoulders."

"Sure there was no one else?" asked the other man.

"Not a soul. She bought her ticket and got on while I was unloading the baggage."

"Fooled again!" was the angry exclamation. "Well, Jackson, we've raced twenty miles, now I guess we'll walk home."

"It was a mistake to go to Kate for information," said his comrade. "She told us all she knew fast enough—she won't have any more use for him—but it was the wife we ought to have kept our eye on. I told you that all along. We might follow her up now, if it wasn't likely to be too late."

The wife had driven away, alone, into the black woods.

RHYTHM OF THE SONGS OF BIRDS

Music of Nature Is Always in Perfect Time.

How little we realize the fact that the music of nature is always intensely rhythmical! An intelligent rooster with a good ear always crows in accurate three-four time, and in the minor key. Our own simplest idea of time is perfectly illustrated by the drum, the dots indicating footsteps and the dashes drum beats. Now, this is rhythm, an essential principle of music, and we are widely at fault if we suppose for one moment that the birds sing regardless of it. The drum beats are in unmistakable four-four time, the commonest time of all, and I think it could be conclusively proved that the oriole, for instance, has adopted that time for his own.

It is evident to a close observer that there is something odd about the oriole's time; it is four-four, without doubt, but there are queer breaks in it; the singer drops a note here and there, much as good old grandmamma drops a stitch in her clover knitting. These omissions are characteristic of the oriole; his style is one of marked syncopation, with a preference for that kind of melody which has been styled "ragtime." If you wish to imitate this quality you must whistle a "toot" by placing the tip of the tongue immediately behind the upper front teeth, dropping, and returning it quickly.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

Troubles of Young Housewives.

A young housewife, from upstate, who had been recently married, called upon one of her neighbors in an apartment house a day [illegible] ago looking for information, [illegible], New York Post. She saluted her neighbor with "How do you kill crabs?" "What on earth are you talking about?" "Well, you see, my husband sent home some crabs for dinner, and he will be home soon, and I don't know how to kill them. I have been trying to drown them for an hour, and they are just as lively as ever."

Another young married woman, from one of the suburbs of Boston, came to live in New York. One afternoon she was entertaining two callers at tea, when the husband of one dropped in. She knew very well that he did not care for tea, and thought her husband might not like it if she did not give him something to drink. She asked him if he would have some whisky, and on his replying in the affirmative, left the room. After a somewhat long absence, she returned with a bottle in each hand, saying: "I can't find the whisky, but here is some 'Cog-nac' and some Baltimore rye. Will either of these do?"

Rhodes and Emperor William.

Cecil Rhodes once was conversing with Emperor William in regard to an agreement entered into between the German government and himself about the construction of the Cape-to-Cairo telegraph line through German territory in Africa. The emperor said: "Well, Mr. Rhodes, I hope you are satisfied with the arrangement." "No," replied Rhodes, "unless, sir, you want to see Cecil Rhodes file his petition in bankruptcy." "What do you mean?" asked the kaiser. "I mean," was the reply, "that there is a clause in this document which provides that, while your majesty undertakes to protect the telegraph against attacks or injury Cecil Rhodes has to pay the whole cost incurred in such defense. Now, sir, there is nothing in the clause to prevent you from sending a whole army corps for this purpose, and if I had to pay for that I should have to file my petition." The kaiser laughed and said, "Quite right," and turning to Count Von Bulow, who was present, said: "Add words limiting Mr. Rhodes' liability to £40,000. That's fair, I think." To which Rhodes replied that he was perfectly satisfied.

Painting on Human Skin.

Marcus Lorenzzo, an Italian painter, who flourished in the last century, once paid 200 francs for a piece of human skin no larger than a dinner plate upon which to execute a landscape in oils. The skin, which was chemically prepared to receive the paint, was taken from the back of an aged woman, whose body had been sold to a medical man for dissecting experiments. The human parchment was drawn tightly over a metal frame and the artist spent nearly seven months in producing a painting that was afterward exhibited in various salons, and ultimately realized the sum of $4,000 francs.

Panama Hats to Be Popular.

The Panama hat is to be the thing, and a man who wears a rough straw hat cannot hope for recognition. Moreover, colored hat bands are no longer in favor. An exception in favor of college men wearing colored hat bands is made. The cut of clothes has not changed much from the styles of last summer. Tan and russet shoes will not be popular because they are too cheap. They may be tolerated in the country, but not in the city. The black boot is the thing.—New York Sun.

Population of Hawaii.

Out of the population of 160,000 in Hawaii, nearly 90,000 are Asiatic, 60,000 being Japanese and 30,000 Chinese. There are also several thousand Porto Ricans.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn. Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

SNIPING BY MOROS

AMERICANS ARE PICKED OFF BY DISAFFECTED NATIVES.

MORE TROUBLE IN MINDANAO

SOME NATIVES CONTINUE TO RESENT THE RECENT CASTIGATION.

OTHERS TRYING TO BE GOOD

LEARNING THAT AMERICANS ARE TRUSTWORTHY AND FAIR.

Manila, June 17.—Gen. Davis, military commander in Mindanao, has informed a correspondent that the Moros are learning that the Americans are trustworthy and treat them with fairness. The American officers frequently visit the Moro villages.

The health of the troops in Mindanao is fine. Only 8 per cent of them are in the hospital, and these will be transferred to the healthy shore of Lake Lanao. There is continued sniping by the disaffected Moros. The conditions, Gen. Davis says, are probably similar to those which obtained in Luzon. If the fighting does not become close the Americans will not suffer serious losses. He believes that a regiment of infantry, two troops of cavalry and one battery are sufficient to deal with the Moros. He does not expect a general attack. Datto Ada visited Camp Vicars and remained two days. He reported that the murderers of Private Lewis did not return to their village. Two of them and the third disappeared. The datto promised to surrender Lewis' Rifle. This is regarded as significant. The Sultans Lumbutan and Butig, with the men who attacked Col. Forsyth, visited the camp and asked for an American flag, which was given them. Friendly Moros say that this is equivalent to the sultan taking the oath of allegiance. A fanatic boloed a sentry on Friday, but did not seriously wound him. The incident, however, caused the establishment of double guards.

Were Killed at Bayan.

Fourth for the Philippines.

The Americans here are planning to have a rousing Fourth of July celebration, and the Filipinos are co-operating with them.

Gen. Lukban, the insurgent leader who was recently captured, has taken the oath of allegiance and has been released.

Friendly natives in Manila say a report is current among their countrymen that the five soldiers of the Fifth cavalry who were captured by the insurgents May 30 have been boloed to death near Teresa, in Morong province, Luzon. This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

DEWEY TO GO TO SEA AGAIN.

Admiral Will Be in Supreme Command of Fleet Which Will Assemble at West Indies.

Washington, June 17.—Admiral Dewey is to go to sea again, flying his flag with the four stars in command of the greatest fleet in numbers the United States has gotten together since the days of the Civil war, and far more powerful in offense and defense even than any of those war fleets. Secretary Moody has conceived the idea, and after consulting the pleasure of Admiral Dewey it has been arranged that he shall be placed in supreme command of the fleet, comprising the North Atlantic, the European and the South Atlantic squadrons, which is to assemble near Culebra Island in the West Indies next December for the winter maneuvers. Secretary Moody himself desires to witness these maneuvers, and it is even possible that the president may find time to make a voyage to the south to see the big ironclads in war movements. Admiral Dewey goes gladly to his work.

DR. BURNETT GOES UP.

Chicago Dentist Who Entered Into a Conspiracy With Mrs. Nichol to Commit Suicide Is Sentenced.

Chicago, June 17.—Judge Baker denied a motion to arrest judgment in the case of Dr. Orville S. Burnett, the dentist who entered into a compact with Mrs. Charlotte S. Nichol to commit suicide, which resulted in the death of the woman. The judge sentenced the prisoner to fifteen years in the penitentiary. Burnett and Mrs. Nichol went into the Marlborough hotel with the intention of committing suicide. The woman killed herself with morphine, and Burnett, claiming that there was not sufficient of the drug to kill him, made a few scratches on his neck with a penknife. He was charged with being a party to the suicide of the woman.

STOLE PREXY'S LECTURE.

German Student Disgraced and Also Fined.

Berlin, June 17.—Erich Woth, a student of this university, was disgracefully dismissed for giving extracts of a commonplace lecture to a newspaper. The professor also had him fined $50 for infringing his copyright of the lecture.

Work of Incendiaries.

Beatrice, Neb., June 17.—An attempt was made to burn the Woodward block, one of the largest office buildings in the city, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. It is the third time the building has been fired.

Jumped the Brooklyn Bridge.

New York, June 17. — A young man who was a passenger on a Brooklyn bridge car last evening suddenly left his seat and sprang over the bridge rail into the river below. The body has not yet been recovered.

Indians Charged With Murder.

Okmulgee, Ind. T., June 17.—A posse of United States marshals have arrested William Dear and George Jacobs, two full-blood Indians, charged with killing the wife and daughter of Dear near Okfuskee.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

TOWN WIPED OUT

ALEXANDER CITY, ALA., IS COMPLETELY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

LOSS WILL REACH $750,000

PLACE HAD NO WATER WORKS AND FELL EASY PREY TO THE FLAMES.

PEOPLE FLEE FROM AWFUL HEAT

LIGHT WIND FANNED THE FLAMES WHICH SPREAD WITH GREAT RAPIDITY.

Opelika, Ala., June 15. — Alexander City, a place of 1,500 inhabitants, was wiped away by fire yesterday, the loss reaching at least $750,000, which the insurance will not begin to cover.

The flames began in the foundry and machine works, and the long period of hot, dry weather had well prepared the buildings of the little city for the rapid spread of the flames. A light wind was blowing and with fierce rapidity the fire spread from building to building until the entire town was a seething mass of flames.

The place has no waterworks and all the terror-stricken people could do was to save what little they could, and then, almost prostrate, flee from the awful heat.

A Mass of Ashes.

Dadeville was telegraphed to for dynamite so that some of the buildings could be destroyed and thus check the progress of the flames, but it arrived only to find the city a mass of ashes.

On account of the fact that the telegraph and telephone offices have been destroyed it is impossible to obtain exact information regarding the fire.

The railroad has established lines under a tree and appeals for help and for food are going out. The loss of valuable papers will run into the thousands of dollars. The tracks of the Central of Georgia are so badly warped that the passenger trains had to transfer.

TAX ON OLEO.

It Must Be Increased If Any Artificial Coloring Matter Is Used.

Washington, June 15.—Commissioner Yerkes of the internal revenue bureau has settled the contest question as to whether butter, or any other ingredients artificially colored, may be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine without increasing the tax from one-quarter of a cent to 10 cents a pound, by issuing a regulation which holds in effect that no artificial coloring matter whatever can be used in any way in the manufacture of oleomargarine without increasing the tax as stated.

CHASED FOR FISHING.

Nets and Seines Captured, but [illegible] Get Away.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 15.—G. L. Miller and his assistant, George Thomson, captured 1,000 feet of seines, together with a large trap net Thursday on the Mississippi river. The seine and net contained 1,200 pounds of fish. Owing to the hot weather the fish were released in the river. Just who the illegal fishermen were is not known. As soon as they saw the wardens were on their track they fled, and after an exciting chase for two miles the fishermen escaped.

HOLE IN HIS HEAD.

Army Official Mysteriously Attempts Self-Destruction.

Richmond, Va., June 15.—Lieut. Richard C. Crofton of the Twenty-third United States infantry is in a hospital here probably fatally injured as a result of what seems to have been an attempt to take his own life. Yesterday morning he went to an upper room. In a few minutes the report of a revolver was heard, and he was found lying on the floor with a bullet in his head. He has been in fine health and spirits and there was apparently no reason for suicide.

SUTTON HAS RESIGNED.

Perjury Charge Against Missing Regent of University of Michigan.

Salem, Or., June 16.—Gov. Geer and who is at his home here, said that he had received word from Lansing that the resignation of Col. Eli R. Sutton of Detroit as regent of the University of Michigan was in the executive office at Lansing. A warrant has been issued in Lansing for the arrest of Col. Sutton on the charge of perjury in connection with his trial on the charge of complicity in the state military clothing frauds, and he's missing.

TAKEN FROM TOWER.

Regalia of England Removed Temporarily for Coronation Purposes.

London, June 15.—For the first time in sixty-four years the regalia of England have been removed from their time-honored home in the tower. They are now in the care of the lord chamberlain, from whose office they will be taken to the abbey on the day before the coronation.

Tickets for a Hanging.

Montreal, June 15.—Thosvald Hansen was hanged here for the murder of Eric Marotte, a nine-year-old boy, last autumn, in order to obtain 17 cents which the boy was jingling in his hand. Tickets of admission to the execution were openly sold at prices ranging from 50 cents to $10.

Crushed to Death.

Luddington, Mich., June 15.—By the breaking down of a wagon loaded with wood near here yesterday Mrs. Carter Smedley was crushed to death and her ten-year-old son fatally injured. Mrs. Smedley leaves a large family.

Mine Mules in Pasture.

Lancaster, Pa., June 15.—Pasturage has been obtained at Colerain, this county, for more than 3,000 mine mules from the Schuylkill region. Twelve hundred have arrived and the rest are on the way.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

GREAT NORTHERN STRIKE.

Boilermakers Prepare to Press Fight — Three Thousand May Strike.

St. Paul, June 14.—"If the strike of the boilermakers on the Great Northern is not settled by the first of next week every boilermaker and helper in the Northwestern district will be called out." This was the statement made by a member of the local branch. The Northwestern district includes the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Great Western, Burlington, Omaha and all contract shops. If a call is made for these men to walk out between 3,000 and 4,000 will be affected. The strikers claim that the boilermakers are out at every point on the Great Northern system. The local men claim they are prepared to hold out indefinitely.

AGEN IS COMMANDER.

Next Wisconsin G. A. R. Encampment to Be at Chippewa Falls.

Stevens' Point, Wis., June 14.—James H. Agen of West Superior was elected department commander of the Wisconsin G. A. R., and Chippewa Falls was selected as the place for holding the next encampment. The following officers were elected by the ladies: President, Mrs. C. Sloane, La Crosse; senior vice president, Mrs. M. Schonwalter, Lancaster; junior vice president, Mrs. M. Trimborn, Milwaukee; treasurer, Mrs. J. Hopkins; chaplain, Mrs. Spike.

REDS ARE AMBITIOUS.

Pine Ridge Agency Wants Work for Eight Hundred.

Sturgis, S. D., June 14. — Circulars have been received here from John R. Brennan, United States Indian agent at Pine Ridge agency, S. D., in which he states that there are 800 young, able-bodied Oglala Sioux Indians on that reservation who are desirous of adopting the habits of their white brethren and earn their own living. They wish to go to work either at railroad grading, digging ditches, herding sheep or ranching.

OFFICERS RESPONSIBLE.

Two Captains Punished for Steamboat Collision at Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., June 14.—The license of Capt. Michael Fitzgerald of the steamer G. G. Hadley was revoked yesterday by United States Inspectors Monahan and Chalk, and Capt. M. C. Cameron of the steamer Thomas Wilson was suspended sixty days. This was the result of the recent investigation into the collision between the two boats, when nine men lost their lives a short distance from the ship canal piers in this city.

SAID TO BE SHORT.

Manager of a Milwaukee Grain Firm Is Arrested.

Milwaukee, June 14.—James B. Orth, manager for Karger Bros., grain dealers, with offices in the chamber of commerce, was arrested on a warrant charging the embezzlement of $1,000. Orth disappeared several days ago, but returned to the city yesterday. It is alleged that he issued a check for $1,000 and converted it to his own use. An examination of Orth's books reveals, it is alleged, a shortage of many thousands of dollars.

SAFE CRACKED.

Burglars Take All From a Tunnel City Merchant.

Tomah, Wis., June 14.—Early yesterday morning robbers blew open the safe of R. Andie in Tunnel City, Wis., and took all the contents of the safe except $1, which was found lying in the bottom of the safe. The amount taken cannot be learned yet. The safe door was blown through the front of the store and across the street. Much damage was done to the building.

[illegible] Drowned at Lake City.

Lake City, Minn., June 14.—James Stewart, a fisherman of Snell Bros.' camp, located at Florence, about three miles north of this city, was drowned in the harbor at this place some time between midnight and 5 o'clock yesterday morning. He was single, about forty years of age and a son of William Stewart. His home was formerly in Porcupine, Wis.

Acquitted of Charge of Theft.

Lisbon, N. D., June 14.—William G. Hawthorne, the young farm workman who was arrested at Fargo last January charged with stealing two horses from the ranch of Rudolph Hance, at Owego, near here, and who has been in custody ever since, has been acquitted. His late employer gave strong evidence as to the man's honesty.

Robbed a Cripple.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 14.—Thieves entered the home of Mrs. William McDonnell, a crippled woman living with her little son in the western part of this city, and took with them a purse containing about $32. The cellar window was forced open and the money taken from the bureau drawer in her bedroom.

Boy Swimmer Drowned.

Sturgis, S. D., June 14.—Frank Wilcox, aged sixteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox of Fort Meade, was drowned in Betty's lake, near here, last evening while in swimming.

Tramp Sentenced to Prison.

Madison, Wis., June 14. — Thomas Bruce, the tramp who stabbed a companion, Patrick Doran, in a drunken row at Mazomanie, was sentenced to one year in prison.

Brewery Damaged by Fire.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 14. — Henry Michel's brewery was partially destroyed by fire. The damage is estimated at $20,000, on which there is $9,000 insurance.

Crops Damaged by Storm.

Detroit, Mich., June 14.—A windstorm of great violence, accompanied by rain and lightning, passed over the city late last night, doing thousands of dollars worth of damage to growing crops. Two are reported killed by lightning.

Child Accidentally Killed.

Muscatine, Iowa, June 14.—The nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Carlstrom, living near Mannon, Ill., was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shotgun with which he was playing.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

IS ANGRY AT WOOD

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MAY CALL THE GENERAL TO ACCOUNT.

LIKELY TO ISSUE A STATEMENT

THURBER'S DISCLOSURES GREATLY DISPLEASES THE PRESIDENT.

BEET SUGAR SENATORS CONFER

DECIDE TO CONTINUE OPPOSITION TO RECIPROCITY PROPOSITION.

Washington, June 14. — Soon after President Roosevelt reached the White House last night Senator Platt of Connecticut, chairman of the committee on Cuban relations, called by appointment.

The announcement was made at the White House that a statement would probably be given out to-day regarding Gen. Wood's action in giving Cuban funds for the circulation of literature favorable to reciprocity legislation.

It is reported that the president is greatly chagrined by Thurber's disclosures and may call Gen. Wood to account.

The Republican senators who are friendly to beet sugar and who oppose the proposed legislation for a reduction of the tariff on Cuban products, yesterday held a conference of almost two hours' duration and decided to Continue Their Opposition

to the reciprocity proposition. They will do this by announcing to the advocates of tariff reduction that they will cast their votes for the reciprocity bill as it passed the house of representatives, including the Morris amendment for the abolition of the differential due on refined sugar, and that they will resist all amendments that may be offered to it. They will propose two alternatives. One of these is to drop the subject and make no further attempt to secure reciprocity legislation. The other is to accept the rebate plan.

Yesterday's conference was held in Senator Elkins' committee room. The committee of conciliation, consisting of Senators Elkins, Burrows and Jones of Nevada, appeared to confer with the senators of the Cuban committee at the outset, reported to secure concessions from the opposition. The effect of the Thurber testimony was thoroughly considered immediately following this report.

That They Had Failed

A count of those present and those absent and known to be in sympathy with the movement led to the conclusion that there are at least nineteen Republican senators who can be depended upon to stand together in any course agreed upon. Counting the full Democratic vote as favorable to the house bill, the beet sugar advocates concluded that a proposition to pass that measure unamended would be the strongest that could be put forward. The combination of the two forces would give a total of 52 votes, or 7 more than a majority.

TEAMSTERS MAKE THREATS.

Danger of Another Strike in the Chicago Stock Yards.

Chicago, June 14.—Stock yards teamsters are again making threats. They charge that the packers have not lived up to the terms of the compromise which closed the big strike, and a call has been issued for a general meeting of the unions for Sunday to consider the situation. The men say that the conditions at the yards are worse than before the strike of two weeks ago was called. They say their positions are in danger, that many of the men have been unable to get work and that the barn superintendents who were discharged because they refused to take out the strikers' wagons, have not been reinstated. Referring to the complaints of the men the officers of the firms started an investigation. They say that three barn superintendents who refused to do the packers' bidding during the strike were told they would not be taken back. A committee of teamsters visited the superintendents of the firms who have thus far refused to recognize the union and say they received no satisfaction.

ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

Man Inflicts Fatal Injuries on a Traveling Companion.

Grand Island, Neb., June 14.—Charles Evans, aged twenty-six, early yesterday clubbed his traveling companion, Walter Harbold, into insensibility, cut his throat in three places with a pocket knife and stabbed him several times on the body and robbed him of $16. Harbold was removed to a hospital where he regained consciousness, but will die. He says Evans demanded his money, and on his refusal to turn it over Evans committed the assault.

"BEE" TAYLOR'S CASE.

Senate Resolution Referred to the Committee on Civil Service.

Washington, June 14. — At the conclusion of routine business in the senate yesterday a resolution was introduced by Mr. Carmack of Tennessee directing the committee on civil service and retrenchment to investigate the discharge from the war department of Miss Rebecca J. Taylor, a clerk in that department, was called up. On motion of Mr. Platt of Connecticut the resolution was referred to the committee on civil service.

TO HELP THE VETERANS.

Proposition That the Government Assist Needy Members to Visit Encampment.

Washington, June 14. — Senator Mason yesterday introduced a joint resolution looking to the advancement of money out of the treasury of the United States to pay the expenses of members of the G. A. R. who may wish to attend the forthcoming annual encampment in Washington and who may not be financially able to pay their own expenses.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

MORE TROOPS NEEDED.

Rioting at Pawtucket Gets Beyond Control of Militia.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 17.—The presence of 700 armed men sent by Gov. Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of this city yesterday, where the soldiers formed an invincible guard, and yesterday afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls. The resumption of the electric service, which had been abandoned since Thursday, was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was forced to abandon the car service. The disorders extended over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic can be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and parts of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. It was demonstrated that the cars could not be operated in safety in safety under the present condition. The tracks were obstructed and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs not only in the suburbs of the city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employes, some of whom were injured and rolling stock damaged.

KING EDWARD HAS A CHILL.

His Majesty Suffering From a Slight Attack of Lumbago.

London, June 17. — King Edward is suffering from a chill which has prevented him from attending the church parade of the Aldershot garrison. The chill came as a result of the king's prolonged stay outdoors Saturday night upon the occasion of the torchlight tattoo at Aldershot. The chill is a slight one, accompanied by symptoms of lumbago. The weather Saturday night was exceedingly cold and it rained at intervals before their majesties left the brigade recreation ground. King Edward returned to his apartments chilled from the unwonted exposure. These reports of his majesty's illness have naturally caused apprehension, but there is apparently no reason to anticipate serious results. An authentic statement from Aldershot last evening was to the effect that King Edward is slightly indisposed, but that his indisposition is not of a serious nature.

OVATION FOR GEN. DEWET.

He Urges Boers to Be Loyal to the New Government.

London, June 17.—Dispatches received here from South Africa show that the surrenders of Boers are proceeding with the greatest good will. The total of those who have already surrendered numbers 16,500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in. The appearance of Gen Dewet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp Gen Dewet was at once surrounded by thousands of Boer men, women and children, who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. Dewet mounted a table and delivered an address. He warmly applauded the stanch support that the women had given the burghers during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. Dewet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government.

BAD STORM IN CHICAGO.

Lightning Kills One Man and Causes Considerable Damage.

Chicago, June 17.—Chicago was visited by an electric storm yesterday afternoon which wrought death, caused a panic among 100 Sunday school children and damaged considerable property. Three churches were struck by electric bolts, one of them, the Memorial German Episcopal, being destroyed. Calvary Presbyterian, West Congress and Forty-second street, was struck while the Sunday school services were being held. The bolt entered the steeple and tore through the ceiling, causing a panic among the children. The building caught fire but all the children were rescued without serious injury. Joseph Killian, while resting in a fisherman's hut on the shore of lake Calumet, was killed by lightning, and in different parts of the city while the storm was in progress many other persons received shocks.

COUNTERFEITERS ROUNDED UP.

Secret Service Men Capture a Gang of Eight.

Baltimore, June 17. — United States secret service men, aided by local police, yesterday captured eight Italians, supposed to be members of a gang of counterfeiters who have operated in several parts of the country during the past few months. The prisoners are Dominic de Marco, Frank de Marco, Tony de Marco and Martin de Marco, father and sons, and Cato Rocesse, Louis Zimma and two women named Martil. Secret Service Agents Foster and Burns have been working on the case for several weeks. It is said that the prisoners are only a part of a crowd of suspects and a number of other arrests will shortly follow in near-by cities.

BILL TO ANNEX CUBA.

Senator Elkins Introduces a Joint Resolution Providing for Republic's Admission Into Union.

Washington, June 17.—When the senate met Saturday Mr. Elkins of West Virginia introduced a joint resolution providing for the annexation of Cuba and its admission as a state of the Union. The resolution was not referred to a committee, but was, at Mr. Elkins' suggestion, allowed to lie on the table.

IS COOLLY KILLED.

Jealous Husband Shoots Wife Dead and Wounds Self.

Springfield, Ill., June 17. — Lemuel Hickman, a restauranter of this city while walking with his wife in Washington Park, drew a revolver and shot her three times in the right lung, right shoulder and right side of the head. The last wound fractured the skull. Hickman then shot himself in the stomach. Mrs. Hickman died soon after being taken to the hospital. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF SUNDAY'S BASEBALL GAMES IN THE BIG LEAGUES.

ST. PAUL FINALLY DROPS ONE

MILWAUKEE AND MINNEAPOLIS SPLIT EVEN AT THE FAMOUS TOWN.

SCORES IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

ST. LOUIS, DETROIT AND BOSTON ARE THE DAY'S WINNERS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	30	16	.652	Kan. City	21	25	.451
St. Paul	28	17	.622	Milwaukee	19	26	.422
Indianapolis	26	18	.591	Minneapolis	18	27	.400
Columbus	28	20	.583	Toledo	12	33	.267

At St. Paul.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	2	1	5	1	Nance cf	1	0	0	1
Cogan 2b	3	0	1	0	Grady 3b	1	0	0	0
Dillard lf	2	2	0	1	Smith lf	1	1	0	0
Kelley 1b	0	13	2	0	Leewe ss	2	2	6	1
Huggins ss	1	2	5	1	Gear rf	1	4	0	0
Shannon cf	0	3	0	1	Beville c	2	1	0	1
Lumley rf	3	1	0	0	Rothfuss 1b	2	17	1	0
Peirce c	0	3	0	0	McBride 2b	1	1	8	0
Ferguson p	1	2	2	0	McDonald p	1	1	2	0
Totals	10	27	16	4	Totals	12	27	17	3

St. Paul ......1 2 0 0 1 1 0 0 0—5
Kansas City ......0 1 1 1 0 1 1 1 0—6

Earned run—St. Paul. Two-base hit—Cogan. Home run—Lumley. Sacrifice hits—Geier, Peirce, Leewe. Stolen bases—Cogan, Kelley, Huggins, Nance, Rothfuss 2. First base on balls—Off Ferguson 5. First base on errors—St. Paul 2, Kansas City 1. Left on bases—St. Paul 7, Kansas City 10. Struck out—By Ferguson 1, by McDonald 1. Double play—Kelley to Huggins to Ferguson. Time—1:54. Umpire—Ward. Attendance—4,935.

At Milwaukee.

First Game—

Milwauke.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hallman rf	0	1	1	1	Grant 2b	2	0	4	1
Clingman ss	2	1	2	0	Phyle 3b	0	1	2	1
McBride cf	1	1	0	0	Lynch lf	1	1	0	0
Schelbeck 2b	1	1	4	0	Werden 1b	0	13	1	2
Dungan lf	1	1	0	0	Wilmot rf	0	1	0	0
McAndws 3b	0	1	2	0	McFarlnd cf	0	2	0	0
Runkel 1b	1	7	0	0	Zalusky c	0	5	0	0
Speer c	0	13	0	0	Breytt ss	1	1	3	1
Altrock p	1	1	1	0	Sporer p	0	0	2	0
Totals	7	27	10	1	Totals	4	24	12	5

Milwaukee ......0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 x—3
Minneapolis ......0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Earned runs—Milwaukee 3. Three-base hit—Clingman. Base on balls—Off Altrock 1. Wild pitch—Sporer. Struck out—Altrock 8. Left on bases—Milwaukee 5, Minneapolis 1. Stolen base—Runkel. Umpire—Tyndill. Time—1:30.

Second Game—

Milwauke.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hallman rf	1	4	0	0	Grant 2b	0	4	1	0
Clingman ss	1	4	3	1	Phyle 3b	0	1	5	1
McBride cf	0	0	0	0	Lynch lf	0	5	0	0
Shiebeck 2b	0	2	1	3	Werden 1b	1	8	0	0
Dungan lf	2	3	0	0	Byers c	2	2	1	1
McAndws 3b	1	0	0	1	Wilmot rf	1	2	0	0
Runkel 1b	0	6	0	0	McFarland cf	2	4	0	0
Cross c	1	7	1	1	Breytt ss	0	0	1	0
Herman p	0	1	2	0	Newlin p	0	0	2	0
					Figgemeier p	0	1	0	0
Totals	6	27	7	6	Totals	6	27	10	2

Milwaukee ......2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2
Minneapolis ......1 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 2—6

Earned runs—Minneapolis 2. Two-base hits—Hallman 2, Byers, Wilmot. Bases on balls—Off Herman 1, off Figgemeier 1. Stolen base—Grant. Struck out—By Herman 4, by Figgemeier 1. Left on bases—Milwaukee 4, Minneapolis 5. Sacrifice hit—McBride. Umpire—Tyndill. Time—1:40.

At Toledo.

First Game—

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Indianplis.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Knoll lf	1	3	0	0	Hogriever rf	0	0	0	0
Burns 2b	1	1	2	0	Kuhns lf	4	2	1	0
Smith 3b	2	0	4	1	O'Brien ss	2	0	4	0
Turner 1b	1	14	0	0	Kihm 1b	0	13	1	0
Coggswell rf	2	2	1	1	Babb 3b	1	5	3	1
Myers ss	0	4	3	2	Woodruff cf	0	2	0	1
Gilks cf	2	1	0	0	Fox 2b	1	0	2	0
Kleinow c	2	2	0	0	Heydon c	[illegible]	[illegible]	1	0
McNeal p	0	0	4	0	Miller p	0	1	5	0
Totals	11	27	14	4	Totals	9	27	17	2

xBatted for Hughey in ninth.

Toledo ......0 0 1 0 0 0 [illegible]
Indianapolis ......1 0 0 0 0 2 0 1 [illegible]—4

Two-base hits—Kleinow 2, Coggswell and Kellum. Home run—Kihm. Stolen bases—Burns, Hogriever and O'Brien. Double play—Fox to Kihm. Struck out—By Hughey 3, by Kellum 3. Bases on balls—Off Hughey 9, off Kellum 2. Wild pitch—Kellum. Hit with ball—By Kellum 1. Time—2:00. Umpire—Weston. Attendance—4,000.

Second Game—

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Indianplis.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Knoll lf	1	5	0	0	Hogriever rf	1	1	0	0
Burns 2b	1	4	2	0	Kuhns lf	0	1	0	0
Smith 3b	0	1	0	0	O'Brien ss	3	1	3	1
Turner 1b	0	11	0	0	Kihm 1b	1	13	0	0
Coggswell rf	1	0	0	0	Babb 3b	0	2	2	0
Myers ss	1	0	4	3	Woodruff cf	1	1	0	0
Gilks cf	0	3	0	0	Fox 2b	0	2	5	0
Kleinow c	4	3	1	1	Heydon c	0	0	0	0
Hughey p	0	0	3	0	Kellum p	2	0	2	0
xGraffius	0	0	0	0
Totals	8	27	10	2	Totals	8	27	13	1

Toledo ......0 0 0 0 0 4 2 0 0—6
Indianapolis ......0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0—2

Two-base hits—Burns, Kuhns, O'Brien, Fox. Home runs—Smith, Coggswell. Sacrifice hits—Burns, Myers. Stolen bases—Knoll, Gilks. Double play—Burns to Myers to Turner. Struck out—By Miller 3. Bases on balls—Off McNeal 1, off Miller 2. Wild pitch—Miller. Hit with ball—McNeal 1. Time—1:50. Umpire—Weston.

Louisville, June 15.—Louisville-Columbus game postponed—wet grounds.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	26	16	.619	St. Louis	21	22	.488
Philadel	24	19	.558	Baltimore	22	24	.478
Boston	25	21	.543	Wash'ton	21	25	.457
Detroit	21	22	.488	Cleveland	15	29	.351

At Detroit.

Detroit ......3 0 0 3 0 0 0 2 x—[illegible]
Washington ......1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2

At St. Louis.

St. Louis ......1 4 0 1 0 3 0 0 x—9
Baltimore ......1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1—[illegible]

At Canton, O.

Cleveland ......0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—2
Boston ......2 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 1—5

Chicago, June 15.—Chicago-Philadelphia postponed; rain.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	34	10	.773	Philadelphia	21	26	.447
Brooklyn	26	22	.542	New York	19	25	.432
Chicago	23	21	.523	St. Louis	19	27	.413
Boston	20	22	.476	Cincinnati	19	27	.413

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Milwaukee Wins Two Games From the Kansas City Team.

First Game—		R.	H.	E.
Kansas City	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	0	5	1
Milwaukee	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x	2	10	1
Second Game—
Kansas City	1 0 0 0 [illegible]	2	7	4
Milwaukee	4 0 0 0 [illegible]	[illegible]	9	4
Denver	3 0 0 0 [illegible]	7	12	3
Omaha	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	1	4	2
Colorado Springs	0 0 1 0 3 0 [illegible]	[illegible]	10	3
Des Moines	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 [illegible]	1	4	2
Peoria	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 [illegible]	6	7	2
St. Joseph	[illegible]	[illegible]	8	2

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

MILITIA IN CHARGE

TROOPS CALLED OUT TO QUELL DISTURBANCES AT PAWTUCKET.

LAWLESS ACTS OF STRIKERS

SCORE OF PERSONS INJURED, ONE FATALLY, DURING DISORDERS.

BALL CARTRIDGES SERVED OUT

MILITIA IS PREPARED TO TAKE VIGOUROUS STEPS TO STOP RIOTING.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 14.—For the first time in the history of the city bayonets in the hands of soldiers ordered out by the governor of the state to suppress riotous disturbances, glistened in the streets of Pawtucket yesterday.

The astonishing increase in the number of lawless acts directed against the United Traction company, whose union men have been on a strike since June 2, and the inability of the limited police force and deputy sheriffs to suppress rioting induced Gov. Kimball to call out the militia. Numerous cases of disorder occurred during the day, and more than a score of persons were injured, one fatally.

In the presence of about 1,000 persons and the militia last evening Adjt. Gen. Sackett read the riot act. The city was taken possession of by the militia. A provisional regiment was formed composed of companies from the First and Second regiments with the First battalion of cavalry. The regiment responded to an emergency call promulgated by Gov. Kimball and Brig. Gen. Herbert S. Tanner assumed command. In the afternoon orders were issued calling out the third division of the naval reserves and the machine gun battery.

Crowd Grows Angry.

The first disturbance was at the city line. Pursuing the custom followed during the strike the United Traction company's cars were started from the Pawtucket avenue car house near the line dividing Pawtucket and Providence, and on one car was a number of deputy sheriffs. This car was followed at intervals by three others. When the cars reached the junction of Pawtucket and East avenues trouble began. The presence of the deputies on the cars angered the crowd which had gathered, and a fusillade of stones, tin cans and other missiles followed. The cars were badly damaged. The motorman of each car saw that his only chance was to start the car at full speed and run through the crowd without stopping. Each car was assailed and soon all were stalled at Haymarket square. Then Chief of Police Rice informed Gen. Tanner that the conditions were such that his force of men was unable to handle the mob, and he sought the aid of the militia. A company of the First regiment was sent out and met the cars at Haymarket square. It preceded them to East and Pawtucket avenues, where the militiamen in front and rear. There was a noisy demonstration. For a minute the soldiers were cheered and then a few rocks were thrown. One of these struck Deputy Sheriff Horton, cutting his face. On a trip from Providence to Pawtucket Deputy Sheriff Horton had discharged his revolver four times, and although no one was hit, this act made the crowd angry. The cars were run through the city line without further trouble.

Guarded the Cars

The situation during the remainder of the afternoon, after the militia officers had been over the field and had mapped out plans of campaign and the proclamation of Gov. Kimball had been published, was such that Gen. Tanner determined to have all the soldiers available. After consultation with Gov. Kimball it was decided to ask for all the available militia, and additional companies were called out. On arrival of these commands there were 730 men and sixty officers on duty. After the militia had been stoned in the morning ball catridges were served out, each private carrying fifty rounds and each officer fifty rounds of revolver ammunition.

RUSH INTO CELLARS.

Elgin's Population Frightened to Places of Safety.

Elgin, Ill., June 14.—At least one-third of Elgin's population in the residence district took refuge in cellars shortly after 6 o'clock this evening. Funnel clouds gave warning that a cyclone was approaching. At 6:30 the wind descended, trees, lumber and the roofs of small outbuildings were blown through the air. It is almost impossible to get communication to the surrounding towns, the telephone and telegraph service being crippled by the furious wind.

Sigourney, Iowa, June 14. — The main tent of the Harris Nickel Plate circus was blown down by a tornado this afternoon. Twenty-five people were injured. Miss Clara Campbell, aged twenty, was hurt about the back and may not recover. Samuel Utterbeck was seriously injured in the head. The injuries of the others were slight. The tent was crowded at the time of the accident.

Des Moines, June 14.—As the result of a cloudburst near Webster City last night the Boone river has flooded that city. Residents have been driven from their homes but no deaths have been reported. Rain is still falling.

Ottumwa, Iowa, June 14.—A miniature tornado and cloudburst broke hundreds of plate glass windows in this city today, flooded basements and did heavy damage to farm buildings in this vicinity.

INSULTS AND BLOWS.

Wild Disorder in Austrian Reichsrath at Vienna.

Vienna, June 14.—There was a scene of wild disorder in the reichsrath yesterday during the debate on the Danube navigation agreement. Herr Schoenerer, a leader of the Pan-German party, and Dr. Wolff, another leader of the same party, exchanged insults and finally boxed each other's ears. It was necessary for friends of the rival leaders to drag them apart, amid cheers and jeers from the galleries.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

SUGAR PLANTS FOR WISCONSIN.

Nine Factories Promised if the Present Tariff on the Commodity Is Not Reduced.

Milwaukee, June 17.—Contracts have been closed with citizens committees from nine cities in this state by the Wisconsin Sugar company, through which the company agrees to build in each place a beet sugar factory, providing the farmers agree to plant 4,000 acres of beets for three years, and there is no reduction in the present sugar tariff. Two of these factories will be erected next year, and the others in the following year. The cities named are Watertown, Kaukauna, Beaver Dam, Chippewa Falls, Green Bay, Oconto, Racine, Janesville and Dorchester.

HE HIT THE PIPE.

Carpenter Who Gets Up in the Night to Smoke Goes Insane.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 17.—Because he smoked a strong pipe continuously, and even got up in the night and smoked it, Mrs. Michael Donohue claims her husband, a carpenter, sixty-three years of age, went insane. Donohue tried to quit smoking, his wife says, and it made his nervous system worse, and he wanted to murder his family and all the neighbors. Donohue is locked up in the county jail and the insanity commission will examine his mental condition.

OPERATORS WILL ORGANIZE.

Western Union Men Will Meet in Chicago to Form a Union.

New York, June 17.—A secret meeting of Western Union Telegraph operators will be held next Sunday in Chicago for the purpose, it is said, of forming a newly organized protective brotherhood in their ranks. A call for the meeting was received in this city yesterday and circulated among the operators. The operators are not anxious to talk about the new organization, and those who will represent New York at the meeting are being chosen with great secrecy. It is expected that delegates will be present from New York, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati, St. Paul, Detroit, Pittsburg and Buffalo.

GORED TO DEATH BY BULL.

Wisconsin Farmer Is Killed by a Vicious Animal.

Oconomowoc, Wis., June 17. — Mads Sorensen, aged seventy-two years, a farmer residing in the town of Summit, near here, was gored to death by a bull on his farm. The old man was gored three times and his body was badly lacerated. He managed to crawl through a fence, but his injuries proved fatal and he lived only an hour after the encounter with the bull.

FATAL DEVOTION.

Doctor Contracts Diphtheria From a Patient and Dies.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 17.—Dr. John A. Garrett, who has been practicing medicine in Sioux Falls for several years, is dead as the result of his devotion to a patient who was stricken with diphtheria. The doctor contracted the disease, and, although everything that medical science could offer was done for him, the effort to save his life was unavailing.

RUN FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Bemidji to Have a $135,000 Saw Mill Soon.

Bemidji, Minn., June 17. — The head men of the Crookston Lumber company are here conferring with Bemidji citizens and arrangements are about completed whereby a first-class sawmill will be located here to saw the Tom Shevlin timber. This means a mill costing $135,000, with enough available timber to run it for twenty years.

TINE PIERCES BRAIN.

Farm Hand Sleeps on Haymow and Won't Wake Up.

Appleton, Minn., June 17. — Frank Johnson, a middle-aged laboring man, was killed on a farm west of this village. He was sleeping in a haymow and a boy went to put down some hay and threw his fork into a pile of hay, striking Johnson in the temple, killing him instantly.

Burglars at Faribault.

Faribault, Minn., June 17. — F. W. Winter & Co.'s foundry and machine shop was broken into by burglars. They worked the combination and opened the office safe. The iron cash box, which was locked and contained several drafts and checks and a number of valuable papers, but no money, was torn out and carried away. Several valuable tools were also taken from the machine shop. The burglars left no clue.

Beloit Commencement.

Beloit, Wis., June 17.—The fifty-fifth commencement exercises of Beloit college began yesterday. Dr. F. W. Gunsalus of Chicago delivered the baccalaureate sermon. There were thirty-five graduates. The special feature of commencement week will be the Greek comedy, "The Frogs of Aristophanes," by the sophomore class. It is the second attempt in America to present a Greek play.

Secretary Wilson Will Be There.

Menomonie, Wis., June 17.—Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture has accepted an invitation to be present and conduct the opening exercises in October next of the Dunn county agricultural college in this city, the first school of the kind to be established in the United States.

Spanish-American Veterans.

Menomonie, Wis., June 17.—Maj. T. J. George camp, the local branch of the Spanish-American war veterans, were mustered into the national organization, and the officers were installed by Capt. John Turner of Mauston. The camp starts out with a large membership.

New President for Madison.

Milwaukee, June 17.—The trustees of the University of Wisconsin will announce Wednesday that President J. W. Bashford of the Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware has been chosen as president of the Wisconsin university.

Three Persons Drowned.

Port Huron, Mich., June 17.—During a gale P. Martin, aged 17; Beatrice Harris, 16, and Norma Abraham, 7, were drowned in Lake Huron by the overturning of a rowboat off Edison Beach. The accident was witnessed by many.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

SHOT BY MINERS

COAL AND IRON POLICEMAN GETS RIFLE BALL IN HIS LUNG.

IS FIRED UPON FROM AMBUSH

TROUBLE AT A COLLIERY AT WILKESBARRE MAY RESULT IN MURDER.

COMPANY OFFERS BIG REWARD

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN STRIKE SITUATION—NON-UNION MEN AT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 17.—Some men lying in ambush yesterday morning shot and severely wounded Charles Robinson, a coal and iron policeman, at the Olyphant colliery of the Delaware & Hudson Coal company. He is now in the Lackawanna hospital with a rifle ball in his right lung.

There had been trouble at the colliery earlier in the night. A crowd of miners, mostly foreigners, had gathered and approached the guards, throwing stones. The guards fired over their heads and frightened them away. Later two of the guards were arrested and held under bail for carrying weapons. After that there was no further trouble until Robinson was making his rounds, when three or four shots rang out and he fell, wounded. Other guards from where the shots were fired, but the shooters got away. The company is now using its best detectives to find them. A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the perpetrators.

Rushed Into the Field

No arrests have yet been made of the men suspected of dynamiting the Applegate house in Hazleton or of ambushing the officials at the William A. colliery, Duryea, on Wednesday night. Warrants are out in each case, however, and arrests are expected at any moment. A. Pardee & Co. has offered a reward of $500 for the dynamiters.

Yesterday President Mitchell had a long conference with President Patrick Glady of Soft Coal District No. 2, from Morrisdale, Pa., who came to consult him about trouble at one of the mines in the district. President Mitchell directed him to declare a strike, assuring the support of the union. The strike at the Bloomington mines near Philipsburg, Pa., has been settled and the men to-day. Five hundred men struck there last Tuesday because four men would not join the union. The four men have quit work.

Will Return to Work

There were no developments here yesterday. President Mitchell was in frequent telegraphic communication with his men in the West on general organization work. He had no information to impart on either the strike in this region or the West Virginia suspension.

-o-

Shamokin, Pa., June 17.—A majority of collieries owned by the Reading and Pennsylvania companies in this vicinity had a sufficient force of non-union men in the fire rooms yesterday for the first time since the firemen's strike. The Reading's employes are closely guarded by coal and iron police, while special officers protect the Pennsylvania men. Heavy rains flooded the operations considerably, but the superintendents report the workings are no longer in danger of being entirely inundated.

GOMEZ NOT BRIBED.

Story That He Received Money for Quitting Race Untrue.

Washington, June 17. — Regarding a story emanating from New Orleans to the effect that Gen. Gomez received a $25,000 bribe from the administration to withdraw from the Cuban campaign, thereby permitting the election of Estrada Palma, it was stated by an official close to President Roosevelt that he had never before heard of it. Secretary Hay said that not until his attention was called to the story had he received the slightest intimation of it from any source.

WIN PARDON BY TELEPHONE.

Elopers Ask Forgiveness of Parents After Marriage at Elkhart, Ind.

Mishawaka, Ind., June 17.—Surprise was occasioned in this city and South Bend by the marriage yesterday of Robert S. Campbell, son of Myron Campbell, treasurer of the South Bend National bank, and Miss J. Louise Perkins. The pair eloped to Elkhart and were married. Then they telephoned to their families and secured forgiveness. The bride is the daughter of Frank G. Perkins, president of the Perkins Windmill company of this city.

JUST KILLS HIMSELF.

Prominent Man's Rash Act Can't Be Accounted For.

Nashville, Tenn., June 17.—Albert D. Marks committed suicide by shooting himself through the temple. He was a son of ex-Gov. Albert S. Marks, a son-in-law of Gen. W. H. Jackson, proprietor of Belle Meade. Mr. Marks was prominent socially and as a lawyer. There is no known cause for the tragedy.

ROOSTER INJURES A CHILD.

Sinks Spurs Into Girl's Head, Penetrating the Brain.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 17.—A little daughter of William Blankenship was attacked by a rooster and so badly injured that it is thought she will die. The bird sank its spurs in the top of the child's head, penetrating the brain.

EARTHQUAKES IN SICILY.

Disturbances Cause a Panic at Syracuse.

Syracuse, Sicily, June 17. — Strong earthquake shocks, accompanied by a sound of underground rumblings, were experienced here last night. The inhabitants of Syracuse became panic-stricken. The disturbances did not effect any damage. For several days past the sky over Sicily has been overcast and the heat has been overwhelming. Shocks of eartuquake are reported from other parts of the island of Sicily.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

LIND THE MAN SAYS ROSING.

He Will Again Head the Democratic Ticket.

St. Paul, June 13.—"John Lind will be nominated for governor by the Democratic convention," said L. A. Rosing yesterday after the meeting of the Democratic executive committee. Mr. Rosing is chairman of the Democratic state central committee and Mr. Lind's close friend and chief political lieutenant.

"Will he accept the nomination?"

"The convention could scarcely be expected to nominate him unless it was pretty certain he would accept," replied Mr. Rosing with a smile.

"Has Mr. Lind told you he would accept the nomination?"

Mr. Rosing thought a moment and glanced quizzically at the inquirer. Then he proceeded deliberately:

"Now, all I can say is that he will be nominated by acclamation. He will be the Democratic candidate for governor."

SPREE ENDS FATALLY.

Drunken Man's Anger Is Aroused and He Assaults Companion.

Thompson, N. D., June 13.—Tom Chervested, a farmer residing near this place, lies dead at his home as a result of a drunken carousal on Sunday. Chervested, in company with several other young people, including two young ladies, called at the home of Solem Larson for a social time. The men imbibed freely of strong liquor and were in a warlike mood about noon. One of the girls took Chervested's bottle and threw it out of the window, which exasperated the drunken man. Breaking the window, he recovered the bottle and a desperate encounter between him and Ole Thoen ensued. Chervested's powerful physique rendered a fair fight impracticable, so, seizing a rolling pin, Thoen struck Chervested, knocking him down stairs, where he expired in a few hours. Thoen was arrested later and is awaiting trial at Grand Forks.

WILL PLANT GRAYLING.

Wisconsin Fish Commission Will Stock Bayfield Streams.

Bayfield, Wis., June 13.—The Wisconsin State fish commission has secured from the United States government 200,000 grayling eggs, and the same were brought here about two weeks ago from Montana. The eggs are now hatching and soon the commission will commence planting the fry in the principal streams throughout the county. The grayling is an European fish and is allied to the trout except that it has a broad dorsal fin. They are more frequently found in cold mountain streams and are valued as a game fish. This is the first lot of fish of this kind that has ever been brought into this state by the state fish commission.

PLUMB IS NOT PLUMB.

Mental Machinery Out of Repair and He Escapes Murder Trial.

Helena, Mont., June 13.—At the opening of the trial of Daniel Plumb, at Virginia City, the defense sprung a surprise in asking that the sanity of the defendant be inquired into. This request was granted and Plumb pronounced insane and ordered committed to an asylum. He was charged with the murder of his two-year-old child. Last December he shot and seriously wounded his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. A. M. Parke. The latter was holding the baby and one of the bullets struck it in the head, causing instant death.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED.

Man Who Struck Louis Scherer Must Pay Penalty.

Winona, Minn., June 13.—John Haase, Jr., who struck the blow that resulted in the death of Louis Scherer, has been arraigned before Judge W. J. Smith on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree, and his hearing set for June 19. In the meantime Haase is confined in the county jail. The funeral of Louis Scherer was held yesterday from the family residence, being conducted by Dr. J. J. Hillmer, one of his instructors in the high school.

BOY KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Six-Year-Old Lad Thrown Dead Into a Ditch at St. Peter.

St. Peter, Minn., June 13.—A young son of Martin Stengel was killed by a train on the Omaha road. The boy, who was but six years of age, was crossing the track at a point about a mile east of the station just as a train came thundering along. He was struck by the locomotive and thrown into a ditch. The father is a member of the firm of Stengel Bros. of this city. An inquest will be held.

RICE NAMED FOR JUDGE.

Deadwood Attorney Appointed to Succeed Judge Washabaugh.

Deadwood, S. D., June 13.—Gov. Herried has wired W. G. Rice of this city his appointment to the position of judge of the Eighth judicial district of South Dakota, to succeed the late Judge Washabaugh. Judge Rice is one of the most able lawyers in the state, and his appointment is entirely satisfactory to the Black Hills people.

Start Fight for State Capital.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 13.—To prepare the way for her fight for the state capital next winter Mitchell, S. D., people are making an effort to induce the Milwaukee railroad to put on a through daily service from Sioux City by extending the run of the Yankton train. The Sioux City Commercial club has taken up the matter, and will work with Mitchell.

One Killed in Bridge Collapse.

Winnipeg, June 13.—Robert McGregor was killed and several injured, three seriously, by a collapse of the Canadian Pacific railway bridge under construction near Hamiota.

Two Fatalities.

Helena, Mont., June 13. — Wallace Roby, a sheep herder, was killed by a bolt of lightning near Glendive. Joseph Straka, employed in a planing mill at St. Regis, was killed by the breaking of a belt, which struck him on the head.

Shot by His Playmate.

Milton, N. D., June 13.—Herbert, the eight-year-old son of Hon. Ole Axvig, was accidentally shot in the head by a 22-caliber rifle in the hands of a playmate. The wound bled profusely, but will not prove fatal.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

SWEPT BY STORM

CENTRAL SOUTHERN MINNESOTA SUFFERS CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE.

NO ONE KILLED OR INJURED

HOUSES UNROOFED, OUTBUILDINGS WRECKED AND TREES DESTROYED.

CROPS RUINED IN SOME PLACES

WORST STORM THAT VISITED THAT SECION IN MANY YEARS.

St. Paul, June 17.—The storm in Central Southern Minnesota Saturday afternoon did considerable damage to light buildings, shade trees and crops, but as far as known no lives were lost. Communication by Western Union with all the towns reported yesterday as having been cut off as a result of the storm was restored during the day.

Reports received from correspondents in the locality visited by the storm show that while the storm was severe there were no cyclonic features, and as far as known no lives were lost and no one was injured.

At several points a few houses were unroofed, outbuildings were wrecked and shade trees were destroyed. Crops in some sections were badly damaged. The storm center was between Jordan and Shakopee, a distance of twelve miles, and leveled gigantic trees that carried down the telegraph and telephone wires in their descent, and in many places fell across the railroad tracks. The and sheds and other structures were swept away in many of the villages along the railroad.

Wind Blew Fiercely.

Jordan and Shakopee were badly shaken, and the residents of those places did not sleep during the night on account of the severity of the storm. The railroad companies, however, report that no casualties resulted from the windstorm, although much damage was done by the destruction of property for one hundred miles along the line.

The report that New Prague was in the path of a cyclone proved untrue. Several buildings were wrecked, but the damage was not serious.

Wide in Its Scope.

A special telegram from Henderson says:

"According to all reports received here the storm was destructive and wide in scope. It was seen from here and resembled a cyclone, but as it approached it was seen to separate about seven or eight miles northwest of this city along the Minnesota valley, dividing east and west. At Blakely the storm demolished a number of buildings and tore down the brickyard sheds and other buildings. In Scott county the farmers suffered severe losses in the destruction of barns, outbuildings and livestock. No lives were lost, but it is reported that thousands of dollars worth of damage was done. At Arlington, twelve miles from here, the storm destroyed many buildings, and reports show that the farming community adjacent suffered heavy losses."

Worst Storm in Years.

The following telegram was received from Northfield:

"One of the worst storms which has visited this section in years broke here about 6 o'clock in the evening. While there was no loss of life, considerable damage was done to crops, trees broken and uprooted and telegraphic and telephonic communication cut off. The wind's work was especially destructive in the business portion of the city, plate glass windows being shattered and signs destroyed. The Central bridge, spanning the Cannon river, was also partially wrecked, a smokestack from the mill adjoining striking it. The storm lasted but thirty minutes."

Feared a Cyclone.

The Faribault correspondent says:

"A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by high wind, passed over this city about 6:30 o'clock. The damage was confined to a drenching rain and the breaking of trees and overturning of a few outbuildings. Cyclonic disturbance was feared at the beginning of the storm and many timid ones took to the cellars. The only accident reported occurred east of here, when a farmer's team was frightened by the breaking of a tree and ran away. The farmer and his wife were thrown from the buggy. The former was injured internally and the latter had her arm broken and was badly bruised."

DISMISSED CLERK IS TO SUE.

Woman Who Criticised the Philippine Policy Notifies President She Will Seek Legal Redress.

Washington, June 17.—Mrs. Rebecca J. Taylor, the clerk in the war department who was dismissed for publicly criticising the administration's Philippine policy, has written to the president and the secretary of war demanding reinstatement in office within three days, failing which she says she will take the necessary legal steps to secure her rights.

Quarrel Fatal for Two.

Philadelphia, June 17. — Mrs. Rachel Sahler, a widow, was yesterday shot and instantly killed at Coatsville, Pa., forty miles west of here, by Harry N. Ricer of Newcastle, who was also killed by a bullet from his revolver while struggling with another woman for possession of the weapon. The tragedy was the result of a quarrel.

Drowns From a Bicycle.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 17. — Dellbert Skinner, aged seventeen, an employe at the paper mill, while riding his bicycle along the top of the long flume on the Chippewa river on his way home from the mill, fell into the rapids below the dam and was drowned.

Girl Killed by Lightning.

Kokomo, Ind., June 17.—Miss Myrtle McCoy, fifteen years old, was killed by lightning while sitting in the doorway of her home, four miles north of here. A child in her lap was unhurt.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

Philip Callahan, a former Irish member of the house of commons, is dead.

The death is announced at Vienna of John George Pinttna, formerly United States vice consul at Toulon, France.

Thomas Nixon, aged eighty-six years, and a pioneer Western paper manufacturer, died suddenly at Richmond, Ind.

The Union ore sampling works and the warehouse of the Second Hand Supply company at Denver, Colo., were destroyed by fire. Loss $50,000.

The betrothal is announced of Prince Nicholas, the third son of King George of Greece, and the Grand Duchess Helen, daughter of Grand Duke Vladimir of Russia.

W. O. Gundery, for twenty years freight agent of the Pennsylvania line in Columbus, Ohio, is dead of catarrh of the bowels, aged fifty-eight. He was widely known in railroad circles.

The engagement is announced of Lord Francis Hope and Beatrice Ricketts, whose grandmother, the late Lady Caroline Ricketts, was a daughter of the fourth duke of Newcastle. Lord Francis Hope and Miss Ricketts are cousins.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, June 17. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 73 @ 74c; No. 2 Northern, 72 @ 73c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 59@60c; No. 3, 57@58c. Oats—No. 3 white, 42@43c; No. 3, 40@42c.

Minneapolis, June 17.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 77 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 75 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-4c.

Duluth, June 17.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 76 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 73 1-4c; Manitoba, 73 1-4c; flax, $1.70; oats, September, 29 1-2c; rye, cash, [illegible].

Milwaukee, Wis., June 17.—Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 77 1-2@77 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 76 1-2@76 3-4c; July, 73 1-2c. Rye—No. 1, 55@58c. Barley—No. 2, [illegible] @ 70 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 white, 46@46 1-2c. Corn—July, 63c.

Chicago, June 17.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 79 1-4c; No. 3 red, 77 1-4@78 3-4c; No. 2 hard winter, 73 1-4@74 1-4c; No. 3 hard winter, 73 1-4@74 1-4c; No. 2 Northern spring, 73 1-4@74 1-4c; No. 3 spring, 69@71 1-4c. Corn—No. 2, 63 3-4@65c; 62 1-4@63 3-4c. Oats—No. 2, [illegible]; No. 3, 47c.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 17.—Cattle—Beeves, $6@7.75; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@4.25; stockers and feeders, $2.75@4.25; yearlings and calves, $2.75@4.25. Hogs, $7.10@7.35; bulk, $7.15@7.35.

Chicago, June 17. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.25@7.75; poor to medium, $5@7; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.25; calves, $4@7. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $7.05@7.50; good to choice heavy, $7.45@7.55. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $5.50@6.50; fair to choice mixed, $4.50@5.25; Western, $5@6.10; native lambs, $4.75@6.85; Western lambs, $5@6.80.

South St. Paul, June 17. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $6.25@6.50; good, $5.50@6; choice cows and heifers, $5.25@5.50; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; steer calves, $2.50@3.75; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.75 @ 3.25; heifer calves, $2.25@3.25. Hogs—Prices range, $6.80@7.15; bulk, $6.95@7. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.85@6; good to choice fat lambs, $5.50@5.75; fair to good fat lambs, $5@5.50.

AMERICAN WOMEN AT BAZAAR.

Mrs. Deacon Did Not Speak to the Duchess of Marlborough.

London, June 17.—"Smart" Americans were very prominent in the grand bazaar at the French embassy in aid of the Martinique sufferers. Mrs. Arthur Paget, who has quite recovered and is looking marvelously well, had a stall where were on sale sixty stunning hats given by leading Parisian milliners. The duchess of Marlborough had Miss Gladys Deacon assisting her. Among the buyers here was Mrs. Deacon, but she did not speak to the duchess.

KAPPELLE IS GUILTY.

Convicted of Larceny, but Trial Shows He Is a Polygamist.

Lockport, N. Y., June 17. — After a sensational trial Edward W. Kappele, superintendent of agents of the Equitable Life Assurance company at Niagara Falls and Buffalo, was convicted of grand larceny in the first degree. He was indicted for securing a $3,000 mortgage from George Frank Green by falsely representing that he had organized the Nash Improvement company, and that he had married Green's granddaughter.

GRAND DUKE GOES MAD.

Commander of the Czar's Bodyguard a Raving Maniac.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovich, commander of the czar's bodyguard and an adjutant to his majesty, is confined in his palace, a raving maniac. The senate ordered his incarceration for fear that he might hurt the czar.

FIVE MEN SCALDED.

An Accident on the United States Transport Meade.

San Francisco, June 17. — The main stop valve of a steam pipe on the United States transport Meade blew out and as a result five men lie badly scalded in the harbor receiving ship.

Crushed to Death.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 17. — Arthur Underwood, a prominent member of the Castle Square Opera company, playing an engagement in this city, whose home is in Boston, was struck and killed last night by a street car at the corner of Euclid and Willson avenues. Mr. Underwood got off of one car, and in a blinding rainstorm stepped in front of another car which knocked him down and crushed him to death.

Massacred by Brigands.

Oran, Algeria, June 17.—A local newspaper publishes a statement that a small caravan was massacred by brigands last Friday at Hacielbegri. This district is infested with brigands, according to the paper.

Surrender of Boers.

London, June 17. — A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria Saturday, June 14, says that 2,594 Boers have surrendered since Friday, June 13, and that everything is proceeding most satisfactorily.

Dr. D. Frank Powell, St. Paul, Minn.

v.1197½

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XIV—(Continued.)

"That is what they all say—and then they rob me. You stole the Rembrandt."

The last words came like a shot from a catapult. Enid's face grew colder. Bell drew a long tube of discolored paper carefully tied around a stick, from his pocket.

"I am going to disprove that once and for all," he said. "The rembrandt is at present in Lord Littimer's collection. There is an account of it in to-day's Telegraph. It is perfectly familiar to both of you. And, that being the case, what do you think of this?"

He unrolled the paper before Enid's astonished eyes. Margaret Henson glanced at it listlessly; she was fast sinking into the old, strange oblivion again. But Enid was all rapt attention.

"I would have sworn to that as Lord Littimer's own!" she gasped.

"It is his own," Bell replied. "Stolen from him, and a copy placed by, some arch-enemy in my portmanteau. It was certain to be found on the frontier. Don't you see that there were two Rembrandts? When the one from my portmanteau was restored to Littimer his own was kept by the thief. Subsequently it would be exposed as a new find, with some story as to its discovery, only, unfortunately for the scoundrel, it came into my possession."

"And where did you find it?" Enid asked.

"I found it," said Bell, slowly, "in a house called 218, Brunswick Square, Brighton."

A strange cry came from Enid's lips. She stood swaying before her lover as white as the paper on which her eyes were eagerly fixed. Margaret Henson was pacing up and down the room, her lips muttering, and raising a cloud of pallid dust behind her.

"I—I am sorry," Enid said, falteringly. "And all these years I have deemed you guilty. But then, the proof was so plain; I could not deny the evidence of my own senses. And Van Gulden came to me, saying how deeply distressed he was, and that he would have prevented the catastrophe if he could. Well?"

A servant stood waiting in the doorway, with wondering eyes at the stranger.

"I'm sorry, miss," she said; "but Miss Christiania is worse; indeed, she quite frightens me. I've taken the liberty of telephoning to Dr. Walker."

The words seemed to bring consciousness to Margaret Henson.

"Christiania worse," she said. "Another of them going; it will be a happy release from a house of sorrow like this. I will come up, Martin."

She swept out of the room with the servant. Enid appeared hardly to have heard. Bell looked at her inquiringly, and with some little displeasure.

"I fancy I have heard you speak of your sister Christiania," he said. "Is she ill?"

"She is at the point of death, I understand; you think I am callous. Oh, if you only knew! But the light will come to us all in time, God willing. Look at this place, look at the blight of it, and wonder how we endure it. Hatherly, I have made a discovery!"

"We seem to be living in an atmosphere of discoveries. What is it?"

"I will answer your question by asking another. You have been made the victim of a vile conspiracy. For seven years your career has been blighted. And I have lost seven years of my life, too. Have you any idea who your enemy is?"

"Not the faintest, but, believe me, I shall find out in time. And then—"

A purple blackness, like the lurid light of a storm flashed into his eyes, the lines of his mouth grew rigid. Enid laid a hand tenderly on his arm.

"Your enemy is the common enemy of us all," she said. "We have wasted the years, but we are young yet. Your enemy is Reginald Henson."

"Enid, you speak with conviction. Are you certain of this?"

"Certain. When I have time I will tell you everything. But not now. And that man must never know that you have been near the house to-night, not so much for your sake as for the sake of your friend, David Steele. Now I can see the Providence behind it all. Hatherly, tell me that you forgive me before the others come back."

"My darling, I cannot see how you could have acted otherwise."

Enid turned towards him with a glad light in her eyes. She said nothing, for the simple reason that there was nothing to say. Hathely Bell caught her in his strong arms and she swayed to reach his lips. In that delicious moment the world was all forgot.

But not for long. There was a sudden rush and a tumble of feet on the stairs, there was a strange voice speaking hurriedly, then the drawing room door opened and Margaret Henson came in. She looked wild and excited and talked incoherently. An obviously-professional man followed her.

"My dear madam," he was saying, "I have done all I can. In the last few days I have not been able to disguise from myself that there was small hope for the patient. The exhaustion, the shock to the system, the congestion, all point to an early collapse."

"Is my sister so much worse, Dr. Walker?" Enid asked, quietly.

"She could not be any worse and be alive," the doctor said. "Unless I am greatly mistaken, the gentleman behind you is Mr. Hatherly Bell. I presume he has been called to meet me? If so, I am sincerely glad, because I shall be pleased to have a second opinion. A bad case of"—here followed a long, technical name—"one of the worst cases I have ever seen."

"You can command me, Enid," Bell said. "If I can."

"No, no!" Enid cried. "What am I saying? Please go up stairs with Martin."

Bell departed, wonderingly. Enid flew to the door and out into the night. She could hear Henson cursing and shouting, could hear the snarling clamor of the dogs. At the foot of the drive she paused and called Steel softly by name. To her intense relief, he came from the shadow.

"I am here," he cried. "Do you want me."

"Yes, Yes!" Enid panted. "Never more were your services needed. My sister is dying; my sister must—die. And Hatherly Bell is with her, and—you understand?"

"Yes," said David. "A vivid flash of understanding had come to him. "Bell shall do as I tell him. Come along."

"Hold him up, dear doggies," Enid murmured. "Hold him up, and I'll love both of you forever."

CHAPTER XV.

A Medical Opinion.

David Steel followed his guide with the feelings of a man who has given himself over to circumstances. There was a savor of nightmare about the whole thing that appealed distinctly to his imagination. The darkness, the strange situation, the vivid streaks of the crimson blind—the crim blind that the crimson blind—the crimson blind that seemed an integral part of the mystery—all served to stimulate him. The tragic note was deepened by the whine and growl of the dogs.

"There is a man over there," David whispered.

"A man who is going to stay there," Enid said, with grim satisfaction. "It is virtually necessary that Mr. Reginald Henson should not be disturbed. The dogs have a foolish weakness for his society. So long as he shows no signs of boredom he is safe."

David smiled, with a vague grasp of the situation. Apparently the cue was to be surprised at nothing that he saw about the House of the Silent Sorrow. The name of Reginald Henson was more or less familiar to him as that of a man who stood high in public estimation. But the bitter contempt of his companion's voice suggested that there was another side to the man's character.

"I hope you are not asking me to do anything wrong?" David murmured.

"I am absolutely certain of it," the girl said. "It is a case of the end justifying the means; and if ever the end justified the means, it does in this case. Besides—"

Enid Henson hesitated. David's quick perception prompted him.

"Pardon me, you never had the pleasure of seeing me before."

"Ah! you would make an excellent parliamentary fencer. I bow to your correction, and admit that I have never seen you before. But your voice reminds me of a voice I heard very recently under remarkable circumstances. It was my good fortune to help a lady in distress a little time back. If she had told me more, I might have aided her still further. As it is, her reticence has landed me into serious trouble."

Enid grasped the speaker's arm, convulsively.

"I am deeply sorry to hear it," she whispered. "Perhaps the lady in question was reticent for your sake. Perhaps she had confided more thoroughly in good men before. And suppose those good men had disappeared?"

"In other words, that they had been murdered. Who by?"

There was a start from one of the hounds hard by, and a deep, angry curse from Henson. Enid pointed solemnly in his direction. No words of hers would have been so thrilling and eloquent. David strode along, without further questions on that head.

"But there is one thing that you must tell me," he said, as they stood together on the porch. "Is the first part of my advice going to be carried out?"

"Yes. That is why you are here now. Stay here one moment, while I get you pencil and paper. There! Now, will you please write what I suggest? Dr. Bell is with my sister. At least, I suppose he is with her, as Dr. Walker desired to have his opinion. My sister is dying—dying, you understand?"

Enid's voice had sunk to a passionate whisper. The hand that she laid on David's shoulder trembled strangely. At that moment, he would have done anything for her. A shaft of light filtered from the hall into the porch, and lit up the paper that the girl thrust upon Steel.

"Now, write," she commanded. "Ask no questions, but write what I ask, and trust me implicitly."

David nodded. After all, he reflected, he could not possibly get himself into a worse mess than he was in already. And he felt that he could trust the girl by his side. Her beauty, her earnestness, and her obvious sincerity touched him.

"Write," Enid whispered. "Say 'See nothing and notice nothing, I implore you. Only agree with everything that Dr. Walker says, and leave the room as quickly as possible?' Now sign your name. We can go into the drawing room and wait until Dr. Bell comes down. You are merely a friend of his. I will see that he has this paper at once."

Enid led the way into the drawing room. She gave no reason for the weird strangeness of the place; it was no time for explanations. As for Steel, he gazed around him in fascinated astonishment. A novelist, ever on the lookout for new scenes and backgrounds, the aspect of the room fascinated him. He saw the dust rising in clouds, he saw the wilted flowers, he noticed the overturned table, obviously untouched and neglected for years, and he wondered. The he heard the babel of discordant voices overhead. What a sad house it was, and how dominant was the note of tragedy.

Meanwhile, with no suspicion of the path he was treading, Bell had gone up stairs. He came at length to the door of the room where the sick girl lay. There was a subdued light inside and the faint suggestion of illness that clings to the chamber of the sufferer. Bell caught a glimpse of a white figure lying motionless in bed. It was years now since he had acted thus in a professional capacity; but the old quietness and caution came back by instinct. As he would have entered Margaret Henson came out and closed the door.

"You are not going in there," she said. "No, no. Everything of mine touch you blight and wither. If the girl is to die, let her die in peace!"

She would have raised her voice high, but a lightning glance from Bell quieted her. It was not exact madness that he had to deal with, and he knew it. The woman required firm, quiet treatment. Dr. Walker stood alongside, anxious and nervous. The man with the quiet practice of the well-to-do doctor, was not used to scenes of this kind.

"You have something to conceal," Bell said, sternly. "Open the door."

"Really, my dear sir," Walker said, fussily. "Really, I fancy that under the circumstances—"

"You do not understand this kind of case," Bell interrupted. "I do."

Walker dropped aside, with a muttered apology. Bell approached the figure in the doorway and whispered a few words rapidly in her ear. The effect was electrical. The figure seemed to wilt and shrivel up; all the power and resistance had gone. She stepped aside moaning and wringing her hands. She babbled of strange things; the old, far-away look came into her eyes again.

Without a word of comment or sign of triumph, Bell entered the sick room. Then he raised his head and sniffed the heavy atmosphere, as an eager hound might have done. A quick, sharp question rose to his lips, only to be instantly suppressed as he noted the vacant glance of his colleague.

The white figure on the bed lay perfectly motionless. It was the figure of a young and exceedingly beautiful girl—a beauty heightened and accentuated by the deadly-white pallor of her features. Still, the face looked resolute, and the exquisitely chiselled lips were firm.

"Albumen!" Bell muttered. "What fiend's game is this? I wonder if that scoundrel—but, no. In that case there would be no object in concealing my presence here. I wonder—"

He paused and touched the white brow with his fingers. At that same moment Enid came into the room. She panted like one who has run fast and far.

"Well," she whispered, "is she better, better or—Hatherly, read this."

The last words were so low that Bell hardly heard them. He shot a swift glance at his colleague before he opened the paper. One look, and he had mastered the contents. Then the swift glance was directed from Walker to the girl standing there looking at Bell with a world of passionate entreaty and longing in her eyes.

"It is your sister who lies there," Bell whispered, meaningly, "and yet you—"

He paused, and Enid nodded. There was evidently a great struggle going on in Bell's mind. He was grappling with something that he only partially understood, but he did know perfectly well that he was being asked to do something absolutely wrong, and that he was going to yield for the sake of the girl he loved.

He rose abruptly from the bedside and crossed over to Walker.

"You are perfectly correct," he said. "At this rate—at this rate the patient cannot possibly last till the morning. It is quite hopeless."

Walker smiled feebly.

"It is a melancholy satisfaction to have my opinion confirmed," he said. "Miss Henson, if you will get Williams to see me as far as the lodge gates—it is so late that—er—"

Williams came at length, and the little doctor departed. Enid fairly cowered before the blazing, searching look that Bell turned upon her. She fell to plucking the bedclothes, nervously.

"What does it mean?" he asked, hoarsely. "Don't you know that if that girl dies it will be murder? It was only for your sake that I didn't speak my mind before that fool who has just gone. He has seen murder done under his eyes for days, and he is ready to give a certificate of the cause of death. And the strange thing is that, in the ordinary way, he would be quite justified in doing so."

"Chris is not going to die; at least, not in that way," Enid whispered, hoarsely.

"Then leave her alone. No more drugs, no more medicine, even. Give nature a chance. Thank Heaven, the girl has a perfect constitution."

"Chris is not going to die," Enid repeated, doggedly; "but the certificate will be given, all the same. O, Hathely, you must trust me—trust me as you have never done before. Look at me, study me. Did you ever know me to do a mean or dishonorable thing?"

They were down in the drawing room again; David waiting, with a strange sense of embarrassment, under Margaret Henson's distant eyes; indeed, it was probable that she had never noticed him at all. All the same, she turned eagerly to Bell.

"Tell me the worst!" she cried. "Tell me all there is to know!"

"Your niece's sufferings are over," Bell said, gravely. "I have no more to tell you."

A profound silence followed, broken presently by angry voices outside. Then Williams looked in at the door and beckoned Enid to him. His face was wreathed in an uneasy grin.

"Mr. Henson has got away," he said. "Blest if I can say how. And the dogs have rolled him about and tore his clothes, and made such a picture of him as you never saw. And a sweet temper he's in!"

"Where is he now?" Enid asked. "There are people here he must not see."

"Well, he came back in through the study window, swearing dreadfully for so respectable a gentleman. And he went right up to his room after ordering whisky and soda-water."

Enid flew back to the drawing room. At any hazard, Reginald Henson must be kept in ignorance of the presence of strangers. A minute later, and the darkness of night had swallowed them up. Wilson fastened the lodge gates behind them, and they turned their faces in the direction of Rottingdean Road.

"A strange night's work," David said, presently.

"Aye, but pregnant with result," Bell answered. There was a stern, exulting ring in his voice. "There is much to do and much danger to be faced, but we are on the right track at last. But why did you send me that note just now?"

David smiled as he lighted a cigarette.

"It is part of the scheme," he said. "Part of my scheme, you understand. But, principally, I sent you the note because Miss Enid asked me to."

(To Be Continued.)

A Pleasure Postponed.

Here is a conversation between a pair of Berkshire sweethearts:

"John," quoth she, "why doesn't 'ee say summat?"

John reflected. "'Cause I ha'n't got nothen' to say," he replied.

Again there was silence, and once more it was the woman who took the initiative.

"John," she inquired, tenderly, "why doesn't 'ee tell ma that thee loves ma?"

"'Couse I've telled 'ee that afoor," answered John, who evidently disapproved of vain repetitions.

But the lady was tenacious of her privileges, and not easily daunted.

"John," she asked, for the third time, "why doesn't 'ee gimma a kiss?"

The tardy wooer pondered long.

"I be gwine to, presently," he said, at length.—Cripple Creek Times.

Joe Jefferson Apprehensive.

Joseph Jefferson is a firmly established favorite of Yale, where he annually delivers an informal address before the undergraduates on the afternoon preceding his evening appearance at the Hyperion theater. Last year Mr. Jefferson was taken by a senior to "Mory's," the orthodox chop house that is one of the landmarks of Yale. The rooms are mellow with age and rich with tradition, and are generally conducive to reminiscences. Mr. Jefferson was discussing the life to come, and was asked by his student host:

"Mr. Jefferson, it is said that we shall have the same character of work in the next world as on earth. Do you expect to be an actor in heaven?"

"Well," replied Mr. Jefferson, "I'll tell you. I am afraid that if I reach the golden gates St. Peter will shake his head and say: 'For heaven's sake, Joe, change your roles!'"—New York Times.

Costliest City in the World.

Only one public official in the United States handles more money than the comptroller of New York city, and that official is the secretary of the treasury. The government of Greater New York costs more every year than the combined expenses of half a dozen states. From the year's beginning to the end the comptroller of the metropolis receives and disburses over $600,000,000. Half of this is paid into the treasury through taxes and other sources of revenue, and half is paid out in the running expenses of the city, a large part of which is expended in salaries and wages of city officers and employes; for there are 40,000 persons on the city's pay roll—persons enough to make a very good-sized city in themselves.—Harry Beardsley, in Leslie's Weekly.

Made a Mistake.

The following is told of an American gentleman who was recently stopping, with his wife, at the Hotel Cecil, in London:

On their first evening there he happened to retire somewhat earlier than his spouse. Arriving at the door of what he imagined was his own room, and finding it locked, he tapped and called, "Honey!"

No answer came, and again he called, more loudly, "Honey!"

Still he got no reply, and, becoming somewhat uneasy, he shouted the endearing term with his full lung power.

This time a reply came, and in a male voice:

"Go away, you blithering idiot! This is a bathroom, not a blooming beehive!"—Philadelphia Times.

Will Be "Papa's Wife."

Justice Henry Bischoff, of the supreme court, was a widower for several years. Recently he announced his forthcoming marriage to Mrs. Collamore, an old friend of his family. His daughter, who is married, asked him how she should in future address her step-mother.

"Should I call her mamma," asked she, "or what?"

"I think," said the justice, "you ought to call her Anna Held."

"Anna Held?" repeated she, inquiringly; "why so?"

"Because she will be 'papa's wife,'" remarked the justice, with a chuckle.—New York Times.

Convicts Write Aphorisms.

The inmates of the Connecticut state prison edit a paper called the Monthly Record, a part of which is devoted to aphorisms. Here are a few specimens:

Talking too much is not one of our faults.

Most men who follow the races never catch up with them.

It is not always the other fellow that needs reforming.

Don't regard our wasness; only our isness, and our neceforthness.

If time is money, we would like to swap our surplus supply for cash.

About the only time some people tell the truth is when they talk in their sleep.

We have no spring poems in this issue. Our circulation ought to double.

"In Vino Veritas."

The very fulsome tribute paid by Secretary of War Root to Senator Platt, at the recent Amen Corner dinner—remarkable when viewed in the light of other public utterances made by Mr. Root concerning Mr. Platt—was drawing to a close, when Lieut. Gov. Woodruff leaned over to Senator Platt and said, with a smile:

"Sweets from the bitter."

Gazing abstractly at Secretary Root, who, in concluding his grand peroration, raised his champagne glass above his head, and called upon everybody "to drink to our noble leader's health," Mr. Platt said, musingly:

"In vino veritas."—New York Times.

She Furnished It.

"Your husband impresses me as being a man of wonderful self-control," said the new neighbor.

"Well, he hadn't much when I married him," rejoined Mrs. Diggsby, "but of late he's been getting all that's coming to him."—Exchange.

Far From It.

"Is he a hard drinker?"

"Indeed, no! It's the easiest thing he does."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

HOME AND FASHIONS.

TIMELY TOPICS OF INTEREST TO OUR FEMININE READERS.

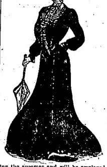
Illustrations of the Latest Costumes Worn by Leaders of Society—Value of an Optimistic Temperament—Charming and Simple Toque.

An Optimistic Temperament.

If a woman wants to retain her youthful appearance she must mingle with other people, read good books and cultivate an optimistic temperament. Nothing so destroys the youthful contour of the face as taking the cares of life too seriously. Housewives of the Martha type who "are troubled about many things" have rigid, set lips that plainly reveal the loss of those qualities that make a woman lovable. When our characters lack cheerfulness and amiability our feathers will unconsciously lose those soft curves which are the outward signs of inward beauty of thought and feeling, says Julia Teresa Butler in the Pittsburg Observer. The best workers, the ones who accomplish the most good, are those whose usefulness is conductive of much happiness to others as well as themselves. The secret of true success lies in making our lives beautiful in that kindness of spirit which makes us creatures of purer mould.

Gown of Dark Blue Zibeline.

For early spring wear the tailor-made ideal still prevails, the gowns on the whole showing a far greater simplicity than has been the case for the last few seasons. Our illustration shows a gown of dark blue zibeline, the Eton showing a very novel effect in the way of stitching. The jacket is cut without a collar and the revers may be either of striped silk or trimmed with straps. The skirt is cut with a yoke below which are wide tucks stitched down with white Corticelli stitching silk.



Quite a new material is the double-faced linen which will undoubtedly arrive at the height of popularity during the summer and will be employed to evolve some very fetching gowns. Very little trimming is required on them as the reverse side of the linen will answer admirably for this purpose. A wide latitude is given the skirts, although the fundamental principle—flaring at the hem—is still adhered to. This effect is gained in different ways, either with curved seams or with a flounce, and is sometimes still further increased with clusters of tucks, or with small inset panels at the hem of contrasting material and color. It stands to reason that heavy goods like homespun, tweed and mixed fabrics in general will make up much more satisfactorily in a plain, gored skirt.

Long Carriage Coat.

Our illustration shows an exceedingly rich and handsome long coat of black taffeta cut with jabot vest effect and trimmed with perforated straps over white satin. It has a large tucked taffeta collar supplemented with another of embroidered linen and a tasteful garniture in white appears on the ruffles around the bottom. All the stitching is done with Corticelli stitching silk in black and in white and the garment is lined throughout with white satin.

Some yokes are made of lace and rather a pretty effect is gained by adding a row of lace insertion an inch or so below the yoke and joining it with a lattice of narrow velvet ribbon. The fancy for black and white effects is evidenced in the number of white lawn, organdy and mull gowns trimmed with black lace, both edging and insertion, and the quantity of black and white effects, running from lawns and mulls through the various mercerized fabrics to foulards and silks.

A Stylish Toque.

A charming toque could be made of a crisp white gauze, shirred and threaded with narrow black chenille. A scarf effect of black chantilly lace, faces the front of the toque, the ends falling well down on the hair; black velvet loops on top, and jet ornaments trimmed with white to imitate daisies. Returning to the droop in the back, rare is the hat this season that does not have it.

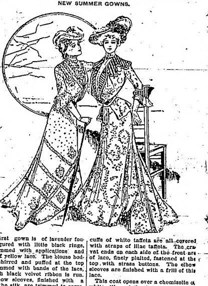
Timely Tips.

According to a housewife who has made the experiment, a thin coating of varnish applied to ordinary straw matting will keep it looking fresh and new and add to its durability.

A vegetable strainer of enamel that may easily be clamped to the side of the sink is one of the genuine conveniences for the housewife now on the market.

To take fruit stains from cotton muslin or any light article take the stained article and dampen it. Then burn a little sulphur, holding it under the damp portion of the cloth and the stain will vanish.

NEW SUMMER GOWNS.



The first gown is of lavender foulard, figured with little black rings, and trimmed with applications and bands of yellow lace. The blouse bodice is shirred and puffed at the top and trimmed with bands of the lace, in which black velvet ribbon is run. The elbow sleeves, finished with a frill of the silk, are trimmed to correspond. The girdle is of black velvet.

The coat of the second gown is of black silk, embroidered in watteau style in delicate colors. The collar is of yellow lace, the revers and cuffs of white taffeta are all covered with straps of lilac taffeta. The cravat ends on each side of the front are of lace, finely plaited, fastened at the top with strass buttons. The elbow sleeves are finished with a frill of this lace.

This coat opens over a chemisette of white silk, and the draped girdle is of the same. The skirt is of cream tulle over cream taffeta, all embroidered with orange blossoms and myrtle, and shepherd's crooks, bow knots and baskets of flowers.—Chic Parisian.

WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

To Cure Woman's Ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds. Mrs. Pauline Judson Writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Soon after my marriage two years ago I found myself in constant pain. The doctor said my womb was turned, and this caused the pain with considerable inflammation. He prescribed for me for

MRS. PAULINE JUDSON,
Secretary of Schermerhorn Golf Club,
Brooklyn, New York.

four months, when my husband became impatient because I grew worse instead of better, and in speaking to the druggist he advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. How I wish I had taken that at first; it would have saved me weeks of suffering. It took three long months to restore me, but it is a happy relief, and we are both most grateful to you. Your Compound has brought joy to our home and health to me."—MRS. PAULINE JUDSON, 47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

It would seem by this statement that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helps.

A Crushing Reply.

Referring to "The Pulpit and Pew" question raised by Dr. Horton's interesting experiment, a North London minister writes:

"I think we ministers rather relish criticism, but we get too little of it."

One recalls in this connection the story of the young minister walking home with one of the elders after the deliverance of his first sermon. After some moments' silence the latter observed:

"You were not long."

"I am very glad to hear you say so," replied the youthful cleric; "I was afraid I was tedious."

"Oh," was the crushing reply, "you were tedious."—Westminster Gazette.

Where Tips Are Expected.

Everyone who has traveled in Europe knows that it is almost necessary to pay one's fare twice over. A traveler pays the fare from place to place, and, in addition, tips the guards and the porters; he pays his bill at the hotel and scatters small change right and left among the waiters and chambermaids. Even when he is visiting at a private house he must fee the servant—at least, it is expected that he will. The traveler does not always know it, but it is nevertheless true, that someone or another nearly always receives a commission on his purchase at the shops—his guide, his courier, or his hotelkeeper. Tips are open; the commissions are secret.—John Gilmer Speed, in Lippincott's.

Couldn't Straighten Up.

Breed, Wis., June 16th.—Charles F. Peterson of this place, Justice of the Peace for Oconto County, tells the following story:

"For years I had an aching pain in my back, which troubled me very much, especially in the morning.

"I was almost unable to straighten my back and the pain was unbearable.

"I did not know what it was, but seeing an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I concluded to try a box.

"I can only say that one box alone has done me more good than anything else ever did.

"I feel as well now as ever I was.

"I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to several others, who are using them with good results."

Mr. Peterson is a highly-respected man and one who would not so positively make a statement unless it was absolutely true.

Why He Didn't Get Her.

Prospective Father-in-Law—Do you ever gamble or smoke, sir?

Prospective Son-in-law—No, sir!

Prospective Father-in-law—Do you ever drink, sir?

Prospective Son-in-law (absent-mindedly)—Well, I don't care if I do, sir.—Smart Set.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Force of Habit.

"Wilbur," asked the patient little lady who taught in the night school, "why is your writing so dreadfully up and down?"

"Don't know," answered Wilbur, "less it's cause I run an elevator days."—

A NEGLECTED COLD AND COUGH leads to pneumonia and consumption. Take Cole's Cough Cure as soon as your cough begins and a few doses will cure you. Your money back if it doesn't help you. 25 and 50 cents at druggists.

A penny saved is a penny earned, and a dollar saved is a dollar you didn't loan.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, (Specialist.) Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Fargo, N. D.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

THE HUMOR OF LIFE.

MERRY JESTS TURNED OUT BY THE OFFICIAL FUNMAKERS.

Was Willing to Divide the Chewing Gum—Knew How the Estate Would Be Divided—Blamed the Elephants for the Quality of Ivory.

Elephant Humbugs.

Customer—I believe you are the man of whom I bought this cane.

Proprietor—Yes, I sold you that cane.

Customer—And you said the handle was of genuine ivory, and I find that it is artificial.

Proprietor—I can't help it, sir. I import my ivory direct from Ceylon; and the only explanation I can give is that the elephants have taken to wearing false tusks.

He Knew the Jones Boys.

"Old Jones is dead, I see. I wonder how his estate will be divided? It seems a pity that it can't be kept together."

"A good deal of it will be scattered widely in small amounts, I fancy, but there will be a pretty good block for each of the residuary legatees."

"Who are they?"

"Oh, the Chorus Girls' Union and the Whisky Trust."

Detected.

Herlock Sholmes took up the subject of the burglary boldly.

"You say," he remarked, "that the thief stole Miss Smartleigh's gloves?"

"Yes," said the lady of the house, "one pair of gloves."

"H'm!" mused the famous detective. "It is as I suspected! He robbed her right and left."

Language.

"It's wonderful," said the meditative man, "how one small word, insignificant in itself, may induce an endless train of thought, speaking volumes in fact."

"Yes," replied the caustic man. "Take the word 'but' for instance, when a woman says: 'Of course it's none of my business, but.'"

Perfectly Correct.

A gentleman was one day visiting a friend's house, and while strolling in the garden came across his little boy, and, speaking to him, said:

"Well, my little man, how old are you?"

The child answered "Five."

"And what are you going to be?"

"Six."

Apprehensions.

"I am very much afraid," said the man with the melancholy manner, "that this prosperity will not last."

"Well," answered the genial person, "my friend, the professor, says that one of these days the entire solar system is going to smash. But we might as well enjoy ourselves while we can."

NO Help at All.

"You will marry a tall, dark gentleman," said the fortune teller, examining the lines in the fair hand.

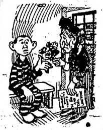
"That doesn't help me," despairingly replied the lovely blonde who had called to consult her. "All three of them are tall and dark."

Choice of Two Evils.

Distracted Wife—"I'm going to the dentist's to have this tooth out. Just mind the baby till I come back."

Husband (with alacrity)—"You mind the baby, Jeanne; I'll go and get a tooth pulled out!"

Just One Moment.



Visitor to Jail—Why are you here?

Prisoner (a pickpocket)—I am here as a result of a moment of abstraction.

Between Friends.

Biggs—My wife asked me for money again last night.

Diggs—Pshaw! That's nothing to the bump I got this morning.

Biggs—How's that?

Diggs—I asked my wife for money and she hadn't any to give me.

Could Sympathize.

Hojack—Here's an account of how a man wrote a love letter and got into trouble by it.

Tomdik—I can sympathize with that fellow. That's how I happened to get married.

A Fair Proposition.

Merchant—If we employ you it must be understood that we are to charge you for all the mistakes you make.

Applicant—That's all right, if you'll reward me for all the mistakes I don't make.

One Reason.

Briggs—Wonder why they call those designs on stockings "clocks?"

Griggs—Because watches are set by them, perhaps.

Sure to Say It.

They stood on the lava-encrusted shore of the little island that had been destroyed by the volcano.

Blazing torrents still ran down the sides of the mountain, while the very air seemed full of fire.

A man, who all along had seemed to be making every effort to control himself, at last turned to a companion and remarked:

"Is it hot enough for you?"

The task of hurling him into the belching crater was, indeed, a glad surcease from the woe of the inhabitants.

The Lease Was Signed.

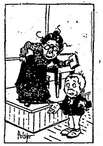
"But the parlor is so awfully small," said the prospective tenant.

"Yes, and the parlors in the adjoining houses are just as small," replied the agent. "That's the beauty of it."

"That's not much comfort for me."

—"Oh, yes! Your see, neither of your neighbors has room for a piano."

Wanted Too Much.



Teacher—Are you chewing gum?

Boy—Yes, ma'am.

Teacher—Give it to me!

Boy—No, I won't. I'll give you half.

She Didn't Want Any.

Mrs. Everby—"But what's all this talk about woman's rights?"

The Professor—"It's an effort to place woman and man on an equality."

Mrs. Everby—"But what's woman done that she should be brought down after that fashion? No, sir; I don't want anything to do with your woman's rights."

Had Him About Right.

Clara—"Half the time he says he doesn't know whether I love him or not, about one-quarter he hopes that I do, and the rest he thinks I may and in addition he is nearly always utterly miserable."

Maud—"Well, I'm glad you're making such a success of the affair."

Sympathy.

Mrs. Call—How do you like your new servant girl?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Well, she's very sympathetic.

Mrs. Call—Is she?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Yes, every time I complain of a headache she declares she has one, too.

The Finish.

Tess—Has your family made any plans for the summer yet?

Jess—Well, ma says we'll take a cottage at Newport for July and August.

Tess—How about September?

Jess—Pa says we'll have to take what we can get then—at the alms house.

Certain Advantages.

Robbie—Ain't yer vaccination healed up yet?

James—Naw.

Robbie—Gee! Don't it make yer feel bad?

James—Naw. The doctor told mom I mustn't take a bath till it was all healed up.

Time for a New Job.

Mickey—Wot made yer quit yer job, Jimmie?

Jimmie—Cos de boss had a record of all me relations wot died last summer, an' he wouldn't let me use any of 'em over again. If I don't git a new job I can't see no ball games.—Judge.

A Cheerful Giver.

"And aren't you going to give your penny for the poor heathen?" asked the Sunday school teacher, reprovingly.

"Oh, I s'pose," replied little Bobbie, as he held it out reluctantly, "if you think they need it worse'n I do."

Not a Language for Boasters.

Somebody has discovered that Julius Caesar didn't talk much about his campaigns.

But then, perhaps, Julo was a little ashamed of the imperfections of his Latin.

What He Was Looking For.

Agent—Here, sir, is a book that should be in every family. It contains a receipt for everything, sir—everything.

Cholly—Give me three copies. If it has a receipt for my tailor's bill I'll take five.

Not His Fault.

"How did your weather prediction turn out?"

"The prediction was all right," answered the prophet, a little sternly, "but somehow or other the weather went wrong again."

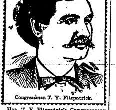
The Probabilities.

"I hear you're going to file a claim against the city."

"Yes; and after I've filed it I suppose the jury will chop it and saw it and shave it down to nothing."

CONGRESSMAN FITZPATRICK.

Says Pe-ru-na Is a Splendid Catarrhal Tonic.



Congressman T. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Hon. T. Y. Fitzpatrick, Congressman from Kentucky, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"At the solicitation of a friend I used your Peruna and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with catarrh or who needs a good tonic."—T. Y. FITZPATRICK.

A Good Tonic.

Pe-ru-na is a natural and efficient nerve tonic. It strengthens and restores the activity of every nerve in the body.

Through the use of Pe-ru-na the weakened or overworked nerves resume their natural strength and the blood vessels begin at once to regulate the flow of blood according to nature's laws. Congestions immediately disappear.

Catarrh Cured.

All phases of catarrh, acute or chronic, are promptly and permanently cured. It is through its operation upon the nervous system that Pe-ru-na has attained such a world-wide reputation as a sure and reliable remedy for all phases of catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice free.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Summer Resort Note.

Robinson Crusoe was filled with unmixed emotion on discovering the footprints.

"At any rate," he exclaimed, "I will not be the only man at the summer resort."

Forthwith he named the man Friday, as the footprints showed that he had not sat.—New York Times.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Olaus Dahl, Nash, N. D., churn; Erick Felt, Bemidji, Minn., graphophone; James King, Rochester, Minn., water wheel; Henry Lyddon, Brainerd, Minn., lubricator; John T. Smith, Heron Lake, Minn., machine for treating flax or hemp straw; William Stephenson, St. Louis Park, Minn., seeder; Thomas J. Waddell, Philbrook, Mont., fertilizer distributor.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

The Bringer of Babies.

"That great matters are not always the most important is evidenced," remarked the stork, "by the fact that my fame and reputation are due solely to my strict attention to very little things."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children

Successfully used by Mother Gray, nurse in the Children's Home in New York. Cures Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. Over 30,000 testimonials. At all druggists, 25c. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Comforts of Home.

Mrs. Bright—I don't understand, Henry, about this wireless telegraphy. How would I know when I was going to get a message; and how would I be able to know what it was, if I did get it; and how would I know anything about it?

Henry (looking at her over his paper)—Good Lord!—Smart Set.

DON'T SUFFER WITH CATARRH
Use Cole's Carbolisalve. The old reliable remedy. Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. All good druggists at 25c and 50c.

The Undisputed Points.

Attorney for the Defense—You are a blackguard and a bluff, sir!

Attorney for the Prosecution—And you, sir, are a shyster and a rogue!

The Court—Come, come, gentlemen. Let us get down to the disputed points of this case.—Smart Set.

Henry A. Salzer, the Wisconsin seedsman, gives the last thousand dollars to wipe out the debt of the La Crosse Y. M. C. A.

Ignorance.

De Style—Have you ever heard of ping-pong?

Gunbusta (innocently)—Oh, yes; I frequently take my laundry to him.—Smart Set.

$20 A WEEK AND EXPENSES
to men with rig to introduce our Poultry goods. Send stp. Javelle Mfg. Co., Dept. D, Parsons, Kan.

Force of Habit.

Mistress—Now, Bridget, how often have I cautioned you against breaking the ninth commandment?

Bridget—Indade, mum, an' I guess it must a' been the cat done it.—Smart Set.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Apprehension is rarely absent from fear.

To Preserve, Purify, and Beautify the Skin, Hands, and Hair Nothing Equals

Cuticura SOAP

MILLIONS of WOMEN Use CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

COMPLETE TREATMENT FOR EVERY HUMOUR, $1.

Cuticura THE SET $1. Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (25c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid CUTICURA RESOLVENT, as well as for all other blood purifiers and humour cures. Each pill is equivalent to one teaspoonful of liquid RESOLVENT. Put up in screw-cap pocket vials, containing 60 doses, price 25c.

You can't believe anything a woman says who compliments another on her beauty.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

If kissing were a disease, all young doctors would lean towards homeopathy.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

Woman's mouth either exposes her own character or exposes another woman's.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of the throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

The average young man manages to squeeze a lot of enjoyment out of a waltz.

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL
NEURALGIA
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL

YOU CAN DO IT TOO

Over 2,000,000 people are now buying goods from us at wholesale prices—saving 15 to 40 per cent on everything they use. You can do it too.

Why not ask us to send you our 1,000-page catalogue?—it tells the story. Send 15 cents for it today.

Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

A Disappointment.

Shopper—I want a shoe that is both comfortable and stylish.

Salesman—Very sorry, madam, but the age of miracles is past.—Judge.

Cole's Carbolisalve
The Great Skin Remedy
will stop the pain of burns and scalds at once and there will be no scar. Don't wait until someone gets burned but Keep a box handy. 25 and 50 cents by all druggists.

Corticelli SPOOL SILK
Corticelli Silk sews smoothly; it is always even in size and always full length and full strength. As Corticelli costs you NO MORE than poor silk, why don't you buy it? Ask your dealer for "Corticelli." Made by CORTICELLI SILK MILLS, FLORENCE, MASS.

Afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

N D N U —NO 25— 1902

Baco-Curo DON'T STOP TOBACCO
Suddenly. It injures the nervous system to do so. Use BACO-CURO and it will tell you when to stop as it takes away the desire for tobacco. You have no right to ruin your health, spoil your digestion and poison your breath by using the filthy weed. A guarantee in each box. Price $1.00 per box, or three boxes for $2.50, with guarantee to cure or money refunded. At all good Druggists or direct from us. Write for free booklet.
EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., - La Crosse, Wis.

ESTABLISHED 1876.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

A. B. Holston, of Crookston, announces that he is a candidate for the Populist nomination for congressman in this district.

The fight for the removal of the county seat from Ada to Twin Valley resulted in a victory for the former. Twin Valley may some day become the county seat of a new county, but it can never win in Norman county.

John Havel gives land seekers who are thinking of investing in Eastern Marshall county this pointer;

Strangers who come to this part of the country are sometimes unfavorably impressed with the flatness of the country. This is not by any means an unfavorable sign. On the contrary, our crops are never in danger of being washed away, as is frequently the case where the land is rolling. Although flat the country slopes toward the rivers and lakes, thus [illegible] good drainage to be [illegible] accomplished.

Hon. Ezra G. Valentine, candidate for congress in the Ninth district, is making a most effectual canvass and is one of the quartet that is leaving nothing undone toward securing the nomination. Mr. Valentine is an indefatigable worker and is frequently in his office at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning attending to his law practice and arranging duties for his assistants to follow during his absence. A man of his hustling ability will be a hard proposition for his opponents to down.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Town Tales.

Have you heard Petran?

Gospel meetings at the tent every night. Come.

A large number of land seekers arrived in the city yesterday.

J. D. Abbott, was down from Rollis the first of the week.

Dr. Barton, of St. Hilaire, was in the city Tuesday.

Knute Jorstad was down to Crookston over Sunday.

Leonard Peterson was down to Crookston last Friday.

Frank Lyons came down from the Red Lake last week.

Martin Mossifln was down to Crookston over Sunday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGinn Sunday.

Joe Smith was up from Crookston the first of the week.

F. B. Newton, of Red Lake Falls was in the city last week.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lee Monday.

James Meehan returned Monday from a trip to St. Paul.

Postmaster Richardson was down to Crookston last week.

Attorneys Germo and McIntyre of Red Lake Falls, are in the city.

Did you ever hear the Gospel made as plain as Petran makes it?

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

TEA
4
3
2
1
8
6
4
2

A LARGE DOSE

of medicine is necessary if the drugs of which it is composed are impure or inefficient through age or any other cause. The DRUGS AND MEDICINES used in our prescription department are pure and perfectly fresh. Only the best are purchased, and being constantly renewed they have no chance to deteriorate. The greatest care is taken in filling PRESCRIPTIONS, and our system of checking precludes the possibility of error.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

A car load of sewer pipe for the city arrived here the first of the week.

M. Botham returned to this city Monday from a trip to the Twin Cities.

Herman Koefod returned to this city last week from a trip to Minneapolis.

Mrs. Davis, of the Keystone farm, was in the city the first of the week.

George Williams left the first of the week for Wadena to visit his brother.

Judge Knight, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week.

Tom Shevlin is said to be contemplating building a saw mill at Bemidiji.

Hear Petran the singing evangelist and then bring your neighbor to hear him.

Egley & Dixon have opened up a bicycle repair shop in the old library building.

Mrs. James Martin and son were passengers for Crookston Monday evening.

Nels K. Nelson, of Liner, was in the city last week enroute to Warren on business.

C. F. and H. W. Whitcomb came down from Rollis Tuesday and went to St. Paul.

A. C. Baker, one of the stockholders in the First National bank arrived in the city yesterday from Iowa.

Smiley & Perkins, land locators, are busy these days taking prospective settlers over the reservation.

Mrs. Hans Nelson and daughter Miss Julia, were down to St. Hilaire last Thursday visiting friends.

Morrison Bros. the first of the week assumed control of the Hotel Juneau. They promise to run a first class hotel.

The Presbyterian society will hold services in the tent Sunday at 8 o'clock. There will be no morning services.

Bert Young returned to this city the first of the week from North Dakota where he had disposed of a load of horses.

K. M. Hansen returned to this city yesterday from attending the firemen's state convention and visiting his parents in Iowa.

Omund Ege the first the week purchased six lots of Wiley Tindolph on the East Side on which he will build a home.

W. S. Elliott, well known in this city, was last week elected to the position of grand warden of the I. O. O. F. lodge of this state.

Roseau county is now to have a county seat fight. The citizens of Badger will endeavor to secure the court house from Roseau.

Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, a Norwegian physician, arrived in the city last week from St. Paul, and has formed a partnership with Dr. Tupper.

Ed Coonen, who has been employed as a cigar maker here for the past year, left today for Brainerd, where he will remain in the future.

Miss Lizzie Patanick arrived in the city the first of the week from Crookston and proceeded to Breese postoffice to witness the marriage of her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dobner, of Lake City, arrived in the city yesterday, and will visit with their sons, C. L. and H. G. Dobner for several weeks.

Bids for the building of the opera house block were opened last Saturday afternoon. The lowest bid was that of McCrum & Bourque, being $8,225.

Arguments in the Moose Dung section case will be made before the state supreme court today. It is expected that a decision will be handed down in a short time.

James Bulman and George Jarman went up to the Red Lake last week. The former went to look after lumber operations for Bulman Bros., and the latter for pleasure.

One of the largest mud turtles ever seen in this section was captured by men employed on the boom south of the bridge Tuesday. It was two feet long and about a foot wide.

W. B. Fuller returned to this city Tuesday from attending a meeting of Grand lodge of Odd Fellows at St. Paul and visiting relatives in the southern part of the state.

A. Stenseth was in the country north of here last week. He purchased a quarter section in the town of Cedar on which he expects to locate a townsite when the road goes north.

The members of the Modern Woodmen lodge will give a dance at Odd Fellows hall next Thursday evening, June 26. First class music will be provided and all insured a good time.

Rev. Petran arrived in the city yesterday and will remain here for two weeks holding union revival meetings. The meetings will be held in the tent when weather permits, otherwise in the Methodist church.

Two hundred and fifty-six is the number of pupils enrolled at St. Hilaire last year, while the number of pupils which all school houses in the district will accommodate is 200. St. Hilaire is due for a new school house.

It is reported that an aggregation of ball players from this city were down to Red Lake Falls last Friday and that a game of ball was played with the club in that city. We have been unable to find any one who went down.

A firm has been found that will buy the Red Lake county ditch bonds regardless of the fact that the supreme court has not passed upon the legality of the act under which they were issued. The bonds will probably be sold next month and the ditches built.

Mr. and Mrs S. F. Staples, W. A. Wright and family and Walter and Elsie Robbecke went up the Red Lake river last Saturday in a covered flat boat. They were towed up to the outlet by the steamer Ethel and, from there will float down the river, hunting and fishing on the way.

A drive was brought into Crookston on Wednesday and the men in charge say the logs were brought down in less time than ever before. They were brought from about 20 miles beyond Fosston on the Clearwater, and the distance covered is some thing over 500 miles. The trip occupied 59 days. It is estimated that there is 30 million feet of lumber in the drive. These figures show about how much the river twists around. The point from where they started is 60 miles from Crookston in a direct line, but by river it is a little over 500 miles.

In every home

There's need for Hamm's Wholesome Beer.

A single glass is deliciously refreshing.

The nutritive part of malt and the tonic quality of hops are combined by the old German method of brewing at the Hamm Brewery; the result is the absolutely pure beverage.

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO. St. Paul, Minn.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. H. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 25, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 23007, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Hjormund Northagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Hetnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 12 july 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 7, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. H. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 25th, 1902, viz: TROND P. HAMRE, H. E. 2860, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 6, 7 and 8, Sec. 34, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil Knudson, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Samuel Hessley, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
John Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.
Soren Bergeland, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

may 15 june 19

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 9, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. H. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on June 21, 1902, viz: INGVARD IVERSON, H. E. 20463, for the SW¼, Sec. 18, Tp. 155 N., R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Henry Carlson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Ole Moe, of Strandquist, Minn.
Bjorn Thoreson, of Strandquist, Minn.
Carl Syverson, of Strandquist, Minn.

may 15 j 19 A. F. GEORGE, Receiver.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 17, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 1st, 1902, viz: JOHN PHILIPP, H. E. 4000, Chippewa Series, for the W½ SE¼ and E½ SW¼, Sec. 30 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Louis Hamre, of Germantown, Minn.
Thomas Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Hans Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Almon Johnson, of Germantown, Minn.

may 22 j 26 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. H. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17106, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 5 july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. H. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 22nd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. NELSON, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 28 Tp. 153 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder Rud, of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaar, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

june 5 july 10 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be make before D. H. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17128, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON, Register.

june 5 6t july 10

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
11j17 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

State of Minnesota, county of Polk.—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue and in pursuance of an order of license made in said matter by the Probate Court of the county of Polk, on the 10th day of March, 1902, the undersigned, will on the 12th day of July, 1902, at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the postoffice in the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, offer for sale and sell at public auction, that tract or parcel of land situate and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, described as follows to-wit: the south west quarter of section number twenty-eight, township number one hundred fifty north of range number forty-two west of the fifth principal Meridian.

The terms of sale will be cash to be paid at the time of sale. Dated June 16, 1902.

DAVID A. CHISHOLM,
Administrator of Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Administrator,
Crookston, Minnesota. june 19 july 3.

District Court, Red Lake County. } ss. State of Minnesota, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Clara Bell King, Plaintiff, against Sivert King, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the Above Named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District of the state of Minnesota, at the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county of Red Lake, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the city of Crookston, in the county of Polk, and state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

DEFOREST BUCKLEY,
Plaintiff's Attorney,
may 22 june 26 Crookston, Minnesota.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

C. L. Dobner, President; H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - -	$10,000
Surplus and contingent fund,	8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis. & Pacific Ry. Co.'s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Hotel Ogahmah.

C. A. ROBBECKE, Prop.

STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS TO HUNTING AND PLEASURE PARTIES. NEWLY ENLARGED AND REFITTED THROUGHOUT. BUS LINE IN CONNECTION.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patent taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.,
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1008, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 24, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 22, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 25, Tp. 155 N. R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Ebbelinden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Saave Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

june 12 6t july 17 A. F. GEORGE, Receiver.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES

REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.

Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Subscribe for THE NEWS.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

v.95

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1902. NUMBER 25

MAY PASS YET.

There Is Some Hopes for Red Lake Bill.

The Red Lake bill came up in the house last week, but was withdrawn on account of the opposition to the bill by Congressman Cannon. The bill carries an appropriation of $250,000 and this is the reason that Mr. Cannon objects to it. A letter received from F. H. Kratka stated that the bill did not stand any show of passing at this session, but later a telegram was received that stated the entire Minnesota delegation was working hard for its passage and that there was some hopes of it being passed.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always tobe found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store.

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

THE BOURBONS.

Held a County Convention at Red Lake Falls.

The Democrats of Red Lake county—or rather of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls, these being the only places sending delegates—held a convention at Red Lake last Saturday. K. M. Hansen and W. A. McIntyre were elected temporary chairman and secretary respectively The convention was held for the purpose of electing delegates to the state convention and the following were elected: C. A. Robbecke, chairman, John Morgan, W. J. Splane, Matt Barzen, J. F. Knight, N. W. Tarrant, John E. King, K. M. Hanson, H. W. Lee, E. M. Hoff, W. J. Kelly, J. H. Paradis and W. P. O'Brien.

John Morgan was elected as a member of the state central committee, and he will be the recognized leader of the Democrats in this county.

The permanent county committee will consist of John E. King, chairman, S. F. Staples, secretary J. T. Knight, W. J. Splane and John Morgan.

Members of the Populist party were present and asked that a committee be appointed to confer with leaders of their party for the purpose of having fusion on county officers. The following were appointed: James Meehan Frank Cernousik, J. E. King, W. A. McIntyre, Peter Paradise, K. M. Hanson, S. F. Staples and Fred Borchers.

Grindeland Here.

Andrew Grindeland, of Warren, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman, was in the city last week. Mr. Grindeland is an honest and able man, and if he secured the nomination and election would make a valuable member of congress. Mr. Grindeland has many friends here, however, who will not vote for his nomination, simply because they do not believe he stands any show. The fight is between Steenerson and Valentine and of the two a large majority of the voters of Thief River Falls will vote for Valentine.

Johnson - Sando.

At the home of the bride's parents in Numedal on Sunday, Judge N. W. Tarrant of this city officiating, occurred the marriage of S. T. Johnson and Mrs. Sando. Both are well known in this city and they are receiving the congratulations of friends.

THE CREAMERY.

It Starts Up on Next Monday.

The Thief River Falls creamery starts up next Monday. Skimming stations have been established at Tweet, Sandridge and near Strip, and at these places cream will be purchased on Saturday. A large number of farmers have signified their intention of selling cream to this institution.

Called a Bluff.

Attorney Holston sometime ago made the statement that he would bet $50 that Halvor Steenerson would secure the Republican nomination for congressman. As soon as this news was received at Breckenridge, the home of Ezra G. Valentine, Mr. Holston was promptly notified that the bet was called and that if there were any more people in Crookston that wanted to bet on Steenerson they would be accommodated, and even suggested that odds would be given.

A Worker.

Ezra G. Valentine has commenced his canvass of the district by team trip and will remain in the field until the primaries are held. His work will be largely among the farmers and there he is strong through his drainage work.

However much others may claim, the fact remains that Mr. Valentine is the father of the system that has been built up by the state in the Red River Valley.

He has given freely of his time and traversed the routes of the ditches his feet clad in rubber boots, long before he became a congressional candidate.—Crookston Journal.

Take Your Choice.

As the primary campaign advances it becomes more evident that there are only two Republican candidates for congress that are in the race—Valentine and Steenerson. The Courier ventures the prediction that these men will poll two-thirds of the Republican votes at the primaries.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

Local Club Won.

The two second nines of Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls played a game of base ball in this city Sunday. The local club won by a score of 9 to 8. It was a very well played game of ball and a large crowd was in attendence.

Subscribe for the NEWS.

THE REPUBLICANS

Held Their County Convention on Tuesday.

The Republicans of Red Lake county met in convention at the court house in Red Lake Falls on Tuesday and elected a county committee and eight delegates to the state convention to be held in St. Paul on July 1.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Watson, who was elected temporary chairman. Committees on resolutions and credentials were appointed and an adjournment was taken. When the convention was agian called to order the committee on resolutions reported as follows:

Resolved, that the Republicans of Red Lake county, in convention assembled, heartily endorse the wise and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt whose courage and devotion to duty has led him to adhere closely to the wise policies inaugurated by the late lamented McKinley, and whose strenous insistance upon the faithful execution of the laws has met with such universal approval by the whole American people.

Resolved further, that in Governor VanSant we recognize a faithful public servant, in whom the people of the state have learned to repose their utmost trust and confidence.

Resolved further, that we can congratulate the Republican party upon the splendid evidences of unity and harmony within their ranks and upon its brilliant prospects of success all along the line.

The following delegates were elected to attend the state convention: N. M. Watson, Thos. Germo, John W. Eastman, C. L. Dobner, D. N. Winton, C. G. Rapp, Ole J. Johnson, J. P. Mathews.

Alternates—L. G. Simons, S. W. Severtson, Wiley Tindolph, Lars Backe, Dan Patterson, K. J. Weeks, P. B. Grass and Paul Osthy.

The county committee has selected one from each commissioner district and two at large as follows:

First—Chas. Johnson.
Second—Thos. Germo.
Third—Ole J. Johnson.
Fourth—John W. Eastman.
Fifth—J. L. Cossette.
At large—C. L. Dobner and N. M. Watson.

The committee organized by electing C. L. Dobner chairman and Thos. Germo secretary.

A mass convention was called to meet at Red Lake Falls on Monday, July 7, at 10 o'clock p. m. to consider candidates for a full county ticket to be placed in the field by the Republicans this year.

Among those from this section attending the convention as delegates were: Lars Backe, Daniel Shaw, Wiley Tindolph, C. L. Dobner, D. B. Bakke, Chris Porter, R. J. McDonald, S. S. Stephens, Helmer Albue and John W. Eastman.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

Central Mercantile Company.

A good clean up-to-date stock of general merchandise. Qualities and prices to suit all. Best assortment in all our branches. Call and let us show you some bargains.

Phone No. 19, The Brick Store.

THE FOURTH

A Good Program for the Day.

The various committees having charge of the Fourth of July celebration to be held in Thief River Falls this year have their work nearly completed and they guarantee it will be the best celebration ever had in this city. The amount to be given as prizes for various events are surely larger. A feature of the day will be a base ball game between Main avenue against the rest of the city.

The Markets.

Wheat	64c
Oats	50c
Flax	$1.20
Rye	60c
Butter	15c
Eggs	12½c
Potatoes	75c

From The "Clean City."

Mr. Frank H. Clark of Detroit, Mich., keeper of records and seal of Myrtle Lodge No. 4, K. of P., says: "The printing of the Schubert's is the finest I know of any concert company possessing and is in keeping with the elegant entertainment given us last evening."

You can hear the same company that delighted Detroit by going to the I. O. O. F. Hall on July 15.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

PROPERLY AGED HAMM'S BEER

is aged in the largest and most thoroughly modern storage plant in the Northwest.

The air is pure and sweet and the temperature never varies. Their capacity is in excess of actual needs, so that the oldest beer on the market is

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO., St. Paul.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
— — Proprietors of — —
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank, 'Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgeon.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank.

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW.
Office in First National Bank Building

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m.

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Land, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 80.
Office first door north of News building.

C. Chelin has opened up a boarding house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans, 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

DEFECTIVE PAGE

V. 97/2

SWEPT BY FLAMES

FOREST FIRES NEAR TACOMA LICK UP EVERTHING IN THEIR PATH.

MANY LIVES PROBABLY LOST

TOWN OF BUCKLEY HAS A CLOSE CALL FROM COMPLETE DESTRUCTION.

HUNDREDS FLEE FOR THEIR LIVES

CONSIDERABLE PROPERTY DESTROYED AND MORE THREATENED.

Tacoma, Wash., June 22.—The fire department of this city has sent men, engine and hose on a special train to Buckley, in this county, which is threatened with complete destruction by forest fires raging between that town and Enumclaw, King county. A great cloud of smoke hangs over Tacoma, thirty-three miles from Buckley. The Mountain mill, two miles east of Buckley, burned yesterday. Undoubtedly many lives of mountain campers and loggers have been lost.

Enumclaw is also threatened with destruction. The whole population is fighting the flames, but the water works has been burned and the work of protecting the town is difficult. The wind is blowing a gale and much farm property has been already destroyed. The damage to timber and buildings in the town is over $100,000.

About forty women and children are shut off by fire from reaching the town and are suffering greatly from heat and smoke. Twenty buildings and a large mill are burning. Everybody is ready to move and wagons are being loaded.

City Out of Danger.

A special to the Ledger from Buckley says: Fire started at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at Mountain Mill, two miles from town, and after destroying all the mill property and the cars belonging to the Northern Pacific which were standing on the siding, spread to the woods. The residence of J. Van Rassler, on the outskirts of Buckley, was destroyed. The Tacoma fire department sent a supply of hose, and as the wind abated the flames were soon stopped and at present the city is out of danger. There are two fires raging through the heavy timber on the mountainside. Many farm houses are supposed to have been destroyed. The Page Lumber company's camp at Eagle Gorge was destroyed. Every camp in the Green River district is reported to be either with destruction. The Kangley shingle mill, located one mile from Kangley, is destroyed. Fire is raging in the vicinity of Palmer. In the vicinity of Barneston the flames are steadily eating their way through a heavy growth of timber. The White River lumber mills, three miles from Enumclaw, and all their property has been destroyed. The employes from Page's camp at Eagle Gorge have arrived here and tell a thrilling story of escape. Fire struck camp at noon yesterday, descending upon it in a roaring sheet of flames. A narrow path to safety remained, and men, women and children to the number of sixty hurried through it. Three men made their escape by wading through the river and up the line. It is reported that seven men from Smith's camp on Cedar river, which was burned, are missing, but the report cannot be verified.

Destroyed or Threatened

PROMINENT SURGEON SHOT.

His Wife Informs Police and Is Placed Under Surveilance.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 22.—Dr. Jacob F. Meyer, one of the best known surgeons in this city, was shot through the heart last night and instantly killed. His wife, who was the first person to inform the police of the shooting of her husband, is at the East side police station in a highly hysterical condition. No charge has been preferred against Mrs. Meyer and the police say she is being kept under surveilance because of her nervous condition. Mrs. Meyer rushed into the police station last night and informed the desk sergeant that her husband had been shot. She carried a small handbag and said the revolver with which her husband was shot was in it. Mrs. Meyer has made several disconnected statements about the shooting, referring to a scuffle between herself and her husband.

THIRD TRIAL.

Jessie Morrison Again Before a Jury on Charge of Murder.

Eldorado, Kan., June 22.—A jury to try Jessie Morrison for a third time for the murder in June, 1900, of Mrs. Olin Castle, has just been completed after a week's effort and the taking of testimony has begun. Miss Morrison is charged with having killed Mrs. Castle by slashing her throat with a razor. The first jury disagreed, and the second found her guilty, and assigned her punishment at ten years' imprisonment. This verdict was reversed on a technicality.

Tourist Steamer for Leech Lake.

Walker, Minn., June 22. — Croff & Hallock have just launched their new steamer, which they have christened The White City. This passenger boat will make regular trips from Walker to the upper Leech lake during the tourist season.

Can't Visit Duluth.

Washington, June 22. — Representative Morris called at the White House yesterday to invite the president to visit Duluth on his Northwestern trip. From present indications the president said he would be unable to visit Duluth.

Crozier's Nomination Confirmed.

Washington, June 22.—The senate in executive session yesterday confirmed the nomination of Gen. Crozier to be chief of ordnance. The vote was 44 to 12.

CONGRESS.

House Continues Debate on the Philippine Bill.

Washington, June 21.—Debate on the Philippine civil government bill continued yesterday in the house from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., and at a session held last night. The speakers were given close attention, each side enthusiastically applauding its respective orators. Mr. Jones of Virginia, the ranking minority member of the insular affairs committee, concluded his speech begun Thursday. The other speakers were Messrs. Hamilton of Michigan and Kahn of California for the bill, and Mr. Patterson of Tennessee, against it. Mr. Kahn's speech was largely an interesting personal narrative of his experiences in the Philippines last summer. The isthmian canal bill was sent to conference after the senate amendment had been non-concurred in.

In the Senate.

No business of importance was transacted by the senate yesterday in open session except to agree to a conference report finally disposing of the military academy appropriation bill. Soon after the disposition of the routine business the senate went into executive session and at 3:10 p. m., adjourned until Monday.

SENATORS IN CONFERENCE.

Republicans Again Discuss Cuban Reciprocity Without Effect.

Washington, June 22. —The Republican senators held another conference yesterday on the question of Cuban reciprocity, and after three hours' discussion adjourned to the call of Chairman Allison without action. Almost all the Republican senators who are in the city were present. There were eight or nine speeches made in support of reciprocity, and only two in opposition to that policy. This was in accord with a previous understanding that the beet sugar senators had monopolized the attention of the conference on Wednesday night, their opponents yesterday should have the greater share of the time. The speeches in support of the reciprocity bill were made by Senators Foraker, Beveridge, Lodge, Hale, Warren, Aldrich, McComas and Hanna, Senator Platt of Connecticut adding a few words to what he had said at the Wednesday evening meeting. The two speeches in opposition to the proposed legislation were made by Senators Burton and Burrows. The speeches for reciprocity were all along the same general line and without exception were pleas for legislation and for party harmony.

WANTS TO PRINT THE RECORDS.

Italian Ambassador Does Not Like Newspaper Criticism.

Washington, June 22. — Sig. Mayer des Planiches, the Italian ambassador, was again at the state and navy departments yesterday to consult the officials in regard to the publication of the findings of the court of inquiry which investigated the affair in which officers from the cruiser Chicago were involved at Venice. None of the principals in the conference cared to make any statement as to the nature of them. Secretary Moody expressed his earnest regret to the ambassador that the findings had been made public, and assured him that the officials in Washington were in no way responsible for and did not approve of it. The ambassador inclines to the view that both governments should make public the records of proceedings in the case. Secretary Moody, however, already has expressed his desire not to make the American court's record public, and here the matter hangs in the balance.

CROWDS THE PRESIDENT.

Repairs in the White House Leave Him Cramped for Space.

Washington, June 22.—The work of demolishing the interior of the White House has progressed so rapidly that the president finds himself cramped for space, rendering it difficult to transact the business of his office. Owing to this condition of affairs he yesterday determined that hereafter he would be unable to receive any callers except senators and members of congress, government officials and those having only the most urgent business.

PURSE LOST IN FIRE.

Contained $8,700 and Belonged to an Iowa Milliner.

Manson, Iowa, June 22.—The office of the Manson Democrat and the Dalton Press was totally destroyed by fire, the loss being $3,000. The fire started in the Sullivan & Love building. In this was Mrs. Millie Evanston and her stock of millinery, which was totally destroyed, as well as a purse containing $8,700. Mrs. Evanston's stock was valued at $2,000, with $900 insurance. Both the newspapers will continue publication.

FAILS TO LOOP THE LOOP.

Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Do the Trick at Dubuque.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 22.—Joe Mack, known as Diavolo, attempted the loop-the-loop trick at the Elks' carnival yesterday afternoon and failed. He fell to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. He was taken to the hospital unconscious, but is recovering, and says he will again try the feat.

Harvest Hands Are Needed.

Kansas City, June 22.—Less than 200 men went from Kansas City to the wheat fields yesterday, although 3,000 could have found work. Some farmers are offering as high as $3 a day it is said.

Spain's Recognition of Cuba.

Havana, June 22.—The Spanish consul general here has received a cable dispatch from Madrid, instructing him to recognize the republic of Cuba.

Took Too Much Morphine.

Kansas City, June 22. — Charles D. Warner, son of Maj. William Warner, United States district attorney and past grand commander of the G. A. R., was found dead in a rooming house from an overdose of morphine.

Policeman Is Killed.

Elk Park, N. C., June 22.—In a street fight here yesterday between Policeman James Ellis and William Winters, a mountaineer, Ellis was shot and instantly killed and Winters perhaps fatally wounded.

KILLED AT WEDDING.

Brutal Assault Upon two Men, One of Whom Is Dead.

Waseca, Minn., June 21. — Philip Bishman, a well known character about town, and formerly a prosperous farmer and thresherman, was killed at an early hour yesterday morning at a wedding in the old village of Wilton, about five miles south of here. Bishman went out to the wedding early in the evening to take out some beer, and Mike Mulcahey went along for the ride, expecting to return at once. Instead, they stayed, and he, too, was severely pounded and barely escaped with life. He is covered with welts and gashes inflicted with a club. He finally got away and ran, and only escaped by being able to get through a wire fence quicker than his pursuers. He ran across sloughs and fields for nearly two miles, being pursued a long distance, and finally fell fainting from loss of blood on the porch of a farm house, where he was found and brought to town. He is in a serious condition. Bishman's head was pounded into a jelly with clubs and rocks. He was killed in his buggy and afterward dragged into the barn. It is hard to get at the facts, but Fred Kugath and Ernest Baer are in jail, charged with murder. Other arrests will undoubtedly follow. The coroner and county attorney are now holding an inquest.

DISCHARGE OF JURY.

Judge Harrison Compelled to Drop Bribery Case Against Norbeck.

Minneapolis, June 21.—Jurors in the Norbeck bribery case were discharged yesterday. It was the state's expectation to proceed yesterday, but after a conference with Judge Harrison, it was agreed that the best course would be to drop the case where it is. This indictment, or any of the others against Norbeck, can be moved at any time he can be brought into court. The detective is now a fugitive from justice and the admission of guilt implied by his flight has as much of a moral effect upon the forces of corruption as a conviction would have been. Judge Harrison expressed great regret that he had not the power to order the trial to go on so that the case could be submitted to the jury. It was with evident reluctance that he discharged the twelve men selected to try the case, but he had no other alternative.

TANKE TRIAL NEAR END.

Defendant Corroborates Evidence Given in His Behalf.

Henderson, Minn., June 21. — The Tanke trial will perhaps come to a close by Saturday. Tanke, the accused man, was on the stand until after court convened yesterday afternoon. The cross-examination by Prosecuting Attorney Davis was severe, but the prisoner remained cool throughout. He corroborated all the evidence furnished by the witnesses in his behalf, and denied every statement made by the state's witnesses. When he was dismissed the defense rested, and the evidence of the state in rebuttal commenced. Both the prosecution and the defense are resting. The pleas will be made to-day. Attorney Davis of St. Peter will make the plea for the state and H. J. Peck of Shakopee for the defense.

KNOCK FOR UNIONISM.

Wisconsin Law Is Declared Unconstitutional.

Madison, Wis., June 21—The supreme court declares that the state law which prohibits any employer from discharging an employe because he belongs to a labor union is contrary to the employer's constitutional rights and, therefore, void. The court recognizes the right of men to combine in labor organizations. If an employer's liberty were curtailed by legislation, however, that of an employe could likewise be curtailed. Thus an employe might be punished for quitting work because his employer had formed a black list organization or any other objectionable combination. The decision of the supreme court is a most important one. It is vital to labor and capital alike and will undoubtedly attract widespread attention.

COLEMAN TRIAL BEGINS.

Man Accused of Killing Brother for His Insurance.

Faulkton, S. D., June 21.—The jury in the Coleman case has been secured. The Colemans were ranchmen and the prosecution will seek to show that the motive of the alleged murder was a desire of Joseph Coleman to secure $10,000 insurance on the life of his brother, Edward Coleman, who died at his brother's ranch. The two brothers were alone. Joseph notified some of the neighbors that Edward had shot himself accidentally. A few hours later Joseph took the body in a wagon and drove to Mellette and asked an undertaker to prepare it for shipment to Winona, Minn., on the first train. Coroner Edgerton telephoned to Mellette to have the body held and Joseph Coleman detained.

MYSTERY A DARK ONE.

Police Baffled in Attempt to Locate Lost Merchant.

Menomonie, Wis., June 21.—The mystery surrounding the sudden and unaccountable disappearance of August Kossoff, the Menomonie merchant who left home June 9, has not yet been cleared. He has not been seen or heard from and no trace or clue has been found. The Minneapolis detective force has been working on the case several days, but can discover nothing that will throw any light on his whereabouts. His prominence and popularity are such as to cause widespread interest in his case, and much apprehension is felt by his friends as to his safety.

Held for Murder.

Winona, Minn., June 21. — In the municipal court John Haase was bound over to the September term of the district court to answer for the death of Louis Scherer, which followed as a result of a blow by Haase.

His Death Deferred.

Red Wing, Minn., June 21. — O. A. Andersen, who served with the Thirteenth regiment in the Philippines, was some time ago reported dead at Hibbing. His obituary was published. Last night he turned up here.

CANAL IS IN SIGHT

SENATE PASSES ISTHMIAN BILL BY A MAJORITY OF EIGHT VOTES.

FAVORS THE PANAMA ROUTE

PRESIDENT TO BUY PANAMA PROPERTY IF TITLE IS CLEAR.

PHILIPPINE BILL IN THE HOUSE

DEBATE OPENED BY MAJORITY AND MINORITY MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE.

Washington, June 20.—An isthmian canal, while not yet absolutely assured, is nearer to construction than it ever has been. The senate yesterday, by a majority of 8 votes, adopted the Spooner substitute for the Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill, the vote on the substitute being 42 to 34. After two amendments to the measure had been adopted, one providing for a commission to supervise the construction of the canal and the other providing for the issuance of $130,000,000 of 2 per cent gold bonds to raise money with which to construct the waterway, it was passed by a vote of 67 to 6.

It has been evident for several days that the Spooner substitute, which, in brief, provides that the president shall select the Panama route if he can obtain a clear title to the Panama Canal company's property, but, otherwise, he shall adopt the Nicaragua route, would command the votes of a majority of the senate. The Panama route was by the senate than the Nicaragua route. The only question left open is the title to the property and that the president will determine, if the house should adopt the senate's amendment to its bill.

Considered More Desirable

The Spooner amendment, as amended and adopted by the senate yesterday, provides that the president, through the law officers of the government, shall determine whether a clear title can be obtained of the Panama company's property, rights and concessions. If he shall be satisfied that such title can be obtained, he shall purchase the property, rights and concessions for $40,000,000. If, in his opinion, a clear title cannot be obtained, he shall proceed to construct an isthmian canal by the Nicaragua route.

The bill further provides that a commission of seven shall be appointed by the president to supervise the work and to make arrangements for all the details of it. It also provides that gold bonds in the sum of $130,000,000 bearing 2 per cent interest, shall be issued to raise money with which to construct the canal.

In the House.

The opening day of the week's debate on the Philippine government bill in the house was signalized by a remarkably strong and exhaustive speech by Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee on insular affairs. He spoke for almost three hours and was given close attention by both sides of the house. Much of the speech was a general defense of the policy pursued by the administration.

Mr. Jones of Virginia, the ranking member of the minority of the committee, made an able presentation of the Democratic position, but he yielded the floor after speaking about an hour and will resume to-day.

MORRIS BILL IS PASSED.

Chippewa Reservation Timber Measure Disposed Of.

Washington, June 21.—After a brief debate the Morris bill was passed yesterday morning as reported by the Indian committee with the exception of two minor amendments adopted on the recommendation of the secretary of the interior. One of them provides that the secretary of the interior shall publish regulations governing the cutting of timber thirty days in advance, and the other provides for the removal of the debris by operators in order to prevent fires. The fight over the amendment pertaining to sales of timber was continued yesterday. Representative Eddy offered his amendment providing for sales at public auction. An interesting feature of the proceedings was the refusal of Speaker Henderson to recognize Representative Fletcher on a motion of "no quorum." The purpose of the motion was to defeat the bill, but as it was regarded as dilatory the speaker refused to recognize the Minneapolis member.

USED NATION'S CASH.

Shortage in the Accounts of a Disbursing Officer at Washington.

Washington, June 21—Henry Rechtin, disbursing officer of the department of justice, has been arrested on the charge of misappropriating $7,600 of government funds. He confessed to the shortage. Rechtin is from Cincinnati. Information received by Attorney General Knox some time ago led to a suspicion that something was wrong with Rechtin's books, and an arrest followed an examination of the books.

Brazil Threatens Bolivia.

London, June 21. — The Financial News says that it learns that cable information was received last night to the effect that Brazil had instructed her minister at La Plaza, Bolivia, to request an immediate reply from the Bolivian government in reference to canceling the Acre concession it has made to an American syndicate.

Across the Mississippi.

Washington, June 21. — The senate passed the bill authorizing the Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg Railroad Company of Minnesota to build and maintain a railway bridge across the Mississippi river near Anoka, Minn.

Wind Cave Park.

Washington, June 21. — The senate yesterday passed the bill to set apart certain lands in South Dakota as a public park, to be known as the Wind Cave National Park.

NORTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Wheat Makes Rapid Growth and Is Generally Strong and Healthy.

Favorable weather has prevailed the past week, except that in some sections the rainfall was more than was required. Frequent showers fell in all sections, in some quite heavy, in others scarcely heavy enough to be of any benefit. The temperature was slightly lower than the normal, but most of the week was clear aside from the time it was raining.

Wheat continues to make rapid growth and is generally strong and healthy, stooling well, and in most sections completely covers the ground. On low land in the river bottoms, it is turning yellow from too much moisture.

Oats are vigorous and growing rapidly; a larger area than usual having been sown to them, and prospects are now very favorable.

Some early-sown rye is heading out, and it, like other grain, is in fine condition.

The weather has been rather too cool for corn; the most of it is up, but is making slow growth, and sunshine and warm weather are needed for it.

Flax and millet are still being sown, though the most of the crop is now in; in the northern part of the state considerable land is being broken, with the intention of sowing flax on the sod. The early-sown flax is up, and as a rule, is strong and growing fast.

Grasshoppers still continue numerous in Red river counties, and are hatching out fast; reports indicate that they are beginning to appear in the Northern Central portion. While they have inflicted but little damage yet, still they have done some, and apprehensions are felt that they may become dangerous.

Synopses of reports from counties in the different parts of the state:

BARNES—Minnie Lake—Seeding is nearly finished; a good many grasshoppers are hatching out.

BENSON—Minnewaukan—All crops are doing very well; seeding, except some millet, is finished. Oberon—Crops are looking well; only a little grain to be sown yet. Leeds —Everything is growing very fast; flax seeding is nearly finished.

BURLEIGH—Menoken—All crops are looking very good and growing fast. Cromwell—All crops are in fine condition; most of the corn planted is coming up nicely. Painted Woods—Seeding is finished; conditions very favorable for crops.

CASS—Wild Rice—Crops are growing rapidly; prospects are better now than they were a couple of weeks ago. Page—Wheat, oats and barley are looking fine, as is flax that is up; grasshoppers are getting numerous in spots but are doing no damage. Grandin —Grain is growing very rapidly; some fields are weedy; grasshoppers are numerous and are said to have done some damage. Tower City—Flax-seeding is general; too wet for corn; wheat and grass are doing nicely. Casselton—Crops generally are looking very fair, but are getting most too much moisture.

CAVALIER—Stillwell—Flax seeding is about finished; some barley is yet to be sown. Dresden—Seeding is done and grain is growing rapidly; no weeds to speak of. Milton—Some flax fields are not yet sown; grain is in good condition; no weeds to speak of. Milton—Some flax fields not yet sewn; grain in good condition; worms are damaging flax.

DICKEY—Monango — Fine growing week and general prospects are excellent. Oakes—Corn planting is done; flax and millet seeding is in progress; fodder corn is being planted; crops are doing very well. Wright—Flax and millet not all sown yet; corn mostly up and looking fine; early-sown barley is beginning to show heads.

EMMONS—Braddock—A little millet is to be sown yet; crops are growing fast and looking healthy. Livona—Corn planting is finished; most of it is up and looking well.

FOSTER—Barlow—Crops could not be improved; flax seeding will soon be finished.

GRAND FORKS—Cable—Some flax and millet to be sown yet; grasshoppers are quite numerous, but have done no damage yet. Gilby—Flax seeding is nearly finished; many farms are too wet to seed this season; early-sown crops, and are looking fine generally. Niagara—All crops are doing nicely; early-sown flax is up and looks well. Thompson—Some early-sown grain is very weedy; flax and barley are still being sown.

GRIGGS—Cooperstown—Some barley, flax and millet yet to sow; all crops doing well; also, hay; some grasshoppers have hatched out.

LAMOURE—Griswold—Grain on high land looks very good; that on low land not so good. Edgeley—All crops up and growing rapidly; too much rain for low lands; some flax and millet yet to seed.

Mc LEAN—Coal Harbor—Some flax and millet to be put in yet; considerable breaking done; crops look well. Washburn—Flax seeding going on; conditions very favorable.

MORTON—Hebron—Ground is very wet but crops are in fine condition and a hay crop is assured. Sweet Briar—Crops are growing very slowly on account of the heavy rains we have had; sunshine and warmth are needed. Glen Ullin—Seeding done, except some millet, which has been delayed by the recent rains.

NELSON—Lee—All grain sown; crops doing nicely. Michigan—Wheat looking excellent; flax seeding still in progress; outlook was never better than now for a good crop.

PEMBINA—St. Thomas—Crops of all kinds are growing well; flax still being sown; considerable ground will not be sown this spring. Welford—Flax seeding still general; wheat doing well. Leyden—Some wheat is turning yellow; most of the crop is looking fine; grass is excellent and a good hay crop is assured. Crystal—Crops look good; the growth is a little rank in places. Hamilton—A large amount of flax and barley was sown the past week, and some yet to sow.

RAMSEY—Jackson—Some flax, barley and millet yet to be sown; early-plowed ground is very weedy; wheat and oats are looking very good. Derrick—Flax is mostly sown; rain is needed for flax sown on new breaking. Edmore—Seeding practically completed; conditions now very favorable. Devils Lake—All grain is in the ground and what is up looks very well.

RANSOM—Anslem—All crops look fine; some complaint of the Hessian fly doing damage is heard of. Miller—All seeding done; grass and grain are doing very well.

RICHLAND—Theed—The past week has been very favorable; corn is up and looks good. Wahpeton—Crops of all kinds are looking well; prospects good for hay. Hankinson—Crops have done well during the past week.

SARGENT—Harlem—All grain looks good; flax seeding about done; some millet yet to be sown. Rutland—Crops are growing fast. Hample—Wheat that was disked in is very weedy and backward; corn looks well; potatoes are coming on well; oats look good.

STEELE—Blabon — The growth of crops during the past week is something wonderful; all seeding is finished except flax and millet. Sharlow—Some are still seeding flax and millet; prospects good.

STUTSMAN—Eldridge—Wheat, oats and barley are making a fine growth; flax seeding is nearly completed and it is coming up nicely. Jamestown—All grain is growing finely; the heavy rains of the middle of the week were followed by clear growing weather. Pingree—Crops are making a wonderful growth; plenty of moisture.

STARK—Gladstone—All crops are making a rapid growth except corn, which needs warmer weather; wheat is thick on the ground. Belfield—Grain and grass are growing rapidly, as are the weeds.

TRAILL—Hillsboro—Flax and barley are still being seeded; plowing for millet is going on; fields are usually very weedy. Buxton—Conditions very favorable for grain and grass; planting is finished. Weible—Seeding of flax and barley is still going on, and will last through this week; everything is growing very fast. Mayville—Crops are growing fast; grasshoppers are numerous but have done no damage yet.

WALSH—Pisek—Flax seeding is finished; crops look very nice. Voss—Wheat is looking very good; flax that is up looks sick owing to too much rain; seeding is practically completed. Sarnia—A little flax to seed yet; all grain looks excellent; hay and pastures are in good condition.

WARD—Portal—All the crops looking fine; some late flax to be sown yet on breaking.

WELLS—Twist—Flax seeding continues; some millett to sow for hay; everything is making rapid growth; the weeds are getting ahead of some pieces of grain.

NORTH DAKOTA LEAGUE.

Fast Playing Marks the Third Week of the Season.

The third week of base ball in the Northern league has passed by, and in that time many changes among the standing of the clubs have taken place. Winnipeg still remains in first place, but her percentage is materially lower than last week. Crookston has forged up to second place, with Fargo a good third, and the chances are that they will be pushing Crookston hard before long for second place. Grand Forks has hit the toboggan hard during the last week, and unless she can stop Fargo in the remaining games of the series being played, will be down near the foot of the list. Devils Lake has slid down a peg or two, and will have to take a brace, or will find herself running neck and neck with Cavalier. The Lake boys have played some mighty fast ball, however, and there is no need for anybody to worry about their ability to climb further up in the percentage column. Cavalier still holds her position as tail-ender, but is gradually working her percentage up higher. The team has been very much strenghtened by the addition of four fast men who are reputed to be "heavy stickers," and from now on no doubt will give any team a merry chase.

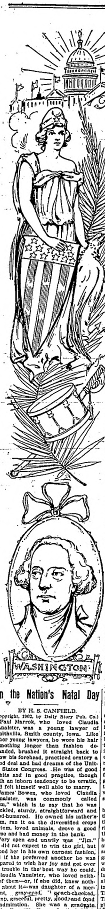
Result of Games Played.

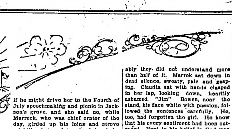
At Crookston—
May 29—Crookston 5, Fargo 2.
May 30—Grand Forks 3, Crookston 1.
May 30—Grand Forks 5, Crookston 1.
May 31—Grand Forks forfeited to Crookston, 9 to 0.
June 3—Fargo 5 Crookston 3 .
June 4—Crookston 12, Fargo 5.
June 9—Winnipeg 5 Crookston 2.
June 10—Crookston 2, Winnipeg 1.
June 11—Crookston 3, Winnipeg 5.
June 12—Crookston 7 Cavalier 3.
June 13—Cavalier 3, Crookston 1.
At Devils Lake—
May 29—Cavalier 3, Devils Lake 1.
May 30—Devils Lake 8, Cavalier 6.
May 30—Devils Lake 6, Cavalier 0.
June 2—Winnipeg 12, Devils Lake 7.
June 3—Winnipeg 6, Devils Lake 4.
June 5—Devils Lake 5, Winnipeg 4.
June 7—Crookston 12, Devils Lake 9.
At Grand Forks—
May 22—Devils Lake 10, Grand Forks 2.
May 23—Grand Forks 8, Devils Lake 5.
May 24—Grand Forks 5, Devils Lake 2.
June 3—Grand Forks 11, Cavalier 4.
June 4—Grand Forks 2, Cavalier 1.
June 4—Cavalier 6, Grand Forks 4.
June 6—Winnipeg 6, Grand Forks 3.
June 7—Grand Forks 4, Winnipeg 3.
June 12—Fargo 6, Grand Forks 3.
June 13—Fargo 2, Grand Forks 0.
Jnune 14—Grand Forks 6, Fargo 0.
June 16—Grand Forks 0, Crookston 2.
At Winnipeg—
May 22—Winnipeg 18, Cavalier 4.
May 23—Winnipeg 3, Cavalier 2 .
May 24—Winnipeg 4, Cavalier 2.
May 24—Winnipeg 2, Cavalierr 1.
May 26—Winnipeg 9, Grand Forrks 6.
May 27—Winnipeg 4, Grand Forks 0.
May 28—Grand Forks 4, Winnipeg 3.
June 12—Winnipeg 7, Devils Lake 2.
June 13—Devils Lake 3, Winnipeg 1.
Jne 16—Winnipeg 5, Fargo 2.
At Fargo—
May 22—Crookston 16, Fargo 8.
May 23—Crookston 4, Fargo 3.
May 24—Fargo 12—Crookston 3.
May 26—Devils Lake 7, Fargo 4.
May 27—Fargo 6, Devils Lake 5.
May 28—Devils Lake 10, Fargo 6.
May 30—Fargo 8, Winnipeg 6.
May 30—Fargo 7 Winnipeg 5.
May 31—Winnipeg 7, Fargo 6.
June 6—Cavalier 5, Fargo 4.
June 7—Fargo 20, Cavalier 4.
June 9—Fargo 6, Grand Forks 2.
June 10—Fargo 19, Grand Forks, 11.
June 11—Fargo 11, Grand Forks 2.
At Cavalier—
June 9—Devils Lake 7, Cavalier 4.
June 10—Cavalier 5, Devils Lake 3.
June 11—Cavalier 0, Devils Lake 4.
June 16—Cavalier 14, Devils Lake 1.

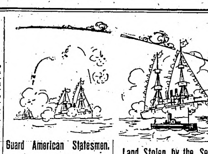
SNOW AND COLD AT CAPE.

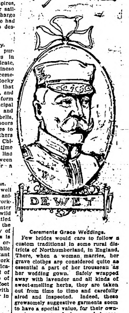
Wires Are Buried and Thousands of Sheep Killed.

Cape Town, June 18.—Extreme cold, accompanied by storms of unprecedented severity, continues to prevail in Cape Colony. Thousands of sheep have perished and the telegraph wires are down and buried in the snow drifts.









On the Nation's Natal Day

BY H. S. CANFIELD.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Paul Marrok, who loved Claudia Vanalster, was a young lawyer of Smithville, Smith county, Iowa. Like other young lawyers, he wore his hair longer than fashion demanded, brushed it straight back to show his forehead, practiced oratory a good deal and had dreams of the United States Congress. He was of good habits and in good practice, though with an inborn tendency to be erratic, and felt himself well able to marry.

James Bowen, who loved Claudia also, was commonly called "Jim," which is to say that he was freckled, sturdy, straightforward and good-humored. He owned his father's farm, ran it on the diversified crops plan, loved animals, drove a good horse and had money in the bank.

Very open and unwily was "Jim." He did not expect to win the girl, but wooed her in his own earnest fashion, and if she preferred another he was prepared to wish her joy and got over his trouble in the best way he could.

Claudia Vanalster, who loved neither of them—or, if she did, knew nothing about it—was daughter of a merchant, gray-eyed, peach-cheeked, plump, graceful, pretty, good and fond of admiration. She was a graduate of the Enosville Young Ladies' Seminary, played the piano a little, painted a little, knew a little needlework, spoke French with the Enosville accent and was quite the county belle.

So "Jim" Bowen asked her bashfully if he might drive her to the Fourth of July speechmaking and picnic in Jackson's grove, and she said no, while Marrock, who was chief orator of the day, girded up his loins and strove mightily, being determined to shake down the stars.

The elders of Smith county celebrated the Fourth of July in the old-fashioned way. Patriotism was as rampant out there as it had been in the older sections of the country fifty years before. They had no use for new-fangled methods of rejoicing. What their fathers had believed was good enough for them. They appointed a regular committee to see that the thing was properly done.

Thus it happened that in Jackson's grove a large lumber stand was erected on which the elders might sit, the county trustees, the village trustees, the school trustees, the county judge, the clerk of the court, the schoolmaster and so forth. Item—there was a smaller stand for the Smithville band, which was strong and earnest, though a little crude. Item—an open space in the front of the big stand reserved for the readers and speakers. Item—a larger stand to the right, reserved for the young ladies who should impersonate the States. Item—a large space on the ground to one side reserved for the fire-crackers, catharine wheels and what not. Long rough boards laid on trestles served as tables for the diners. There was any quantity of spring water, ginger pop and coffee as potables, but no whisky nor beer. Smithville was a moral community.

It was a cloudless day. A thousand people were in the grove. From far down the dirt road came the oom-pah, oom-pah of the laboring band. As it grew nearer an occasional bar of "The Star-Spangled Banner" became audible. Behind it rode the dignitaries in open carriages, most of them with grizzled whiskers, showing the yellowish stains of tobacco-juice. Back of them came the principal feature of the procession, three farm wagons metamorphosed into triumphal chariots by the aid of red, white and blue calico and flowers and filled with forty-four gaily dressed young women impersonating the commonwealths of this glorious Union. They were flushed with the ride and in more than one instance their diadems had been jarred crooked, but were happy and proud. In their front was Claudia in a gown cut a la Greek, holding a sceptre and wearing a pasteboard crown golden gilt and bearing a papier-mache shield. She was "Columbia." Behind the wagons at a slow pace came the faithful James in his buggy.

The grove reached, the band climbed to its stand, the dignitaries to the center platform, the girls to their platform. The band's leader puffed out his chest, faced the gaping crowd, swung his baton and the instruments crashed into "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," half a tone flat. The people plunged into the tune half a tone sharp. The trees trembled, but did not fall. The folks liked their singing so much that they encored the band and sang the last verse over again.

Alcibiades Curtius Dickson, county clerk, a lantern-jawed man with a voice like a foghorn, read the Declaration of Independence through to the bitter end, rolling out the sonorous syllables and pausing soulfully at the end of each sentence. Eliphalet Absolom Rawlins, county judge, rose to introduce the orator of the day, and spoke for three-quarters of an hour, touching upon Bunker Hill and the state of the crops, tossing a handful of bouquets to George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, devoting five minutes of thunderous denunciation to Benedict Arnold and winding up with a glorious burst over the result of the Spanish war. Marrok ran his fingers through his hair and glared at him. Finally he got his chance.

Now this young man in the seclusion of his law office had been reading a lot of cheap literature and worrying himself by thinking that he was thinking. The result was that his skull had become filled with a lot of things that he thought were ideas and he felt called upon to express them. Once started he did not reck of unpopularity and forgot all about the girl. His talk was fiery, fluent, occasionally eloquent. When he got out of breath he ran his hand through his hair and took a drink of water from a small white pitcher that stood near.

He said that they had sold their birthright for a mess of pottage; that the Money Devil had them by the throats; that the rich were getting richer and the poor poorer; that their legislators were bought; that discontent gnawed at the vitals of the land; that a conscienceless aristocracy of wealth had grown up; that republican simplicity was at a discount; whither were they drifting? They were drifting to revolution. What would be its end? Possibly a king; possibly anarchy; certainly bloodshed, death and woe. There was a large amount of this. The talk would not have been out of place in some obscure beer hall in a big city. Out there in the country, with green leaves waving, the scent of flowers on the air and an honest country population listening, it sounded horribly incongruous.

The people heard it quietly. Probably they did not understand more than half of it. Marrok sat down in dead silence, sweaty, pale and gasping. Claudia sat with hands clasped in her lap, looking down, heartily ashamed. "Jim" Bowen, near the stand, his face white with passion, followed the sentences carefully. He, too, had forgotten the girl. He knew that his every sentiment had been outraged. Next to his belief in God was his belief in the flag which floated over him. Scarce knowing what he did, he ran to the platform steps, mounted them in leaps and showed before the people, his wide white hat in his right hand. He did not know until he faced them what he should say, but was determined to say something. He said, without heat and clearly, almost with solemnity:

"My friends—You know me. I'm just one of you. I want to speak for you more than for myself. I want to say for you that this man here is a liar, or crazy. I think he is crazy. We are seventy-five millions of people. We believe in our past, present and future. We honor our fathers for what they have done; we stand ready to do the same if occasion should arise. In pestilence, privation, war and death we have erected the greatest government under the sun, in the best land under the sun, and that government shall stand as an example to mankind for ages. That flag," and he raised his hat high, "for more than a hundred years has been the symbol of all that is great and good; it is so to-day. Look at it while we sing that it shall forever wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

The thousand voices crashed out in the true national hymn. Marrok slunk away crushed and wondering. The county judge rose to make another speech, but they would not listen to him. They sang it all over again. "Columbia," her eyes and nose red from tears and a damp handkerchief in her hand, came to "Jim" and looked at him timidly.

"Oh, Jim!" she said. "That was brave; that was noble! Oh, Jim!"

Thus "Jim" Bowen, farmer and American, knew that he had done well.

Roosevelt and the Detectives.

"Secretary Cortelyou and the secret service officials arrange all kinds of plans to prevent President Roosevelt exposing himself in public too much," said a White House policeman, "but he knocks all their plans in the head when they least expect it. When he is about to start away on a trip the White House landau is always brought up to the door, closed. President McKinley generally preferred to ride in a closed vehicle. President Roosevelt won't have it that way on a fine, clear day, and every time he walks out on the portico and sees the landau closed he gives orders to have it opened. He waits until that is done and then gets in and rides down the avenue, or wherever he is going, without any obstruction whatever to his view. He often outwits the detectives by getting away for walks or drives without their being any the wiser or without their being able to follow him. He doesn't tell anybody that he is going out, and the first the secret service man around the White House knows is when he sees the president swinging off down the walks on his way out of the grounds."

Shipbuilding in Virginia.

In the Census Bulletin of May, 5th on manufactures is pointed out that between 1890 and 1900 Virginia advanced from a position of comparatively small importance to a place among the leading shipbuilding states.

It will doubtless be a surprise to most of our readers to know that in 1900 Virginia was the first state in the amount of capital invested in this industry, third in the number of wage-earners and wages paid, and fourth in the value of products. Its capital invested in shipbuilding increased from less than a third of a million dollars in 1890 to nearly $15,000,000 in 1900, which is two and one-third times as great as the entire capital invested in the shipbuilding industry in New England, more than double the capital so invested on the Pacific coast, and almost equal to the entire amount of capital invested in shipbuilding on the great lakes.—Richmond Times.

Would Not Seem Probable.

A bishop was traveling in a mining country, and encountered an old Irishman turning a windlass which hauled up ore out of a shaft. It was his work to do this all day long. His hat was off, and the sun poured down on his unprotected head.

"Don't you know the sun will injure your brain if you expose it in that manner?" said the good man.

The Irishman wiped the sweat off his forehead and looked at the clergyman.

"Do ye think I'd be doing this all day if I had any brains?" he said, and then gave the handle another turn.

Not Sentimental.

He was saying: "As the pearly column of smoke in a winter's atmosphere rises unbroken heavenward, so my heart rises to thee. As the sunflower follows the cruel sun which gives it light, so my breast follows thee. As the blue brook runs its unhindered course to the sea, so my soul in slavery goes to thee."

Said she: "Henry, now that we're engaged, will your penknife cut corns?"

Guard American Statesmen.

Exceeding care is taken by the members of the Senate to prevent some crank from attempting to wipe that body out of existence at one fell swoop. The doorkeepers have special instructions on this point. Every person who enters the public galleries is closely scrutinized. Visitors can carry no packages whatever, because it is feared the bundles may contain bombs or other infernal machines which could be hurled with deadly effect into the chamber.

During the recent rush of visitors to Washington the guards had lively experiences with the amateur photographers. Every day dozens of tourists were barred out because they had their cameras with them. The guards admit that the Senators have no objection to having their pictures taken, but they say there is danger of some dangerous missile being concealed in the cameras, so they cannot take the risk of permitting them in the galleries. As the guards refuse to be responsible for packages left with them the fears of the senators result in cutting down their audiences. During a recent exciting and prolonged session of the Senate several young women who did not wish to miss any of the interesting debate sent out for some luncheon. The guard stopped the messenger on his return. He explained that the package contained things which were dangerous only when taken internally, but the doorkeeper was obdurate. The young women were forced to give up their desirable seats and eat their lunch in the corridor. On another occasion a well-known congressman attempted to enter the Senate gallery with a suspicious-looking bulge to his coat and he was made to show what he carried in his pocket. It was a bottle of ink which he had just purchased in the Senate stationery-room.

Dramatic Oath-Taking.

At a memorable gathering, attended by Henry III., the prelates and barons of England, each bearing a lighted taper, encircled the king while the curse of heaven was invoked by the archbishop of Canterbury on those who in future should in any respect violate the two charters (the Magna Charta and the Charta de Foresta). Hands were lifted in air and brows bared, and "the tapers were then extinguished and thrown, stinking and smoking, on the ground and the dire malediction uttered that the souls of every one who infringed the charters 'might thus be extinguished and stink and smoke in hell.'" Weirdly impressive in its rude fervor, the episode was made additionally striking by the action of the king, who closed the ceremony by declaring these words: "So may God help me, I will inviolably observe all these things, as I am a man and a Christian, a knight and a crowned and anointed king."

George Washington's Religion.

A New York Tribune correspondent writing from Washington arrays all the historical evidence at hand and concludes that the first president was not a communicant of any religious body. A leading quotation, that from Robert Dale Owen, seems to convey the spirit of the whole communication: "When I spoke of Washington's deathbed, I had the account of an eyewitness lying before me. And most strongly does that corroborate my opinion that Washington's religion was of the most liberal stamp. No clergyman around his deathbed: No protestations that in the dying hour religion afforded him aid. No praying. No repeating of texts. No asking for a Bible to read a chapter. The Father of His Country died the death of a patriot; he died as he had lived, in dignity and peace; but he left behind him not one word to warrant the belief that he was other than a sincere Deist."

The Point at Issue.

A witness, who had given his evidence in such a way as to satisfy everybody in court that he was committing perjury, being cautioned by Justice ——, said at last: "My lord, you may believe me or not, but I have stated not a word that is false, for I have been wedded to truth from my infancy."

"Yes, sir," said Justice——; "but the question is how long have you been a widower."

Electric Light Not Harmful.

A Russian specialist has decided that, contrary to the general opinion, electric light plays less havoc with the eyes than other forms of artificial light. He bases his deductions on the fact that disease and damage to the eye are proportioned to the frequency of the closure of the lids. He found that the lids close in a minute 6.8 times with candle light, 2.8 times with gas light, 2.2 times with sun light and 1.8 times with electric light.

Land Stolen by the Sea.

The Strand Magazine describes the steady and disastrous eating away of the coast line of England by the encroaching sea, and it is stated that the annual loss of area by coast erosion in England alone is probably not less than 2,000 acres.

On the other hand, marsh lands have been drained and other lands reclaimed, but these areas are insignificant as compared with those which have been lost.

Parts of the lost lands were low-lying, protected by dikes or levees, which were eventually breached; other parts were washed away by floods and storms; but in many cases the sea is eating its way into tall cliffs, demolishing numerous towns and villages.

The line of anchorage for ships off Selsey, in Sussex, is still called "The Park," having been a royal deer park in the reign of Henry VIII., while the treacherous shoals known as the Goodwin sands formed in early days the estate of Earl Goodwin.

On the Yorkshire coast there are 12 buried towns and villages, and in Suffolk there are five. Submerged forests may be seen at low tide off Boxhill and Wirral, and their remains have been found at numerous points along the coast.

Southwest from Lands End, toward the Scilly islands, a peninsula of about 227 square miles has been carried away; and below the sand beach is a deposit of black mold containing indications of trees and deer.

At Wirral is Leasowes castle, now on the edge of the cliff, but fifty years ago it was half a mile from the sea. Many historical towns, such as Ravensburg (mentioned by Shakspere), where Henry IV landed in 1399, and Edward IV in 1471, have now entirely disappeared.

At Reculver the cliffs were gradually eroded until a church, originally two miles inland, was partly wrecked; this church, however, had two spires, forming a striking landmark for sailors, and the trinity board (in charge of the lighthouse work) therefore had a sea wall built to prevent the destruction of the towers.

To Build a Chinese Cemetery.

A Philadelphia attorney has purchased a farm of forty-eight acres in Bensalem township for a syndicate, which purposes to establish a Chinese cemetery. It will be the only cemetery of its kind east of the Rocky Mountains. Its projectors say that it will have one or more temples, and be laid out in every way to conform to Chinese customs. The principal pagoda will be nine stories high, and from the balconies will hang bells, which are to be rung at stated hours of the day and night—certain ones to keep the evil spirits away and others to guide the good spirits. The Chinese have been trying for a long time to obtain a tract of land on the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, between New York and Philadelphia, for a cemetery.

Edward Kemeys in Washington.

Edward Kemeys, a sculptor, well known for his reproductions of animals, and his wife, who is also a worker in the same field, after a winter spent in studying the Indians and wild game of New Mexico, have settled down in Washington, where the Zoological park offers them plenty of material. At present Mr. Kemeys is at work upon a series of bronzes ordered by Chicago for her public buildings, representing the important animals of America. His chief work heretofore has been bought by Chicago, which city is especially proud of the lions that guard the entrance of the Art Institute. They are nine feet high—the largest in the world, with the exception of those by Landseer in London.

Pat's Test.

A good story is told of an Irishman, more patriotic than clever, who enlisted in one of the smart cavalry regiments. The fencing instructor had experienced rather a difficult job in the matter of explaining to him the various ways of using the sword. "Now," he said, "how would you use the sword if your opponent feinted?" "Bedad," said Pat, with gleaming eyes, "I'd just tickle him with the point to see if he was shamming."

His Editorial Message.

When Martin Baddies went North, with a grip full of poems, the janitors and editorial attendants, suspecting his purpose, turned him down.

At one office he displayed his wares to one of the editorial guards, who said:

"The editor won't talk to you about manuscript—he's full."

"All right," said Baddies, as he packed his grip again, "tell him I'll call around when he's sober."—Atlanta Constitution.

Ceremonies Grace Weddings.

Few brides would care to follow a custom traditional in some rural districts of Northumberland, in England. There, when a woman marries, her grave clothes are considered quite as essential a part of her trousseau as her wedding gown. Safely wrapped away with lavender and all kinds of sweet-smelling herbs, they are taken out from time to time and carefully aired and inspected. Indeed, these growsomely suggestive garments seem to have a special value, for their owner, in moments of gloom and depression, often finds comfort in trying on her sarouds and evidently upon this pleasing effect it will produce when her turn comes to be "viewed" by her mourning neighbors and acquaintances.

A Story of Holland House.

The place now belongs to the fifth Earl of Ilchester, a lineal descendant of the famous politician Fox, afterward Lord Holland, and Lord Ilchester, who owns over thirty-two thousand acres in other parts of the country, has ample means for "keeping up" Holland House. Holland House, too, has its ghost, for the beautiful Lady Diana Rich, daughter of the Earl of Holland from whom the house took its name, was once walking in the garden before dinner, when she met her own apparition, "as if looking in a looking glass." A month later this lady succumbed to smallpox, and her sister, also, it is said, saw an apparition just before her death.—Cassell's Magazine.

SCARE ABOUT KING

EDWARD'S ILLNESS SAID TO HAVE BEEN MORE SERIOUS THAN REPORTED.

LIES AND WILD ABSURDITIES

WORK OF SCANDALMONGERS PRODUCES RESULTS ALMOST APPALLING.

PUBLIC SUSPICION AND ALARM

FAMOUS SPECIALIST TAKES UP HIS RESIDENCE WITH THE KING.

London, June 24.—There has developed a perfect saturnalia of lies, half-truths and wild absurdities about King Edward, his health, his recent life and the prospects of his wearing the crown on Thursday.

Since it became known that Dr. Laking was summoned to Aldershot by special train a week ago the imaginations of a large number of scandalmongers have been at work, with results almost appalling. The versions of the king's illness and its cause are so numerous that it is hopeless to attempt to trace them. Many of them are false on their face, while a few are best described as malicious. It is certainly to be regretted that it has not been considered best to issue a plain statement of the king's condition, signed by the Attending Physicians. Instead of this, an attempt has been made to create the impression that his indisposition has been so trifling that it was no more worthy of note than an ordinary cold. It is not alone untrustworthy rumors which aroused public suspicion and alarm. A prominent member of the king's household is responsible for the statement that the first symptom of his majesty's illness was a fainting fit. Two others have admitted that his sickness was more serious than the public has been led to believe. It is regarded with some significance that Dr. Barlow, the famous specialist, has taken up his residence at Windsor castle, where he still remains. It is said in explanation of this that it was simply decided to leave no precaution unobserved for the Safeguarding of the King in the three days' trying ordeal at the end of the week. It is further admitted that the king has become somewhat nervous about himself, a result of his overtasking his strength for the past few weeks. As he has great confidence in Dr. Barlow, the latter has remained at Windsor more as a companion than a physician. There is not much doubt, according to the present information, that the king will be able to return to Buckingham palace to-day. It seems probable, also, that some authoritative medical statement will be issued in a day or two in order to quiet the most alarming reports. It is an unpleasant thing that the cold-blooded business estimate of the king's condition prevailing in the city yesterday should have led to a demand for 10 per cent premium for insurance on his majesty's life for two months.

No Truth in Them.

Various wild rumors current in London last night concerning the health of King Edward were referred to Sir Francis Knollys, private secretary to the king. To these queries Sir Francis has telegraphed the following from Windsor castle: "There is not one word of truth in these reports."

HEAD OFF RACE RIOT.

Indiana Officers Locate the Ringleaders.

French Lick, Ind., June 24. — The anti-negro situation changed yesterday. The sentries stationed Saturday night throughout the valley to detect white or negro agitators unearthed the truth of the race riot plot. The scare originated from letters sent to negroes by two or three whites. Several other whites followed, but not enough to cause any real danger. The United States government officials have located the ringleaders. These are said to consist of white men and two negroes. Arrests are expected to be made to-day. The reported shooting at West Baden had no foundation in fact. Everything was quiet throughout the valley. Secret service officers issued instructions to suspected carriers of arms that if caught with arms they would immediately be locked up on the charge of inciting a riot.

STRIKERS USE VIOLENCE.

Attempt to Run Street Cars at Toronto Is Frustrated.

Toronto, Ont., June 24.—The first attempt made by the Toronto street railway to run their cars with men hired to take the places of the striking motormen and conductors was met with violence. Only one effort was made to reopen the traffic and the temper shown by the strikers and their sympathizers convinced the officials that it would be impossible to run cars without strong protection. It was decided to appeal to the authorities for troops and to suspend operations until their arrival to-day. Stones, sticks, eggs and stale vegetables were the weapons used by the strike sympathizers to prevent the railway company from giving a service. Several of the imported men were roughly handled by the mob, and Motorman Johnson, an old employe of the company, came near losing his life.

Murderously Assaulted.

Decatur, Ind., June 24. — While intoxicated Frank Erwin of Fort Wayne was murderously assaulted here yesterday by unknown tramps and robbed of $18 and a watch. Erwin's skull was fractured and he will die.

Laboring Men Organize.

Stillwater, Minn., June 24. — All classes of labor in Stillwater are organizing unions, the latest being the union of marine and stationary engineers, organized with a membership of nearly thirty.

JOHN LIND DECLINES.

Announces That He Would Not Accept Nomination for Governor.

St. Paul, June 24.—While the Democrats of Minnesota were holding their county conventions Saturday, electing delegates to the state gathering, which meets in Minneapolis next Tuesday, and instructing these delegates to nominate John Lind for governor, Chairman L. A. Rosing at Cannon Falls was reading a letter from the former governor containing a notification that he would not accept a nomination. Mr. Rosing had known for some time that the former governor was weighing the question of accepting the nomination which he had been urged to accept by hundreds of individual Democrats, and had hoped for another conclusion on the part of the former governor. But the Cannon Falls politician, like the rank and file of the party, was doomed to disappointment. Former Governor Lind says he has determined not to accept a nomination to head the state ticket this fall. The office has been shorn of every vestige of power by the legislature, he says, and all there remains to do, in the governor's opinion, is to draw salary. He has had the honor that goes with the position and is satisfied.

TANKE FOUND GUILTY.

Jury in the Case Returns a Verdict Against the Defendant in the First Degree.

Henderson, Minn., June 24. — The Tanke murder trial came to a close at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the jury in the case brought in a verdict of "murder in the first degree," as charged in the indictment of the grand jury of Nicollet county. The result was a surprise to many people who were present in court during all of the trial, as the worst that was expected was a disagreement. The prisoner remained composed throughout the proceedings and the reading of the verdict.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

Boat Capsizes While Fishing on Lake Michigan.

Milwaukee, June 24. — Three men drowned yesterday in Lake Michigan while fishing from a boat which capsized. A twelve-year-old boy who was also in the party, was saved by clinging to the boat. The men were fishing near the government pier and, according to the boy's story, one of the men, in trying to move to another part of the boat, fell overboard. He was hauled back, but during the performance of rescuing the boat filled with water and capsized, the men all drowning.

MURDERER GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Detroit Man Convicted on Testimony of a Child.

Detroit, Mich., June 24.—William M. Jones was convicted of the murder of George H. Heywood on April 9 last and sentenced to life imprisonment at the Marquette prison. The jury was out only ten minutes. The murder was well planned, and it is generally believed that but for the evidence of a child of the victim, Jones would have escaped conviction. The evidence against Jones was entirely circumstantial.

BLAZE IS BLOWN BACK.

Wind in Washington Forests Changes With Good Effect.

Tacoma, Wash., June 24.—The forest fires that caused such heavy loss has receded from Hot Springs, near the summit of the Cascade range, the wind changing and blowing back over the burned course. There is no further danger unless another change of wind occurs. The surrounding forest in the Cascade mountains is still aflame, and only the tree trunks are left on which the fire can feed.

RECEIVES FATAL INJURIES.

E. J. Jennings of Fargo Victim of a Railroad Collision.

Fargo, N. D., June 24.—E. J. Jennings, manager of the North Dakota Newspaper Union of this city, was the victim of a wreck yesterday morning near Granville, on the Great Northern. He was riding on a freight train when the caboose was struck by a freight that was following. He is reported to have had both legs broken and suffered internal injuries which will prove fatal.

STARVED TO DEATH.

Helpless Young Man Gnaws the Bark From a Tree.

Henning, Minn., June 24. — John Owens, the missing young man, was found two miles from Hewitt, lying unconscious at the foot of a large tree. He had evidently been there for nine days without food or drink and was reduced to a mere skeleton. He had gnawed the bark from the foot of the tree. He died two hours after being taken home.

LOSES A BIG WAD.

Murdock Man Relieved of Wallet Worth $2,500.

Duluth, June 24.—Albert E. Peterson of Murdock, Minn., complained to the police that he had been robbed of a wallet containing a draft for $2,370 on the Bank of Commerce of Minneapolis from the Bank of Murdock, and $125 in cash. He lost the money on a train which arrived from the west.

Posse Gives It Up.

Vancouver, Wash., June 24.—Eight members of the sheriff's posse chasing Tracy and Merrill, the Oregon escaped convicts, returned here yesterday and reported that the bloodhounds dropped the trail of the convicts Saturday afternoon, and since then all trace of the men has been lost.

They Go to Stillwater.

Granite Falls, Minn., June 23.—The June term of the district court has been in session here the past week, Judge Qvale presiding. Two prisoners were sent to Stillwater, one for a year and the other for ten months.

Bragg Starts for Cuba.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 24. — Gen. Edward S. Bragg left for Havana to take up his duties as consul general. He was joined in Chicago by his private secretary, Harry M. Robbins of Madison.

CHOLERA SPREADS

DISEASE INCREASES IN AN ALARMING MANNER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

ONE DAY'S BIG DEATH ROLL

TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY-TWO DEATHS IN ONE DAY IN LUZON.

CORPSES ARE NOW CREMATED

RIGID SANITARY PRECAUTIONS SEEM TO BE OF LITTLE AVAIL.

Manila, June 24.—Despite the rigid precautions adopted by the authorities and the heroic work of the civil and military doctors the cholera in the provinces is spreading in an alarming manner.

Yesterday 242 deaths from the disease were reported, and there were undoubtedly many other deaths that did not come to the knowledge of the authorities. The Province of Laguna de Bay is suffering heavily from the epidemic. The burial of the victims has been abandoned and all corpses are cremated now. The ports on Laguna de Bay have again established a quarantine against homeward-bound soldiers, and the detention camp at Manila has also been re-established. The troops and constabulary report increases in the number of cholera cases.

Deaths From Cholera at Manila.

Manila, June 24.—Ninety American soldiers have died of cholera since the disease first broke out. Owing to the increase of cholera the health authorities here and in the provinces are enforcing stringent regulations. The total number of cases and deaths from the epidemic are as follows: Manila, 1,530 cases and 1,230 deaths; provinces, 7,369 cases and 5,440 deaths.

Murderers Caught.

The native police, assisted by inhabitants of the Province of Rizal, have captured the leader of the band which recently murdered several cavalrymen at Binangonan, together with a majority of the others implicated in the crime.

Gen. Chaffee is rigidly upholding the civil government. He has reprimanded Capt. Wild of the Thirteenth regiment, who was court-martialed and convicted for refusing to comply with a civil judge's request that he investigate a charge that a number of soldiers burned a cock pit that was organized by the municipality.

"JESS KILLED ME."

So Wrote Mrs. Castle While Lying in Her Own Blood.

Eldorado, Kan., June 24.—In the trial of Jessie Morrison, Mrs. Mobberly, the first woman in the Castle house after the murder, testified, "Mrs. Castle was lying on the floor, saturated in her own blood, and her throat cut. Jessie Morrison was bending over her. I pulled Jessie back and said: 'What have you done?'

"Jessie replied: 'She tried to kill me.'

"Mrs. Castle motioned for paper. It was given her and she wrote: 'Jess Morrison killed me.'"

CAUSED DESPERATE FIGHT.

Criticism of American Army May Result in Four Deaths.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 24—An attack upon the American army in the Philippines made at a garden party here last night caused a desperate fight which may cause the loss of four lives. One man is dead and three others, including the traducer of the soldiers and a discharged regular recently returned from Manila, who defended the name of the military, are probably fatally wounded.

CROWD WAS HELPLESS.

Four Boys Drown at a Picnic by Capsizing of a Boat.

St. Louis, June 24.—Four boys were drowned last evening by the capsizing of a boat at Fern Glen, a resort fifteen miles from here. The boys were rowing in a skiff on the Meremac river when it capsized and the occupants were thrown out. Hundreds of people on the shore saw the boys struggling in the water but were unable to rescue them.

BIG FIRE AT PORTLAND, OR.

Property Valued at $600,000 Is Destroyed.

Portland, Or., June 24.—A fire that started shortly before midnight Saturday night in the Phoenix Iron works, formerly the Wolff & Zwyker plant, burned for four hours and destroyed six blocks of buildings, valued at $600,000. The insurance amounts to about $200,000. It was long after daylight before the fire burned itself out.

Many Injured in Collision.

Philadelphia, June 24. — A score of persons were injured last night in a collision of trolley cars at Chestnut Hill, a suburb, but a majority of the injured proceeded to their homes.

Violent Earthquake Shock.

Rome, June 24.—A violent shock of earthquake, accompanied by subterranean rumblings, is reported from Jeneo, in the department of Calabria. No damage was done.

Two Men Drowned.

Taylorville, Ill., June 24.—William C. Brownback and Orville E. Waters, sons of prominent business men of Edinburg, were drowned in the Sangamon river yesterday. They were in a boat which went over a dam.

Many Were Injured.

Milan, Italy, June 24. — Forty-nine persons were injured last night, several of them seriously, as the result of the collision of two trains on the electric line between Blonschio and Porto Ceresio.

GRAFT WAS $18,000 A MONTH.

Rake-off of Corrupt Minneapolis Officials From Law-Breakers.

Minneapolis, June 22.—The rake-off of the corrupt police officials in Minneapolis from the licensed lawbreakers of Minneapolis is estimated by "Billy" Edwards, the big mitt worker, at $18,000 a month. These figures have been scoffed at by those who pretend to know the Minneapolis police system. There are fifty poker rooms in Minneapolis which have been paying $25 a month. In addition to these there are between twenty and thirty full-fledged gambling lay-outs which were assessed $100 a month. A poolroom, operating on Main street every afternoon, in defiance of all law, had been cleaning up several hundred dollars a day, and it is understood that the police grafters get a percentage of the daily receipts. It is reported that Ida Coates, who for years has kept a resort in a respectable residence district three blocks from the West hotel, will testify before the grand jury that during the last year she has paid $300 a week for "protection." The police search of St. Paul for Norbeck yesterday did not find the missing detective. The trial of N. W. King was resumed yesterday morning.

VILLAGE FIRE-SWEPT.

Rugby the Scene of Blaze and Hard Work.

Rugby, N. D., June 22. — The principal business portion of this place was almost completely destroyed by fire; cause unknown, and only the heroic work of citizens saved the town. The loss is $35,000, divided as follows: R. P. Widmeyer, barber shop, $400; F. H. McBride, $4,000; E. Nelson, jewelry, $4,000; T. J. O'Neill, billiard hall, $3,000; S. W. Lafay, building, $2,000; H. Kuntz, $5,000; O. T. Tofsrud, $5,000; H. H. Kern & Co., $7,000—the last two general stores; I. M. McBride, $1,000; F. A. Cronk, $500; Masonic and K. P. lodges, $300; E. Gunderson, $2,000; Whittemore & Torson, attorneys, $2,000; Roberts & Ball, $1,000. Insurance is not yet obtainable.

REUNION OF FIRST MINNESOTA.

Survivors of the Gallant Band Meet in St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 22.—The thirty-fifth annual reunion of the First regiment, Minnesota volunteers, opened yesterday at the Auditorium. The veterans listened to an address of welcome by C. D. O'Brien, visited the capitol and inspected the old battle flags, were entertained by Mrs. J. J. Hill, held their annual banquet at the Auditorium and in the evening were entertained by the Commercial club at the Auditorium. Their program for today includes a river trip to Fort Snelling and the annual meeting, when officers will be elected.

EXPENSIE PRAIRIE CHICKENS.

South Dakotan Fined $200 for Shipping Twenty-Seven Birds.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 22.—Rany J. Authier, a prominent and wealthy resident of Jefferson, appeared before Judge Carland of the United States court yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty to an information charging him with having on Dec 24 last shipped to Baltimore, Md., twenty-seven prairie chickens and thirty quail in violation of the national game law or Lacey act. The maximum fine of $200 was imposed on Authier, which he paid.

SAWMILL BURNED.

Property Worth $8,000 Destroyed in a Few Minutes.

Pine City, Minn., June 22. — Burger Bros.' sawmill, one of the landmarks of Pine City, was destroyed by fire. The fire spread very rapidly, the entire building being a mass of flame within two minutes from the time the alarm was sounded. The fire department saved the lumber piled in the yards and adjoining buildings. Loss, $6,000 to $7,000. No insurance.

WILD TRAIN WRECKED.

Nineteen Loaded Cars Get Away and Are Demolished.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 22.—Quite a serious wreck occurred on the Duluth & Iron Range road near here yesterday morning. Nineteen loaded cars of logs got away on a hill at Drummond and ran a distance of six miles and were derailed, wrecking all of the cars. An ore train coming along a short time later ran into some of the wreckage, but traffic was not delayed. No one was injured.

TO CONVICT TANKE.

State's Attorney Makes Plea for the Prosecution.

Henderson, Minn., June 22. — The state's attorney, C. R. Davis of St. Peter, addressed the jury in the Tanke murder trial here yesterday, speaking until adjournment at noon, and from 2 o'clock until 4, when court adjourned. Mr. Davis is a fluent talker and made a good impression on the jury. H. J. Peck of Shakopee will make the plea for the defense to-day.

Veterans Install Officers.

Fargo, N. D., June 22. — The North Dakota G. A. R. and W. R. C. adjourned yesterday afternoon after joint installation services at the armory, at which the new officers of both organizations assumed their duties. The next meeting will be held at Lisbon in June, 1903.

Wrecked by Tornado.

La Crosse, Wis., June 22.—A miniature tornado yesterday afternoon tore the roof from the La Crosse Knitting company's building. The walls were also shattered.

Kitchener Going Home.

Cape Town, June 22.—Lord Kitchener will arrive here from Pretoria June 23 and will sail hence for England the same day.

Killed by a Landslide.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 22.—Bennie Jelmo, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Jelmo, was smothered in a sandbank in the rear of the Park hotel last evening. He was playing in the sand, which caved in on him.

Good Price for His Mines.

Butte, Mont., June 22.—H. L. Frank of this city has sold a three-fourths interest in his coal mine at Frank, B. C., to a French syndicate for $1,200,000. A payment of $[illegible] has been made to bind the sale.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

At the Capital.

The South Dakota delegation has asked for a $3,000 place in the department of justice for L. G. Oceanrider of Webster, S. D.

The senate committee on public lands has ordered a favorable report on the Gamble bill for the creation of Wind Cave National Park, in South Dakota.

Consul General Goodnow, at Shanghai, has cabled the state department that cholera is on the increase in Shanghai, there being about thirty foreign cases. A large number of natives are dying daily.

On the readjustment of the salaries of postmasters at presidential offices, just completed, 2,030 postmasters on July next, will receive increased salaries aggregating $252,000. There will be 219 reductions, aggregating $25,000.

The strong report of Gen. Ernst on the feasibility of Camp Douglas, Wis., as a desirable point for military maneuvers undoubtedly insures in the future the establishment at that place of a camp for the mobilization of the troops of the Northwest.

Secretary Root has called on Mr. Steinhardt, the representative for the war department in Havana, for a detailed statement of expenditures made on account of "reciprocity" during the military regime in Cuba. Mr. Steinhardt was chief clerk in the office of Gen. Wood.

Senator Mason has invented a fat man's belt, made by cutting the vest of an old dress suit, leaving nothing but the band containing the buckle in the back and the pockets and buttons in front. When worn with a loose-fitting black alapaca coat, the effect is striking.

Senator Mason introduced a bill providing for the amendment of the civil service law so as to make honorably discharged soldiers of the United States eligible for appointment to such government positions as those of messenger, watchman, skilled laborer and doorkeeper without undergoin an educational test.

It is pointed out at the war department as a curious fact that congress is in possession of the information that Gomez has been receiving pension payments for no less than two years past. The war department that far back submitted to congress the full statement of all expenses in Cuba, and included in the list was t statemena of cluded in the list was the statement of the payments to Gen. Gomez.

The Republicans in the senate are in a serious controversy over the question of statehood for the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma. These bills have passed the house and have been pending in the committee on territories of the senate. On a test vote, the senate committee, with Senator Quay of Pennsylvania voting with the Democrats, decided not to report the bills at this session.

Personal.

T. W. Harwick was nominated by the Democrats of the Tenth congressional district of Georgia.

Robert J. Vance, former congressman and editor of the New Britain (Conn.) Herald, died at Monterat, N. C.

Prof. J. B. Johnson of the University of Wisconsin was elected a member of the board of trustees of Antioch college at Springfield, Ohio.

G. Lamberton of Lincoln, Neb., assistant secretary of the treasury under President Harrison, died in bed at the Palmer house, Chicago, during the night recently.

Randolph W. Townsend of New York, former member of the board of education, member of several leading clubs, and interested in a number of large financial institutions, is dead.

Norman S. Byram, president of the Indianapolis Chair company and of the Bryam Foundry company, died at Indianapolis, aged seventy-one. He leaves an estate valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Charles A. Pickett of Waterloo, Iowa, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, and Miss Hilda Parmlee Ryan, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan, at Louisville.

Justice Charles M. Waterman, for four years a member of the supreme bench of Iowa, has tendered his resignation to Gov. Cummins to take effect July 1. He forms a law partnership with ex-Congressman Joe R. Lane at Davenport. He served on the district bench at Davenport for ten years.

President John Swain, of the Indiana university, has signified his acceptance of the presidency of Swathmore college, to take effect next September. Dr. Swain made it a condition of his acceptance that Swarthmore raise $400,000 for the purpose of enlarging the college and increasing its curriculum. The $100,000 has already been subscribed.

Sins and Sinners.

A general fight among Italians in New Orleans resulted in the death of four.

Mormon missionaries and their company of converts were fired upon at Paducah, Ky.

William McGovern made the eighth suicide in Meriden, Conn., in the last two months. A suicide club is believed to exist here.

Attorney Joseph Sabatt, while defending sneak thieves at Chicago, had a $5 bill extracted from his pocket in the court room.

Lieut. R. C. Crofton was found in his room at Richmond, Va., with a bullet in his head. A revolver near at hand indicates suicide.

The wife of George Parker of Ann Arbor, Mich., poured oil over her clothing and was nearly cremated before aid could be given.

Secret service men captured eight Italians, supposed counterfeiters, at Baltimore. Two were women, who were caught passing bogus coin.

Dr. Burnett, who entered into a compact with Mrs. Nicholl to commit suicide at Chicago, but failed to keep his word after she was dead, must serve fifteen years in the penitentiary for being an accomplice.

The court-martial of Capt. J. L. Hines is closed at Plattburg, N. Y., and the verdict will undoubtedly exonerate him from the charges of cruelty.

The anti-negro crusade at Harrisburg, Ill., has reached such a stage that notices have been posted warning all negroes to leave the town. The governor has been appealed to.

William Denison assaulted Rev. T. B. Roberts because he considered the latter too attentive to Miss Kittie Ackerman, organist of the Baptist church at Oran, N. Y.

A criminal warrant charging forgery was sworn out at Muskegon, Mich., for Luther W. Shear, the district agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, who disappeared last week.

Mrs. Margaret Feeney, wife of a horse jockey, has committed suicide at Durango, Col., by taking morphine. Seh was separated from her husband. She was the widow of Bob Ford, the slayer of Jesse James.

From Other Shores.

Irkutusk reports say thousands are dying of famine throughout Siberia.

The engagement is announced of Lord Francis Hope and Miss Beatrice Ricketts, his cousin.

It was announced in Madrid that the government has decided to appoint a minister to the Cuban republic.

The provisions exchange in Liverpool will be closed June 26 and 27, in observance of the coronation festivities.

President Palma denies the report that Gen. Gomez was bought off in connection with the presidency of Cuba.

Reports from Venezuela are to the effect that the revolutionary has succeeded in overturning the government.

Forty-three Chinese laborers from New York have been ordered, at Havana to return via the steamer that brought them.

A bad cyclone accompanied by a tidal wave has swept over Kurrachee, the principal seaport town of the province of Sinde, in India.

The surrender of Boers is proceeding rapidly. Gen. De Wet, welcomed everywhere as their ideal hero, urges them to give up their arms.

An "about face" order during the military exercises at Berlin, caused the Lancers to charge on Gen. von Backund Pollach, who was seriously injured.

The betrothal of Prince Nicholas, third son of the King of Greece, and Grand Duchess Helen, daughter of Grand Duke Vladimir of Russia, is announced.

Julie Opp, the American actress, has been granted a divorce in London, on the ground of desertion and misconduct on the part of her husband, Robert Loraine, an actor.

Mexico has exported so much of her cheap silver currency that she is now buying from the American Smelting and Refining company 500,000 ounces weekly for coinage.

Another uproar took place in the French chamber of deputies recently, and the words "liar" and "imbecile" flew back and forth, resulting in at least one challenge.

Redmond, Dillon and many others are defendants in a suit brought by Lord de Freyne, on a charge of conspiring, in connection with tenant troubles on the latter's estate.

During a vote on a new clause to the license bill for public houses in the house of commons, the government would have been defeated but for the support of Unionist members.

Bodies of seven members of the Fifth cavalry, captured May 30 by ladrones, have been recovered at Manila, but cut limb from limb and so mutilated otherwise as to be hardly recognizable.

Accidental Happenings.

Joseph Killian was killed by lightning on the shore of Lake Calumet at Chicago.

Fire wiped out Alexander City, Ala., a city of 1,500 inhabitants, causing a loss of $750,000.

Two street cars collided near the Casino in Toledo, Ohio. Seven people were injured; none fatally.

Fire in the Mengel Box company's plant in Louisville caused a loss of $50,000; fully covered by insurance.

Fire destroyed Berg's hat factory at Orange, N. J. Loss, $225,000. Seven hundred employes will be thrown out of work.

Twenty-five people were injured by the blowing down of the main tent of the Harris Nickel Plate circus at Sigourney, Iowa.

A rooster sank its spurs so deep in the head of a little daughter of William Blankenship at Hopkinsville, Ky., that she is expected to die.

Clarence Foster, married, and Sarah Lawrence, single, were found drowned in Shinnecook bay, L. I., the former being very much mutilated, indicating murder.

Senator Ellsworth and invited guests on a trolley car were struck by another car running forty miles an hour at Lockport, N. Y., twenty being injured, two fatally.

Mrs. Wilson, the wife of Gen. John M. Wilson, formerly chief of engineers of the army, but now on the retired list, died in Washington, the result of a fall from a stepladder.

The Memorial German Episcopal, Lady of Sorrows Catholic, and Calvary Presbyterian churches at Chicago were struck by lightning. One hundred children in the latter Sunday school were rescued without injury.

A collision between the fast mail and an accommodation train at Chattanooga, Tenn., caused the death of L. A. Rankin and James Bernard, firemen; George Rollins and George J. Ray, engineers, and Mr. Webb, express messenger.

James Carter, fourteen, and Lizzie Johnson, colored, were killed, and Marvin Collins, twelve, white, seriously injured by being run down by an L. & N. train on the trestle of Stoner creek, at Paris, Ky., with a crowd watching the efforts to drag the creek for the body of a drowned boy.

WAR ON THE REDS

CITIZENS OF PATERSON, N. J., FORM A VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.

ANARCHISTS MUST GET OUT

LEADING SPIRITS ARE BEING SHADOWED BY PRIVATE DETECTIVES.

STARVE THEM OUT OF THE CITY

COMMITTEE HAS $250,000 PLEDGED TO CARRY OUT ITS PURPOSES.

Paterson, N. J., June 22. — Mayor Hinchcliffe seems to be in complete control of the situation here, backed as he is by the entire peace controlling force of the city and county and a goodly portion of the state militia. The soldiers' presence has had a deterrent effect upon the reds and they are not in evidence in the city. The troops will remain on duty all night and be relieved by the deputies in the morning. No troops will do duty in the daytime unless there should be serious trouble.

An organization has been completed, composed of fifty wealthy business men of this city to be known to the public as the Paterson vigilance committee, but the membership and proceedings are not to be made public. Private detectives have already been engaged to shadow the leading reds. The anarchists are to be induced to leave Paterson quietly if possible. If they do not go the committee is said to have its own plan for action. One of the methods to be employed is said to be the keeping of a blacklist, and no matter where in Paterson a man on it obtains work, his employer will be notified to dismiss him. If this plan be carried out it will starve out of the city all anarchists who may come here. It is said the committee has $250,000 pledged by the men composing it to carry out its purposes.

QUIET IN COAL REGION.

Idle Men and Boys Keep Away From the Collieries.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 22.—This was one of the quietest days around strike headquarters since the anthracite mine workers suspended operations six weeks ago. Nothing developed, and neither President Mitchell nor the coal company officials had anything to say regarding the situation. Reports from the entire region were to the effect that all the mining towns were very quiet and that the 150,000 idle men and boys are keeping away from the collieries. The flurry occasioned by the call of a special national convention at Indianapolis has entirely subsided. President Mitchell's attention was called yesterday to the explosion in the Williamson, W. Va., mine, in which five men were reported to have been killed by some one throwing dynamite down the shaft. The national leader said he knew no more about the affair than what he saw in the newspapers, and, therefore, had nothing to say. He was non-committal when asked whether he had started an investigation as to the cause of the explosion.

MONSTER MEAT TRUST.

Armour, Swift, Nelson Morris and Hammond in the Deal.

Chicago, June 22. — The Chronicle says: A New Jersey corporation, rivaling the United States Steel corporation in magnitude, is projected. It plans to be a billion dollar concern. It may be called the American Meat company. It is announced that a gigantic consolidation has been decided upon. The packing houses that have agreed to form the big combine are what is known as the "big four," and are Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson Morris & Co. and the G. H. Hammond company. Other concerns may be admitted. Even without additions the combination of the capital of the four firms will make a stupendous centralization of wealth.

KIDNAPPED YOUTH RETURNS.

Had Nothing to Eat for Five Days and Was in Fainting Condition.

Bingham, Utah, June 22.—Nels Anderson, Jr., the youth who was kidnapped Sunday night, returned to his home yesterday in an almost fainting condition, having eaten nothing during that time. Young Anderson alleges that he was held up just outside the city limits by three masked men and imprisoned in a cave in the mountains east of Brigham, from which he escaped Thursday night.

CARNEGIE AN AMERICAN.

He Says He Is in England Only as a Recreation.

London, June 22.—Mr. Carnegie, in declining recently an invitation to become president of some schools at Shipley, wrote: "My work lies on the other side of the Atlantic. I am here for recreation. Requests to assume official duties on this side are so numerous that I have to make it a rule to decline."

BRIDGE SWEPT AWAY.

Man and Wife and Three Children Are Drowned.

La Porte, Ind., June 22.—A telegram received at Wanatah yesterday tells of the drowning of Nelson N. Reynolds of this county, his wife and three children. A bridge which they were crossing was swept into a raging stream.

Importing Soft Coal.

New York, June 22.—A cargo of bituminous coal is on its way from Wales to this city. It is being brought here as an experiment. The cargo, which contains 4,000 tons, will be put on the market, it is said, at $5 or $5.50 a ton.

Will Mourn for Albert.

London, June 22.—The court will go into mourning for three weeks for the king of Saxony, but the order of mourning will be suspended during the coronation festivities.

CORNELL CREWS WIN.

Ithacans Finish First in all the Intercollegiate Regatta Events.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 24.—Cornell won all three of the events in the Intercollegiate association regatta Saturday. The four-oared race was easy work for her, but in both the freshmen and 'varsity eights she was so closely pressed that she really had to win them in the last half mile by a display of reserve force which none of the other crews could bring to bear. The summary follows:

Four-oared race, two miles—Cornell first by five lengths; time, 10:43 3-5. Pennsylvania second by three and a half lengths; time, 10:54 4-5. Columbia third; time, 11:08.

Freshman eight-oared race, two miles—Cornell first by two and three-fourths lengths; time, 9:34 4-5. Wisconsin second by two and a half lengths; time, 9:42 4-5. Columbia third by one and one-half lengths; time, 9:49. Syracuse fourth by four lengths; time, 9:53.

'Varsity eight-oared race, four miles—Cornell first by three lengths; time, 19:05 3-5. Wisconsin second by one and one-half lengths; time, 19:13 2-5. Columbia third by one and three-fourths lengths; time, 19:18 3-5. Pennsylvania fourth by three-fourths of a length; time, 19:26. Syracuse fifth by two feet; time 19:31 2-5. Georgetown sixth; time, 19:32.

WYETH WINS DERBY.

John A. Drake's Game Colt Finishes First in Great Western Classic.

Chicago, June 24.— Coming with a sweeping stride through the stretch, the game colt Wyeth won John A. Drake his first Derby, and upheld the traditions of the race by the overthrow of the favorites and by the Western horse beating the best that could be sent from the East. There is no room for argument about the best horse winning. The race was free from rough riding or anything in the nature of a foul, was cleanly and truly run, and Wyeth was the best of the twelve three-year-old colts that lined up at the barrier before Starter Dyer. Jockey Lucien Lyne rode a sensational race on Mr. Drake's colt.

CHILD KILLS A BABE.

Michigan Girl of Twelve Accused of Causing Death by Poisoning.

Clare, Mich., June 24.—Annie Curtis of this city, a twelve-year-old girl, was taken to the county jail by Sheriff Welsh, charged with murdering the thirteen-months-old son of George Pardee by administering carbolic acid while the child was sleeping at her home. Her arrest was ordered by Prosecuting Attorney Cummings. The examination will be held before Justice Maynard July 2. The babe was discovered Thursday by the people in the house frightfully burned about the mouth. There was nobody in sight, and search was begun for the person who must have administered the dose. Suspicion fell upon the Curtis girl.

POLICEMAN IS MOBBED.

Struck a Child With a Club and the Crowd Started for Him.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 24.—At the Terre Haute-Rock Island ball game yesterday a park policeman struck an eight-year-old boy on the head with his club, knocking him unconscious. The policeman was thrown to the ground and severely handled by the crowd before he was rescued by regular and special policemen and escorted to a place of safety under the grandstand, where he was kept until a reinforcement of officers arrived. Rocks were thrown at the patrolmen as they escorted the special policeman to the patrol wagon. Several arrests were made. The boy is in a critical condition.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, June 24. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 75 @ 76c; No. 2 Northern, 74 @75c. Oats — No. 3 white, 44@44 1-2c; No. 3, 42@43 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 58@59c; No. 3, 57@58c.

Minneapolis, June 24.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 79 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 77 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 74 3-4c.

Duluth, June 24.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 78 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 76 1-4c; Manitoba, 76 1-4c; oats, 46c; rye, 55 1-2c; flax, $1.70.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 24. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 78 1-2 @ 79c; No. 2 Northern, 77 1-2@78 1-4c; July, 74 1-4c. Rye—No. 1, 58c. Barley — No. 2, 71@71 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 white, 47 1-2@48c. Corn—July, 63 1-2c.

Chicago, June 24.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 79 @ 80c; No. 3 red, 77 @ 79c; No. 2 hard winter, 75 @ 76c; No. 3 hard winter, 73 @ 75c; No. 1 Northern spring, 73@75c; No. 2 Northern spring, 72 1-2@74c; No. 3 spring, 67 @ 72 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 65@66c; No. 3, 60@61c. Oats—No. 2, 42 1-2c; No. 3, 41 1-2c.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 24.—Cattle — Beeves, $5 @ 7; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50 @ 5; stockers and feeders, $2.50 @ 4.25; yearlings and calves, $2.75@4. Hogs, $7.10@7.35; bulk, $7.15@7.25.

Chicago, June 24. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.50 @ 8; poor to medium, $4.75@7.40; stockers and feeders, $2.75 @5.25; calves, $2.50@6.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.10@7.55; good to choice heavy, $7.45@7.55. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $4.75@5; fair to choice mixed, $4@4.55; Western, $4.50@5; native lambs, $5.55@7; Western lambs, $5.50@7; spring lambs, $7.40.

South St. Paul, June 24. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $6.25@6.50; good, $5.50@6; choice cows and heifers, $5.25@5.50; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; steer calves, $2.50@3.75; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.75 @ 3.25; heifer calves, $2.25@2.25. Hogs—Prices range, $6.80@7.15; bulk, $6.95@7. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.85@6; good to choice fat lambs, $5.50@5.75; fair to good fat lambs, $5@5.50.

INTO THE WATER.

Unarmored Cruiser Denver Is Successfully Launched.

Philadelphia, June 24.—In the presence of a distinguished company of naval officers, many leading citizens from Colorado and a large number of persons from New York and other near-by cities, the unarmored cruiser Denver was successfully launched at the Neafie & Levy shipyard. Miss Roberta M. Wright, daughter of Mayor Wright of Denver, christened the vessel.

TRACK BLOWN UP

DESPERATE ATTEMPT IS MADE TO WRECK A CIRCUS TRAIN.

DYNAMITE IS MADE USE OF TRACK DYNAMITED IN SEVEN PLACES WITHIN FOUR MILES.

MOTIVE FOR DEED NOT KNOWN

EVIDENTLY A DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO DITCH THE CIRCUS TRAIN.

Duluth, June 24. — A desperate attempt was made early yesterday morning to wreck the first division of the Ringling circus train, which arrived here shortly before noon over the Northern Pacific from Ironwood. The attempt was made between Maple and Poplar, Wis., about twenty miles east of Duluth. The distance between the two stations is four miles, and the track was dynamited in seven places within that space. The motive for the destruction of the track was explained by one source in Duluth to have been the hostility of settlers on the long disputed Northern Pacific lands between Duluth and Ashland. But an altogether different construction is put upon the affair by people living in Maple and vicinity. They say that it was A Deliberate Attempt to ditch the circus train. Whether the motive was robbery or revenge for some real or fancied injury is not known. As none of the parties to the attempted train wrecking could have come in contact with the show recently, the conclusion is that robbery was the inspiration of the men who blew up the track. The first division of the circus train was delayed several hours while repairs were being made. It was about 3 a. m. when the first explosion occurred. It was heard by some of the people in Maple, but they did not suspect anything wrong was in progress. John Deterling, proprietor of the Maple hotel, and eleven guests all heard the explosion, and some of them heard more than one report. They wondered who could be out blasting or shooting so early, and dismissed the matter from their minds.

Discovered by Hoboes.

The bombardment was continued at intervals of perhaps ten minutes, the sound growing more distant all the time. If the people of Maple suspected nothing, it was not true of two hoboes who were sleeping in a box car on a siding which runs down the main line for some distance. They realized that there "was something doing," and when they were satisfied that the dynamiters were far enough off so as not to detect them they gave the alarm. Just about that time a freight train arrived, going west. The engineer was warned and the train held. Sentinels were posted to warn the Ringling trains, and a crew was ordered out from Poplar to make repairs. The dynamiters had vanished when the crew went out to examine the track.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Spectators Attempt to Mob Man Who Stops a Game.

Toma, Wis., June 24.—Mark Syverson, president of the Eastern Monroe County Fair association, stopped a baseball game on the fair grounds yesterday afternoon and was mobbed by the infuriated players and spectators. He was not seriously injured, however, as a dozen friends kept most of the crowd back. The town is greatly excited and people are standing around in little knots talking over a plan to hang Syverson in effigy. The agitation is the indirect result of the closing of the saloons on Sunday by Mayor Nuzum. Mr. Syverson is an ardent baseball enthusiast and managed last year's team, which played regularly Sunday.

SPORT CASHES IN.

Charles S. Dillon, Famous in His Line, Killed in a Runaway.

Helena, Mont., June 24.—Charles S. Dillon, one of the best known sporting men of the Northwest, was killed last night in a runaway accident while driving a fast trotting horse in from the track. Dillon was forty-six years old, and came here from Deadwood many years ago. He kept a saloon here for a long time and in recent years was engaged in gambling. He was a plunger and had made some big winnings in his day.

Good-Bye to Stage Coaches.

Crookston, Minn., June 24. — J. E. Olson of Roseau has purchased a steam automobile with a capacity for twelve passengers, which will be placed on the stage line, of which Mr. Olson is the manager, between Roseau and Stephen. The automobile arrived here yesterday from St. Paul, and will be shipped immediately to Stephen and put into service at the earliest possible moment. The machine will take the place of the old-style stages now being used on the route, and if the venture proves to be a success another machine of a similar style will be put on. It is now necessary to keep twenty-five horses to haul the stages, and Mr. Olson thinks that the new machines will save him money and at the same time give him much better service.

Accidentally Killed.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 24.—J. C. Ferguson, a frescoer, well known throughout the West, was killed at his home in this city by the accidental discharge of a small rifle, the property of his son. Ferguson was examining the gun.

Unknown Man Suicides.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 24.—While the steamer Racine of the Goodrich line was off Waukegon Sunday morning on her trip to this city from Chicago an unidentified man jumped overboard and was drowned.

MITCHELL ISSUES AN ADDRESS.

Miners' Side of the Strike Is Fully Set Forth.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 24.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mineworkers of America, yesterday issued an address to the public. It is partly a reply to the letters of the operators declining to accede to the demands of the union which were published about ten days ago. Briefly summarized, the address says that every possible means was resorted to in the effort to prevent the strike, claims that the cost of living has increased to the point where the miner was compelled to ask for higher wages, denies the allegations of the operators that the productive capacity of the mineworkers has fallen off, but, on the other hand, has increased; quotes official figures to substantiate the contention that the employers can pay higher wages without increasing the cost of coal to consumers, asserts that the coal-carrying railroads which control about 85 per cent of the mines absorb the profits of their coal companies by charging exorbitant freight rates; claims that a ton at the mines means anywhere from 2,740 to 3,190 pounds instead of 2,240, and says that more men are killed and injured in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania annually than were killed and wounded during the Spanish-American war. The address also says that in the event the union is crushed, which it adds is not likely, a new organization would rise from its ruins. It concludes with another appeal for arbitration of all questions in dispute.

MUFFLES THE GUNS.

French Officer Invents a Valuable Contrivance.

New York, June 24.—Col Humbert, a French artillery officer, has invented an apparatus which, applied to a rifle or to a rapid-firing cannon, completely suppresses the flash, sound and smoke, even of black gun powder. Col. Humbert says:

"I have succeeded in converting the explosive powder which has been known for centuries into a motor power giving impulse to projectiles from rifles and cannon without report, without smoke, without flash, without recoil and without any diminution of force or effect."

The military authorities here attach supreme importance to this discovery, which they consider will bring about a complete revolution in the methods of warfare.

HOTEL COLLAPSES.

Several People Are Burned in the Debris.

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—The St. James hotel collapsed at 2 o'clock this morning. There were known to be thirteen guests in the hotel, of whom three have been taken out up to this hour, one dead and two injured. Those injured are J. Fife and James Nolan, the well known sporting writer. Nolan is thought to be internally injured. Firemen are working on the ruins and more bodies will be brought out soon. Mr. Fletcher, manager of the hotel, was too dazed to talk, but it was learned from one of the guests who escaped that there were thirteen in the building when it collapsed. The building is an old one, having been erected twenty-five or thirty years ago.

GEN. WHEATON RETURNS.

Glad to Be Home Again and Is in Fairly Good Health.

San Francisco, June 24.—Maj. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, who arrived last evening from the Philippines on the United States transport Sherman, which was held in quarantine, returns in fairly good health. His long stay in the islands and the responsibilities he has had have aged him greatly. He is very glad to be home again and looks forward with pleasure to the time when he can leave the vessel for land. Maj. Gen. Wheaton left for Manila in January, 1899, and has been in charge of a district and has displayed great executive ability in enjoining the natives from revolting.

KILLED IN A FIGHT.

Rival Divekeepers Indulge in a Fatal Combat.

Middlesboro, Ky., June 24.—A fight in Cabin Hollow yesterday, five miles from town, between rival divekeepers, resulted in the death of Henry and James Shackelford, brothers, and the fatal wounding of Smith Overton. The Shackelfords ran a saloon in Cabin Hollow, and a short distance away was one owned by Luke Hopper and Henry Miller. The proprietors of the two places frequently quarreled. It is reported that Hopper killed both Shackelford brothers. Overton belonged to Hopper's side. No arrests have been made and more trouble is expected.

SCARED TO SUICIDE.

Postmistress Frightened by Appearance of Inspector.

Richmond, Va., June 24.—Mrs. A. E. Scott, the postmistress at Prospect, Va., committed suicide at her home by tieing one end of a rope around her neck, the other to the balusters and jumping over. She died from strangulation. She left a note to her husband, saying she was several hundred dollars short in her accounts at the office, which she wished him to pay and save her bondsmen. The appearance of a postoffice inspector was the cause of the deed.

Lord Milner Sworn In.

Pretoria, June 24.—Lord Milner, who was British high commissioner in South Africa, took the oath as governor of the Transvaal here yesterday in the presence of a large assemblage of people. He was heartily cheered by those present and a salute in his honor was fired from the fort.

Bride of Alfonso.

London, June 24.—The correspondent of the Daily Express at Rome says that the queen dowager of Spain has asked the pope to suggest an eligible bride for King Alfonso. It is reported the pontiff has recommended either an Austrian or a Bavarian princess.

Frost Damages Gardens.

Lincoln, Neb., June 24.—Frost is reported from many localities in Western Nebraska. Along the Platte valley west of Kearney it did some damage to gardens.

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF THE DAY'S GAMES IN THE THREE BIG CIRCUITS.

ST. PAUL DROPS ANOTHER ONE

MILWAUKEE TAKES ONE AND KANSAS CITY AND TOLEDO BREAK EVEN.

CHICAGO WINS RECORD-BREAKER

A NINETEEN-INNING GAME WITH THE CHAMPION PITTSBURG TEAM.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	34	18	.654	Kan. City	25	28	.472
Indianapolis	30	20	.600	Milwaukee	23	28	.451
St. Paul	30	21	.588	Minneapolis	19	32	.373
Columbus	30	24	.556	Toledo	21	36	.368

At Louisville.

Louisville.	H.	P.	A.	E.	St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Kerwin rf	0	4	0	0	Geier 3b	1	1	1	0
Clymer cf	0	1	0	0	Huggins 2b	0	3	2	0
Gannon 1b	1	4	0	0	Chech lf	0	4	1	0
Ganzell 2b	1	3	2	0	Lumley rf	0	1	1	0
Flournoy lf	1	2	1	0	Shannon cf	1	2	0	0
Tannehill ss	1	2	2	1	Kelley 1b	0	9	1	0
Spies c	1	10	0	0	Hurley c	1	3	1	2
Schaub 3b	2	1	2	1	Lynch ss	0	4	3	1
Flaherty p	1	0	2	1	Stimmel p	2	0	1	1
Totals	8	27	9	3	Totals	5	27	11	4

Louisville ....0 0 0 0 2 3 1 1 1—8
St. Paul..........0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1

Left on bases—Louisville 4, St. Paul 7. Three-base hits—Ganzell, Flournoy, Flaherty 2. Sacrifice hit—Kerwin. Double plays—Chech and Hurley; Tannehill, Ganzell and Gannon. Stolen bases—Clymer, Tannehill. Struck out—By Flaherty 9, by Stimmel 1. Base on balls—By Flaherty 4, by Stimmel 4. Time—1:45. Umpire—Ward.

At Toledo.

First Game—

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Mock lf	0	0	0	0	Nance cf	1	2	0	0
Burns 2b	2	2	2	0	Grady 3b	1	2	1	1
Owen 3b	2	2	2	0	Smith lf	0	4	0	0
Kleinow 1b	0	12	0	0	Leewe ss	0	0	2	0
Coggswell rf	1	0	0	0	Gear rf	0	0	0	0
Myers ss	2	0	4	1	Beville c	2	3	1	0
Gilks cf	1	2	0	0	Rothfuss 1b	0	10	0	0
Graffius c	1	6	4	0	McBride 2b	1	2	5	0
Hughey p	0	0	1	0	McDonald p	1	0	2	0
Totals	9	27	13	1	Totals	6	24	11	1

Toledo ....0 0 0 0 0 2 1 0 x—3
Kansas City..........0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—2

Two-base hits—Burns 2, Coggswell, Grady, McBride, Owen. Home runs—Owen, Beville. Sacrifice hit—Kleinow. Stolen bases—Gear, Myers. Struck out—By McDonald 4, by Hughey 5. Bases on balls—Hughey 3. Wild pitch—Hughey. Hit with ball—McDonald 1. Time—1:50. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—4,000.

Second Game—

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Mock p	1	0	0	0	Nance cf	3	3	0	0
Burns 2b	2	2	4	0	Grady 3b	1	1	1	0
Owen 3b	1	3	1	0	Smith lf	1	4	0	0
Kleinow 1b	1	4	0	0	Leewe ss	0	1	1	0
Coggswell lf	1	3	0	0	Gear rf	0	1	0	0
Myers ss	0	1	1	1	Beville c	3	4	1	0
Gilks cf	0	4	0	0	Rothfuss 1b	1	8	0	1
Graffius c	1	6	2	0	McBride 2b	2	1	4	0
Pardee rf	0	1	0	0	Foreman p	1	1	1	0
Totals	7	24	8	1	Totals	14	24	8	1

Toledo..........0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—2
Kansas City..........1 0 0 0 3 1 0 0 5—10

Two-base hits—Mock, Burns, Kleinow, Graffius, Nance 2, Grady 3, Smith, Beville 2, Rothfuss, McBride, Foreman. Sacrifice hits—Myers, Grady. Double play—Graffius to Burns. Struck out—By Foreman 4, by Mock 1. Bases on balls—Foreman 2. Time—1:40. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—3,000.

At Columbus.

Columbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Mil.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hart cf	2	5	0	0	Hallman rf	0	1	0	0
Nattress ss	0	2	2	1	Clingman ss	0	0	4	0
Knoll lf	0	2	0	0	McBride cf	1	3	0	0
Myers rf	0	1	0	0	Schiebeck 2b	1	3	1	0
Grim 1b	1	11	0	0	Dungan lf	1	3	1	0
Viox 2b	0	0	3	0	Runkle 1b	0	11	0	0
Turner 3b	1	1	2	0	McAndws 3b	0	2	0	0
Fox c	0	2	0	0	Speer c	1	4	0	0
Wagner p	1	1	0	0	Herman p	0	0	5	1
Popp p	0	0	2	0
Totals	5	24	9	1	Totals	4	27	12	1

Columbus ....0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2
Milwaukee ....0 0 3 0 0 2 0 0 x—5

Stolen base—Clingman. Sacrifice hits—Nattress, McBride. Two-base hits—Schiebeck, Dungan. Innings pitched—By Wagner 6, by Popp 2. Hits made—Off Wagner 4. Struck out—By Wagner 2, by Herman 4. Bases on balls—By Wagner 0, by Herman 1. Hit by pitched ball—By Herman 1. Passed ball—Fox. Time—1:45. Umpire—Haskell.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	30	18	.625	Detroit	24	26	.480
Boston	29	24	.547	Washington	24	28	.462
Philadelph	25	23	.521	Baltimore	24	29	.453
St. Louis	25	23	.521	Cleveland	22	32	.407

At Chicago.

First Game—
Chicago ....0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—2
Baltimore ....0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 1—3
Second Game—
Chicago ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Baltimore ....0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2

At Fort Wayne, Ind.

Cleveland ....1 2 0 1 0 2 0 0 x—6
Washington ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 1—4

At Detroit.

Detroit ....0 0 1 0 1 0 1 0 0—3
Boston ....0 0 0 1 0 2 2 0 2—7

At St. Louis.

St. Louis..........0 0 5 0 1 1 0 0 x—7
Philadelphia ....0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0 1—4

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	38	11	.776	Philadelphia	22	30	.423
Brooklyn	29	23	.558	Cincinnati	21	30	.412
Chicago	27	22	.551	New York	20	29	.408
Boston	23	24	.489	St. Louis	20	31	.392

At Chicago.

Chicago ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3
Pittsburg ....0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

At Cincinnati.

Cincinnati ....0 0 0 0 3 2 0 2 x—7
St. Louis ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1—2

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Milwaukee and Omaha Split Even on a Double-Header.

First Game— R. H. E.
Milwaukee ....2 0 1 0 1 0 0 1 0—5 9 8
Omaha ....3 0 1 0 0 1 0 3 0—8 11 3
Second Game—
Milwaukee ....0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 3—5 14 4
Omaha ....0 0 3 1 0 0 0 0 0—4 5 3

R. H. E.
Denver ....0 0 0 4 0 0 0 0 0—4 5 1
St. Joseph ....0 0 2 0 3 0 0 2 x—7 9 4

R. H. E.
Kansas City..........1 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 x—4 8 2
Colorado Springs..........0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1 5 2

R. H. E.
Peoria ....0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 x—3 7 0
Des Moines ....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1 9 2
Afternoon Game— R. H. E.
Peoria ....3 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 5 1
Des Moines ....2 0 2 0 0 1 0 1 0—6 10 2

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Cavalier Defeats Fargo.

R. H. E.
Fargo 4 9 3
Cavalier 5 11 6

NORBECK STILL ABROAD.

Mayor Ames Orders a Clean-Up of Crooks and "Big Mitts."

St. Paul, June 20. — Mayor Ames of Minneapolis yesterday afternoon issued an order, directed to his brother, Fred W. Ames, chief of police, commanding that the city be at once freed of crooks and "big mit" men. Gambling houses and fake auction rooms, the mayor orders, are to be closed at once and kept closed. The police are directed also to close all dives and generally to see that the law is rigidly enforced. In his order the mayor intimates that if the present head of the police department cannot enforce this order, some one will be found who can. Executive changes in the police department are said to be impending.

There is no trace in Minneapolis of the whereabouts of the missing detective, Chris C. Norbeck. R. J. Hill, one of Norbeck's bondsmen, after returning to Minneapolis from a visit to St. Paul, declared it his belief that the Minneapolis police had the detective in hiding. Another story widely credited is that Norbeck has committed suicide. It is generally believed, however, that he has skipped and that he has gone to join Carrie Emerson, who left several days ago. Norbeck's bondsmen have offered a reward of $1,000 for information as to his whereabouts. It is expected that the next of the police cases to be taken up will be that of Capt. N. W. King, who has been indicted for grand larceny.

H. P. HALL FOR GOVERNOR.

He Wants to Head the Democratic Ticket.

St. Paul, June 20. — H. P. Hall, the veteran newspaper man, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Minnesota. The announcement by John Lind that he will accept the nomination for governor is the only thing that will cause him to withdraw from the race. "I want to be governor of Minnesota," said Mr. Hall last evening. "I have lived in Minnesota for forty years, and in the natural order of things cannot be expected to live a great many years longer. I would like to round out my career, if such it can be called, by being governor of the state in which I have lived so long, a state which I believe is the greatest in the Union."

STREET TRAGEDY.

Stranger Kills a Citizen Who Defied Him.

Charlton, Iowa, June 20. — A man named Zimmerman stopped in front of Mullin's restaurant, took out a revolver and a bottle of whisky. He put the whisky down on the walk and said: "I'll shoot the first man that touches that whisky." There were four men in front of the restaurant. One of them, Belden Cook, picked up the whisky and was shot by Zimmerman. He staggered toward Zimmerman, as if to clinch him, and Zimmerman fired twice more. Cook is dead and Zimmerman can't be found.

Fireman Instantly Killed.

Boscobel, Wis., June 20. — While the Chicago & Northwestern freight was crossing the Wisconsin river bridge at Merrimac, Fireman Otto Stiffen was killed by putting his head out of the cab window and being struck by a piece of iron used in rebuilding the bridge. He was twenty-three years old.

Suicide of St. James Man.

St. James, Minn., June 20. — John Olson Largeness committed suicide by hanging himself. He recently sold his farm and purchased other property, and it is believed that brooding over the financial loss incurred was responsible for his rash act. He leaves a wife and family in fair circumstances.

Accident May Be Fatal.

Lake City, Minn., June 20.—Last evening a team with a wagon belonging to Mabrey Bros., meat dealers, ran away with Mrs. Wyman Hewitt, the wife of the driver. One of the horses fell and Mrs. Hewitt was thrown out. It is not known whether her injuries are fatal.

Red Wing Wins Gold Medal.

Hastings, Minn., June 20.—The third annual tournament of the Hastings Gun club was held in this city yesterday. The five-county gold badge was won by Red Wing. Results: Red Wing, 124; Hastings, first team, 121; Lake City, 112; Hastings, second team, 115.

Metal Shelving.

Washington, June 20. — Secretary of the Treasury Shaw has submitted to congress an estimate of $2,500 for putting metal shelving for vaults in the office of the clerk of the United States courts in the St. Paul government building.

Brakeman Meets Instant Death.

Helena, Mont., June 20. — Edward Witherspoon, a brakeman, was run over and instantly killed in the Northern Pacific yards at Missoula. He was unmarried and twenty-eight years old.

School Boy Drowned.

Iron Belt, Wis., June 20.—Sam Balkie, aged eleven years and a pupil of the fifth grade, was drowned in a cave-in pool of water where he, with other schoolmates, went swimming.

Women Seriously Injured.

Helena, Mont., June 20.—One of the Wylie coaches overturned in Yellowstone Park, seriously injuring Mrs. Lettie Bates and Mrs. A. R. Griffith, both of Salem, Or.

Wind Cave Bill.

Washington, June 20—The house committee on public lands has favorably reported the bill establishing the Wind Cave National Park in South Dakota.

Ends Her Life of Sin.

Helena, Mont., June 20.—Leona Clifton, a woman of shady reputation, committed suicide at Big Timber by taking an overdose of morphine.

Electric Lineman Killed.

Helena, Mont., June 20. — George F. Nicholson, a lineman in the employ of the electric light company at Anaconda, fell from the top of a pole and broke his neck, dying instantly. It is supposed he came in contact with a live wire.

Suicide of Sheepherder.

Helena, Mont., June 20. — Lawrence Urstrum, a sheepherder in the employ of Former Senator Power of this city, committed suicide by hanging near Sunnyside. He had been dead two days when discovered.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XVI.

Margaret Sees a Ghost.

With a sigh of unutterable relief Enid heard Williams returning. Reginald Henson had not come down yet, and the rest of the servants had retired some time before. Williams came up with a request as to whether he could do anything more before he went to bed.

"Just one thing," said Enid. "The good dogs have done their work well to-night, but they have not quite finished. Find Rollo for me, and bring him here quick. Then you can shut up the house, and I will see that Mr. Henson is made comfortable after his fright."

The big dog came presently, and followed Enid timidly up stairs. Apparently the great, black-muzzled brute had been there before, as evidently he knew that he was doing wrong. He crawled along the corridor until he came to the room where the sick girl lay, and here he followed Enid. The lamp was turned down low as Enid glanced at the bed. Then she smiled, faintly, yet hopefully.

There was nobody in the room. The patient's bed was empty!

"It works well," Enid said. "May it go on as it has been started. Lie down, Rollo; lie there, good dog. If anybody comes in, tear him to pieces."

The great brute crouched down obediently, thumping his tail on the floor as an indication that he understood. As if a load had been taken from her mind, Enid crept down stairs. She had hardly reached the hall before Henson followed her. His big face was white with passion; he was trembling from head to foot with fright and pain. There was a red rash on his forehead that by no means tended to improve his appearance.

"What is the meaning of this?" he demanded, hoarsely.

Enid looked at him coolly. She could afford to do so now. All the danger was past, and she felt certain that the events of the evening were unknown to him.

"I might ask you the same question," she said. "You look white and shaken; you might have been thrown violently into a heap of stones. But please don't make a noise. It is not fitting now. Chris—"

Enid hesitated; the prevarication did not come as easily as she had expected.

"Chris has gone," she said. "She passed away an hour ago."

Henson muttered something that sounded like consolation. He could be polite and suave enough on occasions, but not to-night. Even philanthropists are selfish, at times. Moreover, his nerves were badly shaken and he wanted a stimulant badly.

"I am going to bed," Enid said, wearily. "Good-night."

She went noiselessly up stairs, and Henson passed into the library. He was puzzled over this sudden end of Christiana Henson. He was half-inclined to believe that she was not dead at all; he belonged to the class of men who believes nothing without proof. Well, he could easily ascertain that for himself. There would be quite time enough in the morning.

For a long time Henson sat there thinking and smoking, as was his usual custom. Like other great men, he had his worries and troubles, and that they were mainly of his own making did not render them any lighter. So long as Margaret Henson was under the pressure of his thumb money was no great object. But there were other situations where money was utterly powerless.

Henson was about to give it up as a bad job, for the night, at any rate. He wondered bitterly, what his admirers would say if they knew everything. He wondered—what was that?

Somebody creeping about the house, somebody talking in soft, though distinct, whispers. His quick ears detected that sound instantly. He slipped into the hall; Margaret Henson was there, with the remains of what had once been a magnificent opera cloak over her shoulders.

"How you startled me!" Henson said, irritably. "Why don't you go to bed?"

Enid looked over the balustrade from the landing, wondering, also, but she kept herself prudently hidden. The first words that she heard drove all the blood from her heart.

"I cannot," the feeble, moaning voice said. "The house is full of ghosts; they haunt and follow me everywhere. And Chris is dead, and I have seen her spirit."

"So I'm told," Henson said, with brutal callousness. "What was the ghost like?"

"Like Chris. All pale and white, with a frightened look on her face. And she was all dressed in white, too, with a cloak about her shoulders. And just when I was going to speak to her she turned and disappeared into Enid's bedroom. And there are other ghosts—"

"One at a time, please," Henson said, grimly. "So Christiana's ghost passed into her sister's bedroom? You come and sit quietly in the library, while I investigate matters."

Margaret Henson complied, in her dull, mechanical way, and Enid flew, like a flash of light, to her room. Another girl was there—a girl exceedingly like her, but looking wonderfully pale and drawn.

"That fiend suspects," Enid said. "How unfortunate it was that you should meet aunt like that. Chris, you must go back again. Fly to your own room and compose yourself. Only let him see you lying white and still, there, and he must be satisfied."

Chris rose, with a shudder.

"And if the wretch offers to touch me," she moaned. "If he does—"

"He will not. He dare not. Heaven help him if he tries an experiment of that kind. If he does Rollo will kill him to a certainty!"

"Ah, I had forgotten that faithful dog. Those dogs are more useful to us than a score of men. I will go by the back way, and through my dressing room. Oh, Enid, how glad I shall be to find myself outside the walls of this dreadful house!"

She flew along the corridor and gained her room in safety. It was an instant's work to throw off her cloak and compose herself rigidly under a single white sheet. But though she lay still, her heart was beating to suffocation as she heard the creak and thud of a heavy step coming up the stairs. Then the door was opened in a stealthy way, and Henson came in. He could see the outline of the white figure, and a sigh of satisfaction escaped him. A less suspicious man would have retired at once; a man less engaged upon his task would have seen two great, amber eyes close to the floor.

"An old woman's fancy," he muttered. "Still, as I am here, I will make sure that—"

He stretched out his hand to touch the marble forehead, there was a snarl and a gurgle, and Henson came to the floor with a hideous crash that carried him staggering beyond the door into the corridor. Rollo had the intruder by the throat; a thousand blue and crimson stars danced before the wretched man's eyes; he grappled with his foe with one last despairing effort, and then there came over him a vague, warm unconsciousness. When he came to himself he was lying in his bed, with Williams and Enid bending over him.

"How did it happen?" Enid asked, with simulated anxiety.

"I—I was walking along the corridor," Henson gasped, "going—going to bed, you see; and one of those diabolical dogs must have got into the house. Before I knew what I was doing, the creature flew at my throat and dragged me to the floor. Telephone for Walker at once. I am dying, Williams."

He fell back once more, utterly lost to his surroundings. There was a great, gaping, raw wound at the side of the throat that caused Enid to shudder.

"Do you think he is—dead, Williams?" she asked.

"No such luck as that," Williams said, with the air of a confirmed pessimist. "I hope you locked that there bed room door, and put the key in your pocket, miss. I suppose we'd better send for the doctor, unless you and me puts him out of his misery. There's one comfort, however, Mr. Henson will be in bed for the next fortnight, at any rate, so he'll be powerless to do any prying about the house. The funeral will be over long before he's about again."

* * *

The first grey streaks of dawn were in the air as Enid stood outside the lodge gates. She was not alone, for a neat figure in grey, marvellously like her, was by her side. The figure in grey was dressed for travelling and she carried a bag in her hand.

"Good-bye, dear, and good luck to you," she said. "It is dangerous to delay."

"You have absolutely everything that you require?" Enid asked.

"Everything. By the time you are at breakfast I shall be in London. And once I am there the search for the secret will begin in earnest."

"You are sure that Reginald Henson suspected nothing?"

"I am perfectly certain that he was satisfied; indeed, I heard him say so. Still, if it had not been for the dogs! We are going to succeed, Enid, something at my heart tells me so. See how the sun shines on your face and in your dear eyes. Au revoir, an omen—an omen of a glorious future."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Pace Slackens.

Steel lay sleepily back in the cab, not quite sure whether his cigarette was alight or not. They were well into the main road again before Bell spoke.

"It is pretty evident that you and I are on the same track," he said.

"I am certain that I am on the right one," David replied; "but, when I come to consider the thing calmly, it seems more by good luck than anything else. I came out with you to-night seeking adventure, and I am bound to admit that I found it. Also, I found the lady who interviewed me in the darkness, which is more to the point."

"As a matter of fact, you did nothing of the kind," said Bell, with the suggestion of a laugh.

"Oh! Case of the wrong room over again. I was ready to swear to it. Whom did I speak to? Whose voice was it that was so very much like hers?"

"The lady's sister, Enid Henson was not at 218, Brunswick Square, on the night in question. Of that you may be certain. But it's a queer business altogether. Rascality I can understand. I am beginning to comprehend the plot of which I am a victim. But I don't mind admitting that up to the present I fail to comprehend why those girls evolved the grotesque scheme for getting assistance at your hands. The whole thing savours of madness."

"I don't think so," David said, thoughtfully. "The girls are romantic as well as clever. They are bound together by the common ties of a common enmity towards a cunning and utterly unscrupulous scoundrel. By the merest accident in the world they discovered that I am in a position to afford them valuable advice and assistance. At the same time they don't want me to be brought into the business for two reasons—the first, because the family secret is a sacred one; the second, because any disclosures would land me in great physical danger. Therefore they put their heads together and evolve this scheme. Call it a mad venture if you like, but if you consider the history of your own country you can find wilder schemes evolved and carried out by men who have had brains enough to be trusted with the fortunes of the nation. If these girls had been less considerate for my safety—"

"But," Bell broke in, eagerly, "they failed in that respect at the very outset. You must have been spotted instantly by the foe, who has cunningly placed you in a dangerous position, perhaps as a warning to mind your own business in future. And if those girls come forward to save you—and to do so they must appear in public, mind you—they are bound to give away the whole thing. Mark the beautiful cunning of it. My word, we have a foe worthy of our steel to meet."

"We? Do you mean to say that your enemy and mine is a common one?"

"Certainly. When I found my foe I found yours!"

"And who may he be, by the same token?"

"Reginald Henson. Mind you, I had no more idea of it than the dead when I went to Longdean Grange to-night. I went there because I had begun to suspect who occupied the place, and to try and ascertain how the Rembrandt engraving got into 218 Brunswick Square. Miss Gates must have heard us talking over the matter, and that was why she went to Longdean Grange to-night."

"I hope she got home safe," said David. "The cabman says he put her down opposite the Lawns."

"I hope so. Well, I found out who the foe was. And I have a pretty good idea why he played the trick upon me. He knew that Enid Henson and myself were engaged; he could see what a danger to his schemes it would be to have a man like myself in the family. Then the second Rembrandt turned up, and there was his chance for wiping me off the slate. After that came the terrible family scandal between Lord Littimer and his wife. I cannot tell you anything of that, because I cannot speak with definite authority. But you could judge of the effect of it on Lady Littimer to-night."

"I haven't the faintest recollection of seeing Lady Littimer to-night."

"My dear fellow, the poor lady whom you met as Mrs. Henson is really Lady Littimer. Henson is her maiden name, and those girls are her nieces. Trouble has turned the poor woman's brain. And at the bottom of the whole mystery is Reginald Henson, who is not only nephew on his mother's side, but is also next heir but one to the Littimer title. At the present moment he is blackmailing the unhappy creature, and is maneuvering to get the whole of her large fortune into his hands. Reginald Henson is the man those girls want to circumvent, and for that reason they came to you. And Henson has found it out, to a certain extent, and placed you in an awkward position."

"Witness my involuntary guest and the notes, and the cigar case," David said. "But does he know what I advised one of the girls—my princess of the dark room—to do?"

"I don't fancy he does. You see, that advice was conveyed by word of mouth. The girls dared not trust themselves to correspondence, otherwise they might have approached you in a more prosaic manner. But I confess you startled me to-night."

"What do you mean by that?"

"When you sent me that note. What you virtually asked me to do was to countenance murder. When I went into the sick room I saw that Christiania Henson was dying. The first idea that flashed across my mind was that Reginald Henson was getting the girl out of the way for his own purposes. My dear fellow, the whole atmosphere literally spoke of albumen. Walker must have been blind not to see how he was being deceived. I was about to give him my opinion, pretty plainly, when your note came up to me. And there was Enid, with her whole soul in her large eyes, pleading for my silence. If the girl died I was accessory after and before the fact. You will admit that that was a pretty tight place to put a doctor in."

"That's because you didn't know the facts of the case, my dear Bell."

"Then, perhaps you'll be so good as to enlighten me," Bell said, drily.

"Certainly. That was part of my scheme. In the synopsis of the story obtained by the girls, by more or less mechanical means, the reputed death of a patient formed the crux of the tale. The idea occurred to me, after reading a charge against a medical student some time ago, in the 'Standard.' The man wanted to get himself out of the way; he wanted to be considered as dead, in fact. By the artful use of albumen in certain doses he produced symptoms of disease which will be quite familiar to you. He made himself so ill that his doctor naturally concluded that he was dying. As a matter of fact, he was dying. Had he gone on in the same way another day he would have been dead. Instead of this, he drops the dosing and, going to his doctor, in disguise, says that he is dead. He gets a certificate of his own demise, and there you are. I am not telling you fiction, but hard fact, recorded in a high-class paper. The doctor gave the certificate without viewing the body. Well, it struck me that we had here the making of a good story, and I vaguely outlined it for a certain editor. In my synopsis I suggested that it was a woman who proposed to pretend to die thus so as to lull the suspicions of a villain to sleep, and thus possess herself of certain vital documents. My synopsis falls into certain hands. The owner of these hands asks me how the thing was done. I tell her. In other words, the so-called murder that you imagined you had discovered to-night was the result of design. Walker will give his certificate. Reginald Henson will regard Miss Christiana as dead and buried, and she will be free to act for the honor of the family."

"But they might have employed somebody else."

"Who would have had to be told the story of the family dishonor. So far, I fancy, I have made the ground quite clear. But the mystery of the cigar case and the notes and the poor fellow in the hospital is still as much a mystery as ever. We are like two allied forces working together, but at the same time at the disadvantage of working in the dark. You can see, of course, that the awful danger I stand in is as terrible for those poor girls."

"Of course I do. She will have a key to your trouble. It is a dreadfully rusty one and will want a deal of oiling before it is used, but there it is."

"Where, my dear fellow, where?" David asked.

"Why, in the Sussex county hospital, of course. The man may die, in which case everything must be sacrificed in order to save your good name. On the other hand, he may get better, and then he will tell us all about it."

"He might. On the other hand, he might plead ignorance. It is possible for him to suggest that the whole affair was merely a coincidence, so far as he was concerned."

"Yes; but he would have to explain how he burgled your house, and what business he had to get himself half-murdered in your conservatory. Let us get out here and walk the rest of the way to your house. Our cabby knows quite enough about us without having definite views as to your address."

The cabman was dismissed with a handsome douceur, and the two turned off the front at the corner of Eastern Terrace. Late as it was, there were a few people lounging under the hospital wall, where there was a suggestion of activity about the building unusual at that time of the night. A rough-looking fellow who seemed to have followed Bell and Steel from the front, dropped into seat by the hospital gates and laid his head back, as if utterly worn out. Just inside the gates a man was smoking a cigarette.

"Hallo Cross!" David cried, "you are out late to-night!"

"Heavy night," Cross responded, sleepily, "with half a score of accidents to finish with. Some of Palmer of Lingfield's private patients thrown off a coach and brought here in the ambulance. Unless I am greatly mistaken, this is Hatherly Bell with you."

"The same," Bell said, cheerfully. "I recollect you in Edinburgh. So some of Palmer's patients have come to grief? Most of his special cases used to pass through my hands."

"I've got one here to-night who recollects you perfectly well," said Cross. "He's got a dislocated shoulder, but otherwise he's doing well. Got a mania that he's a doctor who murdered a patient."

"Electric light anything to do with the story?" Bell asked, eagerly.

"That's the man. Seems to have a wonderfully brilliant intellect if you can only keep him off that topic. He spotted you in North street, yesterday, and seemed wonderfully disappointed to find you had nothing whatever to do with this institution."

"If he is not asleep," Bell suggested, "and you have no objection—"

Cross nodded and opened the gate. Before passing inside Bell took the rolled-up Rembrandt from his breast pocket and handed it to David.

"Take care of this for me," he whispered. "I'm going inside. I've dropped upon an old case that interested me very much years ago, and I'd like to see my patient again. See you in the morning, I expect. Good-night."

David nodded in reply and went his way. It was intensely quiet and still now; the weary loafer at the outside hospital seat had disappeared. There was nobody to be seen anywhere as David placed his key in the latch and opened the door. Inside the hall light was burning, and so was the shaded electric lamp in the conservatory. The study leading to the conservatory was in darkness. The effect of the light behind was artistic and pleasing.

It was with a sense of comfort and relief that David fastened the door behind him. Without putting up the light in the study David laid the Rembrandt on the table, which was immediately below the window in his work room. The night was hot; he pushed the top sash down liberally.

"I must get that transparency removed," he murmured, "and have the window filled with stained glass. The stuff is artistic, but it is so frankly what it assumes to be."

CHAPTER XVIII.

A Common Enemy.

David idly mixed himself some whisky and soda water in the dining room, where he finished his cigarette. He was tired and ready for bed now, so tired that he could hardly find energy enough to remove his boots and get into the big carpet slippers that were so old and worn. He put down the dining room lights and strolled into the study. Just for a moment he sat there, contemplating with pleased, tired eyes the wilderness of bloom before him.

Then he fell into a reverie, as he frequently did. An idea for a fascinating story crept, unbidden, into his mind. He gazed vaguely around him. Some little noise attracted his attention, the kind of a noise made by a sweep's brushes up a chimney. David turned idly towards the open window. The top of it was but faintly illuminated by the light of the conservatory gleaming dully on the transparency over the glass. But David's eyes were keen, and he could see, distinctly, a man's thumb, crooked downwards over the frame of the sash. Somebody had climbed up the telephone holdfasts, and was getting in the window. Steel slipped well into the shadow, but not before an idea had come to him. He removed the rolled-up Rembrandt from the table and slipped it behind a row of books in the book case. Then he looked up again at the crooked thumb.

He would recognize that thumb again anywhere. It was flat like the head of a snake, and the nail was no larger than a pea—a thumb that had evidently been cruelly smashed at one time. The owner of the thumb might have been a common burglar, but, in the light of recent events, David was not inclined to think so. At any rate he felt disposed to give his own theory every chance. He saw a long, fustian-covered arm follow the scarred thumb, and a hand grope all over the table.

"Curse me!" a foggy voice whispered, hoarsely. "It ain't here. And the bloke told me—"

The voice said no more, for David grabbed at the arm and caught the wrist in a vice-like grip. Instantly another arm shot over the window and an ugly piece of iron piping was swung perilously near Steel's head. Unfortunately, he could see no face. As he jumped back to avoid a blow his grasp relaxed, there was a dull thud outside, followed by the tearing scratch of boots against a wall and the hollow clatter of flying feet. All David could do was to close the window and regret that his impetuosity had not been more judiciously restrained.

"Now, what particular thing was he after?" he asked himself. "But I had better defer any further speculations on the matter until morning. After the fright he had, my friend won't come back again. And I'm just as tired as a dog."

But there were other things the next day to occupy David's attention besides the visit of his nocturnal friend. He had found out enough the previous evening to encourage him to go further. And, surely, Miss Ruth Gates could not refuse to give him further information.

He started out to call at 219 Brunswick Square, as soon as he deemed it excusable to do so. Miss Gates was out, the solemn butler said, but she might be found in the square gardens. David came upon her presently, with a book in her lap and herself under a shady tree. She was not reading. Her eyes were far away. As she gave David a warm greeting there was a tender bloom on her lovely face.

"Oh, yes, I got home quite right," she said. "No suspicion was aroused at all. And you?"

"I had a night thrilling enough for yellow covers, as Artemus Ward says. I came here this morning to throw myself on your mercy, Miss Gates. Were I disposed to do so, I have information enough to force your hand. But I prefer to hear everything from your lips."

"Did Enid tell you anything?" Ruth faltered.

"Well, she allowed me to know a great deal. In the first place, I know that she had a great hand in bringing me to 218 the other night. I know that it was you who suggested the idea, and it was you who facilitated the use of Mr. Gates' telephone. How the thing was stage-managed matters very little at present. It turns out now that your friend and Dr. Bell and myself have a common enemy."

Ruth looked up swiftly. There was something like fear in her eyes.

"Have—have you discovered the name of that enemy?" she asked.

"Yes; I know that our foe is Mr. Reginald Henson."

(To be Continued.)

"MISS" OR "MRS."

A Few Americans Say "Mistress" Instead of "Missis—The New Woman in Germany.

The German "advanced" women desire to follow the example of their colleagues in Paris, and to break down the barriers of custom in regard to the designation of "Frau" and "Fraulein." A meeting was held last week in Berlin, under the auspices of the association for promoting the Education and Studies of Women, to discuss the knotty question. A lady, who is a doctor of law, defended the proposed innovation, namely, that after a certain age women, whether married or single, shall be entitled to call themselves Frau (Mrs.) She insisted that it was unnecessary to ticket a woman with a description of her condition—as to whether she were married or a spinster, especially seeing that, legally speaking, there was nothing to prevent a "Fraulein" calling herself "Frau." The speaker did not like the diminutive form, "Fraulein," for an elderly lady, deeming it disrespectful to her advancing years, and cited the example of the Berlin municipal council, which addresses a school mistress on her advancement to the rank of a first-class teacher (Ober-Lehrein) as "Frau." The result of the meeting was that all those present were requested to exert themselves to the utmost to get the designation "Frau" accepted among their acquaintances as the rightful form of address when speaking to a lady of years. It will be interesting to learn what is the limit of age at which a Fraulein ceases to be a Frau, irrespective of marriage. This side of the topic was wisely dropped, doubtless for fear of divergences of opinion.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Which Kind of an Ass?

Dean Van Amridge is one of the very oldest of the old school and the sternest figure in the Columbia faculty. A scholar by profession, he was born a soldier, and the glint of his eye is in perfect accord with his martial bearing, which cap and gown can not wholly conceal.

The other day a student, in the height of freshman idiocy, burst into the dean's office with some request or other on the end of his tongue. The dean was deep in a work on philosophy, but the verdant youth, without removing his hat from his head, his cigarette from his lips, or even his hands from his pockets, kicked the ponderous door shut with a bang that rattled the windows very much and the dean some. The young man's name was Thomas.

"Sir!" cried the dean, "do you know you're an ass?"

"Yes, sir—Thom-as," responded the youth, suavely.

"No, sir—jack-ass!" roared the dean, and he turned again to his books.—New York Times.

Worse and Worse.

A lawyer, with a penchant for billiards, had occasion recently to visit a small town. While there, seeking to pass his time, he found in his hotel a new and excellent billiard table. Upon inquiring if there was anybody about who played, the landlord referred him to one of the natives, who may be called John Jones.

They played several games, but the result was always against the lawyer. He couldn't win.

"Mr. Jones," he remarked, "I have quite a reputation at home. They consider me a good billiard player. But I am far behind you. May I inquire how long you have played?"

"Oh, not long," replied the native, "and I don't want to hurt your feelin's, but you're the fust feller I ever beat!"—Cassell's Journal.

Easily Read.

"Yes; she can read her husband like a book."

"Is that little, sawed-off fellow her husband?"

"Yes."

"Huh! I should think she'd read him like a paragraph."—Philadelphia Press

The Santos-Dumont No. 13.

"Yes; Biggins has completed his new airship, and will name it 'Truth.'"

"Odd name. What's the idea?"

"Well, he figures that truth crushed to earth will rise ag—"

But just then the ambulance drove up to convey his remnants to the hospital, and he finished gurgling.—Baltimore News.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John Caldwell, Minneapolis, Minn., leather-stretching device; Jesse Crosby, Madelia, Minn., corn husker and fodder shredder; Irving Hicks, Minneapolis, Minn., flue cutter mechanism; Peter Hole, McIntosh, Minn., car ventilator; Francis C. Peabody, St. Paul, Minn., wrench; Thor Rye, Minneota, Minn., miter joint for eaves troughs; William Watson, Ada, Minn., tobacco cutter.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Room in the Procession.

Clara—Dear Isabel, you are at last a successful artist!

Isabel—O, Clara, I don't feel myself a success. I've just moved up a little, because a lot of older strugglers have got tired and quit.—Detroit Free Press.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, (Specialist.) Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Fargo, N. D.

Two Great Facts.

She—How many men owe their success in life to their wives?

"Yes. And how many more men owe their wives to their success in life."—

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75 cents

Confirmed.

Clara—He told me that although you had refused him, he knew that he would get over it.

Maud—That's what I was afraid of.—

Stops the Cough and Works Off the Cold
Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. Price 25c.

Water will not extinguish the spark of love—but it takes something stronger to scent the breath of suspicion.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The man who goes to church "just for the looks of the thing," will bear watching.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Ave., N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

It always seems strange that a woman should want to wear a serpent, even if it be only of gold.

Cole's Carbolisalve
The Great Skin Remedy
will stop the pain of burns and scalds at once and there will be no scar. Don't wait until someone gets burned but keep a box handy. 25 and 50 cents by all druggists.

ALABASTINE FOR YOUR SCHOOL HOUSES
Cleanly and Sanitary Durable and Artistic
Safeguards Health
The delicate tints are made with special reference to the protection of pupils' eyes. Beware of paper and germ-absorbing and disease-breeding Kalsomines.
ALABASTINE COMPANY,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

LIBBY Luncheons
We seal the product in key-opening cans. Turn a key and you find the meat exactly as it left us. We put them up in this way
Potted Ham, Beef and Tongue, Ox Tongue (whole), Veal Loaf, Deviled Ham, Brisket Beef, Sliced Smoked Beef.
All Natural Flavor Foods. Palatable and wholesome. Your grocer should have them.
Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago
"How to Make Good Things to Eat" will be sent free if you ask us.

YOU CAN DO IT TOO
Over 2,000,000 people are now buying goods from us at wholesale prices—saving 15 to 40 per cent on everything they use. You can do it too.
Why not ask us to send you our 1,000-page catalogue?—it tells the story. Send 15 cents for it today.
Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

THE DESCENT OF MAN

TRAITS OF BABIES A PROOF OF MONKEY THEORY.

Queer Manipulation of the Hands and Feet by the Young of the Human Race—Relics of the Tree-Climbing Stage.

The baby has the power to move its toes independently—that wriggling of the toes so often commented upon by mothers. This form of movement is a heritage from those ancestors who, like modern monkeys, would have used the fingers of their hind feet as we do the fingers of our hands.

So in any zoological gardens monkeys may be seen hanging on to a bar above by their hands and using a hind foot (hand) to pick up things from the ground.

A frequent action with babies is to turn the soles of the feet sideways, opposite to one another, while the legs remain straight. Just this attitude would be assumed by a monkey when climbing a tree or walking on a branch in order to grasp the stem with its hind hands.

The inherited effects of thus grasping tree trunks or limbs with the hind hands are often very marked in young babies. The bow legs, which are a feature of infancy and a matter of some anxiety to mothers, are no more than the relics of the tree-climbing stage. And the mother need not be frightened about this character—any normally healthy baby will grow out of it soon enough.

Then if a young baby be held so that its feet touch the ground one may see that the feet are not put flat to the surface; instead, the outer portions of the feet rest on the ground, while the soles of the feet are more or less opposed to one another—they have the bough-grasping attitude.

It has been noticed above that monkeys use their hind paws like hands; their front paws they employ as implements by which to suspend their bodies from trees. For such purpose the thumb is not necessary; all that is required is a kind of grasping hook, which the fingers make efficient by themselves. The monkeys which do most tree climbing have quite lost their thumbs; their front hands are, in fact, merely grasping hooks.

Disuse of the thumb may be observed in other monkeys when they are grasping bars, and it is noticeable in babies when holding sticks or grasping a flower pot. An adult taking hold of a flower pot would put the thumb inside and make a lever of it. But the baby does not act like an adult; it does not put out its hand to take the flower pot as an adult would do. Instead, it dabs at the rim of the flower pot with the palm of its hand downward, just in the manner that a monkey dabs at a branch.

The manner in which babies hold their hands in a clasping attitude is a result of the ancestral bough-grasping habits. This attitude may be seen in monkeys generally, and in those species which lead the most aboreal life it has become a permanent feature, because of the difficulty of straightening the fingers after exertion.—Pearson's Magazine.

SOME QUEER FUNERAL RITES

Peculiar Superstitions Prevalent in South of England.

Peculiar rites at death were carried down till a recent period in rural neighborhoods in the south of England. In Lulworth corpses were occasionally laid out with a penny in one hand and a little wooden hammer in the other. When a native lay dying it was believed he would pass away "easier" if the doors and windows were allowed to remain open, the passage into the other world being still further smoothed when the pillows were stuffed with pigeons' feathers. It was sometimes the practice to arrange the bed of a sick person parallel with the boards. In 1891 the bed of an aged woman at Symondsbury was removed by her rustic friends from under a beam, because "her'll die so hard" if she remained in that position. In 1872 a boy was drowned in a stream near Sherborne and the following expedient was resorted to in order to find the body: A piece of bread having been cut out of a loaf, a little quicksilver was poured into the cavity and the loaf was thrown into the river at the spot where the lad had fallen in. The loaf was expected to float down the stream until it paused at the place where the body had lodged, but, needless to say it did no such thing.

Schedule for Friday.

Teachers often find the "developing" process discouraging. A young minister, seeking to impress the beauties of nature upon his class of East Side boys, had been describing the gradual unfolding of the springtime. Pausing impressively at the end of his speech, he asked:

"Now tell me, boys, in your own language, what comes in the spring?"

"The rent man!" quavered a pathetic little treble.

Again the developer's enthusiasm was chilled when urging upon his pupils the importance of attendance upon the Friday evening exercises.

"Remember, children," said the pastor, "our church is open on Friday as well as on Sunday. On the Sabbath day we have the regular morning and evening services. Now"—with a blandly expectant look—"what do we have on Friday?"

"Fresh fish, sir!" answered the boys.—Judge.

Manias of Noted Authors.

In a recent article on the "Mania of Authors," in the Revue Universelle of Paris, we are told that Darwin always practiced on his old fiddle before writing. Chateaubriand, while dictating to his secretary, was in the habit of walking in his bare feet; Schiller and Goethe could not write unless their feet were on ice; Lord Derby always filled his mouth with brandy cherries; Fenimore Cooper used to chew gum drops; Byron filled his pockets with truffles; Theophile Gautier burned incense; Pierre Loti gets intoxicated with perfumes.—Exchange.

What We Owe to Cockfighting.

The now disreputable amusement of cockfighting (which was once respectable enough to divide with scholarship and archery the attention of Roger Ascham) has provided the language with "crestfallen," "in high feather," and Shakespeare's "overcrow" (cf. to crow over.) "To show the white feather" is from the same source, since white feathers in a gamecock's tail are a sign of impure breeding. Often the origin of such words or phrases has been quite forgotten, but, when traced, show their true character at once. "Fair play" is still recognized as a figure from gambling; but "foul play," now specialized to "murder," is hardly felt as a metaphor at all.—Open Court.

The Secret of Health in Old Age.

Shepherd, Ill., June 23d.—Sarah E. Rowe of this place is now 72 years of age, and just at the present time is enjoying much better health than she has for over 20 years. Her explanation of this is as follows:

"For many years past I have been troubled constantly with severe Kidney Trouble, my urine would scald and burn when passing, and I was very miserable.

"I am 72 years of age, and never expected to get anything to cure me, but I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and thought it would do me no harm to try them.

"I am very glad I did so, for they cured me of the Kidney Disease and stopped the scalding sensations when passing the urine.

"I feel better now than I have for twenty years."

Tell a woman she looks fresh, and she smiles: tell a man the same thing, and he is sure to start a rough house.

Two Theaters Close the Regular Season.

The Star theater, St. Paul and the Dewey theater close their regular season Sunday, June 22. Manager Wittig of the Dewey, and Manager Singer of the Star are highly elated over the success, and look forward to another big season next year, when the best attractions attainable will be secured.

The theaters will open about Sept. 1, after being refurnished and redecorated.

THE TORTURE OF PILES
relieved promptly, and permanently cured by Cole's Carbolisalve. Guarantee goes with each box. Get the genuine. At druggists, 25c and 50c.

When it comes to the day of reckoning, the lawyer gets nine points and the poor client one.

STOP THAT RACKING COUGH
and avoid danger of consumption or pneumonia by promptly taking Cole's Cough Cure. It tastes good and is good. Every bottle guaranteed. 25c and 50c at druggists.

One can stop in rising, never in declining.

$20 A WEEK AND EXPENSES
to men with rig to introduce our Poultry goods. Send stp. Javelle Mfg. Co., Dept. D, Parsons, Kan.

The proudest moment in a bride's life is when she sees her first cards bearing the title "Mrs."

The man who has an unusually bright young son is not apt to dispute the doctrine of heredity.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
Louisville, Ky. San Francisco, Cal. New York, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1870.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
LAME BACK
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

IF CLAIMANTS FOR PENSION write to NATHAN BICKFORD, Washington, D. C., they will receive quick replies. B 5th N. H. Vols. Staff 20th Corps. Prosecuting Claims since 1878.

ITCHING HUMOURS
Complete External and Internal Treatment, One Dollar.
CUTICURA
The set, consisting of Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, Cuticura Ointment, to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humour germs. A Single Set, price $1, is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humours, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when all else fails.
MILLIONS USE
CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers.
CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid CUTICURA RESOLVENT, as well as for all other blood purifiers and humour cures. Put up in pocket vials, 60 doses, price, 25c.
Sold throughout the world. Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Pills, 25c. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. Potter Drug and Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

$500 Made on a $6 Investment

This may sound preposterous, but it's a fact—one that is vouched for by the most prominent men in the West. In 1898-99 the White Pass & Yukon Railway was built to handle traffic into and out of the Klondike. That district is limited in population. It never had more than 30,000, yet the White Pass & Yukon earned dividends of 60 per cent on its capital stock in 1901, and its capital stock is now quoted above $500 per share. It started at $6 in 1898.

Alaska's Second Railway

Is now being built. It is an All-American Railroad from Resurrection Bay to Rampart, opening up the RICHEST PART OF INTERIOR ALASKA. This road is projected by the most prominent men in the State of Washington.

The route of the Alaska Central Railway follows a preliminary survey completed under the supervision of C. M. Anderson, civil engineer, of Seattle, in 1899. All the field notes, maps and drawings, and every right, title and interest to that survey have been acquired by the Alaska Central company. The survey has been adopted and approved by the board of directors and filed with the Interior Department at Washington, D. C., in compliance with the provisions of law. This action guarantees to the company the absolute right to its route and protects it from infringement by any other company. Mr. Anderson who made the survey, is one of the best known and most competent engineers in the state of Washington. He started from the Yukon end of the route, at Rampart, in the Manook mining district, with two corps of assistants, and carefully worked his way to the southern terminal on the coast. The result of Mr. Anderson's survey was the selection of a route over easy grades, through a country rich in gold, copper and coal; covered with millions of acres of merchantable timber, and offering advantages for agriculture and stock raising equal to those of many of the most favored regions in the Northern States.

Instead of having 30,000 population to supply, as the White Pass & Yukon has, the Alaska Central, when completed, will not have a soul less than 150,000 tributary to its main line, based on the ratio of increase since 1898. Work will commence on this road by fall. As soon as the bonds are floated in New York, stock will be at par. In a few years it will be worth $500 per share.

I am authorized to sell a few thousand shares of 5 per cent preferred stock at $6 per share. Last month I sold this stock at $5 per share, and advised my customers to buy quick, as the stock would be advanced to $6 in a month. This has been done. I desire to state now that on July 1, this preferred stock will be advanced to $10 per share. After that date you can easily dispose of your stock from $7 to $10 per share without any trouble.

MY ADVICE IS—Buy some of this stock now at $6 per share. Put it away in your safe and forget about it. In a few years it will make you wealthy. If you like, you can pay for same on four equal monthly installments.

Such an opportunity as this comes once in a lifetime. This road will, in a year or two, become one of the most famous railway lines in the world. Its stock will be worth $500 per share. Make checks payable to

CAPITAL
$30,000,000
About $40,000 per mile.
Par value of Shares $50 non-assessable and without liability to holder.
Common Stock, 550,000 Shares
5% P'f'd Stock, 50,000 Shares

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

Substantial character of the men in the Alaska Central Railway is the best guarantee of its success.

G. W. DICKINSON, President and General Manager
General Manager of the Seattle Electric Company; stockholder, director and vice president of the Pacific Clipper Steamship Company; general superintendent of the Northern Pacific Railway, 1880 to 1893; general manager of the Northern Pacific Railway, 1896 to 1897; prior to that time connected with the Union Pacific for seventeen years as division superintendent, assistant general superintendent and superintendent; recognized as one of the ablest railroad men in the United States. A resident of Seattle.

JOHN H. McGRAW, Vice President.
Owner of extensive mining interests in Alaska; president of the First National Bank of Seattle, 1890 to 1897; governor of State of Washington, 1893 to 1897; one of the most enterprising and highly respected business men in Seattle.

J. W. GODWIN, Treasurer.
President and manager of J. W. Godwin & Co., wholesale merchants; president of the Alaska Fisheries Union, which controls twelve canneries; one of Seattle's substantial, wealthy citizens.

GEORGE TURNER, General Counsel.
United States Senator from State of Washington, and mining capitalist; United States judge for the district of Washington, 1884 to 1889; president and general manager of the company that developed the famous Le Roi gold mine; president and general manager of the Sullivan group of mines; a resident of Spokane, and a lawyer who had the most lucrative practice in the state at the time of his election to the United States Senate.

JOHN E. BALLAINE, Secretary and Auditor.
Associated with the Moore Investment Company since 1899; officer in the First Washington regiment through the entire Philippine campaign, serving part of the time on the staff of Gen. Lawton; secretary to the governor of Washington and adjutant general of the state prior to the Spanish-American war; formerly congressional correspondent at Washington, D. C.; one of the most prominent of Seattle's younger business men, and reared in the State of Washington.

CHARLES L. DENNY, Director.
A native of Seattle, son of the honored pioneer, A. A. Denny; capitalist and property owner; senior partner in the Denny-Blaine Land Company; heavy stockholder and director in many of the largest institutions in the state. No man in Seattle has a better standing in every respect than C. L. Denny.

CAPT. E. E. CAINE, Director.
President and general manager of the Pacific Clipper Steamship Company, and one of Seattle's wealthy citizens. Capt. Caine has devoted his energies for several years to the successful building up of a steamship company which has done more for the development of Alaska than any other. His company now owns, controls and has an interest in fifteen steamships operating on the Pacific. The credit of building up that great company is due to his ability and perseverance as a transportation man.

CHAS. F. PECK, Director.
For twelve years the chief locating engineer of the Burlington system west of the Missouri river. He has located for the Burlington system part or the whole of every one of its network of railways west of the Missouri river since 1890. Mr. Peck will have a conspicuous duty in the permanent survey of the Alaska Central route.

REFERENCES:
Any Bank, Dun's or Bradstreet's.

VICTOR H. SMALLEY,
Sixth and Jackson Streets, - ST. PAUL, MINN.
Next Advertisement will quote Alaska Central Preferred at $10.00 Per Share.

Send for Prospectus —AND—
Government Report

THE NEWS,
By John W. Eastman.
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Town Tales.

George A. Drew, of Rollis, is in the city.

Marcus Johnson was in the city Tuesday.

Joe Smith, of Crookston, spent Sunday in the city.

L. G. Browning was up to Germantown last week.

S. W. Bagley was down to Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

C. G. Rapp was in the city from St. Hilaire last week.

James Meehan was down to Crookston last week.

A. L. Himle is entertaining a large number of land seekers.

M. V. Evenson was down to Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Herb and Bert Forder were down from Rollis yesterday.

James Meehan went to North Dakata the first of the week.

R. D. Moore is in the city renewing his acquentance here.

W. W. Prichard was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Dr. Dunlop, of Crookston, was in the city the first of the week.

Daniel Shaw and wife visited friends at Germantown Sunday.

C. L. Dobner is attending the bankers convention at Crookston.

Chas. Helm was down to Red Lake Falls on buisuess last week.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

Jessie LaBree and family attended the circus at Red Lake Falls.

M. K. Wall was a business visitor to Crookston the first of the week.

A. L. Himle returned to this city from a trip to Minneapolis on Monday.

Senator Dickey returned to his home in Southern Minnesota Tuesday.

County Auditor Adam Zeh was up from Red Lake Falls to spend Sunday.

Wiley Tindolph has a crew of men at work opening up streets on the East Side.

Mrs. Kretzschmer and son, Carl, went to Red Lake Falls Tuesday to visit friends.

Mrs. C. L. Dobner entertained a large company of lady friends yesterday afternoon.

Hans Langseth and family returned from a visit with friends at Grafton, N. D., yesterday.

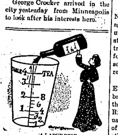
Geo. Turville and Chris Porter left yesterday for the Canadian northwest to look over land.

A Populist county convention and a circus were attractions at Red Lake Falls yesterday.

Mesdames Hanson and Jackson visited friends in Red Lake Falls last Saturday between trains.

Miss McAlster, of Minneapolis arrived in the city yesterday to visit her uncle, N. W. Tarrant.

George Crocker arrived in the city yesteaday from Minneapolis to look after his interests here.



A LARGE DOSE

of medicine is necessary if the drugs of which it is composed are impure or inefficient through age or any other cause. The DRUGS AND MEDICINES used in our prescription department are pure and perfectly fresh. Only the best are purchased, and being constantly renewed they have no chance to deteriorate. The greatest care is taken in filling PRESCRIPTIONS, and our system of checking precludes the possibility of error.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Mrs. Mcssifin arrived in the city yesterday from Crookston to visit her son.

Andy Smith and Chas. Schuster left yesterday for Cass Lake to attend the firemens convention.

Peter Lauby and Miss Emily Blair, both of this city, were married by Fr. Charles Monday morning.

A. O. Baker went up in the Canadian Northwest last week where he expects to invest in farm lands.

O. J. Rollis left the first of the week for the Canadian northwest where he is thinking of taking a claim.

Miss Emma Runger, of Arygle, arrived in the city last Saturday to visit her sister, Miss Bertha Runger.

Fr. Charles left the first of the week for Wisconsin to visit his mother who is ill and not expected to recover.

Misses Julia and Emma Nelson, left last week for the Keystone farm where they will be employed during the summer.

Julius Ploth has broken the record of price for Red Lake county lands by paying $40 per acre for a farm near St. Hilaire.

L. W. Bloom the first of the week purchased six lots of Wiley Tindolph and will build a residence upon the same.

The C. O. D. clothing store has been removed to the Sweas building recently built on Third street opposite the postoffice.

John Woodcock took a crew of men up the outlet last Saturday to bring a drive down for the Thief River Falls Lumber company.

Triplets—three boys—were born to Mr. and Mrs. D. P. O'Neil last Friday. Two of the infants died and the other, is in a very weak condition.

C. J. Winton and J. D. Ross, two members of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, arrived in the city last Saturday to look over the saw mill.

O. W. Johnson, one of the enterprising young buisness men of Thief River Falls, was married last Wednesday at Wiley to Miss Anderson.

The Rev. Peart will preach morning and evening on Sunday at the Methodist church. He will administer the holy rite of baptism in the morning.

There is a report being circulated to the effect that the St. Hilaire saw mill is to be torn down next winter and removed to Bemidji. Of course it is only a rumor and there may be no foundation.

County Surveyor Hegland was in the city the first of the week. Two years ago Mr. Hogland was elected as a Populist, but he now states that he has left that party and will be found with the Republicans in the future.

For sale cheap. Fresh milch cow and calf. Milks two pails per day. Six years old, gentle and easy to milk. Also good organ at a bargain. Sell only because I am leaving the city. Inquire at this office.

A watch case was stole from the New Drug store about one month ago, and on Monday a traveling man took this same article to the store and tried to sell it. The traveling man claimed that he had found it, and the matter was settled up by the watch case being returned to the rightful owner.

The boys up near Grygla, in Eastern Marshall county, have a base ball club that they are of the opinion can down the Thief River Falls club. Brekke, who used to pitch for Crookston, is one of their players and they have others equally as good.

If the Crookston papers keep it up the impression will get abroad that that town is anything but an educational model. One paper seems to think the high school management has been about as bad as it could be, and the other thinks that it is likely to be a good deal worse. And there you are.

The city council met as a board of equalization Monday and reviewed the work of Assessor Evenson. The total valuation of real and personal property as returned by Mr. Evenson was $315000, an increase of over $100,000 from last year's assessment. Numerous changes were made by the city council most of which were increases.

The special meetings at the tent conducted by Evangelist Petran have been very well attend this week. The interest in them is deepening daily and great things are expected. These will continue the rest of the week. On Sunday there will be four services. At 6 a. m. a sunrise prayer meeting; at 10:30 Mr. Petran will speak on how to make a success of the Christian life; at 3:30 p. m. there will be a special service for young people between the ages of 12 and 25, admission being by ticket, and at 8 a mass meeting of all. Meetings will be held on the street every evening at abont 7:30.

Council Proceedings.

June 10th, 1902.

Regular meeting of the City Council, June 10th, 1902.

C. L. Dobner presiding

Aldermen present, C. L. Dobner Chas. A. Robbecke D. N. Winton Matt Barzen. Absent S. F Staples.

Reported paid to City Treasury since last meeting.

For Liquor license by Morrison Bros.	$600.00
Electric Light Department account by Leonard Peterson	$182.00

Bid by Harvey Wilson, to build 4000 feet more or less by 4-6-8 and 10 feet wide walks at 8 cent running foot was considered the lowest bid and best and on motion duly adopted, said bid was accepted and clerk instructed to have contract executed.

Resolution authorizing side walk on Knight Avenue and third street fronting block 28, was adopted.

Resolutions ordering sidewalk to be constructed pursuant to resolutions passed April 17th, and May 1, 1902. Adopted.

The following bills were audited and allowed.

K. Runnestrand street and ditch work	$12 75
Gust Berggren street and ditch work	25 50
James Novak, street and ditch work	10 50
Evins & Paulson, freight	3 25
J. E. Mayes, for street work	14 25
John W. Eastman, for printing	8 50
W. C. Smiley, for surveying	25 00
Geo. Perkins, for engineering work	8 00
Ole Johnson, for grading and street work	26 25
Ole Bakken, for ditch work	3 75
Electric Light Department, Sundries	4 70
S. B. Johnson, for street work with team	10 [illegible]
Albert Voss, for street work with a team	26 [illegible]
Ole Hammerseth, for street work	14 75
Joseph Hollan, for street work	[illegible]
Julius Olson, for street work	[illegible]
Theo. Brett, for street work	7 [illegible]
Dallas Douglas, hauling and dragging	6 00
W. M. Bulman, for ditching	100 00
F. J. Cernousek, for street commissioner work	20 13

Moved to adjourn. Adopted. Adjourned.

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

RESOLUTION.

Whereas: The City Council ordered to be constructed on first street to depot on Elk Avenue, Hemmingston's addition, St. Paul and Superior avenue, Red Lake Rapids, and La Bree avenue north of third street, Knight and Riverside avenue, south of first street and completed on or before the 15th day of June, A. D. 1902, by resolution of the City Council adopted May 1st, A. D. 1902, is not fully done and not fully completed in the manner and within the time prescribed in said resolution and,

Whereas: Said resolution was duly served according to law, as appears by the affidavit of service thereof, duly filed with the clerk of said city upon all the owners of the property fronting on said streets, where said sidewalks is ordered to be constructed whose names with their respective holdings appear therein; be it therefore,

Resolved: By the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, that the said sidewalks ordered as aforesaid, be and the same is hereby ordered to be fully done and fully completed by the 30th of July, 1902, and the entire expense thereof to be paid out of the general revenue of said city.

Adopted June 19th, A. D., 1902
Chas. A. Robbecke,
President Pro tem Council.
Approved June 24th 1902.
C. L. Dobner,
Acting Mayor.

Attest:
LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

RESOLUTION.

Whereas: The City Council ordered to be constructed on 3rd street, and Maine street from block 36 original townsite to Riverside Avenue, Porter's addition and completed on or before the 15th day of June, A. D. 1902, by resolution of the City Council, adopted April 17th, A. D. 1902 is not fully done and not fully completed in the manner and within the time prescribed in said resolution, and

Whereas: Said resolution was duly served, according to law, as appears by the affidavit of service thereof, duly filed with the clerk of said city, upon all the owners of the property fronting on said 3rd street and Main avenue where said sidewalk is ordered to be constructed whose names with their respective holdings appear therein; be it therefore.

Resolved: By the City Council of the city of Thief River Falls, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, that the said sidewalk ordered as aforsaid, be and the same is hereby ordered to be fully done and fully completed by July 30th, 1902, and the entire expense thereof to be paid out of the general revenue funds of said city.

Approved June 19th, A. D., 1902.
Chas. A. Robbecke,
President Pro tem Council.
Approved June 24th, 1902.
C. L. Dobner,
Acting Mayor.

Attest:
LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES

REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.

Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

Advertised Letters.

Anderson, John
Gabrielson, Gerhart
Glerocck, J. J.
Glerocck, J. J.
Halvorson, A. M.
Plaught, Donald (In care of Wm. Ford.)
Simonson, Henry
Storm, Martin
Evender, Miss Ida
Glerocck, Joe
Glerocck, J. J.
Haugan, H. O.
Myran, John
Rogers, Edward D.
Shortlind, Augustinus
Sveinston, Kjolem, S.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 17, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 1st, 1902, viz: JOHN PHILIPP, H. E. 4090, Chippewa Series, for the W½ SE¼ and E½ SW¼, Sec. 30 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Louis Hamre, of Germantown, Minn.
Thomas Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Hans Clausen, of Germantown, Minn.
Almon Johnson, of Germantown, Minn.

may 22 j 26 SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17196, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

june 5 july 10 SLYVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 22nd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. NELSON, H. E. 2832, Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 25 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder Rud, of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaar, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

june 5 july 10 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17132, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

june 5 ot july 10 SLYVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 25, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. [illegible], for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Sonthagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Sathes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

june 12 july 17 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: AUTHUR DEVINE, H. E. 2839 Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 35, Tp. 156, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Thrond P. Hamre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Roach, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patric Cummerford, of Thief River F., Minn.
Mickael Stirns, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

june 26 july 31 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. 896, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:
Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klungnes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Tallef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

june 26 july 31 SYLVETER PETERSON,
Register.

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1008, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 24, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 82, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 35, Tp. 155 N. R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:
John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Esbelladen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Saave Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

june 12 6t july 17 A. F. GEORGE,
Receiver.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

State of Minnesota, county of Polk—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue and in pursuance of an order of license made, in said matter by the Probate Court of the county of Polk, on the 10th day of March, 1902, the undersigned, will on the 12th day of July, 1902, at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the postoffice in the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, offer for sale and sell at public auction, that tract or parcel of land situate and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, described as follows to-wit: the south west quarter of section number twenty-eight, township number one hundred fifty north of range number forty-two west of the fifth principal Meridian.

The terms of sale will be cash to be paid at the time of sale. Dated June 16, 1902.

DAVID A. CHISHOLM,
Administrator of Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

A. A. Miller,
Attorney for Administrator.
Crookston, Minnesota. june 19 july 3.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, a majority of the owners of the property fronting on 3rd street, and Knight avenue from NW. corner of block 28, and NE corner of block 27, to Main Avenue, in the city of Thief River Falls, county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, have petitioned the city council of said city to order a sidewalk on said street, as aforesaid, and requested the adoption of the necessary resolution to give effect thereto according to law; be it

Resolved, by the city council of the city of Thief River Falls, that there be and the same is hereby ordered to be constructed on said streets from said NW. corner of block 28, and NE. corner, block 27, to Main Avenue, in the manner following, viz: Said sidewalk to be six feet wide constructed of 2x6 plank, d. 1 s., set and firmly spiked on three stringers 2 feet and 4 inches apart placed edgewise on a firm foundation, that part of said sidewalk fronting lot 1, block 28, to be eight feet wide, set and firmly spiked on 5 stringers, placed edgewise 2 feet and 4 inches apart in firm foundation, said sidewalk to be completed on or before the 1st day of August A. D. 1902, and, further, that this resolution shall be duly served on or before the 28th day of June, A. D. 1902, upon the owners of all the lots, parts of lots, and parcels of ground fronting on said streets, where said sidewalk is hereby ordered to be constructed, and whose names with their respective holdings are hereinafter stated, said service to be made in accordance with the statute in such case made and provided:

NAME OF OWNER.	FRONT FT.					DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.
John O. Aos	140	Lot	1,	Block	28,	Original	Townsite	Thief River Falls.
C. A. Cheleq	25	"	17	"	28	"	"	"
Knud Quande	25	"	18	"	28	"	"	"
"	25	"	12	"	28	"	"	"
"	25	"	13	"	28	"	"	"
E. M. Evenson	25	"	14	"	28	"	"	"
C. M. Evenson	25	"	16	"	28	"	"	"
"	25	"	9	"	27	"	"	"
"	25	"	10	"	27	"	"	"
	25	"	11	"	27	"	"	"
Marius Olson	25	"	12	"	27	"	"	"
Ole Peterson	25	"	8	"	27	"	"	"
Chas. G. Wright	25	"	5	"	27	"	"	"
Anna Kretzschmar	25	"	6	"	27	"	"	"
"	25	"	1	"	27	"	"	"
"	25	"	2	"	27	"	"	"
"	25	"	3	"	27	"	"	"
	25	"	4	"	27	"	"	"

Attest:
LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

Adopted June 19, A. D. 1902.
Chas. A. Robbecke, Vice-President Council.
Approved June 24, 1902.
C. L. Dobner, Acting Mayor.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

C. L. Dobner, President. H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK
OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.
General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - - $10,000
Surplus and contingent fund, 8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
General Banking.
Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis, & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE,
REAL ESTATE,
FARM LOANS
and INSURANCE,

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of
Bread
Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

112117

District Court, Red Lake County. ss. State of Minnesota, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Clara Bell King, Plaintiff, against Sivert King, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the Above Named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff, in the above entitled action, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District of the state of Minnesota, at the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county of Red Lake, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the city of Crookston, in the county of Polk, and state of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

DEFOREST BUCKLEN,
Plaintiff's Attorney,
Crookston, Minnesota.

may 22 june 26

Subscribe for The News.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
v. 95

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN. THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1902. NUMBER 26

NEXT MONDAY.

Republican Mass Convention at Red Lake Falls.

Considerable interest is being taken in the Republican mass convention to be held at Red Lake Falls next Monday afternoon and it will probably be well attended. The convention is not held for the purpose of indorsing any candidates, but more for the purpose of bringing the Republicans together and encourage good men to make the run.

Indorse Morgan.

At a meeting of the delegates from this senitorial district attending the Democratic state convention, John Morgan, of this city was indorsed for state senator.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S
Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store
(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

STEAM POWER.

Electric Light Plant to Be Enlarged.

Manager Peterson, on the Crookston electric light and water plant, was in the city last week giving the members of the city council pointers about the local plant. Owing to the increase in business the plant will have to be enlarged this fall, and arrangements will have to be made for more power. With the exception of a short time in the spring and fall when the rice blocks the river to considerable extent, the plant can be run by water power, and Mr. Peterson advised the council to put in steam power to run it during the time when it could not be run by water.

What Kills a Town.

The following article that is going the rounds of the press credited "Exchange" applies to some towns and to some it does not. It is worth reprinting anyway:

"More towns die for want of confidence on the part of the business man and lack of public spirit, than from the rivaly of neighboring towns or adverse surroundings. When a man in search of a home or business location goes to a town and finds everything brimful of hope, and enthusiasm over the prospects of the outlook and everybody at work to build up the town, he soon becomes imbued with the same spirit, and as a result he drives down his stakes and goes to work with the same interest. When however, he goes to a town and everyone expresses doubt and apprehension in the future prosperity of the place, moping about and indulging in complaints about their imaginary evils that are likely to befall the when the streets are neglected and the pessimists are running things generally, if he is a true man he naturally feels it is no place for him, and at once shakes the dust from his feet, and pulls with all possible speed to some other town."

Woodmen to Build.

Ira C. Richardson and K. M. Hansen last week purchased of Wiley Tindolph and George Crocker the two lots on the corner of Main avenue and Second street south of the News building for $2000. The gentlemen purchased the property with the intention of giving the deed to the Woodmen Lodge, and a brick block will probably be built upon the same this fall. The matter will be consided at a meeting of the lodge to be held this evening.

JOE OBDURATE.

Will Not Let Indian Treaty Bill Pass.

Washington, June 26.—Friends of the Indian treaties providing for the cession of lands in the northwestern states have had frequent interviews with Chairman Cannon of the appropriations committee, trying to overcome his opposition to them, but he still remains obdurate. Among the bills are those ratifying the Red Lake treaty effecting Minnesota lands, the Rosebud and Lower Brule treaties in South Dakota and the Devils Lake treaty in North Dakota. Mr. Cannon declares that he will not permit any bill to pass which carries appropriations as large as these carried in the bills and friends of the measures are not sanguine that they will be considered, although they will not relax their efforts.

Washington, June 26.—Speaker Henderson gave a hearing this afternoon to the Minnesota delegation in behalf of the Red Lake Indian reservation bill. The speaker agreed to recognize Congressman Morris to call up the bill. He also agreed to recognize Mr. Eddy to call up the joint resolution giving the State of Minnesota the right to select indemnity lands in place of sections 16 and 36.

Hoppers.

Millions of grasshoppers are attacking the grain in the Hill river district near McIntosh. The state entomologist is assisting the farmers in combating the pest and hopperdozers are in daily use. Unplowed stubble is the cause of the trouble.

Married.

Horace Bagley, formerly an attorney of this city, but now in the banking business at Bottineau, N. D., was married last Wednesday, June 25th, at the residence of the bride's parents in Mapelton, Minn., to Miss Anna Bell Cornell. Mr. Bagley's many friends here extend congratulations.

At Newfolden.

The people of Newfolden will celebrate the Fourth tomorrow at Tonnes Nelson's. They will have horse racing, foot racing and other sports, as well as dancing and fireworks in the evening.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

RED LAKE BILL.

Strong Influences at Work to Get It Through the House.

Washington, June 30.—Secretary Hitchcock is personally interesting himself in behalf of the Red Lake bill, and went to the capitol for the purpose of having a conference with speaker Henderson and Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee.

Mayor Kratka, of Thief River Falls, who is still working for the bill, has agreed that there will never be any legislation asked by congress to extend the provisions of the Eddy free homes bill to those Red Lake lands.

If some of the big items placed in the general deficiency bill are stricken out in conference there may be a chance for the Red Lake bill yet.—St. Paul Dispatch.

THE FARMERS

They Did Not Turn Out Very Well.

A farmer's insitute was held in this city last Thursday, and a large number of the farmers in this section were conspicuous by their absence. The institute was conducted by Supt. Horestad and the other instructors who spoke were: Dr. Curryer, Col. Wilkinson, A. W. Lathan, Mesdames Wilcox and Robbins. The meeting was a very interesting one and all present were well paid for the time spent. All spoke about the soil in this section being very good for the raising of clover and advised the farmers to raise more of of this.

Very successful meetings were held at Newfolden and Tweet on the days previous, there being a large number of farmers present at both places.

The Crookston Journal states it plainly when it says that farmers who have purchased pure bred beef sires are sure to come out winners. There is a big shortage in the beef cattle supply, and prices are bound to be high for a good many years. Those who need sires and have been delaying the purchase in hopes that breeding stock prices might come down, should wait no longer. Prices for good bulls will not soon be lower; on the contrary, there is every indication that they will advance. Our population is increasing faster than are the meat and milk producing animals. Every year sees an increase in the mouths that must be fed from a carcass of beef, pork or mutton. Such increase will continue, and, as we have often stated, the prices of food products must go higher. People shouting for cheaper meat will do well to think about supply and demand. There is a shortage of beef cattle, with the demand greater than ever before.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

THE BRICK STORE.
Telephone No. 19.

Call on or telephone us for that summer dress you intend to buy.

We have a large assort ment of summer dress goods and applique trimmings which we are selling at greatly reduced prices.

If this interests you, you should loose no time in making your selection for you know those here first will have the most to select from.

Every Week Adds To the Ability of This Store

to do better the duty it undertakes—which duty is: to win through merit, the friendship and patronage of every family in Thief River Falls, and vicinity, to become the acknowledged shoppers' headquarters, the supply center of all those who require honest, dependable merchandise.

Each past week's experience teaches how to do better.

New ideas, inventions, new systems, all go toward making each week better than any of its predecessors.

Another Point, And An Important One, our prices are Right.

Call on us and let us save you money.

Central Mercantile Company.

C. L. Dobner, President. H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK
OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.
General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - - $10,000
Surplus and contingent fund, 8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of
Bread
Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
General Banking.
Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis, & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE,
REAL ESTATE,
FARM LOANS
and INSURANCE,

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb. strength and flavor in these.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity.

HIMLE'S STORE

Subscribe for the News.

97½

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF THE DAY'S GAMES IN THE THREE BIG LEAGUES.

ST. PAUL BREAKS LOSING STREAK

COLUMBUS DEFEATS MINNEAPOLIS AND INDIANAPOLIS DOWNS MILWAUKEE.

HOW THEY DID IT IN THE EAST

ST. LOUIS, BOSTON AND PHILADELPHIA ARE THE DAY'S WINNERS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	38	18	.679	Kan. City	27	29	.482
Ind'polis	35	20	.636	Milwaukee	24	32	.429
Columbus	33	25	.569	Minneapolis	19	37	.339
St. Paul	31	25	.554	Toledo	18	39	.316

At Toledo.

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Burns 2b	1	1	3	0	Geier 3b	1	1	3	1
Meany rf	2	1	0	0	Huggins 2b	1	0	1	0
Turner 1b	2	9	0	0	Dillard lf	0	5	1	0
Smith 3b	0	1	2	1	Lumley rf	2	1	0	0
Owen ss	0	1	2	0	Shannon cf	3	2	0	0
Graffius c	2	6	1	0	Kelley 1b	0	13	0	1
Gilks cf	1	0	0	0	Hurley c	0	2	0	1
Kleinow lf	2	2	0	0	Lynch ss	0	3	3	0
Mock p	1	0	4	1	Stimmel p	1	0	3	0
Totals	11	27	12	2	Totals	8	27	11	3

Toledo ....0 0 2 1 0 0 0 1 0—5
St. Paul ....0 2 0 0 0 0 0 4 0—6

Two-base hit—Meany. Home runs—Turner, Kleinow. Sacrifice hit—Smith. Stolen base—Owen. Struck out—Stimmel 1, Mock 1. Bases on balls—Stimmel 2. Wild pitch—Stimmel. Time—1:40. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—600.

At Columbus.

Col'mbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneap.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Knoll lf	1	0	0	0	Grant 2b	1	4	5	0
Hurley ss	2	4	3	1	Phyle 3b	0	1	0	0
Hart cf	2	2	0	0	Lally lf	0	1	0	0
Myers 1b	1	12	0	0	Wilmot rf	0	0	0	0
Turner 3b	0	2	1	1	Byers c	0	3	2	0
McFarlan rf	1	4	0	0	Werden 1b	1	9	1	0
Viox 2b	0	1	5	0	Lynch cf	1	3	1	1
Fox c	1	2	3	0	Zalusky rf	0	0	0	0
Bailey p	0	0	2	0	Breyette ss	0	3	3	1
					Newlin p	1	0	1	1
Totals	8	27	14	2	Totals	4	24	15	3

Columbus ....0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 x—2
Minneapolis ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

Two-base hit—Nattress. Double plays—Lynch to Breyette; Werden to Grant. Struck out—by Bailey 1, by Newlin 3. Bases on balls—By Bailey 1, by Newlin 3. Wild pitch—Bailey. Time—1:20. Umpire—Haskell.

At Indianapolis.

Indianpls.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Milwaukee.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hogr'ver, rf.	1	0	0	0	Hallman, rf.	2	3	0	0
Kuhns, lf.	0	0	1	0	Clingman, ss.	0	1	4	2
Woodr'ff, 3b.	2	2	3	1	McBride, cf.	1	1	0	0
Kihm, 1b.	0	14	3	0	Schubeck, 2b.	3	[illegible]	2	0
O'Brien, ss.	2	2	5	0	Dunkle, 1b.	1	10	1	0
Coult'r, cf.	1	2	0	1	Dungan, lf.	1	3	0	0
Fox, 2b.	1	3	3	0	McAndr's, 3b.	0	0	0	0
Heyden, c.	0	2	1	0	Cross, c.	0	4	1	0
Williams, p.	1	2	3	0	McMackin, p.	1	0	1	2
Totals	8	27	19	2	Totals	9	27	9	4

Indianapolis ....0 1 3 0 0 0 1 0 0—5
Milwaukee ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1

Bases on balls—By Williams, 1; by McMackin, 1. Struck out—By Williams, 1; by McMackin, 1. Two-base hits—Hogriever, Williams. Three-base hits—Woodruff. Sacrifice hit—Kuhns. Double plays—Williams to O'Brien to Kihm; Woodruff to Fox to Kihm. Left on bases—Indianapolis, 6; Milwaukee, 7. Umpire—Tindill. Time of game—1:28.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	32	19	.627	Detroit	23	28	.472
Boston	31	26	.544	Baltimore	26	30	.464
Philadel	27	21	.579	Washingtn	26	31	.456
St. Louis	27	21	.521	Cleveland	23	34	.404

At Washington.

Washington ....0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0—2
Philadelphia ....0 0 1 0 0 2 0 1 0—4

At Baltimore.

Baltimore ....2 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—3
Boston ....1 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 3—6

At Cleveland.

Cleveland ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1
St. Louis ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—2

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	46	12	.793	Phila.	26	31	.456
Brooklyn	32	25	.561	Cincinnati	22	31	.415
Chicago	29	24	.547	St. Louis	21	33	.389
Boston	26	26	.500	New York	20	34	.370

At Boston.

Boston ....1 0 0 3 0 0 5 0 x—9
Brooklyn ....0 2 0 1 0 4 0 0 0—7

At St. Louis.

St. Louis ....0 0 0 2 1 0 1 0 0—4
Chicago ....2 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 1—6

At Philadelphia.

New York ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Philadelphia ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 x—?

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Play Thirteen Innings to a Tie at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, June 27.—Milwaukee and Des Moines played a thirteen-inning tie game, which was a pitchers' battle throughout. The game was called to allow the visitors to catch a train. Attendance, 200. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Des Moines	0 0 0 2 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	3	10	2
Milwaukee	1 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	3	8	1

Batteries—Barry and Lohbeck; Kenna and Lucia.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 27.—St. Joseph-Colorado Springs game postponed on account of rain.

Kansas City, June 27.—Three hits and two bases on balls gave Kansas City the game in the first inning to-day. Gordon allowed but two hits after that inning. Nichols was effective at critical times. Attendance, 400. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Kansas City	3 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 x	3	5	1
Denver	1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0	2	8	2

Nichols and Messitt; Gordon and McConnell.

Peoria, Ill., June 27.—Peoria-Omaha game postponed; rain.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Fargo Defeats Devils Lake in a Sloppy Game.

Fargo, N. D., Special, June 27.—Fargo won over Devil's Lake in a sloppy game of ball today, 15 to 2. Each team made a dozen hits. Devil's Lake made thirteen errors to Fargo's two. Riley pitched for Fargo and Kern for Devil's Lake.

Winnipeg, Man., Special, June 27.—Grand Forks and Winnipeg played an errorless game to-day in the Northern league series. Winnipeg won, 2 to 1. Depatl was in the box for the Pegs. To-night the Winnipegs played an exhibition game with a Virden team and won it, 12 to 5.

Cavalier, N. D., Special, June 27.—Cavalier won the second game of the series from Crookston to-day in a very fast game—Cavalier, 6, 11, 1; Crookston, 2, 7, 1. Slette, Hydeen, Collette, McNeil.

Morris, Minn., Special, June 27.—The Morris team went over to Sauk Center to-day and beat the nine there by a score of 14 to 1.

Americans Down the French.

Paris, June 27.—The American polo team turned the tables on the Paris club this afternoon, defeating the latter by 7 goals to 2. A large gathering of fashionable people witnessed the match, which was played on the Diagetelle grounds.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Director Merriam will leave for Minnesota early in July.

Rowland Whittley, first lieutenant of Philippine scouts, died of cholera, June 11, at Batangas.

The senate passed the postal clerks' bill for the classification of salaries in the first and second classes.

The question of statehood for Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona will go over until the next session of congress.

Six thousand new rural free-delivery routes, to be put in operation during 1902, will bring the total to nearly 16,000.

The senate committee will doubtless visit Porto Rico and the Philippines before reporting for final consideration.

The Civil Service Reform Association of the District of Columbia may take up the matter of Miss Rebecca Taylor's suspension.

The fact that Gen. Smith will proceed to his post in Texas indicates that nothing more serious than a reprimand will be administered.

There is a well grounded belief that either the Venezuelan authorities or the insurgents are suppressing cablegrams from the United States minister at Caracas.

The protocol providing for the extension of the time for the ratification of the treaty between the United States and Denmark for the sale of the Danish West Indian islands to the United States has been ratified.

The senate passed bills creating a national forest reserve in the Southern Appalachian mountains and ratifying the agreement between the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians of Indian Territory and the United States.

President Roosevelt has had Gen. Wood as a bachelor guest during the past week, and the two have given a number of out-door lunches. The salads and liquid mixtures they have concocted are declared very palatable by those who were so fortunate as to have been entertained.

Application has been made at the war department by the Highland Canal company of Duluth for the right to utilize the waters of the St. Louis river for business purposes. The proposition is opposed by the people on the Wisconsin side of the river, and in their behalf Representative Jenkins of Chippewa Falls filed a protest against a granting of the permit. The war department has ordered an investigation.

People Talked About.

Grover Cleveland and family are at Buzzard's Bay for the season.

John Macauley, M. D., author, is dead in London, aged eighty-five.

C. E. Tyler, inventor of the roll-top desk, is dead at Colorado Springs.

Dr. O. L. Lusk, whose parents reside in Fond du Lac, Wis., is dead in New York.

Mrs. Ethel L. Kirk has been granted a divorce at Chicago, with an allowance of $60,000.

Maj. Gen. Wheaton, who has been in the Philippines over three years, has arrived on the transport Sherman.

Mrs. Ernestine Schaffner, known as the "Tombs Angel," is dead. She had been in poor health for several years.

Dr. Alban Vaughan Elliott, who served as paymaster in the army from 1865 until 1880, is dead at Florence, Italy, from heart trouble.

Charles Cass Minster, believed to be a wealthy mine owner, dropped dead in New York from heart trouble, induced by a narrow escape from death beneath the wheels of a trolley car.

Robert Towne is dead at Prescott, Ariz., of tuberculosis. Although but thirty-two years old, he had achieved success as a reporter on the Topeka and Kansas City papers and later with the Chicago Times-Herald.

A scheme of bleeding inmates of the state prison at La Porte, Ind., under promise of securing their release on parole has assumed such proportions that the authorities will investigate and endeavor to put a stop to it. Doctors, attorneys, detectives and even chiefs of police are said to be implicated.

Sins and Sinners.

Rival saloonkeepers at Cabin Hollow, Ky., fought, and three are dead as a result.

Thomas Page, a twelve-year-old boy of El Paso, Texas, in ambush with a rifle, killed six Indians who had murdered his father.

Miss Toppan of Barnstable, Mass., the nurse who had so many patients die under her care from 1895 to 1901, is declared insane.

H. R. McDowell, president of the defunct United States Trust company of Philadelphia, is reported to have absconded with $50,000 in securities.

Dr. Jacob F. Meyer of Buffalo was shot through the heart and instantly killed. His wife, who has given disconnected accounts of the affair, is under surveillance.

Alonzo Barger of Knoxville, Tenn., charged soldiers in the Philippines, in the presence of Lincoln Monday, with being hoodlums and cowards. Result: One dead and three fatally injured.

D. S. Burch, an Englishman, who came to Chicago three years ago, with letters of introduction to Mrs. Potter Palmer, is missing, together with numerous diamonds, watches and silver plate, which had been entrusted to him as head of the Electro Specialty company.

David Burnside, twenty-four years old, of Brooklyn, shot his wife and then attempted suicide in Inman's concert hall at Coney Island before a thousand persons. The woman died in a few minutes. Burnside was taken to the Reception hospital, with a bullet hole through his head, and it is believed he will die.

Perry J. Blough's store at Hooversville, Pa., was robbed by three men, who blew the safe and secured $20,000 in cash, checks and notes. The robbers escaped on a hand car.

Accidental Happenings.

Fire destroyed a brick block at Hubbard, Tex., with five wooden buildings. Loss, $100,000.

Fire destroyed twenty-five residences at Dallas, Texas. Loss, $75,000; insurance, $35,000.

J. C. Ferguson was killed at his home at St. Joseph, Mo., by the accidental discharge of a small rifle.

An overturned lantern in a stable at Madison, Ill., caused a practical wiping out of the village, with a loss of $200,000.

Three men were drowned in Lake Michigan, at Milwaukee, by the capsizing of a boat from which they were fishing.

An unmanageable electric car at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, collided with another, and a score or more were injured, but none fatally.

Forty-nine persons were injured, several of them seriously, as the result of a collision of two trains on the electric line between Bionschio and Porto Coresio, Italy.

Prof. J. B. Johnson, dean of the college of engineering of the Wisconsin university, was killed at Pier Cove by falling from a load of goods, a wheel passing over his head and crushing it.

Hays Barnett, living near South Union, Ky., killed his mother-in-law by striking her in the head with a stove lid. He claimed he was throwing it at his wife. Barnett was captured.

The coining mill of the Cambria Powder company's plant, at Seward, nineteen miles from Johnstown, Pa., blew up, killing four workmen and injuring four others. Two are fatally hurt.

A portion of a mixed train on the South Carolina & Georgia Extension railroad fell through an approach to the bridge over Broad river, near Shelby, N. C., killing one man and injuring a score of passengers.

Foreign Notes.

Cholera is spreading in the Philippines.

Lord Milner has taken his oath as governor of the Transvaal.

A mutiny is reported on the Russian cruiser Tereth, of the Mediterranean squadron.

The government report shows 852,000 deaths in India from plague since its appearance in 1896.

Twenty-five were killed and the same number injured by lightning striking a church at Pinerio, Spain.

Government gunboats have captured the town of Agua Dulce and 300 head of cattle from the insurgents.

It is stated that a papal consistory will be held in December, at which Archbishop Ireland will be created a cardinal.

There is no doubt of the negotiations of Judge Taft, governor of the Philippine islands, with the Vatican, regarding the disposition of the friars' lands in those islands, ending in the success of the American proposals in all essential points.

The London Times correspondent says Chinese officials will bleed the people for many times the amount necessary to pay the agreed indemnity to the allied powers, pocketing the most of it, but leading taxpayers to believe it is all to be used legitimately, thus incensing them against all foreigners.

The emperor and the dowager empress of China received Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers, U. S. N., commander-in-chief of the Asiatic squadron, and the staff of the United States legation in audiences. Both the emperor and the empress requested Rear Admiral Rodgers to convey assurances of their esteem to President Roosevelt.

General.

President Roosevelt delivered an address at the Harvard commencement exercises.

Three thousand men are needed at once to save the wheat crop in the Southwest. Some farmers are paying $3 per day.

Four boys were drowned at St. Louis by the capsizing of a boat, within sight of hundreds who were unable to save them.

Arrivals from Nome state that there will be a shortage of water throughout Alaska, due to the early disappearance of snow.

Congressman W. G. Brantley was renominated by the Democratic congressional convention of the Eleventh district of Georgia.

A letter enclosed in a bottle was thrown into Delaware bay a year ago, and found in a shark caught off the coast of Portugal.

The roundhouse of the Southern Pacific railway at Fresno, Cal., and a dozen locomotives were destroyed by fire. Estimated loss, $200,000.

A six-year-old son of Oscar Fisk of Iron Mountain, Mich., was shot through the stomach by a bullet from a small-bore rifle, and it is feared he will die.

William C. Brownback and Orville E. Waters, sons of prominent business men of Edinburg, Ill., were drowned at Smith's Mills, on the Sangamon river.

The order of deportation of Miss Katherine Dietz, destined for Sleepy Eye, Minn., has been reached and she will be allowed to proceed to that point.

The "Big Four" meat concerns of Chicago are said to be planning a combine similar to the United States Steel corporation, with a capital of $1,000,000,000.

Grover Cleveland emphatically denies that he will speak at Tammany hall July 4, or that he will campaign in Olney's interests for the presidential nomination.

The Chicago packers think they have an excellent fattening substance in cassava root, and will experiment with it on a large scale in Northern Florida and Alabama.

The gunboat Manila has arrived at San Francisco from Manila. She is one of the ships captured from the Spanish by Admiral Dewey at the battle of Manila Bay.

PROF. HALL'S GOOD WORK.

The United States Geological Survey Sends Another Surveying Party to North Dakota.

Prof. C. M. Hall, director of the Agricultural College Co-operative Survey of North Dakota, is highly gratified with his success in securing the co-operation of the United States Geological Survey of the state this year, in addition to the other lines of work in which the survey is assisting. A party of trained engineers from Washington, D. C., will soon take the field to survey about 800 square miles in the south-eastern part of the state between Wild Rice and the South Dakota line, lying mostly in Richland county. The map to be prepared will be known as the Wahpeton Topographic sheet.

These maps are of great value in many ways, besides being used as a base for the agricultural and geological surveys which follow. These topographic maps are published on a scale of about two miles to the inch, and show all section, town and county lines, graded roads, lakes, rivers, railroads, towns and farm buildings. Besides these, and that which is the distinctive feature of the maps, there is shown, by means of small brown lines, the elevation of the surface above the sea level for every twenty feet of vertical interval, thus showing the topography of the land, locating all hills and depressions, or any inequalities of the surface by lines of equal altitude.

These maps are of great importance in all matters of subsequent land surveying, road grading and especially in irrigation or drainage. They are also very instructive in school work, and are being extensively used in the study of geography and physiography. These sheets are published, of uniform size, at the government printing office. Ten of these sheets, covering areas in North Dakota, are now ready for distribution. They are known as the Fargo, Casselton, Tower, Eckleson, Jamestown, Pingree, LaMoure, Edgeley, Ellendale and Columbia quadrangles, and cover the state from Fargo to Jamestown, and along the James River Valley from Carrington into South Dakota.

These sheets are sold at cost, and can be had for 5 cents each by applying to Director Agricultural College Survey, Fargo, N. D.

In addition to the topographic survey there will be a party engaged in a soil survey, which consists of a careful examination and mapping of the different kinds of soils and a study of crops and methods best adapted to each.

Charles A. Jensen, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will have charge of this work, and from the great variety of soils, water supplies and conditions relative to alkalies, some good results are expected. These maps and reports will be published for free distribution. The area between Grand Forks and Larimore has been selected for this division of work, which will begin July 1.

The mapping of the artesian basins and surface geology of the state is being continued this year in Barnes and Ransom counties, west to the Sheyenne valley.

Cage stations are maintained in Devils Lake and along the Red river, and discharge measurements will continue to be made, with the view of determining the capacity of the streams and the possibility of using the waters, which are at times so destructive, for power or irrigation.

Prof. Hall finds the importance of the survey has grown beyond his most ardent claims, and letters of inquiry are constantly received from over this and neighboring states relative to maps and conditions of various parts of the state.

Prof. D. E. Willard of Mayville is engaged in mapping the surface geology and artesian basins, and J. A. McGlynn of White Earth is employed in the soil survey.

This work is the direct result of the little $500 appropriation by the state last winter, and Prof. Hall's personal influence at Washington. The national government is expending about $6,000 in the state this summer.

Project That Will Shorten Water Route to St. Louis.

Clinton, Iowa, June 27.—A canal projected from the Mississippi river at Fulton, Ill., to the Hennepin canal at Tampico, Ill., will shorten the distance between Clinton and Davenport fifty miles and shorten the water route between St. Paul and St. Louis 100 miles. Twenty miles of dangerous rapids between Le Claire and Davenport will also be avoided.

PAUNCEFOTE'S REMAINS.

Illness of the King Will Not Alter the Program.

Washington, June 27.—It is stated that there will be no change in the arrangements already made for the removal of the remains of the late Lord Pauncefote to England, as a result of the king's illness. It was the plan to have the funeral ship Brooklyn arrive in England about July 14, after the coronation ceremonies were over. The navy department yesterday received a telegram announcing the departure of the Brooklyn from New York for Annapolis, where the remains will be taken aboard.

BATTLE WITH TRAMPS.

Bullets and Clubs Used by Freight Crew.

Evanston, Wyo., June 27.—A number of tramps stealing a ride on a Union Pacific freight had a bloody battle with clubs near here. As a result one man was taken to Ogden in a dying condition, two others received bullet wounds and several others were badly beaten up. A number of others were thrown or jumped from the fast moving train, all receiving more or less injuries. The cause of the trouble was not learned.

FIRE AT PORTLAND.

Oregon City Has a Serious Blaze—Horses Perish in Flames.

Portland, Or., June 27.—Fire destroyed an entire block of frame buildings bounded by Seventh, Park, Gilran and Hoyt streets. Thirty-five horses belonging to the Wakefield-Morse Transfer company, burned to death, among them three valuable racers. A number of people asleep in the Park lodging house escaped with great difficulty. Loss, $35,000; insurance, $20,000.

ROSING IS NAMED

STANDARD BEARER OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN MINNESOTA.

HE ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION

MAYOR SMITH OF ST. PAUL NOMINATED FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

STRONG DEMAND FOR LIND

DELEGATES FINALLY REALIZE THAT HIS DECLINATION IS FINAL.

For Governor—Leonard A. Rosing of Cannon Falls.

For Lieutenant Governor—Mayor Robert A. Smith of St. Paul.

For Secretary of State—Spurgeon Odell of Marshall, Lyon county.

For State Auditor—Albert G. Lieck of Owatonna.

For Attorney General—Frank D. Larrabie of Minneapolis.

For State Treasurer—Joseph L. Meyers of Little Falls.

For Clerk of the Supreme Court—Geo. P. Jones of Luverne, Rock county.

For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—Maj. M. J. Bowler of Hennepin county.

-o-

Minneapolis, June 27—This ticket was placed in nomination yesterday by the Democratic state convention. There was a strong feeling that John Lind would be nominated in spite of his emphatic declination, but the leaders succeeded in impressing upon the delegates that the former governor was sincere and that it would be folly to place him on the ticket in the face of the certainty that he would refuse.

C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul was called on to make a speech when the convention reassembled at 3 o'clock, and it looked as though he would stampede the convention for Lind as he reviewed the record of the former governor. But Lind was an officer of the Democracy and had a right to resign. There were privates in the ranks who worked for the party, and who would have no right to refuse to run for governor. Mr. Lind was sincere, and his wishes should be respected. His retirement was a great loss, but Democracy was greater than any one man.

There was an interim, during which the resolutions committee made its report, and the convention proceeded to nominate a state ticket.

L. A. Rosing, Senator C. O. Baldwin and F. D. Larrabie of Minneapolis were named as candidates for governor. The nomination of Rosing was certain when C. D. O'Brien concluded his short speech, in which he referred to Rosing as "a private who would respond to orders." The seconds to Rosing's nomination continued, and there was a wild rush to get on the band wagon. F. D. Larrabie mounted the platform and withdrew his name. The name of C. O. Baldwin was also withdrawn, and after speeches by George P. Jones of Rock county and F. L. McGee of St. Paul, the nomination was made unanimous.

"I come before you to accept the nomination you have tendered me," said Mr. Rosing, after he had been escorted to the platform and had thanked the convention for its action. "I would rather run as a Democrat to certain defeat than to certain victory as a Republican. Democracy means something. I approve every word of the platform you have adopted, and pledge myself to make a fight that Democratic principles may live in Minnesota. It is a hard fight, and when I accept this nomination I am entitled to the loyal support of every man in the party."

The nomination of Robert A. Smith of St. Paul for lieutenant governor was the surprise of the delegates. Capt. W. H. Harries, Senator John A. Johnson and George P. Jones, who had been nominated, withdrew their names, and Mayor Smith was made the nominee.

The nomination of Spurgeon Odell of Lyon county for secretary of state, of A. G. Lieck of Owatonna for state auditor, Frank D. Larrabie of Minneapolis for attorney general, J. L. Meyers of Morrison county for state treasurer, M. J. Bowler of Hennepin county for railroad and warehouse commissioner, and of George P. Jones of Rock county for clerk of the supreme court were made by acclamation as fast as the positions were reached, and even nomination speeches were dispensed with.

Taxation was the keynote of the opening speech of Senator Peter McGovern of Waseca, who was chosen temporary chairman when the convention assembled at 12:30 o'clock. Democracy was governed by the cardinal principles of the Constitution, as expounded by Thomas Jefferson, he said. All that it was necessary to do was to amend the existing tax laws so that the property now escaping taxation was reached.

"I will venture the assertion," said Mr. McGovern, "that any ten men of the legislature could formulate all the necessary amendments to the existing tax laws in one week. The Constitution says every man shall be taxed according to his means. The legislature has never tried to tax some people. The people of the state want to know why the legislature is incompetent to furnish the remedies demanded."

A resolutions committee composed of one delegate from each congressional district and two at large was appointed and the convention adjourned for an hour to await its report.

The platform indorses the Kansas City national platform and W. J. Bryan. The national administration is condemned for its Philippine policy. Legislation to properly control trusts is advocated. Enforcement of the merger law is urged and various matters pertaining to state legislation are discussed and remedies for alleged errors proposed.

The Platform.

The following is the platform in full:

I.

We declare our allegiance to the principles of Democracy, as set forth in our national Declaration of Independence; as especially taught by that great exponent of democracy, Thomas Jefferson, and as reaffirmed in the latest national convention of the Democratic party.

We further express our admiration for and grateful appreciation of the great ability, singular disinterestedness and untiring zeal in the service of humanity of that great leader of the Democracy and most fearless and eloquent champion of the rights of man, William J. Bryan.

We congratulate the people of the United States that their latest democratic spirit and sense of fairness have been sufficiently aroused to compel the present administration to so far keep faith, however reluctantly, with the people of Cuba as to withdraw our troops from their island and allow them a measure of self-government, and we condemn the Republican party for its failure to fully comply with the congressional resolution passed before the declaration of war with Spain. It is with deepest shame and regret that through the apostasy of the Republican party the people of the United States are, by our imperialistic policy in the Philippines placed before the world in the false position of repudiating the most cherished fundamental principles of our government, and our brave citizen soldiers are forced to disgrace our flag and army in obedience to orders from their superiors.

We indorse and commend our Democratic congressmen for the position taken by them on the Philippine question, and demand that our government declare its intentions and purpose in regard to the Filipino people and grant to them their independence.

The power of the modern trusts is an appalling evil and a monstrous menace. We would revoke the tariff benefits they enjoy; we would refuse the subsidy they seek; we would pass appropriate legislation for the control of their affairs and to secure publicity, and we would enforce the laws against them, sparing none.

The Republican party openly advocates the policy of class legislation, conferring special privileges, benefits, subsidies, bounties, tariffs. Excessive riches and abject poverty that corrupt and debase character are results of the same social disease—special privilege. And we emphatically reaffirm our belief that the application of the democratic principles of equal rights to all and special privileges to none is the only remedy for existing inequalities and wrongs.

We deplore the existence of a spirit of lawlessness which finds expression even in murderous attacks upon the chief magistrate of the republic, and has brought about the death of a recent incumbent of that exalted office.

We favor the postal savings bank and the income tax; we oppose government by injunction.

We would correct the imbecile and unbusinesslike policy that throttles our trade with Canada and Cuba at the behest of special interest.

II.

We take this opportunity to pay heartfelt tribute to that statesman and popular leader, the heroic standard-bearer of our cause during three hard-fought campaigns, John Lind. His place in the history of the Northwest and in the hearts of the people of all classes is secure and the impress of his character upon the political life of this state will endure for all time. His term as governor will be known in the history of our commonwealth as that in which every executive department—railroad and warehouse commission, public examiner, labor commission, insurance commission, dairy and food commission, adjutant general, superintendent of public instruction, board of equalization and grain inspection—was brought to the highest standard of efficiency and in every respect represented the people.

It will be known as the administration which reduced the state tax levy while securing large increase of revenue from tax-dodging corporations; that cut down the freight bill of Minnesota farmers $400,000 per annum by reducing railway rates on grain; that reduced both the state cost and trust price of binding twine; that raised the standard of Minnesota wheat through just and efficient inspection an average of one grade on the entire crop; that ordered a 25 per cent reduction in railroad rates on iron ore and for the first time in years exacted of corporate power in Minnesota the same obedience to public laws as is required of the humblest citizen.

We pledge a continuance of this enlightened policy, efficient administration and fidelity to the people when the candidates of the Democratic party are again summoned to serve the state.

The state's law forbidding merger of competing railroads should be enforced, and that in every case; and the state's neglected power to regulate rates should be exercised as the prime remedy for discrimination and extortion.

The readjustment of our tax laws is an absolute necessity with which the present administration has proved its incompetency to deal.

We adopt the clear and intelligent program submitted by the Democratic minority in the late session: The taxation of non-resident corporations equally with domestic; the adequate taxation of public service corporations and the taxation of incomes; and we favor the amendment of the constitution to that end.

We favor the municipal ownership of public service corporations, the principle of direct legislation and home rule in local taxation.

We believe that the interests of labor can best be conserved by organization, and we demand for every man who labors an equal use of all natural opportunities to the end that no man shall take the proceeds of another's labor without full compensation therefor.

We are in favor of the observance of a general eight-hour workday, and that all printing done for and supplies purchased by the State of Minnesota shall bear the union label, and pledge our support to organized labor in its efforts for securing the same.

We would correct the errors in the law establishing the state board of control.

We recommend to the voters the adoption of the proposed law, whose submission to the people was secured by the persistent efforts of the Lind administration, for the increase of the railroad gross earnings tax.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people and the election to the senate only of men pledged to that reform.

III.

We condemn the failure of the present state administration to enforce the law against the merger of the iron range railroads.

We condemn the surrender of the state railroad and warehouse commission to the United States steel trust in giving up the state's jurisdiction over railroads wholly within its borders and abandoning the just rates ordered by the preceding commission, to the prejudice of the state's interest in the school lands.

We condemn the failure of the board of control to conserve the efficiency of the state institutions, and we abhor the theory that the public schools, which are fundamental to the life of the republic, are charitable institutions.

We condemn the administration for converting the state binding twine plant into an auxiliary of the cordage trust.

We condemn the Minnesota congressmen for their failure to promote legislation to strengthen the powers of the interstate commerce commission, and we regret that subserviency to privileged greed should compel our United States senators to vote for the iniquitous ship subsidy.

WANT TO BE PAID.

Soldiers Organize to Demand Remuneration for Services.

Havana, June 26.—A reunion of war veterans is to be held in Manzanillo this week for the purpose of unitedly demanding pay for their services in the revolution. The authorities are worried, and fear trouble as a result of their necessary non-compliance with the demand. Gen. Masso, late a candidate for the presidency, was scheduled to preside, but has declined. The British vessels recently captured off the Cuban coast in violation of the fisheries and customs regulations have been released on a protest made by the British charge d'affaires. The seven-mile limit claimed under the Spanish law will not be recognized.

ASSINIBOINE IN FLOOD.

Manitoba River Rears Up and Is Still Rising.

Winnipeg, June 26.—A Brandon dispatch says the Assiniboine is going up at the rate of an inch an hour. Monday night the water went up a foot and five inches. Yesterday afternoon it was beginning to look more serious for the residents. On the flats some houses were entirely surrounded. The flooring of the bridge was removed in the night to save the structure. Reports from Griswold say the water went up three feet Monday night. Oak Lake slough overflowed the land eastward.

THE FEAR OF LIGHTNING

Weather Bureau Statistics Show That There Is Little Real Cause for Alarm

How unreasoning the fear of lightning felt by so many timid people is may be seen from a compilation of statistics made by the weather bureau.

The figures, which have been gathered during the past decade relative to the deaths by lightning in the United States, are certainly of considerable interest. The old question used to be how to protect buildings against lightning—lightning rods or none, solid rods or hollow rods—and on the latter point men like Faraday and Sir William Snow Harris took opposite sides and waxed wroth, each telling the other he knew nothing about the subject. To-day little or no attention is given to this matter, and it is generally realized that as regards where lightning will strike we must take our chances, which, according to the statistics referred to, are about one in 100,000 of being struck. The old idea that lightning will never strike twice in the same place has been pretty well exploded by the actual facts, and there is reason to assume that if lightning strikes a given point once it may be expected to strike there again, rather than at some other contiguous place.

The theory of lightning is now fairly well established. It is supposed to be due to the rapid condensation of the minute drops of moisture in the air, each of which, under certain conditions, contains a small electric charge. As these minute drops coalesce the electric potential is increased, due to the fact that the total superficial area of the coalesced drop is less than twice that when they existed singly, and, as the electric capacity is proportional to this area, the electric charge of the two drops is now confined within an area of less capacity than before, with the result that the electric pressure is increased. In this way, long before the drops have attained a size to be precipitated as rain, an electro-motive force amounting to millions of volts is developed.

While there is no certain immunity from lightning when it prevails, attention is called to the great desirability of persevering in efforts to resuscitate those who have been rendered insensible by lightning strokes, as recoveries have repeatedly been made of persons supposed to be dead, after more than an hour's efforts. The statistics also show that there is no immunity from lightning in a feather bed, in a house, or in a closet, and that knives and the like do not attract lightning. For those who are inherently dreadful of lightning the only comforting suggestion that can be offered is to remember that if one lives to see the flash he is safe for that time.

RUSSIANS ARE FAILURES AS RAILROAD BUILDERS

When George Stephenson devised the locomotive and railroads began, it was as open to Russia as to any other country to develop railways in the empire, but now, nearly three-quarters of a century after Stephenson's day, Russia, with more than 8,000,000 square miles of territory, has barely 35,000 miles of railway, while the United States, with 3,000,000 square miles of territory, excluding Alaska, has 200,000 miles. It would be difficult to find a stronger expression of the comparative economic energy of two great nations than is conveyed by this single and striking example. One sees constantly in the magazine articles, especially by English writers, expressing the most profound admiration at the completion of the Siberian Railway, and yet nothing could be more convincing of the very low economic force of Russia than that same railroad. That it is an important work, that it will help Russia in the East, both economically and for military purposes, cannot be questioned, and yet to wonder at the building of the Trans-Siberian Railroad is only possible if we fail to look below the surface. Russia has been occupied for more than ten years in building 6,000 miles of railway over a very easy country for the most part and that railway is not yet completed. The turn around Lake Baikal, which involves serious difficulties, is not yet made, and will not be for some years. The Manchurian branch is not yet complete. But assume that we may call the railway completed, what do we find? It has taken Russia ten years to build 6,000 miles of railroad. The annual construction of railways in the United States has twice reached 6,000 miles. The Russian road has cost in the easiest part $30,000 a mile, and in Siberia it has probably cost, with the equipment, $50,000 a mile. Yet, despite this enormous and wasteful expenditure, they have only got a single track laid with rails so light that they must relay it from one end to the other. It is as yet a complete failure commercially. It is not paying its expenses.—From "Some Impressions of Russia," by Senator H. C. Lodge, in Scribner's.

WEALTH OF THE CITIES

New York's Far in Excess of That of Any Other American Community

The total assessed value of real estate and personal property in the city of New York, uncorrected, is $6,600,000,000.

Each county of the state adopts its own rate of valuation as compared with the actual value of real estate. Thus Chautauqua fixes 90 per cent as the assessable value, Onondaga, 85; Steuben, 80; Tioga, 75; Saratoga, 70, and Nassau, 65—the lowest of all.

In New York county the percentage is 67, in Kings 68, in Queens 80 and in Richmond 66. Practically, real estate in the five boroughs of the Greater New York is assessed at about two-thirds of its probable selling value. Personal estate in New York is not all assessed.

Inclusive of state, national and municipal property and of all property exempt from taxation, New York city represents in tangible real and personal estate $10,000,000,000, and this enormous total quite overshadows all other American cities and many foreign countries as well.

Chicago represents $500,000,000 worth of real and personal property; Boston, $1,200,000,000; Philadelphia, $1,000,000,000; St. Louis, $450,000,000; San Francisco, $450,000,000; Buffalo, $250,000,000; Baltimore, $460,000,000; Pittsburg, $350,000,000; Washington, $150,000,000; Cleveland, $250,000,000 and Providence, $200,000,000.

The greater wealth of Eastern cities, when compared with the more populous places of more recent growth in the West, is due to the large accumulations of invested capital, much of which finds employment in other places. Peoria, Ill., and New Bedford, Mass., have substantially the same population, but while the assessed value of taxable property in Peoria is less than $10,000,000, in New Bedford it is more than $60,000,000.

ALL LIFE'S JOYS AT AN END.

Young Woman Had Paid a Sorrowful Farewell to Happiness.

The young woman sat by the window looking out into the air dreamily, when her reverie was disturbed by an elderly woman coming in.

"Oh," said the visitor, "excuse me. I didn't know you were absorbed."

"Come in," responded the dreamer, extending her hand. "I am glad to see you."

"But why are you so pensive? You look as if your best friend had died. What is the matter?"

The young woman drew her handkerchief hastily across her eyes. "Ah," she sighed, "Tom and I—"

The older woman dropped her hands in her lap in a helpless, despairing fashion. "Don't tell me," she interrupted, "that you and Tom have quarreled!"

The girl sighed again. "The end has come," she said, "to all our moonlight drives, to the tender whisperings beneath the magnolia trees, to the boxes of caramels and the baskets of flowers, to the sweet nothings in the conservatory as the dancers whirl in the ballroom, to the verses he wrote me, to the rivalries and jealousies of sweetheart days, to the——"

"Say no more!" exclaimed the older woman, determined to set matters right. "What have you two done? Tell me everything."

The young girl came over and laid her head on the older female's shoulder.

"We were married this morning at 10 o'clock," she whispered. And the older woman's hands fell helpless once more.—Judge.

Speaking of Royalty.

Damocles had been invited to dine with the king of Syracuse. Upon taking his seat he instantly saw the sword hanging by a hair above his head.

"I suppose," he said to the king, "you call that heir apparent." Dionysius, pretending to see no humor in the remark, replied: "I don't know about that, my boy, but if it falls upon your head it will make some crown prints."

This shows that the ancients were not averse to joking, even under trying circumstances.—New York Times.

Years and sins are always more than owned.

It is a fortunate thing for mankind that a dog laughs with his tail, otherwise when he has occasion to show his teeth his meaning might be misunderstood.

BIGGEST AND OLDEST LIVING.

Giant Sequoia Said to Be 5,000 Years Old and Still Growing.

"They are 5,000 years old, 300 feet high, thirty feet through and still growing," said a member of Congress from California to a Washington Star reporter the other day. "They are the biggest livings things on earth and the oldest living things on earth."

"What are they?"

"The big trees of California. And I want to say right here that public money could not be spent in a better way than to preserve the ten groves of big trees of the sequoia family which my state possesses. These trees flourished way back in the Miocene period, before the ice age. Then they covered vast areas, both in Europe and America, but now they are restricted to a narrow strip in California. The grove in Southern Placer county contains only six. The Calaveras, the Stanislaus, the Tuolumne, the Fresno and the Dinkey groves contain a few each. There are tracts of some thousands on Kings and Kaweah and Tulare rivers, but scarcely 500 of the survivors are giants.

"Science says that the big tree is practically immortal and congress should see to it that the ruthless hand of man shall not interfere with this immortality."

CHINESE GUN CENTURIES OLD.

Cannon Taken from Great Wall Is 2,500 Years Old.

There have just been placed on exhibition in Memorial Hall in the park at Philadelphia an interesting old Chinese cannon and a remarkable piece of carving in the form of an antique Japanese sword and sheath of heavy ivory, measuring over three feet in length, made from sections of elephant tusks and elaborately carved over the entire surface with battle scenes and Japanese warriors in curious armor.

The cannon was taken from the great wall of China at Shanhai-kwan in 1899 by E. E. Diffenderfer and presented to the Philadelphia museum. This wall is supposed to have been erected about 250 B. C. The cannon, which is apparently made of iron and a yard in length, was found built in the top of the masonry, with only the muzzle and touch-hole exposed, where it had been imbedded for probably 2,250 years.

A remarkable feature of this venerable relic, says the Philadelphia Record, is that, while it is thick and clumsy, and much corroded, it rings when struck with the clear, rich, sustained tones of a silver bell.

George Downing.

Every letter Lord Salisbury writes from Downing street perpetuates the name of a clever man from Massachusetts. Those were the days before the Fourth of July had any significance in American annals, and George Downing, the first scholar in the first public school in Massachusetts, and the first graduate sent out by Harvard College, came to England and became a chaplain in Cromwell's army. By a remarkable stroke of fortune, he was sent to represent England at The Hague when Europe was trembling before Oliver, and during three distinct eras in England's history he held the office of British ambassador at the Dutch court. He was as popular—or as clever—under the merry monarch as under the protector and the commonwealth, and it came to pass, in the reign of Charles II., that the man from Massachusetts was granted a great tract of land at Westminster, where he built huge mansions and laid out Downing street. To this day Downing's street is Downing street still, and, though George Downing is forgotten, there is no name in the British empire which is more familiar to us than his.—St. James' Gazette.

Tattooing Society Women.

A new fad among Chicago society women is the tattooing of their fair bodies. A few weeks ago a repulsive looking little Japanese tattooer arrived in that city with letters of introduction from some of the smartest women in London and New York who had been tattooed by him recently. The Chicago women, of course, thought it would be the proper thing to follow suit. Now several are sending regrets when invited out, owing to their wounds. This fad was first adopted by the Countess of Warwick and other fashionable London women, and it was taken up in this city. The Jap's letters easily gained for him entree into the most exclusive Chicago homes. At least six of the North Side set have had the initials of their fiances or husbands or some sentimental symbol indelibly printed on their arms or shoulders. One of the best known has commissioned the Jap to tattoo a bracelet upon her wrist and to insert precious stones in the design.

"Charity"—Not Business.

Charity covers many sins, and this is how a provincial co-religionist made it cover the sin of desecrating the Sabbath, says the London Jewish World. Mr. Isaacs, as we will call our friend, kept his clothing store open on the Sabbath, though not at all too "link" otherwise. One Sabbath morning a local Christian clergyman, who was friendly with many members of the community, remonstrated with Mr. Isaacs when passing his establishment. "I am really surprised, Mr. Isaacs," said the cleric, genially, "that a right good Jew, such as you should do business on the Sabbath." "And do you call this business?" replied Mr. Isaacs, pointing to a ready-made suit on one of the dummies in the doorway, marked 17s., "why, this 's charity."

The Great Western Sporting Event, the "American Derby"

As long as the American Derby exists as the feature of western turf sport, breeding and racing interests in this country, representing millions of dollars in investments, will be certain of popular favor.

There are other Derbies, but they lose in comparison with the great June event in Chicago, which rises far above the everyday possibilities of the ordinary "hoss race," to the dignity of the two great events abroad—the Grand Prix of Paris and the English Derby on Epsom Downs—which it so closely resembles.

The American Derby is a race for glory. The course at Washington Park, made famous by the speed contests of American and imported thoroughbreds, is that upon which resound the hoofbeats of the very best from noted dams and sires. Here the horses that may have run and won elsewhere come to show that they are the real thing as Derby candidates. It is the best horse to win, and naught could tempt owner, trainer or jockey from the strictest line of honesty. Even royalty has been represented among the owners who prefer to win the Derby than any other turf event. Multi-millionaires from all sections of this country, who willingly pay fabulous prices for horses with which they hope to secure this coveted turf honor, have seen their favorites defeated by the horses of owners who needed the money to pay their feed bills.

Gen. Phil Sheridan, the first president of the Washington Park club, rarely given to newspaper interviews, said when the track was first opened:

"The races here are to be purely for the sport that is in them. Derby day is to be an event for the pleasure of all. It is also intended as a summer festivity which will bring out the people to enjoy the fresh air, and to provide a healthful, interesting pastime. Legitimate horse racing is a sport to be cultivated anywhere, everywhere, and at all times in season. This is the kind we shall have at Washington Park track."

This grand old warrior came all the way from Washington in 1884, to act as a judge at the first Derby, won by Modesty, and he later declared that he never had the slightest regret for the time and money he had given in making the Derby a turf and social success. This is also the feeling of the men who have stood behind Secretary Howard and the club directors for eighteen years, with check books in hand to make up any deficiency in conducting these annual meetings, at which over $500,000 has been distributed in stakes and purses.

But Derby day has a greater significance to the western people than mere horse racing. It is the Vanity Fair of the summer season, for the wealth and fashion of the great western metropolis would have it so. And it is thoroughly democratic as well, for the thousands from the middle walks of life are as deeply interested.

Michigan avenue, the fashionable Chicago boulevard, and all its tributary aristocratic resident streets present a scene on Derby day morning unrivaled in America. Like a gorgeous braid of color the vehicles, loaded with those who have all that wealth can buy and art bestow, move out over these streets to join the boulevard pageant as it passes on with music of horn and bugle to the racing scene. Then the boulevard closely resembles Rotten Row or the Champs Elysees, when royalty is abroad for the day. All is bright and beautiful, and the spirit of the occasion is as thoroughly enjoyed by those in the chaises as others who tread amid the daisies.

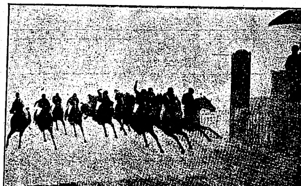
American Derby day appeals to all classes in a recreative, social and sportive way. The women find as much enjoyment as the men. It comes at a time—Saturday, June 21, this year—when the summer fashions are set and milady is prepared for the seashore, lake or mountains. A time when society can close the town season in a most appropriate manner. Indeed, the selection of the third Saturday after the first Monday in June for this event, is generally credited to a suggestion of a society devotee, and the choice has been accepted for each succeeding renewal of the great racing event.

It is the kaleidoscopic vision of flashing colors that makes Derby day a success. The bright and fashionable equipages drawn by prancing horses whose coats are groomed to a silken sheen, and with gold and silver mountings of the harnesses flashing in the sun, the coachmen and footmen in bright blue coats, white doeskins and highly polished leathers with tan tops, the autos that this year played an important part as the Chicago Automobile Club turned out in 150 machines, the color effects of the stylish dresses, sunshades and millinery all combine to make it seem as though the boulevard had caught the end of a rainbow and rolled it out along the thoroughfare. And, as this symphony of colors is carried through the gates and onto the infield, as carefully kept as any lawn, for it contains a magnificent golf course, the scene from the clubhouse and double decked grandstand, seating 30,000 people, makes Derby day just different from the ordinary "hoss race." Then to those on the infield where the vehicles are ten deep along the quarter of a mile of home stretch of the track, the animated scene about the club house and its beautiful lawn, the grandstand with its solid sea of faces and the spacious lawn between the stand and track, with a tidal wave of humanity which ebbs and flows before and after each race, adds to the general effect that even the lads who throng the "L" structure just outside the grounds, would not swap places for a knothole in the fence at a baseball park, when the score is tied and none out.

It takes two preliminary races to give the crowd opportunity to size up itself and to whet the appetite for the real thing. Then comes the preliminary "warming up" of the Derby horses by the exercise boys. The starter crosses the field to the half-mile post and soon after the saddling call by the bugler, the parade of the horses past the grandstand and to the starting post follows. Every vantage spot is now taken.

There are the usual false breaks, the scolding and pleading of the starter with tricky and over-anxious jockeys, and finally at the swish of the flag the great crowd takes up the cry "They're off!" and the horses come thundering down the stretch on the first turn past the grandstand, horses and riders equally determined to win the check for $20,000, which the presiding judge will place in trembling hands in the fractional part of three minutes. But those hands do not shake now. Straight and true, they guide the bundle of nerves and muscular force towards the goal of ambitious effort for each little knight of the pigskin. Cheered by the frantic cries from 50,000 throats, each for its particular favorite, horses and riders round the quarter-mile post and from this point the race is really on. Glasses are now in hand of eager spectators, and it seems but a flash of color along the back stretch until the contestants are in the home stretch. Now the hoofbeats keep time to the heartbeats; a brief interval as they pass under the wire, and then as the number of the winner goes up on the judges' stand a tremendous burst of applause breaks from the crowd. Men swarm out upon the track; the immense floral horseshoe is brought out and into it the successful jockey is placed, to be carried up the track past the stand and then to the paddock and jockey room. And in its enthusiasm the crowd would carry off the real Derby winner—the equine 3-year-old hero of the day.

DERBY DAY AT WASHINGTON PARK—THE FIRST TIME PAST THE STAND.



THE FIRST AMERICAN DERBY, JUNE 28th, 1884—"MODESTY WINS IT."

That story about the fall of man is probably a myth after all. If the devil had really gone into Eden to befuddle the lady he would have put on a gorgeous uniform and decorated himself with a lot of medals and crosses.

KING DOES NICELY

DOCTORS ANNOUNCE THAT HIS MAJESTY PASSED ANOTHER GOOD DAY.

QUEEN STICKS TO HIS SIDE

STATEMENTS THAT SHE IS NURSING HIM ARE MISLEADING.

DANGER POINT IS NOW PASSED

REPORT THAT KING HAS DIABETES IS DECLARED UNTRUE.

London, July 1.—The king has had another good day, but the attempt to place him on a couch that was made Saturday was not renewed.

It was found that it was too soon to move him, and when it was tried he was compelled to return to his bed almost immediately. Therefore he remained in bed yesterday, where he rested easily. The doctors consider that it would not be proper to give him solids to eat yet, so his diet of beef tea is continued. There was no indication of any change in his condition yesterday. No information can be obtained regarding the removal of the stitches in the wound. The doctors are determined to give the public no information on this point. The queen is constantly with her husband, but the statements that she is nursing him

Are Misleading.

A high palace official, when asked about this replied: "We don't want any amateur nursing. The king is never left alone. There are two trained nurses with him night and day."

With regard to the king's "satisfactory progress" it is significant that he is not allowed to see his brother, the duke of Connaught, yet the prince of Wales paid his usual afternoon call yesterday, remaining in the sick room over an hour. He left the palace after an important conference with Lord Francis Knollys, the king's private secretary. Lord Francis, replying to a question asked him concerning the report that the king has diabetes, said: "Of course it is a lie."

Queen Alexandra has privately received several of the foreign coronation guests during the past two days.

Saturday night passed with less incident at Buckingham palace than any other night since the operation was performed on King Edward. There were outside the palace, the public apparently having accepted the official announcement that the king has passed the point of immediate danger. The following bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock yesterday morning:

Fewer Watchers

"The king feels stronger in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the king is making."

This bulletin was not expected until 10 o'clock; consequently the few persons who were passing in the neighborhood of the palace were the only ones attracted to the announcement. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early churchgoers stopped to read the latest news and passing on with expressions of thankfulness.

NEGRO KILLS OFFICER.

Sergeant of Police in Kansas City Victim of Fugitive.

Kansas City, July 1.—Frank McNamara, a sergeant on the local police force, was shot and killed by Abe Emerson, a negro, whom he was seeking to arrest. The negro was shot twice and will die. McNamara, accompanied by an officer, went to Emerson's house to arrest him for beating a woman. Upon the approach of the officers the negro started to run, and when commanded to halt he turned abruptly and fired three shots at McNamara, two of which took effect. Before he fell the officer shot Emerson twice.

SEQUEL TO A LOVE ROMANCE.

Belgian Princess, Broken in Health, Released From a Lunatic Asylum.

Paris, July 1. — Princess Louise of Coburg, eldest daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, now a shadow of her former beautiful self, has just been released from the sanitarium in which she was confined some time ago on a pretext of lunacy after her love adventure with a lieutenant in the Austrian army. The unfortunate hero of this tragic romance, it is said, will soon be pardoned by Emperor Francis Joseph on condition that he will emigrate to the United States or Australia and never return to Austria.

BACKED BY UNCLE SAM.

China Wants to Pay the Indemnity in Silver.

Pekin, July 1.—The ministers here have approved the plans of the foreign consuls at Amoy for an international settlement of the Amoy-Foochow railway dispute. The question of the payment of the indemnity in gold or silver has not yet been settled. China insists that the debt should be paid in silver, and is supported by the United States. For this reason the ministers will send separate replies to the Chinese contention. All the countries except the United States demand payment in gold.

Murdered by Mexicans.

Hillsboro, Tex., July 1.—It is reported from Con Semora, Mex., that Henry Ward and his wife have been murdered by two Mexican employes, who themselves were killed by pursuing officers. Mr. Ward was a wealthy cattleman.

Nebraska Is Soaked.

Lincoln, Neb., July 1.—Eastern Nebraska has had four days of almost continuous rainfall, flooding cornfields and delaying the harvesting of small grain. Some damage has been done to wheat in the shock.

STRIKE SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Beginning of Eighth Week of Miners' Strike.

Wilkesbarre, July 1. — The beginning of the eighth week of the anthracite miners' strike shows no change in the situation. President Mitchell's headquarters national board member, John Fallon, is acting for Mr. Mitchell during his absence. He said last night that the miners were just as determined as ever, and unless there was arbitration the strike was destined to go on. The national board member also denied that there was any suffering among the strikers. He said that so far there was no privation and not likely to be any for a long time to come. The local operators seem to be a unit in saying that a break in the strikers' ranks may come any time now. This belief is based on reports which the operators claim to have received from many sources that the families of many of the strikers are in want.

TEN THOUSAND MEN IDLE.

Plate Glass and Window Glass Industries Shut Down.

Pittsburg, July 1. — The plate glass and window glass industries of the country are now at a standstill, the former plants for one and the latter for two months, throwing idle an aggregate of 10,000 men. The complete shut-down of the plate glass factories is a condition never before existing in this country. The plate glass men go out through an agreement of producers which the Pittsburg Plate Glass company insisted upon, thereby forcing the smaller concerns to fall in line. The window glass workers who quit last were employed in the independent factories, the American company's and the Federation company's employes having quit on May 15.

HYPNOTIST DIDN'T MIND WATER.

Friends Dig Him Up and Find Coffin Half Full of Water.

Reading, Pa., July 1.—For fear the driving rain would drown W. W. Kretz in his grave, his friends dug him out yesterday morning. The coffin was half full of water, but Kretz lay in it in a comatose or hypnotic state. Kretz is president of the local association for the study of occult science. Saturday evening at 6:30 his associate members dug a grave six feet deep and provided a coffin. Kretz got into it and put himself in a hypnotic condition. The lid was screwed down, the coffin lowered and the grave filled up. A tube from the surface led down into the coffin to give Kretz air. The grave was to be opened yesterday morning. He was feeling all right yesterday afternoon.

NEGROES ARE SHOT.

Two Are Victims of Mob Violence in South Carolina.

Langley, S. C., July 1.—Two negroes who were injured in a riot between whites and negroes upon a passenger train near this city, and afterward placed in prison here, were shot to death by a mob of white men in their efforts to secure the negroes. Ten white men were shot and cut more or less seriously, and six or seven negroes were injured in the riot. The news of the riot spread through the country and crowds rapidly gathered in town. Before midnight they broke into the calaboose and shot the two wounded negroes to death.

DROUGHT IS BROKEN.

Rain Saves the Crops in the State of Colorado.

Denver, July 1.—The drouth which threatened to be the most severe that Colorado has known for years, has been broken by a rain as general in extent as it was copious in quantity. Though the storm was in places accompanied by hail, which did much damage, this is trivial compared with the value of the crops saved by the rain. The storm damage in Denver and vicinity is estimated all the way from $10,000 to $50,000. Snow fell to the depth of eight inches in Leadville and many other places in the mountains.

MAMMOTH COTTON MILL.

Largest in the World Will Be Built Near Kansas City.

Kansas City, July 1.—The Star says: The largest cotton mill in the world is to be built within twenty miles of here. Ten million dollars is to be invested, $3,100,000 of which has already been subscribed by Eastern and Western men. W. B. Smith Wahely, president of the Olympia and Granby cotton mills of Columbia, S. C., is to be president and general manager of the enterprise. The mill will have 500,000 spindles and 12,000 looms. It will employ 4,000 operatives and have a payroll of $2,450,000 a year.

TROUBLES OF CASTELLANES.

Boni and His Brothers Likely to Be Denied Seats in House of Deputies.

Paris, July 1. — The commission appointed by the house to examine into the circumstances of Boni Castellane's election has recommended an inquiry by 17 to 13 votes. His brother, Stanislaus Castellane, fared even worse, it being unanimously recommended that his election be annulled. The case of the third brother, Jean, has not yet been reached, but the committee's reporter says the evidence will render validation of the election impossible.

CHOLERA IN CHINA.

One German Soldier Dead—The Disease Spreading.

Pekin, July 1.—One German soldier has died here from cholera and the disease is spreading. The members of the diplomatic corps have requested the government to co-operate with the foreign doctors in the enforcement of measures to prevent the disease from assuming an epidemic form.

Presented to the Pope.

Rome, July 1.—The pope Saturday received Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, who is a member of the commission that has been trying to settle church affairs in the Philippines. The bishop presented Gov. Taft and family.

One Dead, Forty Hurt.

Marlborough, Mass., July 1.—A head-on collision between two heavily loaded cars on the street railway resulted in the death of Motorman John A. Harris and injuries to about forty passengers, several being taken to hospitals.

AMNESTY FOR ALL

PROCLAMATION TO THE FILIPINOS WILL BE ISSUED JULY 4.

AGUINALDO IS INCLUDED IN IT.

ALL POLITICAL OFFENDERS IN THE ISLANDS WILL BE GIVEN LIBERTY.

OBJECT IS TO RESTORE PEACE

TO SUBSTITUTE A CIVIL FOR A MILITARY ADMINISTRATION.

Washington, June 29.—At a meeting of the cabinet yesterday the terms of an amnesty proclamation to the Filipinos, which it is contemplated to issue on the Fourth of July, were agreed upon. The war department for some time past has had under consideration the draft of a proclamation and has found it necessary to make a number of changes in its text. In its modified state it was agreed to by the cabinet yesterday and Secretary Root will cable it to Acting Gov. Wright for his inspection. If it meets the latter's approval nothing will remain for the president, if the Philippine civil government bill is a law on that day, as is now expected it will be, but to issue on Independence day a formal proclamation setting forth terms of amnesty for all political offenders in the islands, including Aguinaldo and those held at Guam. The proclamation is based on the general objects of the Philippine government bill, namely,

To Restore Peace

in the archipelago and substitute a civil for a military administration. The bill is now in conference and the proclamation will not be issued until the Philippine government measure has been agreed upon by both houses and the president has affixed his signature to it. The proclamation will declare that a state of peace now exists in the Philippine Islands, save in the parts of the archipelago where the Mindanao or Pagan tribes are giving the United States a great amount of trouble, and will declare, in effect, that with the transfer of the government of the archipelago from a military to a civil status all those arrested and held for political offenses shall be restored to liberty, granted full amnesty and allowed to participate in the civil government that is to be inaugurated on the islands. While the proclamation is subject to changes in text, the general language of the document is pretty Well Mapped Out.

There is no intention, it is stated, to release those prisoners convicted of other than political offenses, the benefits of the amnesty being limited to those in custody as a result of breaches of military law, leaving criminal offenders to the action of the proper authorities under the coming civil government. The purpose is to demonstrate that motives of humanity and generosity dictate our course toward the Filipinos. When the islands are turned over to the new civil authorities they will not be left without adequate military protection, as no more troops will be ordered home for the present and every precaution will be taken for the military safeguarding of the islands under the new civil administration.

The cabinet meeting was held in the president's temporary quarters on Lafayette Square, and was the first time in eighty-eight years that a regular session of the cabinet had been held outside the White House.

COMBINE MISSOURI MINES.

Morgan's Syndicate Has a Plan Under Way.

Kansas City, June 29.—The Star says: All the big coal mines in Missouri are to be absorbed by a syndicate controlled by J. Pierpont Morgan, according to R. G. Rombauer of Jeffersonville, Mo., a coal operator. "An effort was made about a year ago by Mr. Morgan's, Chicago representative to organize a syndicate in Missouri," said Mr. Rombauer. "The negotiations were not successful, but a new plan of absorbing the Missouri mines has recently been proposed, and the indications are now favorable for the consolidation of the most important mines in Missouri."

CORONATION DATE.

Postponed Ceremony Likely to Occur Early in the Autumn.

London, June 29. — The government officials expect possibly within a week to fix the approximate date of the coronation, which will probably occur early in the autumn. From an authoritative source the Associated Press learns that the king reads and converses continually with the queen and the prince and princess of Wales. All that the doctors insist is that he shall not be worried by matters requiring careful weighing.

SOCIALIST ROUGHLY HANDLED.

Crowd Wanted to Lynch Him—Pelted With Rotten Eggs.

Mattoon, Ill., June 30. — "Kill him, lynch him; the rope; hang him," were some of the cries that greeted John W. Anderson, Chicago, Socialist organizer, as he addressed a large crowd at Assumption, Christian county, last night. Anderson was roughly handled and pelted with rotten eggs. Coolheaded citizens surrounded Anderson, escorted him to the railway station, and he was sent out of town on the first train.

TOASTED THE KING.

Change in Play in a New York Theater Is Appreciated.

New York, June 30.—Topical hits and "merry quips," written by George Ade, Finley Peter Dunne, G. Frank Pixley and George Broadhurst, were to have been introduced into "King Dodo," commemorative of the coronation. Instead, however, a toast was drunk to the speedy recovery of Edward VII. in the first act. The entire audience applauded, and the orchestra played "God Save the King."

"NORM" KING IS GUILTY.

Another Minneapolis Police Trial Is Disposed of.

Minneapolis, July 1. — Nathaniel W. King, one of Mayor Ames' thirty plain clothes men or detectives, was Saturday evening found guilty of felony. The trial of King, familiarly known as "Norm" King, has occupied nearly two weeks' time. The case was a sensational one, not only because the defendant was a very well known man in the community, but from the fact that that distinguished crook and still more famous witness, "Billy" Edwards, figured as a very material witness. The result of the trial comes as something of a surprise to those who have watched it with any special interest. There was any amount of speculation as to the probable outcome of the trial. There were comparatively few who calculated on a verdict of guilty, whatever their private judgment in the matter. The most that was expected by those who thus speculated was a disagreement. This idea was due largely perhaps to the fact that the state made things so very clear in the Gardner and Norbeck cases—much clearer, perhaps, than in the King case.

COLEMAN IS GUILTY.

Jury Holds Him Responsible for His Brother's Death.

Faulkton, S. D., July 1. — Joseph Coleman was found guilty of murdering his brother and the jury fixed his sentence at life imprisonment. Judge Gaffey sentenced the prisoner according to recommendation of the jury and counsel for the defense made the usual motion for a new trial. Coleman was cool and collected when the jury came in after deliberating upon the case for eight hours, and received the verdict without any visible show of feeling. His expression did not change nor did his color fade when the foreman read the decision the twelve men had agreed upon. His aged father takes the matter hard, but is bearing up well under the strain.

MURDER IN A DREAM.

Youth Dreams That His Life Is in Danger and With an Axe Hacks His Brother to Pieces.

Kokomo, Ind., July 1.—In a dream Saturday night John Snyder, aged eighteen, killed his brother Grover, aged sixteen, cutting him to pieces with an axe. The brothers had attended an ice cream party at the home of County Superintendent Mannels, and on their return were told by their mother that a plot had been laid to kill them. She told them where an axe could be found with which to defend themselves. In the night the elder boy dreamed that murderers were in the house, and on waking grabbed the axe and hacked his brother to pieces, taking him for the murderers.

END OF ROMANCE.

The Body of L. George Lohr Is Found in the Lake.

Madison, Wis., July 1.—The body of L. George Lohr of Milwaukee, who was drowned with his sweetheart and classmate, Miss Ida L. Hawley, in Lake Mendota two weeks ago last Wednesday evening, was found yesterday floating near Picnic Point. Lohr and Miss Hawley were members of the graduating class of the state university and were accidentally drowned while out pleasure riding in a rowboat. The night of the tragedy Lohr gave Miss Hawley a betrothal ring and they had planned to be married soon. Miss Hawley's body was found last Thursday.

FIRE ON A GASOLINE LAUNCH.

Fourteen Passengers on Board Jump Into the Lake.

Bemidji, Minn., July 1. — The new gasoline launch Ranger, with fourteen passengers on board, caught fire last night at 10 o'clock on Lake Bemidji and was totally destroyed. All passengers, including women and children, jumped overboard and were saved with slight burns. The accident happened near shore at the north end of the lake, six miles from the village. It was caused by a leaking gasoline tank.

MURDERER GIVEN THIRTY YEARS.

Sam Roan Sentenced for Killing Old Soldier at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 1.—Sam Roan was sentenced to thirty years imprisonment for the murder of George Linn, an old soldier in a quarrel over a woman. The murder occurred two weeks ago. Linn released Roan after having him down, whereupon Roan felled him with a blow from behind, then seized a knife from Linn's pocket with which he stabbed the prostrate man to death.

INDIAN IS HELD FOR MURDER.

Basil Thunder Is Charged With Killing a Squaw.

Bemidji, Minn., July 1. — Sheriff Bailey brought down from the Red Lake agency Basil Thunder, an Indian, who was bound over to the grand jury for killing a squaw, an inmate of a resort run by a white man over the reservation line. He was madly infatuated with the woman and visited the house, calling her out and striking her with a coupling pin.

Murder and Suicide.

Sterling, Ill., July 1. — Henry Canfield of Morrison, killed his wife, of whom he was jealous, Saturday night, and then took his own life. The bodies were not found until yesterday. The discovery was made by a daughter of the dead couple, who entered their bedroom and found her parents lying dead on the floor side by side. The shock produced nervous prostration and her condition is now critical.

Accuse Mayor of Fraud.

Pillager, Minn., July 1.—Papers were served on C. L. Lasher, mayor of Pillager, charged with fraud in connection with the last village election.

Poisoned Himself.

Spearfish, S. D., July 1. — Fred Brucker, a young farmer living near here, committed suicide by taking poison. He was thirty-one years old and in good health and circumstances. No motive can be assigned.

Four Freight Cars Derailed.

Fargo, N. D., July 1. — Both the afternoon trains over the Northern Pacific were delayed several hours. Four cars of freight were derailed near Muskoda, but the trainmen report no one injured.

ARE UNDER WATER

FARMS ARE FLOODED AND CROPS DESTROYED BY HEAVY RAINS.

UNTOLD DAMAGE IS DONE

MIDDLE WEST IS AFFLICTED, IN SOME PLACES EQUALING CLOUDBURST.

SEVERAL LIVES REPORTED LOST

ONLY BEST OF WEATHER CAN SAVE FARMERS FROM HEAVY LOSS.

Chicago, July 1.—"If the rains continue a few days longer the damage to the crops throughout the Middle Western and Western states and the loss to the farmers will be beyond calculation," said Prof. Cox, of the United States weather bureau last night.

While he was speaking reports were coming in showing that it was raining practically all over the Middle West, and that many already flooded states were visited by an inch or more of rain in twenty-four hours. In Chicago the rainfall was more than an inch. Illinois is one of the chief sufferers. All through the interior, as far south as the Ohio river, the farms are flooded. Corn fields, wheat fields, meadows, pastures and gardens have been turned into lakes and ponds. Only the most favorable kind of weather will save the agricultural communities from heavy loss.

Equaled a Cloudburst.

St. Louis, July 1.—The city and vicinity is the center of a rainstorm of unprecedented severity that has prevailed almost incessantly since Saturday morning. According to the local weather bureau reports 5.4 inches of rain fell here between 2:30 a. m. Saturday and 8 p. m. Sunday, and the end is apparently not in sight. At times the storm equalled a cloudburst in severity.

Considerable damage, the total estimated at about $250,000, resulted from the wind that accompanied the rain. Saturday night the wind attained a velocity of about 55 miles an hour, blowing down trees, telephone, telegraph and trolley poles and interfering with communication of all sorts. At least 1,000 shade trees in various parts of the city are reported on the ground. From the country surrounding comes to and the washing out of railroad tracks and bridges, causing considerable delay to trains. Nearly all inbound trains were greatly delayed as a result of the storm.

Reports of Destruction

One of the most disastrous floods in the history of Alton, Ill., and vicinity resulted yesterday from the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was estimated that 10,000 acres had been covered by the overflow of the Wood river, which is three to six miles wide. Most of this land is either occupied by manufacturing interests or planted in crops. The greatest single disaster caused by the flood was the destruction of the plant of the Stoneware Pipe company at East Alton. The loss is estimated at $40,000.

Six Lives Reported Lost.

Sandusky, Ohio, July 1.—It is feared that at least six lives were lost in the terrible storm which raged on Lake Erie Saturday night and yesterday morning. Word was received here to the effect that the steam barge George Dunbar went down in the storm early Sunday morning ten miles east of Kelley's island. The barge carried a crew of ten and six of the crew are still unaccounted for.

JESSE JAMES REINTERRED.

Comrades of the Bandit Act as Pallbearers.

Kansas City, July 1. — Jesse James' body, which has been buried for twenty years in the dooryard of the old James homestead near Excelsior Springs, Mo., was disinterred yesterday and buried in the cemetery at Kearney, Mo., beside the bodies of his father and wife. Mrs. Zerelda Samuels, mother of Jesse James, Frank James, his brother, and Jesse and Mary, his son and daughter, attended the ceremonies. A funeral service was held and the pallbearers were comrades of Jesse James when all were members of Quantrell's band. When the skeleton of his father was dug up Jesse James, Jr., picked up the skull and pointed out the hole made by the bullet from Bob Ford's pistol. Besides relatives and close friends of the James family, only a small crowd attended the exercises.

MEDAL FOR PORTER.

Congress Recognizes an Act of Bravery During the Civil War.

Washington, July 1. — Gen. Horace Porter, United States ambassador to France, who was on the staff of Gen. Grant during the Civil war, has just been awarded a congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry in action at the battle of Chickamauga, Sept. 20, 1864, while chief ordnance officer of the department of Cumberland, when the lines were broken, rallied enough of the fugitives to hold together under a heavy fire and facilitate the escape of a number of batteries and wagon trains. Gen. Porter is now in this country on leave and the medal will be personally presented to him as soon as it has been suitably inscribed.

Affair Is a Mystery.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, July 1. — Clark Mercer, a mail clerk on the Burlington between this city and Burlington, Iowa, was found in the streets here suffering from a fractured skull. He died a few hours later. The affair is a mystery.

Canadians Homeward Bound.

Ottawa, Ont., July 1. — Sir Henry Strong, the acting governor general, was advised yesterday that the transport Winifredian sailed from South Africa on June 27 for Halifax with over 700 Canadian troops on board.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

The government has issued a decree at Caracas, declaring the ports of Levala de Coro, Guiara, Gano Colorado and Ciudad Bolivar and the Orinoco river blockaded.

John D. Blood, a prominent manufacturer of Amsterdam, N. Y., is dead, aged seventy-one. For many years he owned the largest broom factory in the United States.

A march called the Parade March of the Marine Division, composed by Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, has been brought out by a publisher of publisher of Leipzig.

Edwin and Thomas Balch of Philadelphia, are at present in St. Petersburg for the purpose of collecting information and material with regard to the boundaries of Alaska.

Mrs. Emma Carmichael Powell, better known as Blanche Moulton, shot and instantly killed her husband, John P. Powell, at their home at Cleveland. It is said jealousy was the cause.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Queen Alexandra has invited the deputation of Danish Hussars to return to London at the end of September for the coronation of the king.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Bombay says there is great alarm in Western India because of the continued absence of the monsoon, the heavy rainfall which usually comes early in June. The non-appearance of the monsoon is traceable to the eruption of Mont Pelee.

Joseph Devlin, M. P., the official leader of the Belfast Nationalists, who was recently in the United States with William H. K. Redmond, M. P., in the interests of the United Irish league, says that his mission to the United States resulted most satisfactorily. Mr. Devlin declares that he started 166 branches of the league in America and collected £5,000 in voluntary subscriptions.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 1. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 75 @ 76c; No. 2 Northern, 74 @75c. Oats — No. 3 white, 44@44 1-2c; No. 3, 42@43 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 58@59c; No. 3, 57@58c.

Minneapolis, July 1. — Wheat—No. 1 hard, 79c; No. 1 Northern, 76 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-2c.

Duluth, July 1. — Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 77 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 76 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 74 1-4c; No. 3 spring, 72 1-4c; Manitoba, 75 1-4c; oats, 46c; rye, 56c; flax, $1.70.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 1. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 77 1-2 @ 78c; No. 2 Northern, 76 1-2 @ 77c; July, 73 1-2c. Rye—No. 1, 57 3-4c. Barley—No. 2, 71 @71 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 white, 50c. Corn July, 65c.

Chicago, July 1. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 79 @ 80c; No. 3 red, 77 @ 79c; No. 2 hard winter, 76 @ 77c; No. 3 hard winter, 75 @ 76c; No. 1 Northern spring, 75@76c; No. 2 Northern spring, 72 1-2@74c; No. 3 spring, 67 @ 72 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 66 3-4 @ 67c; No. 2, 62 @ 63 1-2c. Oats—No. 2, 43 1-2@44c; No. 3, 42 1-2@43c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 1. — Cattle—Beeves, $5@7.55; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@4.25; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4; yearlings and calves, $2.50@4. Hogs, $7.25@7.60.

Chicago, July 1. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.60@8.75; poor to medium, $4.75@7.40; stockers and feeders, $2.75 @5.25; calves, $2.50@6.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.10@7.55; good to choice heavy, $7.45@7.55. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $4.75@5; fair to choice mixed, $4@4.55; Western, $4.50@5; native lambs, $5.65@7; Western lambs, $5.50@7; spring lambs, $7.40.

South St. Paul, July 1. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $6.25@6.50; good, $5.50@6; choice cows and heifers, $5.25@5.50; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; steer calves, $2.50@3.75; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.75 @ 3.25; heifer calves, $2.25@3.25. Hogs—Prices range, $6.80@7.15; bulk, $6.95@7. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.55@6; good to choice fat lambs, $5.50@5.75; fair to good fat lambs, $5@5.50.

Castro's Fall at Hand.

Colon, Colombia, July 1. — The French steamer La France, which arrived here from Laguaria and Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, brings reports of much unrest at those ports. The Venezuelan insurgents are said to be in the vicinity of Caracas and the overthrow of the Castro government is believed to be likely at any moment. There are three foreign warships at La Guira, two American and one German.

Murdered His Companion.

Denver, July 1.—George Meyer, a horse trainer who has been living in a tent in the bottoms near Zang's brewery, with Cornelius Bailey, a peddler, was found dead with his head beaten to a pulp. Bailey is missing and so are Meyers' belongings and the police are working on the theory that the peddler murdered his companion.

Two Men Killed.

St. Louis, July 1.—A section of passenger train No. 5, on the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad, which left here at 9:20 o'clock last evening for Texas points, was derailed at Minckle, a few miles west of this city, and two laboring men who were beating their way home to Streetville, Mo., on the blind baggage, were killed.

Goes to Prison for Bribery.

St. Petersburg, July 1.—Capt. Krivetsky has been sentenced to imprisonment for two years and six months by a court-martial for having accepted bribes to free recruits from military service.

Badger Editors in St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 1. — The sixty-five members of the Wisconsin Press association who reached here Saturday on the steamer Dubuque from St. Paul, were entertained yesterday by officials of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company.

Steamer Takes Fire.

New York, July 1.—The Wilson line steamer Hindoo, which sailed for Hull Saturday, returned yesterday on fire. The steamer was 110 miles east of Sandy Hook when the fire was discovered.

TO KILL ROOSEVELT

PLOT TO TAKE PRESIDENT'S LIFE DURING VISIT TO BOSTON.

ANARCHISTS FLOCK TO THE HUB

WATCHFULNESS OF THE BODY-GUARD PREVENTS A TRAGEDY.

VERY SUSPICIOUS INCIDENTS

POLICE HAVE STRONG PROOF THAT A CONSPIRACY EXISTED.

Boston, June 29.—It is stated here on high authority that anarchists flocked to this city from various sections of New England on Tuesday, the day before President Roosevelt's visit to Boston and Cambridge, and it is hinted that the presence of the red flag followers was in consequence of a plot to do bodily harm to the nation's chief executive.

There is no positive proof that a plot to attempt Mr. Roosevelt's life existed, but in police circles the arrival of a lot of anarchists from such places as Providence, where riots have been frequent of late, at the same time as did the president, is looked upon with suspicion. The officers knowing of the matter do not think that the lawless element was here for any good purpose, and it is stated that several incidents

Of a Suspicious Nature was observed during the day. The report is that the first intimation came from the secret service men at Washington, who wired the Boston police asking what the anarchists here were doing. The reply was given that little was known about the doings of this class in Boston. What information the government detectives had is not known here, but at all events, every precaution was taken to prevent the carrying out of any conspiracy which might exist. An armed bodyguard came on from Washington with the president and he was never out of their sight. Then twenty plain clothes men from the Boston inspector's department was ordered to during his stay here, and the detail of police, something over 200 men, was considered unusually large. Just what occurred during the visit here which tended to still further arouse the suspicions of the detectives cannot be learned.

Keep Close at Hand

One circumstance which showed how keenly the president was guarded occurred at the South station a few minutes before the train with President Roosevelt's car attached pulled out at midnight. A stockily built Italian came through the gates to take the 12:03 train for Providence. The train was standing just beside the president's, and as the Italian walked in a half-dozen men in evening dress and several officers in ordinary clothing nearly surrounded him and escorted him down the platform until he got aboard the train. Then a watchful eye was kept upon him until the president's train started.

WORKING FOR PEACE.

Early Settlement of Coal Strike Is Not an Impossibility.

Wilkesbarre, June 29.—To-day ends the seventh week of the great anthracite coal miners' strike. The lines remain tightly drawn and neither side shows the slightest disposition to weaken.

Excepting President Mitchell's offer to arbitrate there has been no proposition advanced by either of the parties to the controversy since the strike begun and the prediction that the struggle would be one to a finish still holds good. That a settlement of the strike may be reached without both sides fighting to the bitter end is by no means an impossibility. While no information can be had on the matter, it is still believed here that some outside party is going over the situation with a view to finding a way to bring the miners and operators together. If such is being done, it is not likely that any move will be made until after the special national convention of the mine workers next month at Indianapolis. It is not unlikely that the report of Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright to President Roosevelt may suggest some way that may lead to a settlement. The publication of the report is eagerly awaited by the strikers.

A Determined Suicide.

St. Bazile, Que., June 29.—A strangely determined suicide took place here yesterday, Jean Fisett, eighty-seven years old, loaded an old rusty musket, put the muzzle to his head and pulled the trigger with his toe. When it did not explode he built a fire, placed the gun in the flames with the muzzle against his breast and waited until it exploded.

Swept by Forest Fires.

Denver, Colo., June 29.—Not in many years has Colorado been visited by so many forest fires as this summer. Half a dozen big fires are now raging and numerous smaller ones threaten to denude the state of timber if means cannot be found to check them. A great fire is sweeping along the Medicine Bow range in Wyoming.

Granting Amnesty.

Washington, June 29.—At the cabinet meeting it was agreed to issue a proclamation of amnesty in favor of all political prisoners in the Philippines, to take effect on the Fourth of July. It includes Aguinaldo and all others like him.

Smallpox Stops Sun Dance.

Fort Benton, Mont., June 29. — The Indian sun dance that has been in progress at Havre for the past few days was brought abruptly to an end by the appearance of a case of smallpox. The Indians have all stampeded to their homes, and the sun dance is a thing of the past.

Big Fire at Cape Town.

Cape Town, June 29. — There has been a big fire in the heart of the city and several large business houses have been destroyed. The loss is very great.

RACE CAUSES RIOT.

Last Number on the Program Develops a Disgraceful Row.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 29.—A disgraceful riot marked the close of the June race meeting here yesterday.

The last race on the card was a half-mile dash. Jockey Hank Kearns had the mount on Dick Gray, the favorite, and was fined for repeatedly scoring ahead of the field. He refused to pay the fine, was expelled and sent to the barn. He refused to leave the track, in which determination the crowd of horsemen supported him. Five policemen, with pistols drawn, attempted to eject him and were met with howls of derision. Kearns kept his mount at top speed around the track, and the officers finally gave up the attempt. A warrant was then issued for the jockey's arrest, and the officers attempted to enforce it with drawn pistols. They were again unsuccessful in getting near the jockey, who escaped over the fence and got away into the woods. The owner of the horse, E. Haith, aided his jockey to escape and was arrested. The officers were surrounded by a howling mob, and clubs were used before order was restored.

Zaza, a long shot, won the race. Several fights followed the announcement by the judges, as the second choice was left at the post through a mistake of the starter. The police were called upon to clear the track at the close of the meet. The scene was the most disgraceful ever seen at a race meeting in this city.

MORE POLICEMEN INDICTED.

Grand Jury Adds to the List of Officers Under a Cloud.

Minneapolis, June 29.—Police Captain "Coffee" John Fitchette and Detective Fred Malone appeared before Judge Simpson at the noon recess yesterday in answer to indictments. Their bail was fixed and they will be allowed to make their formal pleas later. Detective Charles Brackett is indicted jointly with Malone, on charge of being accessory to a felony. Fitchette is charged with selling police appointments. Events are coming swiftly. The fruition of the grand jury's work is rich. One by one the corruptionists who sold their official services to crooks and thugs and let down the bars for the vicious elements of the country to swarm in are being brought to book. After the case against Inspector "Norm" King has been disposed of, Col. Fred Ames, superintendent of police, will be tried and this will end the court trials for the time. It is understood that the trials of Mayor Ames, Inspectors George A. Harvey, John E. Morrissey, James C. Howard, Fred L. Malone, Charles F. Brackett and Capt. Fitchette will be continued until the September term of court.

CUT ROOF WITH PENKNIFE.

Prisoners in Wisconsin Jail Gain Their Freedom.

Jefferson, Wis., June 29.—Six out of nine prisoners broke jail here early yesterday. The names of those who escaped are Fred W. Stephenson, held on the charge of murdering Deputy Sheriff Parker at Waterloo, Wis.; Peter Kohl, held on a grave charge; Edward Hayes, awaiting trial for attempted murder; James Francis, charged with carrying concealed weapons; Herman Smith, larceny, and Jack Bailey, charged with assault with intent to kill a fellow tramp. The prisoners gained their liberty by working a hole through the roof with a penknife.

ST. PAUL IS FAVORED.

Washington Improvement Drawings to Be Exhibited Here Only.

Washington, June 29.—A joint resolution yesterday was offered in the senate by Mr. Clapp of Minnesota to permit Charles Zueblin of Chicago, president of the American League of Civic Improvements, to remove the photographs and drawings setting forth the plans for the improvement of the city of Washington, presented by the park commission. It was passed, with an amendment providing that they should be exhibited only in St. Paul.

GOVERNOR SPEAKS.

Van Sant Addresses Renville County Old Settlers.

Renville, Minn., June 29. — Yesterday was the first day of the Old Settlers' reunion of Renville county. The day was beautiful and everything passed off on schedule time as advertised. About 3,000 were in attendance. Gov. Van Sant addressed the immense throng in the park from 1 till 2 o'clock.

SANDSTEN IS CHOSEN.

To Associate Professor of Horticulture in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, June 29.—The regents of the University of Wisconsin have chosen E. P. Sandsten, associate professor of horticulture, Maryland agricultural college, for the same position in the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin. Mr. Sandsten succeeds Prof. E. S. Goff, who died June 6.

Accidentally Killed.

Klemme, Iowa, June 29. — A. B. Schafer was caught between the boiler of a threshing machine engine and the feeder and was scalded and crushed to death before help could relieve him. The accident occurred about eight miles from Klemme, where Mr. Schafer had gone to bring the engine to town. He was a prominent business man of this place, being a member of the firm of Schafer & Dow.

Bank Changes Hands.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 29. — The Riverside Bank of Pelican Rapids was purchased yesterday by a syndicate composed of J. Ulland, Dr. McLean, E. J. Webber and R. J. Angus of this city and P. M. Joice and Oscar Ulland of Lake Mills, Iowa. The new owners take possession immediately and will change the name to the First National.

Found Him Guilty.

Whatcom, Wash., June 29.—The jury in the case of Frank Olsen, charged as cashier of the Scandinavian-American bank with receiving deposits after he knew it to be insolvent, rendered a verdict of guilty, recommending mercy.

Guests Are Poisoned.

Ottumwa, Iowa, June 28.—Hog cholera remedy eaten by chickens which were served at a neighborhood dinner, poisoned twenty-one persons at Wright. Three may die. Others are very ill but will recover.

SEVERE FIGHTING

WARSHIPS, WITHOUT WARNING, OPEN FIRE ON CAPE HAYTIEN.

GREAT EXCITEMENT PREVAILS

SEVERAL LIVELY ENGAGEMENTS WITH REVOLUTIONISTS FROM THE NORTH.

FOREIGN CONSULS IN DANGER

REGRET THAT NO FOREIGN WARSHIP IS PRESENT TO PROTECT CONSULS.

Cape Haitien, Hajti, July 1. — There was much fighting here yesterday and great excitement prevailed. Admiral Killick, commander of the Haitien fleet, disembarked a further detachment of troops and a large quantity of ammunition at 4 o'clock yesterday morning for the better protection of Gen. Firmin, one of the candidates for the presidency of the republic.

Since 6 o'clock yesterday morning there have been several lively engagements between the men of the fleet and the revolutionists from the North. Several machine guns were set up in a commanding position by Gen. Firmin's forces, and an attempt was made to drive the men from the North from their position. Notwithstanding the fire from the machine guns, detachments from the Northern revolutionists made several attacks on Gen. Firmin's followers and the latter were eventually dislodged.

Bombarding Cape Haytien.

In the meantime the vessels under the command of Admiral Killick were bombarding Cape Haitien. This action was taken without previous notification to the foreign consuls here. There has been a lively rain of shots down the streets of Cape Haitien. The firing was particularly heavy between noon and 2 o'clock and between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

At the moment of filing this dispatch the foreign consuls, under the protection of their various flags, are with Gen. Frmin and are about to embark on the government gunboat Crete A. Pierot. They are under a rather heavy fire and in considerable danger. The foreign residents of this port are at present exposed to the lawlessness and savagery of the combattants. Deep regret is expressed that no warship of a foreign power is in the harbor to afford protection to foreign residents.

Great excitement reigns here and as this dispatch is sent the firing in the streets continue.

PRESENT FROM THE POPE.

President Roosevelt Will Receive a View of Rome, Done in Mosaic.

Rome, July 1.—Right Rev. Thomas O'Gorman, bishop of Sioux Falls, S. D., when he returns to the United States, will be the bearer of a letter from the pope to President Roosevelt, and will take with him the pontiff's magnificent gift to the American president, which consists of a view of the city of Rome from the Vatican studio, done in Mosaic.

The idea of appointing Bishop O'Gorman apostolic delegate in the Philippines appears, for the present at least, to have been abolished, although the first suggestion of this appointment was uttered by the pope himself when he first received William H. Taft, civil governor of the Philippines.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

One Passenger Killed and Thirty Others Injured.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 1.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning an excursion train on the Colorado Midland railway coming down Ute pass from Cripple Creek, struck a broken rail and seven cars were wrecked. Francis M. English, a prominent musician of this city, was instantly killed and thirty other passengers were more or less injured, three or four probably fatally.

KRAPOTKIN TO VISIT TOLSTOI.

Anarchistic Prince Passes Through France on the Way to Russia.

Paris, July 1—Prince Krapotkin, the famous anarchist, passed through Paris this week on his way to visit Tolstoi. Although he had been forbidden to cross French territory, the authorities were satisfied that he was not bent on a dangerous mission and he was not arrested. It is thought that the Russian secret police have received orders direct from the czar to watch the prince, but not to molest him.

RICH MAN IN PEN.

Retired Capitalist Slashes to Kill and Is Given Two Years.

Youngstown, Ohio, July 1.—Solomon Gross, a retired capitalist of Allegheny, Pa., was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on an indictment charging him with cutting to kill Philip Sarvor, a tenant on a farm near Petersboro, this county, owned by Gross. Gross is reported to be worth $100,000.

Fight With Ladrones.

Manila, July 1. — A detachment of United States marines and a force of the native constabulary have had an engagement with a large body of ladrones in Morong province, Luzon. One marine and seven ladrones are dead as a result.

Three Victims of a Storm.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 1. — Three people were killed in last night's storm and much damage done to farms in this section.

Chinese Denied Admission.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 1.—Nine Chinese claiming admission as laborers, returning from China, have been denied admission and arrested by the customs officials, it being apparent in a majority of cases, that their papers were irregular.

Eleven Persons Injured.

Denver, July 1. — Eleven persons were injured, four of them seriously, by the wrecking of a tramway car which was returning to the city from Elitch's Gardens.

CONGRESS.

Sharp Debate in the Senate on Cuban Reciprocity.

Washington, June 28. — Quite unexpectedly a sharp debate arose in the senate yesterday on the question of Cuban reciprocity. Mr. Teller of Colorado, at whose instance the senate committee on Cuban relations made its investigation of the subject, delivered a spirited speech in opposition to reciprocity with Cuba. He charged that the entire reciprocity propaganda had been backed by the American Sugar Refining company and by Americans who were interested financially in Cuban sugar plantations. The purpose, he said, was to strike down an important agricultural industry of this country. He was willing to join in a general revision of the tariff to meet changed conditions, but unless the duties on iron and steel and other products were reduced, together with those on sugar, in order that the arrangement might be equitable, the beet sugar growers never would consent to a reduction on their product.

Mr. Platt of Connecticut, chairman of the Cuban relations committee, replied to the Colorado senator. He maintained that there was nothing sordid in the desire to promote reciprocal relations between the United States and Cuba, and said the making of some concessions to Cuba was a plain duty of this country. It was a duty which this government owed to itself as well as to Cuba because absolutely friendly relations with the new republic were a necessary means of defense to this country, unless the United States should annex the island. That, he hoped, would not be done, as he regarded annexation as a grave menace to our institutions.

The District of Columbia appropriation bill was disposed of finally as were several other less important measures.

In the House.

The house yesterday began consideration of the contested election case of Horton vs. Butler, from the Twelfth Missouri district. In this case the majority of the committee found the election was so tainted with fraud as to make itself invalid and said that the seat be declared vacant. The minority found that Mr. Butler, the sitting member, had been legally elected and recommended that he retain his seat. The vote will be taken to-day.

REPUBLICAN LEAGUE MEET.

President Roosevelt Is Said to Favor St. Louis.

Washington, June 29.—A committee representing the Republican National League of the United States, consisting of Isaac Miller Hamilton, president; William L. Rohrer, secretary, and James Jay Sheridan of the executive committee, all of Chicago, and William Noble of South McAlester, Ind. T., yesterday called on President Roosevelt in company with Postmaster General Payne, a member of the Republican national committee.

They discussed at some length the lines along which the coming campaign shall be conducted, as well as the place for holding the next national convention of the league. Although Philadelphia made a strong bid for the honor, it can be stated authoritatively that in all probability the convention will meet in St. Louis some time about Oct. 1.

While the members of the committee would not disclose the details of the convention, it is understood that the president favored St. Louis and suggested the names of several public men whom he would like to have speak on the occasion.

MOROS KILLED ON SUSPICION.

Prowlers About American Camp Are Dispatched.

Manila, June 29.—American sentinels have killed two Moros who were acting in a suspicious manner near the American camp on the island of Mindanao. The relations between the Americans and Moros are becoming more strained. The chances of the rescue of the four American school teachers who resided at Cebu, on the island of the same name, and who disappeared after a day's outing on June 10, are gradually becoming less. The inspector of the constabulary, who was in charge of a force sent to rescue the teachers, killed the ladrone leader who wore the watch and revolver of Louis Thomas, one of the teachers. It is reported from unofficial sources that the three other Americans, supposed to be Clyde France, Ernest Seger and John Wells, were seen in a village on the north coast.

MISSIONARY IS MURDERED.

Anti-Indemnity Outbreak Occurs at Tien-Ku-Chao.

Pekin, June 29. — The viceroy of the Province of Szeh-Chuan has notified the government that the American and British mission buildings at Tien-Ku-Chao have been destroyed by a mob and that a missionary has been murdered. His name and nationality were not reported. An imperial edict just issued deprives the local magistrate of Tien-Ku-Chao of his rank and orders the extermination of the rioters. Several of the leaders of the outbreak are reported to have been beheaded. Apparently this was an anti-indemnity rising, like those which have occurred elsewhere in China.

GOLD FROM DAWSON.

Prospectors Eagerly Looking for New Placer Fields on the Yukon.

Vancouver, B. C., June 29. — The steamer Dolphin arrived from Skagway, bringing down from Dawson $1,000,000. A systematic search is being made for new placer fields in the Yukon territory. Operations have been commenced on the Hootalinqua river, and if successful the search will continue down the Yukon river below Five Fingers and Prospect, the streams flowing north from that point.

Burns Prove Fatal.

Everett, Wash., June 29. — Frances Curran, a fifteen-year-old girl, was burned Thursday night by the explosion of an oil lamp and died yesterday afternoon. Her sister, Mrs. C. A. Betts, injured in the same explosion, died Thursday night.

Dean Johnson's Remains Cremated.

Madison, Wis., June 29.—The remains of Dean Johnson, killed in an accident at Pier Cove, Mich., were cremated in Chicago after funeral services were held at Pier Cove.

CONGRESS

RESUME OF THE WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS.

In the House.

Washington, June 24.—Debate on the civil government bill warmed up in the house yesterday and henceforth promises to be of a much livelier character. The increased interest is due to the injection into the debate of a comparison of the cruelties charged to have been practiced in the Philippines with those which occurred during the Civil war. The subject has been lightly touched upon once or twice before, but attracted little attention until Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio yesterday revived the memory of the extremities to which Grant and Jackson were put during the rebellion. This was followed late in the day by a speech from Mr. Mahon of Virginia, in which he paraded the horrors of Andersonville and Libby prisons. He predicted that in the coming elections the American people would stand by the "boys in blue."

Mr. De Armond of Missouri spoke at considerable length in opposition to the administration's philippine policy.

In the Senate.

A motion was entered formally in the senate by Mr. Quay of Pennsylvania to discharge the committee on territories from further consideration of what is known as the omnibus territorial bill—a bill to admit as states Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona. Mr. Quay spoke briefly but forcibly in support of his motion, maintaining that both political parties in national convention had pledged themselves to the admission to statehood of the territories. Mr. Beveridge of Indiana, chairman of the committee, said the measure had been put over until next session by the committee because it was not believed there would be time now to consider it properly. No action was taken on the motion. During the greater part of the session the unfinished business, the bill ratifying a convention with the Choctaw Indians, was under discussion. It was not disposed of.

In the Senate.

Washington, June 25. — The senate yesterday passed bills creating a national forest reserve in the Southern Apalachian mountains and ratifying the agreement between the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians of the Indian Territory and the United States. The bill provides for the purchase of four millions of acres in the Southern Apalachian system at a cost not to exceed $10,000,000. The secretary of agriculture is to designate the lands to be purchased, and is to take measures to preserve the hardwood forests which they bear.

In the House.

Two notable speeches marked the closing of the general debate on the Philippine civil government bill yesterday. They were made by Mr. Landis, an Indiana Republican, and by Mr. Williams, a Mississippi Democrat. There were big demonstrations after each concluded. The other speakers were Messrs. Ball of Texas, Jones of Virginia, Shaforth of Colorado and Crumpacker of Indiana. The latter closed the general debate for the bill with a strong speech.

In the Senate.

Washington, June 26.—In a few minutes yesterday the senate disposed for this session of the omnibus statehood question which has been pending for several days. Mr. Beveridge of Indiana, chairman of the committee on territories, announced that a report on the bill before the committee would be made on the third day of the next session. This was satisfactory to Mr. Quay of Pennsylvania, who, after securing an agreement that the committee's report should be the unfinished business on and after the 10th of December until it was disposed of, withdrew his motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the measure.

After Mr. McCumber of North Dakota had discussed the pending pure food bill and Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire had delivered an extended argument to show that the prosperity of the country was due to the operations of the Dingley tariff law, the senate took up the calendar and passed a large number of bills of minor importance.

In the House.

The Philippine civil government bill was thrown open to amendment in the house yesterday. Very slow progress was made, only fifteen of the fifty pages of the bill being completed. By an amendment offered by Mr. Bartlett (Dem., Ga.) cases involving the construction of the constitution can be appealed from the supreme court of the islands to the supreme court of the United States, and by another offered by Mr. Littlefield of Maine, one corporation in the islands is prohibited from holding stock in another. The earlier portion of the day was devoted to the consideration of conference reports on the sundry civil army and naval appropriation bills. The house adopted a proposition agreeable to the senate with reference to the disputed items in the army bill, and by a vote of 63 to 95 refused to agree to the senate amendments to the naval bill providing for five submarine torpedo boats.

In the House.

Washington, June 27. — Congress is now closer to an adjournment than it was anticipated that it would be at this time.

The conference report on the canal bill was presented to each house, adopted and sent to the president.

The house passed the Philippine civil government bill practically as it came from the committee.

The senate passed the general deficiency bill, the last of the general supply bills.

Nothing now remains but the Philippine bill, and this, it is expected, will go to the president by Saturday. Congress will then be in a condition to adjourn.

At 8 o'clock last night, at the end of a nine-hour session and of a debate lasting night and day for a week, the house passed the Philippine civil government bill practically as it came from the committee. It was a party vote, 141 to 97, with the exception of Mr. McCall of Massachusetts, who voted with the Democrats. The minority substitute for the establishment of a temporary government in the islands and their permanent independence as soon as a stable government could be established, was defeated by 96 to 136.

The debate during the day was at times of a lively character. The Democrats offered a multitude of amendments, but all were voted down, including one offered by Mr. Patterson of Tennessee to prohibit slavery or involuntary servitude in the islands. The greatest interest attached to an amendment offered by Mr. McCall (Rep., Mass.) to the end of the bill to declare the policy of the United States to be to develop the capacity of the Filipinos for self-government and pledging the faith of the United States to grant them self-government. He supported the amendment in an eloquent speech and the democrats challenged their political adversaries to declare their future policy. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio and Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin said it would be unwise to mortgage the future by making such a declaration now, and the latter quoted Gov. Taft as saying that such a promise now would tend to prevent the pacification of the islands. The amendment was lost—89 to 128. It was a strict party vote except for Mr. McCall and Mr. Littlefield of Maine, who voted with the Democrats for the amendment.

Before the consideration of the Philippine bill was resumed the house by a vote of 252 to 8, adopted the conference report on the isthmian canal bill, thus accepting in toto the senate bill. The bill now goes to the president.

In the Senate.

During the comparatively brief time the senate was in session yesterday the conference report on the isthmian canal bill was agreed to and the general deficiency bill, the last of the big supply measures, was passed. A slight protest was made against the appropriations of $500,000 for the Buffalo exposition and $160,000 for the Charleston, S. C., exposition, but finally they were included in the bill. The measure also carries $45,000 for the payment of the expenses of the last illness and death of President McKinley, that amount including the pay of the physicians.

SHE LOVES A NEGRO.

Handsome, Educated and Accomplished Daughter of Wealthy Man Leaves Home.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 28.—Josephine Gardner, a white girl nineteen years old, and James Cooper, a negro coachman of the same age who has been in the employ of the girl's father, a wealthy contractor of Auburn, were arrested yesterday on complaint of the girl's mother, who told the police that her daughter had eloped with the negro coachman, with whom she had become infatuated. The couple were arrested at 114 Ferry street, where they had procured board and lodging. The girl returned home with her mother and Cooper was detained until last night, when he was released on his promise to at once quit the city. Miss Gardner is not only handsome but well educated and accomplished.

POUR OIL ON HOPPERS.

Polk County Infested With Pest of Locusts.

Crookston, Minn., June 28.—The state entomologist finds millions of grasshoppers in the Hill river district near McIntosh, Polk county. Farmers are much alarmed and are using hopperdosers daily. Eleven barrels of oil have already been used in the battle against the locusts, which are rapidly mowing down the grain. These grasshoppers all come apparently from 300 acres of unplowed stubble, some of which has lain fallow for two or three years, and all farmers unite in asking for a law obliging speculators and others to plow late in the fall all lands declared infested.

MINNESOTA MEASURES.

Red Lake and Indemnity Land Bills to Be Called Up in Congress.

Washington, June 28.—Speaker Henderson gave a hearing yesterday afternoon to the Minnesota delegation in behalf of the Red Lake Indian reservation bill. The speaker agreed to recognize Congressman Morris to call up the bill. He also agreed to recognize Mr. Eddy to call up the joint resolution giving the State of Minnesota the right to select indemnity lands in place of sections 16 and 36. Senator Nelson, Congressmen Stevens and Eddy will leave for home to-day to attend the Republican state convention.

THOEN NOT GUILTY.

Jury in Murder Case Frightens Defendant Into Collapse.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 28. — The jury in the Thoen murder case retired at 6:15 last evening and after repeated balloting returned this morning at 12:30 with a verdict of not guilty. Thoen was overcome when the jury came in, but he revived shortly after and a sensational scene followed.

Lightning's Freak.

Helena, Mont., June 28. — Mrs. T. Vellette had a miraculous escape from death during the electrical storm near Fort Benton last night, a lightning bolt tearing the clothing from her body and boring a hole in the ground at her feet. When discovered she was thought to be dead, but after vigorous treatment was resuscitated and will suffer no serious results from her experience.

Quiet at Pawtucket.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 28. — The militia, ordered here two weeks ago to suppress riots brought about in connection with the street railway employes' strike, have been relieved from further duty, and the cars are again in operation.

Murdered and Robbed.

Wood River, Neb., June 28.—Work was received yesterday from Fort Hale, Idaho, that Judge Donaldson, a land owner of this city, and Charles Fritz had been found murdered. Robbery was the cause.

Sunday School Convention.

Denver, Colo., June 28. — The tenth International Sunday school convention opened its first session at Trinity M. E. church last night. The auditorium was decorated with American and British flags.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XVIII. (Continued.)

"A man who is highly respected. A man who stands wonderfully high in public estimation. There are thousands and thousands of people who look upon him as a great and estimable creature. He gives largely in charities, he devotes a good deal of his time to the poor. My uncle, who is a good man, if you like, declares that Reginald Henson is absolutely indispensable to him. At the next election that man is certain to be returned to parliament to represent an important Northern constituency. If you told my uncle anything about it he would laugh at you."

"I have not the slightest intention of approaching your uncle on this matter at present."

"Because you could prove nothing. Nobody could prove anything."

"But Christiania Henson may in time."

Once more Ruth flashed a startled look at her companion.

"So you have discovered something about that?" she whispered.

"I have discovered everything about it. Legally speaking, the young lady is dead. She died last night, as Dr. Walker will testify. She passed away in the formula presented by me the night that I met her in the darkness at 218, Brunswick Square. Now, will you be so good as to tell me how those girls got hold of my synopsis?"

"That came about quite naturally. Your synopsis and proof, in an open envelope were accidentally slipped into a large circular envelope used by a firm of seed merchants and addressed to Longdean Grange, sent out, no doubt, among thousands of others. Chris saw it and, prompted by curiosity, read it. Out of that our little plot was gradually evolved. You see, I was at school with those two girls, and they have few secrets from me. Naturally, I suggested the scheme, because I saw a great deal of Reginald Henson. He comes here; he also comes frequently to our house in Prince's Gate. And yet I am sorry, from the bottom of my heart, that I ever touched the thing, for your sake."

The last words were spoken with a glance that set David's pulses beating. He took Ruth's half-extended hand in his, and it was not withdrawn.

"Don't worry about me," he said. "I shall come out all right in the end. Still, I shall look eagerly forward to any assistance that you can afford me. For instance, what hold has Henson got on his relatives?"

"That I cannot tell you," Ruth cried. "You must not ask me. But we are acting for the best; our great object was to keep you out of danger."

"There is no danger to me if I can only clear myself," Steel replied. "If you could only tell me where those bank notes came from! When I think of that part of the business I am filled with shame. And yet, if you only knew how fond I am of my home. . . . At the same time, when I found I was called upon to help ladies in distress I should have refused all offers of reward. If I had done so I should have had no need of your pity. And yet—and yet it is very sweet to me."

He pressed the hand in his, and the pressure was returned. David forgot all about his troubles for the time; and it was very cool and pleasant and quiet there.

"I am afraid that those notes were forced upon us," she said. "Though I frankly believe that the enemy does not know what we have learned to do for you. And as to the cigar case; would it not be easy to settle that matter by asking a few questions?"

"My dear young lady, I have done so. And the more questions I ask the worse it is for me. The cigar case, I claimed, came from Walen's, beyond all question, and was purchased by the mysterious individual now in the hospital. I understood that the cigar case was the very one I admired at Lockhart's some time ago, and—"

"If you inquire at Lockharts, you will find such to be the case."

David looked up with a puzzled expression. Ruth spoke so seriously and with such an air of firm conviction that he was absolutely staggered.

"So I did," he said, "and was informed in the most positive way by the junior partner that the case I admired had been purchased by an American called Smith, and sent to the Metropole after he had forwarded dollar notes for it. Surely, you don't suppose that a firm like Lockhart's would be guilty of anything—"

Ruth rose to her feet, her face pale and resolute.

"This must be looked to," she said. "The cigar case sent to you on that particular night was purchased at Lockhart's by myself and paid for with my own money."

CHAPTER XIX.

Rollo Shows His Teeth.

The blinds were all down at Longdean Grange, a new desolation seemed to be added to the gloom of the place. Out in the village it had, by some means become known that there was somebody dead in the house, either madam herself or one of those beautiful young ladies whom nobody had ever seen. Children loitering about the lodge gates regarded Williams with respectful awe and Dr. Walker with curiosity. The doctor was the link connecting the Grange with the outside world.

To add to the gloom of it all, the bell over the stables clanged mournfully. The noise made Walker quite nervous as he walked up the drive by Williams' side. Not for a person would he have dared approach the house alone. Williams, in the seediest and most dilapidated rusty black, had a face of deepest melancholy.

"But why that confound—. Why do they ring that bell?" Walker asked, irritably.

"Madam ordered it, sir," Williams replied. "She's queerer than ever, is mistress. She don't say much, but Miss Christiania's death is a great shock to her. She ordered the bell to be tolled, and carried on awful when Miss Enid tried to stop it."

Walker murmured, vaguely, something doubtless representing sympathy.

"And my other patient, Williams?" he asked. "How is he getting along? Really, you ought to keep those dogs under better control. It's a dreadful business, altogether. Fancy a man of Mr. Henson's high character and gentle disposition being attacked by a savage dog in the very house! I hope the hound is securely kennelled?"

"Well, he isn't, sir," Williams said, with just the glint of a grin on his dry features. "And it wasn't altogether Rollo's fault. The dog was so devoted to Miss Christiana as you never see. And he got to know as the poor lady was dying. So he creeps into the house and lies before her bed room door, and when Mr. Henson comes along the dog takes it in his 'ead as he wants to go in there. And now Rollo's got inside, and nobody except Miss Enid dare go near. I pity that there undertaker when he comes."

Walker shuddered slightly. Longdean Grange was a fearful place for the nerves. Nothing of the routine of the decorous ever happened there. The fees were high and the remuneration prompt—or Walker would have handed over his patient cheerfully to somebody else. Not for a moment did he imagine that Williams was laughing at him. Well, he need not see the body, which was a comfort. With a perfectly easy conscience, he could give a certificate of death. And if only somebody would stop that hideous bell! Someone was singing quietly in the drawing room, and the music seemed to be strangely bizarre and out of place.

Inside it seemed like a veritable house of the dead—the shadow of tragedy loomed everywhere. The dust rose in clouds from the floor as the servants passed to and fro. They were all clad in black and shuffled uneasily, as if conscious that their clothes did not belong to them. Enid came into the hall to meet the doctor. Her face seemed terribly white and drawn; there was something in her eyes that suggested anxiety more than grief.

"I suppose you have come principally to see Mr. Henson?" she said. "But my sister—"

"No occasion to intrude upon your grief for a moment, Miss Henson," Dr. Walker said, quietly. "As I have told you before, there was very little hope of your sister from the first. It was a melancholy satisfaction to find my diagnosis confirmed in every detail by so eminent an authority as Dr. Hatherly Bell. I will give you a certificate, with pleasure, at once."

"You would like to see my sister?" Enid suggested.

The quivering anxiety was in her eyes again, the strained look in her face. Walker was discreetly silent as to what he had heard about the bloodhound, but he had by no means forgotten it.

"Not the least occasion, I assure you," he said, fervently. "Your sister had practically passed away when I last saw her. There are times when—er—you see—but, really, there is no necessity."

"Mr. Henson is terribly fastidious about these things."

"Then he shall be satisfied. I shall tell him that I have—er—seen the body. And I have, you know. In these matters a medical man can not be too careful. If you will provide me with pen and ink—"

"Thank you very much. Will you come this way, please?"

Walker followed into the drawing room. Mrs. Henson, wearing something faded and dishevelled in the way of a mourning dress, was crooning some dirge at the piano. Her white hair was streaming loosely over her shoulders; there was a vacant stare in her eyes. The intruders might have been statues for all the heed she took of them. Presently the discordant music ceased and she began to pace noiselessly up and down the room.

"Another one gone," she murmured—"the best-beloved. It is always the best-beloved that dies, and the one we hate that is left. Take all those coaches away and send the guests back home. Why do they come chattering and feasting here? She shall be drawn by four black horses to churchfield in the dead of night, and there laid in the family vault."

"Mrs. Henson's residence," Enid explained, in a whisper, "is some fifteen miles away. She has made up her mind that my sister shall be taken away, as she says—to-morrow night. Is this paper all that is necessary for the—you understand? I have telephoned to the undertaker in Brighton."

Walker hastened to assure her that what little further formality was required he would see to himself. All he desired now was to visit Henson and get out of the house as soon as possible. As he hurried from the drawing room he heard Mrs. Henson crooning and muttering, he saw the vacant glare in her eyes, and vaguely wondered how soon he would have another patient here.

Reginald Henson sat propped up in his bed, white and exhausted. Beyond doubt he had had a terrible shock and fright, and the droop of his eyelids told of shattered nerves. There was a thick, white bandage around his throat, his left shoulder was strapped tightly. He spoke with difficulty.

"Do we feel any better this morning?" Walker asked, cheerfully.

"No, we don't," said Henson, with a total absence of his usual graciousness of manner. "We feel confoundedly weak, and sick and dizzy. Every time I drop off to sleep I wake with a start, and I feel that that infernal dog is smothering me. Has the brute been shot yet?"

"I don't fancy so; in fact, he is still at his post up stairs, and therefore—"

"Therefore, you have not seen the body of my poor, dear cousin?"

"Otherwise I could have given no certificate," Walker said, with dignity. "If I have satisfied myself, sir, and the requirements of the law, why, then, everybody is satisfied. I have seen the body."

Technically, the little doctor spoke the truth. Henson muttered something that sounded like an apology. Walker smiled graciously, and suggested that rest and a plain diet were all that the patient needed. Rest was the great thing. The bandages need not be removed for a day or two, at the expiration of which time he would look in again. Once the road was reached in safety Walker took off his hat and wiped the beads from his forehead.

"What a house," he muttered. "What a life to lead. Thank goodness I need not go there again before Saturday. If anybody were to offer me a small glass of brandy with a little soda now, I should feel tempted to break through my rule and drink it."

Meanwhile the long terror of the day dragged on inside the house. The servants crept about the place on tip-toe, the hideous bell clanged out, Mrs. Henson paced wearily up and down the drawing room, singing and muttering to herself, until Enid was fain to fly or break down and yell, hysterically. It was one of Margaret Henson's worst days.

The death of Christiana seemed to affect her terribly. Enid had watched her in terror. More than once she was fearful that the frail thread might snap—the last faint glimmer of reason go out forever. And yet it would be madness to tell Margaret Henson the truth. In the first place she would not have understood, and on the other hand, she might have comprehended enough to betray to Reginald Henson. As it was, her grief was obvious and sincere enough. The whole thing was refinedly cruel, but, really, there was no help for it. And things had gone on splendidly.

Henson was powerless to interfere and the doctor was satisfied. Once she had put her hand to the plow, Enid's quick brain saw her through. But she would have been hard put to it to deceive Henson under his very nose without the help of the bloodhound. Now he could see her way still farther. She waited nervously for a ring from the lodge gates to the house, and about 4 o'clock it came. The undertaker was at the gates waiting for an escort to the Grange.

Enid passed her tongue over a pair of dry lips. The critical moment was at hand. If she could get through the next hour she was safe. It not—but there must be no "if not," she told herself. The undertaker came, suave, quiet, respectful, but he dropped back from the bedroom door as he saw two gleaming, amber eyes regarding him menacingly.

"The dog loved my sister," Enid explained, quietly. "But he has found his way to her room, and refuses to move. He fancies that we have done something with her. . . . Oh, no, I couldn't poison him! And it would be a dreadful thing if there were to be anything like a struggle here. Come, Rollo."

Evidently the dog had learned his lesson well. He wagged his great tail, but refused to move. The undertaker took a couple of steps forward and Rollo's crest rose. There was a flash of white teeth and a growl. At the end of half an hour no progress had been made.

"There's only one thing for it," Williams suggested, in his rusty voice. "We can get the dog away for ten minutes at midnight. He likes a run then, and I'll bring the other dogs to fetch him, like."

"My time is very valuable just now," the undertaker suggested, humbly.

"Then you had better measure me," said Enid, turning a face absolutely flaming red and deadly white, to the speaker. "It is a dreadfully ghastly business altogether, but I cannot possibly think of any other way. The idea of anything like a struggle here is abhorrent. . . . And the dog's fidelity is so touching. My sister and I were exactly alike, except that she was fairer than me."

The undertaker was understood to demur slightly on professional grounds. It was very irregular, and not in the least likely to give satisfaction.

"What does it matter?" Enid cried, passionately. She was acting none the less magnificently because her nerves were quivering like harpstrings. "When I am dead you can fling me in a ditch, for all I care. We are a strange family and do strange things. The question of satisfaction need not bother you. Take my measure, and send the coffin home to-morrow, and we will manage to do the rest. Then to-morrow night you will have a four-horse hearse here at 11 o'clock, and drive the coffin to Churchfield Church, where you will be expected. After that your work will be finished."

The bewildered young man responded that things should be exactly as the young lady required. He had seen many strange and wild things in his time, but none so strange and weird as this. It was utterly irregular, of course; but people, after all, had a right to demand what they paid for. Enid watched the demure young man in black down the corridor, and then everything seemed to be enveloped in a dense, purple mist, the world was spinning under her feet, there was a great noise, like the rush of mighty waters in her brain. With a great effort she threw off the weakness and came to herself, trembling from head to foot.

"Courage!" she murmured, "courage. This life has told on me more than I thought. With Chris' example before me I must not break down now."

CHAPTER XX.

Frank Littimer.

The lamps gleamed under the dusty statuary and pictures and faded flowers in the hall; they glinted on a long polished oak casket there reposing upon trestles. Ever and anon a servant would peep in and vanish again, as if ashamed of something. The house was deadly quiet now, for Mrs. Henson had fallen asleep, worn out with exhaustion, and Enid had instantly stopped the dreadful clamor of the bell. The silence that followed was almost as painful as the noise had been.

On the coffin were wreaths of flowers. Enid sat in the drawing room, with the door open, where she could see everything, but was herself unseen. She was getting terribly anxious and nervous again; the hour was nearly 11, and the hearse might arrive at any time. She would know no kind of peace until she could get that hideous mockery out of the house.

She sat listening thus, straining her ears to catch the slightest sound. Suddenly there came a loud clamor at the front door, an imperative knocking that caused Enid's heart to come into her mouth. Who could it be? What stranger had passed the dogs in that way?

She heard crabbed, sour, but courageous old Williams go to the door. She heard the clang of bolts and the rattle of chains, and then a weird cry from Williams. A voice responded that brought Enid, trembling and livid, into the hall. A young man with a dark, exceedingly handsome face and somewhat effeminate mouth, stood there, with eyes for nothing but the shining, flower-decked casket on the trestles. He seemed beside himself with grief and rage. He might have been a falsely-imprisoned convict face to face with the real culprit.

"Why didn't you let me know?" he cried. "Why didn't you let me know?"

His voice rang to the roof. Enid flew to his side and placed her hand upon his lips.

"Your mother is asleep, Frank," she said. "She has had no sleep for three nights. A long rest may be the means of preserving her sanity. Why did you come here?"

The young man laughed silently. It was ghastly mirth to see, and it brought the tears into Enid's eyes. She had forgotten the danger of the young man's presence.

"I heard that Chris was ill," he said. "They told me that she was dying. And I could not keep away. And now I have come too late! Oh, Chris, Chris!"

He fell on his knees by the side of the coffin, his frame shaken by tearless sobs. Enid bit her lips to keep back the words that rose to them. She would have given much to have spoken the truth. But, at any hazard, she must remain silent. She waited until the paroxysm of grief had passed away, then she touched the intruder gently on the shoulder.

"There is great danger for you in this house," she said.

"What do I care for danger when Chris lies yonder?"

"But, dear Frank, there are others to consider besides yourself. There is your mother, for instance. Oh, you ought not to have come here to-night. If your father knew!"

"My father? He would be the last person in the world to know. And what cares he about anything, so long as he has his prints and his paintings? He has no feelings, no heart, no soul, I may say!"

"Frank, you must go at once. Do you know that Reginald Hanson is here? He has ears like a hare; it will be nothing less than a miracle unless he hears your voice. And then—"

The young man was touched at last. The look of grief died out of his eyes and a certain terror filled them.

"I think that I should have come in any case," he whispered. "I don't want to bring any further trouble upon you, Enid, but I wanted to see the last of her. . I came here, and some of the dogs remembered me. If not I might have had no occasion to trouble you. And I won't stay, seeing that Henson is here. Let me have something to remember her by; let me look into her room for a moment. If you only knew how I loved her! And you look as if you had no grief at all!"

Enid started, guiltily. She had quite forgotten her role for the time. Indeed, there was something unmistakably like relief on her face as she heard the porter's bell ring from the lodge to the house. Williams shuffled away, muttering that he would be more useful in the house than out of it just now, but a glance from Enid subdued him. Presently there came the sound of wheels on the grave outside!

"They have come for the—the coffin," Enid murmured. "Frank, it would be best for you to go. Go up stairs, if you like; you know the way. Only, don't stay here."

The young man went off, dreamily. A heavy grief dulled and blinded his senses; he walked along like one who wanders in his sleep. Christiana's door was open and a lamp was there. There were dainty knick-knacks on the dressing table, a vase or two of faded flowers—everything that denotes the presence of refined and gracious womanhood.

Frank Littimer stood there, looking around him for some little time. On the table by the bedside stood a photograph of a girl in a silver frame. Littimer pounced upon it hungrily. It was a good picture—the best of Christiana's that he had ever seen. He slipped out into the corridor and gently closed the door behind him. Then he passed along with his whole gaze fixed on the portrait. The girl seemed to be smiling out of the frame at him. He had loved Christiana since she was a child; he felt that he had never loved her so much as at this moment. Well, he had something to remember her by—he had not come in vain.

It seemed impossible yet to realize that Christiana was dead, and he would never look into her sunny, tender face again. No; he would wake up presently and find it had all been a dream. And how different to the last time he was here. He had been smuggled into the house, and he had occupied the room with the oak door. He—"

The room with the oak door opened, and a big man with a white bandage around his throat stood there with tottering limbs and an ugly smile on his loose mouth. Littimer started back.

"Reginald!" he exclaimed, "I didn't expect to see you here, or—"

"Or you would never have dared to come?" Henson said, hoarsely. "I heard your voice and I was bound to give you a welcome, even at considerable personal inconvenience. Help me back to bed again. And now, you insolent young dog, how dare you show your face here?"

"I came to see Chris," Littimer said, doggedly. "And I came too late. Even if I had known that I was going to meet you, I should have been here, all the same. Oh, I know what you are going to say; I know what you think. And some day I shall break out, and defy you to your worst."

Henson smiled as one might do at the outbreak of an angry child. His eyes flashed and his tongue spoke words that Littimer fairly cowed before. And yet he did not show it. He was like a boy who has found a stone for the man who stands over him with the whip. With quick intuition, Henson saw this, and in a measure his manner changed.

"You will say next that you are not afraid of me," he suggested.

"Well," Littimer replied slowly, "I am not as much afraid of you as I was."

"Ah! So you imagine that you have discovered something?"

Littimer apparently struggled between a prudent desire for silence and a disposition to speak. The sneer on the face of his enemy fairly maddened him.

"Yes," he said, with a note of elation in his voice. "I have made a discovery, but I am not going to tell you how or where my discovery is. But I found Van Sneck."

A shade of white pallor crept over Henson's face. Then his eyes took on a murderous, purple-black gleam. All the same, his voice was quite steady as he replied:

"I'm afraid that is not likely to benefit you much," he said. "Would you mind handing me that oblong black book from the dressing table? I want you to do something for me. What's that?"

There was just the faintest suggestion of a sound outside. It was Enid, listening with all her ears. She had not been long in discovering what had had happened. Once the ghastly, farcical incubus was off her shoulders she had followed Littimer up stairs. As she passed Henson's room the drone of voices struck her ears. She stood there and listened. She would have given much for this not to have happened, but everything happened for the worse in that accursed house.

But Henson's last words were enough for her. She gathered her skirts together and flew down the stairs. In the hall Williams stood with a grin on his face, pensively scraping his chin with a dry forefinger.

"Now, what's the matter, miss?" he asked.

"Don't ask questions," Enid cried. "Go and get me the champagne nippers. If you can't find them, then bring me a pair of pliers. Then come to me on the leads outside the bath room. It's a matter of life and death.

(To be Continued.)

The Ornament Was Loaded.

The residence of Hiram Fulton, of Hartranft, Montgomery county, presented a scene of consternation and dismay several days ago, when a swarm of hornets took possession of the entire house unexpectedly.

Last fall Mr. Fulton found an excellent species of hornet's nest, and finding it perfect and intact, he thought it would make an excellent ornament for his home. Acting on the impulse, he took the nest home and hung it in the parlor. That portion of the house is used very little during the winter, and, several days ago, when his wife was preparing the house for visitors, a fire was started in the parlor. The room soon became warm, and their attention was shortly attracted by a loud buzzing, and the next instant the room was filled with hornets that came from the ornamental nest. The heat caused them to come out, and resulted in a rush to escape from the room. Several of the family suffered from coming in contact with the business end of the insects, and over an hour's time was consumed driving them from the house.—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

In the Days of George IV.

Much gossip of an entertaining sort is just coming to light concerning the days of the later Georges. An amusing picture of this period is drawn by Chateaubriand, who was ambassador to London in the days of George IV. "All the English are mad by nature or fashion," he avers. Here is his picture of an English dandy of the epoch which flowered in the person of Count d'Orsay:

"The dandy must have a thoughtless, conquering, insolent air; he must attend to his dress, wear mustachios, or a beard cut round like Queen Elizabeth's ruff or the radiant disk of the sun; he reveals the lofty independence of his character by keeping his hat on his head, by lolling on the sofa, by stretching out his boots before the noses of the ladies seated in admiration on chairs before him; he rides with a cane, which he carries like a wax taper, indifferent to the horse which chances to be between his legs. . . . A few radical dandies, those most advanced toward the future, possess a pipe."—Exchange.

An American Engineer in Egypt.

Downey had taken out the boxed parts of twelve locomotives to Alexandria, shipped them up to Luxor on a broad-gauge road, from there to Shallal on the narrow-gauge, and thence to Wadi Halfa by felucca up the Nile. There he picked up workmen—chained gangs of convicts, most of them murderers, of whom his Egyptian guards stood in momentary terror—who, by main strength, hauled up the locomotive parts to the top of the bank. Then, by the same kind of muscular effort, each part was successfully handled until the engines stood completed. American brains had guided every action. And when the first train ran out to a little desert station, and one of the Greeks, with whom the Soudan towns are beginning to swarm, and poked his head into the train and asked: "Is this the Yankee express?" Downey, leaning out of the cab to hear what he said, caught the strains of a discordant Arab band across the desert playing Sousa's "Stars and Stripes."—World's Work.

Must Set Himself Right.

"It was an hour after midnight when there came a furious ringing at my door bell," said Abe Gruber, delivering his "latest" to a number of friends. "The next minute I poked my head out of an upper window and inquired as to what the visitor wanted.

"'This is where Mr. Gruber lives?'

"'Yes; I am Mr. Gruber. What is it?'

"'You delivered a speech this evening, in which you mentioned Corliss McGitney?'

"'I did.'

"'Was he a Protestant or a Roman Catholic?'

"'He was a Protestant. But what—'

"'Thanks; that's all I wanted to know. I'm the shorthand reporter that took down the speech, and I couldn't tell from my notes whether you said he entered the ministry or the monastery. G'night.'"—New York Times.

Lacks Self-Confidence.

Bizzer—What Graspit lacks is self-confidence.

Buzzer—Is that it?

Bizzer—Yes; why, he won't play solitaire with himself.—Ohio State Journal.

MISS VIRGINIA GRANES

Tells How Hospital Physicians Use and Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Twelve years continuous service at the sick bed in some of our prominent hospitals, as well as at private homes, has given me varied experiences with the diseases of women. I have nursed some most distressing cases of inflammation and ulceration of the ovaries and womb. I have known that doctors used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when everything else failed with their patients. I have advised my patients and friends to use it and have yet to hear of its first failure to cure.

MISS VIRGINIA GRANES,
President of Nurses' Association, Watertown, N.Y.

"Four years ago I had falling of the womb from straining in lifting a heavy patient, and knowing of the value of your Compound I began to use it at once, and in six weeks I was well once more, and have had no trouble since. I am most pleased to have had an opportunity to say a few words in praise of your Vegetable Compound, and shall take every occasion to recommend it."—MISS VIRGINIA GRANES.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has stood the test of time, and has cured thousands. Mrs. Pinkham advises sick women free. Address, Lynn, Mass.

HEINZE IN ALASKA CENTRAL.

Montana Millionaire Heavily Interested in New Railroad Project.

Seattle, Wash., June 22.—At a meeting on Saturday of the Alaska Central railway's board of directors F. August Heinze, the copper millionaire of Butte, Mont., was appointed a director. Mr. Heinze has acquired large financial interest in the company.

Victor H. Smalley of St. Paul, the general Eastern fiscal agent of the Alaska Central Railway company, verified the above report. He said:

"This is the most important deal that we have consummated so far. Mr. Heinze is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the addition of his name to our board of directors will further increase confidence in the future of this railway. It means that the financing of the company is an absolute certainty.

What About Your School Houses?

You may not this season be able to build a new one, or make the radical changes in the old one that you had in contemplation, but there is no school district in the United States that cannot afford to tint with Alabastine the interior of their buildings, thus making them more attractive, getting colors made with special reference to their effects on the eyes of the pupils, getting a sanitary and rock base cement coating that will not harbor disease germs.

The closely crowded school rooms need all the safeguards to the health of the pupil that intelligent officials can surround them with, and all sanitarians unite in saying that Alabastine is the only proper material to be used on such walls.

His Altruism.

Maud (newly married)—You look very melancholy, George. Are you sorry you married me?

George—No, dear—of course not. I was only thinking of all the nice girls I can't marry.

Maud—Oh, George, how horrid of you. I thought you cared for nobody but me.

George—No more do I. I wasn't thinking of myself, but of the disappointment for them.—Punch.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children.
Successfully used by Mother Gray, nurse in the Children's Home in New York. Cures Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. Over 30,000 testimonials. At all druggists, 25c. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Had Him.

"Pa," said little Tommy, "I'll bet you a cent that you won't give me a nickel."

"Done!" said pa.

Then Tommy explained things, and pa saw he'd have to pay up either way. —Boston Globe.

COLE'S COUGH CURE CURES CROUP.
Mrs. C. Mason, Black River Falls, Wis., says: "I know of no remedy for croup that compares with Cole's Cough Cure and I have used many remedies, for my children are subject to severe attacks of this disease. The children like it, it gives immediate relief and it cures. It is a most valuable cough remedy." Every bottle guaranteed. 25 and 50 cents, by all druggists.

A college training is wasted on the boy who emerges with any doubt concerning his own ability.

Many a man uses his religion as a sort of lightning rod.

WE WANT YOUR TRADE

You can buy of us at wholesale prices and save money. Our 1,000-page catalogue tells the story. We will send it upon receipt of 15 cents. Your neighbors trade with us—why not you?

Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

PILGRIMAGE OF WU SIN AND AH FAH

By JAMES GARDNER SLATER

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

In the quarters at San Francisco reserved for the homes of Celestial residents lived Wu Sin and Ah Fah. To America they had but shortly come.

Sin and Fah had been washers of soiled linen ever since they were landed.

Of the ways of Anglo-Saxon society Tsin Hi and Hop Suey, who were the dictators of the Chinese section, impressed it upon the mind of their uninitiated countrymen that they should be objects—not for the cultivation of their mimetic faculties, but deserving only of their contempt and scorn. All the Chinese desired of the American was his money. He could keep his God.

Of money, they had never seen so much in their lives as they themselves had deposited with the Chinese banker, the result of their labors. Even when their brains were uninfluenced by opium they dreamed of once more crossing the Pacific to remain forever, having servants of their own, riding about in rattan chairs, owning tons of opium and maintaining as many wives as their lustful hearts desired. So it was that they heard rumors that they were liable to be impressed into Imperial service long before they were ready to return voluntarily to China, their hearts became sore.

One morning the Southern Pacific train bound for New Orleans had two second-class passengers that never before had ridden behind a steam locomotive.

At New Orleans when they disembarked from the dusty cars and started up town—where, they did not know, the first thing that struck their sight was a seething mob of men. They had guns and carried sticks and clubs. The men cursed hoarsely and the boys made hideous sounds with their lips. Negroes were flying about, begging for mercy. A gun would be fired and the crowd would cheer and move forward. The eyes of the runaways looked longingly and vainly for one of their kind. Wu Sin and Ah Fah did not know a mob was after the slayer of some policeman. They didn't know anything, but that they were in a place that was dangerous. Perhaps there was another war going on and they would have to serve in a strange army.

The men ran towards the river. Box cars were on sidings and in one of these they crawled. They went far into a corner and sat down, shivering, frightened almost unto death. They dared not talk; they breathed as softly as their fluttering hearts would permit. Presently they felt the moving of the car wheels and then they felt easier.

After awhile they looked out and beheld a gloomy forest. When the locomotive bellowed its way through the towering pines, each vibration would send terror to the souls of these refugees. When morning came the brakeman discovered them and ruthlessly threw them to the ground. Chinese tramps! Why he had never heard of such a thing. By rights he should have killed them, he said to himself, but the train was in a hurry and he had no time to waste. On a hill not far away the Chinamen saw a town. They approached it timidly enough. Wagons were lined up around the public square and men and women were going about as if they had nothing more on their minds than the ordinary pursuits of happiness. The Chinamen could see no evidences of a strife.

At one of the stores they got something to eat. They still had gold coin, but in no place would it procure them a bed in which to rest their weary bodies. So they slept under a covered wagon that stood near the depot; and dogs came and smelt of them, looked at them and went away growling. Never before had they seen men so yellow or with such funny looking hair. Wu and Ah talked matters over the next morning and decided upon things. Ellisville was good enough for them—for the present at least. They opened negotiations for the rent of a little pine shanty, bought a stove and some irons and began making preparations for doing business. At the Ferrill store where they bought the few groceries necessary for their existence they induced one of the clerks to let them do his laundry work. Thus it came about that a new establishment was added to the town; and it came to pass moreover that they soon became members of the flourishing Sunday school and were there held up as an object lesson as to why more money should be donated toward the foreign mission board.

Two second-class passengers.

Love making among the dusky maids of Mississippi is not a difficult procedure. And thus it came about also that in a month's time they had observed the common law marriage and had taken unto themselves two young women whose faces were black enough to spot the midnight. Then the Endeavorers and the foreign boards excluded them from their societies while the negroes threw brickbats at the two sisters who had taken up with trash so worthless as Chinamen. But Wu and Ah went along about their way. They bought fancy clothes for their wives and gave them spending money every evening. For the women the world was rosy enough even if they were being preached against by others of their class less fortunate. Meantime the laundrymen had added a few more customers to their list—men, young men, clerks about the town who wore no waistcoats when their linen was pot-boiled and starched.

The constable came along and broke down the door.

In a month's time the Chinamen were doing a business the like of which they had never dreamed would fall to their lot. The colored aunties were forced to do the drudgery, that is to cleanse the quilts, tablecloths and do the rougher work belonging to the wash-pot. They attempted to discover the secret the Chinamen possessed of making the shirt front shine as the scoured bottom of a tin pan, but they couldn't.

Finally a Yankee who was in the South for his health heard that Ellisville needed a steam laundry. So he set about to establish one. Then he moved his family from Connecticut, and appealed to the citizens for their patronage because of his being an American, and a local taxpayer. Besides, he said, if the town treated him right, he would be the means of bringing other settlers to the county, too. Instantly the Chinamen commenced losing trade. Some few stuck by them, but when McIntosh, Ferrill and Champenois sent their bundles to the steam laundry, the Chinamen got frightened. They cut the Yankee's prices. These were met and lowered. Then began a terrific warfare with the result that both concerns were doing washing for nothing. Soon the town loafers were changing collars every morning.

If the Chinamen were despondent, they concealed such emotions. When the church bells were ringing for prayer meeting of evenings and the organs of the various places of worship were attuned to the harmony of village voices the puffs of the little engine of the steam laundry and the perspiring faces of the heathens went evenly along. Finally it became a matter of notice that the Chinamen were no longer patronizing the grocery stores except for starch and soap.

The situation was becoming decidedly interesting. Presently the dusky spouses of the Mongolians seized hoe handles and left for the "bottoms" between the cover of night. When they were missed it began to look as if the ship of the Chinamen was about to go under sure enough. But not so. They worked; they bought more soap; they smiled in their childish and blandish way and kept on washing. Now they had ceased trading at the stores altogether. From what source could they be securing food?

A freckled faced boy of ten solved that problem. One day he went to the Yankee and told things; told of the thousands of rats that made their homes in the big barn adjoining the home of his hated rivals. Whereupon the Yankee hit upon a scheme with the result that the Weekly Eagle contained this notice, set in pica type:

WANTED!

One thousand cats. It makes no difference whether they are thoroughbreds or scrubs; fat or lean, white or yellow. For which the sum of twenty-five cents will be paid on delivery at the

STEAM LAUNDRY.

P. S. Hurry Them Up.

In three days' time wagon loads of cats began coming in and more boys being thrashed hourly for stealing their mothers' most precious pets than before in Ellisville's history. One night the first battalion of these soldiers of this remarkable Yankee were put on the battlefield—housed in that immense barn and told to fight. The next night these were removed and a fresher and hungrier lot were turned inside and so on until there was not even a mouse in that town that dared to poke its sniffing nose above the mellow earth.

A week elapsed and one morning passers-by observed that all was stillness inside the Chinamen's shanty. The constable came along and broke down the door. Inside the two washermen were clasped in each other's arms cold in death—a plain case of double suicide.

But they had escaped service in the Imperial army at Pekin.

GROWTH OF THE BRASS BAND.

First One Was Organized in 1835 by Adolphe Sax.

As antiquities go nowadays the brass band is a very ancient institution. That is to say, its inventor died in 1894 at the age of 80. There were horns before Adolphe Sax, to be sure, but not such horns as we have now, for they could not play every tune in every key. They could not even play a scale in any key. The very first band entirely of brass was organized in 1835, and I doubt if any of the instruments then used could be played upon by modern musicians without special practice. It is only 119 years back to 1783, when a full regimental band in the British army consisted of two oboes, two clarinets, two horns and two bassoons. It must have sounded even funnier than Tennyson's famous combination of "flute, violin, and bassoon."

How long a way we have come since 1783, says a writer in Ainslee's, may be learned from this ensemble of a first-class modern band, which I give on the authority of Thomas F. Shannon, bandmaster of the 23d regiment, New York national guard, probably the best regimental bandmaster in the United States. Note that the modern band of forty-two pieces has half as many oboes and bassoons as the ancient band of eight pieces, seven times as many clarinets and nine times as many horns, to say nothing of the saxaphones, which are part clarinet and part horn.

HAD JOKE ON HOTEL CLERK.

New Trick Played on Functionary of New York House.

"With all his faults," began Mr. Fairchild, "the hotel man is a first-class fellow, who will go a long way to keep his guests from being seen by doubtful guests. I recall an instance which happened to me in New York not long ago. I had registered in the morning and leaving my key at the hotel, came back again in the evening. Finding the night clerk on, but not on to me, I asked him, giving him my name, if I was in. Not knowing the number of my room, I decided this was the way to find out.

"He looked at me rather suspiciously. Evidently the result of his inspection was not reassuring, for, after making a bluff at feeling in my box, he replied quite stiffly:

"'No, sir, Mr. Fairchild is not in.' I sat down on the lounge, and said calmly:

"'Well, when he comes in please tell him that he is here looking for himself.'

"The porter carried the clerk up stairs."—New York Tribune.

Lucky Days.

The belief in the special luck, bad or good, attaching to certain days of the week is as old as the hills. Some great men have believed that particular days of the month are specially propitious to them. Napoleon's day was March 20; Cromwell's was September 3; the great emperor Charles V. was his star in the ascendant on February 24; and so with others. But the belief in specially lucky days of the week has been much more general than that in certain days of the month. The mighty and the humble, the civilized and the barbarous, have alike shared in this belief. Louis XIII. of France set store by Friday, and when he lay dying on a Thursday vainly longed for a few more hours of life, which might have brought him to his lucky Friday. Pope Sixtus V. had a special regard for Wednesday. Other great men have liked or feared this or that day. Many humbler people share the same feeling, and probably every day of the week has its votaries. Even Friday, which is much more associated in the popular mind with ill-luck than with good fortune, is a lucky day to some good folk.

Viceroy Needlessly Alarmed.

The ignorance which foreigners have to combat in their efforts to open up trade with China is well illustrated by an incident which occurred not long ago. Sir James Mackay is the English high commissioner to negotiate trade treaties in China. He wrote to one of the viceroys, earnestly pleading that the trade barriers in that province be removed. He received a reply from the viceroy saying that he could not think of removing these barriers for the reason that if he did the water would all run out of his province. The viceroy's idea of the barriers was that they were physical dams along the water courses over which the trade was carried.

"Cattle Queen of Texas."

Mrs. Henrietta King is known in the United States as the Cattle Queen of Texas, by virtue of the fact that she is proprietor of the greatest cattle ranch in the world. It is variously estimated at from a million to a million and a quarter acres in extent. Twice a year Mrs. King makes an inspection of her vast property, and the long procession of carriages and wagons and the retinue of outriders, cowboys, cooks and guides cause her tour to be a sort of Royal progress.

No man on earth can love his neighbor as himself if he has a garden and the aforesaid neighbor keeps chickens.

DELASCO COMPLIMENTED.

Mr. Herbert Kelcey Said He Would Recognize His Style Anywhere.

David Belasco is not fond of this story:

When Belasco and the late H. C. De Mille wrote "The Charity Ball," there was a speech in it that did not please Herbert Kelcey, leading man of the company. The words Kelcey objected to were quoted from one of David's Psalms.

Ignorant of its origin, Kelcey said to Mr. De Mille:

"I don't like that line. It's bombastic and old-fashioned."

"The line is not mine, but David's, referring, of course, to the Psalmist.

"I thought so!" said Kelcey, triumphantly. "I'd recognize Dave Belasco's style anywhere!"—New York World.

John Hay as Lincoln's Secretary.

In a personal sketch of John Hay, our present gifted and brilliant secretary of state, included in his recent book, "Men and Memories," John Russell Young thus writes of him when Hay first appeared at Washington as Lincoln's secretary:

"A comely young man, with peach-bloom face, old-fashioned speech, smooth, low-toned, quick in comprehension, sententious, reserved, a touch of sadness in his temperament, this world being a serious business, each day's work requiring the doing of it. He was given to verses, had the personal attractiveness as well as the youth of Byron, and was what Byron might have been, grounded in good principles and with the wholesome discipline of home."—Leslie's Weekly.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A Good Spellbinder's Story.

Opie Read, the Southern novelist, who lives in Chicago, has accepted the nomination for alderman from a Republican convention in a Republican ward. Until the late presidential campaign, Mr. Read has always affiliated with the Democracy. During the campaign of 1900, however, he made speeches in the West in behalf of the sound money ticket. When his bill of expenses went to Mr. Hanna, the chairman noticed that Mr. Read's expenses at Denver were much larger than at any other place. Mr. Hanna called Mr. Read's attention to this. "I reckon as much," Mr. Read replied, "but did you ever play poker in that pesky town?" Mr. Hanna made no answer, but put an O. K. on the account.—Leslie's Weekly.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Waiting for an Order.

Col. Abraham Gruber entered a restaurant recently, and, after waiting half an hour to be served, called the waiter, and inquired how long he had been there.

"Two weeks," was the reply.

"Oh, then you're not our waiter," replied Col. Gruber. "We gave our order at least three weeks ago."—New York Times.

Future Assured.

The teacher placed her hand on the intellectual forehead of the smartest lad in the class and said:

"My boy, you may some day be president."

The tough boy with the expanding chin and oriole sweater felt slighted. He fidgeted in his seat and finally blurted:

"Say, miss, what am I going to be?"

"Oh, you'll go to the United States senate."—Chicago News.

Mark Twain's Waterloo.

Mark Twain once said to a friend that, as to wit, he had met his Waterloo; that there was one woman whom he could never get ahead of in repartee—his. She was a very clever woman—another of the long list of able mothers of great sons. It was from her, also, that Mark Twain inherited the inimitable drawl which has always characterized his speech, and is not an affectation, as many people have supposed. This drawl so enhances the humor of Twain's remarks that it cannot but be regarded as a lucky gift of nature. Mr. Clemens was once described in an interview as a "symphony in gray"—gray hair, gray eyes and a suit of gray clothes. This term can no longer be applied, as Mr. Clemens' hair is now a great leonine mane of white.

Taking a Man Unawares.

Bland, Mo., June 30th.—F. B. Crider describes very graphically how he was overtaken by an enemy and his narrow escape. He says:

"For years I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, which came on me so gradually that I did not know what it was until the pains in my back warned me that it was Kidney Trouble.

"I began treatment at once and used one medicine after another, but without help, till at last I was just about to give up in despair.

"Just then I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a few boxes and began to take them. They helped me from the first, and now I am completely cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only medicine that ever did me any good. They are worth their weight in gold."

His No Longer.

"I suppose oyu own the house you live in?"

"I used to."

"Sold it, eh?"

"No; got married."—Exchange.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

No captain of industry ever watered stock without intending to soak somebody.

TO CURE A COLD IN THE HEAD
Use Cole's Carbolisalve.
Apply it in each nostril at night and your head will be clear in the morning. 25c and 50c, all druggists.

Probably some people lie to you because they think too much of you to tell the truth.

DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Dr. Hartman Gives Free Advice to Suffering Women.

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING

MRS. ALEX. JOHNSON

Dr. Hartman, the Famous Gynaecologist and Inventor of Pe-ru-na Offers to Treat Women Free During the Summer Months.

America is the land of nervous women. The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease. By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused by catarrh.

Women afflicted with pelvic catarrh despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitable. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness. In female complaint, ninety-nine cases out of one hundred are nothing but catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

The following letter was recently received:

186 W. 38th st., New York City.
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen:—"What bread and meat means to the hungry Peruna means to the sick. It is an especially valuable medicine for sick women. I have found that no medicine so quickly restores health and places the body in a normal condition. I but voice the sentiments of women who were once sick, but are now in perfect health."
MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING.

All women who are in doubt as to what their trouble is should write Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio. Give him a full description of your trouble, previous treatment, symptoms and age. He will promptly reply, with full directions for treatment free of charge. This is an opportunity which no ailing woman should miss. Dr. Hartman has become renowned through his success in treating women's diseases. His experience in these matters is vast. Correspondence is strictly confidential. No testimonials published without written consent.

Dr. Hartman relies principally upon Peruna in these cases. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Mrs. Alex. Johnson, 256 University avenue, Kingston, Ontario, Can., writes: "I have been a sufferer for years with bearing down pains and backache, and got no relief from doctor's prescriptions. I commenced taking Peruna and after taking the first bottle I felt much better and within a month I was a well woman, and heartily recommend it to any woman who is in as poor health as I was."
MRS. A. JOHNSON.

Miss Mabel Meyers, Argentine, Kansas, collector for the Kansas Temperance Union, writes: "Peruna has proved a friend to me for it cured me when I was sick and the least I can do in return is to acknowledge its value to the public. Since I was 17 years old I have suffered with headache, backache and pains in the shoulder blades. I caught cold easily and my lungs were weak. Catarrh of the lungs was what the doctors called my trouble. I took their medicine for eighteen months without any benefit and hearing about Peruna I decided to try it. I used nine bottles and was restored to health. This was two years ago, and I am now in perfect health."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Peter A. Aurness, Minneapolis, Minn., bicycle mirror; Edward Hand, Orient, S. D., wire stretcher; Benamin Kienholz, Hallock, Minn., grain spout; Carl Otis, Lindstrom, Minn., concrete mixing machine; Joseph Price, New Rockford, N. D., shoe protector; Roelf Welland, Canistota, S. D., floor jack.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Waifs Found in St. Patrick's.

In St. Patrick's cathedral there is said to be found by the pew-cleaners an average of fifteen babies every twelvemonth. These babies have been left by Catholic parents, who know that they will be raised, if they live, in Catholic homes.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes
One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

The Field of Danger.

Greene—Some folks imagine that golf is a dangerous game. Do you think there is any danger in it?

Gage—I had two friends who got engaged on the golf links last season—Boston Transcript.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Perpetual motion seems to be a success as a perpetual failure.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, (Specialist.)
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

Artlessness is the head of the high-art class.

Hoosier Heroes.

"Some of those self-made men," remarked Jinks, "deserve much praise."

"Yes, indeed," replied Jenks, "some of them act truly Christian parts in being willing to take all the blame themselves."—Indianapolis Sun.

Not Thankless.

"I accused him of being a pessimist."

"Isn't he?"

"Well, he said he'd willingly be thankful for blessings if any would come."

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL FOR PAIN OF ANY KIND
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

WILKINSON'S
PRINTERS' EXCHANGE
A Bureau for the Sale, Lease or Exchange of Newspaper Properties Situations for Employes, and Employes for Situations. Write for Particulars.
C. H. WILKINSON, St. Paul, Minn.

Cole's Cough Cure
TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT, SO WILL YOU.
SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS.

St. John's University,
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest, largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

N D N U. NO 27— 1902

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Town Tales.

P. O. Berg was down from Rollis last week.

Leonard Peterson was down to Crookston last week.

Ira C. Richardson was down to Crookston last week.

Dr. Rea will visit Thief River Falls Friday, July 25.

Wiley Tindolph left the first of the week for St. Paul.

S. Bulman was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Albert LaBree has returned to this city from Red Lake.

John Sorum was down from Rollis the first of the week.

Geo. Whitcomb was in the city last week enroute to Rollis.

Emil Holmes was up from St. Hilaire the first of the week.

Miss Esther Erickson, of Crookston is visiting Miss Remmen.

R. C. Gusa, of Hallock, is visiting his parents for a few days.

M. V. Evenson was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Chris Rogers went up to the Red Lake the first of the week.

B. J. Bakko, of Newfolden, was in the city the first of the week.

Rev. Petran, the evangelist left Monday for his home in New Ulm.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. HOAG LAND & LOAN CO.

H. Midgard, from Warren visited friends in this city last Sunday.

Joseph Koke, of Red Lake Falls was in the city this week on business.

H. O. Kollag returned Thursday from South Dakota after a months visit.

J. H. Werstlein was up to Germantown buying cattle last week.

P. D. O'Neil made a business trip to Fargo the first of the week.

The Thief River Falls Lumber company's drive arrived in the city Sunday.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Grandstrand died Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Helleck Anderson of Newfolden was in the city the first of the week.

Will and Morgan Vaughan were down from Germantown the first of the week.

John Morgan went up to the Red Lake the first of the week for a short vacation.

The Ladies of St. Bernard' Church will meet with Mrs Curran July 10.

Chas. Vorachek returned from Conway N. D. yesterday from a two weeks visit.

S. Kenison left last week for North Dakota to attend to some business matters.

FROM TIME TO TIME

something has been said here about our clocks. This is one of the times when a few more words will be appropriate.

Time is cheap, so to speak. We are offering a lot of excellent CLOCKS at very reasonable prices. Every kind of clock is here, from the bustling little alarm to the dignified and handsome marbleized Iron Mantle clock with its musical Cathedral Gong.

All these clocks are made in the foremost factories and are accurate time keepers.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

The creamery started up on Monday and is doing a very satisfactory business.

The Ethel arrived yesterday afternoon on her return trip from the upper Red Lake.

Rev. Peart will preach in the Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening.

Postmaster Richardson has just added one hundred new post-office boxes to the office.

Miss Julia Thibarge was in the city from Crookston the first of the week visiting friends.

The Marguerite went up to the Red Lake Monday. It will make regular trips in the future.

Mrs. Ramstad entertained a company of ladies Monday afternoon for her guests from Ada.

Miss Nellie Curran returned to this city from a visit with friends at Red Lake Falls on Monday.

Judge Knight and Sheriff Sampson of Red Lake Falls were in the city the first of the week.

Mrs. Adam Zeh and children, and Miss Kaufer, of Red Lake Falls are visiting relatives in the city.

The New Bowery for the 4th of July is being erected on LaBree Ave. next to the Odd Fellows Hall.

George Kratka went to Grand Forks last week to spend a few days with his brother Will Kratka.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

Miss Florence Wallin went to St. Hilaire Monday to accept a position in the postoffice at that place.

Allen Benzie went to Warren yesterday, to play ball with the local team of that city on the Fourth.

H. M. Hicks is moving into his new store, he will still occupy his old building in addition to the one just built.

Ed Healy of the Ed Healy land Co. and A. W. Woods of Red Lake Falls were in the city on business yesterday.

Chris Amundson and R. B. Vining, two Red Lake homesteaders, are in the city to spend the Fourth.

O. Chelin has opened up a boarding house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

Mrs. C. C. Jackson went to Crookston, Monday to spend a few days with her friend Miss Matie Brown.

Mr. Wm. Pelkey representing Stones Music House of Fargo, N. D. is in the city and will remain for two weeks.

For blacksmithing, and horse-shoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

J. O. Dokken, the genial auctioneer of Marshal county, was in the city last week. He contemplates removing here.

Peter Botun who is working on the road on the Chief's section, had 3 fingers broken while working on the roadscraper.

Andy Erickson and Chas. Schuster returned from Cass Lake Monday, where they had been to attend the Firemens Tourment.

C. L. Dobner, D. N. Winton and John W. Eastman left Monday for St. Paul to attend the Republican state convention.

Mr. Fred Zaiser and bride of St. Paul and Miss Etta Zaiser of Red Lake Falls visited at the home of Mrs. K. M. Hansen last week.

The ladies of St. Bernard's church will serve ice-cream and cake on the fourth in the building lately built by H. O. Hanson on LaBree avenue.

Nat Campbell announces that he will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congressman. This leaves the field to A. McKinnon clear.

The Ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran church will give a dinner on the Fourth in the Evenson building north of Bolhun's restaurant. All are invited to take dinner.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. O. H. Nelson gave a party in honor of Mesdames Larson, Haetland and Thune, who are visiting at the home of Mrs. Ramstad.

Espy Bros. last week purchased the steamboat Marguerite of J. M. Stephens. These gentleman are building a saw mill up on Shotley brook, and will use the boat to bring their lumber to this city.

The "Public Library" of Thief River Falls, is now free and all persons wishing to take books can secure a guaranty card from the Librarian, which must be signed by some reliable person other than himself.

A number of the young men of the city have issued invitations for dance to be given Fourth of July evening in the Ogamah-annex. Music has been secured from Crookston, and everything promises to be a "social success".

The latest news from Washington is to the effect that the appropriation for the purchase of the land on the Red Lake Reservation can not be obtained this session, consequently the bill will have to lay over until congress meets again.

A party known by the name of Canada Bill, just arrived from the lumber camps at Red Lake got filled up with booze and commenced to paint the town red. For the benefit of his health and the good of the peace of the city the police had to take him in charge and lodge him in the cooler.

The party who took the pocket-book from off the show-case in Miss B. M. Remmen's millinery store, Thursday, June 26th between four and five o'clock P. M. is requested to return the same to avoid further trouble.

Mark!—Services in the Norwegian Lutheran Synod Church for July 13th at 10:30 A. M. will be changed: The congregation is invited to participate in the dedication services held on the same day by the German Lutheran Congregation.

I. T. Aastad.
Pastor.

Seven teams hauling rigs of various sorts and loaded with Red Lake Indians passed through Crookston early this morning on their way to Devils Lake where they will visit until after the Fourth. They were of all sizes and degrees of color, and one of the rigs carried at least a dozen bucks. They camped east of the city last night.—Crookston Journal.

Elias Steenerson today received a letter from Mrs. Steenerson, who is spending the summer in Dickinson county, Iowa. Mrs Steenerson says heavy frosts have visited that vicinity and that the crops have been seriously damaged. The corn is blighted and will give a very small yield in the territory touched by the frosts which seems to have extended over almost the entire northern half of the state.

The following cases came up before Judge Tarrant in the Municipal Court Tuesday the 1st July.

Ben Christianson v's Elek Golley on garnishee summons. Case dismissed.

A. Stenseth v's George Webb garnishee, case continued to next term.

Ole Olson v's Ole Arneson suit for wages, settled by parties.

Advertised Letters.

Erickson, Erick L.
Hanely (or Manoly), Mike
Hauer, Ole O.
Hughs, Robert
Nilson, Frank E.
Olson, Ole
Perry, C. A.
Stobe, Mrs. Gunstem, (In care of Knut Grelbork)
Cannlo, Bill
Harris, G. H.
Halverson, Albirt
Lian, F. O.
Nelson, Frank E.
Olson, Mrs. Anna
Ruftael, Miss Millie
Warner, Rudolf

Subscribe for THE NEWS.

The Markets.

Wheat	65c
Oats	45c
Flax	$1.60
Rye	60c
Butter	15c
Eggs	12½c
Potatoes	75c

Married.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Himle, in Minneapolis yesterday afternoon occurred the marriage of their daughter Ella, to Mr. Herman Koefod.

The groom is the efficient manager of Himle's store in this city and the bride, a young lady of considerable musical talent. THE "NEWS" extends congratulations.

"Hits and Mrs. Pierce of the Walsh County Record who has been out west lately has to say of the noble Redman, as he viewed him:

"Hundreds of Indians, covered with barn paint and noisy blankets, were selling buffalo horns and buckskin pocketbooks in order to purchase a circulating library or plug tobacco. The committe on arrangements for the sun dance, which is held next week was making arrangements with the master mechanic at the boiler works to furnish the music for the occasion Invitations have been issued to over two thousand Indians and their ponies and it is expected to be the social event of the season. The dance will last for three days and the public will be allowed seats on a nearby hill but are cautioned not to get fresh with any of the young squaw society leaders."

The Minneapolis Journal thus discusses some Polk county politics:

"George Finlayson, the former gaurd and center rush of the Minnesota university foot ball team, and James H. Maybury, the famous Wisconsin sprinter, are opposing candidates for the Republican nomination for county attorney in Polk county. The contest between these two famous athletes has attracted much attention all over the state. Finlayson opened the game with a straight buck through center for 15 yards, but Maybury covered the 100 yards in record time, 6 4-5, giving him a slight advantage. Finlayson made a vigorous tackle, and the resulting fumble gave him the ball in Maybury's territory. Maybury traced on his ten-yard line, however, and made the 220 yards in 21 4-5, world's record time for the distance around a turn. Finlayson then circled the end for ten, and Maybury punted. At the time of going to press the ball was in the center of the field, and no scores had been recorded.

For Sale at C. C. Jackson & Co.

Hay Rakes for 12.00 to 21.00
14 inch Brush Breaking Plow	$14 00
16 inch Brush Breaking Plow	15.25
1 Fuller Johnson Gang Plow 14 inch	48.00
1 J. I. Case, Sulky Breaker and Cross plow	45.00
14 inch cross plow	12.50
16 inch cross plow	13.50
1 only 18 cross plow	14 00
1 only 1½ inch Lumber wagon	40.00
1 open Concord Buggy	45.00
1 open Road Buggy	33.00.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. 'Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgeon.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 19.
Office first door north of News building.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, } ss. District Court,
County of Red Lake. } Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against
Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
112117 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 25th 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 14th, 1902, viz: ANTON HOREJSH, Jr. H. E. 994, Chippewa Series, for the S½ NE¼ and N½ SE¼, Sec. 22, Tp. 155 N., of R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John Kratochville, of Germantown, Minn.
Henry Roller, of Germantown, Minn.
Joseph Vakoc, of Germantown, Minn.
Charles Klockman, of Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.
july 3 aug7

HONEST BEER

Since 1865 Hamm's Beer has been honestly brewed by the old German method—a purely natural process.

Honest brewing has increased its sale 500 per cent in five years and the output is now 250,000 barrels yearly.

If you want a pure, wholesome beverage, order

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or
THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
St. Paul, Minn.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES
REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.
Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
-- Proprietors of --
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim; and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17196, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 150 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON,
Register.
June 5 july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 23rd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. NELSON, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 25 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder [illegible], of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaar, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.
June 5 july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be make before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17122, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 150 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Matheus J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

SLYVESTER PETERSON,
Register.
June 5 6t july 10

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 23, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 23[illegible]7, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Nordhagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Setnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.
June 12 july 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: ARTHUR DEVINE, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 35, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thrond P. Hamre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Rosen, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patrick Gummerford, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Mickael Stirns, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.
June 26 july 31.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. [illegible], Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klunghes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Telef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVETER PETERSON,
Register.
June 26 july 31

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1028, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 21, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 31, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 25, Tp. 155 N. R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Esbelinden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Sauve Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

A. F. GEORGE,
Receiver.
June 12 6t july 17

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

State of Minnesota, county of Polk.—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue and in pursuance of an order of license made in said matter by the Probate Court of the county of Polk, on the 10th day of March, 1902, the undersigned, will on the 12th day of July, 1902, at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the postoffice in the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, offer for sale and sell at public auction, that tract or parcel of land situate and being in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, described as follows to-wit: the south west quarter of section number twenty-eight, township number one hundred fifty north of range number forty-two west of the fifth principal Meridian.

The terms of sale will be cash to be paid at the time of sale. Dated June 16, 1902.

DAVID A. CHISHOLM,
Administrator of Estate of Archie Chisholm, Deceased.

A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Administrator.
Crookston, Minnesota. June 19 july 3.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin

---

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1902. NUMBER 27

NEXT WINTER

Red Lake Bill Will Pass Then.

Mayor Kratka returned to this city last Friday from Washington where he had been endeavoring to secure the passage of Red Lake bill which will open to settlement of eleven townships of rich agricultural land just east of this city. The bill has passed the senate and will come up in the house at the next session as unfinished business. The only reason that it did not pass at this session was that it carries an appropriation, and like a large number of similar bills will have to be acted upon by the next congress. All of the Minnesota delegation gave Mr. Kratka very cordial support and he feels very grateful for the many courtesies he received.

The bill would have passed at this session had it been possible to secure a quorum at any of the evening sessions.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

GETTING READY

Republicans Making Preparations For the Campaign

A number of Republicans met at Red Lake Falls on Monday and made arrangements for organizing the party in this county. One man from each township in the county was appointed a member of the county committee and he will have the power to appoint two additional in his own township.

Reports from all over the county indicate that the Republicans will have little difficulty in carrying the county this year. Joseph Blair and P. O. Heglund, who were elected coroner and surveyor respectively by the Populist two years ago, have announced their intentions of joining the Republican party and will be candidates on the Republican ticket this year. Other candidates mentioned for county office are O. H. Peters, of St. Hilaire, for auditor; C. E. Ecklund, of Bray, for register of deeds; J. J. Weeks, of Thief River Falls, for clerk of court; Perl W. Mabey and Thomas Gerno, for county attorney; Sampson, Lashapelle and Benson for Sheriff; James McIntyre, of Thief River Falls, for judge of probate; J. B. O'Brien, of St. Hilaire, for county superintendent.

Notice of Annual School Meeting.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting in Independent School District No. 18 in Red Lake county, Minnesota, for the Election of Officers and the transaction of other business required by law at the annual meeting, will be held in the East Hall of the City Hall building on the 19th day of July, 1902, at 7 o'clock p. m.

Officers to be elected—Two directors for a term of three years. Also vacancy of director for one year.

Special business—Shall the Board of Education be authorized to sell school lots in block 29, original townsite?

Dated this 3rd day of July, 1902.

LARS BACKE,
District Clerk.

Here's News.

Badger or Roseau merchants do more business in a week than Thief River Falls business men do in a month.—Roseau Times.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

LARGE CROWDS

Celebrated the Fourth in Thief River Falls.

The Fourth of July was celebrated in Thief River Falls this year by one of the largest crowds ever seen here before, and it was a success in every way. The day was quite warm and a severe rain and wind storm in the evening was the only thing to mar the day. An unusual number were in the city from the country and people from Crookston and St. Hilaire were here in large numbers.

Deserved Compliment.

Farm Loans and City Bonds, a publication issued at Boston and Chicago, which has a reputation second to none in the financial world, pays a local firm the following compliment in its last issue:

The section of country tributary to Thief River Falls in Red Lake County, Minnesota, already very rich and prosperous, is destined by the opening of the large Indian reservation to become even more densely populated and lands to absolutely double in value. Thief River Falls will be the metropolis of this region and become a large and important city. The Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Company, a corporation of large capital and composed of the best and wealthiest of citizens their home town, have realized this fact and have opened an office at Thief River Falls, where for years they have transacted a real estate and farm loan business that covers Red Lake, Marshal and western Beltrami Counties. The manager of the company, Daniel Shaw, Esq., has resided in the Red River Valley for 23 years. He knows that famed section well and places his investments only on farms that he knows thoroughly. No corporation in the State stands higher than the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Company.

Next Tuesday.

The famous Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartettte, which will give an entertainment in Odd Fellows hall in this city next Tuesday evening, July 15, should be greeted by a large audience. They will give a good clean and entertaining concert.

The St. Paul Globe of October 5th says: "A program worth hearing is that given by the Schubert Symphony Club. Unlike the Conventional Musical Organization, the Schubert Co. possesses vocal and dramatic as well as instrumental resources, and their versatile talent furnished a very entertaining program at the Peoples Church last night."

DROWNED.

The Young Son of Ed Evenson.

Oris, the 8 year old son of Ed Evenson, while in bathing with several young playmates of about his own age last Saturday forenoon in the Red Lake river, met death by being drowned. The accident happened near the old Powers ice house in the southern part of the city, where the little boys were wading—none of them could swim. Oris was struck in the back by a floating log, which knocked him over and before he could regain his feet, had floated down stream into deep water. The other boys at once dressed and ran up town where they gave the alarm and soon a large number of men were at work, but no trace of the body could be found. On Sunday a much larger crowed was at work, but their efforts were not crowned with success.

The body of the boy was found yesterday in a log jam at the St. Hilaire Lumber company's dam three miles south of the city by Chas. Erickson, Samuel McMahon and others. It was at once taken to this city and after a short funeral service was interred in Greenwook cemetery.

The boy was an exceptionally bright lad, and his untimely demise is mourned by the entire city.

FOR FUSION.

Populist and Democrats Want to Unite.

A few Democratic and Populist politicians met at Red Lake Falls Tuesday, and decided to join forces and endeavor to elect their county ticket. Of course the Populists get the best end of the deal, they taking the register of deeds, treasurer, clerk of courts, superintendent of schools and county attorney, while the Democrats are given the judge of probate and sheriff. There will be a candidate for auditor on both the Democratic and Populist ticket.

We Hope It's True.

Some of the exchanges, and even the Twin city dailies—who always hold the key to the situation, persist that the race is between Steenerson and Valentine in the new ninth. How ridiculous! We fail to see where Steenerson gets his pull as long as his own country is strong for Grindeland. The fight is between Valentine and Grindeland, by long odds, and we have the price of a new hat that says so.—Gary Graphic.

The Minneapolis Journal has a scheme whereby any one subscrib. to that paper for one year can a $1,000 accident policy, good for one year, for 50 cents in addition to the cost of the paper. They also are offering $25,000 in cash prizes for the nearest guess on the total vote of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan this fall. Every three months paid in advance is good for one guess.

Address,
THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL.

THE BRICK STORE.

Telephone No. 19.

Call on or telephone us for that summer dress you intend to buy.

We have a large assortment of summer dress goods and applique trimmings which we are selling at greatly reduced prices.

If this interests you, you should loose no time in making your selection for you know those here first will have the most to select from.

Every Week Adds To the Ability of This Store

to do better the duty it undertakes—which duty is: to win through merit, the friendship and patronage of every family in Thief River Falls, and vicinity, to become the acknowledged shoppers' headquarters, the supply center of all those who require honest, dependable merchandise.

Each past week's experience teaches how to do better.

New ideas, inventions, new systems, all go toward making each week better than any of its predecessors.

Another Point, And An Important One, our prices are Right.

Call on us and let us save you money.

Central Mercantile Company.

C. L. DOBNER, President. H. G. DOBNER, Cashier. S. F. STAPLES, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - -	$10,000
Surplus and contingent fund,	8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of

Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis, & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL-ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Subscribe for the News.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

V. 97½

THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

By John W. Eastman.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN

No wise man will go to a June picnic without his umbrella and his rain coat.

The prevalence of the Panama hat is another evidence of our phenomenal prosperity.

Map agents will soon be upon us with the color scheme of South Africa brought down to date.

The Bey of Tunis, who died the other day, left fifty widows. They are still counting the orphans.

Sir Alfred Jones, who owns a few British ships, will not join the trust. That is, he thinks he won't.

Reforms would come in a day if we could just elect the college graduates to the legislature all in a bunch.

Ill health is trying to get the start of J. Pierpont Morgan. It will be interesting to watch the experiment.

The clergyman whose ideal angel can climb a fence evidently has become weary of the harp playing type.

That revolution in Venezuela does not appear to be as much of a joke as President Castro pretended to believe.

The news that Johann Most will stay in jail all summer sort of offsets the annual mosquito and grasshopper scourge.

The Italian cabinet minister who has had daily duels recently has learned the true meaning of the strenuous life.

Everybody admires Sir Thomas Lipton's pluck. He has ordered a new yacht, and will once more attempt the impossible.

The next time H. McK. Twombley makes an agreement in behalf of the Vanderbilt family he may have to exhibit the goods.

Low-necked, sleeveless gowns will be popular with mosquitoes at seaside and upper Michigan summer resorts, same as last season.

"The Pierpont Morgan of Japan." Under the benign influence of Western civilization the Japs are evidently becoming a trustful people.

Advice to aeronauts: Suspend operations till after the cyclone season. Some of the spring breezes would be a great strain on the dirigibility of your craft.

All of the poetry is knocked out of the airship business by the announcement from Prof. Langley that he is using the yellow-eyed buzzard as a model.

The treasurer of one of the Chicago theaters got erysipelas from money that he handled at the window. This is a strong argument in favor of passes.

The Philadelphia doctor who presented a $350,000 bill to the heirs of a Pittsburg millionaire evidently has no fear of meeting his patients in a future life.

Just as soon as the young men get through with their graduating exercises they will begin "accepting positions" in the village groceries and livery stables.

From the eagerness with which Boers and British are falling on each other's necks it is evident that each is grateful for the help given to let the other go.

The Norwegian ship captain who saw floating islands must have scanned the horizon after sampling too many brands of the product that made Milwaukee famous.

Lawyers called as experts in a suit in court fixed as a reasonable fee for a lawyer $100 a day or a little less. A few expert clients should have been called in to testify.

Baron Eiichi Shibusawa, the merchant prince of Japan, says Chicago is "such a quick happening city." Evidently he has seen some of the leading citizens eat a business lunch.

Edison says he can make an automobile that will go fast enough to take a man's breath away. Perhaps such a machine would be a good thing if it could be put into the hands of the right people.

At Monte Carlo when a man loses all his money he is given a railroad ticket and a policeman sees that he gets on the train safely. But that is merely a precaution to keep the town from becoming over-populated.

The fashion of saluting women by kissing their hands is being introduced in Paris, but it will not be popular in America, where the strenuous life keeps some men so busy they have not time to raise their hats.

It is announced that the British authorities have introduced ping-pong into imbecile wards of poorhouses for the purpose of affording the inmates an easy and innocent amusement at a small cost. So it seems the game has its value after all.

The News Of the Week

Washington Notes.

President Roosevelt has signed the canal bill.

Among the bills passed by the senate was one granting to Rear Admiral Schley, retired, the pay and allowances of a rear admiral on the active list.

The abolition of eighth and sixth-size beer kegs, which is advocated by large brewing concerns, will be opposed by Senator Nelson in the interests of small brewers.

The Eastern Extension Telegraph company desires access to the government surveys of the Pacific, in order to expedite the laying of its cable, and offers reduced rates as compensation therefor when completed.

The secretary of the treasury has been authorized to pay remaining expenses attending illness and death of President McKinley, including $45,000 doctors' bills. But government employes are to receive none of this.

The navy department received a cablegram announcing the arrival at Panama of the gunboat Ranger, which will keep a watch on events on the Pacific side of the isthmus and allow the Philadelphia to come north.

Senator Perkins has introduced a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to impose an additional countervailing duty on foreign sugars imported into the United States to meet the cartel duties imposed in European countries.

The navy department has been informed that the cruiser Philadelphia, having been relieved of her watch on isthmian affairs at Panama by the Ranger, left that point for San Francisco, going by way of Bichilinqui, where she will coal.

In the readjustment of salaries of postmasters of presidential offices, 2,030 postmasters receive increased salaries, aggregating $252,200. The number of increases this year is 259 in excess of last year, and is the largest in the history of the postal service.

Sins and Sinners.

The seven men accused of jury-bribing in Chicago were found guilty and will pay fines of from $200 to $2,000, and serve various terms in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Emma Carmichael Powell, better known as Blanche Moulton, shot and instantly killed her husband, John P. Powell, at their home at Cleveland. It is said jealously was the cause.

L. T. Menninger, said to have been prominent some years ago as a sculptor, has been found dead in his little shanty near Acto, N. J. Investigation showed that he had committed suicide by setting the building on fire and then firing a bullet into his brain.

George Elliott, a prominent farmer sixty-five years old, hanged himself in a barn near Harrodsburg, Ky., a short time after his wife had been found lying in the road dying from the effects of wounds on her head. Elliott said his wife was kicked by a horse.

Burglars entered the postoffice at Leon, Kan., and attempted to blow the safe, but were frightened away. Next morning, when the postmaster went to open the safe, a charge of dynamite, left in it, exploded and seriously injured him. It is said that two others were injured, also.

Into the oven of a hot stove, Daniel Culnane of Marlboro, Mass., thrust his seven-year-old son. While the father was gathering fuel to make a hotter fire the lad was liberated by an older brother, who heard his screams. The child was terribly burned, but will recover. The father said that the devil had told him to burn the child.

A strangely determined suicide took place at St. Basile, Quebec. Jean Fiset, eighty-seven years old, loaded an old, rusty musket, put the muzzle to his head and pulled the trigger with his toe. When it did not explode, he built a fire, placed the gun in the flames with the muzzle against his breast and waited until it exploded.

Foreign Notes.

Gen. Cronje and many less noted prisoners have taken the oath of allegiance to King Edward.

The last of the bandits operating in the island of Leyte, P. I., have surrendered, and the port will soon be opened.

Gen. Gomez will accept the post of superintendent of armed forces, and promises to give the negroes an equal show with the whites.

The pope will send to President Roosevelt, through Bishop O'Gorman, a view of the city of Rome, from the Vatican, done in Mosaic.

Gen. J. H. Smith, recently courtmartialed for cruelty, received eulogies of both people and press on his departure from Manila to San Francisco.

No representative of the Russian court or ministry called at the British embassy at St. Petersburg to offer the sympathy of Russia during the illness of King Edward.

The rumor current in Rome last week to the effect that Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls would be appointed apostolic delegate to the Philippines, is without foundation.

A march called the Parade March of the Marine Division, composed by Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, has been brought out by a publisher of Leipzig.

Terrific electrical storms have been sweeping over parts of Germany. Four persons were killed by lightning at Crossen, Prussia, and various fatalities have been reported elsewhere.

Gen. Wilson, of the American special embassy to the coronation, and his suite, in behalf of the American government, placed a wreath of lilies and orchids on Queen Victoria's tomb at Frogmore.

Leoncavallo, the composer, has fled in despair from Paris to a remote part of Italy, leaving no address, to escape the many telegrams sent by Emperor William. The emperor has written two acts of a libretto, which the composer was finishing, and the telegrams which caused the composer to flee were numerous suggestions of changes.

People Talked About.

Mascagni, the composer, will begin his American tour Oct. 6, with a European orchestra and soloists.

John D. Blood, a prominent manufacturer of Amsterdam, N. Y., is dead, aged seventy-one. For many years he owned the largest broom factory in the United States.

J. T. Wilson, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, it is said, was offered a salary of $50,000 and a bonus of $25,000 by the Canadian Pacific railway and declined.

Magistrate John H. House, famous as the "marrying squire," died at Jeffersonville, Ind., of Bright's disease, after an illness of seven days. He is said to have married 8,000 couples.

The late Charles Gassiot, who was a director of Martinez Gassiot & Co., of London, wine shippers, bequeathed to St. Thomas' hospital, London, £250,000, and £30,000 to various other charities.

Accidental Happenings.

The steam barge G. H. Dunbar, Capt. Little, sank at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, and seven sailors were drowned.

Passenger Train No. 5, on the St. Louis & San Francisco, was derailed at Minckle, Mo., and two tramps killed.

Three children, aged about nine years, Alonzo Wells, Lena Greger and James Greger, were struck by a freight train near Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Alonzo and Lena will die.

Frances Curran, a fifteen-year-old girl, was burned at Everett, Wash., by the explosion of an oil lamp, and died the next day. Her sister, Mrs. C. A. Betts, injured in the same explosion, is also dead.

Mrs. Mary Levan, seventy years old, was burned to death while fighting the flames of a forest fire in the mountains near South Pittsburg, Tenn. The fire destroyed a large number of residences and barns, and is still raging.

A fractured skull caused the death of Max Heindl, a famous orchestra leader at Boston. Mr. Heindl fell down stairs at the Castle Square theater after the performance Saturday evening. He was a member of a family of famous musicians.

General.

The largest cotton mill plant in the world is to be erected near Kansas City.

The next world-wide Sunday school convention will assemble in Jerusalem, in 1904.

Joe Gans knocked out George McFadden in the third round at San Francisco.

The supreme court of Ohio has declared so many laws invalid that an extra session of the legislature is deemed necessary.

S. D. Ward and wife were severely injured and a negro laborer killed in a storm at Duck Springs, Ala. Property in the vicinity valued at $25,000 was destroyed.

The Kosmos liner Abydos reports rescuing the crew of the wrecked liner Sakkarah and $2,500,000 in gold from the barren island of Huambiin, landing all at Valparaiso.

An order was placed with the American Shipbuilding company at Cleveland by Capt. W. W. Brown for a steamer with a capacity of 5,600 tons and to cost about $250,000.

A list of voters at the recent meeting of the stockholders of the United States Steel corporation develops the fact that Andrew Carnegie does not own a single share of this stock.

Hundreds of cattle imported from Southwest Texas are being driven out of the Indian Territory by the Indian police, acting, it is said, upon orders from the interior department.

The steamer Bertha has arrived at Seattle from Valdez and westward points. When passing Mount Wrangel great clouds of black smoke could be seen rolling up from her crest.

Owen Zeigler of Philadelphia and Twin Sullivan of Boston boxed twenty-five rounds to a draw before the Savannah Athletic club. The men were in fine condition and finished strong.

Ninety soldiers have died in the Philippines from disobeying orders regarding food and drink, which were that distilled water and properly cooked meat and vegetables only should be used.

By unanimous opinion of the Colorado supreme court the city treasurer of Denver is declared to be entitled to the $2,000,000 willed it by George W. Clayton for the founding of the Clayton college for boys.

The Twentieth Century Limited on the New York Central has broken the world's record, running 148 miles, between Albany and Syracuse, in 145 minutes, including a stop at Utica and several slow-downs.

Dispatches from state boards of agriculture and grain men of the great wheat and corn belt place the actual damage caused by the heavy rains of the past week at about $7,000,000. Kansas seems to be the greatest sufferer.

The month just ended was the coldest June since the establishment of the weather office at Kansas City, June, 1899, losing the record. There has been much cool, cloudy weather, but the rainfall has been .61 of an inch below normal.

The largest voluntary increase ever known in the wages of 100,000 men has been decided upon by the United States steel corporation. They will receive an increase of 10 per cent, which will increase the annual pay roll of the steel corporation $4,000,000.

Mary MacLane of Butte, Mont., the noted young author of "The Story of Mary MacLane," is going East for the first time. She will first visit her friend, Miss Fannie Corbin, at Buffalo, advise with her, and then attend either Vassar or Radcliffe.

The immigrant business for the current year has been something enormous. During the past six months the number of immigrants passing through New York has been over 300,000, and the estimates of the passenger men put the total for the year at 600,000. This will exceed last year's immigration by about 50 per cent.

VAN SANT AGAIN

GOVERNOR IS RENOMINATED BY REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

GOES TO HIM BY ACCLAMATION

IVERSON WINS FOR AUDITOR AND REESE LOSES FOR CLERK OF COURT.

SENATOR NELSON IS CHAIRMAN

PLATFORM INDORSES THE STATE AND NATIONAL ADMINISTRATIONS.

For Governor—Samuel R. Van Sant of Winona.

For Lieutenant Governor — Ray W. Jones of Minneapolis.

For Secretary of State—Peter E. Hanson of Litchfield.

For State Auditor—Samuel G. Iverson of Fillmore county.

For State Treasurer—Julius H. Block of St. Peter.

For Attorney General — Wallace B. Douglas of Moorhead.

For Clerk of the Supreme Court—C. A. Pidgeon of Buffalo.

For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—C. F. Staples of Dakota county.

-o-

St. Paul, July 3. — The Republican state convention yesterday renominated Gov. Van Sant by acclamation. The only contests in completing the ticket were for the offices of state auditor and clerk of the supreme court. S. G. Iverson developed surprising strength on the first ballot, and before the result was figured up by the secretaries, the nomination was made unanimous. His opponents were J. F. Jacobson and Ollin Halden. The first ballot for clerk of court found D. F. Reese, C. A. Pidgeon and A.J. Everett well grouped with Gish close behind, but before it was announced counties began changing their votes and one of Reese's supporters moved to make the nomination of C. A. Pidgeon unanimous.

The convention was called to order by W. C. Masterman, chairman of the state central committee, who presented Senator Knute Nelson as temporary chairman. Senator Nelson was given an enthusiastic reception. He made a speech occupying about an hour on national issues now before the Republican party. In the course of his remarks he said:

"We have federal and state legislation against the consolidation of parallel and competing railroad lines, and neither President Roosevelt nor Gov. Van Sant has permitted these laws to lie obsolete. They have not acted in any sense of hostility to the railroads, but from a high sense of public duty. The builders and managers of our Northwestern trunk lines have done a noble and important service. We are not opposed to the consolidation so much through fear of what these men would do, but they are getting well along in years, and soon we would be at the mercy of a non-resident corporation, more interested in high dividends than in low rates.

"The constitutional amendment proposed to give congress power to dissolve monopolies failed because of Democratic opposition.

"Under Republican prosperity the surplus of our product over the home demand is invading all the markets of the world, while countries of the old world suffer from industrial depression and stagnation. Under the leadership of Washington we gained our political independence; under the leadership of McKinley and Roosevelt we have gained our financial and industrial independence.

"The currency law of 1900 extinguished the silver heresy and supplemented the tariff law of 1897 as a factor for the general good.

"During Cleveland's administration we were a debtor nation; under Republican legislation we have become the financial center of the world.

"There was only one course—to accept the cession of the Spanish islands, establish law and order and give them a stable form of government. Any other course would have stamped the United States as a moral imbecile among the nations of the world."

At the conclusion of Senator Nelson's speech the convention took a recess, reassembling shortly after 3 o'clock.

The committee on permanent organization decided on James T. Wyman of Minneapolis for permanent chairman, and the temporary secretaries were continued.

The work of nominating a ticket was taken up without delay. C. A. Morey of Winona presented the name of Gov. Van Sant. There were several seconds, and the nomination was made by acclamation. Ray W. Jones was nominated for lieutenant governor also by acclamation before the committee appointed to notify Gov. Van Sant of his nomination escorted the governor to the platform.

Gov. Van Sant thanked the convention for his renomination, and reviewed at length the issues likely to be prominent in the fall campaign.

Secretary of State Peter E. Hanson, State Treasurer Julius H. Block, Attorney General Douglas and C. F. Staples, railroad and warehouse commissioner, were renominated by acclamation.

The resolutions committee made its report and presented its platform as soon as the nomination of the ticket had been completed, and after some discussion as to the advisability of a stronger declaration in favor of the Cuban reciprocity urged by President Roosevelt, the committee's report was adopted without change.

The resolutions commend Gov. Van Sant for his course against the merger; favor equalization of the burdens of taxes; adhere to the policy of protection; indorse the administration Philippine policy; favor reciprocity with Cuba; urge repression of monopoly; favor legislation against anarchy; indorse senators and representatives in congress; favor elective senate; mourn McKinley; indorse Roosevelt.

The Platform.

The following is the platform in full:

The Republicans of Minnesota, assembled in state convention, reaffirm the platform adopted by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia in 1900, and pledge anew their loyal support to its principles.

We mourn the tragic death of our late president, William McKinley. As a citizen, soldier and statesman he yielded his best service to his country, won a place among the great leaders of the world and is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen.

We cordially indorse the able and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt. We are proud of his manly courage, his purity and his devotion to the interests of the entire country, and pledge him the earnest support of the Republicans of Minnesota in all his efforts to continue and advance the prosperity of the people at home and the glory of the republic abroad. It is therefore the sense of this convention that President Roosevelt succeed himself as president of the United States.

The Republicans of Minnesota lament the death of their peerless leader and statesman, Cushman K. Davis, since the last convention of our party in this state. He was a brave soldier, one of the purest, wisest and most trusted statesman, beloved by the people and had won an enduring fame by his illustrious service. We revere his memory and deeply mourn his loss.

We congratulate the people of Minnesota upon the patriotic and businesslike administration of Gov. Samuel R. Van Sant and other officials of the state. We especially commend the conscientious and faithful supervision by the governor of the state institutions. His official efforts have been continually directed to an earnest and upright administration of state matters.

Merger.

It has been the settled policy, as declared in the laws of this state for a quarter of a century, that competing lines of railway shall not be merged. We believe that the protection of the citizen and his property, as well as the safety of the state, rests in obedience to law, and we therefore heartily commend Gov. Van Sant in his efforts to enforce the laws of this state against the consolidation of competing lines of railway.

Taxation.

We are in favor of such legislation as will equalize as far as possible the burdens of taxation, and require all persons, corporations and property to bear their just proportion of such taxation. The legislative branch of our government having decided that certain constitutional amendments are necessary before such legislation can be adopted, we pledge our party to support these constitutional amendments. We also pledge our party to support the proposed amendment increasing the gross earnings tax of railroads to 4 per cent.

The Philippines.

We indorse the course of the administration in the establishment of peace and order and of civil government in the Philippine islands.

We favor the policy of encouraging the participation of the inhabitants of the Philippine islands in their domestic government to the largest extent practicable whenever peace and order are restored and they demonstrate intelligence, capacity and a desire for such responsibility.

The Army and Navy.

We condemn those who continue to resist the authority of the United States, either openly in the Philippines or secretly at home, and we condemn strongly the malignant attacks upon our army and navy which have won for the people of the United States, whether upon foreign or domestic soil or sea, imperishable fame.

Protection.

We adhere to the policy of protection. Under it our industries have developed, the opportunities for labor have been increased and our country has passed from a state of business depression and terrible suffering to the most remarkable activity and prosperity in the history of the world. We believe that protection and reciprocity are twin measures of Republican policy and success, or in other words, the correct application of reciprocity is protection.

Under this doctrine we favor such modification in our tariff schedules as is now, or may from time to time be required by changing conditions to remove any burdens from our people and to hold and extend our trade among the nations.

Reciprocity.

We heartily favor the wider extension of our markets for the sale of all American products. To this end we endorse the policy of reciprocity as defined by President Roosevelt in his annual message to the Fifty-seventh congress when he said:

"Our first duty is to see that the protection granted by the tariff in every case where it is needed is maintained, and that reciprocity be sought for so far as it can be done without injury to our home industries."

And as defined by our late lamented president, William McKinley, in his last utterance to the people at Buffalo when he said:

"By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we should extend the outlet for our increasing surplus. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our own industries and labor."

The New Republic of Cuba.

We congratulate the new republic of Cuba upon its entrance among the nations of the earth. We wish for it peace, prosperity and a long and successful national career.

We favor reciprocity with Cuba urged by President Roosevelt, by a plan which shall ensure the profitable interchange of commodities, insure to the advantage of both nations, help the Cuban people needing assistance, but the chief benefit of which shall not enrich trusts, monopolies or foreign speculators, or which shall not interrupt our home production.

Trusts.

We recognize the necessity of co-operation in order to meet new conditions in the industrial world, and to compete successfully for the world's markets; but the combinations which stifle competition, limit production, control prices, or unduly increase profits or values, and especially when they raise the prices of the necessaries of life, are opposed to public policy and should be repressed.

We favor legislation, national and state, to prevent such abuses. We approve of the sincere and determined efforts of President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant to enforce the laws and demand that all administrative officers shall enforce the law in the most vigorous manner, so that legitimate competition shall not be embarrassed or destroyed.

Finance.

Our faith in the gold standard and the financial legislation of the Republican party has been amply justified by the wonderful strides of American industry and commerce, and in the universal confidence of the people in the ability of the government to meet every existing or future financial obligation.

Pensions.

We recognize as a continuing obligation of debt and gratitude due from the Republic to the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the life of the nation and those who won glory for its flag in the recent war with Spain, in the Philippines and in China. A proper recognition of this sacred obligation demands that liberal provision be made by pensions for the disabled survivors of these veterans, and the widows and orphans of those who are dead.

We favor the most stringent national and state legislation to suppress anarchy.

We favor the election of United States senators by the people.

Minnesota Delegation.

The Republican party of Minnesota for years past has had a just pride in its representation in the senate of the United States; and strongly indorses our present senators, Honorable Knute Nelson and Honorable Moses E. Clapp for their conspicuous and efficient service for our state and nation and believe that our welfare is best subserved by a continuance of their eminence and ability in their present high station.

The Republican party of Minnesota indorses its representatives from this state in congress, is proud of their ability, courage, independence and experience in shaping legislation, caring for the interests of our commonwealth, insisting upon the rights of its members and maintaining the interests of the producing classes of the West, bringing added glory and honor to the state they so ably represent.

Labor.

The Republican party of Minnesota recommends that eight hours should be considered a day's work on all works controlled by public authority. We favor the abolishment of Sunday labor where practicable. We earnestly solicit a better understanding between capital and labor and heartily indorse the approaching convention in Minneapolis where employers and employed will meet in friendly conference. We favor the use of the union label on state supplies wherever practicable.

Guthrie, Okla., July 3. — During a dance at the home of Judge W. S. Pettit, in Pawhuska, George Dickey, an Osage graduate of Carlisle was shot and killed by Pettit. Dickey was drinking. He was rebuked by Pettit and immediately shot Pettit. Pettit then shot Dickey four times, killing him instantly. Pettit is a high Indian official and the finest attorney in the tribe.

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF THE DAY'S GAMES IN THE THREE BIG LEAGUES.

HOLIDAY CROWDS ARE LARGE

MORNING AND AFTERNOON GAMES PLAYED IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

RESULTS OF GAMES IN THE EAST

DOUBLE-HEADERS THE RULE IN THE TWO BIG LEAGUES ALSO.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	44	19	.698	Kan. City	31	33	.484
Indianapls	38	24	.613	Milwaukee	25	37	.403
St. Paul	36	27	.571	Minneapolis	23	39	.371
Columbus	34	30	.531	Toledo	21	42	.333

At Minneapolis.

Morning Game—

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	1	1	5	0	Grant 2b	0	5	2	0
Dillard lf	2	2	0	0	Phyle 3b	2	1	2	0
Shannon cf	3	2	0	0	Lally lf	0	1	0	0
Kelley 1b	0	16	1	0	Wilmot rf	1	1	0	0
Chech rf	0	2	0	0	Werden 1b	0	9	0	0
Huggins 2b	0	0	5	0	Lynch cf	1	2	0	0
Hurley c	0	2	0	0	Curley ss	0	1	3	0
Lynch ss	1	0	4	1	Byers c	0	7	1	0
Cribbins p	0	1	5	0	Katoll p	0	2	3	0
Totals	7	†26	20	1	Totals	4	27	11	0

†Two out when winning run was scored.

St. Paul ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Minneapolis ......0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2

Two-base hits—Shannon, Wilmot. Three-base hit—Phyle. Sacrifice hits—Werden, Curley. Stolen bases—Lynch, Lally. First base on balls—Off Cribbins 2, off Katoll 2. First base on errors—Minneapolis 1. Left on bases—St. Paul 6, Minneapolis 5. Struck out—By Cribbins, 1, by Katoll 7. Time—1:31. Umpire—Haskell. Attendance—4,000.

At St. Paul.

Afternoon Game—

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneapls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	1	4	0	0	Grant 2b	0	2	5	2
Dillard lf	2	5	0	0	Phyle 3b	0	3	3	0
Shannon cf	1	3	0	0	Lally lf	2	0	0	0
Kelley 1b	2	6	0	0	Wilmot rf	2	2	0	0
Lumley rf	1	3	1	0	Werden 1b	2	12	1	1
Huggins 2b	1	2	2	1	Lynch cf	2	1	0	0
Peirce c	1	2	0	0	Curley ss	1	1	3	0
Lynch ss	0	2	3	1	Byers c	1	2	1	0
Ferguson p	0	0	3	0	Sporer p	1	1	4	0
Totals	9	27	9	2	Totals	11	24	17	3

St. Paul ....2 0 0 1 2 0 2 0 x—7
Minneapolis ......0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

Earned runs—St. Paul 2. Three-base hit—Geier. Sacrifice hit—Lynch (St. Paul). First base on balls—Off Ferguson 1, off Sporer 2. First base on errors—St. Paul 2. Left on bases—St. Paul 7, Minneapolis 10. Struck out—By Ferguson 1, by Sporer 1. Passed balls—Byers 2. Time—1:28. Umpire—Haskell. Attendance—4,160.

At Louisville.

Louisville ....0 0 0 1 1 0 0 2 0—4
Indianapolis ......1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Second Game—
Louisville ....3 0 0 1 0 0 1 2 1—8
Indianapolis ......0 0 0 2 0 2 0 1 0—5

At Kansas City.

Kansas City ....1 0 2 0 0 2 1 0 0—6
Milwaukee ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Kansas City ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—2
Milwaukee ....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1

At Toledo.

Toledo ....0 0 0 1 2 0 1 0 x—4
Columbus ....2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3
Toledo ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Columbus ....0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 2—5

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	30	21	.588	Detroit	27	32	.458
Boston	35	27	.565	Washington	29	34	.460
Philadel	30	26	.536	Baltimore	27	34	.443
St. Louis	30	27	.526	Cleveland	26	37	.413

At Chicago.

Chicago ....1 1 0 5 0 3 0 0 x—10
Cleveland ....0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—2
Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3—3
Cleveland ....1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

At Detroit.

Detroit ....0 0 0 4 0 0 0 0 x—4
St. Louis ....0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0—3
Detroit ....0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2
St. Louis ....1 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 1—4

At Philadelphia.

Washington ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
Philadelphia ......0 0 0 0 0 2 1 0 x—3
Washington ....5 0 0 0 2 0 0 1 1—9
Philadelphia ......0 0 0 1 3 0 8 0 x—12

At Boston.

Boston ....0 0 0 0 1 2 0 2 x—5
Baltimore ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3—3
Boston ......0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 2—5
Baltimore ....0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 1—4

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	45	12	.789	Philadelph	23	35	.451
Brooklyn	36	28	.534	St. Louis	26	30	.410
Boston	32	27	.542	Cincinnati	23	35	.397
Chicago	32	29	.525	New York	20	40	.333

At Pittsburg.

Pittsburg ....0 0 0 0 0 0 1 2 x—3
Brooklyn ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Pittsburg ....1 0 0 1 0 2 0 0 x—4
Brooklyn ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

At Cincinnati.

Cincinnati ....0 0 0 0 0 2 3 2 x—7
Philadelphia ......0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0—2
Cincinnati ....0 0 1 2 0 1 0 0 x—4
Philadelphia ......0 1 5 0 0 1 0 3 0—5

At Chicago.

Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1
Boston ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—3
Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2
Boston ....0 0 0 1 1 0 0 3 1—6

At St. Louis.

St. Louis ....2 2 1 1 0 0 1 0 x—7
New York ....0 1 1 0 0 1 0 0 2—5
St. Louis ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—2
New York ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Grand Forks Wins Two Final Games With Winnipeg.

Grand Forks, N. D., Special, July 4.—With an ideal day for a baseball game and big crowd in attendance at both morning and afternoon games, Grand Forks took two games from Winnipeg, making four straight games in this series. This closes the games between Winnipeg and Grand Forks. Of the twelve games played Grand Forks has won seven and lost five. Both games were splendid exhibitions, there being few errors and good stick work. Grand Forks outbatted Winnipeg and this is responsible for the victory.

Fargo, N. D., Special, July 4.—Fargo took two straight games from Cavalier to-day, making nine consecutive victories. Morning game, 15 to 6; afternoon, 13 to 0.

HOT SEVENTEEN MILES.

Albert Champion Wins Because of Stinson's Accident.

Boston, July 4.—Albert Champion and Will Stinson, in their 25-mile motor-paced race at the Revere track this afternoon, had a hot contest for seventeen miles, when Stinson had a punctured tire. Champion was nearly a mile ahead when Stinson started again, and won easily. Time, 39:55.

St. Paul Boys Win at Faribault.

Faribault, Minn., July 4.—Division No. 4, A. O. H. of St. Paul, shut out the local division here in a game of baseball to-day by a score of 7 to 0. Kehoe allowed but one hit and received excellent support. That is what did the work.

CHINESE MEN HENPECKED

Women of the Flowery Kingdom Who Rule Their Conjugal Partners

"Chinese humorous literature abounds with reference to henpecked husbands," said Prof. Herbert Allen Giles, of the University of Cambridge, in the closing lecture of his course at Columbia University. Then he went on to tell a sample story culled from this branch of Chinese literature.

"Ten henpecked husbands resolved to form a society to resist the impositions of their wives," he said. "The ten wives heard of the plan, and while the meeting for organization was in progress entered in a body. Nine of the rebellious husbands incontinently bolted, but the tenth one retained his place, quite unmoved by the frightful apparition. The ten ladies, merely smiling contemptuously on the one man left behind, returned to their homes satisfied with the success of their raid. The nine husbands thereupon returned and resolved to make the heroic tenth the president of the society. When they went, however, to inform him of the honor it was found that he had died of fright.

"Women have a few privileges that men have not," continued Prof. Giles. "They are exempt from the bamboo punishment; no woman can be bambooed. And a woman is a source of anxiety and misgiving to magistrate and counsel in any case in which she may be a party, for no Chinaman will enter into an argument with a woman—not from any feeling of chivalry at all, but from a rooted conviction that he will get the worst of it."

Prof. Giles continued to reveal masculine secrets by describing something which he said really took place at a dinner at which a number of high-class natives and important foreigners were present. The host, addressing himself to the latter, inquired:

"Do you fear the inner ones?"

Upon inquiry he explained that he meant their wives, and added, with unconscious pathos, that many Chinamen stood in constant fear of their wives.

"Now, for example, he does," said the host, naively, pointing to a solemn and rotund magistrate, who had impressed everyone as filled with a sense of his own importance.

At this all the Europeans present burst into uncontrollable laughter, which rather surprised the Chinaman, who had been seeking to acquire information on what they thought were serious matters.—New York Tribune.

Depravity of the Young of the Human Race

A fond father says that nowhere is there to be found as well-developed a brand of natural depravity as that which animates a 6-months-old infant, and he tells this story in confirmation of his opinion:

The other evening he was left alone with his tiny son and heir. The youngster's mother went to the theater. His aunt went out also, and so did his nurse, and the man was left in full possession of the field.

About 7 o'clock, with sublime disregard for modern rules, which say babes must be put upon a bed and left to go to sleep by themselves, the father began to rock his child to sleep. And he rocked and crooned and walked steadily from that time until 9.

Then, the infant having finally succumbed to "nature's sweet restorer," he arose, and, as if walking on eggs, carried his burden steadily to the bedroom, put it down as gently as possible, and withdrew. Alas! however, in closing the door it squeaked a bit, and Mr. Baby was as wide awake as ever, and he remained as chirpy as a 17-year locust until his mother came home at 11.

Next evening—and here's where the depravity comes in—mother was home and aunty and all the rest of the family; so Mr. Baby went off to sleep at 6 o'clock as usual. At 8 he fell out of bed with a dull thud that went to the maternal heart like a dagger. But he didn't even stir. His fond parents picked him up and carried him to the light, fearing all sorts of things, and then, and not until then, did the youngster open his eyes and smile a cherubic smile into the anxious faces bending over him. Then he went off to sleep again, none the worse for his accident.

"But why," asked the bewildered man, "why will a baby who is aroused by the slightest creaking of a door one night, when his mother isn't home fail to even wake when he falls out of bed the next?"

And it is a problem, now, isn't it?—Baltimore News.

LOOK FOR PRECIOUS STONES

Diamond Merchants to Send an Expedition to the West Indies

The latest London mail advices convey the information that De Beers are about to send an expedition to the scene of the recent volcanic disturbances in the West Indies to look for diamonds.

It is recalled that a few years ago, some large octahedron crystals were found in Barbados which were later identified as white spinels, which are frequently unearthed where diamonds are, although by themselves, and even when colored, are often very valuable.

The French crown jewels contain a spinel ruby of 56¾ carats, and another which was valued at 50,000f. In 1791, one of 4 2-5 carats and another of 3¾ carats, being each valued at 300f. Small spinels fetch from 6f. to 13f. per carat; specimen stones fetch even more. A stone that a New Guiana gold prospector recently exchanged for a bottle of saccharine pellets was sold in Sydney, N. S. W., for $300.

A peculiarity of the spinel is that, no matter what be the color of the stone, the light which is reflected from the depth of the gem is always a pale yellow. A blue spinel has been consigned as a sapphire, and was returned to the consignor, who had it cut and received more for it than it would have made had it really been a sapphire. A spinel collected by Dr. Heron is said to weigh forty-nine pounds. When spinel crystals are very fine they are considered gems, and De Beers think, having been found in large quantities in St. Lucia, it is not unlikely that they will be found in Martinique and St. Vincent.

WHY THEY AROSE EARLY.

Explanation of the Action of a Brace of College Presidents.

Something more than a year ago the last meeting was held in Washington of the committee on national university, a project which found its conclusion in the Carnegie Institution. It so happened that quite a number of members of that committee left this city on the same train. Among these were President Eliot of Harvard, President Draper of the State University of Illinois, Prof. (now president) Butler of Columbia, and Dr. Canfield, now librarian of Columbia, and one-time president of the State University of Nebraska.

In the morning President Draper and Dr. Canfield were the first of the party to rise. They were dressed and sitting in the smoker of the sleeper, reading the morning papers, when Prof. Butler came straggling in to complete his toilet. Close upon his heels was President Eliot. Prof. Butler began a good-natured tirade upon the two gentlemen who had preceded him for their unreasonably early rising. Presently Eliot raised his face from the bowl and with his eyes shut and the water running down, protested:

"You ought not to find fault with Draper and Canfield for their early rising, Butler. They have been presidents of agricultural colleges so long that they still think they must get up and milk!"

And the two early birds laughed as long and as loud as the others.—New York Times.

Parisian theater managers have resolved for the future not to admit dramatic critics to dress rehearsals.

WHIM OF QUEEN VICTORIA.

She Didn't Want Any Advice from Her Private Secretary.

The queen's interest in and oversight of public affairs did not cease with the prince's death, although, in the first years of overwhelming sorrow, it must have been difficult to carry out her conception of duty. All important resolutions were taken by her; the personal notes in the "court circular" were written by her own hand, and were seen by no one else. When Sir Henry Ponsonby became the queen's private secretary, she said to him: "Remember this: No advice! I am older than you are and have had more experience."

In after years historians will have much to say upon the queen's personal share in the government of her dominions. All her papers have been most carefully preserved and arranged, and some day perhaps will be accessible to the inquirer. On the other hand, there is not a single paper belonging to George III. which is known to be in existence.—Prof. Oscar Browning in Century.

Bridge Builders at Fault.

What a pity it is that the designers of some of the bridges over the Harlem river did not study carefully the best things in the noblest arches above the Tiber and the Po, the canals of Venice, the currents of the Danube and the Rhone, the Seine and the Thames. What room there was for grand achievements and how many regrettable disappointments are now conspicuous.—New York Tribune.

Chicago has 15,000 members of the Masonic order.

REED'S FEE TOO MODEST.

Ex-Speaker Evinces a Trait Little Characteristic of Lawyers.

A man of national reputation had occasion some months ago to employ the services of Mr. Thomas B. Reed in a case before the United States Supreme court. He met the ex-speaker in New York and after concluding the arrangements for presenting the case for the corporation which he represented, said to him:

"And now, Mr. Reed, I should like to pay you a retaining fee at once."

"Oh, never mind that now," was the reply; "wait until I think it over, and I shall write to you."

The man was in Washington when he received Mr. Reed's letter. The ex-speaker began by saying that he was "a young fellow in the law business," and was "afraid of charging too much," and concluded by saying that if $1,000 wasn't too high he might send that amount. The rest of the letter was written in Mr. Reed's characteristic style of droll humor.

"I wouldn't have balked for a moment at paying a fee of $25,000," said the corporation man, in telling of it afterward, "but I drew a check and wrote a letter about like this:

"'Dear Mr. Reed: If the young fellows in the profession are going to be such bears in the market, how are the older ones going to make a living? I have taken the liberty of tampering with your bill by inclosing a check for $2,500.'"

The next morning the man received the following telegram:

"Washington, D. C.—You are altogether too good for this world.

"T. B. Reed."

Mr. Reed won the case for the corporation.—Saturday Evening Post.

CRUDE FARMING IN JAPAN.

Still Agriculture is a Very Old Science in the Land.

Although Japanese methods of farming appear crude enough to Americans and Europeans, it is well to remember that agriculture is a very old science in the land of the Mikado.

It was introduced there 2,700 years before Christ by an emperor who was afterward deified as god of the crops, in recognition of his great services to the people.

The soil had been cultivated in an inferior way before that time, but this enterprising ruler saw the needs of better methods. He taught the peasants by his own example, plowing a small plot of ground and sowing it with five most important cereals. In the course of a few years every hillside and valley in Japan was smiling ready for harvest.

This was accomplished, too, in spite of difficulties. The soil of Japan is naturally of very poor quality. The entire country is of volcanic formation, and only one-twelfth of the land is flat enough for farming. The farms of to-day are divided into very small sections, each hardly larger than a potato patch, but every inch is cultivated. The implements are crude.

After being plowed, the soil is loosened with a long-handled spade, and is then ready for the planting. The sickle used in harvesting is little larger than a curved bread knife.

No Petrified Songs There.

Representative Lacey, who is chairman of the committee on public lands, was recently urging the passage of his bill to make a national park of the petrified forest in Arizona, and telling the House that this tract was one of the wonders of the world, when Representative Robinson interrupted him.

"May I ask," said the Indiana representative, "if this is the forest where the petrified birds sing petrified songs as they perch on the petrified branches of petrified trees—the one where the petrified fish are swimming in petrified streams; where the petrified buffalo is seen suspended in the petrified atmosphere having tried to jump across the canon, and having been petrified in transit and still hangs there because the force of gravitation is petrified, too?"

"O, no," replied Mr. Lacey, "that is in the Yellowstone. There are no petrified songs in this forest; all the songs are up to date."—Washington Times.

Violet Glass as Cancer Cure.

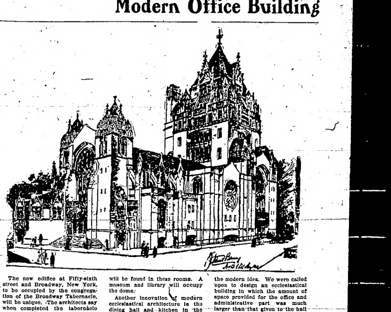
An expensive electrical apparatus which is known as an actinolite has just been placed in the New York Flower hospital, said to be the first complete instrument of the kind permanently set up in an American hospital. By its operation it is hoped to make a thorough test of the theory that the powerfully concentrated chemical, or actinic, rays of violet-colored light possess distinctly curative properties in cases of cancer and tuberculosis. To the patient the operation is an entirely painless one, and its advocates claim for it that it has none of the objectionable features that often attend the application of the Roentgen rays to sensitive portions of the human body.

How Peerages Die Out.

The recent death of Lord Wantage affords a curious example of how peerages die out. He was the first and last of the line, though the title was not conferred upon him in 1885 with any idea of its being only a life peerage, for he was a very wealthy man. Lord Wantage had no children. There has been a great deal of talk lately about model saloons that are run by peers, but it was not generally known that Lord Wantage was the first peer to run an establishment of this kind. He started a model inn in Arlington long before the rise of the Gothenburg system, and gave the profits to local charities.

God reads our character in our prayers.

Combination Church and Modern Office Building



The new edifice at Fifty-sixth street and Broadway, New York, to be occupied by the congregation of the Broadway Tabernacle, will be unique. The architects say when completed the tabernacle will represent the space and conveniences of a modern ten-story office building.

A tower 177 feet in height will be occupied by the church administrative, scientific, literary, missionary and social departments of the congregation. On what might be called the fourth story of the office building division of the structure will be the College Men's club. Everything that will attract the attention of the college men will be found in these rooms. A museum and library will occupy the dome.

Another innovation of modern ecclesiastical architecture is the dining hall and kitchen in the basement. The dining hall will seat 250 people.

The material to be used is brick and terra cotta. The cost of the building will be in the neighborhood of $500,000. The lot is 80 feet in Broadway and 171 feet in Fifty-sixth street.

"This tabernacle," said the architect, "will embody all features which go to make up a complete church foundation according to the modern idea. We were called upon to design an ecclesiastical building in which the amount of space provided for the office and administrative part was much larger than that given to the hall of worship and the chapel."

Six thousand people can avail themselves of the privileges of this tabernacle at one time when the structure is completed. The Rev. Charles E. Jefferson is the pastor. The present tabernacle has been for more than forty years at Thirty-fourth street and Sixth avenue. Many of the old citizens of New York are members of this, the oldest Congregational flock in the city.

Most Remarkable Clock Ever Made

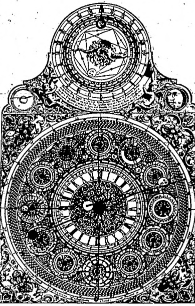
The following is a description of the clock shown in the accompanying cut. It is from the Jewelers' Circular and Horological Review, and was from the German of Matthias Roemer, watchmaker, of Zittersdorf, Lower Austria, in the Oesterreichish-Ungarische Uhrmacher Zeitung:

In the year 1769 F. David A. S. Cajetano, a barefoot monk of the Order of St. Augustine, in the Royal Monastery, at Vienna, completed a horological structure, which, from its complicated features and its artistic character, commanded much attention. It is still in operation and runs its course regularly.

The apparatus is fitted into a case eight feet seven inches in height; it has two large faces. The principal one, represented in the illustration, is two feet six inches high, one foot six and a half inches wide. It has 29 hands and 13 other contrivances, indicating correctly the rising and setting of the sun, the phases of the moon, the motions of the earth and of the larger planets, the dates of the festivals according to the Gregorian calendar, and many other particulars.

The most important and interesting indication is the pictured sun. The earth, as in nature, revolves around the sun in a year and on its axis in 24 hours. The hand moves around the circle in 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 48 seconds, a full year, while the orb in the upper part of the clock turns on its axis in the course of 24 hours, marking, in this way, the hours of the day and night.

The motion of the sun hand corresponds with the Gregorian calculation; an addition of one day is provided for every fourth year (leap year), with the regular omission of the leap year three times in 400 years. Both sun hands move in the zodiac, which is to be seen on the face of the clock, and indicate the month, the day of the month, and the daily position of the sun in the zodiac in degrees.



CURIOUS CLOCK OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

The clock goes for a month and is kept in motion by a weight of 26 pounds. It is very substantially and carefully constructed and, therefore, in spite of its age, is in comparatively good condition.

GORGEOUS FEAST IN ROME.

Birthday of the Eternal City Celebrated This Year With Unusual Pomp.

The birthday of Rome is still kept as an annual holiday by the Romans, but this year the day was celebrated by an unusually splendid fete on the Palatine, given by the International Artistic Club. More than 700 people took part in the ancient Roman procession, which was composed of Numidian cavalry, Pretorians on horse and on foot, ensign bearers, buglers, Dacians, slaves, cars drawn by oxen and litters for patrician ladies, patricians on horseback, car for holy water, chorus of men and women, priests and vestals, augurs, athletes, mimics, animals for the sacrifice (which were not sacrificed), lictors and senators. The procession, having made the tour of the Palatine, was grouped in the Stadium, where an altar was erected, chairs placed for the senators and a raised dais for the chorus. Incense was burnt on the altar by the high priest and priestesses to the goddesses Pala and Roma, and Horace's secular hymn was sung by the chorus, after which began the games.

Strangling Will Please You.

One question often asked, and which few living persons are able to answer is, "What are the sensations of a man who is being strangled with a rope?" Some of the few who have lived to give an account of what occurred to them at that critical moment say that after one instant of pain the chief sensation is that of a mass of brilliant colors before the eyes.

Prof. Boughton, who was one day testing for himself what such an experience would be like, lost his footing and was accidentally discovered and rescued just as the last faint spark of life was about to leave the body. He declared afterwards that he felt no pain, and that the only sensation was that of a fire before his eyes, which finally changed from a bright blue to a black color. He said that he had no fear of the consequences, and that the colors were even a source of extreme pleasure.

Murderer Kept Body.

Prussia is becoming notorious for extraordinary murders. A man named Beck at Konigsberg killed his wife, put the body in a box, and kept it by him for eighteen months without being detected. His wife's absence was concealed by his mistress going to Danzig and beginning divorce proceedings against him in the name of the murdered woman. The body was discovered through the curiosity of his former landlord, with whom he had left the box on moving from his apartments. When he found the police were after him Beck shot himself.

Frogs' legs to the number of 600,000 are annually consumed in the city of New York.

DEAD IN BATHTUB

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY CAUSES A GREAT SENSATION AT GRAND FORKS.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ARE DEAD

PASSED AWAY WHILE CHILDREN MADE MERRY IN THE PARLOR.

MURDER AND SUICIDE HINTED AT

INDICATIONS POINT TO POISONING AND WILD RUMORS ARE AFLOAT.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 8. — While their son and daughter and several young friends were singing and dancing in the parlor last night, Charles J. McCormick, a Great Northern conductor, and his wife were dying in the bath tub on the same floor, where their bodies were found some hours later by their son, who supposed that they had gone to sleep, and tried in vain to awaken them.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick had been out for a drive in the evening, and did considerable shopping. They talked with many people and appeared to be in good health and spirits. Going home, they entered by the back way and called to their son and daughter, who were entertaining several friends in the parlor, that they were going to take a bath. While out they had procured a jug of beer, and they called to the daughter to bring them some crackers to eat with it. Later they asked her to bring some clothing, which she did. They were Not Heard From Again.

The party in the parlor made merry until a late hour, and when the guests had left, Hilby, the son, aged thirteen, went to call his parents. He could not arouse them, and, becoming alarmed, he called for help from one of the guests who had gone but a few steps. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCormick were dead when found. Their nude bodies were in the tub, their clothing lay scattered about the floor, and a partly consumed jug of beer stood near by.

Mr. McCormick's body lay at full length, the feet toward the faucet. Mrs. McCormick was crouched at his feet, her arms resting on the side of the tub and her face buried in them. Dr. Wheeler, who was called, thought they had been dead about two hours. No satisfactory explanation of the tragedy can be given.

Mr. McCormick was one of the oldest and most valued conductors on the Great Northern. He was known as President Hill's favorite conductor, and was selected whenever possible to take charge of the president's private train. He had taken Mr. Hill many times from St. Paul to the coast. He was in comfortable circumstances and had the confidence of all his associates.

Wild Rumors Afloat.

There are wild rumors that his wife was unreasonably jealous of him; that she was addicted to morphine, and that in a frenzy she may have poisoned first her husband and then herself. The indications are that death was by poisoning, though by what agent has not been determined, as the analysis of the viscera and the beer left in the jug is not completed. The coroner impaneled a jury, but beyond formalities little was done. The evidence showed that Mrs. McCormick must have got into the bath tub after her husband, and the coroner believes that the husband died first. McCormick's features were composed and his wife's face showed no traces of emotion. There was no evidence of a struggle or of anything unusual, and the theory of asphyxiation will not hold, as there was no smell of gas in the room. The inquest will be resumed to-morrow.

WOMAN MAIL CARRIER.

Mrs. Amanda Brown Travels Between Spearfish and Bear Gulch.

Spearfish, S. D., July 8. — Mrs. Amanda Brown is now carrying the mail between Spearfish and Bear Gulch, a distance of sixteen miles. Hugh Johnston has had the route for the past twelve years continuously, making three trips weekly with almost clock-like precision. It is one of the most difficult routes in the Black Hills, on account of the deep snow in the mountains from November until May. It is not often that a sleigh can be used out of Spearfish and it is necessary to use a sleigh all winter at the Bear Gulch end, so that a change has to be made from wheels to runners at the top of the hill.

MANY HOUSES WASHED AWAY.

Cloudburst in Idaho Does Considerable Damage.

Hope, Idaho, July 8. — A cloudburst at Ellisport, east of Hope, swept away twelve or more houses and washed out two miles of track on the Northern Pacific. There was no loss of life. For a considerable distance around Ellisport the country is flooded. The creek is wide and swift and all the trestles are gone from Clark's Forks to Hope. From Hope to Sand Point there are several landslides along the road each way.

FATAL WIND AT WELLS.

E. R. Cook Is Killed—Storm Does Considerable Damage.

Wells, Minn., July 8. — A wind and rainstorm passed over this section at 9 o'clock last evening, causing great damage. Four miles west of town it completely demolished one of the largest new barns in the country and killed E. R. Cook, the owner. His wife and son also were in the barn at the time, but were pinioned down so they were unable to give him assistance. Thirteen cattle and three horses in the barn were killed.

FATAL MISTAKE.

South Dakota Man Swallows a Quantity of Carbolic Acid.

Aberdeen, S. D., July 8. — Otto Anderson took carbolic acid by mistake and was found dead when the family returned home from Tacoma Park the evening of July 4. He had suffered from stomach trouble and the medicine used to relieve the pain was unfortunately kept close by a bottle of carbolic acid and in the darkness the fatal mistake was made. He was fifty-four years of age and leaves five children. His wife died some time ago.

TANKES GET GRACE.

Sentence of One and Trial of Second Put Off Till the 12th.

Henderson, Minn., July 8.—The Tanke murder trial was resumed here Saturday morning. County Attorney Davis of Nicollet county moved the court for sentence to be passed on the defendant, Frank Tanke, upon the verdict rendered in the action. The defense then made a motion for a new trial on all statutory grounds, and also moved the court for a stay of proceedings for the purpose of preparing a bill of exceptions. The matter was taken under advisement by the court until the 12th inst. In the case of Amelia Tanke the state made a motion to have the case brought to immediate trial. The defense stated that they would be prepared to proceed with the trial on the 12th inst. Judge Cadwell ordered a special venire for eighty persons to serve as petit jurors, returnable at 10 o'clock on the above date.

S. B. LOVEJOY IS NO MORE.

Minneapolis Postmaster Succumbs to Consumption.

Minneapolis, July 8. — Stephen B. Lovejoy, postmaster of Minneapolis, well known and highly respected pioneer resident, died at the family residence in Kenwood early Saturday morning. The fact that Mr. Lovejoy had been dangerously ill for nearly two weeks, and that his family and friends had practically abandoned hope several days ago was well known, so that his demise does not come as a surprise. Mr. Lovejoy had been ill many years. His trouble, which was of a pulmonary character, did not assume a serious form until a few years ago.

SEVERE STORM IN NORTHWEST.

Southern Minnesota and South Dakota Suffer Much Damage to Crops.

St. Paul, July 8. — Dispatches from points in Southern Minnesota and South Dakota report one of the heaviest rain storms in many months fell Saturday night. Around Wilmot, S. D., considerable damage by wind was done to farm buildings, smaller structures being completely wrecked. Crops were damaged in Goodhue county, Minn., and in Red Wing lightning struck and damaged buildings. A small steamer from Red Wing, with a picnic party on board, was partly wrecked, but not wholly disabled, and all reached home in safety.

BOY ELECTROCUTED.

Anoka Youth Takes Hold of a Live Wire.

Anoka, Minn., July 8.—John Salmon, a fourteen-year-old lad, son of George Salmon, was instantly killed by taking hold of a live electric wire that had been blown down by the storm. He made just one groan and his companions rushed for help. Before he could be released messengers had to go to the power house, a mile away, to get the current shut off. The father of the lad heard of the accident and went to the scene and found out that it was his own boy only when he saw him.

ABDUCTION THE MOTIVE.

Attempt Made at Butte to Chloroform a Family of Seven.

Butte, Mont., July 8. — An attempt was made at an early hour yesterday morning to chloroform the family of seven persons with the object, it is presumed, of abducting Eva McCaffray, a quarter-breed Indian girl. The perpetrator is believed to have been Peter Dempsey, a condemned murderer who escaped from the county jail a year ago. The man was frightened away and escaped. Dempsey was enamored of the girl prior to his arrest.

RIDDLED WITH SHOT.

One Hundred and Fifty Pellets Entered Gunsolus' Body.

Pierre, S. D., July 8.—A post mortem examination of the remains of Milton Gunsolus at Blunt showed that 140 shot had entered his body and most of them had pierced vital organs. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that Gunsolus had come to his death from a gunshot wound from a gun in the hands of Bert Linney, which was fired with the intent to commit murder.

FALLING ROCK KILLS BLASTER.

William Hodges Found Dead in Calumet and Hecla Mine.

Houghton, Mich., July 8.—William H. Hodges, a blaster in the Calumet and Hecla mine, was crushed and killed by falling rock in No. 7 shaft some time Thursday afternoon. His body was not discovered until Friday, when a searching party found it under a heap of rock. Hodges was one of the company's best workmen, and is survived by a widow and several children.

MADE A WINNING.

Masked Man Holds Up a Gambling Joint in Colfax, Wash.

Spokane, Wash., July 8.—A masked man held up the gambling saloon of Charles Schultz in Colfax, Wash., at 2:30 o'clock and compelled the proprietor to gather up the money on the table—$1,600—and put it in a gunnysack, with which the robber then departed.

SKYROCKET KILLS A MAN.

Abdomen Is Pierced and Marshfield Man Dies of Wound.

Marshfield, Wis., July 8.—Arzie Sheriff, aged thirty-two, while a spectator in Auburndale, was struck in the abdomen by a skyrocket, from which he died at the hospital here. He left a wife and three children.

Grist Mill Gone.

Spring Valley, Minn., July 8.—Yesterday morning the gristmill of H. E. Esty, three miles from this city, was struck by lightning and burned. Loss, $3,000; no insurance.

Sultan Is Insulting.

Manila, July 8.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, has sent an insultingly worded letter to the commander of the American expedition to Lake Lanao, in which he threatens to begin offensive operations in August.

Will Delay Harvest.

Wichita, Kan., July 8.—A very heavy rain, amounting at Anthony almost to a cloudburst, fell over ten counties in Central Kansas yesterday. It will delay harvest to a great extent it is thought.

CONVICT'S DARING

FUGITIVE OREGON DESPERADO AGAIN ELUDES HIS PURSUERS.

WONDERFUL DISPLAY OF NERVE

FORCES ASSISTANCE FROM THOSE HE COMES IN CONTACT WITH.

OFFICERS APE IN HOT PURSUIT

WILL PROBABLY DISAPPEAR INTO WILD FORESTS OF WASHINGTON.

Seattle, Wash., July 8. — Harry Tracey, the Oregon convict, has again eluded his pursuers after a display of great daring. His last act was to impress a farm hand into debarking on the sound in a row boat Saturday and at noon yesterday. Sheriff Cudihee chartered the tug Sea Lion, and, with a posse, started in pursuit.

According to information received at the sheriff's office here Tracey slept in a graveyard on the outskirts of Seattle after his battle Thursday night with Seattle officers. On Friday morning he proceeded to the ranch of a man named Fisher, secured food and slept and rested in the woods all that day and night. Early Saturday morning he appeared at Meadow Point, on the water front, three miles north of Seattle, his original point of landing. There he fisher boy to row him to Madison Point, twelve miles across and down the sound from Seattle. He dismissed the boy, declaring that the latter would be killed by Tracey's pal if he told of the trip. They landed near the home of Rancher Johnson and Tracey watched the house for an hour to make sure of the number of men there. Finding but two, he entered and announced that he intended to kill every one on the ranch and take charge of the place for a few days. He added:

Compelled a Japanese

"But, after seeing your pretty little girl, I will kill no one if you all mind me. I will be here all day."

The family prepared breakfast for Tracey and put one plate on a table against the wall.

"This is not right," declared the convict; "put the table in the middle of the room and all sit down with me," which was done.

Coolly Reads the Papers.

Tracey then read Friday evening's papers, and after learning how Mrs. Van Horn had betrayed his presence in her house to the butcher boy, said he had been careless in not keeping every one in that house constantly under his eye.

"My carelessness in this respect made it necessary to kill two officers," he said.

He forced the Johnsons to give him a bundle of clothing and hats and six day's supplies of food, cooked for him, put on Johnson's suit of Sunday black and had the food, clothes and blankets made into bundles.

At 8 o'clock he bound and tightly gagged the Johnson family, made their hired man help him carry the bundles to Johnson's row boat, put Anderson, the hired man, in the boat at the oars and started down the sound.

Notified the Sheriff.

Mrs. Johnson released herself and the others two hours later and notified Deputy Sheriff McKay, who lives at Madison Point. McKay secured a boat and sent word to Seattle yesterday morning.

Sheriff Cudihee was summoned from Bothell and at 10:30 o'clock, with several men, started down the sound in the Sea Lion, an electric tug boat, looking for the desperado and farm hand. However, as Tracey had fifteen hours' start it is believed he will make good his escape. The supposition is that he would row all night, probably kill Anderson, sink the boat and disappear into the wild forests of Northern Washington, where he may live many days on his supply of food.

INVESTIGATE PANAMA TITLE.

Assistant Attorney General Wants Senator Spooner to Go to Paris With Him.

Washington, July 8. — Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Russell is completing his preparations and within a week will start for Paris to investigate the ability of the new Panama Canal company to give the United States a satisfactory title to concessions and property on the isthmus. When this preliminary work shall have proceeded to a certain point, the attorney general, according to the president's expressed wish, probably will go over and personally look into the matter. He has invited Senator Spooner to go along and assist him, in view of the senator's well known familiarity with the matter and the attorney general's opinion of his ability, and hopes that he will go.

FIRED THROUGH A WINDOW.

Prominent Young Lady Is Fatally Shot While in Her Bedroom.

McPherson, Kan., July 8.—Miss Maud Holmes, living near here, was shot in the neck, head and breast, and fatally injured late last night by some unknown person, who fired a load of shot at her through the window of her bedchamber. Miss Holmes belongs to one of the most prominent families in the county. No arrests have been made and a motive is lacking.

Many Stores Burned.

Wilmington, N. C., July 8.—Fire at Clinton destroyed forty-two stores and residences, causing a loss of $100,000, on which there was little insurance. The Western Union telegraph office was among the buildings destroyed.

Gored to Death.

Guthrie, Okla., July 8.—Miss Jennie Harrison was gored to death by a bull at Odemah, in Greer county yesterday, the animal knocking her down and running its horns back and forth through her body.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

Twenty negroes were injured at Charleston, S. C., by falling off the front veranda of Emmanuel church.

Two young men, Walter Arnold and an unknown companion, were drowned while swimming in the Maumee river at Toledo, Ohio.

The centennial of Alexandre Dumas the elder was celebrated at his birthplace, Villers-Cotteretes, department of Aisne. Many prominent persons were present.

A freight wreck on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway at Chicago resulted in the injury of seven men who were beating their way to Chicago. Eight cars filled with tramps were telescoped.

The Brussels correspondent of the London Times says that The Hague tribunal is to be consulted on some point regarding the terms of the sale of the Danish island of St. Thomas to the United States.

Chief Justice Marshall J. Williams of the Ohio supreme court died at his home in Columbus, Ohio, of diabetes, aged sixty-five years. He was four times elected to the supreme bench, having served in all about sixteen years.

John Stromberg, composer and leader of the orchestra of the Weber & Fields company, is dead at his summer home in Freeport, L. I., death having resulted from paralysis of the heart following a long attack of rheumatism. He was forty-two years old.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 8. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 78@78c; No. 2 Northern, 75@77c. Oats—No. 3 white, 50@51c; No. 3, 48 1-2@49 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 58@59c; No. 3, 57@58c.

Minneapolis, July 8. — Wheat—No. 1 hard, 81 3-4c; No. 1 Northern, 79 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 74 1-8c.

Duluth, July 8.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 78 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 75 7-8c; July, 75 7-8c; September, 73 3-8c; flax, $1.60; oats, September, 34c; rye, September, 54c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 8. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 77 1-2@78c; No. 2 Northern, 76@77c; September, 74 1-8c. Rye—No. 1, 58@58 1-2c. Barley—No. 2, 71 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 white, 55@55 1-2c. Corn—September, 62 1-4c.

Chicago, July 8. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 77 1-2@78c; No. 3 red, 76 1-2@77c; No. 2 hard winter, 76 1-2c; No. 3 hard winter, 75 1-2c; No. 1 Northern spring, 77@78c; No. 2 Northern spring, 77c; No. 3 spring, 70@76c. Corn—No. 2, 73@76c; No. 3, 63@64c. Oats—No. 2, 49@50c; No. 3, 46c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 8. — Cattle — Beeves, $5.50 @ 6.50; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@4; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.25. Hogs, $7.35@7.45; bulk, $7.40 @7.45.

Chicago, July 8. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.75@8.50; poor to medium, $4.75@7.50; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.35; cows, $1.50@6. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.20@7.80; good to choice heavy, $7.75@7.97 1-2. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $3.75@4; Western, $2.75 @3.75; native lambs, $3.50@7.30.

South St. Paul, July 8. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $6.25@6.50; good, $5.50@6; common to fair, $4@5.25; choice cows and heifers, $5.25@5.50; good, $4.25 @5; fair, $3.10@4; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.25; good to choice feeding steers, $3.50@4.50; steer calves, $2@3.25. Hogs—Range, $7@7.50; bulk, $7.20@7.40; rough sorts, $6.60. Sheep — Fancy lambs, $6@6.15; good to choice fat lambs, $5.25@5.75; fair to good, $4.25@5; good to choice yearling wethers, $4@4.25.

VATICAN WANTS A COMPROMISE.

Suggests That Generals of Religious Orders Withdraw Their Dependents.

Rome, July 8.—The Vatican is striving to find a compromise between satisfying the desires of Washington, as set forth by Judge William H. Taft, governor of the Philippines, and relieving the holy see from direct responsibility for the withdrawal of the friars from the Philippine archipelago. Several plans to this end have been discussed by the Vatican authorities. The most acceptable of these is that the generals of the four religious orders concerned, having been informed of Washington's request, shall themselves order the withdrawal of their dependents, who now number about 500. This plan would necessitate a letter from the general of each order to Gov. Taft pledging the writer to this action, or the insertion of a clause in the contract between Judge Taft and the Vatican that steps to this end will be taken immediately by the generals when they are aware of the wishes of the United States. The Vatican would thus be under no odium, the pope merely accepting an accomplished fact.

FAMILY POISONED BY FISH.

Seven Persons Made Ill From Eating Canned Salmon and a Fatality May Result.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 8.—Henry Ornis and seven children were poisoned by eating canned salmon at a family reunion at the home of Samuel A. Hilderbrand, in Reserve township. All of the victims are sick, but will recover, except Martha, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. Hilderbrand, who is expected to die.

KAISER CHEERS FOR KING.

Emperor William Calls for Tiger to Celebrate Glad News From Uncle's Bedside.

Travemund, Germany, July 8.—After awarding prizes to the winners in the North German association's yacht race here, Emperor William read a telegram from King Edward's physicians announcing that his majesty was out of danger, and called for three cheers for the king, which were heartily given.

Woman Kills Herself.

Weston, Mass., July 8. — Dr. Mary Damon of Minneapolis, a member of a prominent Concord family, committed suicide yesterday at the home of a relative by cutting her throat. The act is attributed to ill health.

Lives Lost in Quake.

Vienna, July 8.—There was a violent earthquake at Salonica, a seaport city of European Turkey in Roumelia. Many houses were wrecked and there was great loss of life.

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORE OF THE DAY'S GAMES IN THE THREE BIG LEAGUES.

MINNIE SHUTS OUT ST. PAUL

KANSAS CITY AND MILWAUKEE BREAK EVEN IN A DOUBLE-HEADER.

RESULTS OF GAMES IN THE EAST

CLEVELAND AND ST. LOUIS WIN THE ONLY GAMES IN THE AMERICAN.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	45	20	.692	Kan. City	32	35	.478
Indianaplis	40	24	.625	Milwaukee	27	38	.415
St. Paul	37	29	.560	Minneapolis	24	40	.375
Columbus	34	32	.515	Toledo	22	44	.333

At St. Paul.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Minneap.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Geier 3b	1	1	1	1	Grant 2b	0	1	3	0
Chech lf	0	3	0	0	Phyle 3b	1	0	2	0
Cogan lf	0	0	0	0	Lally lf	1	1	0	0
Shannon cf	1	3	0	0	Wilmot rf	1	2	0	0
Kelley 1b	2	11	1	0	Werden 1b	0	16	3	0
Lumley rf	1	1	0	0	Lynch cf	0	1	0	0
Huggins 2b	0	1	6	1	Curley ss	0	1	2	1
Peirce c	0	3	1	0	Zalusky c	0	3	2	0
Hurley c	0	0	0	0	Katoll p	0	2	7	1
Lynch ss	0	3	0	0
Stimmel p	0	1	2	0
Ferguson x	0	0	0	0	Totals	3	27	19	2
Totals	5	27	12	2

xBatted for Stimmel in the ninth.

St. Paul	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—0
Minneapolis	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1

Earned run—Minneapolis. Sacrifice hit—Stimmel. Stolen base—Phyle, Lally 2, Wilmot. First base on balls—Off Stimmel 2, off Katoll 3. First base on errors—St. Paul 1, Minneapolis 2. Left on bases—St. Paul 9, Minneapolis 5. Struck out—By Stimmel 2, by Katoll 2. Time—1:40. Umpire—Haskell. Attendance—6,782.

At Columbus.

Columbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Indianplis.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hart 2b	0	2	2	0	Hogriever rf	1	1	0	0
Wagner cf	0	1	0	0	Kuhns lf	0	2	0	0
Myers 1b	1	10	0	0	Woodruff 3b	0	0	2	0
McFarlan rf	1	1	0	1	Kihm 1b	1	14	1	0
Turner 3b	0	0	5	0	O'Brien ss	0	2	0	0
Knoll lf	1	3	0	1	Coulter cf	1	2	0	0
Vlox ss	1	3	1	0	W. Fox 2b	0	2	3	0
G. Fox c	0	4	1	0	Heydon c	1	3	0	0
Thomas p	0	0	1	0	Williams p	1	1	3	0
Totals	4	24	10	2	Totals	5	27	15	0

Columbus	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	—1
Indianapolis	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	x	—2

Two-base hits—McFarlan, Kihm. Sacrifice hits—Vlox, Kuhns 2. Double plays—G. Fox to Vlox to Myers; O'Brien to W. Fox to Kihm. Struck out—By Thomas 2, by Williams 3. Bases on balls—By Thomas 1, by Williams 1. Time—1:45. Umpire—Ward.

At Louisville.

Louisville.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Kerwin rf	1	0	0	1	Burns 2b	1	3	8	0
Bonner 2b	2	2	5	0	Meany rf	1	0	0	0
Gansel 1b	1	14	0	0	Turner 1b	1	11	1	1
Flournoy lf	2	0	0	0	Smith 3b	1	1	2	1
Tannehill ss	2	4	5	0	Owen ss	2	5	0	1
Clymer cf	0	2	0	0	Kleinow c	1	5	3	0
Schaub 3b	1	2	4	0	Gilks cf	0	1	0	0
Schriver c	2	3	3	0	Coggsw'l p.lf	1	2	1	0
Coons p	1	0	1	0	Hughey p	0	1	0	0
					Mock lf	0	0	0	0
Totals	12	27	18	1	Totals	8	27	13	3

Louisville	2	0	0	1	4	3	0	0	1	—11
Toledo	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	—2

Left on bases—Louisville 9, Toledo 5. Two-base hits—Schriver, Owen. Three-base hits—Bonner, Flournoy, Schaub. Sacrifice hits—Clymer, Kleinow. Double plays—Schriver and Tannehill; Bonner, Tannehill and Gansel 2. Stolen bases—Tannehill, Gansel, Flournoy 2. Struck out—By Hughey 1, by Coons 3. Hit by pitcher—Coons. Bases on balls—By Hughey 2, by Coggswell 5, by Coons 3. Time—1:45. Umpire—Tindill.

At Milwaukee.

First Game—

Milw'kee.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hallman rf	2	1	0	0	Lewee ss	1	1	2	1
Clingman ss	0	4	3	0	Nance cf	2	0	0	0
McBride cf	0	1	0	1	Grady 3b	1	2	2	0
Bunkle 3b	1	1	3	0	Smith lf	1	4	0	0
Shieheck 2b	1	1	3	1	Beville c	1	3	1	0
Dungan 1b	2	15	2	0	Thiel rf	0	0	0	0
Thomas lf	1	1	0	1	Rothfuss 1b	3	12	0	0
Cross c	1	3	0	0	McBride 2b	1	2	4	0
Altrock p	1	0	3	0	Gear p	1	0	3	0
Totals	9	27	14	2	Totals	11	24	12	1

Milwaukee	0	0	1	3	0	0	0	0	x	—4
Kansas City	0	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	—3

Two-base hits—Nance 2, Beville. Base on balls—By Altrock 2, by Gear 1. Hit by pitched ball—Altrock. Struck out—By Altrock 2, by Gear 3. Double play—Dungan to Shieheck. Left on bases—Milwaukee 7, Kansas City 8. Umpire—Francis. Time—1:50.

Second Game—

Milwauke.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hallman rf	2	1	0	0	Lewee ss	1	5	2	0
Clingman ss	1	1	1	1	Nance cf	0	0	0	0
McBride cf	1	1	0	1	Grady 3b	3	0	4	0
Bunkle 3b	0	1	3	0	Smith lf	3	0	1	0
Shieheck 2b	1	2	1	0	Beville c	3	3	0	1
Dungan 1b	1	12	1	1	Thiel rf	2	2	0	0
Thomas lf	0	4	0	1	Rothfuss 1b	2	11	0	0
Cross c	0	4	0	0	McBride 2b	2	1	1	1
Herman p	1	1	4	1	Gibson p	4	1	2	0
xMcAndrews	1	0	0	0
Totals	8	27	10	5	Totals	20	27	9	2

xBatted for Herman.

Milwaukee	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1
Kansas City	0	4	0	4	0	2	2	0	3	—15

Two-base hits—Nance, Beville, Gibson. Bases on balls—By Gibson 1. Hit by pitched ball—Lewee. Struck out—By Herman 4, by Gibson 2. Left on bases—Milwaukee 10, Kansas City 9. Umpire—Francis. Time—1:45.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	37	22	.627	Detroit	28	31	.475
Boston	35	28	.556	Washington	29	34	.460
St. Louis	31	28	.525	Baltimore	28	34	.452
Philadelph.	30	28	.517	Cleveland	20	38	.337

At Chicago.

Chicago	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	—2
Cleveland	1	0	1	0	0	1	3	0	0	—6

At St. Louis.

St. Louis	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	—2
Detroit	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	—1

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	45	14	.763	Philadelphia	26	30	.464
Brooklyn	38	28	.567	St. Louis	28	36	.438
Boston	33	27	.550	Cincinnati	24	36	.400
Chicago	32	30	.524	New York	21	41	.339

At Chicago.

Chicago	4	0	0	1	2	1	0	0	x	—8
Pittsburg	1	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	—3

At Cincinnati.

Cincinnati	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	—3
Brooklyn	1	0	3	3	5	2	0	0	0	—14

At St. Louis.

St. Louis	0	0	3	0	0	4	0	0	x	—7
New York	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	—1

Fargo Loses to Cavalier.

Fargo, N. D., Special July 6.—Ragged fielding lost Fargo the game to Cavalier this afternoon—10 to 6.

The civil court in St. Petersburg has awarded 150,000 damages to Mlle. Sarkisowa, who sued the Transcaucasian railway because five of her front teeth were knocked out in a railway accident.

A MATTER OF RELIGION.

Judge Decides a Man Is Not a Catholic, if Married by a Protestant.

Milwaukee, July 4.—Because the late James Henry Barry, formerly a well known lawyer at Madison, later of Chicago, married a divorced woman before a protestant preacher, Judge Tarrant held he violated one of the canons of the church and ceased to be a practical Catholic, thereby forfeiting his rights under a policy issued by the Catholic Knights. The decision was handed down in the suit brought by Emma S. Barry of Chicago, widow of the deceased, against the Catholic Knights to collect $2,000 under the policy. The suit has been watched with the greatest interest by members of the order and Roman Catholics generally. It was of particular importance to the order, which is regulated by the church and makes church membership an absolute qualification, its constitution and policies providing that when a member ceases to be a practical Catholic he forfeits his privileges and membership.

JUMPS FROM HIGH BRIDGE.

Man With a Jag Unsuccessfully Attempts Suicide.

St. Paul, July 4.—Happy in anticipa- jumped head first from the high bridge to the river yesterday morning, falling 208 feet. He was laboring under a drunken desire to end his life. The fall and the contact with the water had a sobering effect, and on coming to the surface, managed to keep afloat until rescued. He is now at the city hospital. The doctors say he is suffering from trivial injuries, and will probably be released to-day. Vandrasek is the second man to survive a drop from the high bridge during the past six weeks. Family troubles appear to have been the cause of his mad attempt.

FOUR BAD MEN.

They Saw Their Way Out of the Sioux City Jail.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 4.—Four bad men broke jail here last night. They are John Cole, James Story and Fred Thompson, horse thieves, and James Henry, burglar. A bar was sawed off and the men went through a hole 7x14 inches. Cole is a member of an organized gang of horse thieves, and as a woman was with him when arrested, it is thought she was the person on the outside furnishing aid. Story was but recently released from the penitentiary.

SALOONS ANTE UP.

Faribault Raises the Limit and Profits Much Thereby.

Faribault, Minn., July 4. — Thirteen saloonkeepers paid $1,000 each into the city treasury yesterday and a fourteenth has made application to open a saloon July 19. Faribault had sixteen saloons last year, with $500 license, and will have fourteen this year with $1,000, a net gain of $6,000 in revenue for the city. Part of this money was used yesterday in cancelling $6,000 of Minnesota Central railroad bonds which were issued by the city in 1862.

PEARSONS GIVES MORE.

$50,000 in Two Checks for Whitman College of Walla Walla.

Walla Walla, Wash., July 4. — Two checks for $25,000 each have been received by President S. B. T. Penrose of Whitman college as a gift from D. K. Pearsons of Chicago. This makes $250,000 that Pearsons has given to Whitman college. This endowment was offered on condition that the first story of the next girl's dormitory at Whitman was completed by July 1, and the officials met the requirement.

DISCOURAGING FOR CORN.

Exceptionally Favorable Weather Can Only Make a Fair Crop.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 4.—The local station of the weather bureau issued a report yesterday showing that the total precipitation for last month was 7.27 inches, 44 per cent above normal, and that the temperature was 66 degrees, 5 degrees below normal. Director Sage says only exceptionally favorable July weather can produce a fair yield of oats and corn.

DRINKS MACHINE OIL AND DIES.

Two-Year-Old Daughter of South Dakota Couple Is Dead.

Rapid City, S. D., July 4.—A drink of machine oil caused the death of a two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Walthall, residing at Hereford, a short distance from Rapid City. A Physician was summoned, but could not save the child's life. The oil is to be analyzed to see what it contains that is poisonous.

SHAKOPEE'S MAYOR DIES.

Former Treasurer of Scott County Victim of Heart Disease.

Shakopee, Minn., July 4.—James Sullivan, mayor of the city, was found dead at his home yesterday morning. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause. He was forty-five years old and leaves a wife and three children. He was treasurer of Scott county from 1883 to 1896, and mayor of the city since April, 1901.

Wright Loses Appeal.

Pierre, S. D., July 4. — The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of S. H. Wright, the Centerville attorney sentenced from Minnehaha county for one year, on a charge of embezzlement.

Crops Washed Away.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 4.—Kalamazoo and vicinity was visited last night by the heaviest rainfall of the season. It is estimated that two inches of rain fell in one hour. Many of the celery fields were completely flooded.

Burglars Get Busy.

Spring Valley, Minn., July 4.—C. M. Coleman's office, Krum & Hale's office, Schmidt & Hofmann's meat market and W. H. Strong's residence were burglarized here last night. About $30 in cash was taken, besides valuables.

Heavy Damage to Crops.

Madison, Wis., July 4.—Three violent showers fell here yesterday and an electric storm occurred last night. Much damage was done to crops. The rainfall was 1.51 inches, the heaviest for a year

---

BLAME THE MAYOR

SUPERINTENDENT AMES NOT THE REAL HEAD OF MINNEAPOLIS POLICE.

"DOC" GAVE ALL THE ORDERS

HOLD MAYOR AMES RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WHOLE POLICE MUDDLE.

STATE HAS A SRONG CASE

WITNESSES TESTIFY TO COL. AMES' CONNECTION WITH SWINDLING OPERATIONS.

Minneapolis, July 6. — Col. Fred W. Ames sprung a genuine surprise yesterday afternoon when in the course of his direct testimony he did that which is accepted as a disposition on his part to throw the blame for the toleration of the Edwards-Crossman gang of swindlers, as well as the whole unfortunate police management, upon his brother, Mayor Ames.

The interest in yesterday's proceedings centered almost wholly in the testimony of Supt. Ames, although the opening address of Counsel Welch to the jury contained much that was interesting and some things that were sensational. It looks as if the defense would rely mainly on these points:

First — That Supt. Ames is not in reality chief of police, but that as superintendent of police he has a Sort of General Supervision of the members of the force, and takes his orders from the real chief of police —the mayor.

Second—That defense may be able to establish an alibi, proving to the jury's satisfaction that Supt. Ames was not in his office at the time when "Link" G. Crossman says he called on him and gave him the $25 which forms the basis of the indictment in this case.

Third—That the Edwards-Crossman gang of swindlers were "hunted and hounded" by the police until they became exasperated, and in their hostility toward the superintendent decided upon a plan whereby they could ruin him.

Fourth—That Crossman's testimony cannot be taken with safety, because he is a professional crook and swindler.

Fifth—That Norbeck's testimony cannot with fairness be accepted as truthful after he had admitted that he

Had Committed Perjury

in the Gardner trial, and also because he was looking for leniency in return for his help to the state in this matter.

The disposition of the defense to minimize the character and responsibilities of the superintendent of police and have the jury keep in mind the fact that the city charter makes the mayor the real head of the police department is the thing that attracts greatest attention. The attitude of the defense in this matter is not regarded as evidence of a misunderstanding between the Ames brothers. It is thought it is all the result of a mutual agreement. Mayor Ames, himself a man of wonderful tenacity, confidence and egotism, doubtless calculates that he will never be convicted by a Minneapolis jury, and that however much for the management of the police department, he will not be specially affected by it. The state presented no specially material evidence from three witnesses yesterday morning, and at 11 o'clock rested its case.

He May Be Blamed

The case presented by the state is complete. It lacks nothing in fulfillment of the state's promises. Witnesses have explicitly connected Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames with the swindling operations of Crossman-Edwards & Co. Norbeck, a former captain of the department has sworn that he received his orders to assist in robbing guileless people of their money direct from Ames the chief and Ames the mayor.

SCARS OF PATRIOTISM.

Michigan Legislator Will Take Revenge on Fireworks.

Marquette, Mich., July 6.—State Legislator John R. Gordon had a hole torn through his hand last night by a skyrocket. At the last session of the legislature Gordon presented a bill to prevent the use of fireworks, but was induced to withdraw it before action was taken. He says he will reintroduce it at the next session.

Cambridge, Minn.—George C. Starr, court stenographer of the Eighteenth Judicial district, had his face lacerated and right eye seriously injured by the explosion of a whistling firecracker. Herbert Johnson of Springvale was seriously injured in the head by a giant firecracker.

Le Sueur, Minn.—Edson, son of Deputy Revenue Collector Gish, nearly lost his eyesight by a toy cannon.

FATAL RESULT OF A DRUNK.

Man at Granby Goes to Sleep With His Head on the Track.

Granby, Minn., July 6. — The Great Northern passenger from the west ran into and instantly killed Hans Nelson. Nelson, with two companions, had lain down beside the track in a drunken stupor. Nelson's head rested on a tie high enough to intercept the wheels. At the same station a young man was put aboard the train who had one of his eyes blown out by the explosion of a giant cracker. He was taken to St. Paul and transferred to one of the hospitals.

Montana's New Capital.

Helena, Mont., July 6. — Montana's capitol was formally turned over to the state by the building commission yesterday. Impressive ceremonies accompanied the event. Gov. Toole, Senators Clark and Gibson made addresses.

Had Narrow Escape.

Minneapolis, July 6.—As a result of being struck by a train five persons are lying injured at St. Mary's hospital in Minneapolis. That all of them were not killed was miraculous. Their carriage was struck at a crossing.

KING DOING WELL

HIS MAJESTY EATS A GOOD DINNER AND SMOKES A CIGAR.

HEARS CHEERS OF INDIAN TROOPS

QUEEN ALEXANDRA THE CENTRAL FIGURE OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

DOCTORS PRAY FOR THE KING

TWO THOUSAND MEDICS PARTICIPATE IN AN IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

London, July 4.—King Edward has passed another good day. The quiet and routine of the sickroom was varied yesterday by the excitement of listening to the music and cheers of the Indian trops as they marched past the palace and greeted Queen Alexandra on the balcony. King Edward demanded a full account of the review, and the formal report made by the prince of Wales was supplemented by the personal narrative of the queen. His majesty dictated a letter to the duke of Connaught commanding him to compliment the colonial and Indian troops upon their excellent appearance, and to thank them for their expressions of loyalty and sympathy, which he had heard with pleasure in his sick room. King Edward was somewhat disappointed that he was not able to review the troops. He had hoped that this would be possible from an invalid couch in a window of the palace, but the doctors were unwilling that he should and excitement, and his majesty had to content himself with hearing the troops pass without seeing them. At a late hour last night the king's improvement continued. It was announced that he had partaken of a fairly good dinner and smoked a cigar. The prince and princess of Wales gave a brilliant dinner party at York house last night in honor of the visiting Indian princes.

Risk This Exposure

A unique and impressive scene was witnessed in St. Paul's cathedral last evening when some 2,600 doctors assembled beneath the dome of the building and offered prayers for the king's recovery. Many of the doctors wore their academic robes. A litany was sung in procession, the doctors joining in the singing. At the conclusion of the service the congregation sent a message to Queen Alexandra expressing its fervent wishes for his majesty's speedy recovery.

Wild Cheers for the Queen.

The review of the East Indian troops was largely a repetition of Tuesday's function. Queen Alexandra was again the central figure of the proceedings, and the public welcomed the opportunity to testify once more its sympathy with her on account of her recent anxiety, and its congratulations at the continued good news regarding King Edward's condition. The prince of Wales, representing the king, standing by the side of his mother's carriage, took the salute, and the proceedings ended with cheers for the king, led by the duke of Connaught, the Indians drawing their swords and waving them wildly as they joined in the cheering. On returning to the palace the queen appeared at an upper window and took several snap shots of the Indian troops as they marched by on their return to camp.

THEY FIND NOAH'S ARK.

Immense Petrified Vessel on a Hill Thousands of Feet Above the Sea.

Tacoma, Wash., July 4.—W. A. Reid, secretary of the Skagway Y. M. C. A., has returned from the interior of Alaska, where he talked with the Indians, whose earnest statements, he believes fully confirm previous reports that the Indians of the lower Yukon have discovered an immense petrified ship on Porcupine river near the arctic circle and north of Rampart, Alaska. When asked regarding the size the Indians traced its dimensions on the ground, indicating a length of 1,200 feet. They said that everything connected with the boat was petrified. Such Indians as are familiar with the Bible are convinced that the ship is none other than Noah's ark. Reid intends to return to the interior of Alaska this summer, when he will take some Indians and request army officers to detail soldiers to accompany him. The ship lies on a hill thousands of feet above the sea level.

Derailed at a Switch.

Bennington, Vt., July 4.—As a result of the derailing of the Troy-Montreal express on the Rutland road at a switch at Hoosick, N. Y., near this city, about twenty-five people were injured, five seriously.

Arrivals in the United States.

New York, July 4.—Figures prepared by the official statistician of Ellis island, give the number of immigrants landed at this port in the first six months of this year as 316,711.

Fatal Storm in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., July 4. — A terrific storm swept through the southwestern portion of Michigan late yesterday, killing one man, injuring many and doing great damage to property.

Fire Causes Heavy Loss.

Philadelphia, July 4.—Fire caused a loss of about $200,000 in the woolen and cotton yarn district. The losses are covered by insurance. Six firemen were slightly hurt.

Scientist Is Injured.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 4. — Maj. l'Allemand, a member of a French scientific commission which is conducting investigations in Ecuador, fell and broke his leg while taking observations on Mount Cotopaxi, in the Andes.

River on a Rampage.

Auburn, Neb., July 4.—The Nomah river is the highest for nineteen years and is still rising. The whole Nomah valley is flooded and Auburn is cut off from the east and north. Crops on bottom lands are ruined.

HUGE JOKE ON CARRIE.

Illinois Convention Adjourns Ahead of Time to Avoid Her.

Peoria, Ill., July 4.—The Prohibition state convention concluded its session and adjourned at 12 o'clock yesterday, four hours ahead of time, in order to prevent Carrie Nation from having an opportunity of addressing the delegates. Mrs. Nation was much disappointed at not getting here in time to address the convention, but made up for that by visiting several of the prominent saloonkeepers of the city. Last night she made a speech in "Pete" West's variety theater. West entertained Carrie when she was here two years ago after W. E. Burbaker, one of the Prohibitionist leaders of Peoria, had turned her down. Last night she was accorded every courtesy at the theater, the performance being stopped while she was in the hall. No drinks were sold from the time she entered the building until she left it, and the immense theater was packed to suffocation to hear her speak.

TRANSPORT IN DISTRESS.

Loses a Shaft and Was in Imminent Danger of Sinking.

Norfolk, Va., July 4.—Capt. Linn of the collier Leonidas, which returned from St. Vincent last night, says that when nearing port on his return he sighted off Body's island the United States army transport Kearney in distress. She was laden with troops. One of her twin shafts had broken and the loose end had been lost. Water was running into the ship through the gaping shaft sleeve. She was unable to make headway with the other screw and was in danger of driving ashore or sinking. The Leonidas managed to get a hawser to the Kearney and tow her into Hampton Roads.

DYNAMITE A PRIEST.

Illinois Catholic Church Faction Takes Desperate Measure.

Spring Valley, Ill., July 4.—The parochial residence of Rev. Kasmir Ambrosaitis, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic church in this city, was dynamited last night in an attempt to kill the priest. The congregation for some time past has been divided into warring factions and the troubles have been at white heat for several days. Although the pastor was sleeping close to the point where the bomb was discharged he escaped unhurt. There is great excitement among the Lithuanians of the town over the outrage on their pastor.

BROOKE TO RETIRE.

To Become a Civilian After Forty-One Years of Army Life.

New York, July 4.— Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke, in command of the department of the East, is packing up his furniture and books on Governor's island. He will be sixty-four years old on July 21, and will be retired under the age limit. It is understood Gen. MacArthur, now in command at Chicago of the department of the lakes, will take the vacant post. "I shall go to my old home in Montgomery county, near Philadelphia," said Gen. Brooke. "I have seen forty-one years of service and am in the best of health."

TAFT'S NOTE TO VATICAN.

Definite Proposition Ready to Be Presented If Approved.

Rome, July 4.—The civil governor of the Philippine islands, Judge William H. Taft, has cabled Washington the terms of the note to the Vatican on the subject of the disposition of the friars' lands in the islands which was completed here yesterday at the conference held between Gov. Taft, Maj. Porter, of the office of the judge advocate general of the army; Judge James F. Smith of the supreme court of the Philippines, and Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls. If the terms are approved the note will be delivered to-night.

Convict Pleads His Own Case.

Topeka, Kan., July 4.—Ira H. Terrill, a convicted murderer from Oklahoma, serving a sentence in the Kansas penitentiary, appeared in the supreme court yesterday to argue in his own behalf that Kansas has no jurisdiction over him and that he is wrongfully imprisoned. He was in charge of Warden Jewett. Should the supreme court decide in his favor 200 other convicts would be liberated.

Mysterious Jail Delivery.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 4.—A mysterious jail delivery occurred last night when eight prisoners in the county jail escaped. Those left behind say a mirror on the end of a broomstick was used to enable those inside to pick the lock with a long wire through the cell bars. John Kyle, awaiting trial for murder, and several federal prisoners escaped, including two alleged post-office robbers.

Values of Foreign Coins.

Washington, July 4.—The quarterly statement of the changes in the values of foreign coins, issued by the director of the mint for the guidance of collectors of customs, shows a net decrease in the value of foreign silver coins per fine ounce of $0.02807, as compared with the quarter ended March 31, 1902.

President Breaks the Record.

Washington, July 4.—The records at the capitol show that every bill presented to President Roosevelt was signed by him before congress adjourned. This is exceptional, as it generally happens that some measures are overlooked or forgotten in the hurry.

Corbett and McGovern Matched.

St. Louis, July 4.—At a late hour last night Young Corbett signed articles of agreement to box Terry McGovern before the Nutmeg Athletic club of Hartford, Conn., on Aug. 29, for a purse of $14,000. The club already holds McGovern's signature for the battle.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 4.—Alexander Robinson, paying teller, and Harry T. Duke, assistant cashier of the Wells-Fargo bank of this city, were arrested yesterday on a charge of embezzling $60,000 from the funds of the bank.

Unexplained Suicide.

Chicago, July 4.—Sigmun Guthmann, president of the wholesale shoe firm of Guthmann, Carpenter & Telling, and a well known club man, shot and killed himself at his home yesterday. The cause is unexplained.

MET AWFUL DEATH

FIFTEEN PERSONS KILLED AND TWENTY-NINE SEVERELY INJURED.

COLLISION OF ELECTRIC CARS

WHILE DESCENDING AN INCLINE THE CAR GETS BEYOND CONTROL.

CRASHES INTO ASCENDING CAR

DEAD AND WOUNDED HURLED WITH DEBRIS DOWN MOUNTAIN SIDE.

Utica, N. Y., July 6.—On an electric railroad near Gloversdale last night two crowded cars collided, killing fifteen persons and injuring twenty-nine. For a distance of four miles north of Gloversville the Mountain Lake railway, an electric road, connects Gloversville with a picnic ground. Yesterday being the Fourth of July the place was crowded with pleasure seekers. Last night the cars were filled with people coming home from the grounds. At 10:30 o'clock two and a half miles north of Gloversville there was a head-on collision between two heavily loaded cars. The track follows the side of a mountain, the grade being about one thousand feet in four miles. Coming down the incline, the motorman of one car carrying about seventy people, and it acquired a frightful velocity. It was then it crashed into a car ascending the mountain. The impact was terrific, but for a few moments neither car left the track. The ascent of the one being overcome by the rush of the other, the crashed cars with their burden of human victims went down the incline. Then the mass left the rails and the dead and wounded were hurled together with the debris of the wrecked cars down the mountain side.

Lost Control of the Car

At 2:30 o'clock ten bodies, mangled beyond recognition, and many injured had been taken out. The latter are being cared for at the Littaner hospital. It will be impossible for several hours to complete a list of the dead and injured, but there are more women than men.

CHOATE IS CRITICISED.

His Desire That Speeches Be Cut Out Is Disregarded.

London, July 6.—The Fourth of July banquet of the American Society in London was given at the Hotel Cecil last night. There was a remarkable manifestation of sympathy for King Edward in his illness, and incidentally there was some open expressions of displeasure with Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador. Between 400 and 500 Americans were present at the banquet. Having eloquently toasted King Edward, Mr. Choate announced that in consequence of his majesty's grave condition the other usual toasts, with the exception of the one to the president of the United States, would be omitted and that there would be no speechmaking. Sir Francis Grenfell proposed the health of President Roosevelt. After this toast was drunk, Mr. Choate, Mr. White, Sir Francis and the other colonial officials hurried away to don their court dress and to meet the prince of Wales at the Indian office. The other guests of the society remained, and in spite of Mr. Choate's announcement there ensued an unusually bright series of speeches, which were punctured by openly expressed dissatisfaction with the absence of the American ambassador and his action in discountenancing the speeches. This dissatisfaction was voiced by ex-Gov. Hastings of Pennsylvania, who said that he quite disagreed with Mr. Choate. Mr. Hastings said he had only just arrived in London from the United States, but that before he left all the country was rejoicing over the king's recovery, and that, therefore, he thought last night should be one of rejoicing and of speeches to voice that feeling.

FRIGHTFULLY MUTILATED.

Aged Man Has a Terrible Battle With a Robber.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 6. — The body of William A. Reynolds, sixty years old, a nurse at the county house, was found yesterday afternoon terribly bruised, in a wagon box back of a Kent street livery barn. One arm was nearly stripped of flesh from the wrist to the elbow, and it is believed the old man made a terrific struggle against his murderer. Reynolds arrived in the city yesterday morning with considerable money, but no money was found on the body. He was seen entering the alley with a stranger.

WILL TEACH LAW.

Hannis Taylor Elected to a Professorship.

Washington, July 6.—Hannis Taylor, author of notable works on constitutional and international law and formerly United States minister to Spain, has been elected to the chair of English, constitutional and common and international private law and the chair of common jurisprudence at Columbia university. Dr. Taylor will divide with Justices Harlan and Brewer, of the United States supreme court, the teaching of constitutional and international law in that institution.

River Is a Raging Torrent.

Cambridge, Ohio, July 6.—The heavy rains last night turned the river into a torrent and the Pennsylvania railroad bridge north of here, was washed from its abutments. Several street bridges in the city were carried away. Homes were flooded and persons were compelled to take refuge on higher ground.

Joe T. Robinson of Lonoke was nominated by the Democratic convention for congress from the new Sixth district of Arkansas.

ATTACKED BY MOB

COLLIERY MANAGER HAS A NARROW ESCAPE WITH HIS LIFE.

EXCITING FIGHT WITH STRIKERS

THREE HUNDRED ANGRY ITALIANS GIVE HIM A CHASE.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE ARE BUSY

MEN CHARGED WITH INCITING RIOTS AT COAL MINES ARE ARRESTED.

Pittston, Pa., July 4.—C. A. Brown of Wilkesbarre, a Lehigh Valley Coal company manager, who is acting as a deputy at William A. colliery at Connellton, had a narrow escape with his life in an exciting fight with a mob of 300 angry Italians at Duryea, within a mile of this city. At 12:30 in the afternoon yesterday Brown left the stockade at the mine and started for a car to go to Wilkesbarre.

The strikers' picket on a hilltop sighted the man and sent a signal to a score of Italians who were congregated at several points close by. The mob was soon between the deputy and the stockade, and the latter, realizing his perilous position, started on a run down the main street of Duryea with a howling shouting and pelting him with stones. The town was soon a scene of wild excitement. About every hundred yards or so the deputy turned and fired several shots in the air, and as the crowd hesitated, he made an attempt to increase the distance between them. He was finally met by Chief of Police Cosgrove, who placed him under arrest for carrying concealed weapons and shooting firearms. The deputy was armed with four revolvers and 200 rounds of ammunition. Chief Cosgrove, with an assistant, held the crowd at bay with their revolvers as they took their prisoner to the borough jail. At the latter place the deputy made a break to escape, but had not gone a dozen yards until several of the mob struck him down. The police quickly rescued their man and landed him in prison.

Mob Close at His Heels,

Justices Kept Busy.

A number of justices of the peace in Luzerne county were kept busy yesterday giving hearings to men charged with inciting and participating in riots at coal mines. Early yesterday morning Deputy Sheriff N. Eckert brought four men from Freeland, charged with engaging in a riot at that place. The prisoners were taken before Magistrate Pollock for a hearing. The justice's office was crowded to suffocation. A number of deputies testified that the prisoners gathered in the road leading to one of the mines and tried to intimidate some of their fellow employes.

At strike headquarters it was claimed that the arrests were an outrage and that the men should have been given a hearing at their homes. The magistrate, after hearing all the evidence, held the defendants in $500 bail. They could not furnish the bail and had to go to jail.

COLLAPSE OF TUNNEL.

Men Working in the Place Were Caught by the Sliding Earth.

Minerva, Ohio, July 4.—With a rumbling and grinding that could be heard for miles the tunnel on the Lake Erie, Alliance & Wheeling railroad near here caved in its entire length early yesterday. Work was commenced some time ago to uncover and make a cut of the hill, and some of it had been accomplished. Just how many men were caught and injured is not known, but all the doctors from here have been taken to the place. Traffic on the road will be stopped for quite a while as a result of the disaster.

Found Dead on the Road.

Van Wert, Ohio, July 4.—Mrs. M. J. Latchford, wife of the vice president of the Royal Packing Company of Chicago, was found dead yesterday afternoon three miles from town with her body entagled in the lines of a horse and carriage which she had hired for a drive. It is supposed that the horse ran away and that Mrs. Latchford tried to jump from the carriage.

Five Persons Injured.

Springfield, Ill., July 4. — Five persons were injured and others had narrow escapes yesterday when a southbound Illinois Central passenger train ran into an open switch at Madison and collided with a freight train of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad. The passenger locomotive and several freight cars were demolished.

Blow Broke His Neck.

Kansas City, July 4.—Pearl Saulsman of Lee's Summit, Mo., was knocked down and killed and M. J. McGlynn, his companion, was struck twice and seriously hurt last night by and unknown man who attacked them with his fist. Saulsman received a single blow in the face which broke his neck. The assailant escaped.

Murder and Suicide.

Bowie, Tex., July 4.—J. T. Kilgore, at one time chief of police of Chattanooga, Tenn., shot and killed his wife yesterday and then committed suicide. The tragedy occurred while the funeral services of Mr. Kilgore's physician were being held next door. The cause is unknown.

Flood in Topeka.

Topeka, Kan., July 4.—The Kansas river at this point has overflowed its banks and is running over the city park, rising two inches an hour. A telegram from Manhattan, Kan., says the river is rising a foot an hour there.

Killed by a Burglar.

New York, July 4.—Albert C. Latimer, a wealthy stationery dealer of this city who lives in Brooklyn, was fatally shot early yesterday at his home in a struggle with a burglar, who escaped, leaving shoes and hat behind.

PRESIDENT'S VACATION.

Only the Most Pressing Business Will Be Transacted at Oyster Bay.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 8.—In discussing the president's stay at Oyster Bay Secretary Cortelyou yesterday said that there seemed to be considerable misapprehension as to some features of it. He stated that there would be no elaborate office established, and that the only clerical force maintained would consist of two stenographers. Arrangements have about been concluded for its use of two rooms in the bank building for office purposes, and it will be there that the president will transact most of his business when he comes into town. Both the president and his secretary have planned to make their brief holiday as restful as possible, and to that end will transact in Oyster Bay only the most important public business. Everything else will be transmitted to Washington for attention there, either by the regular White House force, or, in cases where other action is required, by the various departments. This is in accordance with the practice which has been followed successfully during previous summers. The president will not receive delegations, and hopes to have all matters intended for him, not of the most pressing importance, submitted by correspondence.

AID FOR STRIKERS.

President Mitchell Will Consult With Prominent Labor Leaders.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 8.—President Mitchell of the miners' union left here at noon yesterday for New York. He slipped out of town so unexpectedly and so quietly that only two or three persons around strike headquarters knew of his departure. As he did not announce he was going to New York there is an element of mystery about his journey, but the Associated Press learned on trustworthy authority that he went to the metropolis for the purpose of meeting leaders of other labor organizations. The purpose of the meeting is not definitely known here, but it is understood to have a direct bearing upon the question of labor organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor assisting the miners' union financially. It is known that some of these organizations, through their national officers, have expressed their willingness to help the mineworkers in this way. Mr. Mitchell, while in New York, may meet the officials of railroad unions or other organizations that can assist his people by other than financial means.

To-day begins the third month of the great strike. There have been rumors and opinions published that certain coal companies would within a few days attempt to start up one or more collieries. The officials of the big companies deny all knowledge of any attempt of their respective companies to start work. They say, however, that the number of men applying for work is growing each week.

BIG FIRE IN CHICAGO

Causes $375,000 Damage and Is Only Subdued After Strenuous Efforts.

Chicago, July 7.—Fire early yesterday destroyed the buildings at 305 and 313 Wabash avenue, causing losses aggregating over $325,000. For a time the fire threatened widespread destruction, as it was only through the most strenuous efforts of the firemen that the flames were prevented from spreading to the department store of Siegel, Cooper & Co., fronting on State street and separated from the burning buildings only by a narrow alley. Much excitement was caused among the guests at the Auditorium hotel, directly across Wabash avenue from the burning buildings, and at the Auditorium Annex. The guests were aroused from their slumbers at 7 o'clock in the morning and the fire had gained such headway that it threatened other buildings in all directions. On the Wabash avenue side the flames poured out into the avenue so fiercely that it was considered unsafe for trains on the elevated loop to pass, and for more than two hours all traffic on the loop was suspended.

PLEASURE YACHT CAPSIZES.

Two Women and a Little Girl Find a Watery Grave.

New York, July 8.—The wife of Capt. Tiemann N. Horn of the Ninety-fifth company, sea coast artillery; his daughter Frances, aged seven, and Miss Alice McMahon of Nyack, N. Y., were drowned in Sandy Hook bay yesterday. Capt. Horn is stationed at Fort Hancock, on Sandy Hook. Capt. Horn had made up a sailing party to go out on the bay in his small cat-rigged yacht Midget. At a point about half a mile off Old Camp Lodock a strong puff of wind caused the sail to gybe, and in a moment the little vessel capsized, throwing all in the water. Capt. Horn and Dr. Waterhouse made every effort to save the women and children, but a strong ebb tide quickly swept them beyond reach and before any other help could be had Mrs. Horn, Frances and Miss McMahon were drowned.

REAL CURES OF CANCER.

No False Alarm This Time Says Clinical Weekly.

Berlin, July 8.—The Clinical Weekly indorses the claims of Prof. Kugel and Dr. Adamkiewicz, who have proved to the satisfaction of the medical fraternity that they cured cancer in a number of cases by the injection of cancroin. The two physicians worked independently of each other. They are of the opinion that cancer is a parasite and fight it as such.

Found Dead in His Bed.

Madison, Wis., July 8. — Willet S. Main, former state senator and brother-in-law of Senator Spooner, was found dead in bed. It is supposed he died from heart failure.

Epidemic of Drownings.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 8.—Two men were drowned here yesterday, making a total of five lives lost here in this way during the past twenty-four hours. Robert Wilson of Detroit was drowned in the St. Joseph river while trying to swim. Ward Kiser was seized with heart failure while bathing.

Three Boys Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., July 8.—Three young boys were drowned in the middle channel at the St. Clair flats by the capsizing of a sailboat.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXI.
A Find.

David did not appear in the least surprised; indeed, he was long since past that emotion. Before the bottom of the mystery was reached a great many more strange things were sure to happen.

"So you bought that cigar case yourself?" he said.

"Indeed, I did," Ruth answered, eagerly. "Of course, I have long known you by name, and I have read pretty well all your tales. I—I liked your work so much."

David was flattered. The shy, sweet admiration of Ruth's eyes touched him.

"And I was very glad to meet you," Ruth went on. "You see, we all liked your stories. And we knew one or two people who had met you, and, gradually, you became quite like a friend of ours—Enid and Chris and myself, you understand. Then, a week or two ago, I came down to Brighton with my uncle to settle all about taking the house here. And I happened to be in Lockhart's, buying something, when you entered and asked to see the cigar case. I recognized you from your photograph, and I was interested. Of course, I thought no more of it at the time, until Enid came up to London and told me all about the synopsis and how strangely the heroine's case in your proposed story was like hers. Enid wondered how you were going to get the girl out of her difficulty, and I jokingly suggested that she had better ask you. She accepted the idea quite seriously, saying that if you had a real, plausible way out of the trouble you might help her. And gradually our scheme was evolved. You were not to know, because of the possible danger to yourself."

"At the hands of Reginald Henson, of course?"

"Yes. Our scheme took a long time, but we got it worked at last. We decided on the telephone, because we thought that we could not be traced that way, never imagining for a moment that you could get the number of your caller over the trunk line. Enid came up to town and worked the telephone, Chris was in No. 218, and I brought the money."

"You placed that cigar case on my doorstep?"

"Yes; I was wound up for anything. It was I whom you saw riding the bicycle through Old Steine; it was I who dropped the card of instructions. It seems a shameful thing to say and do now, but—I—well, I enjoyed it at the time. And I did it for the sake of my friends. Do I look like that sort of a girl, Mr. Steel?"

David glanced into the beautifully-shy eyes, with just the suggestion of laughter in them.

"You look all that is loyal, and good and true!" he exclaimed. "And I don't think I ever admired you quite as much as I do at this moment."

Ruth laughed and looked down. There was something in David's glance that thrilled her and gave her a sense of happiness she would have found it hard to describe.

"I am so glad you do not despise me," she whispered.

"Despise you!" David cried. "Why? If you only knew how I, well, how I loved you! Don't be angry. I mean every word that I say; my feelings for you are as pure as your own heart. If you could care for me as you do for those others I should have a friend; indeed."

"You have made me care for you very much, indeed, Mr. Steel," Ruth whispered.

"Call me David. . . . How nice my plain name sounds from your lips. Ruth and David. But I must hold myself in hand for the present. Still, I am glad you like me."

"Well, you have been so good and kind. We have done you a great deal of injury, and you never blamed us. And you are just the man I have always pictured as the man I could love. . . David!"

"Well, it was only one little kiss, and I'm sure nobody saw us, dear. And, later on, when you are my wife—"

"Don't you think we had better keep to business for the present?" Ruth said, demurely.

"Perhaps. There is one point you must clear up before we go any further. How did you manage to furnish those two big dining rooms exactly alike?"

"Why, the furniture is there. At the top of the house, in a large attic, all the furniture is stored."

"But the agent told me it had been removed."

"He was wrong. You can't expect the agent to recollect everything about a house. The place belonged to a lady, whom we may call Mrs. Margaret Henson, at one time. When the home scheme fell through she sold one house as it was. In the other she stored the furniture. Enid knew all this, of course. We managed to get a latchkey to fit No. 218, and Enid and a man did the rest. Her idea was to keep you in the dark as much as possible. After the interview the furniture was put back again, and there you are."

Diplomatic and clever, and decidedly original, not to say feminine. In the light of recently-acquired knowledge I can quite see why your friends desired to preserve their secret. But they need not have taken all those precautions. Had they written—"

"They dared not. They were fearful as to what would become of the reply."

"But they might have come to me openly."

"Again they dared not, for your sake. You know a great deal, David; but there is darkness, and trouble and wickedness yet that I dare not speak of. And you are in danger. Already Reginald Henson has shown you what he can do."

"And yet he doesn't know everything." David smiled. "He may have stabbed me in the back, but he is quite ignorant as to what advice I gave to Enid Henson, which brings me back to the cigar case. You saw me looking at it in Lockhart's? Go on."

"Yes, I watched you with a great deal of curiosity. Finally, you went off out of the shop, saying that you could not afford to buy the cigar case, and I thought no more of the matter for a time. Then I found out all about your private affairs. Oh, I am ashamed almost, to go on!"

The dainty little face grew crimson; the hand in David's trembled.

"But we were desperate. And, after all, we were doing no harm. It was just then that the idea of the cigar case came into my mind. We knew that if we could only get you to take that money it would only be as a loan. I suggested the gift of the case as a memento of the occasion. I purchased that case with my own money, and I placed it, with its contents, on the doorstep of your house."

"Did you watch it all the time?"

"No, I didn't. But I was satisfied that nobody passed, and I was sufficiently near to hear your door open at the appointed hour. Of course, we had carefully rehearsed the telephone conversation, and I knew exactly what to do."

David sat very thoughtfully for a long time.

"The case must have been changed," he said. "It is very difficult to say how, but there is no other logical solution of the matter. At about half-past twelve on that eventful night, you placed on my doorstep a gun-metal cigar case, mounted in diamonds, that you had purchased from Lockhart's?"

"Yes; and the very one that you admired. Of that I am certain."

"Very well. I take that case with me to 218 Brunswick Square, and I bring it back again. Did I take it with me or not? Anyhow, it was found on the floor beside the body. It never passed out of my possession, to my knowledge. Next day I leave it at the office of Messrs. Mossa and Mack, and it gets in to the hands of the police."

"If I could only see my way to help you."

"The change was made the day you bought the case. By the way, what time was it?"

"I can't tell the exact time," Ruth replied. "It was on the morning of the night of your adventure."

"And you kept it by you all the time."

"Yes. It was in a little box sealed with yellow wax and tied with a yellow string. I went to 219 after I had made the purchase. My uncle was there, and he was using the back sitting room as an office. He had brought a lot of papers with him to go through."

"Ah! Did you put your package down?"

"Just for a moment on the table. But surely my uncle would not—"

"One moment, please. Was anybody with your uncle at the time?

Ruth gave a sudden cry.

"How senseless of me to forget," she cried. "My uncle was down merely for the day, and, as he was very busy, he sent for Reginald Henson to help him. I did not imagine that Mr. Henson would know anything. But even now I cannot see what—"

"Again let me interrupt you. Did you leave the room at all?"

"Yes. It is all coming back to me now. My uncle's medicine was locked up in my bag. He asked me to go for it, and I went, leaving my purchase on the table. It's all coming back to me now. . . . When I returned Mr. Henson was quite alone, as somebody had called to see my uncle. Mr. Henson seemed surprised to see me back so soon, and as I entered he crushed something up into his hand and dropped it into the waste paper basket. But my parcel was quite intact."

"Yellow wax, yellow string and all?"

"Yes, so far as I remember. It was Mr. Henson who reminded my uncle about his medicine."

"And when you were away the change was made. Strange that your uncle should be so friendly with both Henson and Bell. Have they ever met under your roof?"

"No," replied Ruth. "Henson has always alluded to Bell as a lost man. He professes to be deeply sorry for him, but he has declined to meet him. Where are you going?"

"I am going with you to see if we can find anything in the waste paper basket at No. 219. Bell tells me that your servants have instructions to touch no papers, and I know that the back room of your house is used as a kind of office. I want, if possible, to find the paper that Henson tried to hide on the day you bought the cigar case."

The basket proved to be a large one, and was partially filled with letters that had never been opened—begging letters, Ruth said. For half an hour David was engaged in smoothing out crumpled sheets of paper, until at length his search was rewarded. He held a packet of note paper, the usual six sheets, one inside the other, that generally go to correspondence sheets of good quality. It was crushed up, but Steel flattened it out and held it up for Ruth's inspection.

"Now, here is a find!" he cried. "Look at the address in green on the top: '15, Downend Terrace.' Five sheets of my own best note paper, printed especially for myself, in this basket! Originally this was a block of six sheets, but the one has been written upon and the others crushed up like this. Beyond doubt, the paper was stolen from my study. And what's this?"

He held up the thick paper to the light. At the foot of the top sheet was plainly indented in outline the initials, "D. S."

"My own cipher," David went on. "Scrawled in so boldly as to mark the under sheet of paper. Almost invariably I use initials instead of my full name, unless it is quite formal business."

"And what is to be done now?" Ruth asked.

"Find the letter forged over what looks like a genuine cipher," David said, grimly.

CHAPTER XXII.
"The Light That Failed."

Bell followed Dr. Cross into the hospital with a sense of familiar pleasure. The cool, sweet smell of the place, the decorous silence, the order of it all appealed to him strongly. It was as the old war horse who sniffs the battle from afar. And the battle with death was ever a joy to Bell.

"This is all contrary to regulations, of course," he suggested.

"Well, it is," Cross admitted. "But I am an enthusiast, and doesn't often get a chance of chatting with a brilliant, erratic star like yourself. Besides, our man is not in the hospital proper. He is in a kind of annex by my own quarters, and he scoffs the suggestion of being nursed."

Bell nodded, understanding perfectly. He came at length to a brilliantly-lighted room, where a dark man, with an exceedingly high forehead and wonderfully piercing eyes was sitting up in bed. The dark eyes lighted with pleasure as they fell upon Bell's queer, shambling figure and white hair.

"The labor we delight in physics pain," he greeted with a laugh and a groan. "It's worth a badly-twisted shoulder to have the pleasure of seeing Hatherly Bell again. My dear fellow, how are you?"

The voice was low and pleasant. There was no trace of insanity about the speaker. Bell shook the proffered hand. For some little time the conversation proceeded smoothly enough. The stranger was a good talker. His remarks were keen and to the point.

"I hope you will be comfortable here," Bell suggested.

A faint, subtle change came over the other's face.

"All but one thing," he whispered. "Don't make a fuss about it, because Cross is very kind. But I can't stand the electric light. It reminds me of the great tragedy of my life. But for the electric light I should be a free man with a good practice to-day."

"So you are harping on that string again," Bell said coldly. "I fancied that I had argued you out of that. You know perfectly well that it is all imagination, Heritage."

Heritage passed his left hand across his eyes in a confused kind of way.

"When you look at one like that I fancy so," he said. "When I was under your hands I was forgetting all about it. And now it has all come back again. Did I tell you all about it, Cross?"

Bell gave Cross a significant glance, and the latter shook his head.

"Well, it was this way," Heritage began, eagerly. His eyes were gleaming now, his whole aspect was changed. "I was poor and struggling, but I had a grand future before me. There was a patient of mine, a rich man, who had a deadly throat trouble. And he was going to leave me all his money if I cured him. He told me he had made a will to that effect, and he had done so. And I was in direct straits for some ready cash. When I came to operate I used an electric light, a powerful light—you know what I mean. The operation failed and my patient died. The operation failed because the electric light went out at a critical time.

"People said it was a great misfortune for me, because I was on the threshold of a new discovery which would have made my name. Nothing of the kind. I deliberately cut the positive wire of the electric light so that I should fail, and so that my patient should die and I might get all his money at once. And he did die and nobody suspected me—nobody could have found me out. Then I went mad and they put me under Bell's care. I should have got well, only he gave up his practice and drifted into the world again. My good, kind friend Reginald Henson heard of my case; he interested some people in me and placed me where I am at present."

"So Reginald Henson knows all about it?" Bell asked, drily.

"My dear fellow, he is the best friend I have in the world. He was interested in my case. I have gone over it with him a hundred times. I showed him exactly how it was done. And now you know why I loathe the electric light. When it shines in my eyes it maddens me; it brings back to me the recollection of that dreadful time, it causes me to—"

"Heritage," Bell said, sternly, "close your eyes at once, and be silent."

The patient obeyed instantly. He had not forgotten the old habit of obedience. When he opened his eyes again at length he looked around him in a foolish, shame-faced manner.

"I—I am afraid I have been rambling," he muttered. "Pray don't notice me, Bell; if you are as good a fellow as you used to be, come and see me again. I'm tired now."

Bell gave the desired assurance, and he and Cross left the room together.

"Any sort of truth in what he had been saying?" asked the latter.

"Very little," Bell replied. "Heritage is an exceedingly clever fellow who has not yet recovered from a bad breakdown some years ago. I had nearly cured him at one time, but he seems to have lapsed into bad ways again. Some day, when I have time, I shall take up his case once more."

"Did he operate, or try some new throat cure?"

"Exactly. He was on the verge of discovering some way of operating for throat cases with complete success. You can imagine how excited he was over his discovery. Unfortunately the patient he experimented on died under the operation, not because the light went out or any nonsense of that kind, but from failure of the heart's action owing to excitement. Heritage had had no sleep for a fortnight, and he broke down altogether. For months he was really mad, and when his senses came back to him he had that hallucination. Some day it will go, and some day Heritage will take up the dropped threads of his discovery and the world will be all the better for it. And now, will you do me a favor?"

"I will do anything that lies in my power."

"Then be good enough to let me have a peep at the man who was found half-murdered" in my friend David Steel's conservatory. I'm interested in that case."

Cross hesitated for a moment.

"All right," he said. "There can't be any harm in that. Come this way."

Bell strolled along, with the air of a man moved by no more than ordinary curiosity. But from the first he made up his mind not to lose this opportunity. He had not the remotest idea what he expected to find, but he had a pretty good idea that he was on the verge of an important discovery. He came at length to the bedside of the mysterious stranger. The man was lying on his back in a state of coma, his breath came heavily between his parted lips.

Bell bent low, partly to examine the patient, partly to hide his face from Cross. If Bell had made any discovery he kept the fact rigidly to himself.

"Looks very young," he muttered. "But then, he is one of those men who never grow any hair on their faces. Young as he looks, I should judge him to be at least forty-five, and if I am not mistaken, he has heard the chimes at midnight or later. I'm quite satisfied."

"It's more than I am," Cross said, when, at length, he and his visitor were standing outside together. "Look here, Bell, you're a great friend of Steel's, whom I believe to be a very good fellow. I don't want to get him into any harm, but a day or two ago I found this letter in a pocket book in a belt worn by our queer patient. Steel says the fellow is a perfect stranger to him, and I believe that statement. But what about this letter? I ought to have sent it to the police, but I didn't. Read it."

And Cross proceeded to take a letter from his pocket. It was on thick paper; the stamped address given was "15, Downend Terrace." There was no heading, merely the words: "Certainly, with pleasure I shall be home; in fact I am home every night until 12:30, and you may call any time up until then. If you knock quietly on the door I shall hear you.—D. S."

"What do you make of it?" Cross asked.

"It looks as if your patient had called at Steel's house by appointment," Bell admitted. "Here is an invitation, undoubtedly in Steel's handwriting. Subsequently the poor fellow is found in Steel's house, nearly murdered, and yet Steel declares solemnly that the man is a perfect stranger to him. It is a bad business, but I assure you that Steel is the soul of honor. Cross, would you be so good as to let me have that letter for two or three days?"

"Very well," Cross said, after a little hesitation. "Good-night."

Bell went on his way homeward with plenty of food for thought.

He stopped just for a moment to light a cigar.

"Getting towards the light," he muttered, "getting along. The light is not going to fail, after all. I wonder what Reginald Henson would say if he only knew that I had been to the hospital and recognized our mutual friend Van Sneck there!"

CHAPTER XXIII.
Indiscretion.

The expression on Henson's usually benign countenance would have startled such of his friends and admirers as regarded him as a shining light and bright example. The smug satisfaction, the unctious sweetness of the expansive blue eyes were gone. A murderous gleam shone there instead. His lips were set and rigid, the strong hand seemed to be strangling the bed-clothes. It wanted no effort of imagination to picture Henson as the murderer stooping over his prey. The man had discarded his mask altogether.

"Oh!" he said, between his teeth, "you are a clever fellow. You would have made an excellent detective. And so you have found out where Van Sneck is?"

"I have already told you," Littimer said, doggedly.

"How many days have you been hanging about Brighton?"

"Two or three. I came when I heard that Chris was ill. I didn't care to come near the house, at least, not too near, for fear of being seen. But I pumped the doctor. Then he told me that Chris was dead, and I risked it all to see the last of her."

"Yes, yes," Henson said, testily; "but what has this to do with Van Sneck?"

"I was looking for Van Sneck. I found that he had been here. I discovered that he had left his rooms and had not returned to them. Then it occurred to me to try the hospital. I pretended that I was in search of some missing relative, and they showed me three cases of bad accidents, the victims of which had not been identified. And the third was Van Sneck."

Littimer told his story with just the suggestion of triumph in his voice. Henson was watching him with the keenest possible interest.

"Do you know how Van Sneck got there?" he asked.

Littimer nodded. Evidently he had heard most of the story. Henson was silent for some little time. He was working out something in his mind. His smile was not a pleasant one; it was nothing like his bland platform smile, for instance.

"Give me that black book," he said. "Do you know how to work a telephone?"

"I daresay I could learn. It doesn't look hard."

"Well, that is an extension telephone on the table yonder, worked in connection with the main instrument in the library. I like to have my own telephone, as it is of the greatest assistance to me. Turn that handle two or three times and put that receiver to your ear. When the exchange answers tell them to put you on 0,017 Gerrard."

Littimer obeyed, mechanically, but though he rang and rang, no answer came. With a snarling curse Henson dragged himself out of bed and crossed the room with limbs that shook under him.

He twirled the handle around passionately.

"You always were a fool!" he growled, "and you always will be."

Still no reply came. Henson whirled again, but could elicit no response. He kicked the instrument over and danced around it impotently. Littimer had never seen him in such a raging fury before. The language of the man was an outrage, filthy, revolting, profane. No yelling, drunken Hooligan could have been more fluent, more luridly offensive.

"Go on," Littimer said, bitterly. "I like to hear you. I like to hear the smug, plausible Pharisee, the friend of the good and pious, going on like this. I'd give five years of my life to have just a handful of your future constituents here for a moment."

Henson paused suddenly and requested that Littimer should help him into bed.

"I can afford to speak freely before you," he said. "Say a word against me and I'll crush you. Put out a hand to injure me and I'll wipe you off the face of the earth. It's absolutely imperative that I should send an important telephone message to London at once, and here the machine has broken down, and no chance of its being repaired for a day or two. Curse the telephone!"

He lay back on his bed utterly exhausted by his fit of passion. One of the white bandages about his throat had started, and a little stream of blood trickled down his chest. Littimer waited for the next move. He watched the crimson fluid trickle over Henson's sleeping jacket. He could have watched the big scoundrel bleeding to death with the greatest pleasure.

"What was Van Sneck doing here?"

The voice came clear and sharp from the bed. Littimer responded to it as a cowed hound does to a sudden yet not quite unexpected lash from a huntsman's whip. His manliness was of small account when Henson was concerned. For years he had come to heel like this. Yet the question startled him and took him entirely by surprise.

"He was looking for the lost Rembrandt."

But Littimer's surprise was nothing to Henson's amazement. He lay flat on his back so that his face could not be seen. From the expression of it he had obtained a totally unexpected reply to his question. He was so amazed that he had no words for the moment. But his quick intelligence and amazing cunning grasped the possibilities of the situation. Littimer was in possession of information to which he was a stranger. Except in a vague way, he had not the remotest idea what Littimer was talking about. But the younger man must not know that.

"So Van Sneck told you so?" he asked. "What a fool he must have been! And why should he have come seeking for the Rembrandt in Brighton?"

"Because he knows it was here, I suppose."

"It isn't here, because it doesn't exist. The thing was destroyed by accident by the police when they raided Van Sneck's lodgings, years ago."

"Van Sneck told me that he had actually seen the picture in Brighton."

(To be Continued.)

American "Prudishness."

In the face of foreign criticism, and in the face of one's own dismay at existing conditions with regard to divorce, we still sympathize with the retort administered to an alien critic of our people, who had declared, in private conversation, that Americans seemed to be afflicted with the disease of prudishness. The answer was somewhat in these words (the incident occurred several years ago:) "Yes, probably it is true that Americans are prudish; but, considering the revelations that have recently taken place concerning certain circles in London, and considering the condition of a good part of the Parisian stage and of French literature, I, for one, am willing that we should pay that price for the knowledge that, on the whole, Americans are the decentest people, in regard to the relations of the sexes, on the face of the globe."—Century.

"Axed His Pardin."

Ex-Gov. Hoge Tyler of Virginia, whose term expired in December last, was especially generous in granting pardons. From many of them he derived much pleasure in the gratitude of the unfortunates, and often received material for an amusing story. One of these he tells was of a negro from Richmond, convicted of some slight offense, who had convinced the governor that he had been sufficiently punished, and who was, accordingly, granted a pardon. The pardoned man's younger brother heard of his release before the ex-convict could reach home, and rushed to tell their mother the good news.

"Oh! mammie!" he cried. "Bob's dun got out, and 's mos' heah now."

"Bless de Lud!" exclaimed the mother; "but how'd he git out? He ain't dun busted out, is he?"

"Naw, mammie! De guv'nor jist sint down and axed his pardin, an' told him to go home."—New York Times.

Compelled to Give Up Plan.

The Fifth avenue restaurant which started out with the rule that in the room in which meals were served a la carte only men in evening clothes should be served, has been compelled to give up that plan. New Yorkers are patient, and will tolerate almost anything to get what pleases them; but this latest device to gain for a restaurant the badge of exclusiveness was not a success.

The certain failure of the plan was assured through the fact that no other restaurant manager had never made such an effort. So those men who had been in the habit of dining wherever they pleased without being compelled to dress in any particular way, objected so forcibly that the rule was abrogated.—New York Evening Post.

A Case of Vice Versa.

When Archbishop Patrick J. Ryan of Philadelphia, who had been appointed a member of the board of Indian commissioners by the president, was a very young priest, he was stationed at a parish in St. Louis where Archbishop Kendrick presided over the diocese. The latter lived in a very small, unpretentious house, scarcely in keeping with his position in the church.

One day when Father Ryan was passing the house of the archbishop, accompanied by a Chicago priest, who was visiting the Mound City, he pointed out the house as the residence of the head of the local church. The Chicago priest said, with surprise:

"Why, you should see the splendid residence we have in Chicago for our archbishop!"

"Yes," responded Father Ryan, "but you should see the splendid archbishop we have in St. Louis for our residence."—New York Times.

Not College-Bred.

Mrs. Blusterby—Mrs. De Bouster says that no man can be a gentleman unless he has a college education.

Mr. Blusterby—Well, that only proves that women who have college educations are not necessarily ladies.—Puck.

Wu Meets His Match.

A clever New York woman met Minister Wu Ting-fang at a dinner in Washington several days ago, and his excellency said:

"Are you married?"

"Yes."

"Where is your husband?"

"He is in New York, attending to his business."

And then his excellency switched off to impersonal questions. The New York woman, after answering several of them, hesitatingly said:

"You have confused me, your excellency. When I knew I was to meet you, I was prepared to answer the usual set of questions."

"And what are they?" asked Wu Ting-fang, with a suggestion of a smile.

"Why, how old I was; how many children I had; how much my clothes cost, and what my income was."

"And I suppose," said Minister Wu, "if I had asked them, you would have thought me impertinent?"

"Oh, no!" said the New York woman, blandly, "only Chinese, your excellency."—New York Sun.

Mark Twain's Negro Tales.

At a little dinner the other night the statement was made that the colored race had longer memories than white folk. Mark Twain, who was present, agreed with the remark, and, to prove it, told the following:

"Some years ago, when South, I met an old colored man who claimed to have known George Washington, and I asked him if he was in the boat when Washington crossed the Delaware, and he instantly replied: 'Lor', Massa, I steered dat boat.'

"'Well,' said I, 'do you remember when George took the hack at the cherry tree?'

"He looked worried for a minute, and then, with a beaming smile, said:

"'Why, suah, Massa, I done drove dat hack mahself.'"—New York Times.

He Never Worked and Never Will.

There is a New York farmer who has lived seventy years and is sound as a dollar, and yet he has never done a stroke of work since he reached years of discretion.

What a shocking example for the hired man!

It does seem, however, as if he ought to be willing to let them put a ragged coat and a bad hat on him, and then seat him on a high stool in the middle of the cornfield.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

KEEP A BOX HANDY.
Rev. A. L. Tull, Pastor M. E. Church, Ashland, Wis., says: "For severe burns there is nothing like Cole's Carbolisalve. It acts like magic, relieving the pain almost instantly and cures without scars. It is invaluable for skin irritations and sores of all kinds." Be sure and get Cole's. 25 and 50 cents, by all good druggists.

Pussy's Queer Family.

In the barn of W. H. Bunch a Maltese cat is raising a family of three of her own kittens, two black kittens, two fox squirrels and a wild rabbit. The mother of the family is impartial in her devotion to the young ones. The two squirrels are the "black sheep" of the family, and they give the old cat considerable trouble by their friskiness.—Plainview (Ind.) Dispatch to the Indianapolis News.

No Adequate Return.

Prof. George W. Kirchwey, dean of the Columbia Law school, was recently delivering a lecture on "Property."

"I hold," said a student who was being questioned, "that you cannot take a man's property without making adequate return for it."

"I differ with you," Prof. Kirchwey returned, gravely. "I came up here to a reception last night. When I entered I had my hat; when I left someone else had it: there was no return."—New York Times.

Homeseekers' Tickets to the West.

Homeseekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway, to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Valuable Timber.

"I think a good deal of that cane," remarked Senator Lotsmun, exhibiting the walking stick with pardonable pride.

"What are you giving me?" asked Senator Sweetner.

"It's a fact. There was $50,000 appropriated for the improvement of one of the rivers in my state last year. One snag was pulled out of the river, and this cane was made from that snag."—

Value of Wolf Scalps.

A hunter and trapper who has been operating in North Park this winter, has brought in the pelts of four gray wolves. The stockmen of North Park are paying a bounty of $50 for each wolf scalp. The necessity for exterminating the animals is growing greater every year, as the loss to owners of cattle by their depredations is a serious matter, as it is generally estimated that each wolf destroys $500 worth of cattle during his life time.—Ranch and Range.

She Doesn't Approve His Taste.

"Does Mrs. Grigsby allow her husband's friends to smoke in the house?"

"Not if Grigsby furnishes the cigars."

A sitting hen constantly broods over the probable outcome of her mission.

Girls who have no diamonds say it is vulgar to wear them.

WE WANT YOUR TRADE
You can buy of us at wholesale prices and save money. Our 1,000-page catalogue tells the story. We will send it upon receipt of 15 cents. Your neighbors trade with us—why not you?
Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS

FATE.

High in the spaces of sky
  Reigns inaccessible Fate;
Yields she to prayer or to cry?
  Answers she early or late?

Change and rebirth and decay,
  Dawning and darkness and light—
Creatures they are of a day,
  Lost in a pitiless night.

Men are like children who play
  Unknown by an unknown sea;
Centuries vanish away;
  She sits—the eternal She.

Nay; but the Gods are afraid
  Of the hoary Mother's nod;
They are of things that are made,
  She waits—the eternal She.

They have seen dynasties fall
  In ruin of what has been;
Her no upheavals appall—
  Silent, unmoved and serene.

Silent, unmoved and serene
  Reigns in a world uncreate,
Eldest of God and their Queen,
  Featureless, passionate Fate.
—W. L. C. in The Fortnightly Interview.

The Lady of the Valley.

BY JAMES W. KILBURN.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was yellowing fall weather when I came upon the camp, flanked by a cornfield. A woman, whom I had seen upon the road, sat on a stump smoking. A red shawl was knotted under her arms and earrings protruded from her head handkerchief. She knocked the ashes from her pipe, but her eyes,—set deep in a worn face—looked only at the blue line of mountains behind me. I sat upon another stump, and presently she said:

"Will the lady have her fortune told?"

"The last one you told me did not come true," I replied, and was rewarded by seeing that pipe removed with as much surprise as is compatible with one of her stamp. Her eyes were now dark wells, to be fathomed by no light plummet.

"'Tis not always a poor gypsy's fault," she said.

"You told me I should cross the water and marry a dark man, and I've done neither."

"There is water still there, lady, and the dark men are not all dead!"

"Twas at Tivoli Fair," I proceeded, "the day the lion got loose and the keeper was hurt." I paused, remembering all that the day had involved. There had been robbery and arrest, and it was said that the gypsies were implicated. The incident had been forgotten, but not the personality of the woman who had interested me. Suddenly the name came to me, given by the woman at Tivoli.

"Daylia Herne! Don't you remember me, Daylia? And the talk we had?" There was a tense contraction of the whole figure, as though some wild, secret thing were roughly awakened from under the frozen coverlid of winter.

"'Twas not I," she said impurturbably. "I never saw Tivoli Fair in all my mortal life. Some other gypsy, lady! But I can tell the lady a better fortune nor that!" Knowing that directness is not the route by which such creatures arrive I said: "Perhaps so, but I should like to find Daylia Herne again. Have you ever heard of her?"

She knocked the ashes from her pipe and through the veil of defensiveness there seemed to leap a gleam of longing, the longing of an alien to touch once more the beloved soil.

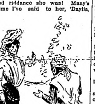
"I've seen her, lady, Oh, yes! A bad lot, she was!"

"I should like to know what became of her," I persisted.

"Hard to tell what becomes of the likes of her!"

"Do you know where Daylia went after Tivoli Fair?" I asked.

"Yes, yes, lady! I'm thinking it was the time Daylia died. She took a hard cold and died, Daylia did, and a good riddance she was! Many's the time I've said to her, 'Daylia, mend your ways!' But, tchk! There's no use talking to such cattle! Tchk, lady, you can't tell 'em! She was a bad lot!"



"Will the lady have her fortune told?"

"Yet she was a good mother," I said.

"Ay, lady, she had a boy, maybe you mind him, Daylia's boy?"

"Yes, he was a beautiful youth. What became of him when she died?"

"He went far away, and was well rid of her, I'm thinking!"

"Then you never saw him afterward?" I persisted. She floundered slightly.

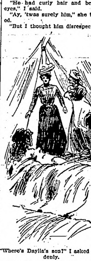
"Oh, yes, lady, he come to be a fine man, he did. The finest you ever seen! And to think you mind the boy!"

It was needless to look at her to know the intense, pent eagerness of every line, as she leaned forward, with a hand upon the stump and her eyes devouring my face.

"He had curly hair and beautiful eyes," I said.

"Ay, 'twas surely him," she breathed.

"But I thought him disrespectful to Daylia, and I feared that he would break her heart some day. She was so good to him."



"Where's Daylia's son?" I asked suddenly.

My companion glanced nervously over her shoulder, and replaced the pipe, with an assumption of bravado. "No, no, lady, she died easy, Daylia did. He was well rid of her, too. He was a fine lad, I tell you!"

I arose and said that I was sorry not to learn more about Daylia. "There was trouble at the Fair that day," I added, "and I feared her son might have been in it." She was on her feet with a spring.

"Who dared tell the lady that lie? It's a lie, a black lie! The boy warn't there! You tell 'em who says it they lies, lady! Daylia's boy warn't there!" Her voice raised, and suddenly the tent flap lifted and a young man came out. He showed the remains of beauty, but his face was now sodden with drunken sleep.

"Shut up, there!" he called, "tell the lady's fortune, can't you? Don't mind her, lady, she's a fool!"

"Ay, I'm just a fool, don't mind me, lady! Let the gypsy tell the lady's fortune," she repeated, her gaze following him. "Maybe you haven't a coat now, lady? There's them that'll want coats over bad this year."

"No, the coat was for Daylia's boy," I said, as I left her.

I took the road skirted by a woods, and presently there came a crackling of underbrush, the red shawl of the gypsy broke through the leaves, and she stood panting beside me.

"Hold on, lady, stop a bit!" she said, with a hand on her heart. "Lady, if I tell you true where Daylia went afore she—she died, mebby you can get me a man's coat, too. It'll be cold after awhile, and there's them that'll need it bad!"

"Tell me all about Daylia Herne," I said. She lowered her voice and came nearer.

"'Twas this way, lady, and you tell it straight to them as said Daylia's boy was there when the robbing was done at Tivoli. He hadn't a mortal thing to do with it, Daylia done it herself! But Daylia, she got caught and locked up for five years for it, and no more'n she ought to've got. That's why she didn't come for the coat, she was locked up in jail, lady, see?"

Perhaps there is a mystery in the air of autumn. At any rate I felt it. I could not then aver that this woman was Daylia Herne, therefore I told her I should have a coat ready for her the next day if she would come after it.

But the next day she did not appear. The young woman I had seen in the camp came, however, and asked if I were the lady who had promised the old woman a coat.

"Because she won't die easy till she gets it, lady," said she.

I offered to accompany her back to the camp and take the coat. We hastened by way of the cornfield, and when we reached the woods, an old man came out of the tent, smoking.

"She's gone," he said, with a backward jerk of the thumb. The young woman took her baby from the wagon where it lay whimpering, and followed me into the tent. A figure lay upon a straw pallet, under a ragged cover, and the face, now stripped of years by death's serenity, awakened my memory unmistakably.

"Where is Daylia's son?" I asked suddenly. The young woman started and stared at me.

"La, lady, how'd you ever know her?" she said. I explained to her, and while walking the baby back and forth, she said: "It can't do her no harm now, nor him neither. She was so fierce about being known lest the law'd get him. The law don't want to be bothered with Jack Herne no more'n we do, I guess. He was around here yesterday getting all he could out of her; 'twas him made her heart get so bad. She wanted that coat for him. You see, Daylia was sort of cousin to pap, and she come and nursed us all through fever last year. Oh, she was the good sort! But a fool about that there son of hers. My man drove him off last night and told him if he ever shows his face here again we'll give him up for the robbing at Tivoli Fair that time. Did you mind that time, lady? 'Twas the time he loosed the lions and got up a robbery, all himself. Oh, he was a whelp! And Daylia Herne, she got him away and let herself be caught, vowing she'd done it, and got herself locked up for five years for it. Daylia Herne locked up five mortal years for stealing, and pap, he's known her to keep a whole camp straight in her time by being so straight herself. Why, she hated stealing like sin, and wouldn't eat stole food, Daylia wouldn't. Since she come out of jail she's hid away, feared lest she'd disgrace him—Daylia Herne disgrace the likes of him!"

Afterwards I went my way marveling over the mysteries that are held from our solving—especially the divine and tragic mystery of motherhood.

HER IDEA OF CHAMOIS.

Servant Used Dinner Material with Which to Wash Windows.

There is a prominent doctor in Germantown who is busy telling a little joke on himself, says the Philadelphia Telegraph. It appears that he employed an Irish servant, who had just arrived from the "ould sod." Starting out one morning, he noticed his office windows were rather dirty, and calling Bridget he instructed her to clean them before he returned. At the same time he told her that he would stop and purchase a new chamois skin and send it home, and with this she was to clean the windows. After he had gone his rounds he returned to his office. Glancing at the windows he found them thickly streaked with grease. He called Bridget, and the following coloquy took place:

"Bridget, didn't I tell you to clean the windows?"

"Yes, sor."

"And didn't I tell you to use the new chamois?"

"Yes, sor."

"Well, did you use it?"

"Sure, I did, sor."

"Let me see the chamois," said the doctor, and Bridget promptly brought it. Then for the first time he learned that his wife had left the house a half hour before he did in the morning and had sent home some tripe. The doctor declines to say what happened to the chamois skin.

Died on Devil's Island.

Only the other day there died on Devil's Island, the French convict settlement off Cayenne, the man who invented and patented the telegraphic system now universally adopted in France, and known as the multiple transmission system. Victor Nimault, twenty years ago, was an electrical employe of the French telegraphic service. In 1871 he discovered and legally protected a system of multiple transmission, on which he had been busied for years. Almost coincidentally a M. Baudot (not an official) invented a somewhat similar apparatus. This M. Baudot, being a personal friend of M. Raynaud, the director of the telegraphic department, found favor with that gentleman, and the Baudot system was finally accepted and universally adopted as the better of the two. Victor Nimault brought action against M. Baudot and M. Raynaud, and, after losing lawsuit after lawsuit, fired at and mortally wounded M. Raynaud. The unhappy inventor was tried, sentenced to imprisonment for life, and in due course was sent out to Cayenne. Twenty years having elapsed, he was recently pardoned by President Loubet. A subscription made by his friends in France left by the same boat which took out his pardon. But it arrived too late, for Victor Nimault, who had been ill for some time, died the day before port was made. The irony of it all is that poor Nimault's system has been in use in France for many years now; for, after he was sentenced, it was found to be preferable to the one adopted and approved by Raynaud, the then director of the telegraphic department.

Democracy of Japan's Emperor.

There is no barbaric splendor about his majesty's court, nor does he insist on fantastic forms of homage. He is just a plain individual. His guests he receives standing, and he enters freely into conversation with all. There is scarcely a subject that does not interest him or one on which he is not well informed. A delightful host, it is his custom to surround himself with clever men—men who are the shining lights of their professions. Engineers, artists, musicians, writers, soldiers, scientists—every class of person who has won distinction is welcome to the royal table, for it is one of the characteristics of his majesty that in the distribution of his favors he is thoroughly impartial. Twice a year he and the empress give a large garden party, and on these occasions his majesty makes himself personally known to as many persons as possible.—Exchange.

Temperance and Moisture.

"Whatever the temperance advocate may hold," says Prof. Woodwort, of Lewis institute, Chicago, "his map of moisture is the temperance map of the United States. "In effect, alcohol in the system is a drier. In the wet atmosphere, where the human system has moisture to spare, the effect of drink is scarcely noticeable. You seldom see a native of Florida intoxicated.

"But in the arid regions of the West, where we have the other atmospheric extreme, liquor produces something like madness. Its effect on the system is such as is unknown to the low-lying coast country."—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Fruit of the Mahaleb Cherry.

In connection with the raising of cherry trees, as a stock on which popular varieties are budded, the European Mahaleb cherry is pretty well known in the United States; but as a fruiting tree it is almost a stranger to almost every person. Possessing nothing but accident—a scion lost or a stray seed—permits a plant to grow to a fruiting stage. The fruit is dark black, extremely small, and borne very abundantly on the trees. Even with its plentifulness, the picking would prove tedious after being accustomed to larger fruit. It is of comparatively dwarf growth, and seems to thrive best in rather heavy soil, and is most in favor as a stock for planting in the Central States. It is nearly always used for sour varieties.—Meehan's Magazine.

Saved the Baby.

New Providence, Iowa, July 7th.—Little Helen Moon, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Moon of this place, had a narrow escape from death.

Her mother noticed she seemed to be very clumsy and complained when she was rocked. Her limbs and face were bloated badly.

A doctor was summoned, but she got no better. He said she had Kidney Trouble in the worst form.

Two other doctors were called in, and they agreed that there was very little, if any, hope. She was bloated all over, her eyes being completely closed and her abdomen bloated until it was purple.

They bought six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and she commenced to improve at once. She had used nine boxes before the dropsy was all gone. The treatment was continued and now she is as well as ever.

Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved the little one's life.

As They See Us.

"Mamma," asked the young chimpanzee, as it gazed through the bars at the curious throng, "did we descend from man?"

"Quite likely, my son," she replied; "but that should not discourage you in making an effort to be an improvement over your ancestors."—Ohio State Journal.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

In the Melee.

Attorney—Did you see the plaintiff strike the defendant?

Witness—Oi did, sor.

Attorney—And was the assault committed with malice aforethought?

Witness—No, sor; it wor committed wid a mallet behind the ear.—Judge.

STOP THAT RACKING COUGH
and avoid danger of consumption and pneumonia by promptly taking Cole's Cough Cure. It tastes good and is good. Every bottle guaranteed. 25 and 50 cents, by all good druggists.

Pegasus Has His Opportunity.

"His poetry," the public complained, "smells of the lamp."

At this Pegasus reverted to his equine side and indulged in a horse-laugh.

"I suppose it's the odor of that gasoline vehicle he tied up to after I bucked and threw him," whinnied the fabled steed.—Automobile Magazine.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points west, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip.

His Treatment.

The last man is an essential part of God's great plan.

Learn to be contented, and you will know how to be rich.

Care is the stumbling block in the pathway of happiness.

Loving deeds are the best seeds; they bear in all soils.

Stops the Cough and Works Off the Cold
Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. Price 25c.

Some women will stand in front of a soda water fountain and read the entire list of flavors and then call for sarsaparilla.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

With some people prosperity is the advance agent of adversity.

The farm and the garden are the best gold diggings.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

The Women Also Recommend Peruna

Miss Blanch Grey, 174 Alabama street, Memphis, Tenn., a society woman of Memphis, writes:

"To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Peruna. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving away, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanch Grey.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began last year to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh; and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure."

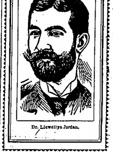
Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman on the subject of catarrh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.



Dr. Llewellyn Jordan.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

A Locomotive Brought Him.

At the reception given by the Judeans to Prof. Solomon Schechter, Dr. G. Solis Cohen of Philadelphia, in responding to one of the toasts, said that some of those present had been brought to the reception by one motive and some by another.

"Confession is good for the soul, they say. Now, candidly, what motive brought you?" asked Dr. Leipziger.

"A locomotive," responded Dr. Cohen.

Round Trip Homeseekers' Excursions to the West.

The Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets to Manitoba, Montana, Washington and all points in the West, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, at rate of about one fare for the round trip.

Information from all Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Viewing With Alarm.

"Esmeralda," asked her father, with some sternness, "what was that young congressman's business here last night?"

"We were merely holding a caucus, papa," she replied.

"H'h!" he rejoined, glancing at something that sparkled on one of her shapely fingers, "and you adopted a ringing resolution, did you?"—Chicago Tribune.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Willis J. Frank, Alcester, S. D., hay rack lifter; James W. Rickey, Minneapolis, Minn., water wheel penstock constructions; Joseph Suchy, Littleheart, N. D., gear transmission; Cyrus C. Webster, Minneapolis, Minn., strip metal casting machine.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Appalled.

Doctor—I'm slightly in doubt as to whether yours is a constitutional disease or not.

Patient—For heaven's sake, doctor, have I got to go to the expense of appealing to the United States supreme court to find out whether it is or not?—Richmond Dispatch.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75 cents

A Business Woman.

Olivia—Didn't you ever have a proposal, Viola?

Viola (gloomily)—Yes—a man once asked me to marry him, but I forgot myself, and told him I hadn't time.—Detroit Free Press.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—Mrs. Thos. Robbins, Maple Street, Norwich, N. Y., Feb. 17, 1900.

To Continue the Dispute.

"I wonder how we came to marry each other."

"They were unable to decide which was the better ping-pong player."—Exchange.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, Specialist,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

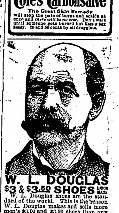
Don't ring the bell of prayer and run away; wait.

Only a good man can see good things in others.

St. John's University,
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
SPRAINS & BRUISES
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

Cole's Carbolisalve
The Great Skin Remedy
will stop the pain of burns and scalds at once and there will be no scar. Don't wait until someone gets burned but keep a box handy. 25 and 50 cents by all druggists.



W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 & $3.50 SHOES UNION MADE
W. L. Douglas shoes are the standard of the world. This is the reason W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers.
W. L. DOUGLAS $4 SHOES CANNOT BE EXCELLED.
1899 sales, 1st 6 months, $1,103,820 | 1902 sales, 1st 6 months, $2,340,000
Best imported and American leathers, Heyl's Patent Calf, Enamel, Box Calf, Calf, Vici Kid, Corona Colt, Nat. Kangaroo. Fast Color Eyelets used.
Caution! The genuine have W. L. DOUGLAS name and price stamped on bottom.
Shoes by mail, 25c. extra. Illus. Catalog free.
W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

Good Things to Eat
From Libby's famous hygienic kitchens, where purity prevails. All meats used in LIBBY'S
Natural Flavor
Food Products
are U. S. Government Inspected. The wholesomeness and goodness of every article is preserved in its preparation for your convenience, in the handy key-opening cans. A supply on your pantry shelves enables you to have always at hand the essentials to the very best meals. The little book, "How to Make Good Things to Eat," tells all about them—sent free. Libby's Atlas of the World, mailed free for 10 cents postage.
LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, CHICAGO.

IF CLAIMANTS FOR PENSION write to NATHAN BICKFORD, Washington, D. C., they will receive quick replies. B. 5th N. H. Vols. Staff 20th Corps. Prosecuting Claims since 1878.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

DEFECT VI PAGE

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

S. A. Swanson, of Red Lake Falls, will be the candidate of the Populist party for senator in this district. J. C. Norby, of Norman county, has withdrawn from the race.

While the Crookston newspapers are endeavoring to make the people believe that all are harmoniously supporting Steenerson for congress in Polk county, the very opposite is the case.

Albert Berg will again be a candidate for representative in the district composed of Roseau, Kitson and Marshall. The indications are that there will be a bitter fight for legislative nominees on the Republican ticket up there.

For the first time in its history, Red Lake county will undoubtedly give majorities to the Republican state and congressional nominees this year. And there is no reason why the Republican county ticket should not win, providing good men are nominated.

H. E. Ives, until recently chairman of the Populist county committee, says in the last week's issue of his paper, the St. Hilaire Spectator:

"Governor Van Sant has proved himself a competent executive during the past two years and his election looks like an assured fact."

The statement is often made by Crookston people that Halvor Steenerson will get as many votes as Grindeland in the counties of Roseau and Kitson. A well informed gentleman of that section informed the News that while Grindeland will carry both counties, Valentine will secure a larger vote there than Steenerson.

Ole J. Johnson, of Wyandotte, will again be a candidate for county commissioner of the Republican ticket from the St. Hilaire district. Mr. Johnson has been a county commissioner since the organization of Red Lake county, and has made a valuable member of the board. He can accomplish much more than a new man, and will undoubtedly be elected without opposition.

Town Tales.

D. B. Bakke was over to Warren last week.

Reduced prices in millinery at Miss Remmem's

Mrs. Cunningham returned to this city last week.

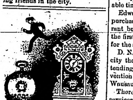
B. A. Young was down to Red Lake Falls Monday.

James Meehan was down to Red Lake Falls Monday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hodek Sunday.

Joseph Smith, of Crookston, spent the Fourth in the city.

Chas. Hoar and wife are visiting friends in the city.



FROM TIME TO TIME something has been said here about our clocks. This is one of the times when a few more words will be appropriate.

Time is cheap, so to speak. We are offering a lot of excellent CLOCKS at very reasonable prices. Every kind of clock is here, from the hustling little alarm to the dignified and handsome marbleized Iron Mantle clock with its musical Cathedral Gong.

All these clocks are made in the foremost factories and are accurate time keepers.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

The Gun Club received its new trap the first of the week.

Perl W. Mabey was down to Crookston the first of the week.

J. J. Weeks was a Red Lake Falls visitor the first of the week.

H. W. Lee left yesterday for Wauke to look after a lame duck.

Geo. F. Whitcomb came down from Rollis the first of the week.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

City Attorney McIntyre transacted business in Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Mrs. W. A. Murphy went to Red Lake Falls yesterday to visit relatives.

Will Kratka was over from Grand Forks last week to spend the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Dobner were down to Crookston the first of the week.

Miss Addie Williams, the Rollis school teacher, was in the city the first of the week.

James McMahon left the first of the week for Warren where he will open up a butcher shop.

F. H. Kratka left Tuesday for Grand rapids to settle up the estate of his sister, Mrs. Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dobner who had been visiting their sons, returned to Lake city on Monday.

E. V. Myrsven, who has been at Headrum during the past few weeks, returned to this city last week.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

A. L. Himle is going to have one of the largest stores in Eastern Marshall county in the town of Cedar.

James Corrigan, of Stevens Point, Wis., was in the city the first of the week visiting old friends.

Chris Amunson and R. B. Vining left the first of the week for their claims in the Red Lake country.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

The brick work on the new school house was commenced the first of the week and it will be completed in a few weeks.

The Ladies Aid of the Norwegian Lutheran Synod Church will meet will meet with Mrs. John Nilson. All invited to attend.

Mrs. C. E. Winslow and Mrs. C. A. Fuller entertained a company of lady friends Tuesday afternoon at the home of the former.

Joe and Anton Hollan returned to this city last week from Southern Minnesota where they had been visiting their father, who is quite ill.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet July 18 at 2:30 P. M. at Mrs Douglas. All are requested to be present.

A party of young folks drove over to Warren last Saturday, returning Sunday evening. They all report having a very enjoyable time.

Edward Schultz, of Germantown, purchased the old Newman restaurant building on LaBree avenue the first of the week paying $2000 for the same.

D. N. Winton returned to this city the first of the week from attending the Republican state convention and visiting friends at Wausau, Wis.

There will be Presbyterian services at the tent next Sunday. Sunday school at 12 o'clock noon. Evening preaching at 8 o'clock. No morning service.

"Canada Bill" was arrested last Saturday for being drunk and disorderly. He broke out of jail Sunday morning and when last seen was going west.

Will Ford took a crew of men up river the first of the week to bring a log drive down for the St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls Lumber company.

The parochial school of the Norwegian Lutheran Synod church will commence Monday July 14th at 9 o'clock a. m. in the church. Send your children.

Peter H. Swanson, of Numedal, and Miss Ella Peterson of Bray will be married today. Both are popular young people and have many friends in this section.

Harold Campbell, of the state board of control, was in the city Tuesday inspecting the city jail. It is understood that he will not make a favorable report of the jail.

There will be no services in the Norwegian Lutheran Synod church next Sunday but the congregation is instead invited to participate in the dedication services of the German Lutheran church on the east side.

The residents of Meehan's addition are very desirous of having it annexed to the city of Thief River Falls, and they are making arrangements to that end. It should have been annexed to the city long ago.

J. L. Johnson, of St. Hilaire, was in the city the first of the week. Two years ago Mr. Johnson was the Populist nominee for judge of probate, but this year he will be found with the Republican party.

The members of the Gun Club and others interested will shoot clay pigeons Sunday afternoon for the $20 purse which was put up by the Fourth of July committee. The purse will be divided into three prizes and is free for all.

Mrs. Mossefin returned from Thief River Falls last night where she has been for a two weeks' visit with her son, Martin. She reports a pleasant visit and she says that Martin is doing well, just such a report as his Crookston friends would naturally expect from him. —Crookston Journal, July 8.

A bicycle was stolen from Andrew Bjerkholt last week and sold to Egley & Dixon, the bicycle dealers. The owner has recovered the wheel, but Egley & Dixon have as yet been unable to discover the thief who sold it to them.

A. E. Abraham, who recently purchased a lot on Main avenue south of the First State bank, arrived in the city Tuesday and at once commenced the erection of a building. He will open up a general store in the near future.

The Wooodman lodge did not take any action in the matter of building at the meeting held last evening, but the matter will be considered this evening and some action probably taken. The lodge is one of the strongest in the city and if they decide to erect a building it will be one of which the city will be proud.

Bill Thunder, a full blood Indian from the Red Lake reservation, has been arrested and is now in jail at Bemidji awaiting prelimary examination on the charge of murder. He is accused of the murder of a squaw, and the murder is said to have been committed recently outside of the reservation in a squaw house of ill-fame conducted by a Bemidji white man.

The German Evangelicial Lutheran church on the east side will be dedicated next Sunday. There will be services in the German Norwegian and English languages. The German dedication sermon will be deliverd by Rev. Val Kem from Wylie at 10 a. m. The Norwegian sermon by Rev. A. T. Aastad at 2:30 p. m. in the grove opposite the church and the English sermon by Rev. Starck from Ada Minn.

At a recent revival meeting in southern Minnesota, a merchant arose and said that he was the wickedest man in town, and had given his customers short weight for years. "I'd go to hell if I should die tonight," he continued. Immediately an old deacon who is in the grocery business started a hymn, "If you get there before I do, look out for I am coming too." And then the grocer wondered why every one laughed.

Contractor Hansen will have the grading of the road north of this city completed this week, and will then put on the gravel. It is said that when the road is completed it will be one of the finest ever built in this section of the state, and will be a model to pattern after. Hansen knows how to build a good road and we hope he finds steady employment in this line for many years to come. We certainly need a whole lot of work in this direction.

The school board has commenced proceedings to condemn three lots in the block on which the new school house is being erected. The lots belong to Matt Larson and he asks $750, while the highest offer that the school board would make is $240. C. G. Rapp and Daniel Patterson, of St. Hilaire, and Wm. Findeisen, of Red Lake Falls, have beed appointed by the court as appraisers. When the title to these three lots are secured the school board will own the entire block.

Advertised Letters.

Bakke, Casper
Gunderson, Thom
Hauer (or Huller) Gust
Hoymm, Marie O.
McCormack, Ben
Stenarude, Miss Mary
Strand, Paul
Williams, Miss Nellie Augusta, Miss

Gregge, Timothy
Gough, Joseph
Hansen, Christ
Lee, Oliver
Sanders, Oscar J.
Suteran, Ida
Svenson, John
Watenberg

Council Proceedings.

July 3, 1902.

Regular meeting of City Council, July 3, 1902, C. L. Dobner, presiding.

Alderman present C. L. Dobner Chas. A. Robbecke S. F. Staples and Matt Barzen. Absent D. N. Winton.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

Reported paid to City Treasury since last meeting.

For cemetary lots by Frank Tilton, Sexton	$10 00
For fines by H. M. Hanson,	12 00
For Electric Light Department by Leonard Peterson	83 00

Moved by Alderman Robbecke, seconded by alderman Staples, that the Mayor and clerk execute deeds to cemetary lots as follows:

Lot 77 of block 2 in favor of D. P. O'Neil.

Lot 78 of block 2 in favor of David E. Kendrich.

Lot 80 of block 2 in favor of Ole Simonson. Motion adopted.

Bond of A. O. Hanson, for contract on road approved.

Moved by Alderman Staples, seconded by Alderman Barzen, that the city contribute $75.00 for the 4th of July Celebration. Motion adopted.

Bills were audited and allowed as follows:

Edward Peterson, Professional service regarding water power	120 00
Mike Shmitz, for street work	6 25
T. Bondelle, one day brushing and ditching	1 50
Joseph Hollan, for street	9 38
Ole Hammerseth, for street work	16 12
Jas. Novak, for street work	9 75
S. Lesson, for street work	4 50
O. Olson, for street work	24 75
F. J. Mays, for street work	7 13
D. Douglas, for street work	12 91
Karl Olson, for street work	21 25
A. O. Bjorseth, for street work	11 02
Lars Backe, cash paid for city	6 11
Ole Bakken for Culvert work	5 00
Allen Bendle, for street work	10 50
Fire Department expenses	150 00
Albert Voss, for street work	30 00
K. Rennestead, for street work	13 50
Stephen Waring for brushing and ditching	25 00
Frank Tilton, for cemetary work	7 50
N. W. Tarrant, for court fees	4 10
Ole Elling o. l. for street work	1 50
Adam Lucy, for keeping bridge over Creek	8 00
Wm. Bulman, for street work	9 00
W. C. Smiley, for surveying	27 10
A. L. Gillette, assistant city engineering work	1 10
Geo. Perkins, assistant city engineering work	9 00
J. W. Eastman, for printing	12 00
Wesley Evans, freight and draying	9 25
Julius Olson, for street work	16 12
F. J. Cernousek, for comm. work	22 50
Oliver Johnsrud, for street work	20 62
E. J. Foss, for street work	75
C. C. Jackson & Co. for sundries	7 25
Ed. Yanke, for street work	1 50
Halegson & Burns, for scrapers	12 00

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

For Sale at C. C. Jackson & Co.

Hay Rakes for 12.00 to 21.00
14 inch Brush Breaking Plow	$14.00
16 inch Brush Breaking Plow	15.25
1 Fuller Johnson Gang Plow 14 inch	48.00
1 J. T. Case, Sulky Breaker and Cross plow	45.00
14 inch cross plow	12.50
16 inch cross plow	13.50
1 only 18 cross plow	14.00
1 only 1½ inch Lumber wagon	40.00
1 open Concord Buggy	45.00
1 open Road Buggy	33.00

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgean.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m.

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 89.
Office first door north of News building.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
j12j17 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 25th 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 14th, 1902, viz: ANTON HOREJSH, Jr., H. E. 904, Chippewa Series, for the S½ NE¼ and N½ SE¼, Sec. 22, Tp. 155 N., of R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John Kratochville, of Germantown, Minn.
Henry Roller, of Germantown, Minn.
Joseph Vakoc, of Germantown, Minn.
Charles Klockman, of Germantown, Minn.

july 3 aug7 SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.

HONEST BEER

Since 1865 Hamm's Beer has been honestly brewed by the old German method—a purely natural process.

Honest brewing has increased its sale 500 per cent in five years and the output is now 250,000 barrels yearly.

If you want a pure, wholesome beverage, order

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO. St. Paul, Minn.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris, 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES
REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.
Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
- - Proprietors of - -
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum, Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: WILLIAM J. McKINLEY, H. E. 17196, for the NE¼, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John A. Sorum, of Sorum, Minn.
Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum Minn.

June 5 july 10 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 31, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 22nd 1902, viz: LEWIS A. NELSON, H. E. 2852, Chippewa Series, for the SW¼, Sec. 25 Tp. 155 N., R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Pederson, of Germantown, Minn.
Peder Rud, of Germantown, Minn.
Tohr Skaar, of Germantown, Minn.
Samuel Dangerfield, Germantown, Minn.

June 5 july 10 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 2nd 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Sorum Minn., on July 23rd, 1902, viz: JOHN A. SORUM, H. E. 17132, for the E½ SW¼ and Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 31, Tp. 156 N., R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Matheas J. Lunke, of Sorum, Minn.
William J. McKinley, of Sorum, Minn.
Lars Runnestrand, of Sorum, Minn.
Hans Knudson, of Sorum, Minn.

June 5 6t july 10 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on July 26, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 2317, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Nordhagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Setnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

June 12 july 17 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: AUTHUR DEVINE, H. E. 2819 Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 30, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thrond P. Hamre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Roach, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patric Commerford, of Thief River F., Minn.
Michael Sims, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

June 26 july 31 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. 890, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klungnes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Telef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

June 26 july 31 SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1008, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼ Sec. 24, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 32, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 25, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Fabelinden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Saave Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

June 19 6t july 17 A. F. GEORGE,
Receiver.

C. Chelin has opened up a board house in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin

---

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN. THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1902. NUMBER 28

BAD FIRE.

Lumber Company's Barn at St. Hilaire.

Last Saturday at noon, the large barn of the Crookston Lumber Company at St. Hilaire was totally destroyed by fire, together with a large amount of feed and nineteen head of horses, including a fine driving team. The fire started at noon and is believed to have caught from a spark from the burner of the mill, the spark falling on the hay in the barn. The wind was blowing away from the mill else that might also have been lost. The good work of the St. Hilaire fire department and that of employes of the mill saved all adjoining buildings.

As the fire caught at noon, all the horses were in the barn feeding. A large number of them were gotten out. The barn was a big one, filled with highly inflamable material and it is a wonder that further loss was prevented. Nothing but the most strenous effort on the part of the St. Hilaire fire department prevented a general fire.

The loss on the building and contents is variously estimated at from $8,000 to $12,000.

Subscribe for The News.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store.

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

STATE COURTS.

Will Try the Moose Dung Section Case.

The following from the Minneapolis Journal is of local interest:

The court discharges a writ of prohibition in the Bem-way-binness suit, and holds that the district court of Red Lake county has authority to try the cases, although the plaintiffs are tribal Indians. They are suing for an individual five-sixths of the estate of Mo-si-moh, the Chippewa chief who was granted 640 acres at the mouth of Thief river. This is now part of the the townsite of Thief River Falls. It was seized by Mon-si-moh the younger and sold to the present owners. The other heirs bring suit for their share.

The defendants removed the action to the United States circuit court on the ground that the plaintiffs were wards of the federal government. The circuit court remanded it, and then a writ of prohibition was sued out in the supreme court's want of jurisdiction. This is dismissed and the case goes to trial. The court says in the syllabus:

Bem-way-bin ness et al., respondents, vs Ezra Eshelby et al., appellants.

"First—A tribal Indian whether he be a citizen or not may maintain an action in the courts of this state to repress any wrong committed outside the limits of his reservation against his person or property.

"Second—The plaintiffs are tribal Indians living on their reservation. They brought an action in the district court of the county of Red Lake to recover the possession of an undivided interest in a section of land lying outside of any Indian reservation and which is in possession of citizens of this state. Held, that the district court has jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action and of the parties thereto. Writ and order discharged.

—Start, C. J.

The case will be appealed to the U. S. supreme court.

Notice of Annual School Meeting

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting in Independent School District No. 18 in Red Lake county, Minnesota, for the Election of Officers and the transaction of other business required by law at the annual meeting, will be held in the East Hall of the City Hall building on the 19th day of July, 1902, at 7 o'clock p. m.

Officers to be elected—Two directors for a term of three years. Also vacancy of director for one year.

Special business—Shall the Board of Education be authorized to sell school lots in block 29, original townsite?

Dated this 3rd day of July, 1902.

LARS BACKE,
District Clerk.

Twine Going Up.

The harvest season in the Red River valley is now rapidly approaching. The supply of twine to be used during the coming harvest is a matter of considerable importance just now and the wholesale dealers are all doing some great figuring on the amount which will be needed to supply the demand of the vast territory. This is calculated on a close estimate of the acreage of wheat, oats and other grains on which twine is used, together with estimated yields from the crop outlook and the probable condition of the straw. As a result of the continued rains and rapid growing conditions of the past month, it is now estimated that there will be an unusally heavy stand of straw this year, requiring a much larger amount of twine than would be the case where continued dry weather.

The price of twine has been advancing at the rate of half a cent a week for a month past and now ranges from 13 to 16 cents per pound at wholesale.

Presbyterian Church.

The trustees of the Presbyterian church held a meeting last Saturday afternoon and accepted the plans of the church to be built here this year. The building will be built by contract and will cost in the neighborhood of $25000. The main auditorium will have a seating capacity of 250, and a gymnasium will be located in the basement. Chas. R. Aldrich is the architect.

6 to 7.

The second base ball nine of this city was down to Red Lake Falls Sunday and played a game with the club in that place, being defeated by the score of 6 to 7. A number from this city went down to witness the game and all say it was one of the most interesting of the season.

Saturday.

Three members of the school board of this district are to be elected Saturday evening. The election will be held at the city hall. Two of the members are to serve for three years and one for one year.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

.15 A. M.	Leaving	Crookston	Ar.	7.15 P. M.
.32 A. M.	"	Shirley	"	6.55 P. M.
.51 "	"	Ives	"	6.30 "
10.00 "	"	Wylie	"	6.15 "
10.50 "	"	St. Hilaire	"	5.55 "
10.50 "	Arrive	Thief River F.	Lv	5.35 "
12.16 P. M.	"	Red Lake F.	"	4.15 "

Connections are made at Crookston for all points on the Great Northern system.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgean.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank.

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m.

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 89.
Office first door north of News building.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES
REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.
Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
- - Proprietors of - -
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Absolutely Pure

Pure water from artesian wells a thousand feet in depth is used in brewing Hamm's Beer.

Analysis proves that this water is perfectly pure, yet it is filtered before use.

This is one of the details of Honest Brewing that makes Hamm's Beer absolutely pure. Call for

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO., St. Paul, Minn.

THE BRICK STORE.

Telephone No. 19.

Call on or telephone us for that summer dress you intend to buy.

We have a large assortment of summer dress goods and applique trimmings which we are selling at greatly reduced prices.

If this interests you, you should loose no time in making your selection for you know those here first will have the most to select from.

Every Week Adds To the Ability of This Store

to do better the duty it undertakes—which duty is: to win through merit, the friendship and patronage of every family in Thief River Falls, and vicinity, to become the acknowledged shoppers' headquarters, the supply center of all those who require honest, dependable merchandise.

Each past week's experience teaches how to do better.

New ideas, inventions, new systems, all go toward making each week better than any of its predecessors.

Another Point, And An Important One, our prices are Right.

Call on us and let us save you money.

Central Mercantile Company.

C. L. DOBNER, President. H. G. DOBNER, Cashier. S. F. STAPLES, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - -	$10,000
Surplus and contingent fund,	8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of

Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand Pride of the North Flour made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure—some impure—some no earthly good—some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis. & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE,
REAL ESTATE,
FARM LOANS
and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Subscribe for the News.

ON THE DIAMOND

SCORES OF THE DAY'S GAMES IN THE THREE BIG LEAGUES.

ST. PAUL DEFEATS THE BREWERS

MINNEAPOLIS, LOUISVILLE AND INDIANAPOLIS ARE ALSO WINNERS.

RESULTS OF GAMES IN THE EAST

WASHINGTON, BOSTON, CHICAGO AND CLEVELAND ARE WINNERS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Louisville	49	20	.710	Kan. City	33	38	.465
Ind'polis	45	21	.682	Milwaukee	29	40	.420
St. Paul	40	30	.571	Minneap'lis	27	42	.391
Columbus	34	37	.479	Toledo	22	46	.324

At St. Paul.

St. Paul.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Milw'kee.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Cogan lf	2	0	0	0	Hallman rf	2	1	0	0
Dillard 3b	0	2	1	0	Clingman ss	1	0	4	0
Shannon cf	1	1	0	1	Dungan lf	1	1	0	0
Kelley 1b	0	13	1	0	McBride cf	1	3	1	0
Lumley rf	3	1	0	0	Bunkle 1b	1	13	1	0
Huggins 2b	1	5	3	1	Sherbeck 2b	0	0	4	0
Hurley c	1	2	1	0	McAnd'ws 3b	1	5	3	1
Lynch ss	0	2	3	1	Cross c	1	1	1	0
Ferguson p	1	1	0	0	McMackin p	0	0	1	0
Totals	9	27	13	3	Totals	8	24	13	1

St. Paul ....0 2 1 0 1 0 0 1 x—5
Milwaukee ......0 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0—3

Earned runs—St. Paul 3, Milwaukee 2. Two-base hit—Clingman. Three-base hit—Lumley. Home run—Cogan. Sacrifice hits—Shannon, Huggins. Stolen base—Shalbeck. First base on balls—Off McMackin 1. First base on errors—St. Paul 1, Milwaukee 3. Hit by pitcher—By McMackin, Dillard. Left on bases—St. Paul 5, Milwaukee 5. Struck out—By Ferguson 2, by McMackin 1. Double plays—Lynch to Huggins to Kelley; Cross to Runkle to McAndrews. Time—1:31. Umpire—Foreman. Attendance—812.

At Minneapolis.

Mpls.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Kan. City.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Lynch cf	1	3	0	0	Lewee ss	0	1	4	2
Lally lf	0	1	0	0	Nance cf	0	3	0	1
Phyle 3b	2	1	2	1	Grady 3b	0	0	4	2
Wilmot rf	2	3	0	0	Smith lf	2	1	0	0
Werden 1b	1	9	1	1	Rothfuss 1b	2	8	0	2
Byers c	0	5	3	1	Theil rf	1	5	0	0
Quillin ss	1	2	0	0	Beville c	1	2	1	0
Grant 2b	1	2	2	0	McBride 2b	0	1	0	2
Sporer p	0	1	3	0	Wolfe p	3	2	3	0
Totals	8	27	11	3	Totals	9	24	13	9

Minneapolis ....1 0 3 0 1 0 1 3 x—9
Kansas City ....0 1 1 1 1 0 0 0 0—4

Earned runs—Minneapolis 1, Kansas City 1. Two-base hits—Wilmot, Phyle, Wolfe. Passed balls—Beville. Base on balls—Off Sporer 6. Hit by pitcher—By Wolfe, Lynch. Struck out—By Sporer 5, by Wolfe 1. Stolen bases—Lynch, Rothfuss, Nance. Sacrifice hits—Lally, Byers, McBride, Rothfuss, Smith. Left on bases—Minneapolis 5, Kansas City 2. Time—1:50. Umpire—Figgemeier.

At Columbus.

Columbus.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Louisville.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hart cf	0	2	0	0	Clymer cf	1	4	0	0
Wheeler ss	2	3	2	0	Bonner 2b	1	3	5	0
Grim 1b	0	10	0	0	Ganzel 1b	3	15	0	0
McFarlan rf	0	1	0	0	Flournoy lf	0	0	0	0
Turner 3b	1	0	5	0	Tannehill ss	0	1	4	0
Knoll lf	2	0	0	0	Gannon rf	1	1	0	0
Vlox 2b	0	3	1	0	Schaub 3b	3	2	3	1
Fox c	0	3	2	1	Schriver c	0	1	3	0
Thomas p	0	0	2	0	Dunkle p	1	0	2	0
Totals	5	24	12	1	Totals	10	27	16	1

Columbus ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Louisville ....0 1 1 0 0 0 1 0 x—3

Stolen bases—Wheeler, Spies (who ran for Ganzel), Schaub. Two-base hit—Bonner. Three-base hit—Knoll. Sacrifice hits—Wheeler, Clymer. Struck out—By Thomas 3, by Dunkle 1. Bases on balls—Off Thomas 2, off Dunkle 2. Time—1:40. Umpire—Francis.

At Toledo.

Toledo.	H.	P.	A.	E.	Indpls.	H.	P.	A.	E.
Hennessy lf	1	1	0	0	Hogriever rf	1	0	0	0
Burns 2b	1	0	6	0	Kuhns lf	2	5	0	0
Turner 1b	0	12	1	0	Sheehan 3b	1	1	1	1
Owens ss	2	0	1	1	Kihm 1b	1	8	0	0
Meaney rf	2	4	0	0	O'Brien ss	3	2	0	0
Smith 3b	2	1	4	0	Fox 2b	1	1	3	0
Gilks cf	0	1	0	1	Coulter cf	0	2	0	0
Kleinow c	1	4	0	0	Matthews c	0	8	1	0
Mock p	1	4	1	1	Kellum p	2	0	2	0
Totals	10	27	13	3	Totals	11	27	7	1

Toledo ....1 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0—4
Indianapolis ....0 0 1 0 0 1 6 0 0—8

Earned runs—Toledo, 4; Indianapolis, 1. Two-base hits—Burns, Meaney, Kleinow, Smith, Kellum, O'Brien, Fox, Hogriever. Home run—Owens. Passed ball—Kleinow. Bases on balls—Off Mock 1, off Kellum 1. Bases on hit by pitched balls—Off Mock 3.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	39	21	.629	Baltimore	31	36	.463
Boston	35	30	.538	Washington	31	37	.456
St. Louis	33	29	.532	Cleveland	30	39	.435
Philadelph	32	31	.508	Detroit	28	37	.431

At Chicago.

Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1—2
St. Louis ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

At Cleveland.

Cleveland ....2 2 1 2 2 0 0 0 x—9
Detroit ....0 0 2 0 2 0 2 0 0—6

At Washington.

Washington ....0 0 0 0 1 1 2 0 x—4
Baltimore ....1 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0—3

At Philadelphia.

Boston ....4 2 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—8
Philadelphia ....1 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—2

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
Pittsburg	49	13	.790	St. Louis	30	37	.448
Boston	35	28	.556	Philadelph	30	40	.429
Brooklyn	39	31	.542	Cincinnati	27	38	.415
Chicago	35	32	.522	New York	22	44	.333

At Pittsburg.

Pittsburg ....0 0 0 4 0 0 0 2 x—6
New York ....1 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—3

At Chicago.

Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 3—4
Philadelphia ....0 0 3 0 0 1 2 2 0—8

At Cincinnati.

Cincinnati ....0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 0—2
Boston ....1 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 0—4

At St. Louis.

Brooklyn ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0—3
St. Louis ....0 1 0 0 0 3 0 0 x—4

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Clubs.

	P.	W.	L.	PC.
Winnipeg	43	27	16	628
Fargo	40	24	16	600
Grand Forks	42	25	17	595
Crookston	38	17	21	447
Devils Lake	40	15	25	375
Cavalier	37	12	25	324

Grand Forks, N. D., Special, July 11.—At Cavalier to-day Grand Forks dropped the first game to Cavalier that she has lost for nearly two weeks. Score, 5 to 4. Freeman pitched for Cavalier and put up a great game. Gregory pitched for Grand Forks and went to pieces in the seventh, Cavalier then scoring five times.

	R.	H.	E.
Grand Forks	4	8	3
Cavalier	5	11	7

Crookston, Minn., Special, July 11.—The Northern league game between Crookston and Winnipeg played here to-day was won by Crookston. Newlin, the new pitcher from Minneapolis, was in the box for Crookston. Score:

Crookston ....0 0 3 1 0 2 0 0 3—9
Winnipeg ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 0—3

In Far Northland.

LETTERS ABOUT CHRISTMAS.

Congressional Committee Learning Much of the Captain.

Capt. Christmas should change his name to something not quite so suggestive of joy and good cheer. The testimony submitted to the congressional committee which is investigating the charges of bribery in connection with the sale of the Danish West Indies is enabling that committee to learn much about the notorious captain. United States Minister L. S. Swenson, at Copenhagen, writes to the committee as follows:

"In view of Mr. Christmas' character and his absurd and contradictory statements regarding his alleged connection with the negotiations for the cession of the Danish West Indies to the United States, I attached no importance to his representations set forth in the enclosed letter. . . .

"Few persons believe that the negotiations were in any way influenced by unofficial agents or that suggestions of corrupt means were ever made or countenanced by either government. The Danish prime minister, Mr. Hovring, is thought to have been indiscreet in his dealings with Mr. Christmas; and other individuals are criticised for having had anything to do with the two adventurers mentioned above; but beyond that the matter is not taken seriously. Nevertheless, the fact that such wide publicity has been given to the scandal causes a feeling of humiliation among the Danes, and rather strengthens the opposition to cession."

Secretary White, at London, writes:

"With regard to Capt. Christmas, I may say that I consider his connection with the question ceased when he had carried out his undertaking to bring about an interview between the Danish minister of foreign affairs and myself. It is untrue that I asked him for 'instructions' as to the manner in which I should broach the question to the minister, and his other statements as to conversations with me are equally devoid of foundation, except that I did mention to him that the minister had hinted at a price between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, because he (the captain) seemed to be of the opinion that the Danish government would not sell the islands for $3,500,000."

VEIN OF ECCENTRICITY.

Gossip About the Royal Family of Sweden.

Gossip of royalty seems to be a favorite subject with a certain class of writers. A correspondent of the New York Times has the following concerning the royal family of Sweden and Norway:

"Their is a vein of eccentricity running through the whole royal family, in which one detects the blending of the Gascon and pleblan blood with the blue blood of princes and the icy clime of auroreal Sweden. Prince Oscar married Eva Munch, one of the queen's ladies, and was, in consequence, obliged to renounce his birthright and assume the modest title of Prince Bernadotte. As a sort of compensation, the queen of the aristocratic house of Nassau has announced that the pair shall inherit her entire fortune, accumulated by her uncle from the gaming tables of Weisbaden. Both the king and the crown prince feel very angry about this, but the queen is obdurate, and, as a result, another family feud has separated wife and husband and heir apparent.

"And, as if to add to their troubles, another son, Prince Eugene, is reported to be enamored of a beautiful American belle! The turbulence of the aristocracy, the mesalliances of their splendid sons, and—the red flag in the aristocratic old capital! Truly, the Bernadottes must have learned by this time that 'uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,' and that it might have been as well had Jean Baptiste remained a law clerk in sunny Southern France."

MANY TOURISTS IN NORWAY.

Steamer Oscar II. Brings Large Party to Copenhagen—Northern Light Expedition Sails for the Arctic.

The steamer Oscar II. has arrived at Copenhagen with a large party of tourists on board. They are viewing the town.

Prof. Birkleand's Northern Light expedition has sailed from Copenhagen. The party will spend a year at Nova Zembla and other northern stations.

Two fruit steamers, built for the International Steamship company of Mobile, Ala., have just been launched at Arndal, Norway.

WICKEDEST IN THE WORLD.

Monster Trial Bears Out Ibsen's Saying as to Christiana.

Ibsen's well known saying that Christiania was the wickedest capital in Europe is borne out by the proceedings in a monster trial against some twenty keepers of baby farms, where wholesale murder of infants has been going on for the last ten or fifteen years. Several of these baby farms have private cemeteries in gardens and fields, where the remains of the small army of tiny corpses were dug up.

MORMONS OPEN DANISH TEMPLE.

Three Hundred American Members of the Church Attend Dedicatory Ceremonies at Copenhagen.

Three hundred American Mormons, including Former United States Senator Frank J. Cannon and his brother, and many American missionaries in Europe, attended the dedication of the Mormon temple in Copenhagen. Three meetings have been arranged for July 6, with the object of giving impetus to Mormon missionary work in Denmark.

To Search for Baldwin.

W. S. Champ, secretary for the Baldwin-Ziegler Polar expedition, arrived in Christiania on June 18, for the purpose of organizing a relief expedition in search of Evelyn B. Baldwin, who sailed from Norway last year. He has chartered the Norwegian whaler Frithjof, which has been placed in first-class condition. It was Mr. Champ's intention to sail from Tromso about July 1, and steer direct for Franz Josef's Land.

SOCIALISTS BOYCOTT ROYALTY.

Deputies Censured for Consorting With Prince.

The Socialistic party of Denmark harshly censured Deputies Jensen and Sabroe for dining with Prince Christian. Some time ago several German dukelets were hauled over the coals for associating with Socialists.

Prosperous Scandinavians.

I suppose the Norwegians and Swedes are the most prosperous of any foreign-born citizens we have in the United States. Their intelligence, industry and frugality enable them to earn better wages and to save more of their wages than the natives of any other country, not excepting the Germans. One seldom finds a Swede or a Norwegian out of employment. You never see a Norwegian or Swedish tramp. Scandinavians are preferred to any other race by the employers of labor, because they are honest, sober, reliable and intelligent. If a census of the jails, prisons and poorhouses were taken, the number of Scandinavians would be surprisingly small. As I told you in my letters last summer, poorhouses are unknown in Norway and Sweden, and there are no illiterates in either country. If a man or woman cannot learn to read or write it is because he or she has forgotten how.—W. E. Curtis' New York Letter to Chicago Record-Herald.

Dr. Swensson and G. A. College.

Dr. Carl A. Swensson, president of Bethlehem college, Lindsborg, Kan., advises the powers which control Gustavus Adolphus college against removal from St. Peter to Minneapolis. "The college would not be benefited as much as many suppose," he says. "Gustavus Adolphus college should remember Caesar's immortal words, 'I would rather be the first in Gaul than the second in Rome.' How much do the contemporary colleges in the Twin Cities prosper in the shadow of that immense and constantly-growing giant, the state university?"

Sverdrup-Bjornson Case.

Jakob Sverdrup, on behalf of the family of the late Johan Sverdrup, announces that his suit against Bjornstjerne Bjornson, for maligning the dead premier's character, has been withdrawn, in response to numerous requests from leading men of both political parties. History will give Johan Sverdrup his true place, and it will be a high one.

General Notes.

Sigrid Arnoldsson's recent appearance in Paris exceeded all of her former triumphs there. The famous singer found a large package of bank bills recently, and if no one claims the money it is her intention to present it to the attaches of the Opera Comique.

Rumors of the unsafety of the riksdag building are circulated in Stockholm. It is said that the foundation is insecure, cracks appearing in it very frequently.

Hr. Beitzel, the leading manufacturer of sewing machines in Denmark, has arrived in New York. He comes to this country to patent some important inventions.

The Norwegian newspapers are making a common attack on Nye Normanden for opposing Dr. Fjelde's proposition for a monument to the Scandinavians who participated in the Civil War. "Peaceful occupations are more worthy than war," says the paper, "and if there must be a monument, let it be to the Scandinavians who transformed the Northwest from a wilderness to a garden."

Marriage licenses between women are not so rare as might be expected. O. A. Overland, the historian, found an account of one in Norway in 1780 in two reliable works. In 1809 it was discovered that Anders Johannesen a laborer, married to a widow for eight years, was a woman.

The small boys in Vardo, Norway, amused themselves by throwing snowballs on June 13.

Larvik, Norway, was visited by a disastrous fire on July 1. One-fourth of the business district was razed to the ground.

Waldect-Rousseau, the French premier, will spend some time near Falkenberg, Sweden, fishing for salmon.

The Cost of the Capitol.

Senator Millard of Nebraska was tramping around the south end of the capitol with some visitors, who asked him the cost of the immense structure.

"I'm sure, I don't know," answered the senator, a little disappointed for not knowing. "What did this capitol cost?" inquired he, appealing to one of the house employes near the telegraph office.

"Oh, I guess about $25,000,000," was the reply.

Capt. Kennedy, the venerable capitol guide, however, says it cost about $12,000,000, and he knows more about the big building, probably, than any other living man. He reckons in the cost of the terraces and the improvements in the new committee rooms, the total being just about twice the expense of erecting and equipping the library of congress, just across the reservation.—Washington Post.

What's in a Name?

Downe Towne—I hired a typewriter this morning.

Upson Downe—Why, where is she? I don't see her around.

Down Towne—When I learned that her name was Simmons I fired her.

Upson Downe—What for?

Down Towne—Why, do you suppose I want my letters signed "per Simmons?"—Exchange.

Breeches on the Wrong Man.

The authorship of "Little Breeches," written by Secretary of State John Hay, was frequently attributed to the late Brete Harte. A young lady once said to him:

"I am highly pleased to meet you, Mr Harte. I have read all your poems, but have enjoyed 'Little Breeches' the most."

"Pardon me, madam," replied Mr Harte, "but you have put the 'Little Breeches' on the wrong man."—New York Sun.

BOTH AMESES AGAIN INDICTED.

Charged With Taking Money From Abandoned Women.

Minneapolis, July 11.—Fred W. Ames, superintendent of police, has been indicted a second time, immediately after his acquittal as told in yesterday's paper. Mayor A. A. Ames and Joseph ("Reddy") Cohen have also been indicted, all three charged with accepting bribes. They were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. The gist of these indictments is the alleged collection of "graft" from abandoned women.

Judge Simpson did that yesterday which, while being almost without precedent in Hennepin county, shows the disposition of the district judges to guard against every possible influence calculated to prevent a proper trial of the police cases. It was in the case of Capt. John Fritchette (Coffee John), who has been indicted for taking money for getting John Long a position in the police department. Six jurymen had been secured when the panel was exhausted. Judge Simpson, instead of simply ordering the jurymen to report in court and admonishing them not to discuss the case or read any newspapers in regard to it, placed a deputy sheriff in charge of them. This action upon the part of the court was criticized by the defense, who claim there is no excuse for such a precaution in so unimportant a case. The police captain is charged with committing a misdemeanor. The technical charge is receiving a gratuity and reward for procuring another person an appointment to a public office, the money being paid by David B. Johnson, a well known attorney. County Attorney Boardman is prosecuting the case, while Freeman P. Lane and Frank P. Nantz appear for for defendant.

TEACHERS HARD AT IT.

Meetings at Minneapolis Are Well Attended.

Minneapolis, July 11. — High water mark in the attendance at the National Educational association convention has probably been reached, and it is undoubtedly the record for numbers present at any meeting of the association yet held. A conservative estimate would place the number of visitors in the city yesterday as considerably over twenty thousand. Quite a little good natured rivalry has sprung up between Iowa and Wisconsin for the largest delegation from any state other than Minnesota. Each state claims 2,000 representatives here. Indiana will probably hold third place on the list. The meetings have all been well attended, and when it is stated that there were fifteen of them yesterday it will be readily seen that the crowd is an enormous one. Nearly every department of the association has held a meeting, and the real work of the convention proper is on in full blast. Today there will be thirteen meetings, and on Friday, when the convention closes, there will be twelve. Each one is proving of unusual interest and hardly an unfavorable comment has been heard anywhere.

HOLDUP NOT A SUCCESS.

Three Men Near Crookston Succeed in Getting Away.

Crookston, Minn., July 11.— Two masked highwaymen, one extremely tall and the other extremely short, attempted to hold up three citizens of Dugdale last evening as they were driving into the city. The men were Herman Camp, a general merchant; John Forsythe, a hotel proprietor at Dugdale, and S. W. Ferrels, who was coming to the city to prove up a claim before the United States land office. All of the men had considerable money on their persons, Mr. Camp having over $300. As they reached the point where the Great Northern crosses the Dugdale road the two highwaymen stepped out from the side of the road. The tall man made a grab at the heads of the horses and the shorter man started for the side of the buggy. Mr. Camp, who was driving whipped up the horses. The tall man was nearly knocked over as the horses jumped forward, and Mr. Forsythe, making a motion toward his hip pocket as if to draw a revolver, scared the hold-up men into a dead run across the country.

FLOODS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE.

Farmers Are the Greatest Sufferers—Several Washouts.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 11. — Damage to the extent of many thousand dollars has been done in the bottom lands southeast of here by the floods. Rain ceased falling yesterday and the worst is believed to be over. Railroads have suffered severely from washouts, and their loss will be very heavy. Farmers, however, are the greatest sufferers. Small streams, usually a few yards wide, are now swollen rivers miles in width. Reports from towns near by tell of heavy loss. Oto, Hornic, Luton and Mapleston are flooded and surrounded by vast expanses of water.

DR. ADAMS IS DYING.

Former President of Wisconsin University Near the End.

Madison, Wis., July 11.—Friends of Dr. Charles K. Adams, former president of the University of Wisconsin, last night received the following alarming dispatch regarding his condition:

"Redlands, Cal., July 9.—A decided change for the worse took place in the condition of Dr. Charles Kendall Adams to-day. Grave fears are felt that he may not survive the night."

AN IMMENSE PEARL.

Weighs Over a Hundred Grains and Was Sold for $1,750.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 11.—The largest globe pearl taken from a Mississippi clam was found by Frank Ferguson yesterday. The pearl is bluish in color, nearly round and weighs 15½ grains. Ferguson sold it to J. W. Burd of Black Rock, Ark., for $1,750. Ferguson's home is in Calmar, Iowa.

Alleged Murderer Captured.

Portage, Wis., July 11. — Fred W. Stephenson, who, it is alleged shot and killed Deputy Sheriff William Cooper at Waterloo on the evening of Feb. 8, and who escaped from the Jefferson jail on June 28, was captured two miles from here yesterday.

Child Drowns in Pail.

Herman, Minn., July 11.—The eleven-months-old baby of Fred Spears was drowned yesterday morning by falling head foremost into a plant pail while the family was out.

HEROIC WORK OF RESCUE

DARING FELLOWS GO INTO MINE TO BRING OUT DEAD AND MAIMED BODIES.

FIND EIGHTY-SEVEN DEAD BODIES

BELIEVED THAT ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY IS LOW ESTIMATE OF CASUALTIES.

SEVERAL ARE FOUND ALIVE

TRANSFORMED INTO RAVING MANIACS BY HOURS OF WAITING.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—At 1 o'clock this morning it is stated that of the 600 men supposed to have entered the mouth of the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company Thursday morning, ninety are known to be dead and twenty-two rescued. Four hundred, so the mine officials claim, escaped when the explosion occurred, leaving eighty-eight still to be accounted for. Some of these, according to those in charge of the rescue work, are dead, but the majority, they claim, have escaped. From physicians, heads of rescue parties and others familiar with the different headings in the mine, it is learned that at least fifty-two additional bodies will be brought to the temporary morgue at daylight, making a total list of dead 143. This, so President Powell Stackhouse, of the Cambria Steel company, stated, will be the extent of the dead, but until all checks, by which the miners are known, are presented at the office of the company, an accurate list of the dead will not be known. Some of the bodies, it is admitted by the officials, are entombed in closed headings or buried beneath slate. Some may be recovered, while others may never be found.

Heroic Work of Rescuers.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—Yesterday was a day of heroic rescues at the ill-fated Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company. Thrilling experiences attended the efforts of the forty brave and daring fellows who went down into the bowels of the earth with a very faint hope to spur them that still they might be in time to restore to life some of those who are entombed. Death lurked everywhere around them, but, undaunted, they surged forward, swayed with the noblest of human purposes. The reward of their efforts was the saving of the lives of fourteen of their fellow men and bringing them again into the sunlight and back to loving families.

Dead and maimed bodies were located, but no effort was made to bring them out of the vast theater of death until every human energy was put forward toward seeing that no living soul might escape their aid. That done, the dead were attended to and put in train cars, brought up and exposed to morbid gaze while being transferred to wagons in which to be taken to the morgue. Eighty-seven dead bodies were recovered from the mine between daylight and night-fall. Still a party of officials and three miles inside the mine. Occasionally word would come to the surface by some mysterious means that another heap of remains had been exposed to the vision of the searchers. There remains dangerous headings in the Klondike section of the mine yet to be explored. No one knows how many more dead will be found there. The mine officials refrain from guess work on the subject.

Miners Battled On,

The impression prevails among the outsiders and certain employes of the mine that 150 is a low estimate of the casualty list. Fated Johnstown spent the day horror-stricken. From dawn to dusk flying ambulances coursed the streets bearing gruesome burdens from mine to morgue, from morgue to homes. Great throngs surged about the pit mouth, the improvised morgue at the armory and about the stricken homes of the dead. Bulletin boards were eagerly scanned for news from the scene of the disaster. It was difficult to picture with any degree approaching its full worth the work of rescue and the attending scenes and incidents of the day at the center of interest. How brave men went in its most horrible form, encountered their fellows transformed into raving maniacs by hours of waiting in the pitch darkness of the earth's interior, lifted them moaning from their beds of fallen rock and then bending and crawling on all fours, carrying them a quarter of a mile underground to where cars could be reached to take them outside.

Into the Jaws of Death

Along in the early part of the afternoon cheering word came from the innermost recesses of the mine that life yet lingered in some of the bodies found. The rescuers made first for No. 4, left heading, which they had been unable to reach the night before. Desolate even for the scene of a mine interior was the heading that stretched out before them. Falls of roof almost choked up the heading, but through and over the debris the brave men pushed their way. In the front young Patrick Martin, his brother Peter, Philip White and several cousins of the Martins made their way. Suddenly in an open space they were startled by the maniac laugh which emerged from a blackened form that rushed at them from out of the darkness. The man grasped firmly a pick handle and tried in his frenzy

To Beat Down His Rescuers.

He was overpowered and dragged back to the main heading to the cars. Thirteen other living men were found in the chamber and physicians were quickly taken to the spot.

At 3 p. m. the train of mine cars came to the pit mouth where waiting ambulances stood. Eight men were lifted over the sides of the cars and half-carried, wended their way to the ambulances. They were all Poles. One big, strapping fellow among them collapsed as he reached the ambulance and the doctors spent several minutes over him. As the men were driven hurriedly to the Cambria hospital the train of coal cars with the physicians re-entered the mine. In another half-hour they came out again, this time with six living but almost dead miners. One man in his paroxysms had locked his jaws so that force had to be employed to pry them open for the insertion of life-instilling fluids. These six were taken in an unconscious condition to the Cambria hospital. One man brought out with this crowd died just as he reached daylight.

At that time three more headings, believed to be filled with the dead, were unsearched.

PREMATURE CHARIVARI.

Man Seriously Injured While Explaining That He Is Not Yet Married.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 13.—Frederick Vandyke of this city lies at his home as the result of being struck on the head by an iron bar or rod in the hands of a member of a charivari party. Some of Vandyke's acquaintances were informed that himself and a daughter of Mrs. Mary Vogler had been married. They proceeded to the home of Mrs. Vogler, armed with a varied assortment of tin pans, horns, etc., intending to serenade the couple in conformity with the custom of some people on occasions of this kind. Vandyke was at the house, and after the crowd had indulged in rowdyism for a time he went outside and asked the unwelcome visitors to disperse, telling them there was no occasion for the visit, as he had not yet been married. They refused to go, and Vandyke, in his earnestness, stepped close to the outer rank of the visitors. Without warning one of the visitors struck him with a piece of iron about two feet long, an inch wide and a quarter of an inch thick. The blow landed upon his head and inflicted a bad wound. His assailants will be prosecuted.

CLEVER SWINDLE.

An Old Man Loses $1,000 by a Confidence Game.

Winona, Minn., July 13.—An old man named Martin was cleverly victimized out of $1,000 here by a couple of confidence men. On the pretense of wanting to borrow money to close a farm deal, they induced Martin to draw money from the bank and accompany them into the country. When in the buggy they removed the money from the old man's pocket and dropped him by the wayside. They left town by train before the police learned of the affair, so the chances for their capture are small.

JUDGE HARRY HUBBARD DEAD.

Prominent La Crosse Man Passes Away.

La Crosse, Wis., July 13. — Judge Harvey E. Hubbard, for fifty-one years a resident of this city, and one of its very first settlers, died yesterday morning after a lingering illness of three months. He was appointed postmaster under President Pierce and held that office for many years, being the youngest postmaster the city ever had. He was judge of the criminal court for many years also, and was in many ways prominently connected with the early history of Western Wisconsin.

MURDER OR ACCIDENT.

West Superior Case That Puzzles the Authorities.

West Superior, Wis., July 13.—Murder or accident? That is the question Coroner Dudley is asking concerning the death of Erick Kytala, a workingman recently employed at the shipyards, whose body was found floating in Tower slip. A black eye is the only mark upon the man that is likely to lead to a clew, and the police are working on it. It is evident that the body had lain in the water for several days, as none of his acquaintances had seen him since about the Fourth.

Gives No Explanation.

St. Paul, July 13.—Conrad Swenson of 133 Cook street, the young railroad man who disappeared a week ago last Sunday, a few days before his proposed wedding, returned to St. Paul yesterday and is now in Minneapolis. He refused to give his relatives, they say, any reason for his unexpected flitting. His marriage with Miss Hannah Halvorsen of Red Wing has been postponed indefinitely.

No Room for Boers.

Minot, N. D., July 13.—A delegation of Boers looked over land in this vicinity last week with a view to locating a colony direct from Africa. There is scarcely any government land left nearer than fifty miles west of this city, and what there is left is being taken, good, bad and indifferent, at a rate of forty claims per day, so it is hardly likely that the Boers will locate here.

Found With Another Man.

Winona, Minn., July 13.—Mrs. Mattie Linpall returned from Winona to Antigo, Wis., this morning in company with her husband, who followed her here and found her at a street show in company with George F. Young of Antigo. The meeting was stormy and ended in the police station. Mrs. Linpall agreed to return to Antigo with her husband, but declared she would never live with him.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Le Roy, Minn., July 13.—While in a fit of despondency, after having been detained in the insane asylum at Independence, Iowa, for a year, Hans Hanson, a Swede living seven miles southwest of here, hung himself in his barn.

Drowned in the Flood.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 13.—Tommy Crooks, well known as a boxer and athletic manager in the Middle West, was drowned in the flooded district last evening. He drove off the roadway in the flooded district into deep water.

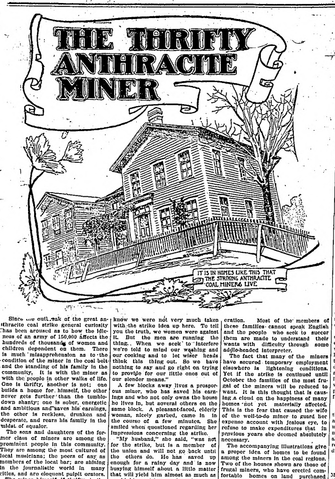
River Is Now Falling.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 13.—The crest of the flood in the Des Moines reached its mouth last night. The river is expected to be falling in a few hours. Thorough preparations prevented immense damage to a large area of cucumbers.

To Build a High School.

Baldwin, Wis., July 13.—At the annual school meeting of the electors of this village $1,250 was appropriated to build a new high school building.

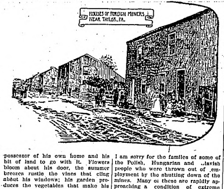
THE THRIFTY ANTHRACITE MINER



IT IS IN HOMES LIKE THIS THAT THE STRIKING ANTHRACITE COAL MINERS LIVE.

Since the outbreak of the great anthracite coal strike general curiosity has been aroused as to how the idleness of an army of 150,000 affects the hundreds of thousands of women and children dependent on them. There is much misapprehension as to the condition of the miner in the coal belt and the standing of his family in the community. It is with the miner as with the people in other walks of life. One is thrifty, another is not; one builds a home for himself, the other never gets further than the tumble-down shanty; one is sober, energetic and ambitious and saves his earnings, the other is reckless, drunken and desperate, and rears his family in the midst of squalor.

The sons and daughters of the former class of miners are among the prominent people in this community. They are among the most cultured of local musicians; the peers of any as members of the local bar; are shining in the journalistic world in many cities, and are eloquent pulpit orators.



HOUSES OF FOREIGN MINERS NEAR TAYLOR, PA.

The miner himself, if thrifty, is the possessor of his own home and his bit of land to go with it. Flowers bloom about his door, the summer breezes rustle the vines that cling about his windows; his garden produces the vegetables that make his table a delight during the summer, and in many instances a substantial bank account has been accumulated to tide over just such a trying time as the community is now suffering from.

To date the strike has brought no suffering to the families of the miners of this region, but much apprehension. The worriment upon the faces of their thrifty wives tells of the cares that burden them.

The Press correspondent strolled through one of the sections of the city in which the poorer classes of the miners reside. At one of the doors stood a weary-eyed woman, her shoulders stooping as the result of the toil of years. Several barefooted and rather poorly clad children were playing about and the sound of an infant's wail came through the half-opened doors.

"The good Lord only knows what we will do, sir, unless this strike soon ends," she said in answer to a query. "James—that's my husband—sir, has only worked a few days at whatever he could get since the strike was declared. It's mighty little that he can do now for me or the childer. The grocer has begun to look sour whenever we ask for more credit. As for buying clothing and the like of that, why that can wait until after this strike is settled. All that we are trying to do now is to make sure that we get enough to eat so that we will not have to go hungry. It's little enough that we have now, but up to this time there has been enough to satisfy hunger.

"What do I think about this strike? Why, I think as my husband does. What does he think? Well, you know we were not very much taken with the strike idea up here. To tell you the truth, we women were against it. But the men are running the thing. When we seek to interfere we're told to mind our washing and our cooking and to let wiser heads think this thing out. So we have nothing to say and go right on trying to provide for our little ones out of our slender means."

A few blocks away lives a prosperous miner, who has saved his earnings and who not only owns the house he lives in, but several others on the same block. A pleasant-faced, elderly woman, nicely garbed, came in in the course of a few minutes. She smiled when questioned regarding her impressions concerning the strike.

"My husband," she said, "was not for the strike, but is a member of the union and will not go back until the others do. He has saved up enough for a rainy day and is now busying himself about a little matter that will yield him almost as much as would his position at the mines. But I am sorry for the familes of some of the Polish, Hungarian and Slavish people who were thrown out of employment by the shutting down of the mines. Many of these are rapidly approaching a condition of extreme want, I am told, and unless the strike ends soon all the charitable associations of the city will be kept busy caring for them."

The class of people referred to is the one that will feel most keenly the effects of the miner's strike. Few of these are miners proper. They work about the mines, both outside and inside, as laborers, at a compensation generally of a little over $2 a day. They have put nothing by for their future. They live in the worst habitations that the regions afford, large families of them accumulating in small rooms, many in a house. Their condition, even during prosperous times, is sufficient to arouse commiseration. Most of the members of these families cannot speak English and the people who seek to succor them are made to understand their wants with difficulty through some addle-headed interpreter.

The fact that many of the miners have secured temporary employment elsewhere is lightening conditions. Yet if the strike is continued until October the families of the most frugal of the miners will be reduced to want. It is this thought that is causing a cloud on the happiness of many homes not yet materially affected. This is the fear that caused the wife of the well-to-do miner to guard her expense account with jealous eye, to refuse to make expenditures that in previous years she deemed absolutely necessary.

The accompanying illustrations give a proper idea of homes to be found among the miners in the coal regions. Two of the houses shown are those of frugal miners, who have erected comfortable homes on land purchased with the money put aside from year to year. One shows a house with the vines creeping about the doors and windows, the other a modest little house with the mother and the sons and daughter of the family grouped in front of the door, the husband and father being away at the time. Another picture shows a group of miners' houses at Taylor, a suburb largely occupied by the foreign miners or those whose desire for strong drink absorbs the major portion of their earnings.—New York Press.

STRIKING MINERS DISCUSSING THE SITUATION

How to Kill Mosquitoes.

First be sure that the specimen selected for execution is of the large, full-eyed soprano type of mosquito. Then, having rolled up the sleeves and thoroughly disinfected the hands, put on your automobile glasses and begin the pursuit. Red golf coats and white ducks are fashionable costume for the mosquito chase, though many prefer pyjamas.

Having caught the specimen, if he refuses to be converted, the water cure may be administered. This failing, tie him to any projection on the front porch, or cage him while you procure a weapon wherewith to execute him.

Any convenient weapon may be used. My experience has caused me to lose faith in machetes, bolos and bowie knives. On the whole, I would recommend taking a ping pong racket and swatting him gently but firmly. Be sure to hit square between the eyes.

The mosquito of commerce will generally be found to yield readily to such treatment.

First of the State Flowers.

California was the first state in the Union to choose a state flower. In 1890, at a meeting of the State Floral Association, the golden poppy was chosen.

SOURCE OF ELECTRICITY.

Most Eminent Physicists Unable to Explain It Satisfactorily.

At a time when electricity is rapidly transforming the face of the globe, when it has already in great measure annihilated distance and bids fair to abolish darkness for us, it is curious to notice how completely ignorant "the plain man" remains as to the latter developments of electrical theory. Some recent correspondence has led me to think that a vague notion that electricity is a fluid which in some mysterious way, flows through a telegraph wire like water through a pipe is about as far as he has got, and if we add to this some knowledge of what he calls "electric shocks" we should probably exhaust his ideas on the subject. Yet this is not to be wondered at. Even the most instructed physicists can do nothing but guess as to what electricity is, and the only point on which they agree is as to what it is not. There is, in fact, a perfect consensus of opinion among scientific writers that it is not a fluid, i. e., a continuous stream of ponderable matter, as is a liquid or a gas; and that it is not a form of energy, as is heat. Outside this limit the scientific imagination is at liberty to roam where it listeth, and although it has used this liberty to a considerable extent, no definite result has followed up to the present time.—The Academy.

HAD MADE A DISCOVERY.

But Non-Enthusiastic Friend Made Ribald Remarks.

When speaking "In Praise of Books" at the commencement exercises of Bryn Mawr College, Richard Watson Gilder told of a good friend of his who found in almost every new book taken up something to surprise her. "Something so very much in the nature of a discovery," he said, "that it became a sort of joke among us—these 'discoveries' of hers.

"A party of us were making that ever-wonderful Hudson river trip once," he went on, "and this woman, whom I regard as one of the ablest of her sex, had a great deal to tell us of the workings and appearances of the devil idea in literature, both sacred and profane. It was obviously her latest discovery, and her enthusiasm was such that at Peekskill one of the party went ashore and wired a mutual friend in New York:

"'Emma has discovered the devil.'

"The telegram did not reach its destination until quite late that night, and the recipient was feeling a bit under the weather. It was this combination, taken with the seeming triviality of the message, that inspired the reply: 'Tell Emma to follow up her discovery.'"

The Mont Pelee Reports.

Every man who has written from Martinique seized the proposition in a different way from his fellow's way. The correspondent of one of the morning papers had the singular taste to treat it as a humorous opportunity; his description all revolved around the fun he had with the geologist who was blessed with strong individual characteristics and a picturesque name. Another treated it as a literary proposition, and two or three wrecked their stories on the rock of the mere news requirement. It was found hard to unite the literary and the news aspects.

The best story of the actual calamity yet produced is that contained in an interview with the priest who, from his perch in the hill village of Morne Vert—rising from the sirocco of hot and suffocating air that had swept over him, and daring the rain of stones that was still falling—sat and watched St. Pierre flash into sudden fire when the mountain blew its breath of flame upon it. This supreme moment will be the thing that the interest of the world will be forever centered upon; and fate has mocked the Genius of Journalism, demigod as it is, by leaving the telling of this tale to shepherds or water-carriers or village priests who chanced to see from afar.—New York Mail and Express.

She Runs an Engine.

In the city of Cleveland lives the only woman engineer in the country—a Mrs. Marten, who understands the business thoroughly and gives excellent satisfaction. She recently took the place of her deceased husband and has been faithful to every requirement of the place thus far.

Mrs. Marten had often been her husband's helper in his work, and so learned the ins and outs of his trade. The day after his death she went to the office of the building and asked for the position that had been her husband's. The owners of the building, knowing that the family was in poor circumstances and that the woman, from her familiarity with the engine, was capable of holding the position, gave her the place at the same salary that had been earned by her husband. There is a janitor in the building who carries the coal, but Mrs. Marten handles the shovel and does not shirk any task. She keeps the engine-room as spotless as such a place can be, and the engine shines like a new piece of machinery.—Chicago Chronicle.

Tried It Inverted.

An amusing and somewhat curious experience recently befell a certain French painter, who shall be nameless. He had gone to the Salon, accompanied by a friend, who was a member of the Committee of Selection, and who had been instrumental in procuring the acceptance of the painter's work. When the artist came near his picture he exclaimed, "Good gracious! You are exhibiting my picture the wrong side up!" "Hush!" was the reply, "the committee rejected it the other way up."

SIMPLE METHODS BY WHICH VICTIMS OF LIGHTNING MAY BE RESUSCITATED

"In most of the cases in which persons are struck by lightning death would rarely ensue if the proper treatment were administered," said an old-time electrician. "Take, for instance the persons who died in Chicago last week as the result of being hit by lightning during a severe storm. I am firmly convinced that had some one who knew what to do been on hand the victim's lives might have been saved.

"If a person has been struck by lightning the first thing to do is to go to work to restore consciousness, as lightning oftener brings about suspended animation than somatic death. The condition of a person struck by lightning is much the same as that of a person rescued from drowning. Try to stimulate respiration and circulation. Do not cease in the effort to restore animation in less than an hour, as you value the life of the sufferer.

"The method used to restore respiration is immaterial. A good way is to imitate the motions of respiration by alternately compressing and expanding the lower ribs. Do this gently but persistently at the rate of twenty times per minute. Keep the body warm by application of hot flannels, bottles of hot water, hot bricks or, in case of an emergency, warm clothing from bystanders. Rub the limbs upward so as to force the blood to the heart and brain.

"Two or three persons can do this, remembering all the time to make but one stroke, and that toward the body, so as to force blood toward the heart. Rub firmly, but energetically. Three things are to be borne in mind: Do not give up the effort to restore respiration, and keep the body warm by rubbing and hot applications. When swallowing is established, a teaspoonful of warm water, wine, diluted whisky, or brandy, or warm coffee should be given. When consciousness is restored encourage sleep. Do not give up, keep at work, and send for a physician.

"Of the visible effects of lightning stroke upon the human body little more can be said than that sometimes burns have been noticed and frequently red or markings which are localized congestions of the small blood vessels of the skin."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE GIANT CACTUS

Plant of Mystery That Flourishes on the Far Western Deserts of America

No one ever saw the giant cactus on the sandy desert of Africa; the primeval architects of the Nile never knew this motive for their colossal dreams. Here alone do these tall monuments guard the graves of worlds, and perhaps this very one I gaze on was scarcely begun when Ramesis was born.

Day and night I question it, by sunlight and moonlight and the unfailing stars, until gradually the unfamiliar harmonies of its sun-searched life justify themselves to my soul. The sense of uncanniness, of monstrosity, passed away; the emotion no longer appals and rends me, but soothes with immensities of restfulness.

To go out on the desert day after day and meet these cacti is like whispering into the ear of the Sphinx and listening at her locked lips. So wise they are, so old with the age of the world, so majestically still in those cataclysmic solitudes! And to go out in April and see them suddenly abloom is as though the lips of the Sphinx should part and utter solemn words. A bunch of white flowers at the tip of the obelisk, flowers springing white and wonderful out of this dead, gaunt, prickly thing—is not that nature's consummate miracle, a symbol of resurrection more profound than the lily of the fields? And in April also the lesser cacti are abloom with gorgeous flaming colors—each dragon bears a jewel in its teeth as a tribute to the fervid sun. And the paloverde puts forth its delicate, downy yellow plumage and the sagebrush renews its silver. Even the changeless desert must follow the changing year, must greet the spring with renewal of life, must unfurl its banners to the sun. As if a few drops of rain just moisten its crust it is strange how suddenly the sternness of its mood will change; the entire face of the pale earth will become softly green in a night, gratefully veiling itself close with a silvery leafage tiny and tender and delicate; and masses of California poppies will spread out their patches of cloth of gold.—Atlantic.

Women and the Clergy

Rev. Herbert Bigelow Denounces the Egotism of Men

If we turn to the condition of woman in Christendom, we shall find that her progress has been long impeded by false ideas of her relation to man, and in defense of these ideas the Bible has been freely quoted.

The besetting sin of human nature is the lust of power. Man is an egotist. It takes culture a long time to refine that away. Man loves to flatter himself with the thought of his superiority. That pride of power is undoubtedly at the bottom of the fact that he is so reluctant to acknowledge the equality of the sexes.

Pericles thought "a woman's chief glory was to be known neither for good nor evil." Socrates thanked the gods that he was "a man, not a brute," and that he was "male, not female." Erasmus prayed that all people might come to read the Bible, "even women and Turks."

Yet we are becoming civilized, though slowly. Even now, in some parts of this republic, women enjoy full voting privilege with men; yet it was only a century ago that France guillotined a woman for daring to assert woman's right to the ballot. It was only twenty-five years ago that we in America began to think women worth educating.

As a student in the theological seminary, I remember the professor saying of woman's place in the church: "Women may sing in prayer meeting and play on the piano or organ, and if the meeting is not too public they may offer up prayer." He forgot to say that they might also contribute to the preacher's salary.

Robert Browning asserted that of the two it was his wife who had a creative genius, yet to him and not to her England accorded the honor of a burial in Westminster.

Our Bible is not responsible for this ungenerous treatment of woman. The cause is back of the Bible in the nature of man. But there are Scripture texts in which this egotism of the male has entrenched itself.

On the woman question Mazzini was more orthodox than Paul. He told the young men of Italy: "Love and respect woman. Seek in her not merely a comfort but a force, an inspiration, the redoubling of your intellectual and moral faculties. Cancel from your minds every idea of superiority over her. You have none whatever."—Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow in Pilgrim.

If a spinster isn't as tall as she would like to be she should get spliced.

POSTMASTER WAS TOO HONEST.

Overlooked a Bet That Would Have Increased His Pay.

"I noticed," said an old resident of Chicago, "the recent story of the Nebraska postmaster who bought goods, and stocks and land with stamps to such an extent that his office went into another classification and his salary was raised several hundred dollars a year.

"That reminds me of another postmaster out in Missouri who didn't know half as much, and who, without any increase in salary, had to buy drinks for half the town just after he failed to rise to an occasion.

"It was under the first Cleveland administration. The postoffice had been in the fourth class all its life, and as there had never been any public stir about putting it into any other class the new postmaster sat down on his job and sold stamps at current rates, making the usual settlements and thankful for small favors.

"But in the third year of his incumbency of the office things took a spurt, and when it came to a final settlement for the year the receipts showed that the fourth-class office had sold things mucilaginous to within $3.85 of the $2,000 limit, making it a third-class office.

"And, don't you know, Smith turned in the proceeds of that last quarter without a thought of buying that $3.85 worth of 1s, 3s, and 5s necessary to make his office of the third class for a whole year."

Gate Open 150 Years.

In the Bavarian highlands there is situated a small monastery whose massive gate has remained open for the space of 150 years. Under the testament of its founder it was provided that the hospice should ever be open to all wayfarers in need of food and lodging, but in order to guard against the entry of dishonest guests the monks have posted huge dogs beside the portal.

One of the Philadelphia papers discovers "that there is no law in Pennsylvania prohibiting the nomination of honest and intelligent men for the legislature."

Girls who make the greatest exertions to catch husbands are usually last in the race.

The News Of the Week

Washington Notes.

The ability of the Panama Canal company to give satisfactory title to the property will be investigated in Paris at an early day.

Gen. Miles' selection of Capt. R. C. Van Vliet, Tenth cavalry, as inspector of small arms practice, on his staff, has been disapproved by Secretary Root.

Secretary Moody will materially reduce the number of naval officers on shore duty, believing every man holding a commission in the navy should spend most of his time afloat.

Personal.

Alex Yost, chief of police at Cattlesburg, Ky., is dead from sunstroke.

Mrs. B. P. Cheney (Julia Arthur) has been operated upon at Boston for appendicitis.

Mary MacLane, who wants to enter Radcliffe college, will not be barred by the authorities.

John Downs, 109 years old, died at Springfield, Ill. He was born in Limerick, and cast his first vote for Buchanan.

James S. Stephens, one of the oldest pottery manufacturers in this country, is dead at Trenton, N. J., from heart disease. He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, sixty-two years ago.

John Henderson, the executioner of Louis Riel, the half-breed, who organized the Riel rebellion in Canada, is dead on his ranch, near Glasgow, Mont., as the result of a surgical operation.

John W. Greeley, a cousin of Horace Greeley, is dead, says a dispatch from Manchester, N. H. He was eighty-three years old, and lived at Amherst, near the site of the house in which his illustrious cousin was born.

The most magnificent wedding that ever took place in the Berkshire Hills, that of Miss Lila Vanderbilt Sloane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Douglas Sloane, and William Bradhurst Osgood Field, was celebrated in Trinity Episcopal church at Lenox, Mass. The guests included mainly persons of wealth and social distinction.

Criminal.

Rev. D. C. Peabody of Decatur, Ill., mentally afflicted through ill-health, committed suicide with a revolver.

Taraj Kirzan and wife of Paterson, N. J., hanged themselves by the same rope, by throwing it over a beam in the attic.

A committee of the Ohio State board of charities finds that Nora Ferris died from the effects of being placed in a straightjacket.

W. A. Reynolds, sixty years old, a nurse at the county house at Grand Rapids, Mich., was murdered and robbed by unknown persons.

Walter Sherry, George Clifton, James Wilson and George Long, awaiting trial for burglary, have escaped from the county jail at Bessemer, Mich.

B. W. Pyle of Chicago, fearing the Nicaragua canal would never be built, so as to make his land in Central America valuable, committed suicide.

E. E. Shannon of St. Louis committed suicide after confessing to his wife that he murdered two men ten years ago, for which crime he allowed a friend to be convicted and hanged.

Embittered by the perfidy of the man who had caused her ruin, an unknown fourteen-year-old girl committed suicide in Washington Park, Chicago, by drinking carbolic acid.

Dr. A. J. Jennings of Chicago is under arrest charged with extortion by a midwife, who says the doctor was accompanied by a man representing himself as an officer. The doctor denies the charge.

Dr. Mary Damon of Minneapolis, a member of a prominent Concord family, ended her life at Weston, Mass., by cutting her throat at the home of a relative. Ill health and despondency is the supposed cause for the rash act.

Julius Lehman, convicted aldermanic boodler of St. Louis, received a sentence of two years in the penitentiary.

Peter Hendricks, postmaster at Orange, W. Va., was killed during a fight at church between the Hendricks and Jarrold families.

Theodore Oelfeuer, the wife and child murderer, killed himself in his cell at Chicago. He was found hanging from one of the bars. Oelfeuer had walked the floor all night, cursing and asserting that his act was justified. After eating breakfast he hanged himself with strips from his undergarments.

From Other Shores.

The jewels of an English peer, sold at auction in London, brought $450,000.

Netty, daughter of the late Antonio Terry, is married to Prince de Lucinge-Faucigny, in Paris.

The efforts of Gen. Buller to place his action at Ladysmith in a better light, is proving a failure.

During Socialist riots at voting places in Orte, Rome, over forty were wounded, one-half being troops.

Germany's exports for the year ending June 30 were $101,714,064, an increase of $1,827,000 over the preceding year.

There was a large gathering of notables at Rome, in honor of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the pope's coronation.

A large collection of rare Caxton books and early manuscripts has been sold at London to go to the United States. The collection cannot be duplicated.

It is expected that Gens. Botha, De Wet and Delarey will tour Europe, England and America, asking aid for the widows, orphans and crippled of the Boers.

Philip Joseph Marey Fitz Allen-Howard, earl of Arundel and Surrey, died at Arundel Castle. He was the eldest son and heir to the Duke of Norfolk, and was born in 1879.

The steamer Harmony went ashore near St. John's, N. F., during a heavy gale, and the whole coast was swept, which must have resulted in much damage to fishing craft.

Casualties.

J. N. Davis, E. G. Rust and W. H. Chandler were drowned while bathing at Galveston beach.

Five men were killed and two injured by lightning while stretching telephone wire at Offerman, Ga.

Eight cars, well filled with tramps stealing rides, were wrecked t Chicago, but no one was seriously injured.

Fire at 305-313 Wabash avenue, Chicago, caused a loss of $330,000. Guests in nearby hotels were much exercised.

Mrs. T. N. Horn, her daughter Frances and Miss McMahon of Nyack, were drowned while sailing off Sandy Hook.

While endeavoring to locate a leak in a gas pipe at St. Louis, Robert Gols was seriously injured and his wife and daughter killed by an explosion.

Robert Holbrook, an aeronaut, while 400 feet in the air, committed suicide by falling in the presence of several thousand people at Mt. Vernon, Ill.

By the burning of the general offices, shipping department and wholesale department of Swift & Co.'s plant at Chicago, a loss of $500,000 resulted.

Miss Mabel Ward made her first balloon ascension at Woonsocket, R. I. She lost her seat in the parachute basket and fell sixty feet, receiving fatal injuries.

While at dinner at Chicago, Mrs. Caroline Demor and family were buried beneath the ruins of their two-story brick house, which mysteriously collapsed.

A large tank barge, owned by the Tidewater Oil company of Bayonne, N. J., has turned turtle in the East river, opposite the foot of East Thirtieth street, New York. Between 400 and 500 barrels of molasses was spread over the surface of the river.

A fire, starting from an unknown source, in Uttings' storehouse, Plattsburg, N. Y., burned the blocks of W. W. Uttings, W. M. Levin, Catherine Foy, James Hyney, Barber & Co. and other small business places. Loss, $125,000. Soldiers from the barracks assisted in stopping the spread of the flames.

Eldridge Finkle, fifteen years old, and his sister, thirteen, saved a train on the Poughkeepsie & Eastern railroad from being wrecked, by flagging the locomotive just in time to prevent it from rolling upon spreading rails, which would have thrown the engine and six cars down a steep embankment.

General.

A $1,000,000 water power plant is planned at Joliet by a syndicate, along the drainage canal.

The wife of Archibald Watt, a prominent clubman of New York, asks for a divorce, naming a Boston girl as co-respondent.

The Lowe Coke and Gas Securities company has organized at Dover, Del., with $30,000,000 capital, to manufacture gas from coke.

Only twenty-two railroads in the United States, and those unimportant ones, are in receivers' hands, according to the Railway Age.

Sixteen students at the Northwestern University, Chicago, have formed a non-kissing society, and elected Prof. Cook an honorary member.

The transport Logan, with 1,104 enlisted men, twenty-seven prisoners, eight insane and seventy-seven sick, arrived at San Francisco from Manila.

Hotel Bedford, Bedford City, Va., which will accommodate 250, has been purchased for an Elks' home for aged and indigent, and will be opened on Oct. 1.

The keel of the battleship Nebraska was laid in Seattle recently, the first rivet being headed by Governors Savage and McBride, of Nebraska and Washington.

The plea of President Gompers for the reinstatement of Typographical Union No. 16, of Chicago, was of no avail, the union being defeated by a vote of 116 to 101.

It is estimated that 1,000,000 people will be represented at the American Federation of Catholic societies, which convenes at Chicago Aug. 5, for a session lasting three days.

Encroachments of cattlemen are reported to be causing trouble with Indians in the Choctaw nation, and over 400 cattle have been mysteriously killed during the past week.

After four years, the great sixteen-inch gun, which has been in course of construction at the Watervliet arsenal, near Troy, N. Y., is completed. It throws a 2,000-pound shell twenty-one miles.

The Denver & Rio Grande Railway company carried two actresses through to San Francisco in an otherwise empty Pullman car, because they refused to transfer to another car on through tickets.

At a meeting at Portland, Or., of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Lewis and Clark exposition a preliminary report was made in favor of the city park as a site for the fair.

The Democratic executive committee of the Fifth congressional district of Tennessee has declared Hon. James D. Richardson the nominee for re-election to congress. Mr. Richardson had no opposition.

The Federal Sugar Refining company, which was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey recently, with a capital of $50,000,000, proposes to establish a chain of refineries throughout the United States.

All unskilled workmen at the Pueblo steel works of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company at Pueblo, Colo., were notified of an advance of 10 cents in daily wages. These men number about 1,500. The advance was voluntary on the part of the company.

The socialists of Kansas at their state convention at Topeka adopted a platform and nominated a full state ticket. A. S. McAllister, an engineer of Herington, was unanimously named for governor, and John M. Parr, a Topeka house painter and decorator, for lieutenant governor.

STILL FAR APART

SMALL HOPE FOR A SETTLEMENT OF FREIGHT HANDLERS' STRIKE.

WILL BE A FIGHT TO A FINISH

APPARENT LACK OF SINCERITY IN EFFORT TO SETTLE CONTROVERSY.

TEAMSTERS TAKE HAND IN IT

THEY TAKE ALL TEAMS OFF THE FREIGHT DEPOTS—LONGSHOREMEN'S GRIEVANCES.

Chicago, July 15.—Final overtures for the settlement of the strike of freight handlers and teamsters were made at meetings of the two unions last night. At the instigation of the members of the Chicago board of arbitration the freight handlers agreed to send committees to all the railways to-day. This agreement was made after the board had announced to the union men that eight of the largest railroads entering Chicago had agreed to pay 17 1-2 cents an hour to truckers and pay for overtime and to do away with the demand for a probationary period of service.

The general managers of two railroads agreed to no such proposition. They agreed that when the committees shall visit the railway offices this morning the roads will offer them the same terms as those which were rejected by the union men Saturday. The statement of these general managers destroyed the hope of a settlement of the strike to-day on a basis of terms suggested by the general managers of the other roads.

Little Chance of Settlement.

Even if the general managers had not insisted upon maintaining their position it is not probable that a settlement could be effected. The freight handlers agreed to make another effort to reach a settlement with the railroads only to please the teamsters, who previously had indorsed the attempt of the board of arbitration to settle the strike. There is an apparent lack of evidence of sincerity in the attempt to make a serious effort to settle the controversy.

President Curran of the freight handlers union stated that the committees will insist on the payment of 18 cents an hour instead of 17 1-2 cents, which the railroads are reported to have offered. He also stated that the freight handlers will make no more overtures, and hereafter will reject all proposals which shall not stipulate for the payment of the wage scale as formulated by the union and the recognization of the union.

With the general managers and unions both maintaining these respective positions it is believed that there is slight chance for a settlement to-day, and that when this opportunity shall have vanished it will be

A Fight to a Finish.

Every teamster union that has members handling freight in Chicago, voted yesterday to take teams off the freight depots. The 'longshoremen of Chicago, who have been only partly organized, were formed into a union yesterday. They are in sympathy with the freight handlers, but may inaugurate an independent strike of their own if an advanced scale for loading and unloading big lake steamers is refused.

Ice haulers have agreed not to ice refrigerator cars nor to visit railway yards. This is virtually a sympathetic strike, and until the railways shall settle the trouble with the freight handlers the ice storage points along the railway lines will have to be closed.

The coal teamsters at a meeting yesterday determined that no men of the union shall go near the railroad freight sheds during the strike. While there is little likelihood of coal teamsters being asked to haul from the freight sheds, they resolved to be prepared for such a contingency by refusing to touch any articles unloaded from freight cars by non-union laborers.

ARCHBISHOP FEEHAN DEAD.

The Distinguished Chicago Prelate Passes Away After Long Illness.

Chicago, July 15. — The Most Rev. Patrick A. Feehan, for twenty-two years Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago, died at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon of heart failure. Death occurred at the archiepiscopal palace, North street and North avenue. For more than a year the archbishop had been in poor health. Much of his time had been passed in the quiet of his country house at Feehanville, and for months much of the executive business of the church has been out of his hands. Some time ago, for the purpose of relieving him of the onerous duties of his office Father P. J. Muldoon was appointed auxiliary bishop of Chicago. This position is not in the line of succession, and it does not follow that Bishop Muldoon will take the place of the archbishop.

BISHOP POTTER ENGAGED.

Prelate Succumbs to Charms of Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark.

New York, July 15.—The engagement of Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., bishop of New York, to Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark of this city and of Cooperstown, N. Y., is announced. Mrs. Clark is a well known philanthropist and patron of art. Bishop Potter is now in Europe. The date of the marriage has not yet been settled.

J. J. HILL DODGES SEA SERPENT.

Aquatic Monster in Halifax Harbor Forces Yacht to Get Out of Way.

Halifax, July 15.—A sea serpent that measured 200 feet in length was observed by pilots off Cranberry Head. It is alleged to have come near the entrance of the harbor and then passed on to the north. The American steam yacht Wacouta, with J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, and his party, was coming into the harbor at the time and was obliged to haul out of the serpent's way.

TO GET GREENE AND GAYNOR.

State Department Takes Steps to Secure Extradition.

Washington, July 15. — Steps have been taken by the state department for the extradition to the United States of Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. Benjamin D. Greene, now under arrest at Quebec, Can. A formal requisition for their extradition has been made by Secretary Hay to Mr. Raikes, charge d'affaires of the British embassy, who is now at Newport and who, it is expected, will cable the request promptly to his government. The grounds on which extradition is asked are comprehensive in character. This action of the state department is independent of the proceedings now in progress to obtain the extradition of the men through ordinary judicial process. The secretary has not yet acted on the suggestion of the department of justice that there were obstructions placed in the way of the Canadian proceedings by reason of connections between counsel for Greene and Gaynor and crown officers.

BIG THEFT IS CHARGED.

Commission Firm's Confidential Clerk Is Arrested.

Chicago, July 15.—A desire to acquire wealth through trades in grain and deals on the stock exchange led Benjamin C. Jolley, a bookkeeper in the margin department of the Ware Commission company, 34 Van Buren street, to embezzle $20,000 from his employers, it is charged. Jolley has been arrested and locked up in the county jail in default of bonds of $10,000. The prisoner was taken before Justice Prindiville, who set the hearing for Tuesday. Jolley denies the charge against him. Years of service with the company gave him the confidence of the officials, and he is said to have had full charge of the books in his department. This made it possible, the officials say, for the bookkeeper to conceal for a long time his operations.

QUEER CASE OF NEW YORK GIRL.

Recovers Her Mind After a Mental Lapse of Two Months.

Terrell, Tex., July 15. — The young woman, Miss Ada Barker, who was brought to the state insane asylum here by the sheriff of El Paso county a week ago in a supposedly demented condition, has so far recovered that she remembers having left her home in New York during the latter part of May for the Galveston carnival. After reaching Galveston Miss Barker's mind is a blank until within the last few days. The young woman was well supplied with money on leaving New York, and still retains a portion of it. She has written relatives in New York apprising them of her whereabouts and condition. Physicians pronounce her case one of double consciousness on recurrent dementia.

FAMILIES MOVING AWAY.

Driven From Homes by the High Water.

Lawrence, Kan., July 15. — Ninety feet of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe track was washed away yesterday by water rushing over the banks of the Kaw river. The previous breaking of the track across the eastern arm of the lake just formed had not been repaired and a work train was caught between the two breaks without coal of water. The country east of the lake is badly flooded and many families are moving away. The river here is three inches higher than it was Saturday. It broke through its north bank a mile north of here yesterday, and is now giving the Union Pacific railway cause for alarm.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

No News From the Steamers Portland and Jeanie.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 15.—The steamship Oregon, from Dutch Harbor July 4, brings no news from the missing steamers Portland and Jeanie, long overdue at Nome. Many searching vessels have returned with absolutely no tidings from the overdue steamers, and the belief becomes more unavoidable that each has been crushed in the ice and all on board have perished. The Oregon was forced to return with a jury rudder, her own steering gear having broken down on the second day after the vessel left the sound.

THE BOAT LEAKED.

Two Boys Drowned Before Rescuers Can Reach Them.

Detroit, Mich., July 15. — Two boys, Anthony Rakhaup, aged sixteen, and Adolph Eudeller, aged 18, residents of this city, were drowned yesterday in Cass Lake, a small body of water about twenty-five miles from here. In company with May Welsler they were rowing. The boat began leaking and finally tipped over before they could reach shore. The girl was saved, but both boys sank before rescuers could get to them.

CLUBS ARE TRUMPS.

Polish Strike-Breakers Driven Out of an Ohio Town.

Marino, Ohio, July 15. — A mob of union men and indignant citizens armed with clubs congregated at the Malleable Iron company's shops and drove twenty-six Poles, imported from Cleveland to take strikers' places, from the town.

ROASTED ALIVE.

One Killed and Two Injured by Explosion of Thresher's Boiler.

Mound Ridge, Kan., July 15. — The boiler of a threshing machine engine exploded near here, killing Anson Crippen and seriously injuring John Fireen and Charles Mapleton, farm hands. Crippen was literally roasted alive.

King Edward Doing Well.

London, July 15. — The progress of King Edward toward recovery is maintained and it is understood that he will be transferred to the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Portsmouth at noon to-morrow.

Miss Josephine Burnham, head of the English department of Brownell hall at Omaha, Neb., has accepted the chair of a similar department of Wesley college. She is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

DAY OF FUNERALS

VICTIMS OF THE MINE EXPLOSION ARE LAID TO REST AT JOHNSTOWN.

TOTAL FATALITIES REACH 114

MAY BE MORE BODIES IN THE MINE, BUT OFFICIALS THINK NOT.

EXPERTS MAKE AN INSPECTION

LOOK FOR CAUSE OF EXPLOSION, BUT DO NOT GIVE CONCLUSIONS.

Johnstown, Pa., July 15.—"We know where the explosion in the Rolling Mill mine occurred. We know what caused it. We know who caused it. If he were alive criminal action might reach him. He is dead undoubtedly. There is nothing sensational about the cause. I will only say that the explosion was not caused by a blast."

These poignant statements were made by Joseph A. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mines, last night, some time after hearing the report of his four district inspectors who made an official examination of the mine yesterday.

Mr. Roderick said: "There is nothing to conceal and everything known to me will be made public at the coroner's inquest, which will not be held for several days, or at least until Mine Bosses John Rotalick, Harry Rodgers and Thomas Foster are able to testify."

Casualties Number 114.

Johnstown, Pa., July 15.—After a consultation last evening with the four state mine inspectors summoned here to make a thorough inspection of the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company, James E. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mine inspection, dictated a notice to General Manager C. S. Price of the Cambria company, granting special permission to resume operations in all sections of the mine except the Klondike to-day. The Klondike workings will likely be closed for several days, until perfect security is assured through the bratticing of openings and repairs necessitated by the explosion.

Two more deaths of rescued victims have occurred. These deaths raise the total fatalities to 114, although the company's records have it one less. Much confusion has attended the compilation of the record.

May Be More Dead Bodies.

Mine Superintendent G. T. Robinson said last evening:

"I would not like to assert that there are no more bodies in the mine, but I don't think there are. There may be a few."

It is generally regarded as certain that the full extent of the disaster is now known. State inspectors say that the condition of all the workings are now free of gas and the almost perfect ventilating apparatus are rushing currents of pure air into the uttermost recesses of the subterranean workings. There has not been a single place outside of the old abandoned chambers that has not undergone the scrutiny of experts to pronounce everything in as good condition as could be asked or demanded. The men paid particular note to the ferreting out, if possible, the cause of the explosion and the fact whether the blame rests on any one now living, upon whom heavy punishment would light. Of course the inspectors would say nothing as to their discoveries. They will remain mute to the public on the subject until

Called Upon to Testify

at the inquest.

"I decline to say what my conclusions are since I have talked with the ones who were in to-day," said Mr. Broderick. "But I will say I consider the Rolling Mill mine a well conducted institution."

Most interest centered yesterday in the funeral obsequies which were scattered throughout the city. The black cloud of mourning was heaviest over Cambria City, where the foreign population dwells. Scenes of Saturday in this section were repeated, but only with sterner force. It was a grim fete day in which the number of participants was augmented by throngs the morning trains brought in.

All the churches of Johnstown paid more or less attention in their morning services to the disaster. Collections were lifted in many for the benefit of the bereft families of the poorer victims. Special masses were said in the Catholic churches.

CRISIS IN MINERS' STRIKE.

Everything Depends on the Convention This Week.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 15.—The tenth week of the great anthracite miners' strike may witness the crisis.

Everything now depends upon the national convention which meets at Indianapolis on Thursday. If the convention votes solid support to the hard coal miners now on strike the conflict with the operators may be prolonged indefinitely. On the other hand, should substantial support not be forthcoming, it may have a discouraging effect on the strikers, and the operators, taking advantage of it, may attempt to resume operations at some of the collieries. This is the concensus of opinion as expressed in operators and strike circles. No effort will be made by any of the large coal companies to start up any of their mines this week. Indianapolis must speak first before any move is made in that direction.

NAVAL MAN DROWNED.

Assistant Paymaster on the Franklin Loses His Life.

Norfolk, Va., July 15. — David P. Kronacher, assistant paymaster, U. S. N., stationed on the receiving ship Franklin, was drowned off Ocean View while en route to the launch Madge in a small boat.

George Washington Stephens, president and founded of the Moline Plow company, died at his home in Moline, Ill. He was eighty-three years old.

END OF THE STRIKE.

Both Sides in Freight Handlers' Difficulty Agree to Arbitration.

Chicago, July 12.—After another day spent in strenuous efforts on the part of freight handlers to extend the strike, and on the part of the business men of the city to settle it, it was announced last night that 9 o'clock this morning would see the end of the struggle, and the men back at work by noon. This time it is the Chicago board of arbitration which has the matter in hand, and it has received assurances from both sides that they will abide by the decision. The railroad managers, it is understood, while not agreeing to arbitrate their differences with their employes, will submit a proposition to the arbitration board which will be satisfactory to the striking workmen. After the strikers, at their meetings yesterday morning, voted to reject the terms offered by the railroad managers through F. W. Job of the state board of arbitration, the Chicago board of arbitration, of which Harry G. Selfridge is chairman, at once began work on the difficulty. The officers of the freight handlers' union were called into a conference held in the office of John C. Driscoll, secretary of the team owners' association, and there adopted a resolution agreeing to submit their case to arbitration and abide by whatever decision was reached. After the board had got the consent of the executive board of the freight handlers' union to abide by whatever decision might be reached, the business men at once got busy with the railroad managers to get a like concession from them.

SHORTS SEEK TO ESCAPE.

Talk of Injunction Against the Gates Crowd.

Chicago, July 12.—July corn closed 4 cents lower yesterday and the pit was full of wild rumors of steps about to be taken to stop the operations of the Harris-Gates clique, which has been lately dealing out severe punishment to shorts. Just before the close rumors began to go the rounds in the corn crowd that the manipulations of the bull crowd were to be stopped by some unknown means. It was said that they have "gone the limit," and that in the interest of the Chicago board of trade and business in general a halt was to be called on further inhuman squeezing of shorts. The first report was that certain parties were trying to get an injunction against the Harris-Gates people, preventing them from buying corn here at 85 cents and selling it at 65 cents at Buffalo. This gained little credence. It was not believed that any one would try to get an injunction on such foolish grounds, or that any court would grant it. It is also generally believed that the selling of corn at Buffalo for 65 cents is a "bluff" and that the corn being sold there at that price was bought some time ago at 59 cents. Later the rumors lacked the definiteness of the first one. It was in the air, however, that somewhere and somehow decided steps were being taken to stop the unnatural conditions prevailing in the July option. Just what they were could not be learned.

NO GENERAL STRIKE.

Not Believed That Soft Coal Miners Will Quit.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 12.—President Mitchell of the miners' union is making active preparation for his trip to Indianapolis, where a special national convention of the union will be opened next Thursday. He will leave here on Saturday. On Monday he will deliver an address at the annual convention of the International 'longshoremen's union in Chicago, and will go to Indianapolis Tuesday. Strike headquarters will be closed up here. The national convention will last three or four days. All the delegates from the hard coal field have been selected. President Mitchell will not discuss the probable action of the delegates. From the best information obtainable here, the indications at this time are that a general strike of all soft coal miners will not be ordered. Reports received from the West are to the effect that the bituminous men are strongly in favor of a heavy strike tax levy for the benefit of the fellow workers in this territory. There was no change in the strike situation yesterday.

BURNED BY MOLTEN METAL.

Ladle Filled With the Seething Stuff Is Overturned on Workmen.

Pittsburg, July 12.—Fifteen men were burned, one fatally and eight seriously, at the Homestead Steel works shortly after noon yesterday. The accident occurred at Furnace No. 40, in Hearth Mill No. 3. A ladle filled with molten metal was being lowered into the pit, when the drum of the crane broke and the seething metal was thrown over the unfortunate men. A panic followed and the men rushed from the mill, many with their clothing burning. Fortunately the workmen had their backs to the ladle when it overturned. This saved them from inhaling the flames, which would have been almost certain death. The cranes are inspected daily, and the cause of the break is not known.

Teachers Not Proselyting.

Washington, July 12. — Secretary Root has received a cablegram from Acting Gov. Wright in the Philippines making a general denial of the charge of proselyting by teachers among Catholic students in the Philippine schools. The cablegram shows a complete investigation was made of the allegations.

Shotgun Quarantine.

Indianapolis, July 12.—Fifty farmers from Rush county have formed a cordon around the village of Knightstown, each armed with a shotgun, and no resident of the town is allowed to leave the place. This is on account of smallpox, of which there are sixty cases in the town. Seven deaths have been reported.

Death in a Milk Tank.

Galesville, Wis., July 12.—The lifeless body of Anna Hagan was discovered hanging over a milk tank and face downward in the water, on the farm of Nels Jentland, near here. She was subject to fits and probably fell during one.

Maj. Byers Is Hurt.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 12.—Maj. S. M. Byers, a well known author who was appointed by President Grant as consul at Berne, Switzerland, and served twelve years, was thrown from a horse and dangerously injured.

SENATOR NELSON'S ADDRESS

Opening Gun of the State Campaign Fired by the Senior Senator.

United States Senator Knute Nelson, when introduced as temporary chairman of the convention, made the following address, outlining the issues now before the people and [illegible] attitude upon them of the Republican party. He said:

You have not forgotten, and all of you well remember, the critical, hard, and unpromising times of 1896.

The country was still suffering from the industrial and financial stagnation and depression which began and continued under Cleveland's administration. The country was full of mechanics and laboring men of all classes, idle and without work. Money, through want of confidence, was out of circulation, and hard to earn, to acquire or to borrow.

The industrial, the financial and the business world was stagnant, stood paralyzed and in dread of the future. And the great masses of the people were suffering, restless and pining for a way out of the difficulties by which they were surrounded, but with no clear purpose, and in many cases, undecided as to the proper road to take.

It was at such a time and under such conditions that the Democratic party—hoping, that out of the stagnant chaos and despair then prevailing, they might secure political success, and being willing to secure victory and power at any cost—came before the American people with their startling and dangerous program, declaring in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, seeking to array labor against capital, and depreciating the protection, by the courts and the executive, of property against lawlessness and disorder.

And their program and policy was, as you will remember, emphasized and intensified by the declarations, promises and animus of their standard bearer. Whatever ambiguity there may have been in any paragraph of the platform was cleared up and made plain by the candidate.

It was at this juncture, and under these conditions, that the Republican party, ever mindful of the welfare and best interests of the American people, accepted the gauge of battle and took up the defense of sound money, declared its readiness to foster and protect, in harmony, both capital and labor, and to preserve and defend both against anarchy, lawlessness and disorder.

When the issue was first joined in that campaign the Democratic party felt confident of success, for at the outset it seemed as though their new gospel had captured the masses of the people. And there were many good men in the country who were alarmed at the prospect and fearful of the result. The very boldness and revolutionary character of the Democratic platform and candidate were paralyzing and awe-inspiring.

But the Republican party, under the leadership of one of its best and noblest men—William McKinley—opened and carried on a campaign of education, and appealed with faith and energy to the conscience and good sense of the American people. Loyalty to the true interests of the country and faith in the intelligence and sober judgment of the masses were the fountain and cornerstone of the Republican campaign.

The effervescence which existed immediately after the Chicago convention gradually disappeared as men began to think, to reason, and to see the dangers of silver monometallism with incidental contraction, and the danger of arraying labor against capital, and thus paralyzing and jeopardizing both.

The tide was stemmed, the creed and gospel of the Republican party bore fruit and in November the American people, under the banner of the Republican party, gained a great and glorious victory, and were saved from one of the greatest perils that had confronted the country

SINCE THE DAYS OF THE GREAT REBELLION.

The result of the election was no sooner known than the country seemed to awake to a new being—and to a new life. The nightmare of Democracy was past and the rejoicing was not alone confined to the victim.

When the war of the great Rebellion was over, and the fervor of battle had ceased, quite a number of the vanquished in their innermost hearts, were glad that the Union was saved.

So, when the great political struggle of 1896 was over, there were many men who, from the force of habit, or who like drowning men grasping for a straw, had voted the Democratic ticket, who were nevertheless, when the heat of the strife had subsided, happy in the result and silently rejoiced in the success of the Republican party.

Time and more than five years of Republican rule have but served to emphasize the great advantages and the great blessings that have come to the country as a result of that victory.

But the Republican party has not only stayed the hand of the destroyer, it has also, to a large extent and in a material degree, by judicious legislation and administration, fostered and promoted the industrial and economical life and development of the country.

The Democratic tariff law of 1894, which for lack of discriminating protection, bred industrial stagnation, and was also insufficient as a revenue provider, gave way to the Republican tariff act of 1897, passed at a special session called by President McKinley for that purpose immediately after his inauguration.

Whatever criticism may be pronounced on some of the provisions of this act—and no tariff act can escape or is above all criticism—it is certain that but for the then unforeseen Spanish war, it would have provided the country with ample revenue for its current expenses; and it is also certain, and amply demonstrated by our experience, that under its flag our country has enjoyed the greatest and most pronounced commercial and industrial revival and continued prosperity in all our history.

Our total foreign commerce—exports and imports—from 1893 to 1897, inclusive—a period of five years—amounted to $8,878,765,020, with a balance of trade in our favor for the entire period of $653,121,830; while our total foreign commerce from 1897 to April, 1902, a period of four years and nine months, was $10,080,749,877, with a balance of trade in our favor upon the same, of the enormous sum of $2,756,730,661, or an annual average of $580,364,391.

It is this rapid and immense growth of our foreign trade—especially the great balance in our favor—that has alarmed and frightened so many countries of Europe. They fear and see in it—and well they may—a loss of their industrial and commercial supremacy, and its departure to and vesture in the great republic of the West.

American products of the farm and factory, under the momentum of enlarged production, resulting from a good home market, are invading with irresistible force all countries of the civilized world. And this is merely the overflow of our production over the home demand.

The domestic trade of our country since 1897, resulting from our great industrial revival and increased productive capacity, has more than kept pace with our foreign commerce, and has increased with even greater force and volume. Capital has been and still is abundant; and labor finds no lack of employment at fair wages. And in many industries the demand for the output is in excess of and outruns the productive capacity. Many mills and factories have received orders for months in advance of the time in which they can be filled. And there have been many instances and localities where there has been a scarcity of labor.

This high degree of prosperity among our own people is all the more remarkable because it occurs at a time when many of the countries of the Old World are suffering from industrial stagnation, which is attested by the fact that immigration is pouring to our shores from those countries in greater volume than ever.

All this shows the solid basis and foundation on which our industrial life rests, and also shows the great value of

OUR PROTECTIVE SYSTEM

in its entirety and as a whole. The important and needed tariff legislation for 1897 was supplemented and given new vigor by the currency act of March, 1900, making gold the standard unit of value, providing for the refunding of our bonded debt in new 2 per cent bonds, and providing for the increase of our national bank currency by allowing circulation up to the par value of the bonds deposited, and by permitting the establishment of banks with only $25,000 capital in the smaller towns, thereby decentralizing the system, and bringing banking facilities near to the homes of the people.

This act extinguished the silver heresy, and put us once for all on a gold basis. The refunding of the debt provided for in the act has proved a great success. On the 31st of May, 1902, our bonded debt amounted to $931,070,340, and of this $435,940,750 was in the new bonds, thus reducing our interest charge by several millions.

On the 14th of March, 1900, when this act was passed, there were in existence 3,617 national banks, with a capital of $616,308,095, and with an outstanding circulation of $251,402,730, and on the 19th of May this year there were 4,491 banks, with a capital of $676,920,695 and a circulation of $357,115,386, of which banks 670 were of the smaller class provided for in the act. It thus appears that there has been an increase of 877 banks, $60,610,000 in capital and $102,712,656 in circulation since March, 1900.

Our treasury is in the most prosperous condition—the envy and wonder of other nations.

The fiscal year ending yesterday closed with a surplus of revenue over expenditures of $90,000,000, in round numbers, and on the 30th day of June, 1902, there was in the treasury over and above all current liabilities, and over and above the $150,000,000 gold redemption fund, a balance of nearly $200,000,00.

During Cleveland's administration we were a debtor nation, suffering with gold withdrawals to Europe, and had great difficulty, and had to borrow, to maintain the gold redemption reserve.

Since those days, under Republican auspices, we have become a creditor nation, the large balance of trade has turned the tide of gold to our shores in great abundance, and we have become the financial center of the world. Money is plentier and interest lower here than in any other country, and to-day our country dominates the financial and industrial world. Under the leadership of Washington we gained our political independence, and under the leadership of McKinley and Roosevelt we have gained our industrial and financial independence.

One of the important and engrossing questions pressing the American people in recent years, and at the present time is that of trusts and monopolies, and how to regulate and control them so as not to become oppressive and our masters. We are living in the midst of an economic and industrial revolution. Old methods, on a numerous, but in each case limited, scale have given way to new methods on an enlarged and more concentrated scale.

The tendency of the age is combination and concentration, and where the chief object of this is to lessen the cost of production so as to cheapen the most to the consumer and not to obtain a monopoly, suppress competition or check the reduction of price to the consumer, the public will not be injured and has no fair ground for complaint.

But a combination which becomes in one form or another an absolute monopoly, or nearly such, shutting off all substantial competition, is in its very essence a menace and a danger, because of human selfishness and human greed common to all, as it places the public at the mercy and under the heels of a single concern. None of us would like to be the subject of an absolute monarch, however gentle, kind and humane he might be, because we would be in his power, subject to his whims and his caprice at all times.

Charles J. Bonaparte, the eminent lawyer of Baltimore, at the great conference of trusts held in Chicago in September, 1899, clearly stated the case, and the distinction in the following language:

"If, therefore, the combination of producing agencies doth not affect the freedom of competition, the consumer will benefit by the reduction in the cost of production thereby caused; if the combination creates a virtual monopoly the consumer will not ordinarily benefit by the decrease of cost; on the contrary, the tendency of such a combination is to increase the price whilst reducing the cost of the product."

The Republican party has not been unmindful of its duty

TO PROTECT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

from the dangerous consequences of monopolies so far as the same can be done by legislation. In 1890, during the administration of President Harrison, congress was Republican in both branches, the so-called Sherman anti-trust law was enacted, prohibiting monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade, in interstate commerce, which law is substantially the only anti-monopoly legislation on our federal statute books.

In passing upon cases brought under this law, the supreme court of the United States has, in substance, held that under the Federal Constitution congress has no power to regulate combinations or monopolies in manufacture as distinguished from combination or monopoly in traffic, and no power to regulate or control combination or monopoly in other than interstate traffic, and that the power of regulating combinations or monopoly in manufacture and local traffic rests with the several states and not in the federal government.

From this it is apparent that the act of 1890 has substantially exhausted the power of congress in the premises; and it is far from affording adequate relief. There are forty-five states in the Union, no two of them with similar anti-monopoly legislation, and some of them with none at all. A combination or monopoly in production and manufacture, affecting the welfare of the entire country, can thus exist unchecked and untrammeled in any one of the states, from which the people of the other states suffer and against which they can obtain no protection. Besides it is oftentimes difficult to separate the consequences and effect of local traffic from interstate traffic. If the injuries which a monopoly can inflict were limited to the state under which it exists and has its seat, then there would be no harm in leaving it to the exclusive control of such state, but where such a monopoly extends its operations throughout the entire country, then it is evident that the scope of the relief and protection ought to be coextensive with the injury and harm that can be done.

A monopoly, national in its scope and consequences, should for the protection of the entire people be subject to national control. Whoever seeks to enjoy national protection and national advantages should also submit to national inspection and regulation. Protection in such cases should be mutual.

In the light of these facts that these necessities, clear to those who have studied the subject, and with a view of giving congress ampler power to control monopolies and hostile combinations, the judiciary committee of the house of representatives, in the Fifty-sixth congress, reported a joint resolution proposing the following amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

Section 1. All powers conferred by this article shall extend to the several states, the territories, the District of Columbia, and all territories under the sovereignty and subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Sec. 2. Congress shall have power to define, regulate, control, prohibit, or dissolve trusts, monopolies or otherwise.

The several states may continue to exercise such power in any manner not in conflict with the laws of the United States.

Sec. 3. Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of this article by appropriate legislation.

When this resolution was put on its passage on May 31, 1900, nearly every Republican voted for it and nearly every Democrat voted against it. It failed to pass for want of two-thirds majority, which was lacking because of the united opposition of the Democratic party.

Our state legislature, when the Republicans were in a majority and under a Republican executive, for the purpose of preventing a monopoly in railroad transportation, in 1874, passed the following law:

"No railroad corporation, or the lessees, purchaser or managers of any railroad corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchise of such corporation with, or lease or purchase, the works or franchise of, or in any way control any other railroad corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line; nor shall any officer of such railroad corporation act as an officer of any railroad corporation owning or having the control of a parallel or competing line, and the question whether railroads are paralleled or competing lines shall, when demanded by the complainant, be decided by a jury as in other civil issues." And in 1881 the following law:

"No railroad corporation shall consolidate with, lease or purchase or in any way become the owner of or control any other railroad corporation or stock, franchise rights or property thereof which owns or controls a parallel or competing line."

These laws, which I have quoted and referred to, clearly express the public will and the public demand; and you are all familiar with the fact—and it is now a matter of public history—that President Roosevelt has not suffered the federal law, nor Gov. Van Sant the state laws, to remain obsolete or a dead letter.

I am confident, however, and feel fully justified in saying to you that neither of these high executive officials have been actuated by any feeling of ill will or hostility to our railroads or their able and public-spirited managers, but only by the sense of public duty to execute the laws on our statute books which laws they have taken an oath to support.

The builders and managers of our vast railroad systems in the Northwest have performed a great task and rendered a most noble and in settling and developing our great domain. They have followed with swift pace in the wake of the homestead settler and often preceded him. They have born many burdens and encountered great difficulties. They have brought good or fair transportation facilities within the easy reach of nearly all, in the farthest corner of the state, and whatever may be lacking in this respect they are fast supplying. In energy, perseverance and ability our great railroad men of Minnesota stand second to none of their kind in the entire country, and as such we are proud of them. We cherish no hostility to them and wish them no harm; but wish to live in harmony and in co-operation with them at all times.

IMPORTANT SERVICE

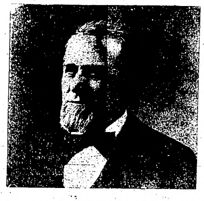
We are opposed to the consolidation—not so much because we fear that they would make a burdensome or hostile use of it as because we know that they are well along in years and may before a great while pass from our midst, and that then we would be at the mercy of a non-resident corporate body, composed of an army of non-resident stockholders, who will be more concerned about high dividends than low rates. Complete consolidation, whatever its purpose may be, becomes, nevertheless, in its essence a monopoly, and a complete monopoly necessarily involves absolutism, and this is repulsive to the great body of the people and is dreaded by them, in the realm of traffic no less than in the political world.



SENATOR KNUTE NELSON.

ANOTHER GREAT CHAPTER

of Republican history remains to be told. When President McKinley entered upon the duties of his high office, the oppressed and downtrodden people of Cuba had been for many years, with varying success, struggling to shake the yoke of Spain and to secure their independence. Cleveland's administration had turned a deaf ear to their appeals for assistance and had given them no material or moral aid. But President McKinley, faithfully representing the feeling and sympathy of the American people for the poor Cubans, without delay proceeded, through diplomatic channels, to energetically intervene in behalf of their independence, and I have no doubt but what such intervention would ultimately have been successful without war had not the sad and revolting catastrophe—explosion of the Maine—occurred in Havana harbor in February, 1898. That cruel and unprovoked act, with irresistible force, brought on the Spanish war, for which we were but poorly prepared.

But the patriotism of our people and the energy and resources of our government were such that in a few weeks we were in full battle array, both on land and on sea.

And the war, begun at Manila on the 1st day of May, was ended at Santiago on the 3d of July. It was a war glorious, short and most decisive. Spain relinquished her rights to Cuba and ceded to us the Philippine islands and Porto Rico. The people of these islands were forever relieved of Spanish bondage, tyranny and oppression.

More than two years ago we established a free and stable legislative government in Porto Rico, giving the people of the island the blessings of a free government akin to our own, and such as they had never enjoyed or dreamed of before. Courts untrampeled and open to all, bringing speedy justice within the easy reach of all have been established and are in operation. A system of free schools with school houses and competent teachers has been organized and established all over the islands. Roads have been graded and built in the interior and remote portions of the island, where only precarious bridle paths existed before. The people have recovered from the effects of the tornado and storms which devastated their island in 1899, and under a good government, and free trade with the States, have entered upon an era of prosperity most promising and encouraging for both them and ourselves. A million of people, oppressed and in a state of tutelage, have been regenerated and born to a new life under the Stars and Stripes. The very thought of it fills every patriotic American heart with thankfulness and pride.

And what have we not done for poor, bleeding Cuba. The ten-year insurrection had been suppressed with treachery and blood. A calm, born of despair, had supervened for a few years. Then, goaded beyond endurance, the poor people had again taken up arms for their independence and had bravely struggled against great odds with but slight prospects of success. And it was then that our nation came to their relief and smote their oppressor, a blow swift, sure and decisive, which forever extinguished the rule of Spain in the Western Hemisphere.

But the people of Cuba stood in great need of our further assistance before they could fairly come to their own, before they could secure a stable government and all the blessings which flow from it. And this assistance we have given them with a most intelligent and generous hand. They had not means, no stable government, or law or order. Their lands and their farms were devastated, dismantled and a waste, and their cities mere reeking with poverty, filth and pestilence. The mass of the people were pauperized, helpless, aimless and many of them mourners for the dead of their war. First of all we had to clothe and feed them, then establish a law and order, then aid them to embark in self-sustaining existence, then cleanse, purify and render immune from pestilence their cities and towns, and then, last of all, aid them to establish a safe and stable republican form of government.

All this we have done and accomplished with patience and great skill, in full measure, and we have launched among the republics of the world a sister republic, hopeful, buoyant and full of life. Three years of tutelage under the Stars and Stripes have given the people of Cuba a training in self-government most valuable and blissful. Never was mother kinder to her daughter than America has been to Cuba. Who can now doubt the wisdom, the unselfishness and the magnanimity of the great republic?

Cuba and Porto Rico are both most happy in a new existence and a new life. And what we have accomplished for them we shall in some form, though less rapidly, because the conditions are different, accomplish for the Philippine islands.

We entered upon the Spanish war to free Cuba, but when it was over we found ourselves in occupation of Porto Rico and the Philippine islands, our sense of duty and our sense of justice forbade us to return them to the clutches of Spanish tyranny and oppression.

The problem was even more pressing and unavoidable in the case of the Philippine islands than Porto Rico, more brutal and cruel because the people were not of the same race, were only in part civilized, were composed of several races and many tribes—from the savage Moros and imbecile and dwarfish Negritoes to the Tagals and cunning Chinese Mistazoes—a very babel of humanity, lacking all cohesion, all the elements of nationality and all experience in self-government, or indeed any government at all, save the despotism of Spain.

To abandon these untutored and heterogeneous masses to the further rule of Spanish brutality seemed rather cruel and shocking to our sense of right and justice. To abandon them absolutely in their then condition and helplessness, to themselves seemed even more reckless and unjust, both to them and to us, for it would have led them irresistibly into dire confusion, chaos and self-destruction, and ultimately and swiftly to their seizure and exploitation by one or more of the great powers of Europe. Strong fleets of foreign powers were there ready to move in the moment we moved out.

A great nation can no more afford to evade or shirk a great moral responsibility than an individual. And the conscience of a republic such as ours is but the counterpart of the conscience of the people, incarnate and untarnished. There was but one honorable, manly and just course, under the stress of the facts, to take. And that was to accept a cession of the islands, pacify them, civilize them and establish law and order and a good government for them.

President McKinley was at first loath to insist on a cession; but when the great moral problem, in all its length and comprehended it, the path of justice and breadth, dawned upon him and he fully duty seemed plain to him. He was no moral coward, no evader of responsibility, and he represented a people who never falter, never shirk and never trim.

We owed it to ourselves, to the people of the Philippine islands and to the entire civilized world to do just what we did do. To have done otherwise would have rendered our nation a moral imbecile among the enlightened nations of the world.

At the time Dewey entered Manila Bay Spain was in undisputed possession and control of the islands. The insurrection which Aguinaldo and some of his associates had started in 1896 they had compromised and abandoned for money consideration in 1897 and had taken themselves to China, where they were living when Dewey steamed into the Bay of Manila. There was at that time no Philippine insurrection and no semblance of a Philippine army or Philippine government of any kind. Under the promise, which turned out to be a mere pretense, of helping our forces to expel the Spaniards, Aguinaldo and some of his associates, with the permission of Dewey, returned to Luzon and were furnished with arms and ammunition. But no sooner had they landed and secured arms than they proceeded to organize an army and set up a military government, all in hostility to our government rather than Spain. They were even ready at one time to join and co-operate with the Spaniards. This insurrection, thus started, and fed by the ignorant and savage lawlessness of the people, we have suppressed. Most of it, except in a few isolated parts and in the case of a few barbarous and savage tribes, and bands of ladrones or robbers, we suppressed more than a year ago.

A year ago our army in the islands numbered 50,000; we have but 32,000 there now, and by next fall expect to reduce our force to 12,000 men. A year ago the number of towns in which troops were stationed was 499; at this time the number is only 245, and, deducting from this the stations in Samar and Batangas, there are but 100 left, and these would be greatly reduced if more extensive quarters were found for the troops in the larger towns. In the meantime, under the Taft commission, we have successfully established civil government, with law and order, in most of the provinces. In thirty-five provinces civil governments are established and working most successfully, chiefly under native officials, while in nine provinces civil government is successfully carried on under military authority.

In thirty-five of the provinces a system of public schools has been established, with nearly 1,000 Americans and 4,000 native teachers, thus affording the people an opportunity for education such as they have never enjoyed before. They are eager to attend the schools and to learn English, and they learn with quickness and avidity. There are to-day American teachers in 200 towns and villages where there is not a single American soldier. With the exception of a few isolated and barbarious tribes and bands, and the Ladrones, the islands are to-day pacified, and law and order and civil government prevails. A civil government more just and liberal than ever enjoyed under Spanish rule.

Under a liberal tariff law, enacted by the Philippine commission and ratified and supplemented by an act of congress at this session, which eliminates the harsh features of Spanish taxation, ample revenues will be received to cover all expenses of the government of the islands, including the maintenance of a liberal system of public schools, the improvement of the highways and harbors and the neccessary sanitation of the country.

Congress has passed at this session an act giving an ampler and broader power to the commission for the establishment of civil government and the development of the islands. This act, among other things, provides for the survey, settlement and entry of the public lands and the opening and development of the mines and forests. There are in round numbers 72,000,000 acres of land in the islands, most of it rich and arable, with an abundance of timber. Of this amount 67,000,000 acres are public lands, and only 5,000,000 are private property, mostly church and friar land, farmed by natives, as laborers, or as tenants, at low wages or high and exorbitant rents. This system of church and friar ownership and farming is and has been most burdensome and odious to the natives, and was one of their greatest sources of complaint against the Spaniards.

Besides, under Spanish rule, few of the natives had secured titles to the lands they occupied. Most of them were mere naked squatters. With a view of relieving the people of the burdens of friar and church lands, the act referred to makes provision for securing by purchase or condemnation these lands and the disposal of them in forty-acre farms at cost price to the natives who occupy them. The act further provides that the natives may secure from the public lands without cost, title in fee, to the extent of forty acres in each case, of the lands they occupied and tilled before we became possessed of the country, and forty acres of that soil in that climate and with their productions makes a good and ample farm. In this way every family can secure a home of its own.

This free distribution of land, in fee, among the natives—a thing unknown under Spanish law—will do more than anything else to make the mass of the people happy, contented and law abiding. The sense of ownership begets a love of peace and a taste for law and order. With land ownership, a good system of public schools, and improved means of communication, the people will be in a position to become prosperous and fitted for local self-government.

Such, in brief, is what we have done, and in the immediate future aim to do, for the people who came to us as a legacy from Spain.

In our efforts to pacify, to civilize and to uplift them, and especially in our recent efforts of legislation in their behalf, we have, as you all know, encountered the bitter, prolonged and most unreasonable opposition of the Democratic party in congress.

They would have us lay down our task of justice and duty and would have us abandon the islands and their people to a hard and hopeless fate, while they are still helpless and in a state of economic and political childhood.

Those islands, which some of the Democracy, by their votes, for both treaty and compensation, helped us in securing, those islands, which our brave and valorous army and navy have occupied and been engaged in pacifying for the last three years, now that the hard drudgery has been done and peace, with law and order, has been restored and the people are about to be regenerated and born to a newer and better life, now, when all this great and necessary preliminary work has been done, they preach the gospel of scuttle and abandonment louder and fiercer than ever, thus belittling, as far as they can, the great results that have been accomplished and declaring it all fruitless and a failure, as they declared the war for the preservation of the Union a failure in 1864.

After acquiring the islands by as valid and just a method as we ever acquired any of our territorial acquisitions, after pouring out our blood and our treasure for them without stint, voluntarily and with well-nigh one accord, we are to treat them as a stranded wreck, as though we ourselves had been wrecked in them, and are to cast them adrift as an abandoned derelict at sea. This is the latest gospel of the militant Democracy.

What the American people have, in behalf of humanity and justice, by their valor, their treasure and their blood, acquired and held, they will never permit to be wrecked, scuttled or abandoned.

The task which under a high sense of justice and duty they assumed in 1898 they will faithfully carry out for the good of our entire country, and for the good of helpless and downtrodden humanity the world over.

In advocating their scheme of abandonment the Democracy have taken special delight and found a luxury in traducing our army by hunting for and proclaiming, with intense zeal and satisfaction, isolated cases and instances where some of our officers and soldiers, goaded by the cruelty and savagery of the enemy, have transcended the methods of civilized warfare. The fact that a few of our officers and soldiers have transgressed on the rules of war can have no valid bearing on the justice or wisdom of the policy of retaining the islands. Such transgressions occur and are liable to occur in any war, in fact occurred in the Civil war, and yet no one ever undertook to measure the justice of that war by isolated cases of cruelty on the part of a few men in our great army. Neither has it appeared or been shown that the president or the war department has been negligent in bringing before military courts, for investigation, trial and punishment, all cases of cruelty and uncivilized warfare brought to their attention.

These Democratic efforts to besmarch our army, to exploit a few of the shortcomings without giving it credit for its patience, its valor and its manifold acts of generosity and kindness, manifest a spirit of sheer partisan wantonness, unprovoked and unpatriotic, for they have no bearing on the policy of retention, nor are they justified by any negligence of the president or the war department in the premises.

President McKinley had himself participated in war, was familiar with all its hardships and drawbacks, and was a most humane and kind-hearted man. The same is true of President Roosevelt, and neither of them would for a moment tolerate or permit to go unpunished any acts of cruelty contrary to the rules and customs of civilized warfare.

The American army is a part of our own people, of the same race, training and blood. The rank and file are a fair representative of the average of our culture, the intelligence and the moral status of the American people, and as a whole superior in these respects to the rank and file of any other army. They are all, in a certain sense, volunteers, for we have no conscription or enforced military service in this country as they have in the old world. They are as humane and as kind-hearted as any troops ever marshaled in battle array. Their record in Cuba and in China bear undisputed witness to this fact; and in the Philippine islands, barring a few instances of cruelty provoked by the savage and barbarous methods of the enemy, their conduct has been, on the whole, brave, patient, kind and forbearing. The savage enemy has often mistaken this forbearance for fear or want of courage, and they have often encountered great perils and suffered maiming and slaughter because of their kindness, generosity and forbearance.

The Democrats have shifted their spleen against the policy of retention to a spleen against our little army in the islands. A true friend never takes pains to hunt for our short-comings or finds delight therein, but is ever ready to see and proclaim our good qualities. No Democratic orator in congress has found occasion to see or laud or make known any of the good and noble qualities of that army. He has uttered no kind or sympathetic word in its behalf. Such conduct is WORSE THAN UNPATRIOTIC.

It is positively cruel to our army. The lot of the soldier in war is most hard, dreary and trying. His scanty pay is no stimulant. It is the fact that he carries the flag and upholds the sovereignty and authority of our country in places where without him neither would exist that gives him heart to brave trial, hunger and danger. As our soldiers cluster around their bivouac at night after a long, weary march through swamp and jungle in pursuit of a treacherous and elusive enemy, with a scant supper, footsore and too tired to sleep, the one thing above all that cheers and comforts them is the thought that their country upholds them, cherishes and loves them, and takes a pride in them; in short, that the country's heart is wholly theirs for weal or woe.

To deprive the soldier of this cheer and comfort is heartless and brutal in the extreme, and the American people will never, for one moment, approve or tolerate it. He who assails our army assails our flag, and both are sacred and dear to every lover of his country.

"Brave boys are they, gone at their country's call."

And we shall never cease to cherish their patriotism, their bravery, their forbearance and their faithfulness.

The glory, the honor and the prosperity of our country at home and abroad under the leadership of President Roosevelt is safe in the keeping and charge of the Republican party. We shall meet and successfully solve the Philippine problem, as we have met and successfully solved every other great problem we have been confronted with since 1856. We shall in time plant the flag of liberty, order and good government as firmly in the distant Orient as here at home, and millions of oppressed and downtrodden humanity will worship and forever bless the great republic of the West.

The Platform.

The following is the platform in full:

The Republicans of Minnesota, assembled in state convention, reaffirm the platform adopted by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia in 1900, and pledge anew their loyal support to its principles.

We mourn the tragic death of our late president, William McKinley. As a citizen, soldier and statesman he yielded his best service to his country, won a place among the great leaders of the world and is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen.

We cordially indorse the able and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt. We are proud of his manly courage, his purity and his devotion to the interests of the entire country, and pledge him the earnest support of the Republicans of Minnesota in all his efforts to continue and advance the prosperity of the people at home and the glory of the republic abroad. It is therefore the sense of this convention that President Roosevelt succeed himself as president of the United States.

The Republicans of Minnesota lament the death of their peerless leader and statesman, Cushman K. Davis, since the last convention of our party in this state. He was a brave soldier, one of the purest, wisest and most trusted statesman, beloved by the people and had won an enduring fame by his illustrious service. We revere his memory and deeply mourn his loss.

We congratulate the people of Minnesota upon the patriotic and businesslike administration of Gov. Samuel R. Van Sant and other officials of the state. We especially commend the conscientious and faithful supervision by the governor of the state institutions. His official efforts have been continually directed to an earnest and upright administration of state matters.

Merger.

It has been the settled policy, as declared in the laws of this state for a quarter of a century, that competing lines of railway shall not be merged. We believe that the protection of the citizen and his property, as well as the safety of the state, rests in obedience to law, and we therefore heartily commend Gov. Van Sant in his efforts to enforce the laws of this state against the consolidation of competing lines of railway.

Taxation.

We are in favor of such legislation as will equalize as far as possible the burdens of taxation, and require all persons, corporations and property, to bear their just proportion of such taxation. The legislative branch of our government having decided that certain constitutional amendments are necessary before such legislation can be adopted, we pledge our party to support these constitutional amendments. We also pledge our party to support the proposed amendment increasing the gross earnings' tax of railroads to 4 per cent.

The Philippines.

We indorse the course of the administration in the establishment of peace and order and of civil government in the Philippine islands.

We favor the policy of encouraging the participation of the inhabitants of the Philippine islands in their domestic government to the largest extent practicable whenever peace and order are restored and they demonstrate intelligence, capacity and a desire for such responsibility.

The Army and Navy.

We condemn those who continue to resist the authority of the United States, either openly in the Philippines or secretly at home, and we condemn strongly the malignant attacks upon our army and navy which have won for the people of the United States, whether upon foreign or domestic soil or sea, imperishable fame.

Protection.

We adhere to the policy of protection. Under it our industries have developed, the opportunities for labor have been increased and our country has passed from a state of business depression and terrible suffering to the most remarkable activity and prosperity in the history of the world. We believe that protection and reciprocity are twin measures of Republican policy and success, or in other words, the correct application of reciprocity is protection.

Under this doctrine we favor such modification in our tariff schedules as is now, or may from time to time be required by changing conditions to remove any burdens from our people, and to hold and extend our trade among the nations.

Reciprocity.

We heartily favor the wider extension of our markets for the sale of all American products. To this end we endorse the policy of reciprocity as defined by President Roosevelt in his annual message to the Fifty-seventh congress when he said:

"Our first duty is to see that the protection granted by the tariff in every case where it is needed is maintained, and that reciprocity be sought for so far as it can be done without injury to our home industries."

And as defined by our late lamented president, William McKinley, in his last utterance to the people at Buffalo when he said:

"By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we should extend the outlet for our increasing surplus. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our own industries and labor."

The New Republic of Cuba.

We congratulate the new republic of Cuba upon its entrance among the nations of the earth. We wish for it peace, prosperity and a long and successful national career.

We favor reciprocity with Cuba urged by President Roosevelt, by a plan which shall ensure the profitable interchange of commodities, insure to the advantage of both nations, help the Cuban people needing assistance, but the chief benefits of which shall not enrich trusts, monopolies or foreign speculators, or which shall not interrupt our home production.

Trusts.

We recognize the necessity of co-operation in order to meet new conditions in the industrial world, and to compete successfully for the world's markets; but the combinations which stifle competition, limit production, control prices, or unduly increase profits or values, and especially when they raise the prices of the necessaries of life, are opposed to public policy and should be repressed.

We favor legislation, national and state, to prevent such abuses. We approve of the sincere and determined efforts of President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant to enforce the laws and demand that all administrative officers shall enforce the law in the most vigorous manner, so that legitimate competition shall not be embarrassed or destroyed.

Finance.

Our faith in the gold standard and the financial legislation of the Republican party has been amply justified by the wonderful strides of American industry and commerce, and in the universal confidence of the people in the ability of the government to meet every existing of future financial obligation.

Pensions.

We recognize as a continuing obligation of debt and gratitude due from the Republic to the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the life of the nation and those who won glory for its flag in the recent war with Spain, in the Philippines and in China. A proper recognition of this sacred obligation demands that liberal provision be made by pensions for the disabled survivors of these veterans, and the widows and orphans of those who are dead.

We favor the most stringent national and state legislation to suppress anarchy.

We favor the election of United States senators by the people.

Minnesota Delegation.

The Republican party of Minnesota for years past has had a just pride in its representation in the senate of the United States; and strongly indorses our present senators, Honorable Knute Nelson and Honorable Moses E. Clapp for their conspicuous and efficient service for our state and nation and believe that our welfare is best subserved by a continuance of their eminence and ability in their present high station.

The Republican party of Minnesota indorses its representatives from this state in congress, is proud of their ability, courage, independence and experience in shaping legislation, caring for the interests of our commonwealth, insisting upon the rights of its members and maintaining the interests of the producing classes of the West, bringing added glory and honor to the state they so ably represent.

Labor.

The Republican party of Minnesota recommends that eight hours should be considered a day's work on all works controlled by public authority. We favor the abolishment of Sunday labor where practicable. We earnestly solicit a better understanding between capital and labor and heartily indorse the approaching convention in Minneapolis where employers and employed will meet in friendly conference. We favor the use of the union label on state supplies wherever practicable.

GOV. VAN SANT'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

THE GOVERNOR ABLY DISCUSSES THE ISSUES OF THE COMING CAMPAIGN BEFORE THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The History of the Party Reviewed—Reciprocity Advocated as Being in Keeping With Its Traditions—The Excellent Financial Condition of the State and the Reduction of the Price of Binding Twine This Year Due to the Sound Business Administration of the Republican Party—The Problem of Taxation and the Merger Question Fully Discussed.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I am profoundly grateful for the distinguished honor conferred upon me by the representatives of the Republican party of Minnesota in convention assembled. For two years I have endeavored, as chief executive, to serve the people of our state to the best of my ability, and to have performed the duties of that position in such a manner as to meet with your approbation is most gratifying.

At this time it will not be inappropriate to discuss the issues involved in the coming campaign and to examine our past record. The Republican party was called into existence during tumultuous times. It has met every issue presented and settled it, and settled it properly. Slavery and disunion threatened the life of our government; with Lincoln, our first Republican president, at the helm, the nation passed that danger without shipwreck. Slavery was abolished and the Union was saved. The dangers of the reconstruction period were met and mastered, and polygamy, an evil that long disgraced us, was swept away forever. The repudiation of the debt incurred in the war of the Rebellion was avoided and every obligation was paid, dollar for dollar. The greenback craze was successfully resisted, and under the wise direction of that able financier, John Sherman, and in the face of fierce opposition, and while the whole world doubted, we resumed specie payments. And better than this even, with the aid of the sound money Democrats the free silver fallacy went down to everlasting defeat and the gold standard was established. As soon as we were restored to power, in 1897, we inaugurated policies which brought the country from the deepest gloom to the greatest prosperity. With a sound financial system and protection to our home industries we have now arrived at the golden age of American progress. In fact, with the adoption of our policies we have made the industrial conquest of the globe. We have placed another bright star in our diadem. While the lamented and beloved McKinley was our chief executive we determined no longer to permit the Spaniard to oppress the people of Cuba. Our president, supported by all parties and by the matchless valor of our soldiers and sailors, in one hundred days not only freed Cuba and drove the Spaniard from the continent forever, but gave greater liberty to millions across the seas. On the twentieth of May last a new republic was born and the nation's plighted faith was kept. Our party not only promises but performs. Cuba is not only our sister republic, but in a measure our ward, and I am sure that our great government will deal justly and liberally by her; and we should declare as our policy, "Woe unto the nation that would attempt to injure or destroy this young republic." With such a party in power there need be no fear that the people of Porto Rico or of the Philippine islands will be oppressed, for every man who claims the protection of our flag will have every right guaranteed him. I have no patience with the assaults made upon our army in the Philippines; it has performed its duty there and should be commended, not censured. There may have been atrocities committed, but not more than usually result from war. The American soldier needs no apology. The people will stand by him for he has ever been the hope and the safety of the nation. We have never had to depend upon hired help to defend the flag, for the American soldier has ever been ready to stand as a supporting column for the Stars and Stripes. While this record is one to be proud of, we should not be satisfied with our past glories, great as they are, but should meet the live questions of the day. The party of progress should not become the Bourbon party. We should not be satisfied to let well enough alone if we can better our condition. Growth is as essential to a party as to an individual or a nation. By reason of the industrial conquest mentioned a moment ago, new problems have arisen and new questions have to be solved. Will the party be equal to the emergency?

While a firm believer in the principle of protection, I also believe that our tariff laws should be revised. They should be changed to meet the new conditions; and any schedule not needed to protect our own people against foreign competition, or not required for raising the necessary revenue for the purpose of administering the affairs of the government, should be largely reduced, or removed altogether. How much better this revision by the party of protection than by its arch enemy, the Democratic party. The Democratic party has been tried. It made a miserable failure. Is our memory so short that we can forget the evils resulting from 1893-1897, when that party was in possession of all branches of the government? This was indeed the darkest period in our history. Closed factories, smokeless chimneys, idle men, misery and want the common lot of all. Let us profit by the terrible lesson and perform this work ourselves. In this way it can be accomplished without harm to our business interests and without a shock to our industrial system. We should also favor reciprocity. We must not only maintain our present market, but we must find new ones. We cannot hope to always sell and never buy. In pursuing such a policy we follow the footsteps of the great modern leaders of our party, Blaine, McKinley and Roosevelt.

I will not further discuss national issues as they have been so ably and fully presented by our distinguished senior senator, Hon. Knute Nelson.

For the term of forty years our party has been practically in control of all branches of our state government. So it can be said that all laws upon our statute books during that period were passed by Republican legislatures or signed by Republican governors. Among those that have resulted in great benefit to the people might be mentioned: Laws for the inspection of grain, laws for the supervision and control of the railroads and for the establishment and control of the commission, the laws creating the board of equalization, taxing corporations, drainage, and others.

It can be truthfully stated that there has not been a beneficent, legislative or official act in the interest of the people that did not have its origin in and that was not enacted into law by the Republican party or those chosen to represent it.

Our great growth and development as a state is so interwoven with the history of the Republican party that one cannot be separated from the other.

FINANCES.

The finances of the state are in a most excellent condition. After the recent Ohio Republican state convention one of the reasons urged for continuing that party in power was that under its wise management the credit of the state was so good that it could negotiate its bonds at 3 per cent. That is indeed a fine showing. But look at Minnesota! Our party has managed so well that we do not have to borrow at all; and we are able to build a $3,000,000 capitol without incurring $1 of bonded indebtedness. On the other hand, we have more than $8,000,000 of the bonds of other states in our strong box and all that we have to do to secure the interest is to cut off the coupons. But more valuable than the bonds, even, is the sum of $7,000,000 due on state lands, from counties, cities and townships. I say more valuable because the security is better than any state bond, and the rate of interest higher. The amount loaned since Jan. 1, 1901, is in excess of $1,250,000. Would you preserve this credit? If so, keep the Republican party in power.

THE STATE PRISON AND BINDING TWINE PLANT.

During the last campaign the management of the state prison, especially in connection with the binding twine plant, was constantly under discussion. It was claimed by our party that it was grossly mismanaged, and we promised, if given the opportunity, to remedy the evils and place the institution in the same excellent condition in which our political enemies found it.

Upon investigation it was found that unfavorable conditions existed in the management, and also that the year's business, then just closed, had not only resulted in a loss to the state, but that the manner in which the business had been carried on had proven very unsatisfactory.

DEMOCRATIC MANAGEMENT.

The principal complaints against the Democratic management of the state prison, and especially the twine plant, briefly stated, were as follows:

The prison twine was sold to the farmers in 1900 (the only year that the Democrats had full charge of the prison) at 10 cents per pound. This price being 2 or 3 cents per pound higher than they could have bought their twine for from local dealers.

The Democratic management did not guarantee prices, as former administrations had always done, or as the present prison management is doing and did do both last season and this season. This being the case, the option of canceling an order and the price guaranty being cut off, they were obliged to take the twine whether they had any crops to bind or not.

Much of the twine made was inferior in quality, short in length, uneven, bunchy and overloaded with oil.

In the operation of the twine plant during the season of 1900 (the Democratic year) the management of the prison twine plant was not only a detriment to the actual purchasers of the twine, in that they were obliged to pay at least 2 or 3 cents per pound more than they could have bought it for elsewhere from local dealers, but it was a damage to all other consumers of twine throughout the state for the reason that instead of tending to regulate or lower the prices by coming into active competition with independent cordage manufacturers, it kept prices up and made them even higher.

The state also lost money under the Democratic administration of 1900 by the purchase of a large amount of high-priced fiber at the closing period of that season, which had to be carried over and manufactured the following year.

The discipline of the institution, as affecting both officers and prisoners, was in a deplorable condition and gradually growing worse. This was clearly evidenced by the discovery of a plot on the part of two officers of the prison to assist a long-term convict to escape from the institution. The discovery of this plot having been made within three days after Warden Wolfer was reappointed. The officers were arrested and both convicted of the crime, one sentenced to the state reformatory and the other to pay a heavy fine.

The sale of the binding twine to consumers of that product in the state by the Democratic management in 1900, which amounted to something over 5,000,000 pounds, cost the farmers over $100,000 more than they would have been obliged to pay had they purchased the same grade of twine from their local dealers; at the same time, the twine purchased was inferior in both grade and quality.

The complaints as to the management of the twine plant under Democratic rule came from some of the best farmers throughout the state, and these complaints were general, regardless of party or party affiliations; viz: That the prices were too high; that they were not allowed to cancel their orders when crops failed; that the twine was inferior in grade and quality, that they were obliged to take it and pay for it whether they could use it or not; that the twine plant instead of being a benefit to the farmers of the state, as managed, was a positive detriment to them.

REPUBLICAN MANAGEMENT.

I succeeded in making such changes in the board of managers as to secure the reappointment of Warden Wolfer to that position on March 1, 1901, but there had already been considerable twine manufactured. Much of the twine made and in store was found upon examination to be inferior in quality. It was also found that there was about $30,000 in notes, taken by the former administration, which fell due in the preceding November, still uncollected.

The new management set about to remedy some of the evils of its predecessors, and these were overcome as expeditiously as possible, although some of the poor twine manufactured at the beginning of last season, or up to March 1, 1901, when the new warden took charge, together with the reputation made the preceding year, made it very difficult to dispose of last season's product, and in order to dispose of the twine and effect a clearance of the entire output Warden Wolfer was obliged to hire a large number of traveling salesmen. It was all sold, however, and the twine gave general satisfaction, except the poor twine that was made at the beginning of the season, just referred to, or before the change took place.

GREAT SAVING TO THE FARMERS.

There was manufactured in the season of 1901, something over 5,500,000 pounds of which 3,300,000 pounds were sold to the farmers of the state, and 2,280,000 pounds were sold to the dealers at the following prices, viz: 6½ cents per pound for sisal and standard; 8¼ cents per pound for mixed twine, and 9 1-4 cents per pound for pure Manila; an average of about 2 cents per pound below the prices at which twine of equal grade and quality was sold by the jobbers and manufacturers to the dealers of the state, which would make an actual saving of over $1,000,000 to the consumers of the state by the purchase of prison twine.

The competition caused by sale of the state prison twine at these figures also tended to lower the prices of twine sold in the state by other manufacturers, which resulted in a benefit to the consumers of binding twine in the state generally.

The profit on binding twine last season amounted in round numbers to $333,000. This was a clear profit after all expenses had been borne incident to the conduct of the twine plant.

SHOWING THIS YEAR IN FAVOR OF FARMERS BETTER THAN LAST SEASON.

The manufacture of binding twine for the season of 1902, which is now nearly closed, will show better results than the preceding season. Amount manufactured, 6,500,000 pounds, of which over 4,000,000 pounds are sold to the farmers of the state and 1,500,000 pounds to the dealers, at the following prices, viz: 9½ cents per pound for standard and sisal, 11¼ cents per pound for mixed twine, and 12 1-4 per pound for pure Manila.

The above prices at which the state prison twine was sold are 2 1-4 cents per pound cheaper than the twine is being sold by jobbers and manufacturers to dealers of the state. This will prove an actual saving in dollars and cents of at least $150,000 to the farmers of Minnesota who purchased prison twine the present season.

This, however, is not the only saving. All other consumers of twine that are obliged to purchase from dealers and other manufacturers will also be benefited in that the dealers are obliged to meet the competition of the prison twine, which has tended to regulate and lower the price.

The average amount of twine consumed in the State of Minnesota is about 18,000,000 pounds. I contend that the competitive or regulating tendency produced by the sale of prison twine keeps down the price on all the twine sold in this state at least 1 cent per pound. If this is so (and I believe it can be demonstrated) here is also a saving of $180,000; to this add the $150,000 saved to the consumers in the actual purchase price of the prison-twine the present season, and it shows a grand total of $330,000 for the season of 1902.

Notwithstanding the high ruling prices for both sisal and Manila fiber for the last year, fiber was purchased at prices that not only made it possible to sell the binding twine for fully 2 1-4 cents per pound under the ruling market price, but it has at the same time made a clear profit of over $40,000. This was made possible by the warden going to Yucatan, Mexico, to make contracts and final arrangements for the purchase of sisal hemp direct from the hemp planters of Yucatan through a local agent. This move resulted very satisfactorily and has been the means of making this year's business much more profitable than it otherwise would have been.

All of the protecting features to the consumers put into practice last year, and which were so noticeably absent or refused during the Democratic administration, were also carefully followed out this season, viz: Privilege to cancel orders any time before shipment is made; prices guaranteed; quality of twine guaranteed; grades of twine guaranteed both as to length and quality of fiber.

BRIEF HISTORY OF TWINE PLANT FROM BEGINNING.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars was originally provided by the state legislature as a revolving fund for carrying on the twine plant. No other appropriations have since been made except such as were necessary to buy new machinery to increase the capacity of the twine plant from time to time.

Under Republican management the revolving fund has grown from $150,000 to $500,000, and has made money every year from the time of its establishment down to the present, except in the year 1900 under Democratic rule.

Behold the contrast! Under Democratic management the state looses money. The farmer who purchases the twine loses money and has a poor quality of goods, while under Republican management the state and farmer both make money and the twine is of a superior quality.

This splendid showing has been accomplished by placing at the head of the prison a thorough business man and one who fully understands the duties required of him. Do the people of our state desire to return to the unbusinesslike methods of the former administration?

GRAIN INSPECTION.

Like the binding twine plant, the inspection of grain entered largely into the last state campaign. The party temporarily in power made a lamentable failure of this department. The system of grain inspection has been vastly improved. The most capable inspectors are employed and the grading is so uniform that few complaints are made. In the weighing department the closest supervision is constantly given and errors with the skilled men are very rare. The chief complaint now is not that the inspection of the grain is worthless, as during the former administration, but that not enough men are given employment. The policy has been to conduct the business just as any successful business concern would do. The efficiency and economical administration of the grain department will equal if not excel that of any administration in the past. And this in the face of the fact that the capacity of the cars is rapidly increasing, thereby enabling the shipper to market the grain in a greatly reduced number of cars, and no increase in the inspection and weighing fee has been made. One great and marked benefit accomplished for the good of the shipper of grain and the railroad companies hauling it, is the complete extermination of the pilferer of grain from cars, which practice had caused the loss of many thousands of bushels of grain every year. While this work had been undertaken many times, it is conceded that the present management is the first to succeed in wiping it out, and certainly due credit should be given it for eliminating this evil. Not only has the promised improvement been made at home, but the service has been so good that our grain sells in all the markets of the world as graded in Minnesota.

DAIRY AND FOOD DEPARTMENT.

The dairy and food department is one of the most important, and under the present commissioner and his inspectors is doing most excellent work, and its benefits to the farmers of Minnesota during the past eighteen months have been invaluable. There are at present four new creameries being established each week. The cheese industry is also in a most flourishing condition; about twenty-five new factories were erected this spring; in all we have some 700 creameries and more than one hundred cheese factories. The commissioner and his inspectors have made hundreds of visits to these places and attended most of the state, district and county dairy conventions and gatherings, and have given valuable information and instructions to those engaged in this line of work.

It is a pleasure to state that the dairy and food department has done its full share towards accomplishing this result. The dairy interest has added materially to the wealth of the agricultural classes, and now annually yields them almost, if not quite, $20,000,000. Let me give you some idea of the work during this administration: In the laboratory department there have been, in order to ascertain whether articles of food and drink were up to the standard required by law, 10,410 analyses made. In addition the result has been forwarded to the person for whom the respective analysis in each case was requested, or the merchant from whom the article was taken by the inspectors. Another feature of the work, and one most unpleasant, was that of making prosecutions for violation of the law. There were 320 in all. The prosecutions and fines were kept to the lowest possible point in connection with the public good. Whenever the health and interest of the people could be secured without prosecution it was the policy of the department to do this, but at no time has a guilty offender been allowed to escape.

Again, the home manufacturers' and producers' interests have been carefully protected by excluding as far as possible outside goods that were found impure, and those sending them into the state have been made to feel the strong arm of Minnesota's pure food laws.

Furthermore, the department put forth every effort to make our butter exhibit at the Pan-American exposition worthy our splendid state, and in that work gave just reason for praise. Not only this, but it has also conducted an educational butter test for twelve months that not only has given Minnesota butter greater fame, but has proven of invaluable benefit to our buttermakers.

It is owing largely to the splendid work of this department that we are known not only as the great wheat-producing state, but as the great bread and butter state of the Union.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

The affairs of the insurance department has been conducted in a painstaking, careful and vigorous manner, every effort being made to protect the citizens of the state against the manipulations of financially irresponsible and "wild cat" or unauthorized insurance companies. No effort has been spared to secure a strict compliance with the laws. A vigorous campaign conducted by the present commissioner has resulted in debarring from the state many of this class of institutions, while many others have been placed in the hands of receivers, thereby subserving to the fullest extent possible under the statutes, the interests of the citizens of this state.

The recognized ability with which the affairs of the department have been conducted has placed the State of Minnesota among the first in importance of the leading states of the Union in the matter of insurance supervision.

There has been collected and turned into the state treasury since Jan. 1, 1901, in the way of taxes and fees, more than $450,000 exceeding the receipts of any like previous period by many thousands of dollars.

All laws prohibiting combinations in any way detrimental to the interests of our citizens, have been rigidly enforced. In his annual report of the present year the commissioner publishes a list of thirty-five so-called "wild cat" insurance concerns which are not worthy of patronage, and advises that any parties aiding, either directly or indirectly, in the securing or placing of business with said unauthorized companies would be subject to heavy penalties.

Attention is also cited to the fact that the farmers' township mutuals of Minnesota have been conducted in a most eminently successful and profitable manner by the farmers of the state, and that the same desire the greatest consideration, not alone for the very large number of policy holders or members, which amount to nearly one hundred thousand, but also on account of the thoroughly honest, conscientious and conservative management which has been a marked characteristic of their business transactions. It is estimated that the existence of these companies has been the means of saving to the farmers of Minnesota the enormous sum of $12,000,000 since the enactment of the statute permitting and authorizing their organization.

SCHOOLS.

We have a school fund that should be a source of pride to every citizen of our state; it now amounts to about $15,000,000 and it is estimated that when all the school lands are sold it will reach the vast sum of $30,000,000. By a wise provision of the law only the interest can be used, and annually about $500,000 is secured in this way for educational purposes. The fund is to remain intact forever. We are indebted for this magnificent fund to Hon. Alexander Ramsey, Minnesota's first governor, more than to any other man living or dead. He it was who so carefully guarded the interests of the people, and when land sharks and speculators were about to defraud the state he interposed his veto. He is easily the peer of any other man who ever occupied the gubernatorial chair, and that is a high compliment when it is remembered that that position was once held by a Davis, a Pillsbury and a Nelson. This magnificent fund is a monument to the wisdom and statesmanship of the men who have controlled the Republican party. Not only have we this large fund, but our schools are unexcelled. Our great university takes front rank with any similar institution in the country, and our school of agriculture is rearing a generation of intelligent, thrifty and cultured men and women for farm life. Our normal and high schools are the very best. The superintendent of public instruction is making a special effort to promote and make more efficient the rural schools. This is proper, for in these schools 80 per cent of our children receive all the education they will ever get to prepare them for citizenship. These schools should be as efficient as it is possible to make them.

BOARD OF CONTROL.

The board of control will, I am led to believe, make a most excellent showing when its annual report is presented to the public. It has had many difficulties to meet and many prejudices to overcome. In our state there have been no precedents to guide it. The road was a new one. The greatest source of trouble has been when there have been two boards endeavoring to manage the same institutions. In such cases there is always a conflict, for it is difficult to ascertain where the authority of the one ceases and that of the other begins. This should be remedied. In my judgment the educational institutions should not have been placed under its management; it was not the intention of those originally favoring a board of control plan. It is not for the best interests of the schools, and besides, the board has not the time to do the extra work which this entails upon it. The next legislature should amend the bill in this respect, and no doubt other changes will need to be made from time to time. The board of control, in my judgment, will grow in public favor.

GAME AND FISH.

Public sentiment in our state favors game and fish protection, and the commission has the earnest and hearty cooperation of the people this year as never before. This is especially true of the farmers. All see the necessity of preserving this valuable source of food supply. Our sportsmen, too, ably second every effort made in this direction. That the board is doing most excellent work is evidenced by the fines collected for the violation of the laws; said fines being nearly double those collected during the same time by its immediate predecessor. The same is true with reference to the amount received from the confiscation of game and fish. The distribution of fish to replenish our streams and lakes is the largest ever known, and when the improvements now making at the hatchery are completed, facilities for doing this work will be fully twice as great as they are now. When we consider as an asset the value of the game and fish of Minnesota, amounting as it does, to many millions of dollars, we deem it but just to commend the splendid work of the commission.

BUREAU OF LABOR.

On our statute books are some of the very best labor laws. Our state received one of the five medals that were awarded as first prizes at the Paris exposition in 1900 for the best labor laws, and a diploma from the proper authorities of that exposition now hangs on the wall in the office of the commissioner of labor at the capitol, certifying to these facts. Among the many labor laws that we can point to with pride are those relating to child labor; laws regulating the education and employment of children and prohibiting the employment of children at dangerous or in immoral occupations; laws for the protection of the health, lives and limbs of the working people; a general factory inspection law; laws for the protection of railway employes; the eight-hour law, and many others. The factory inspectors of this department during the year 1901 report inspection of 3,047 establishments, employing 85,393 persons; 581 orders have been issued for the protection and safeguarding of machinery and for improving the sanitary condition of the factories, mills and workshops. The inspectors of this department have received special instructions along the lines of the more advanced scientific systems of drainage and ventilation. Hand in hand with inspection has gone the collection of data relating to all departments of labor; hence we find that the several new and special investigations that this department is making into the conditions surrounding wage-earners have been received with unusual approval throughout the state, and have attracted much attention in other states of the Union. The bureau of labor was created at the instance of the laboring people, for the express purpose of enforcing the laws that were then, or might be hereafter, enacted for the protection of the rights of the thousands who go to make up that great army of useful citizens, the working people. It has been my desire, and my instructions to the commissioner of labor have always been, to see that the work of the bureau has been administered for the purpose for which it was created.

DRAINAGE.

By an act of the last legislature an appropriation of $50,000 was made for drainage purposes. Pursuant to said act the commission, composed of the governor, the auditor and the secretary of state, have taken the necessary steps to make the same effective. Several ditches are about completed, and all the others possible under the appropriation are contracted for. The entire work will be completed by the end of the year. It is difficult to measure the benefits derived from these state ditches. Thousands of acres of land belonging to both the state and to settlers have been much improved and have greatly increased in value, and much waste land has been reclaimed. The people living in the section of state where drainage has proved such a blessing have reason to thank the Republican party for inaugurating and continuing this work.

TAXATION.

Probably no subject which now confronts the people of our state elicits more interest and is of greater importance than that of taxation. It is a matter of common knowledge that our tax laws are inefficient and that as a consequence a very large percentage of taxable property escapes the lists. While we all recognize the fact that it is practically impossible to frame a perfect code of tax measures, still we should strive to meet, as far as practicable, the primary purpose of tax legislation, which is to place upon the lists all property subject to taxation, and distribute the burdens justly and equitably. At the same time it is important in framing tax legislation to bear in mind the great business interests which have contributed to the building up of our state and which make Minnesota one of the most conspicuous states of the Union. No legislation should be adopted which will be unjust to these interests or hamper their prosperity. However, they should respond to their fair share of taxation and thus assist in the maintenance of the state as an equivalent for the protection and benefits vouchsafed them by the laws. At the last session of our legislature an appreciation of the fact that constitutional limitations existed which prevented the passage of necessary and effective tax laws prompted that body to provide for submission to the people amendments to sections one, two and three of article nine of our constitution.

Without entering into a detailed discussion of the merits of the proposed amendments, I desire to heartily commend the measure to the voters of our state and earnestly urge the adoption thereof.

At the next election there is also to be submitted to the people of our state for their approval or rejection a certain act passed at the last general session of our legislature and commonly known as the gross earnings act. The constitution of our stat provides that,

"Any law providing for the . . . amendment of any law or laws . . . enacted in this state . . . or which may be hereafter organized, shall, in lieu of all other taxes and assessments upon their real estate, roads, rolling stock and other personal property . . . pay into the treasury of this state a certain percentage therein mentioned of the gross earnings of such railroad companies . . . shall, before the same shall take effect and be in force, be submitted to a vote of the people of the state and be adopted and ratified by a majority of the electors of the state voting at the election at which the same shall be submitted to them."

Under existing laws the railroad companies of this state pay into the state treasury, in lieu of direct taxes, 3 per cent of their gross earnings. After thorough discussion and mature deliberation the legislature passed the act above referred to, which provides that the existing law shall be so amended that the railroad companies of this state shall pay into the state treasury in lieu of direct taxation 4 per cent of their gross earnings instead of 3 per cent, as now exacted.

The reason for the enactment was the belief that the railroad companies under the 3 per cent gross earnings law were not paying their fair share toward the maintenance of the state; in other words, that under the gross earnings system considerably less was received from the railroad companies than would be received if their properties were subjected to direct taxation.

I urge the people of our state to carefully and fairly consider the question presented, which is, shall the railroad companies of our state pay, in lieu of direct taxation, 4 per cent of their gross earnings instead of 3 per cent, as provided in the existing laws.

The modern tendency is that revenues should be raised for the state otherwise than by a direct levy on real estate and personal property. If these amendments carry a long step in that direction might be taken. It would then be possible to place upon our statute books many tax measures of vast benefit to the people. The matter is of so much importance to the welfare of the state that I earnestly urge every voter to bear in mind on election day the obligation of voting for the proposed amendments.

I will not close without calling your attention to a question of the very greatest importance to the people of our state. I refer to the threatened consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies. To this end the Northern Securities company of New Jersey was organized to acquire a controlling amount of the stock of said railroad companies in exchange for its own stock, and it was through this company that the unity of management was to be effected.

The matter was deemed of such vital importance that immediate action was taken to prevent the consolidation of these companies. With that object in view Attorney General Douglas was requested to bring suit in the name of the state to prevent the proposed consolidation. That such consolidation is against the law is shown by reference to our statutes. (See sections 2716, 2717). The best interests of our people not only require but demand free, open and unrestricted competition for the transportation of the products of our farms, factories, mills and mines. It was with this idea in view that our legislature years ago passed laws prohibiting in any way the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railway within our state. These laws have not only been held to be constitutional by the supreme court of the United States, but they also declare a wise public policy. The determination to bring this suit was not entered into with any spirit of hostility toward railroad companies. Our state has dealt liberally with them and has deeded to the various railroad companies more than 10,500,000 acres of land, or more than is under cultivation by our entire agricultural population. In view of this and many other privileges it is but just to demand that these companies should obey our laws. Minnesota granted these lands and privileges to secure the blessings of competition; in fact, the franchises of these parallel and competing lines were obtained upon the implied understanding that they would be operated independently. The area of the United States, including Alaska, is about 3,000,000 square miles. The area of the states traversed by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads is about 600,000 square miles, or one-fifth the area of the United States. It is only necessary to study these figures to see the great importance of this question. Undoubtedly a very large portion of the commerce of the world will be transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. The trade of the Orient is in its infancy. The possibilities can scarcely be estimated. I believe that that section of the globe will be supplied from the products of the Northwest; in fact, we have begun to reap the benefits of the Far Eastern trade as a market for our surplus wheat and flour. This question was deemed of so much importance to the entire Northwest, and realizing that the fight would be one of gigantic proportions and that our state would need all the help that could be secured a conference of governors and attorneys general was called to meet at Helena, Mont. The result of that conference was harmony throughout, and resolutions were unanimously passed in opposition to said threatened consolidation, and promising support in our endeavors to prevent it. All realized that the destruction of competition that had so benefited these states in the past would be most injurious.

The supreme court of the United States for certain reasons refused jurisdiction in the case brought by the State of Minnesota, but this did not discourage the Attorney General and his associate counsel, and suit was commenced in the state courts.

I do not believe that a corporation organized in New Jersey can be lawfully used to violate the laws of the sovereign State of Minnesota and thwart the will of the people so plainly expressed in her statutes.

Owing to objections not involving the merits, our state was not so fortunate in the supreme court as was the State of Washington; that state has a case now pending similar to ours, in the United States supreme court, and Attorney General Douglas has been retained as associate counsel.

The attempt of the Northern Securities company to control these properties is not only in violation of the laws of this state and the other states in which they operate, but the United States as well. Attorney General Knox is quoted as saying:

"Some time ago the president requested an opinion as to the legality of this measure, and I have recently given him one to the effect that in my judgment it violates the provisions of the Sherman act of 1890. Whereupon he directed that suitable action should be brought to have the question finally judicially decided."

I congratulate the people of our state, of the Northwest and of the entire country, upon the fact that we have in the presidential chair a man who fearlessly is endeavoring to execute the laws. He is as brave in peace as he was heroic in war, and for his courageous course we should pledge him our active and earnest support.

It is our determination to press this action until finally decided by the court of highest jurisdiction, the supreme court of the United States.

In conclusion I take pleasure in stating that every state officer, and every department of the state government, has rendered me most valuable aid during the past two years, and whatever success has attended this administration is due largely to their loyal support and efficient help.

Our state is to be congratulated too upon the fact that it is so ably represented at Washington. Our senators and representatives are the peers of any holding similar positions at the national capitol, and it is a pleasure to testify to the fact that they have at all times rendered me most valuable assistance when transacting business for the state with the national government.

Gentlemen of the convention, if your action is ratified at the polls in November, I promise you and the people of Minnesota to execute the laws to the best of my ability, and to perform all duties incumbent upon me without fear or favor.

GOV. VAN SANT.

SUPPLEMENT TO NEWS.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
Thursday, July 17th, 1902.

SALISBURY QUITS

PREMIER OF GREAT BRITAIN LAYS DOWN THE BURDENS OF OFFICE.

A. J. BALFOUR HIS SUCCESSOR

LIVELIEST SPECULATION RIFE AS TO PERSONNEL OF NEW CABINET.

WILD WELCOME TO KITCHENER

LATEST BRITISH NATIONAL HERO REACHES LONDON FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

London, July 15.—The fact of the resignation of the premiership of Great Britain by Lord Salisbury, as foreshadowed in the dispatches of the Associated Press, was officially given out last evening. The prime minister laid down the responsibility of his office July 11. Within twenty-four hours his majesty elevated Mr. A. J. Balfour, the government's chief representative in the house of commons, to the position of premier.

While it was expected in official and political circles that Lord Salisbury's retirement would be coincident with the coronation of King Edward, it was scarcely looked for prior to that event. Consequently about the only surprise expressed as the news spread through London concerned the date, rather than the fact, of the resignation. The real interest was not so much in reference to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal as it was in the appointment of his successor.

The liveliest speculation is rife as to the personnel of the new cabinet. The most discussed feature of the pending change is the position of Mr. Chamberlain (the colonial secretary), who, in many quarters has been regarded as the most promising candidate for the premiership.

Consults With Chamberlain.

A representative of the Associated Press learns that prior to the acceptance of his new office Mr. Balfour first had an interview with Mr. Chamberlain and then consulted with his other cabinet assistants. This is regarded as assurance that the future relative positions of Messrs Balfour and Chamberlain will be satisfactory to both. Mr. Chamberlain's friends say he always recognized the reversion of the premiership to be Mr. Balfour's right as government leader in the house of commons.

As to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal, the main reason is considered by practically all the best informed persons to have been simply a desire for a quiet life on the part of a man advanced in years, whose activities have been unusual, and whose scientific tastes predispose him to study and seclusion. That the retiring premier's health has failed to some extent is undeniable; but this is not more than, perhaps, is to be expected in a man of his years, and the close of the war in South Africa and the return of the commanding general there is considered to be an appropriate time for his withdrawal.

Wild Welcome to Kitchener.

London, July 16.—Lord Kitchener arrived at Paddington railroad station at 12:48 p. m. Saturday, and was greeted by cheering crowds. The prince of Wales welcomed Lord Kitchener, and an address was presented to the general.

Lord Kitchener's progress through London was one of the most remarkable of the many remarkable of the past three years. The small procession of carriages containing the general and his staff, in simple veldt dress, lacked spectacular features, but the crowd was there in its tens of thousands to see the man of the hour and not a pageant.

From the moment he set foot in London to the time of his disappearance beneath the portal of St. James' palace, Kitchener received such an outburst of popular enthusiasm as quite overshadowed the demonstrations on previous similar occasions.

Shortly before the arrival of the procession at Buckingham palace, Queen Alexandra and the princesses appeared on a balcony and remained there until the victor of South Africa had passed to St. James' palace, which he entered amidst a final hurricane of cheers.

In His Triumphal Journey

Kitchener and the generals who accompanied him were entertained at luncheon in the great banqueting hall, where covers were laid for fifty persons. The prince of Wales occupied the central seat, with Kitchener on his right and with Lord Roberts opposite. The prince of Wales toasted King Edward, and then proposed a toast to Kitchener. Gen. Kitchener made a brief reply, which exhausted the toast list, and soon after 3 o'clock the general proceeded to the Buckingham to see the king and queen.

Kitchener was speedily conducted to the king's sick room, and his majesty, from his couch, extended a warm welcome to the general, and personally expressed his thanks for the termination of hostilities. The king then presented Kitchener the declaration of the new order of merit. The general saw the queen, after which he drove to Lord Roberts' residence in Portland Place. Kitchener will visit Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, to-day.

Makes No Difference to Us.

Washington, July 15.—The appointment of Mr. Balfour to the English premiership will not result in any change in the existing relations between Great Britain and the United States. This is the opinion of the department officials, who express the opinion that Mr. Balfour will be as much disposed as was Lord Salisbury to continue the friendly relations between the two countries.

STRANGE MURDER A MYSTERY.

Man Found Dead With a Rope Around His Neck. But Hanging Theory Is Untenable.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 15.—The authorities of Lennox have discovered a murder which they are unable to solve. The body of Ole Ness was found in a stable. It was in a kneeling position and a strap around the neck was attached to a rope which was loosely wrapped around a harness pin about six feet from the ground. The straw adjacent to the dead man's feet had not been disturbed and there was no evidence of a struggle. It is believed he was poisoned and placed in that position just before expiring. A stranger who was with him cannot be found. Ness had been at Lennox only four days.

GETS NINETY DAYS.

"Coffee John" Fitchette Given the Maximum Sentence by Judge Simpson.

Minneapolis, July 15.—Police Captain John Fritchette has been sentenced by Judge Simpson. He was given the limit as provided by the statute, ninety days in the workhouse. Capt. Fitchette was found guilty Friday evening by a jury who were out a trifle over an hour of the crime of receiving a gratuity reward for securing the appointment to a public office of one John Long. A stay of thirty days was granted to allow time to argue a motion for a new trial and carry the matter up to the supreme court, should the motion be denied. He was released on a bond of $1,000.

FRANK ADDY IS NOT GUILTY.

He Is Arrested Again, However, for Murder of Mrs. Gorton.

Litchfield, Minn., July 15. — "Not guilty" was the verdict brought in by the jury. Considerable applause was manifested when the verdict was announced giving Frank Addy his freedom, but this enthusiasm was short-lived, for he was immediately arrested on the second indictment—that of the killing of Mrs. Gorton, and he was immediately placed in jail. There are few who will not admit foul play in the death by burning of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gorton. The Gortons kept considerable money about the house, and before the fire had drawn some from the bank. It is supposed this money was taken from the place and the house set on fire to cover the theft. The theory that others are implicated is growing stronger.

MANY RATTLESNAKES.

Any Number of the Reptiles in Southern Minnesota.

Winona, Minn., July 15. — Never before n the history of Winona county have so many rattlesnakes been seen as this summer. They are found in large numbers on the southern exposure of hills in the rough portions of the county. In the town of Elba last week Assistant County Surveyor Terrill was compelled to give up his work for a time, owing to the number encountered. He started to run a line down a sidehill and came across five on one large rock. These were dispatched, and one was found to measure over five feet in length. These snakes were blind, and one had already shed its old skin, which made it extremely dangerous to work among their lairs.

SCARED TO DEATH.

Her Sister-in-Law's Tumble Kills a La Crosse Woman.

La Crosse, Wis., July 15.—Mrs Joseph Matiak dropped dead from fright resulting from seeing her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Matiak, fall from the roof of a building. The latter was hanging clothes to a reel on the roof when suddenly the rafters gave way, throwing her to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. Mrs. Joseph Matiak was on the lower floor and saw her fall. She complained of not feeling well and a few moments afterward fell dead on the floor. Heart failure was the cause, brought on from fright. Mrs. John Matiak was only slightly injured.

BODY DIVIDED BY WHEELS.

Unidentified Tramp Is Killed While Stealing a Ride.

Anoka, Minn., July 15.—An unknown tramp was killed at Itasca switch, probably while trying to get onto the break beams. No means of identifying him were found. He was about forty years old, weight 150 pounds, dark hair, slightly gray, stubby mustache, old scar over right eye, gray eyes. His clothes showed he was a working man.

KILLED BY A HAYRAKE.

Wisconsin Farmer Suffers Death in a Runaway Accident.

Wilson, Wis., July 15.—Phil Curry, a respected and well-to-do farmer who lives three miles northeast of Wilson, was killed in a runaway accident. While raking hay he fell in front of the rake and the team ran through the field with him in the tines. He leaves a wife and six children, the oldest fourteen years old.

KILLED WITH A FLATIRON.

Iowa Fisherman in a Fight With His Wife, Strikes His Father-in-Law.

Clinton, Iowa, July 15.—A. Widner, a fisherman, became involved in a quarrel with his wife here and was threatening to brain her with a flatiron, when Moses Labarge, the woman's father, aged eighty, interfered, whereupon Widner struck him on the head, killing him instantly.

Program for Photographers.

Winona, Minn., July 15. — John A. Gunderson of this city, editor of the Northwestern Photographer and secretary of the Northwestern Photographers' association, has just issued the program for the annual convention of the Northwestern Photographers' association, which will be held in Minneapolis on Sept. 2, 3 and 4. It is filled with good things for the three days.

Not Taken by Rebels.

Managua, Nicaragua, July 15. — The director general of telegraphs declares that Bluefields has not been taken by revolutionists as has been reported. Government reports announce the capture of revolutionists near Bluefields.

Irwin Shepard Is Re-elected.

Minneapolis, July 15.—The board of trustees of the National Educational association has re-elected Irwin Shepard of Winona permanent secretary for a term of four years at a salary of $4,000 a year.

FRANCE IS WILLING

EVEN ANXIOUS FOR THE UNITED STATES TO SECURE PANAMA CANAL.

TITLE PRATICALLY GUARANTEED

PANAMA CANAL PROPERTY ALREADY AS GOOD AS PURCHASED.

COLOMBIA IS ALSO SATISFIED

TREATY WILL BE READY FOR OPENING OF CONGRESS IN DECEMBER.

Washington, July 11.—The Panama canal is already as good as purchased and the concession from Colombia secured.

The whole negotiations will be completed before the close of the year, and the treaty with Colombia sent to the senate at the beginning of the short term of congress next December.

The state department yesterday morning began the final negotiations with the representatives of the new Panama Canal company and the Colombia government looking to the transfer of the property of the canal company to the United States and the grant of a new concession to this government by Colombia. The state department has assurances that

France Will Not Interfere with the transfer of the title from the Panama company to the United States, and that Colombia will grant the necessary concessions for a canal to be owned and controlled by this government. The Spooner bill was called a compromise before it became the law by act of congress. It is no longer regarded as a compromise. It is an act for the construction of the Panama canal. There is no probability or possibility of the Nicaragua route receiving further consideration. There is only one purpose in having the Nicaragua route named in the act. That is to influence Colombia in not making exorbitant demands for the canal concessions. But all other questions are settled. The investigation of the department of justice regarding the right of the Panama company to the United States will be made, but it is considered hardly necessary. The attitude of the French government is regarded as sufficient guarantee to this government. There have been diplomatic assurances given by France that the government will not object to the Panama company selling its property to the United States. In fact, the French government is anxious to have the canal enterprise transferred from under its authority. It has been a heavy burden on the French people, and has involved the government in great scandals. The French government became satisfied that the canal could never be completed by the Panama company, and it has given every aid to the company in the effort to sell out to the United States.

To Sell Its Property

STRONG KICK TO J. BULL.

Washington Government Wants Greene and Gaynor.

Washington, July 11. — The extradition case of Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor, whose removal from Canada to the State of Georgia for trial on charges of misappropriation and embezzlement of over $2,000,000 in connection with river and harbor improvements at Savannah, Ga., has been sought for some time in the United States, will take on a diplomatic phase in a few days, when Secretary Hay communicates to the British government the opinion of the officials of our department of justice that the Canadian authorities are pursuing an extraordinary and unwarranted course in the case. The delays and embarrassments in the extradition proceedings resulted in Marion Erwin, special assistant to the attorney general, who has been in active charge of the extradition proceedings for the United States, transmitting to the attorney general, under date of Montreal, July 7, a special report on the case, in which he calls attention to the fact that the representatives of Greene and Gaynor are closely connected, through professional and family ties, with the Canadian officials to whom this government must look for extradition of the men whose custody it seeks. He says that he was thus "precluded by the position taken by them from conferring with the law officers of the crown. He therefore retained two attorneys of the Montreal and Canadian bar who have ably assisted him.

IN HANDS OF RECEIVERS.

Only a Small Number of Unimportant Railroads Now So Situated.

New York, July 11.—A table showing the number and extent of railroad receiverships at the present time, compiled by the Railway Age, shows that only twenty-two American railroads are now in the hands of receivers. These roads are mostly unimportant. The most important is the Terre Haute & Indianapolis. The aggregate capitalization and bonded indebtedness of the twenty-two insolvent roads is $61,065,000.

Bad Minneapolis Boy.

Herman, Minn., July 11.—The depot at Norcross was burglarized yesterday morning by a Minneapolis lad. He secured $10.50 from the till. He was caught by Deputy Sheriff Cater near Tintah and confessed.

Lathrop Gets $7,500.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 11.—The state executive council this morning paid Capt. J. S. Lathrop of Sioux City $7,500 for his services in securing the Iowa war claim of nearly $500,000, which has just been turned into the state treasury. Lathrop filed a claim for $25,102.

Gives Hay the Credit.

London, July 11. — The Times in an editorial article credits Secretary Hay with the eminently-gratifying issue of the negotiations concerning the turning over of Tien-tsin to the Chinese.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

The marriage of Prince Mirko of Montenegro to Mlle. Natalie Constantinovitch, cousin of the king of Servia, was celebrated Saturday at Cettinje, the capital of Montinegro.

State Excise Commissioner Cullinan of New York announces that there are 8,000 licensed hotels in the State of New York, and that about 2,900 of there are situated in Greater New York.

Mrs. Ada Eugenie Vrooman Leslie died at her home in New York after a lingering illness. She was born in 1846, and when only sixteen years of age was widely known by her contributions in prose and verse to the leading periodicals.

Mrs. Amanda George, seventy years old, died at the spiritualist camp ground after a fast of sixty-two days. Mrs. George was afflicted with stomach trouble and had refused all solid and liquid nourishment for the entire sixty-two days.

A private dispatch from Warsaw says the agricultural societies of Poland are negotiating with American manufacturers direct for the purchase of machinery, excluding the German middlemen. This step is believed to be aimed also at German machinery.

E. T. Cuthbert, for many years correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch, died in Washington, aged sixty-one. He served throughout the Civil war on the Confederate side. For a long time he was Southern news manager for the New York Herald with headquarters at Richmond.

Gen. Thomas J. A. Morgan, who has been ill at his home in Yonkers, N. Y., is dead, aged sixty-two. Death was due to kidney disease. Gen. Morgan was born in Franklin, Ind. At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of brevet brigadier general.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 15. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 79 1-2@80c; No. 2 Northern, 76@77c. Oats—No. 3 white, 49@50c; No. 3, 48@49c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 59@60c; No. 3, 58@59c.

Minneapolis, July 15.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 81 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 79 3-8c; No. 2 Northern, 75 1-2c.

Duluth, July 15.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 79 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 77c; August, 77 3-4c; September, 73 3-4c; flax, $1.58; oats, 33c; rye, 58c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 15. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 78@78 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 76@77 1-2c; September, 74@74 1-8c. Rye—No. 1, 59c. Barley — No. 2, 72c. Oats—No. 2 white, 54 1-4c. Corn—September, 60 3-8c.

Chicago, July 15. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 77 1-2c; No. 3 red, 76@76 3-4c; No. 2 hard winter, 76 1-2c; No. 3 hard winter, 75c; No. 1 Northern spring, 77c; No. 2 Northern spring, 76c; No. 3 spring, 70@74c. Corn—No. 2, 84@88c; No. 3, 63@71c. Oat —No. 2, 49@50c; No. 3, 48c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 15. — Cattle—Beeves, $5.50 @ 7.45; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@5.25; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.50; yearlings and calves, $2.50@4. Hogs, $7.50@7.80; bulk, $7.55@7.70.

Chicago, July 15. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.75@8.70; poor to medium, $4.75@7.50; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.35; cows, $1.50@6. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.20@7.80; good to choice heavy, $7.75@7.97 1-2. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $3.75@4; Western, $2.75@3.75; native lambs, $3.50@7.30.

South St. Paul, July 15. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $7 @ 7.50; good, $6.25@6.75; common to fair, $4@6; choice cows and heifers, $5.50@6; good, $4.50@5; fair, $3.10@4; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.25; good to choice feeding steers, $3.50@4.50; steer calves, $2@3.25. Hogs—Range, $7.20@7.60; bulk, $7.45@7.50; rough sorts, $6.65. Sheep — Fancy lambs, $5.85 @ 6; good to choice fat lambs, $5.25@5.75; fair to good, $4.25@5; good to choice yearling wethers, $4@4.25.

TRACEY STILL ELUDES OFFICERS.

Hunt Is Being Pushed With Greater Zeal Than Ever.

Seattle, July 15. — Notwithstanding the general belief that Tracey is on the verge of collapse as the result of buckshot wounds and illness, resulting from exposure in the wet brush, he managed to keep hidden from the officers yesterday.

This was especially disappointing to the five sheriffs now on his trail, as they had led him an exciting chase up to last night and hoped to pursue the convict up to a virtual encounter. Vigilance had been doubled, and the encircling cordon about the district where it was almost certain the man was hidden was stronger than ever. The deputies scoured the neighborhood, but beyond discredited reports of the convict's appearance near Enumclaw nothing was heard of him.

The officers, however, have not wavered, and the hunt is being pushed with greater zeal than ever. The hunt is to be continued through to-night and tomorrow without cessation. The sheriffs are convinced that the convict is within the territory guarded by the deputies and policemen.

SIAM'S CROWN PRINCE COMING.

Will Visit the United States in the Most Simple Manner.

New York, July 15—It is learned from authoritative sources that the crown prince of Siam will come to the United States in the same simple manner that he visited King Edward and the various continental rulers, accompanied only by his brother, the next in succession to the crown prince, and two aides-de-camp, officers in the Siamese army. The crown prince is in his twenty-first year, and for more than eight years has lived in England, speaking and writing the language. He has been educated at Oxford, is president of the Cosmopolitan club of that university, and is most simple and unaffected in his manner.

Killed His Wife.

Evansville, Ind., July 15. — Joseph Fenniger, a coal miner, shot his wife to death yesterday because she would not live with him. He then shot himself in the mouth and is in a serious condition.

Lightning Kills Two.

Carthage, Tex., July 15.—Lightning struck the store house of J. H. Graves, about twelve miles from here and killed two men named Fields and Ponder and seriously hurt Mr. Graves.

AWFUL MINE CATASTROPHE

HUNDREDS FALL VICTIMS TO AN EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

ANOTHER JOHNSTOWN TRAGEDY

OF SIX HUNDRED MEN ONLY ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY ESCAPE.

AWFUL STORIES OF SURVIVORS

WALK ACROSS DEAD BODIES OF COMRADES TO PURE AIR AND LIGHT.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Johnstown has again been visited by an appalling disaster.

It is only less frightful than the awful calamity of May 31, 1889, in cost of life, but in its terrible consequences it has brought the shaddow of sorrow to hundreds of homes made desolate by a mine explosion which took place in the Cambria Steel company rolling mill mine under West Mont Hill at 12:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

How many are dead it may take several days to fully determine, but that it is a long and shocking list is certain. It may reach 200 or more men.

It was nearly an hour after the explosion before any general knowledge of what had happened got abroad. Men who came from the mine, escaping with their lives, told the terrible news and soon it spread like wildfire all over the city. In scores of homes there were the most pathetic scenes. Mothers, wives, daughters, sons and relatives

Were Frantic With Grief.

Hundreds rushed to the point and with sobbing hearts awaited news that did not come from the ill-fated mine. At the opening across the river from the point, the Cambria Iron company police, with several assistants, stood guard, permitting no one to enter the mine, from which noxious gases were coming. It was nearly 4 o'clock when all hope of sending rescue parties from the West Mont opening was abandoned. Two men who had escaped from the mine—Richard Bennett and John Meyers—went back two miles to see what assistance could be rendered, but the frightful damp drove them back and they fell prostrate when they finally, after a desperate struggle, reached the outside. Two doctors gave the men assistance, and after working with them half an hour restored them. Their story of the situation in the mine made it clear that the rescue work could not proceed from the West Mont opening, and then hasty preparations were made to begin that sad mission at the Mill creek entrance. Soon after the reached the Cambria officials, Mining Engineer Marshal G. Moore and one of his assistants, Al G. Prosser, made an attempt to enter the mine. They were followed by Mine Superintendent Geo. T. Robinson, but the deadly gases stopped their progress and they were compelled to return to the surface.

News of the Explosion

Mine Foreman Harry Rodgers, his assistant, William Blanech, and Fire Bosses John Whitney, John Retallick and John Thomas, were overcome by the gases and it is feared they perished in an heroic effort to rescue the miners. A son of Harry Rodgers tried to reach his father, but he was quickly overcome by the deadly gases and was carried out unconscious. William Stibich spent several hours at the Mill creek opening. He said that he believed as many as 450 men were still in the mine. In his opinion, from all he could glean, not to exceed 150 men had come out.

The mining officials of the Cambria company stated the explosion was one of fire damp.

Frightful Conditions.

The catastrophe occurred in the section of the mine known among the miners as the "Klondike." The name of the section on the company's books is the sixth west of the south main heading. It is about a mile and a half from the main entrance of the Rolling Mill mine.

The few survivors who have escaped from the depths of the mine describe the conditions to be frightful in their nature. Outside of the "Klondike" the mines are safe and uninjured. Within the fatal limits of the mine the havoc wrought by the explosion is such as beggars description. Solid walls of masonry three feet through were torn down as though barriers of paper. The roofs of the mine were demolished and not a door remains standing. In the face of these difficulties even the most heroic efforts toward rescue may well seem hopeless. Miners who left the mine by way of the Mill creek entrance brought horrible stories of crawling over the dead bodies of their comrades.

Walked Across Dead Bodies.

Two young men who were at work in the "Klondike" when the explosion occurred escaped by way of the airshaft heading, up through the Kernville hill from the mine. A fan house, now out of use, stands at the top of this airshaft. This way the young men, sick and dizzy from the nauseous afterdamp or black damp, reached safety. They told how they had walked across dead bodies to pure air and light. How many they did not know. The Cambria Steel officials were notified at once of the explosion. It caused consternation in the offices among those who heard the awful news.

The mine has been open for about fifty years and is producing 3,000 tons per day. It is the property of the Cambria Steel company, general offices in the Arcade building, Philadelphia. The families of the entombed miners are assembled in large numbers at the mine opening, but they cannot secure any definite information and must endure a suspense of many hours.

LONE FARMER KILLED.

Murder Discovered Through the Strange Action of a Dog Whose Mas Was the Victim.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 12.—Thomas Walsh, a farmer living three miles from Willow City, was murdered and robbed, presumably on Saturday night, as he was last seen on Saturday. He lived alone and he was not missed, but yesterday morning his dog came to the farm of John Cudhie, Walsh's nephew, and acted so strangely that Cudhie accompanied the animal home. There he found the body of Walsh with three bullet wounds, one near the heart, and the indications are that the man had been dead several days. Walsh's three horses and a wagon are missing, but his wallet with some money was in his pocket. Suspicion points to a farm laborer who was employed by Cudhie, and who has disappeared. He is said to have induced an acquaintance to go West and engage in the horse stealing business. A reward has been offered for the capture of the murderer.

PROVES A RECORD-BREAKER.

Educational Association Offers Great Attractions.

Minneapolis, July 12. — But one day remains of the National Educational association convention of 1902, and in all respects it has proven a record-breaker. The size of the crowds has been unprecedented and the number and quality of the attractions offered has never in the history of the association been equalled. A score or more of speakers have been heard at the general sessions and the department meetings, who have attained a reputation which is national and in some instances even world wide. Twenty thousand visitors from all parts of the country have spent the week in the Twin Cities either as delegates to the convention or as mere visitors availing themselves of the low railroad rates to see the great Bread and Butter State. Many of these will remain in the vicinity for some time in order to visit all the points of interest in the neighborhood of the Twin Cities, and numerous small excursions have been planned for their enjoyment.

WHOLESALE HORSE THEFTS.

More Than Forty Animals Stolen From One Locality.

Winona, Minn., July 12.—Word comes from Wabasha of the theft of four horses at that place and immediate vicinity in the past week. It is stated that in the last two months about forty horses have been stolen between Waseca and the Mississippi. It is believed an organized gang of horse thieves is operating in this territory; that the stolen horses are taken to the barns of unsuspected parties, where they are secreted for a few days and changed so that the owner would not know them and then shipped out of the country by those who are buying horses in car load lots.

FAUST IS INSANE.

North Dakota Man Who Went to Chicago to Redeem that City.

Chicago, July 12. — Otto Faust, a wealthy farmer of Valley City, N. D., was adjudged insane and ordered sent to the Dunning asylum until he recovers sufficiently to be removed to his home. Faust is suffering from religious mania and left his home "to redeem Chicago." He declares that he is a personal friend of Gov. White of North Dakota, and has asked that the governor be notified of his condition. Faust is said to be a wealthy man and is reputed to own several farms in North Dakota.

SAVES COUNTY EXPENSES.

Iowa Youth, Under Criminal Indictment, Drowns Himself.

Webster City, Iowa, July 12.—Silas Johnson, seventeen years old, drowned himself in Mud lake. He was under indictment for having placed obstructions on the Chicago & Northwestern tracks north of Jewell last March, when he is said to have piled stones and debris on a bridge. He was tried in April when the jury disagreed. The reading of cheap novels put the idea into his head that he could become a desperado.

FALLS AND IS FATALLY BURNED.

Iowa Girl's Tragic Death by Fire From a Lamp.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 12.—Miss Eva Kelley, a popular young lady at Hartley, Iowa, met death in a tragic manner. She was carrying a lamp and had reached the top of the stairs to retire for the night, when she fell backward down stairs and was burned so that she died. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kelley, and was a general favorite.

WRECK WILL KILL HIM.

Candy and Beer Cars Smashed on Wisconsin Central.

Stanley, Wis., July 12.—The breaking of a draw-bar caused a wreck of a through freight on the Wisconsin Central line at this point last night. Nine cars of merchandise, including a car of beer and a car of candy, were badly wrecked. Brakeman Brade of Abbottsford was caught among the wreck and internally injured. He is not expected to live.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING, TWO HURT.

Explosion of Matte in Anaconda Smelting Works.

Butte, Mont., July 12.—In an explosion of matte in the Washoe smelting works at Anaconda George Parsick was instantly killed and John Galicch probably fatally injured and George Goodwin and John Natou both badly burned and cut by flying particles of molten matte.

FIVE BUILDINGS BURNED.

Stillwater Has a Five Thousand Dollar Blaze.

Stillwater, Minn., July 12.—Fire destroyed three business houses and two barns, besides damaging four other buildings. It was a fierce blaze and the department had the hardest fight in years to check the flames.

CONTRACTOR KILLED.

August Kapp Falls From a Building on Which He Was Working.

St. James, Minn., July 12.—August Kapp, a contractor here, fell from a building at Butterfield and was killed. He was sixty years old and a member of the A. O. U. W.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXIII. (Continued.)

Henson chuckled. The noise was intended to convey amused contempt, and it had that effect so far as Littimer was concerned. It was well for Henson that the latter could not see the strained anxiety of his face. The man was alert and quivering with excitement in every limb. Still, he chuckled again, as if the whole thing merely amused him.

"'The Crimson Blind' is Van Sneck's weak spot," he said. "It is King Charles' head to him. By good or bad luck—it is in your hands to say which—you know all about the way in which it became necessary to get Hatherly Bell on our side. All the same, the Rembrandt—the other one—is destroyed."

"Van Sneck has seen the picture," Littimer said, doggedly.

"Oh, play the farce out to the end," Henson laughed, good-humoredly. "Where did he see it?"

"He says he saw it at No. 218 Brunswick Square."

Henson's knees suddenly came up to his nose, then he lay quite flat again for a long time. His face had grown white once more, his lips bloodless. Fear was written all over him. A more astute man than Littimer would have seen the beads standing out on his forehead. It was some little time before he dared trust himself to speak again.

"I know the house you mean. It is next door to the temporary residence of my esteemed friend, Gilead Gates. At the present moment the place is void—"

"And has been ever since your bogus 'Home' broke up. Years ago, before you used your power to rob and oppress us as you do now, you had a Home there. You collected subscriptions right and left in the Reverend Felix Crosble, and you put the money in your pocket. A certain weekly journal exposed you, and you had to leave suddenly or you would have found yourself in the hands of the police. You skipped so suddenly that you had no time even to think of your personal effects, which you understood were sold to defray expenses. But they were not sold, as nobody cared to throw good money after bad. Van Sneck got in with the agent under pretence of viewing the house, and he saw the picture there."

"Why didn't he take it with him?" Henson asked, with amused scorn. He was master of himself again and had his nerves well under control.

"Well, that was hardly like Van Sneck. Our friend is nothing if not diplomatic. But when he did manage to get into the house again the picture was gone."

"Excellent!" Henson cried. "How dramatic! There is only one thing required to complete the story. The picture was taken away by Hatherly Bell. If you don't bring that in as the denouement I shall be utterly disappointed."

"You needn't be," Littimer said coolly. "That is exactly what did happen."

Henson chuckled again, quite a parody of a chuckle this time. He could detect the quiet suggestion of triumph in Littimer's voice.

"Did Van Sneck tell you all this?" he asked.

"Not the latter part of it," Littimer replied; "seeing that he was in the hospital when it happened. But I know it is true because I saw Bell and David Steele, the novelist, come away from the house, and Bell had the picture under his arm. And that's why Van Sneck's agent couldn't find it the second time he went. Check to you, my friend, at any rate. Bell will go to my father with Rembrandt number two and compare it with number one. And then the fat will be in the fire."

Henson yawned affectedly. All the same he was terribly disturbed and shaken. All he wanted now was to be alone and to think. So far as he could tell, nobody besides Littimer knew anything of the matter. And no starved, cowed, broken-hearted puppy was ever closer under the heel of his master than Littimer. He still held all the cards; he still controlled the fortunes of two ill-starred houses.

"You can leave me now," he said. "I'm tired. I have had a trying day, and I need sleep; and the sooner you are out of the house the better. For your own sake, and for the sake of those about you, you need not say one word of this to Enid Henson."

Littimer promised meekly enough. With those eyes blazing upon him he would have promised anything. We shall see presently what a stupendous terror Henson had over the younger man, and in what way all the sweetness and savour of life was being crushed out of him.

He closed the door behind him and immediately Henson sat up in bed. He reached for his handkerchief and wiped the big beads from his forehead.

"So the danger has come at last," he muttered. "I am face to face with it, and I knew I should be. Hatherly Bell is not the man to quietly lie down under a cloud like that. The man has brains, and patience, and indomitable courage. Now, does he suspect that I have any hand in the business? I must see him when my nerves are stronger and try and get at the truth. If he goes to Lord Littimer with that picture he shakes my power and my position perilously. What a fool I was not to get it away. But, then, I only escaped from the Brighton police in those days by the skin of my teeth. And they had followed me from Huddersfield like those cursed bloodhounds here. I wonder—"

He paused as the brilliant outline of some cunning scheme occurred to him. A thin, cruel smile crept over his lips. Never had he been in a tight place yet without discovering a loophole of escape almost before he had seen the trap.

A fit of noiseless laughter shook him.

"Splendid," he whispered. "Worthy of Machiavelli himself! Provided always that I can get there first. If I could only see Bell's face afterwards, hear Littimer ordering him off the premises. The only question is, am I up to seeing the thing through?"

CHAPTER XXIV.

Enid Learns Something.

Reginald Henson struggled out of bed, and into his clothes as best he could. He was terribly weak and shaky, far more weak than he had imagined himself to be, but he was in danger now, and his indomitable willpower pulled him through. What a fool Littimer had been to tell him so much, merely that he might triumph over his powerful foe for a few minutes. But Henson was planning a little scheme by which he intended to repay the young man tenfold. He had no doubt as to the willingness of his tool.

He took a bottle of brandy from a drawer and helped himself to a liberal dose. Walker had expressly forbidden anything of the kind, but it was no time for nice medical obedience. The grateful stimulant had its immediate effect. Then Henson rang the bell, and after a time Wilson appeared, tardily.

"You are to go down to Barnes and tell him to send a cab here as soon as possible," Henson said. "I have to go to London by the first train in the morning."

Wilson nodded, with his mouth wide open. He was astonished and not a little alarmed at the strength and vitality of the man. And only a few hours before Williams had learned, with deep satisfaction, that Henson would be confined to his bed for some days.

Henson dressed at length and packed a small portmanteau. But he had to sit on his bed for some little time, and sip a further dose of brandy before he could move further. After all, there was no hurry. A full hour was sure to elapse before the leisurely Barnes brought the cab to the lodge gates.

Henson crept down stairs at length, and trod his catlike way to the library. Once there, he proceeded to make a minute inspection of the telephone. He turned the handle just the fragment of an inch; and a queer smile came over his face. Then he crept as silently up stairs, opened the window of the bath room quietly and slipped out on to the leads. There were a couple of insulators here, against the wire of one of which Henson tapped his knuckles gently. The wire gave back an answering twang. The other jangled, limp and loose.

"One of the wires cut," Henson muttered. "I expected as much. Madame Enid is getting a deal too clever. I suppose this is some suggestion of her very astute friend, David Steel. Well, I have given Mr. Steel one lesson in minding his own business, and if he interferes further I shall have to give him another. He will be in gaol before long, charged with attempted murder and robbery, with violence, and so exit Steele. After that the girl will be perhaps chary of seeking outside assistance. And this will be the third I have had to get rid of. Heavens! How feeble I feel, how weak I am! And yet I must go through this thing now!"

He staggered into the house again and dropped into a chair. There was a loud buzzing in his ears, so that he could hardly hear the murmur of voices in the drawing room below. This was annoying, because Henson liked to hear everything that other folks said. Then he dropped off into a kind of dreamy state, coming back, presently, to the consciousness that he had fainted.

Meanwhile, Frank Littimer had joined Enid in the drawing room. The house was perfectly quiet and still by this time; the dust-cloud hung on the air and caused the lamps to burn with a spitting blue flame. Enid's face looked deadly pale against her black dress.

"So you have been seeing Reginald," she said. "Why—why did you do it?"

"I didn't mean to," Frank muttered. "I never intended him to know that I had been in the house at all. But I was passing his room and he heard me, he seemed to know my footsteps. I believe if two mice ran by him twice in the darkness he could tell the difference between them."

"You had an interesting conversation. What did he want to use the telephone for?"

"I don't know. I tried to manipulate it for him, but the instrument was out of order."

"I know. I had a pretty shrewd idea of what our cousin was going to do. You see, I was listening at the door. Not a very ladylike thing to do, but one must fight Henson with his own tools. When I heard him ask for the telephone directory I ran out and nipped one of the wires by the bath room. Frank, it would have been far wiser if you hadn't come."

Littimer nodded, gloomily. There was something like tears in his eyes.

"I know it," he said. "I hate the place and its dreadful associations. But I wanted to see Chris first. Did she say anything about me before—before—"

"My dear boy, she loved you, always. She knew and understood, and was sorry. And she never, never forgot the last time you were in the house."

Frank Littimer glanced around the room with a shudder. His eyes dwelt with fascination on the overturned table, with its broken china and glass and wilted flowers in the corner.

"It is not the kind of thing to forget," he said, hoarsely. "I can see my father now—"

"Don't!" Enid shuddered, don't recall it. And your mother has never been the same since. I doubt if she ever will be the same again. From that day to this nothing has ever been touched in the house. And Henson comes here when he can and makes our lives hideous to us."

"I fancy I shook him up to-night," Littimer said, with subdued triumph. "He seemed to shudder when I told him that I had found Van Sneck."

Enid started from her chair. Her eyes were shining with the sudden brilliancy of unveiled stars.

"You have found Van Sneck!" she whispered. "Where?"

"Why, in the Brighton hospital. Do you mean to say that you don't know about it, that you don't know that the man found so mysteriously in Mr. David Steel's house and Van Sneck are one and the same person?"

Enid resumed her seat again. She was calm enough now.

"It had not occurred to me," she said. "Indeed, I don't know why it should have done. Sooner or later, of course, I should have suggested to Mr. Steel to try and identify the man, but—"

"My dear Enid, what on earth are you talking about?"

"Nonsense," Enid said, in confusion. "Things you don't understand at present, and things you are not going to understand just yet. I read in the papers that the man was quite a stranger to Mr. Steel. But are you certain that it is Van Sneck?"

"Absolutely certain. I went to the hospital and identified him."

"Then there is no more to be said on that point. But you were foolish to tell Reginald."

"Not a bit of it. Why, Henson has known it all along. You needn't get excited. He is a deep fellow, and nobody knows better than he how to disguise his feelings. All the same, he was just mad to know what I had discovered. You could see it in his face. Reginald Henson—"

Littimer paused, open-mouthed, for Henson, dressed and wrapped ready for the journey, had come quietly into the drawing room. The deadly pallor of his face, the white bandages about his throat, only served to render his appearance more emphatic and imposing. He stood there, with the halo of dust about him, looking like the evil genius of the place.

"I fear I startled you," he said, with a sardonic smile. "And I fear that, in the stillness of the place, I have overheard a great part of your conversation. Frank, I must congratulate you on your discretion, so far. But seeing that you are young and impressionable, I am going to move temptation out of your way. Enid, I am going on a journey."

"I trust that it is a long one, and that it will detain you for a considerable period," Enid said, coldly.

"It is neither far, nor is it likely to keep me," Henson smiled. "Williams has just come in with the information that the cab awaits me at the gate. Now, then!"

The last words were flung at Littimer with contemptuous command. The hot blood flared into the young man's face. Enid's eyes flashed.

"If my cousin likes to stay here," she said, "why—"

"He is coming with me!" Henson said, hoarsely. "Do you understand? With me! And if I like to drag him—or you, my pretty lady—to the end of the world or the gates of perdition, you will have to come. Now, get along, before I compel you!"

Enid stood, with fury in her eyes and clenched hands, as Littimer slunk away out of the house, Henson following between his victim and Williams. He said no words until the lodge gates were passed and the growl of the dogs died in the distance.

"We are going to Littimer Castle," said Henson.

"Not there!" Littimer groaned—"not there, Henson! I couldn't—I couldn't go to that place!"

Henson pointed towards the cab.

"Littimer or perdition!" he said. "You don't want to go to the latter just yet? Jump in, then!"

CHAPTER XXV.

Littimer Castle.

If you had asked the first five people on the Littimer estate what they thought of the lord of the soil, you would have had a different answer from everyone. One woman would have said that a kinder and better man never lived; her neighbor would have declared Lord Littimer to be as hard as the nether millstone. Farmer George would have rated him a jolly good fellow, and tell how he would sit in the kitchen over a mug of ale; while Farmer John swore at his landlord as a hard-fisted, grasping miser, devoid of the bowels of compassion.

At the end of an hour you would be utterly bewildered, not knowing what to believe, and prepared to set the whole village down as a lot of gossips, who seemed to mind everything but its own business. And perhaps Lord Littimer might come riding through on his big black horse, small, lithe, brown as mahogany, and with an eye piercing as a diamond drill. One day he looked almost boyishly young, there would be a smile on his tanned face. And then another day he would be bent in the saddle, huddled up, wizened, an old, old man, crushed with the weight of years and sorrow.

In sooth, he was a man of moods and contradictions, changeable as an April sky, and none the less quick-tempered and hard because he knew that everybody was terribly afraid of him. And he had a tongue, too, a lashing, cutting tongue, that burned and blistered. Sometimes he would be quite meek and angry under the reproaches of the vicar, and yet the same day history records it that he got off his horse and administered a sound thrashing to the village poacher. Sometimes he got the best of the vicar, and sometimes that worthy man scored. They were good friends, these two, though the vicar never swerved in his fealty to Lady Littimer, whose cause he always championed. But nobody seemed to know anything about that dark scandal. They knew that there had been a dreadful scene at the castle seven years before, and that Lady Littimer and her son had left never to return. Lady Littimer was in a madhouse somewhere, they said, and the son was a wanderer on the face of the earth. And when Lord Littimer died every penny of the property, the castle included, would go to her ladyship's nephew, Mr. Reginald Henson.

In spite of the great cloud that hung over the family, Lord Littimer did not seem to have changed. He was just a little more caustic than ever, his tongue a little sharper. The servants could have told a different story, a story of dark moods and days when the bitterness of the shadow of death lay on their master. Few men could carry their grief better, and because Littimer carried his grief so well he suffered the more. We shall see what that sorrow was in time.

There are few more beautiful places in England than Littimer Castle. The house stood on a kind of natural plateau, with many woods behind, a trout stream ran clean past the big flight of steps leading to the hall, below were terrace after terrace of hanging gardens, and to the left a sloping, ragged drop of two hundred feet into the sea. To the left lay a magnificently-timbered park with a herd of real wild deer—perhaps the only herd of the kind in the country. When the sun shone on the gray walls they looked as if they had been painted by some cunning hand, so softly were the grays, reds and blues blended.

Inside the place was a veritable art gallery. There were hundreds of pictures and engravings there. All around the grand staircase ran a long, deep corridor, filled with pictures. There were alcoves here fitted up as sitting rooms, and in most of them some gem or another was hung. When the full flood of electric light was turned on at night the effect was almost dazzling. There were few pictures in the gallery without a history.

Lord Littimer had many hobbies, but not one that interested him like this. There were hundreds of rare birds shot by him in different parts of the world; the corridors and floors were covered by skins the spoil of his rifle; here and there a stuffed bear pranced startlingly; but the pictures and prints were the great amusements of his lordship's lonely life.

He passed along the corridor now towards the great oriel window at the end. A brilliant sunlight filled the place with shafts of golden and blue and purple, as it filtered through the stained glass. At a table in the window a girl sat working a typewriter. She might have passed for beautiful, only her hair was banded down in hideously-Puritan fashion on each side of her delicate, oval face, and her eyes were shielded by spectacles. But they were lovely, steady, courageous blue eyes, as Littimer did not fail to observe. Also, he had not failed to note that his new secretary could do very well without the glasses.

The typewriter and secretary business was a new whim of Littimer's. He wanted an assistant to catalogue and classify his pictures and prints, and he had told the vicar so. He wanted a girl who wasn't a fool, a girl who could amuse him and wouldn't be afraid of him, and he thought he would have an American. To which the vicar responded that the whole thing was nonsense, but he had heard of a Boston girl in England who had a passion for that kind of thing, and who was looking for a situation of the kind in a genuine old house for a year or so. The vicar added that he had not seen the young lady, but he could obtain her address. A reply came in due course, a reply that so pleased the impetuous earl that he engaged the applicant on the spot. And now she had been just two hours in the house.

"Well," Littimer cried, "and how have you been getting on?"

Miss Cristabel Lee looked up, smilingly.

"I am getting on very well, indeed," she said. "You see, I have made a study of this kind of thing all my lifetime, and most of your pictures are like old friends to me. Do you know, I fancy that you and I are going to manage very well together?"

"Oh, do you? They say I am pretty formidable at times."

"I shan't mind that a bit. You see, my father was a man with a villainous temper. But a woman can always get the better of a bad-tempered man, unless he happens to be one of the lower class who uses his boots. If he is a gentleman you have him entirely at your mercy. Have you a sharp tongue?"

"I flatter myself that I can be pretty blistering on occasions," Littimer said, grimly.

"How delightful! So can I. You and I will have some famous battles later on. Only I warn you that I never lose my temper, which gives me a tremendous advantage. I haven't been very well lately, so you must be nice to me for a week or two."

Littimer smiled and nodded. The grim lord of the castle was not accustomed to this kind of thing, and he was telling himself that he rather liked it.

"And now show me the Rembrandt," Miss Lee said, impatiently.

Littimer led the way to a distant alcove, lighted from the side by a latticed window. There was only one picture in the excellent light there, and that was the famous Rembrandt engraving. Littimer's eyes lighted up lovingly as they rested upon it. The Florentine frame was hung so low that Miss Lee could bring her face on a level with it.

"This is the picture that was stolen from you?" she asked.

"Yes, that's the thing that there was all the fuss about. It made a great stir at the time. But I don't expect that it will happen again."

"Why not?" Miss Lee asked. "When an attempt of that sort is made it is usually followed by another, sometimes after the lapse of years. Anybody getting through that window could easily get the frame from its two nails and take out the paper."

"Do you think so?" Littimer asked, uneasily.

"I am certain of it. Take my advice and make it secure. The panels behind are hard wood—thick black oak, Lord Littimer? I am going to get four brass-headed stays and drive them through some of the open ornamental work, so as to make the picture quite secure. It is an iron frame, I suppose?"

"Wrought-iron gilt," said Littimer. "Yes, one could easily drive four brass-headed stays through the open work and make the thing safe. I'll have to see to it."

But Miss Lee insisted that there was no time like the present. She had discovered that Littimer had an excellent carpenter's shop on the premises; indeed, she admitted to being no mean performer with the lathe herself. She flitted down the stairs light as thistledown.

"A charming girl," Littimer said, cynically. "I wonder why she came to this dull hole. A quarrel with some young man, perhaps. If I were a young man myself I might—. But women are all the same. I should be a happier man if I had never trusted one. If—"

The face darkened; a heavy scowl lined his brows as he paced up and down. Christabel came back presently with hammer and some brass-headed stays in her hand.

"Don't utterly destroy the frame," Littimer said, resignedly. "It is reputed to be Quentin Matsy's work, and I had it cut to its present fashion. I'll go to the end of the gallery until the execution's over."

"On the contrary," Miss Lee said, firmly, "you will stay where you are told."

A little to his own surprise, Littimer remained. He saw the nails driven firmly in and finished off with a punch, so that there might be no danger of hammering the exquisitely-wrought frame. Miss Lee stood regarding her work with a suggestion of pride.

"There," she said. "I flatter myself a carpenter could have done no better."

"You don't know our typical carpenter," Littimer said. "Here is Tredwell with a telegram. For Miss Lee? I hope it isn't an intimation that some relative has died and left you a fortune. At least, if it is, you mustn't go until we've had one of those quarrels you promised me."

Christabel glanced at the telegram and slipped it into her pocket. There were just a few words in the telegram that would have been unintelligible to the ordinary understanding. The girl did not even comprehend, but Littimer's eyes were upon her and the cipher had to keep for a time. Littimer walked away at an intimation that his steward desired to see him.

(To be Continued.)

CHINESE BRIDES WEAR RED.

Color Prevails in Nuptial Garments and Decorations of the House.

Red is the nuptial color in China. The coolies that carry the bride in her litter are dressed in red, and they bear a dwarf orange tree loaded with fruit and coin. The bride's compartments are finished in red trimmings, presents are carried on red trays, the banners borne in the procession are originally crimson, which are brightened by the rosy glow of the lanterns. Red umbrellas are carried, and the illuminated signs blaze with color. The canopy itself is decorated according to the wealth and the taste of the bride's family.

A poor woman is carried to her wedding feast in a plain chair painted red. If the family has wealth or rank the palaquin is very ornate, decorated with dragon heads. The Chinse skill in working silk or gold cord is displayed in an artistic manner. When the bride appears she wears a red veil, and the letters to her ancestors, whose blessing is invoked, are written on red paper. The bride generally wears a crown adorned with tinsel and mock jewels—an idea which is much more prevalent in Sweden.—Woman's home companion.

"Axed His Pardin."

Ex-Gov. Hoge Tyler of Virginia, whose term expired in December last, was especially generous in granting pardons. From many of them he derived much pleasure in the gratitude of the unfortunates, and often received material for an amusing story. One of these he tells was of a negro from Richmond, convicted of some slight offense, who had convinced the governor that he had been sufficiently punished, and who was, accordingly, granted a pardon. The pardoned man's younger brother heard of his release before the ex-convict could reach home, and rushed to tell their mother the good news.

"Oh! mammie!" he cried. "Bob's dun got out, and 's mos' heah now."

"Bless de Lud!" exclaimed the mother; "but how'd he git out? He ain't dun busted out, is he?"

"Naw, mammie! De guv'nor jist sint down and axed his pardin, an' told him to go home."—New York Times.

Would Suggest Crucifixion.

Jabez Spencer Balfour, first mayor of the flourishing town of Crowdon, near London, was afterwards convicted of extensive frauds. The second mayor was Hobbs, the contractor, who was associated with Mr. Balfour in schemes, and met with the same fate.

The third mayor was Sir Frederick Edridge, who retained the office until recently. He was asked, a short time ago, why he had not presented his portrait to the council. "There's a vacant space between the portraits of Balfour and Hobbs," he was informed.

"I don't care to have my picture there at present," said Sir Frederick. "If they'll remove the other portaraits, I'll have it put up. At present it would be too suggestive of the crucifixion."—

Gave It Up.

A young woman of twenty-eight, upon returning home after a long absence, was greeted by her old mammy with:

"An' so, Miss Caroline, yer ain't married yit?"

"No, mammy, and I've about given up all hope."

"Well, honey, it's powerful comfortin' when ye cease to struggle, but it will be mighty disappointin' to yer maw."—Lippincott's.

Probably True.

"Where did all these skeletons come from?" asked the visitor at the medical college.

"Can you keep a secret?" queried the medical student.

"Sure thing," replied the visitor.

"Then I'll tell you," said the embryo M. D., and continued, in a loud whisper: "We raised 'em!"—Chicago News.

Mobbed.

First College Girl—I hear you girls mobbed the umpire at the class game?

Second College Girl—Yes! We called her a "mean old thing" and told her that she was "perfectly horrid."—Puck.

Premature.

Goldstein—I understan' dat you had a fire in your clodings store last night?

Cohenstein—No; it von't be until negxd veek—Ohio State Journal.

A Recipe for Bliss.

Miss Johnson—I t'ink we are jes' de happies' couple in the hull worl'!

Her Fiance—Well, we will be, Dinah, jes' as long as we t'ink so.—Judge.

THE GRAVE OF KUSHAQUA.

Foreman of Gang of Laborers Imposed on Dr. Seward Webb.

Dr. W. Seward Webb, whose name has been filling the newspapers recently in connection with the affairs of a syndicate in Wall street, has great talent as a railroad builder. One of his achievements was the construction of the Adirondack and St. Lawrence railroad, cutting through the heart of the great New York wilderness.

During the building of this road Dr. Webb became very much interested in the location of a hotel at Lake Kushaqua, an extremely beautiful spot. He ordered a section gang to clear the grounds all about the hotel, and to lay out a smooth, level lawn. The foreman in charge of this gang was an Irishman. In the course of his labor he came upon an enormous bowlder. To remove this rock would have involved more labor than he was inclined to give to the job, so he covered the rock with earth and laid over this a carpet of turf.

About two months later Dr. Webb came to Lake Kushaqua and his eyes fell upon the mound. He called the foreman sharply to task.

"Didn't I tell you," he said, "to level this ground?"

"Yes, sir," replied the foreman.

"Then why didn't you do it? What is this hummock doing here?"

"That hummock?" repeated the foreman, sparring for time; "why, I didn't think you would want that hummock removed. When we lifted the rock we found some bones under it, and one of the Indians around here, whom we asked, told us that it was the grave of the great Chief Kushaqua. I thought you would probably want us to leave it."

The man received Dr. Webb's commendation for his thoughtfulness, and to this day the hummock is pointed out to visitors at the hotel as the grave of Kushaqua, to the great glee of the natives thereabouts.

A SPONGE STOCK FARM.

They Are Trying to Breed Tame Ones Now in Florida.

Not even the sponge can escape the efforts of the breeder. If the government succeeds even measurably in its efforts, there will be a stock farm of sponges on the Florida coast some day, where a man can go and buy eggs or young sponges as he would buy hens' eggs or calves now.

Some time ago Dr. H. F. Moore began experiments at Sugar Loaf Key about 25 miles east of Key West, and at several places in Biscayne bay. Several thousand sponge cuttings were planted at these places under a variety of conditions. The chief problem confronting the experimenter in this field is to find some ready means of attaching the cuttings to a durable support, capable of resisting the action of salt water and the ravages of the teredo and animals having similar destructive habits, and which, at the same time, will not have an injurious effect upon the growing sponge. The cuttings live and their cut surfaces heal without difficulty.

About six weeks after the plants were made they were examined, and, under favorable conditions, it was found that about 95 per cent of the sheepswool cuttings were alive, healed and apparently healthy. In several cases, where the plants were made in places exposed to very strong currents, many of the pieces were torn loose from their supports, while others had been killed by rough action of the currents.

The cuttings from yellow sponges suffered a much greater mortality than those made from the sheepswool sponge, but whether this be due to the more delicate nature of the animal or to the accidental conditions under which they were planted is not yet determined.

So far as has been discovered, the more valuable sheepswool sponge seems to posses greater hardiness than its cogener.

Berlin a Beautiful City.

"Berlin, the Beautiful," is the name bestowed upon the German capital by the throngs of visitors who pour through every summer. Those who have not visited Berlin on previous pilgrimages and also those who saw Berlin a decade ago stand in astonishment before the mighty progress of the kaiserstadt. To Paris still belongs the charm and the gayety which attracts visitors from all parts of the earth, but to Berlin is now awarded the prize for its artistic aspect, its immaculately clean streets, well groomed public squares and its statuary and ornamental bridges, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Add to this that Berlin is the acknowledged pivotal center of political Europe and that upon the German empire, with its vigorous ruler, rests the decision of peace or war in continental Europe, and it is no wonder that Berlin is pressing Paris very closely.

Japanese New Woman.

The Japan Woman's University is said to have adopted baseball in a modified form as an exercise for its students, says the Japan Times. The modification made by a gymnastic teacher consists of increasing the number of bases to five instead of four, and of shortening the inter-base distance. The field will therefore be pentagonal in shape. The heading of this note may sound objectionable, but in using it we do not of course insinuate that our "new women" behave extravagantly, as their sisters in the West are supposed to do. The creation of "new women," adopted for national requirements, is an inevitable consequence of the new state of affairs in Japan.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TO MOTHERS

Mrs. J. H. Haskins, of Chicago, Ill., President Chicago Arcade Club, Addresses Comforting Words to Women Regarding Childbirth.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Mothers need not dread childbearing after they know the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. While I loved children I dreaded the ordeal, for it left me weak and sick for months after, and at the time I thought death was a welcome relief; but before my last child was born a good neighbor advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I used that, together with your Pills and Sanative Wash for four months before the child's birth;—it brought me wonderful relief. I hardly had an ache or pain, and when the child was ten days old I left my bed strong in health. Every spring and fall I now take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it keeps me in continual excellent health."—MRS. J. H. HASKINS, 3248 Indiana Ave., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

MRS. J. H. HASKINS.

Care and careful counsel is what the expectant and would-be mother needs, and this counsel she can secure without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John J. Daniels, New London, Minn. trap for pocket gophers; Frank France, Fargo, N. D., branding iron; Kasberg Seele, Finley, N. D., valve gear; Abraham Johnson, Winona, Minn., semaphore; Joseph Koolmel, Crookston, Minn., compound tool; Beatrice Lindberg, Faribault, Minn., kindergarten loom; Louis Muntz, Winona, Minn., respirator; Paul Plontnik, Delano, Minn., hay rack; Thomas Vojta, Mound City, S. D., oil can.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Shoeshineidiness.

He was rolling along in the intermediate stages of intoxication, when his attention was attracted by a sign on the door of an office building. It was, "Shoes Shined Inside."

"That's funny," he said, half-aloud "Ver' funny. Shushined inside. What anybody want shushined inside for? Can't see inside. Want mine shined outside. Mus' be new style. Le's see."

And he went stumbling into the building to make the bootblack explain.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

It may be well enough to "know thyself," but if you are wise, you will not boast of the acquaintance.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Half the troubles we complain of are troubles only because we complain of them.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

The man who is in the middle of a bad fix is said to be on the ragged edge.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Round Trip Homeseekers' Excursions to the West.

The Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets to Manitoba, Montana, Washington and all points in the West, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, at rate of about one fare for the round trip.

Information from all Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

TO CURE A COLD IN THE HEAD
Use Cole's Carbolisalve.
Apply it in each nostril at night and your head will be clear in the morning. 25c and 50c, all druggists.

A married man's idea of home comforts is a shirt that is not made at home.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, Specialist,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

Nothing provokes a proud woman like the pride of some other woman.

WE WANT YOUR TRADE
You can buy of us at wholesale prices and save money. Our 1,000-page catalogue tells the story. We will send it upon receipt of 15 cents. Your neighbors trade with us—why not you?
Montgomery Ward & Co
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

Macaroni Wheats.

Heretofore the hardy, glassy wheats of the durum group have been received with but little favor in this country. Now, however, as a result of the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture to establish these wheats, there is being manifested a great change of opinion as to their merits, in view of their probable complete utilization in the future for the manufacture of macaroni. In Europe they are called hard wheats and in this country they have not until recently been sufficiently well known to receive a special name. The term macaroni wheat given to this class of wheat by the department is becoming rapidly adopted, and its application is already pretty well understood. Among all wheats macaroni wheats are the best adapted to regions of intense heat and drought. During last season these wheats had another excellent opportunity to show their superior drought-resistance. In large portions of the northwest, where the ordinary wheat crop was almost an entire failure, macaroni wheat produced a very fair crop of grain that was very little shriveled; while in southwest Texas, where grain growing has been uniformly a failure, they yielded well and produced grain of apparently excellent quality. It is believed that the thorough establishment of this new wheat industry will be of greatest benefit to agriculture in the semi-arid plains. A million or more of acres can thus be given to profitable wheat raising which on account of drought have heretofore either been entirely idle or less profitably employed. In a few years time the result ought to be an addition of thirty to fifty million bushels to the annual wheat production of the Great Plains alone. The agricultural area will be extended much farther westward and the necessity of irrigation will thereby be diminished correspondingly.

Follow the Leadings of Nature.

C. P. Goodrich: We must follow nature. We have cut off the trees and shrubs and destroyed, with the plow, the plants whose roots penetrated deep in the ground. We must put on some plants that will do the same thing; that is, disintegrate the subsoil and make the plant food available and bring it to the top where our cultivated crops can feed on it. There is nothing better now known for this purpose than clover or alfalfa.

I would not cultivate the steep side-hills. Let them grow to timber and let nature keep on as she has been doing, holding the soil from washing and raising a valuable crop. We need a great deal of timber and it will be more valuable year by year. There is land enough that is comparatively level, to cultivate. I would not wait long after the land was cleared or broken up before I sowed clover. It is very rare that there is a failure to get a catch on such land. But a great many men seem to think it is wasteful to sow clover on land before it gets poor.

I remember some forty years ago, when I had just commenced seeding to clover, I was sowing some seed on a field near the road, when a neighbor came along and asked me what I was sowing. I told him clover seed. "What?" he said, "sow clover seed on this land! This is new and rich and will raise a good many good crops before you will need to sow clover. I would not sow clover as long as the land would raise a crop of grain."

He waited till his land got poor, with the humus all taken out of it, before he sowed clover. Then he had several failures before he got a catch. Many farmers, judging by their actions, think as this man did.

Hard Wheats Made Millable.

F. D. Coburn: Kansas is virtually the only portion of America producing the famous hard red wheat in considerable quantities, in which as in many other things, the state is unique. The seed was first experimented with in some of the central counties nearly thirty years ago, being brought by Mennonite immigrants from southern Russia, near the Black Sea, who apparently understood much better than Americans its hardy productiveness and real value. For years following its introduction it was disparaged by American millers and grain-buyers, who claimed that its flinty character made it so difficult to grind as to materially lessen its market value. The farmers, however, persevered in sowing it and the production steadily increased, although they were compelled to accept in the markets from ten to fifteen cents per bushel below what buyers and millers were willing to pay for the softer and much better known varieties yielding considerably fewer bushels per acre. They persistently argued that it was more profitable to raise a wheat that would reliably yield them, one year with another, from eighteen to forty bushels per acre, even though selling for but 75 cents per bushel, than to raise a crop selling for 80 or 85 cents per bushel and yielding perhaps only twelve to fifteen bushels. This, in the course of a few years, compelled millers to devise ways and means for more successfully and economically converting this hard wheat into flour, and there were brought into use devices and processes for softening the grain by steaming and moistening before grinding.

Chalk is the milk in a white lie.

Low-Headed Trees.

The tornado of last week preached a sermon on the low heading of apple trees. The writer was in the orchards of the University of Illinois the next morning after the storm and found a large part of the apple crop on the ground. He said to himself: "The Dunlap orchards at Savoy will be a profitless investment this year, as, without doubt, the 8,000 trees there have shaken off most of their apples." Great was his surprise, however, to find that in the orchard of winter apples at Savoy (5,000 trees), the loss was slight. Here and there a tree had been uprooted on the edge of the orchard, but in the main the trees were not only standing, but were holding their apples. The cause for this immunity was apparent. The trees were all of them headed low, so very low that many of the branches touched the ground. The wind could not get under the trees, but was thrown upward wherever it touched this fruiting forest. The umbrella-shaped tops did not present good material for the work of the tempest. Evidently little whipping was done by most of the branches, compared to what would have resulted to high-topped trees.

Riding through this orchard, Senator Dunlap said: "There are four distinct advantages in low heading of apple trees. First, the wind cannot so well whip the apples from the trigs. Second, the branches protect the trunk against sunscald. Third, it is easier to spray the trees. Fourth, it is easier to harvest the fruit. The only objection to low heading is that we cannot so well get under the limbs to cultivate, but that is not a great matter, as weeds and grass do not grow very well in the shade anyway. The objection does not by any means offset the advantages I have named. After harvest is over we will send a man through here with a scythe and he will mow the few weeds that are found under the trees."

No Poultry and Egg Trust.

There has been talk about a poultry and egg trust. The thing is an absurdity at the present time, though it may become a possibility in the future, if there shall ever rise a trust in farm lands. The cry of a trust was based on the probable fact that the packing companies had bought up large quantities of poultry and eggs and had stored them for a rise. It was simply a speculation on a big scale. The owners of flocks of hens are numbered by the millions and are too numerous to have their product controlled. Besides, under the stimulus of high prices to the farmers the number of fowls in the country could easily be doubled in a single year. Unfortunately at the present time it seems probable that the producers of poultry are not getting the benefit of the high prices being paid by the consumers of poultry and poultry products. If that be so, then the high prices the consumers are paying will not stimulate production, and the present very unsatisfactory state of things will continue. We would like to hear from our readers as to the prices they are at the present time receiving for their poultry and poultry products and a statement as to the prices they have received in past years.

Form of Profitable Feeder.

Prof. H. W. Mumford: The general form should be low-set, deep, broad and compact rather than high up, gaunt, narrow and loosely made. Stockers and feeders should be low-set or on short legs because animals of this conformation are almost invariably good feeders and capable of early maturity. They should be deep, broad and compact because this conformation indicates good constitution, capacity for growth and of ultimately producing a relatively high percentage of the most valuable cuts. They should possess straight top and underlines which should be nearly parallel, should be low at the flanks, thus forming what we have spoken of above as good depth, for the barrel of stockers and feeders as well as dairy cows should be roomy. An animal which is too paunchy, however, is objectionable to the butcher. The matter of low flanks should, I believe, be emphasized, as it is an almost unfailing sign of good constitution and good feeding quality.

Malted Barley as Horse Feed.

J. H. Sheppard: Malted barley is not an economical feed for work horses, and the addition of one part bran to two parts of malt, as measured by the dry barley, from which it was produced, is neither a cheap nor satisfactory feed for hard worked horses. That splendid finish can be put on stock by feeding malt, has been pointed out by Lawes and Gilbert. These gentlemen base their conclusion upon trials in feeding seventy-four animals upon malt in comparison with an equal number of a similar sort upon other foods. It is probable that animals which are not thriving or are worked down, and those which are low in vigor from any cause may often be built up rapidly by a ration containing malt.

Miss Frances Beverly, colored, was recently awarded $75 damages in her suit against a theater company in Chicago, alleging that she was refused a seat in the house, although holding a ticket.

A Genius.

"There goes a great genius!" exclaimed a Georgia citizen, as a tall figure slouched by.

"Novelist?"

"No; but he reads all the novels the other fellows write."

"You call that 'genius?'"

"Well, if it ain't exactly genius, it's the patience of it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Not a Question of Grammar.

It was a question of grammar. "'Bill A. looks badly,' is proper. "I'll bet you are wrong," said the other. "I'll take you." And the bet was made. A man who reads a great deal was consulted. "Which is right?" he was asked. "'Bill A. looks badly,' or 'Bill A. looks bad'?"

The man who reads much stroked his chin, his head dropped slightly and his eyes grew small and penetrating. He said, slowly: "Now, 'Bill A. looks bad' is bad grammar. Bill A. can't 'look bad,' because 'bad' is unmodified. If it had been modified by a 'very,' then Bill A. would 'look very bad,' which is all right. It must be 'Bill A. looks badly.' It's a question simply of degree."

The stock broker and his friend held a conference. They decided that Bill A. looked neither bad nor badly, but that he looked good.—Albany Journal.

A Fortunate Postmaster.

Kirk, Ark., July 14th.—Mr. William B. Drennan, postmaster at this office, counts himself a very fortunate man.

Mr. Drennan, in addition to being postmaster, is a Justice of the Peace, a member of the Christian church and a highly respected and useful citizen.

He has suffered for some time with what some people would call "ricketts" or "rigors" of the kidneys—kidney disease in a very painful form. He could not sleep, he had a dull pain over his left kidney, was continually restless, could not lie still, and had to get up through the night several times, and was also troubled in this way during the day.

He used a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy recently introduced in this state and advertised as a cure for Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, Malaria, etc., and in a short time was completely restored to vigorous good health. He is very grateful to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Same at Both Places.

Mr. Bingo—I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for Laces & Skirts.

Mr. Bango—Arduous job. It must be a great relief to get home nights.

Mr. Bingo—Well, no; I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for that house, too.—Judge.

COLE'S COUGH CURE SELLS BEST.

A. L. Woolsey, Druggist, Merriam Park, Minn., says: "I am selling more of Cole's Cough Cure than all other cough medicines combined. It is a great remedy, and it is a pleasure to sell it for it always gives satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by druggists. 25 and 50 cents.

A Sure Thing.

Farmer Mossbacker (behind the striped tent)—Ain't this 'ere a game o' chance?"

The Three-Shell Pirate (thoughtfully) —Nope! Ask anybody that's ever played it.—Judge.

Homeseekers' Tickets to the West.

Homeseekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway, to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes. Allen S. Olmsted of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease." Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trademark and common law rights.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points west, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
FOR SORE THROAT
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

St. John's University.
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

Cole's Cough Cure
TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT. SO WILL YOU.
SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

BOYS WHO MAKE MONEY
In a dainty little booklet, 25 out of some 3000 bright boys tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business outside of school hours. Interesting stories of real business tact.
We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. If you want to try it, address
BOYS' DEPARTMENT
The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia

A Monthly Magazine containing Five Short Stories of Interest to Teachers, Scholars and Everyone who has attended school or who enjoys a good story
JULY, 1902
5
5

The BLACKBOARD
FOR SAMPLE COPY
Send 4 Cents in Stamps to
P. O. BOX 356, - - - ST. PAUL, MINN.

N D N U. —NO. 29.— 1902.

A FREE GIFT OF OVER $19,000!
OVER 4,000 PREMIUMS.

Send One Dollar for one year's subscription for Golden Thoughts, a fifty-four page monthly paper, and you will be entitled to one guess free on the Total Vote cast for Secretary of State in Ohio, Nov. 4th, 1902. You will be entitled to as many guesses as you send yearly subscriptions. In case of tie or any one prize, prize will be divided pro rata.

Contest closes noon November 4th, 1902.

Any one guessing the correct number will receive $1,000 extra.

To the one making the nearest correct guess for Secretary of State in Ohio—will get 120 acres of land $6,000

Second nearest—80 acres of land	$4,000	Ninth nearest—50 prizes of $20 each	$1,000
Third nearest—40 acres of land	2,000	Tenth nearest—100 prizes of $10 each	1,000
Fourth nearest—One Piano	500	Eleventh nearest—200 prizes of $5 each	1,000
Fifth nearest—One Organ	200	Twelfth nearest—500 prizes of $2 each	1,000
Sixth nearest—One Phaeton	150	Thirteenth nearest—500 prizes of $1 each	500
Seventh nearest—One Gent's Gold Watch	50	Fourteenth nearest—1,000 prizes of 50 cts. each	500
Eighth nearest—One Ladies' Gold Watch	50	Fifteenth nearest—2,000 prizes of 25 cts. each	500

The vote for the past ten years for Secretary of State in Ohio is as follows:

1892—Total vote for Secretary of State	844 430	1896—Total vote for Secretary of State	1,008 547
1894—Total vote for Secretary of State	793 073	1898—Total vote for Secretary of State	779 [illegible]
1900—Total vote for Secretary of State	1,038 454

The official certificate of Secretary will be correct vote.

A prominent committee will decide to whom the premiums go after a careful investigation of your guesses. Write for extra blanks.

Agents Wanted to do writing at home. Cash weekly salary. Enclose stamp for reply.

G. W. CUPP, Mansfield, Ohio.

Baco-Curo
DON'T STOP TOBACCO
Suddenly. It injures the nervous system to do so. Use BACO-CURO and it will tell you when to stop as it takes away the desire for tobacco. You have no right to ruin your health, spoil your digestion and poison your breath by using the filthy weed. A guarantee in each box. Price $1.00 per box, or three boxes for $2.50, with guarantee to cure or money refunded. At all good Druggists or direct from us. Write for free booklet.
EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., - La Crosse, Wis.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co.
San Francisco, Cal.
Louisville, Ky. New York, N.Y.

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXIII. (Continued.)

Henson chuckled. The noise was intended to convey amused contempt, and it had that effect so far as Littimer was concerned. It was well for Henson that the latter could not see the strained anxiety of his face. The man was alert and quivering with excitement in every limb. Still, he chuckled again, as if the whole thing merely amused him.

"'The Crimson Blind' is Van Sneck's weak spot," he said. "It is King Charles' head to him. By good or bad luck—it is in your hands to say which—you know all about the way in which it became necessary to get Hatherly Bell on our side. All the same, the Rembrandt—the other one—is destroyed."

"Van Sneck has seen the picture," Littimer said, doggedly.

"Oh, play the farce out to the end," Henson laughed, good-humoredly. "Where did he see it?"

"He says he saw it at No. 218 Brunswick Square."

Henson's knees suddenly came up to his nose, then he lay quite flat again for a long time. His face had grown white once more, his lips bloodless. Fear was written all over him. A more astute man than Littimer would have seen the beads standing out on his forehead. It was some little time before he dared trust himself to speak again.

"I know the house you mean. It is next door to the temporary residence of my esteemed friend, Gilead Gates. At the present moment the place is void—"

"And has been ever since your bogus 'Home' broke up. Years ago, before you used your power to rob and oppress us as you do now, you had a Home there. You collected subscriptions right and left in the Reverend Felix Crabble, and you put the money in your pocket. A certain weekly journal exposed you, and you had to leave suddenly or you would have found yourself in the hands of the police. You skipped so suddenly that you had no time even to think of your personal effects, which you understood were sold to defray expenses. But they were not sold, as nobody cared to throw good money after bad. Van Sneck got in with the agent under pretence of viewing the house, and he saw the picture there."

"Why didn't he take it with him?" Henson asked, with amused scorn. He was master of himself again and had his nerves well under control.

"Well, that was hardly like Van Sneck. Our friend is nothing if not diplomatic. But when he did manage to get into the house again the picture was gone."

"Excellent!" Henson cried. "How dramatic! There is only one thing required to complete the story. The picture was taken away by Hatherly Bell. If you don't bring that in as the denouement I shall be utterly disappointed."

"You needn't be," Littimer said coolly. "That is exactly what did happen."

Henson chuckled again, quite a parody of a chuckle this time. He could detect the quiet suggestion of triumph in Littimer's voice.

"Did Van Sneck tell you all this?" he asked.

"Not the latter part of it," Littimer replied, "seeing that he was in the hospital when it happened. But I know it is true because I saw Bell and David Steele, the novelist, come away from the house, and Bell had the picture under his arm. And that's why Van Sneck's agent couldn't find it the second time he went. Check to you, my friend, at any rate. Bell will go to my father with Rembrandt number two and compare it with number one. And then the fat will be in the fire."

Henson yawned affectedly. All the same he was terribly disturbed and shaken. All he wanted now was to be alone and to think. So far as he could tell, nobody besides Littimer knew anything of the matter. And no starved, cowed, broken-hearted puppy was ever closer under the heel of his master than Littimer. He still held all the cards; he still controlled the fortunes of two ill-starred houses.

"You can leave me now," he said. "I'm tired. I have had a trying day, and I need sleep; and the sooner you are out of the house the better. For your own sake, and for the sake of those about you, you need not say one word of this to Enid Henson."

Littimer promised meekly enough. With those eyes blazing upon him he would have promised anything. We shall see presently what a stupendous terror Henson had over the younger man, and in what way all the sweetness and savour of life was being crushed out of him.

He closed the door behind him and immediately Henson sat up in bed. He reached for his handkerchief and wiped the big beads from his forehead.

"So the danger has come at last," he muttered. "I am face to face with it, and I knew I should be. Hatherly Bell is not the man to quietly lie down under a cloud like that. The man has brains, and patience, and indomitable courage. Now, does he suspect that I have any hand in the business? I must see him when my nerves are stronger and try and get at the truth. If he goes to Lord Littimer with that picture he shakes my power and my position perilously. What a fool I was to get it away. But, then, I only escaped from the Brighton police in those days by the skin of my teeth. And they had followed me from Huddersfield like those cursed bloodhounds here. I wonder—"

He paused as the brilliant outline of some cunning scheme occurred to him. A thin, cruel smile crept over his lips. Never had he been in a tight place yet without discovering a loophole of escape almost before he had seen the trap.

A fit of noiseless laughter shook him. "Splendid," he whispered. "Worthy of Machiavelli himself! Provided always that I can get there first. If I could only see Bell's face afterwards, hear Littimer ordering him off the premises. The only question is, am I up to seeing the thing through?"

CHAPTER XXIV.

Enid Learns Something.

Reginald Henson struggled out of bed and into his clothes as best he could. He was terribly weak and shaky, far more weak than he had imagined himself to be, but he was in danger now, and his indomitable will-power pulled him through. What a fool Littimer had been to tell him so much, merely that he might triumph over his powerful foe for a few minutes. But Henson was planning a little scheme by which he intended to repay the young man tenfold. He had no doubt as to the willingness of his tool.

He took a bottle of brandy from a drawer and helped himself to a liberal dose. Walker had expressly forbidden anything of the kind, but it was no time for nice medical obedience. The grateful stimulant had its immediate effect. Then Henson rang the bell, and after a time Wilson appeared, tardily.

"You are to go down to Barnes and tell him to send a cab here as soon as possible," Henson said. "I have to go to London by the first train in the morning."

Wilson nodded, with his mouth wide open. He was astonished and not a little alarmed at the strength and vitality of the man. And only a few hours before Williams had learned, with deep satisfaction, that Henson would be confined to his bed for some days.

Henson dressed at length and packed a small portmanteau. But he had to sit on his bed for some little time, and sip a further dose of brandy before he could move further. After all, there was no hurry. A full hour was sure to elapse before the leisurely Barnes brought the cab to the lodge gates.

Henson crept down stairs at length, and trod his catlike way to the library. Once there, he proceeded to make a minute inspection of the telephone. He turned the handle just the fragment of an inch, and a queer smile came over his face. Then he crept as silently up stairs, opened the window of the bath room quietly and slipped out on to the leads. There were a couple of insulators here, against the wire of one of which Henson tapped his knuckles gently. The wire gave back an answering twang. The other jangled, limp and loose.

"One of the wires cut," Henson muttered. "I expected as much. Madame Enid is getting a deal too clever. I suppose this is some suggestion of her very astute friend, David Steel. Well, I have given Mr. Steel one lesson in minding his own business, and if he interferes further I shall have to give him another. He will be in gaol before long, charged with attempted murder and robbery, with violence, and so exit Steele. After that the girl will be perhaps chary of seeking outside assistance. And this will be the third I have had to get rid of. Heavens! How feeble I feel, how weak I am! And yet I must go through this thing now!"

He staggered into the house again and dropped into a chair. There was a loud buzzing in his ears, so that he could hardly hear the murmur of voices in the drawing room below. This was annoying, because Henson liked to hear everything that other folks said. Then he dropped off into a kind of dreamy state, coming back, presently, to the consciousness that he had fainted.

Meanwhile, Frank Littimer had joined Enid in the drawing room. The house was perfectly quiet and still by this time; the dust-cloud hung on the air and caused the lamps to burn with a spitting blue flame. Enid's face looked deadly pale against her black dress.

"So you have been seeing Reginald," she said. "Why—why did you do it?"

"I didn't mean to," Frank muttered. "I never intended him to know that I had been in the house at all. But I was passing his room and he heard me. He seemed to know my footsteps. I believe if two mice ran by him twice in the darkness he could tell the difference between them."

"You had an interesting conversation. What did he want to use the telephone for?"

"I don't know. I tried to manipulate it for him, but the instrument was out of order."

"I know. I had a pretty shrewd idea of what our cousin was going to do. You see, I was listening at the door. Not a very ladylike thing to do, but one must fight Henson with his own tools. When I heard him ask for the telephone directory I ran out and slipped one of the wires by the bath room. Frank, it would have been far wiser if you hadn't come."

Littimer nodded, gloomily. There was something like tears in his eyes.

"I know it," he said. "I hate the place and its dreadful associations. But I wanted to see Chris first. Did she say anything about me before—before—"

"My dear boy, she loved you, always. She knew and understood, and was sorry. And she never, never forgot the last time you were in the house."

Frank Littimer glanced around the room with a shudder. His eyes dwelt with fascination on the overturned table, with it broken china and glass and wilted flowers in the corner.

"It is not the kind of thing to forget," he said, hoarsely. "I can see my father now—"

"Don't!" Enid shuddered, don't recall it. And your mother has never been the same since. I doubt if she ever will be the same again. From that day to this nothing has ever been touched in the house. And Henson comes here when he can and makes our lives hideous to us."

"I fancy I shook him up to-night," Littimer said, with subdued triumph. "He seemed to shudder when I told him that I had found Van Sneck."

Enid started from her chair. Her eyes were shining with the sudden brilliancy of unveiled stars.

"You have found Van Sneck!" she whispered. "Where?"

"Why, in the Brighton hospital. Do you mean to say that you don't know about it, that you don't know that the man found so mysteriously in Mr. David Steel's house and Van Sneck are one and the same person?"

Enid resumed her seat again. She was calm enough now.

"It had not occurred to me," she said. "Indeed, I don't know why it should have done. Sooner or later, of course, I should have suggested to Mr. Steel to try and identify the man, but—"

"My dear Enid, what on earth are you talking about?"

"Nonsense," Enid said, in confusion. "Things you don't understand at present, and things you are not going to understand just yet. I read in the papers that the man was quite a stranger to Mr. Steel. But are you certain that it is Van Sneck?"

"Absolutely certain. I went to the hospital and identified him."

"Then there is no more to be said on that point. But you were foolish to tell Reginald."

"Not a bit of it. Why, Henson has known it all along. You needn't get excited. He is a deep fellow, and nobody knows better than he how to disguise his feelings. All the same, he was just mad to know what I had discovered. You could see it in his face. Reginald Henson—"

Littimer paused, open-mouthed, for Henson, dressed and wrapped ready for the journey, had come quietly into the drawing room. The deadly pallor of his face, the white bandages about his throat, only served to render his appearance more emphatic and imposing. He stood there, with the halo of dust about him, looking like the evil genius of the place.

"I fear I startled you," he said, with a sardonic smile. "And I fear that, in the stillness of the place, I have overheard a great part of your conversation. Frank, I must congratulate you on your discretion, so far. But seeing that you are young and impressionable, I am going to move temptation out of your way. Enid, I am going on a journey."

"I trust that it is a long one, and that it will detain you for a considerable period," Enid said, coldly.

"It is neither far, nor is it likely to keep me," Henson smiled. "Williams has just come in with the information that the cab awaits me at the gate. Now, then!"

The last words were flung at Littimer with contemptuous command. The hot blood flared into the young man's face. Enid's eyes flashed.

"If my cousin likes to stay here," she said, "why—"

"He is coming with me!" Henson said, hoarsely. "Do you understand? With me! And if I like to drag him—or you, my pretty lady—to the end of the world or the gates of perdition, you will have to come. Now, get along, before I compel you!"

Enid stood, with fury in her eyes and clenched hands, as Littimer slunk away out of the house, Henson following between his victim and Williams. He said no words until the lodge gates were passed and the growl of the dogs died in the distance.

"We are going to Littimer Castle," said Henson.

"Not there!" Littimer groaned—"not there, Henson! I couldn't—I couldn't go to that place!"

Henson pointed towards the cab.

"Littimer or perdition!" he said. "You don't want to go to the latter just yet? Jump in, then!"

CHAPTER XXV.

Littimer Castle.

If you had asked the first five people on the Littimer estate what they thought of the lord of the soil, you would have had a different answer from everone. One woman would have said that a kinder and better man never lived; her neighbor would have declared Lord Littimer to be as hard as the nether millstone. Farmer George would have rated him a jolly good fellow, and tell how he would sit in the kitchen over a mug of ale; while Farmer John swore at his landlord as a hard-fisted, grasping miser, devoid of the bowels of compassion.

At the end of an hour you would be utterly bewildered, not knowing what to believe, and prepared to set the whole village down as a lot of gossips, who seemed to mind everything but its own business. And perhaps Lord Littimer might come riding through on his big black horse, small, lithe, brown as mahogany, and with an eye piercing as a diamond drill. One day he looked almost boyishly young, there would be a smile on his tanned face. And then another day he would be bent in the saddle, huddled up, wizened, an old, old man, crushed with the weight of years and sorrow.

In sooth, he was a man of moods and contradictions, changeable as an April sky, and none the less quick-tempered and hard because he know that everybody was terribly afraid of him. And he had a tongue, too, a lashing, cutting tongue, that burned and blistered. Sometimes he would be quite meek and angry under the reproaches of the vicar, and yet the same day history records it that he got off his horse and administered a sound thrashing to the village poacher. Sometimes he got the best of the vicar, and sometimes that worthy man scored. They were good friends, these two, though the vicar never swerved in his fealty to Lady Littimer, whose cause he always championed. But nobody seemed to know anything about that dark scandal. They knew that there had been a dreadful scene at the castle seven years before, and that Lady Littimer and her son had left never to return. Lady Littimer was in a madhouse somewhere, they said, and the son was a wanderer on the face of the earth. And when Lord Littimer died every penny of the property, the castle included, would go to her ladyship's nephew, Mr. Reginald Henson.

In spite of the great cloud that hung over the family, Lord Littimer did not seem to have changed. He was just a little more caustic than ever, his tongue a little sharper. The servants could have told a different story, a story of dark moods and days when the bitterness of the shadow of death lay on their master. Few men could carry their grief better, and because Littimer carried his grief so well he suffered the more. We shall see what that sorrow was in time.

There are few more beautiful places in England than Littimer Castle. The house stood on a kind of natural plateau, with many woods behind, a trout stream ran clean past the big flight of steps leading to the hall, below were terrace after terrace of hanging gardens, and to the left a sloping, ragged drop of two hundred feet into the sea. To the left lay a magnificently-timbered park with a herd of real wild deer—perhaps the only herd of the kind in the country. When the sun shone on the gray walls they looked as if they had been painted by some cunning hand, so softly were the grays, reds and blues blended.

Inside the place was a veritable art gallery. There were hundreds of pictures and engravings there. All around the grand staircase ran a long, deep corridor, filled with pictures. There were alcoves here fitted up as sitting rooms, and in most of them some gem or another was hung. When the full flood of electric light was turned on at night the effect was almost dazzling. There were few pictures in the gallery without a history.

Lord Littimer had many hobbies, but not one that interested him like this. There were hundreds of rare birds shot by him in different parts of the world; the corridors and floors were covered by skins the spoil of his rifle; here and there a stuffed bear pranced startlingly; but the pictures and prints were the great amusements of his lordship's lonely life.

He passed along the corridor now towards the great oriel window at the end. A brilliant sunlight filled the place with shafts of golden and blue and purple, as it filtered through the stained glass. At a table in the window a girl sat working a typewriter. She might have passed for beautiful, only her hair was banded down in hideously-Puritan fashion on each side of her delicate, oval face, and her eyes were shielded by spectacles. But they were lovely, steady, courageous blue eyes, as Littimer did not fail to observe. Also, he had not failed to note that his new secretary could do very well without the glasses.

The typewriter and secretary business was a new whim of Littimer's. He wanted an assistant to catalogue and classify his pictures and prints, and he had told the vicar so. He wanted a girl who wasn't a fool, a girl who could amuse him and wouldn't be afraid of him, and he thought he would have an American. To which the vicar responded that the whole thing was nonsense, but he had heard of a Boston girl in England who had a passion for that kind of thing, and who was looking for a situation of the kind in a genuine old house for a year or so. The vicar added that he had not seen the young lady, but he could obtain her address. A reply came in due course, a reply that so pleased the impetuous earl that he engaged the applicant on the spot. And now she had been just two hours in the house.

"Well," Littimer cried, "and how have you been getting on?"

Miss Cristabel Lee looked up, smilingly.

"I am getting on very well, indeed," she said. "You see, I have made a study of this kind of thing all my lifetime, and most of your pictures are like old friends to me. Do you know, I fancy that you and I are going to manage very well together?"

"Oh, do you? They say I am pretty formidable at times."

"I shan't mind that a bit. You see, my father was a man with a villainous temper. But a woman can always get the better of a bad-tempered man, unless he happens to be one of the lower class who uses his boots. If he is a gentleman you have him entirely at your mercy. Have you a sharp tongue?"

"I flatter myself that I can be pretty blistering on occasions," Littimer said, grimly.

"How delightful! So can I. You and I will have some famous battles later on. Only I warn you that I never lose my temper, which gives me a tremendous advantage. I haven't been very well lately, so you must be nice to me for a week or two."

Littimer smiled and nodded. The grim lord of the castle was not accustomed to this kind of thing, and he was telling himself that he rather liked it.

"And now show me the Rembrandt," Miss Lee said, impatiently.

Littimer led the way to a distant alcove, lighted from the side by a latticed window. There was only one picture in the excellent light there, and that was the famous Rembrandt engraving. Littimer's eyes lighted up lovingly as they rested upon it. The Florentine frame was hung so low that Miss Lee could bring her face on a level with it.

"This is the picture that was stolen from you?" she asked.

"Yes, that's the thing that there was all the fuss about. It made a great stir at the time. But I don't expect that it will happen again."

"Why not?" Miss Lee asked. "When an attempt of that sort is made it is usually followed by another, sometimes after the lapse of years. Anybody getting through that window could easily get the frame from its two nails and take out the paper."

"Do you think so?" Littimer asked, uneasily.

"I am certain of it. Take my advice and make it secure. The panels behind are hard wood—thick black oak. Lord Littimer, I am going to get four brass-headed stays and drive them through some of the open ornamental work, so as to make the picture quite secure. It is an iron frame, I suppose?"

"Wrought-iron gilt," said Littimer. "Yes, one could easily drive four brass-headed stays through the open work and make the thing safe. I'll have to see to it."

But Miss Lee insisted that there was no time like the present. She had discovered that Littimer had an excellent carpenter's shop on the premises; indeed, she admitted to being no mean performer with the lathe herself. She flitted down the stairs light as thistle-down.

"A charming girl," Littimer said, cynically. "I wonder why she came to this dull hole. A quarrel with some young man, perhaps. If I were a young man myself I might—. But women are all the same. I should be a happier man if I had never trusted one. If—"

The face darkened; a heavy scowl lined his brows as he paced up and down. Christabel came back presently with hammer and some brass-headed stays in her hand.

"Don't utterly destroy the frame," Littimer said, resignedly. "It is reputed to be Quentin Matsy's work, and I had it cut to its present fashion. I'll go to the end of the gallery until the execution's over."

"On the contrary," Miss Lee said, firmly, "you will stay where you are told."

A little to his own surprise, Littimer remained. He say the nails driven firmly in and finished off with a punch, so that there might be no danger of hammering the exquisitely-wrought frame. Miss Lee stood regarding her work with a suggestion of pride.

"There," she said, "I flatter myself a carpenter could have done no better."

"You don't know our typical carpenter," Littimer said. "Here is Tredwell with a telegram. For Miss Lee? I hope it isn't an intimation that some relative has died and left you a fortune. At least, if it is, you mustn't go until we've had one of those quarrels you promised me."

Christabel glaced at the telegram and slipped it into her pocket. There were just a few words in the telegram that would have been unintelligible to the ordinary understanding. The girl did not even comprehend, but Littimer's eyes were upon her and the cipher had to keep for a time. Littimer walked away at an intimation that his steward desired to see him.

(To be Continued.)

CHINESE BRIDES WEAR RED.

Color Prevails in Nuptial Garments and Decorations of the House.

Red is the nuptial color in China. The coolies that carry the bride in her litter are dressed in red, and they bear a dwarf orange tree loaded with fruit and coin. The bride's compartments are finished in red trimmings, presents are carried on red trays, the banners borne in the procession are originally crimson, which are brightened by the rosy glow of the lanterns. Red umbrellas are carried, and the illuminated signs blaze with color. The canopy itself is decorated according to the wealth and the taste of the bride's family.

A poor woman is carried to her wedding feast in a plain chair painted red. If the family has wealth or rank the palaquin is very ornate, decorated with dragon heads. The Chinse skill in working silk or gold cord is displayed in an artistic manner. When the bride appears she wears a red veil, and the letters to her ancestors, whose blessing is invoked, are written on red paper. The bride generally wears a crown adorned with tinsel and mock jewels—an idea which is much more prevalent in Sweden.—Woman's home companion.

"Axed His Pardin."

Ex-Gov. Hoge Tyler of Virginia, whose term expired in December last, was especially enerous in granting pardons. From many of them he derived much pleasure in the gratitude of the unfortunates, and often received material for an amusing story. One of these, he tells was of a negro from Richmond, convicted of some slight offense, who had convinced the governor that he had been sufficiently punished, and who was, accordingly, granted a pardon. The pardoned man's younger brother heard of his release before the ex-convict could reach home, and rushed to tell their mother the good news.

"Oh! mammie!" he cried. "Bob's dun got out, and 'e mos' heah now."

"Bless de Lud!" exclaimed the mother; "but how'd he git out? He ain't dun busted out, is he?"

"Naw, mammie! De guv'nor jist sint down and axed his pardin, an' told him to go home."—New York Times.

Would Jabez
the flouris
London, extensi was Hob associa and me
The t Edridge, recently.
ago, why trait to space be and Hob
"I don't at prese they'll re have it p too sugg

A young returning was greete
"An' so,
ried yit?"
"No, ma
all hope."
"Well, in' when will be maw."—L

"Where from?" as college.
"Can yo medical st
"Sure th
"Then I
M. D., and
"We raised

First C mobbed th
Second C her a "m that she

Goldstei fire in you
Cohenst

Miss J
happies
Her Fi
Jes' as lo

THE GRAVE OF KUSHAQUA.

Foreman of Gang of Laborers Imposed on Dr. Seward Webb.

Dr. W. Seward Webb, whose name has been filling the newspapers recently in connection with the affairs of a syndicate in Wall street, has great talent as a railroad builder. One of his achievements was the construction of the Adirondack and St. Lawrence railroad, cutting through the heart of the great New York wilderness.

During the building of this road Dr. Webb became very much interested in the location of a hotel at Lake Kushaqua, an extremely beautiful spot. He ordered a section gang to clear the grounds all about the hotel, and to lay out a smooth, level lawn. The foreman in charge of this gang was an Irishman. In the course of his labor he came upon an enormous bowlder. To remove this rock would have involved more labor than he was inclined to give to the job, so he covered the rock with earth and laid over this a carpet of turf.

About two months later Dr. Webb came to Lake Kushaqua and his eyes fell upon the mound. He called the foreman sharply to task.

"Didn't I tell you," he said, "to level this ground?"

"Yes, sir," replied the foreman.

"Then why didn't you do it? What is this hummock doing here?"

"That hummock?" repeated the foreman, sparring for time; "why, I didn't think you would want that hummock removed. When we lifted the rock we found some bones under it, and one of the Indians around here, whom we asked, told us that it was the grave of the great Chief Kushaqua. I thought you would probably want us to leave it."

The man received Dr. Webb's commendation for his thoughtfulness, and to this day the hummock is pointed out to visitors at the hotel as the grave of Kushaqua, to the great glee of the natives thereabouts.

A SPONGE STOCK FARM.

They Are Trying to Breed Tame Ones Now in Florida.

Not even the sponge can escape the efforts of the breeder. If the government succeeds even measurably in its efforts, there will be a stock farm of sponges on the Florida coast some day, where a man can go and buy eggs or young sponges as he would buy hens' eggs or calves now.

Some time ago Dr. H. F. Moore began experiments at Sugar Loaf Key about 25 miles east of Key West, and at several places in Biscayne bay. Several thousand sponge cuttings were planted at these places under a variety of conditions. The chief problem confronting the experimenter in this field is to find some ready means of attaching the cuttings to a durable support, capable of resisting the action of salt water and the ravages of the teredo and animals having similar destructive habits, and which, at the same time, will not have an injurious effect upon the growing sponge. The cuttings live and their cut surfaces heal without difficulty.

About six weeks after the plants were made they were examined, and, under favorable conditions, it was found that about 95 per cent of the sheepswool cuttings were alive, healed and apparently healthy. In several cases, where the plants were made in places exposed to very strong currents, many of the pieces were torn loose from their supports, while others had been killed by rough action of the currents.

The cuttings from yellow sponges suffered a much greater mortality

RETAKE

OF

PRECEDING

PAGE

TO MOTHERS

Mrs. J. H. Haskins, of Chicago, Ill., President Chicago Arcade Club, Addresses Comforting Words to Women Regarding Childbirth.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Mothers need not dread childbearing after they know the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. While I loved children I dreaded the ordeal, for it left me weak and sick for months after, and at the time I thought death was a welcome relief; but before my last child was born a good neighbor advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I used that, together with your Pills and Sanative Wash for four months before the child's birth;—it brought me wonderful relief. I hardly had an ache or pain, and when the child was ten days old I left my bed strong in health. Every spring and fall I now take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it keeps me in continual excellent health."—Mrs. J. H. Haskins, 3248 Indiana Ave., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

MRS. J. H. HASKINS.

Care and careful counsel is what the expectant and would-be mother needs, and this counsel she can secure, without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John J. Daniels, New London, Minn. trap for pocket gophers; Frank France, Fargo, N. D., branding iron; Kasberg Geele, Finley, N. D., valve gear; Abraham Johnson, Winona, Minn., semaphore; Joseph Koelmel, Crookston, Minn., compound tool; Beatrice Lindberg, Faribault, Minn., kindergarten loom; Louis Muntz, Winona, Minn., respirator; Paul Plontnik, Delano, Minn., hay rack; Thomas Vojta, Mound City, S. D., oil can.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Shoeshinciditness.

He was rolling along in the intermediate stages of intoxication, when his attention was attracted by a sign on the door of an office building. It was, "Shoes Shined Inside."

"That's funny," he said, half-aloud "Ver' funny. Shushined inside. What anybody want shushined inside for? Can't see inside. Want mine shined outside. Mus' be new style. Le's see." And he went stumbling into the building to make the bootblack explain.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

It may be well enough to "know thyself," but if you are wise, you will not boast of the acquaintance.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Half the troubles we complain of are troubles only because we complain of them.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible

AGRICULTURE

Macaroni Wheats.

Heretofore the hardy, glassy wheats of the durum group have been received with but little favor in this country. Now, however, as a result of the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture to establish these wheats, there is being manifested a great change of opinion as to their merits, in view of their probable complete utilization in the future for the manufacture of macaroni. In Europe they are called hard wheats and in this country they have not until recently been sufficiently well known to receive a special name. The term macaroni wheat given to this class of wheat by the department is becoming rapidly adopted, and its application is already pretty well understood. Among all wheats macaroni wheats are the best adapted to regions of intense heat and drought. During last season these wheats had another excellent opportunity to show their superior drought-resistance. In large portions of the northwest, where the ordinary wheat crop was almost an entire failure, macaroni wheat produced a very fair crop of grain that was very little shriveled; while in southwest Texas, where grain growing has been uniformly a failure, they yielded well and produced grain of apparently excellent quality. It is believed that the thorough establishment of this new wheat industry will be of greatest benefit to agriculture in the semi-arid plains. A million or more of acres can thus be given to profitable wheat raising which on account of drought have heretofore either been entirely idle or less profitably employed. In a few years time the result ought to be an addition of thirty to fifty million bushels to the annual wheat production of the Great Plains alone. The agricultural area will be extended much farther westward and the necessity of irrigation will thereby be diminished correspondingly.

Follow the Leadings of Nature.

C. P. Goodrich: We must follow nature. We have cut off the trees and shrubs and destroyed, with the plow, the plants whose roots penetrated deep in the ground. We must put on some plants that will do the same thing; that is, disintegrate the subsoil and make the plant food available and bring it to the top where our cultivated crops can feed on it. There is nothing better now known for this purpose than clover or alfalfa.

I would not cultivate the steep side-hills. Let them grow to timber and let nature keep on as she has been doing, holding the soil from washing and raising a valuable crop. We need a great deal of timber and it will be more valuable year by year. There is land enough that is comparatively level, to cultivate. I would not wait long after the land was cleared or broken up before I sowed clover. It is very rare that there is a failure to get a catch on such land. But a great many men seem to think it is wasteful to sow clover on land before it gets poor.

I remember some forty years ago, when I had just commenced seeding to clover, I was sowing some seed on a field near the road, when a neighbor came along and asked me what I was sowing. I told him clover seed. "What?" he said, "sow clover seed on this land! This is new and rich and

FARM MISCELLANY

Low-Headed Trees.

The tornado of last week preached a sermon on the low heading of apple trees. The writer was in the orchards of the University of Illinois the next morning after the storm and found a large part of the apple crop on the ground. He said to himself: "The Dunlap orchards at Savoy will be a profitless investment this year, as, without doubt, the 8,000 trees there have shaken off most of their apples." Great was his surprise, however, to find that in the orchard of winter apples at Savoy (5,000 trees), the loss was slight. Here and there a tree had been uprooted on the edge of the orchard, but in the main the trees were not only standing, but were holding their apples. The cause for this immunity was apparent. The trees were all of them headed low, so very low that many of the branches touched the ground. The wind could not get under the trees, but was thrown upward wherever it touched this fruiting forest. The umbrella-shaped tops did not present good material for the work of the tempest. Evidently little whipping was done by most of the branches, compared to what would have resulted to high-topped trees.

Riding through this orchard, Senator Dunlap said: "There are four distinct advantages in low heading of apple trees. First, the wind cannot so well whip the apples from the trigs. Second, the branches protect the trunk against sunscald. Third, it is easier to spray the trees. Fourth, it is easier to harvest the fruit. The only objection to low heading is that we cannot so well get under the limbs to cultivate, but that is not a great matter, as weeds and grass do not grow very well in the shade anyway. The objection does not by any means offset the advantages I have named. After harvest is over we will send a man through here with a scythe and he will mow the few weeds that are found under the trees."

No Poultry and Egg Trust.

There has been talk about a poultry and egg trust. The thing is an absurdity at the present time, though it may become a possibility in the future, if there shall ever rise a trust in farm lands. The cry of a trust was based on the probable fact that the packing companies had bought up large quantities of poultry and eggs and had stored them for a rise. It was simply a speculation on a big scale. The owners of flocks of hens are numbered by the millions and are too numerous to have their product controlled. Besides, under the stimulus of high prices to the farmers the numbber of fowls in the country could easily be doubled in a single year. Unfortunately at the present time it seems probable that the producers of poultry are not getting the benefit of the high prices being paid by the consumers of poultry and poultry products. If that be so, then the high prices the consumers are paying will not stimulate production, and the present very unsatisfactory state of things will continue. We would like to hear from our readers as to the prices they are at the present time receiving for their poultry and poultry products and a statement as to the prices they have received in past years.

of Profitable Feeder.
W. Mumford: The general be low-set, deep, broad t rather than high up,
ow and loosely made.
d feeders should be low-hort legs because animals formation are almost inod feeders and capable of
ity. They should be deep, compact because this con-
ndicates good constitution, growth and of ultimately relatively high percentage valuable cuts. They should aight, top and underlines
ld be nearly parallel,
w at the flanks, thus form-have spoken of above as for the barrel of stockers as well as dairy cows
omy. An animal which is y, however, is objection-butcher. The matter of should, I believe, be emit is an almost unfailing od constitution and good lity.

Barley as Horse Feed.
ppord: Malted barley is nomical food for work the addition of one part parts of malt, as meas-dry barley, from which duced, is neither a cheap tory feed for hard worked at splendid finish can be ck by feeding malt, has d out by Lawes and Gil-gentlemen base their upon trials in feeding animals upon malt in with an equal number of rt upon other foods. It is t animals which are not are worked down, and are low in vigor from ay often be built up rapid-n containing malt.

ces Beverly, colored, was rded $75 damages in her a theater company in ing that she was refused house, although holding

A Genius.

"There goes a great genius!" exclaimed a Georgia citizen, as a tall figure slouched by.

"Novelist?"

"No; but he reads all the novels the other fellows write."

"You call that 'genius?'"

"Well, if it ain't exactly genius, it's the patience of it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Not a Question of Grammar.

It was a question of grammar. "'Bill A. looks badly,' is proper. "I'll bet you are wrong," said the other. "I'll take you." And the bet was made. A man who reads a great deal was consulted. "Which is right?" he was asked; "'Bill A. looks badly,' or 'Bill A. looks bad'?"

The man who reads much stroked his chin, his head dropped slightly and his eyes grew small and penetrating. He said, slowly: "Now, 'Bill A. looks bad' is bad grammar Bill A. can't 'look bad,' because 'bad' is unmodified. If it had been modified by a 'very,' then Bill A. would 'look very bad,' which is all right. It must be 'Bill A. looks badly.' It's a question simply of degree."

The stock broker and his friend held a conference. They decided that Bill A. looked neither bad nor badly, but that he looked good.—Albany Journal.

A Fortunate Postmaster.

Kirk, Ark., July 14th.—Mr. William S. Drennan, postmaster at this office, counts himself a very fortunate man.

Mr. Drennan, in addition to being postmaster, is a Justice of the Peace, a member of the Christian church and a highly respected and useful citizen.

He has suffered for some time with what some people would call "ricketts" or "rigors" of the kidneys—kidney disease in a very painful form. He could not sleep, he had a dull pain over his left kidney, was continually restless, could not lie still, and had to get up through the night several times, and was also troubled in this way during the day.

He used a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy recently introduced in this state and advertised as a cure for Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, Malaria, etc., and in a short time was completely restored to vigorous good health. He is very grateful to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Same at Both Places.

Mr. Bingo—I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for Lacem & Skirts.

Mr. Bango—Arduous job. It must be a great relief to get home nights.

Mr. Bingo—Well, no; I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for that house, too.—Judge.

COLE'S COUGH CURE SELLS BEST.

A. L. Woolsey, Druggist, Merriam Park, Minn., says: "I am selling more of Cole's Cough Cure than all other cough medicines combined. It is a great remedy, and it is a pleasure to sell it for it always gives satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by druggists. 25 and 50 cents.

A Sure Thing.

Farmer Mossbacker (behind the striped tent)—Ain't this 'ere a game o' chance?"

The Three-Shell Pirate (thoughtfully)—Nope! Ask anybody that's ever played it.—Judge.

Homeseekers' Tickets to the West.

Homeseekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway, to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes. Allen S. Olmsted of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease." Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points west, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
SORE THROAT
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

St. John's University.
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

Cole's Cough Cure
TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT. SO WILL YOU.
SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

BOYS WHO MAKE MONEY

In a dainty little booklet, 25 out of some 3000 bright boys tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business outside of school hours. Interesting stories of real business tact.

We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. If you want to try it, address

Boys' Department
The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia

The BLACKBOARD

a Monthly Magazine containing Five Short Stories of Interest
JULY, 1902
5
5

FOR SAMPLE COPY
Send 4 Cents in Stamps to
P. O. BOX 358, - - - ST. PAUL, MINN.

N D N U. —NO. 29.— 1902.

A FREE GIFT OF OVER $19,000!

OVER 4,000 PREMIUMS.

Send One Dollar for one year's subscription for Golden Thoughts, a fifty-four page monthly paper, and you will be entitled to one guess free on the Total Vote cast for Secretary of State in Ohio, Nov. 4th, 1902. You will be entitled to as many guesses as you send yearly subscriptions. In case of tie on any one prize, prize will be divided pro rata.

Contest closes noon November 4th, 1902.

Any one guessing the correct number will receive $1,000 extra.

To the one making the nearest correct guess for Secretary of State in Ohio—will get 120 acres of land........ $6,000

Second nearest—80 acres of land	$4,000	Ninth nearest—50 prizes of $20 each	$1,000
Third nearest—40 acres of land	2,000	Tenth nearest—100 prizes of $10 each	1,000
Fourth nearest—One Piano	500	Eleventh nearest—200 prizes of $5 each	1,000
Fifth nearest—One Organ	200	Twelfth nearest—500 prizes of $2 each	1,000
Sixth nearest—One Phaeton	150	Thirteenth nearest—500 prizes of $1 each	500
Seventh nearest—One Gent's Gold Watch	50	Fourteenth nearest—1,000 prizes of 50 cts. each	500
Eighth nearest—One Ladies' Gold Watch	50	Fifteenth nearest—2,000 prizes of 25 cts. each	500

The vote for the past ten years for Secretary of State in Ohio is as follows:

1892—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 844 430
1894—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 793 623
1896—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 1,008 547
1898—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 779 [illegible]
1900—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 1,038 454

The official certificate of Secretary will be correct vote.

A prominent committee will decide to whom the premiums go after a careful investigation of your guesses. Write for extra blanks.

Agents Wanted to do writing at home. Cash weekly salary. Enclose stamp for reply.

G. W. CUPP, Mansfield, Ohio.

Baco-Curo
DON'T STOP TOBACCO
Suddenly. It injures the nervous system to do so. Use BACO-CURO and it will tell you when to stop as it takes away the desire for tobacco. You have no right to ruin your health, spoil your digestion and poison your breath by using the filthy weed. A guarantee in each box. Price $1.00 per box, or three boxes for $2.50, with guarantee to cure or money refunded. At all good Druggists or direct from us. Write for free booklet.
EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., - La Crosse, Wis.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
San Francisco, Cal.
Louisville, Ky. New York, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXIII. (Continued.)

Henson chuckled. The noise was intended to convey amused contempt, and it had that effect so far as Littimer was concerned. It was well for Henson that the latter could not see the strained anxiety of his face. The man was alert and quivering with excitement in every limb. Still, he chuckled again, as if the whole thing merely amused him.

"'The Crimson Blind' is Van Sneck's weak spot," he said. "It is King Charles' head to him. By good or bad luck—it is in your hands to say which—you know all about the way in which it became necessary to get Hatherly Bell on our side. All the same, the Rembrandt — the other one—is destroyed."

"Van Sneck has seen the picture," Littimer said, doggedly.

"Oh, play the farce out to the end," Henson laughed, good-humoredly. "Where did he see it?"

"He says he saw it at No. 218 Brunswick Square."

Henson's knees suddenly came up to his nose, then he lay quite flat again for a long time. His face had grown white once more, his lips bloodless. Fear was written all over him. A more astute man than Littimer would have seen the beads standing out on his forehead. It was some little time before he dared trust himself to speak again.

"I know the house you mean. "It is next door to the temporary residence of my esteemed friend, Gilead Gates. At the present moment the place is void—"

"And has been ever since your bogus 'Home' broke up. Years ago, before you used your power to rob and oppress us as you do now, you had a Home there. You collected subscriptions right and left in the Reverend Felix Crosbie, and you put the money in your pocket. A certain weekly journal exposed you, and you had to leave suddenly or you would have found yourself in the hands of the police. You skipped so suddenly that you had no time even to think of your personal effects, which you understood were sold to defray expenses. But they were not sold, as nobody cared to throw good money after bad. Van Sneck got in with the agent under pretence of viewing the house, and he saw the picture there."

"Why didn't he take it with him?" Henson asked, with amused scorn. He was master of himself again and had his nerves well under control.

"Well, that was hardly like Van Sneck. Our friend is nothing if not diplomatic. But when he did manage to get into the house again the picture was gone."

"Excellent!" Henson cried. "How dramatic! There is only one thing required to complete the story. The picture was taken away by Hatherly Bell. If you don't bring that in as the denouement I shall be utterly disappointed."

"You needn't be," Littimer said coolly. "That is exactly what did happen."

Henson chuckled again, quite a parody of a chuckle this time. He could detect the quiet suggestion of triumph in Littimer's voice.

"Did Van Sneck tell you all this?" he asked.

"Not the latter part of it," Littimer replied, "seeing that he was in the hospital when it happened. But I know it is true because I saw Bell and David Steele, the novelist, come away from the house, and Bell had the picture under his arm. And that's why Van Sneck's agent couldn't find it the second time he went. Check to you, my friend, at any rate. Bell will go to my father with Rembrandt number two and compare it with number one. And then the fat will be in the fire."

Henson yawned affectedly. All the same he was terribly disturbed and shaken. All he wanted now was to be alone and to think. So far as he could tell, nobody besides Littimer knew anything of the matter. And no starved, cowed, broken-hearted puppy was ever closer under the heel of his master than Littimer. He still held all the cards; he still controlled the fortunes of two ill-starred houses.

"You can leave me now," he said. "I'm tired. I have had a trying day, and I need sleep; and the sooner you are out of the house the better. For your own sake, and for the sake of those about you, you need not say one word of this to Enid Henson."

Littimer promised meekly enough. With those eyes blazing upon him he would have promised anything. We shall see presently what a stupendous terror Henson had over the younger man, and in what way all the sweetness and savour of life was being crushed out of him.

He closed the door behind him and immediately Henson sat up in bed. He reached for his handkerchief and wiped the big beads from his forehead.

"So the danger has come at last," he muttered. "I am face to face with it, and I knew I should be. Hatherly Bell is not the man to quietly lie down under a cloud like that. The man has brains, and patience, and indomitable courage. Now, does he suspect that I have any hand in the business? I must see him when my nerves are stronger and try and get at the truth. If he goes to Lord Littimer with that picture he shakes my power and my position seriously. What a fool I was to get it away. [illegible], then, I only [illegible] from the Brighton police in those days by the skin of my teeth. And they had followed me from Huddersfield, like those cursed bloodhounds here. I wonder—"

He paused as the brilliant outline of some cunning scheme occurred to him. A thin, cruel smile crept over his lips. Never had he been in a tight place yet without discovering a loophole of escape almost before he had seen the trap.

A fit of noiseless laughter shook him. "Splendid," he whispered. "Worthy of Machiavelli himself! Provided always that I can get there first. If I could only see Bell's face afterwards, hear Littimer ordering him off the premises. The only question is, am I up to seeing the thing through?"

CHAPTER XXIV.

Enid Learns Something.

Reginald Henson struggled out of bed and into his clothes as best he could. He was terribly weak and shaky, far more weak than he had imagined himself to be, but he was in danger now, and his indomitable willpower pulled him through. What a fool Littimer had been to tell him so much, merely that he might triumph over his powerful foe for a few minutes. But Henson was planning a little scheme by which he intended to repay the young man tenfold. He had no doubt as to the willingness of his tool.

He took a bottle of brandy from a drawer and helped himself to a liberal dose. Walker had expressly forbidden anything of the kind, but it was no time for nice medical obedience. The grateful stimulant had its immediate effect. Then Henson rang the bell, and after a time Wilson appeared, tardily.

"You are to go down to Barnes and tell him to send a cab here as soon as possible," Henson said. "I have to go to London by the first train in the morning."

Wilson nodded, with his mouth wide open. He was astonished and not a little alarmed at the strength and vitality of the man. And only a few hours before Williams had learned, with deep satisfaction, that Henson would be confined to his bed for some days.

Henson dressed at length and packed a small portmanteau. But he had to sit on his bed for some little time, and sip a further dose of brandy before he could move further. After all, there was no hurry. A full hour was sure to elapse before the leisurely Barnes brought the cab to the lodge gates.

Henson crept down stairs at length, and trod his catlike way to the library. Once there, he proceeded to make a minute inspection of the telephone. He turned the handle just the fragment of an inch, and a queer smile came over his face. Then he crept as silently up stairs, opened the window of the bath room quietly and slipped out on to the leads. There were a couple of insulators here, against the wire of one of which Henson tapped his knuckles gently. The wire gave back an answering twang. The other jangled, limp and loose.

"One of the wires cut," Henson muttered. "I expected as much. Madame Enid is getting a deal too clever. I suppose this is some suggestion of her very astute friend, David Steel. Well, I have given Mr. Steel one lesson in minding his own business, and if he interferes further I shall have to give him another. He will be in gaol before long, charged with attempted murder and robbery, with violence, and so exit Steele. After that the girl will be perhaps chary of seeking outside assistance. And this will be the third I have had to get rid of. Heavens! How feeble I feel, how weak I am! And yet I must go through this thing now!"

He staggered into the house again and dropped into a chair. There was a loud buzzing in his ears, so that he could hardly hear the murmur of voices in the drawing room below. This was annoying, because Henson liked to hear everything that other folks said. Then he dropped off into a kind of dreamy state, coming back, presently, to the consciousness that he had fainted.

Meanwhile, Frank Littimer had joined Enid in the drawing room. The house was perfectly quiet and still by this time; the dust-cloud hung on the air and caused the lamps to burn with a spitting blue flame. Enid's face looked deadly pale against her black dress.

"So you have been seeing Reginald," she said. "Why—why did you do it?"

"I didn't mean to," Frank muttered. "I never intended him to know that I had been in the house at all. But I was passing his room and he heard me. he seemed to know my footsteps. I believe if two mice ran by him twice in the darkness he could tell the difference between them."

"You had an interesting conversation. What did he want to use the telephone for?"

"I don't know. I tried to manipulate it for him, but the instrument was out of order."

"I know. I had a pretty shrewd idea of what our cousin was going to do. You see, I was listening at the door. Not a very ladylike thing to do, but one must fight Henson with his own tools. When I heard him ask for the telephone directory I ran out and nipped one of the wires by the bath room. Frank, it would have been far wiser if you hadn't come."

Littimer nodded, gloomily. There was something like tears in his eyes.

"I know it," he said. "I hate the place and its dreadful associations. But I wanted to see Chris first. Did she say anything about me before—before—"

"My dear boy, she loved you, always. She knew and understood, and was sorry. And she never, never forgot the last time you were in the house."

Frank Littimer glanced around the room with a shudder. His eyes dwelt with fascination on the overturned table, with it broken china and glass and wilted flowers in the corner.

"It is not the kind of thing to forget," he said, hoarsely. "I can see my father now—"

"Don't!" Enid shuddered, don't recall it. And your mother has never been the same since. I doubt if she ever will be the same again. From that day to this nothing has ever been touched in the house. And Henson comes here when he can and makes our lives hideous to us."

"I fancy I shook him up to-night," Littimer said, with subdued triumph. "He seemed to shudder when I told him that I had found Van Sneck."

Enid started from her chair. Her eyes were shining with the sudden brilliancy of unveiled stars.

"You have found Van Sneck!" she whispered. "Where?"

"Why, in the Brighton hospital. Do you mean to say that you don't know about it, that you don't know that the man found so mysteriously in Mr. David Steel's house and Van Sneck are one and the same person?"

Enid resumed her seat again. She was calm enough now.

"It had not occurred to me," she said. "Indeed, I don't know why it should have done. Sooner or later, of course, I should have suggested to Mr. Steel to try and identify the man, but—"

"My dear Enid, what on earth are you talking about?"

"Nonsense," Enid said, in confusion. "Things you don't understand at present, and things you are not going to understand just yet. I read in the papers that the man was quite a stranger to Mr. Steel. But are you certain that it is Van Sneck?"

"Absolutely certain. I went to the hospital and identified him."

"Then there is no more to be said on that point. But you were foolish to tell Reginald."

"Not a bit of it. Why, Henson has known it all along. You needn't get excited. He is a deep fellow, and nobody knows better than he how to disguise his feelings. All the same, he was just mad to know what I had discovered. You could see it in his face. Reginald Henson—"

Littimer paused, open-mouthed, for Henson, dressed and wrapped ready for the journey, had come quietly into the drawing room. The deadly pallor of his face, the white bandages about his throat, only served to render his appearance more emphatic and imposing. He stood there, with the halo of dust about him, looking like the evil genius of the place.

"I fear I startled you," he said, with a sardonic smile. "And I fear that, in the stillness of the place, I have overheard a great part of your conversation. Frank, I must congratulate you on your discretion, so far. But seeing that you are young and impressionable, I am going to move temptation out of your way. Enid, I am going on a journey."

"I trust that it is a long one, and that it will detain you for a considerable period," Enid said, coldly.

"It is neither far, nor is it likely to keep me," Henson smiled. "Williams has just come in with the information that the cab awaits me at the gate. Now, then!"

The last words were flung at Littimer with contemptuous command. The hot blood flared into the young man's face. Enid's eyes flashed.

"If my cousin likes to stay here," she said, "why—"

"He is coming with me!" Henson said, hoarsely. "Do you understand? With me! And if I like to drag him—or you, my pretty lady—to the end of the world or the gates of perdition, you will have to come. Now, get along, before I compel you!"

Enid stood, with fury in her eyes and clenched hands, as Littimer slunk away out of the house, Henson following between his victim and Williams. He said no words until the lodge gates were passed and the growl of the dogs died in the distance.

"We are going to Littimer Castle," said Henson.

"Not there!" Littimer groaned—"not there, Henson! I couldn't—I couldn't go to that place!"

Henson pointed towards the cab.

"Littimer or perdition!" he said. "You don't want to go to the latter just yet? Jump in, then!"

CHAPTER XXV.

Littimer Castle.

If you had asked the first five people on the Littimer estate what they thought of the lord of the soil, you would have had a different answer from everyone. One woman would have said that a kinder and better man never lived; her neighbor would have declared Lord Littimer to be as hard as the nether millstone. Farmer George would have rated him a jolly good fellow, and tell how he would sit in the kitchen over a mug of ale; while Farmer John swore at his landlord as a hard-fisted, grasping miser, devoid of the bowels of compassion.

At the end of an hour you would be utterly bewildered, not knowing what to believe, and prepared to set the whole village down as a lot of gossips, who seemed to mind everything but its own business. And perhaps Lord Littimer might come riding through on his big black horse, small, lithe, brown as mahogany, and with an eye piercing as a diamond drill. One day he looked almost boyishly young, there would be a smile on his tanned face. And then another day he would be bent in the saddle, huddled up, wizened, an old, old man, crushed with the weight of years and sorrow.

In sooth, he was a man of moods and contradictions, changeable as an April sky, and none the less quick-tempered and hard because he knew that everybody was terribly afraid of him. And he had a tongue, too, a lashing, cutting tongue, that burned and blistered. Sometimes he would be quite meek and angry under the reproaches of the vicar, and yet the same day history records it that he got off his horse and administered a sound thrashing to the village poacher. Sometimes he got the best of the vicar, and sometimes that worthy man scored. They were good friends, these two, though the vicar never swerved in his fealty to Lady Littimer, whose cause he always championed. But nobody seemed to know anything about that dark scandal. They knew that there had been a dreadful scene at the castle seven years before, and that Lady Littimer and her son had left never to return. Lady Littimer was in a madhouse somewhere, they said, and the son was a wanderer on the face of the earth. And when Lord Littimer died every penny of the property, the castle included, would go to her ladyship's nephew, Mr. Reginald Henson.

In spite of the great cloud that hung over the family, Lord Littimer did not seem to have changed. He was just a little more caustic than ever, his tongue a little sharper. The servants could have told a different story, a story of dark moods and days when the bitterness of the shadow of death lay on their master. Few men could carry their grief better, and because Littimer carried his grief so well he suffered the more. We shall see what that sorrow was in time.

There are few more beautiful places in England than Littimer Castle. The house stood on a kind of natural plateau, with many woods behind, a trout stream ran clean past the big flight of steps leading to the hall, below were terrace after terrace of hanging gardens, and to the left a sloping, ragged drop of two hundred feet into the sea. To the left lay a magnificently-timbered park with a herd of real wild deer—perhaps the only herd of the kind in the country. When the sun shone on the gray walls they looked as if they had been painted by some cunning hand, so softly were the grays, reds and blues blended.

Inside the place was a veritable art gallery. There were hundreds of pictures and engravings there. All around the grand staircase ran a long, deep corridor, filled with pictures. There were alcoves here fitted up as sitting rooms, and in most of them some gem or another was hung. When the full flood of electric light was turned on at night the effect was almost dazzling. There were few pictures in the gallery without a history.

Lord Littimer had many hobbies, but not one that interested him like this. There were hundreds of rare birds shot by him in different parts of the world; the corridors and floors were covered by skins the spoil of his rifle; here and there a stuffed bear pranced startlingly; but the pictures and prints were the great amusements of his lordship's lonely life.

He passed along the corridor now towards the great oriel window at the end. A brilliant sunlight filled the place with shafts of golden and blue and purple, as it filtered through the stained glass. At a table in the window a girl sat working a typewriter. She might have passed for beautiful, only her hair was banded down in hideously-Puritan fashion on each side of her delicate, oval face, and her eyes were shielded by spectacles. But they were lovely, steady, courageous blue eyes, as Littimer did not fail to observe. Also, he had not failed to note that his new secretary could do very well without the glasses.

The typewriter and secretary business was a new whim of Littimer's. He wanted an assistant to catalogue and classify his pictures and prints, and he had told the vicar so. He wanted a girl who wasn't a fool, a girl who could amuse him and wouldn't be afraid of him, and he thought he would have an American. To which the vicar responded that the whole thing was nonsense. But he had heard of a Boston girl in England who had a passion for that kind of thing, and who was looking for a situation of the kind in a genuine old house for a year or so. The vicar added that he had not seen the young lady, but he could obtain her address. A reply came in due course, a reply that so pleased the impetuous earl that he engaged the applicant on the spot. And now she had been just two hours in the house.

"Well," Littimer cried, "and how have you been getting on?"

Miss Cristabel Lee looked up, smilingly.

"I am getting on very well, indeed," she said. "You see, I have made a study of this kind of thing all my lifetime, and most of your pictures are like old friends to me. Do you know, I fancy that you and I are going to manage very well together?"

"Oh, do you? They say I am pretty formidable at times."

"I shan't mind that a bit. You see, my father was a man with a villainous temper. But a woman can always get the better of a bad-tempered man, unless he happens to be one of the lower class who uses his boots. If he is a gentleman you have him entirely at your mercy. Have you a sharp tongue?"

"I flatter myself that I can be pretty blistering on occasions," Littimer said, grimly.

"How delightful! So can I. You and I will have some famous battles later on. Only I warn you that I never lose my temper, which gives me a tremendous advantage. I haven't been very well lately, so you must be nice to me for a week or two."

Littimer smiled and nodded. The grim lord of the castle was not accustomed to this kind of thing, and he was telling himself that he rather liked it.

"And now show me the Rembrandt," Miss Lee said, impatiently.

Littimer led the way to a distant alcove, lighted from the side by a latticed window. There was only one picture in the excellent light there, and that was the famous Rembrandt engraving. Littimer's eyes lighted up lovingly as they rested upon it. The Florentine frame was hung so low that Miss Lee could bring her face on a level with it.

"This is the picture that was stolen from you?" she asked.

"Yes, that's the thing that there was all the fuss about. It made a great stir at the time. But I don't expect that it will happen again."

"Why not?" Miss Lee asked. "When an attempt of that sort is made it is usually followed by another, sometimes after the lapse of years. Anybody getting through that window could easily get the frame from its two nails and take out the paper."

"Do you think so?" Littimer asked, uneasily.

"I am certain of it. Take my advice and make it secure. The panels behind are hard wood—thick black oak, Lord Littimer, I am going to get four brass-headed stays and drive them through some of the open ornamental work, so as to make the picture quite secure. It is an iron frame, I suppose?"

"Wrought-iron gilt," said Littimer. "Yes, one could easily drive four brass-headed stays through the open work and make the thing safe. I'll have to see to it."

But Miss Lee insisted that there was no time like the present. She had discovered that Littimer had an excellent carpenter's shop on the premises; indeed, she admitted to being no mean performer with the lathe herself. She flitted down the stairs light as thistle-down.

"A charming girl," Littimer said, cynically. "I wonder why she came to this dull hole. A quarrel with some young man, perhaps. If I were a young man miss if I might—. But women are all the same. I should be a happier man if I had never trusted one. If—"

The face darkened; a heavy scowl lined his brows as he paced up and down. Christabel came back presently with hammer and some brass-headed stays in her hand.

"Don't utterly destroy the frame," Littimer said, resignedly. "It is reputed to be Quentin Matsy's work, and I had it cut to its present fashion. I'll go to the end of the gallery until the execution's over."

"On the contrary," Miss Lee said, firmly, "you will stay where you are, (old)."

A little to his own surprise, Littimer remained. He say the nails driven firmly in and finished off with a punch, so that there might be no danger of hammering the exquisitely-wrought frame. Miss Lee stood regarding her work with a suggestion of pride.

"There," she said, "I flatter myself a carpenter could have done no better."

"You don't know our typical carpenter," Littimer said. "Here is Tredwell with a telegram. For Miss Lee? I hope it isn't an intimation that some relative has died and left you a fortune. At least, if it is, you mustn't go until we've had one of those quarrels you promised me."

Christabel glanced at the telegram and slipped it into her pocket. There were just a few words in the telegram that would have been unintelligible to the ordinary understanding. The girl did not even comprehend, but Littimer's eyes were upon her and the cipher had to keep for a time. Littimer walked away at an intimation that his steward desired to see him.

(To be Continued.)

CHINESE BRIDES WEAR RED.

Color Prevails in Nuptial Garments and Decorations of the House.

Red is the nuptial color in China. The coolies that carry the bride in her litter are dressed in red, and they bear a dwarf orange tree loaded with fruit and coin. The bride's compartments are finished in red trimmings, presents are carried on red trays, the banners borne in the procession are originally crimson, which are brightened by the rosy glow of the lanterns. Red umbrellas are carried, and the illuminated signs blaze with color. The canopy itself is decorated according to the wealth and the taste of the bride's family.

A poor woman is carried to her wedding feast in a plain chair painted red. If the family has wealth or rank the palaquin is very ornate, decorated with dragon heads. The Chinese skill in working silk or gold cord is displayed in an artistic manner. When the bride appears she wears a red veil, and the letters to her ancestors, whose blessing is invoked, are written on red paper. The bride generally wears a crown adorned with tinsel and mock jewels—an idea which is much more prevalent in Sweden.—Woman's home companion.

"Axed His Pardin."

Ex-Gov. Hoge Tyler of Virginia, whose term expired in December last, was especially generous in granting pardons. From many of them he derived much pleasure in the gratitude of the unfortunates, and often received material for an amusing story. One of these tells was of a negro from Richmond, convicted of some slight offense, who had convinced the governor that he had been sufficiently punished, and who was, accordingly, granted a pardon. The pardoned man's younger brother heard of his release before the ex-convict could reach home, and rushed to tell their mother the good news.

"Oh! mammie!" he cried. "Bob's dun got out, and 's mos' heah now."

"Bless de Lud!" exclaimed the mother; "but how'd he git out? He ain't dun busted out, is he?"

"Naw, mammie! De guv'nor jist sint down and axed his pardin, an' told him to go home."—New York Times.

Would Suggest Crucifixion.

Jabez Spencer Balfour, first mayor of the flourishing town of Crowdon, near London, was afterwards convicted of extensive frauds. The second mayor was Hobbs, the contractor, who was associated with Mr. Balfour in schemes, and met with the same fate.

The third mayor was Sir Frederick Edridge, who retained the office until recently. He was asked, a short time ago, why he had not presented his portrait to the council. "There's a vacant space between the portraits of Balfour and Hobbs," he was informed.

"I don't care to have my picture there at present," said Sir Frederick. "If they'll remove the other portaraits, I'll have it put up. At present it would be too suggestive of the crucifixion."

Gave It Up.

A young woman of twenty-eight, upon returning home after a long absence, was greeted by her old mammy with:

"An' so, Miss Caroline, yer ain't married yit?"

"No, mammy, and I've about given up all hope."

"Well, honey, it's powerful comfortin' when ye cease to struggle, but it will be mighty disappointin' to yer maw."—Lippincott's.

Probably True.

"Where did all these skeletons come from?" asked the visitor at the medical college.

"Can you keep a secret?" queried the medical student.

"Sure thing," replied the visitor.

"Then I'll tell you," said the embryo M. D., and continued, in a loud whisper: "We raised 'em!"—Chicago News.

Mobbed.

First College Girl—I hear you girls mobbed the umpire at the class game?

Second College Girl—Yes! We called her a "mean old thing" and told her that she was "perfectly horrid."—Puck.

Premature.

Goldstein—I understan' dat you had a fire in your clodings store last night?

Cohenstein—No; It von't be until negxd veek—Ohio State Journal.

A Recipe for Bliss.

Miss Johnson—I t'ink we are jes' de happies' couple in the hull worl'!

Her Fiance—Well, we will be, Dinah, jes' as long as we t'ink so.—Judge.

THE GRAVE OF KUSHAQUA.

Foreman of Gang of Laborers Imposed on Dr. Seward Webb.

Dr. W. Seward Webb, whose name has been filling the newspapers recently in connection with the affairs of a syndicate in Wall street, has great talent as a railroad builder. One of his achievements was the construction of the Adirondack and St. Lawrence railroad, cutting through the heart of the great New York wilderness.

During the building of this road Dr. Webb became very much interested in the location of a hotel at Lake Kushaqua, an extremely beautiful spot. He ordered a section gang to clear the grounds all about the hotel, and to lay out a smooth, level lawn. The foreman in charge of this gang was an Irishman. In the course of his labor he came upon an enormous bowlder. To remove this rock would have involved more labor than he was inclined to give to the job, so he covered the rock with earth and laid over this a carpet of turf.

About two months later Dr. Webb came to Lake Kushaqua and his eyes fell upon the mound. He called the foreman sharply to task.

"Didn't I tell you," he said, "to level this ground?"

"Yes, sir," replied the foreman.

"Then why didn't you do it? What is this hummock doing here?"

"That hummock?" repeated the foreman, sparring for time; "why, I didn't think you would want that hummock removed. When we lifted the rock we found some bones under it, and one of the Indians around here, whom we asked, told us that it was the grave of the great Chief Kushaqua. I thought you would probably want us to leave it."

The man received Dr. Webb's commendation for his thoughtfulness, and to this day the hummock is pointed out to visitors at the hotel as the grave of Kushaqua—to the great glee of the natives thereabouts.

A SPONGE STOCK FARM.

They Are Trying to Breed Tame Ones Now in Florida.

Not even the sponge can escape the efforts of the breeder. If the government succeeds even measurably in its efforts, there will be a stock farm of sponges on the Florida coast some day, where a man can go and buy eggs or young sponges as he would buy hens' eggs or calves now.

Some time ago Dr. H. F. Moore began experiments at Sugar Loaf Key about 25 miles east of Key West, and at several places in Biscayne bay. Several thousand sponge cuttings were planted at these places under a variety of conditions. The chief problem confronting the experimentor in this field is to find some ready means of attaching the cuttings to a durable support, capable of resisting the action of salt water and the ravages of the teredo and animals having similar destructive habits, and which, at the same time, will not have an injurious effect upon the growing sponge. The cuttings live and their cut surfaces heal without difficulty.

About six weeks after the plants were made they were examined, and, under favorable conditions, it was found that about 95 per cent of the sheepswool cuttings were alive, healed and apparently healthy. In several cases, where the plants were made in places exposed to very strong currents, many of the pieces were torn loose from their supports, while others had been killed by rough action of the currents.

The cuttings from yellow sponges suffered a much greater mortality than those made from the sheepswool sponge, but whether this be due to the more delicate nature of the animal or to the accidental conditions under which they were planted is not yet determined.

So far as has been discovered, the more valuable sheepswool sponge seems to posses greater hardiness than its cogener.

Berlin a Beautiful City.

"Berlin, the Beautiful," is the name bestowed upon the German capital by the throngs of visitors who pour through every summer. Those who have not visited Berlin on previous pilgrimages and also those who saw Berlin a decade ago stand in astonishment before the mighty progress of the kaiserstadt. To Paris still belongs the charm and the gayety which attracts visitors from all parts of the earth, but to Berlin is now awarded the prize for its artistic aspect, its immaculately clean streets, well groomed public squares and its statuary and ornamental bridges, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Add to this that Berlin is the acknowledged pivotal center of political Europe and that upon the German empire, with its vigorous ruler, rests the decision of peace or war in continental Europe, and it is no wonder that Berlin is pressing Paris very closely.

Japanese New Woman.

The Japan Woman's University is said to have adopted baseball in a modified form as an exercise for its students, says the Japan Times. The modification made by a gymnastic teacher consists of increasing the number of bases to five instead of four, and of shortening the inter-base distance. The field will therefore be pentagonal in shape. The heading of this note may sound objectionable, but in using it we do not of course insinuate that our "new women" behave extravagantly, as their sisters in the West are supposed to do. The creation of "new women," adopted for national requirements, is an inevitable consequence of the new state of affairs in Japan.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TO MOTHERS

Mrs. J. H. Haskins, of Chicago, Ill., President Chicago Arcade Club, Addresses Comforting Words to Women Regarding Childbirth.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Mothers need not dread childbearing after they know the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. While I loved children I dreaded the ordeal, for it left me weak and sick for months after, and at the time I thought death was a welcome relief; but before my last child was born a good neighbor advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I used that; together with your Pills and Sanative Wash for four months before the child's birth—it brought me wonderful relief. I hardly had an ache or pain, and when the child was ten days old I left my bed strong in health. Every spring and fall I now take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it keeps me in continual excellent health."—Mrs. J. H. HASKINS, 3248 Indiana Ave., Chicago, Ill. — $5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

MRS. J. H. HASKINS.

Care and careful counsel is what the expectant and would-be mother needs, and this counsel she can secure, without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John J. Daniels, New London, Minn., trap for pocket gophers; Frank France, Fargo, N. D., branding iron; Kasberg Beele, Finley, N. D., valve gear; Abraham Johnson, Winona, Minn., semaphore; Joseph Koelmel, Crookston, Minn., compound tool; Beatrice Lindberg, Faribault, Minn., kindergarten loom; Louis Muntz, Winona, Minn., respirator; Paul Plontnik, Delano, Minn., hay rack; Thomas Vojta, Mound City, S. D., oil can.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Shoeshinedinness.

He was rolling along in the intermediate stages of intoxication, when his attention was attracted by a sign on the door of an office building. It was, "Shoes Shined Inside."

"That's funny," he said, half-aloud. "Ver' funny. Shushined inside. What anybody want shushined inside for? Can't see inside. Want mine shined outside. Mus' be new style. Le's see."

And he went stumbling into the building to make the bootblack explain.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

It may be well enough to "know thyself," but if you are wise, you will not boast of the acquaintance.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Half the troubles we complain of are troubles only because we complain of them.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

The man who is in the middle of a bad fix is said to be on the ragged edge.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Round Trip Homeseekers' Excursions to the West.

The Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets to Manitoba, Montana, Washington and all points in the West, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, at rate of about one fare for the round trip.

Information from all Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

TO CURE A COLD IN THE HEAD
Use Cole's Carbolisalve.
Apply it in each nostril at night and your head will be clear in the morning. 25c and 50c, all druggists.

A married man's idea of home comforts is a shirt that is not made at home.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, Specialist,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

Nothing provokes a proud woman like the pride of some other woman.

WE WANT YOUR TRADE

You can buy of us at wholesale prices and save money. Our 1,000-page catalogue tells the story. We will send it upon receipt of 15 cents. Your neighbors trade with us—why not you?

Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

AGRICULTURE

Macaroni Wheats.

Heretofore the hardy, glassy wheats of the durum group have been received with but little favor in this country. Now, however, as a result of the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture to establish these wheats, there is being manifested a great change of opinion as to their merits, in view of their probable complete utilization in the future for the manufacture of macaroni. In Europe they are called hard wheats and in this country they have not until recently been sufficiently well known to receive a special name. The term macaroni wheat given to this class of wheat by the department is becoming rapidly adopted, and its application is already pretty well understood. Among all wheats macaroni wheats are the best adapted to regions of intense heat and drought. During last season these wheats had another excellent opportunity to show their superior drought-resistance. In large portions of the northwest, where the ordinary wheat crop was almost an entire failure, macaroni wheat produced a very fair crop of grain that was very little shriveled; while in southwest Texas, where grain growing has been uniformly a failure, they yielded well and produced grain of apparently excellent quality. It is believed that the thorough establishment of this new wheat industry will be of greatest benefit to agriculture in the semi-arid plains. A million or more of acres can thus be given to profitable wheat raising which on account of drought have heretofore either been entirely idle or less profitably employed. In a few years time the result ought to be an addition of thirty to fifty million bushels to the annual wheat production of the Great Plains alone. The agricultural area will be extended much farther westward and the necessity of irrigation will thereby be diminished correspondingly.

Follow the Leadings of Nature.

C. P. Goodrich: We must follow nature. We have cut of the trees and shrubs and destroyed, with the plow, the plants whose roots penetrated deep in the ground. We must put on some plants that will do the same thing; that is, disintegrate the subsoil and make the plant food available and bring it to the top where our cultivated crops can feed on it. There is nothing better now known for this purpose than clover or alfalfa.

I would not cultivate the steep side-hills. Let them grow to timber and let nature keep on as she has been doing, holding the soil from washing and raising a valuable crop. We need a great deal of timber and it will be more valuable year by year. There is land enough that is comparatively level, to cultivate. I would not wait long after the land was cleared or broken up before I sowed clover. It is very rare that there is a failure to get a catch on such land. But a great many men seem to think it is wasteful to sow clover on land before it gets poor.

I remember some forty years ago, when I had just commenced seeding to clover, I was sowing some seed on a field near the road, when a neighbor came along and asked me what I was sowing. I told him clover seed. "What?" he said, "sow clover seed on this land! This is new and rich and will raise a good many good crops before you will need to sow clover. I would not sow clover as long as the land would raise a crop of grain."

He waited till his land got poor, with the humus all taken out of it, before he sowed clover. Then he had several failures before he got a catch. Many farmers, judging by their actions, think as this man did.

Hard Wheats Made Millable.

F. D. Coburn: Kansas is virtually the only portion of America producing the famous hard red wheat in considerable quantities, in which as in many other things, the state is unique. The seed was first experimented with in some of the central counties nearly thirty years ago, being brought by Mennonite immigrants from southern Russia, near the Black Sea, who apparently understood much better than Americans its hardy productiveness and real value. For years following its introduction it was disparaged by American millers and grain-buyers, who claimed that its flinty character made it so difficult to grind as to materially lessen its market value. The farmers, however, persevered in sowing it and the production steadily increased, although they were compelled to accept in the markets from ten to fifteen cents per bushel below what buyers and millers were willing to pay for the softer and much better known varieties yielding considerably fewer bushels per acre. They persistently argued that it was more profitable to raise a wheat that would reliably yield them, one year with another, from eighteen to forty bushels per acre, even though selling for but 75 cents per bushel, than to raise a crop selling for 80 or 85 cents per bushel and yielding perhaps only twelve to fifteen bushels. This, in the course of a few years, compelled millers to devise ways and means for more successfully and economically converting this hard wheat into flour, and there were brought into use devices and processes for softening the grain by steaming and moistening before grinding.

Chalk is the milk in a white lie.

FARM MISCELLANY

Low-Headed Trees.

The tornado of last week preached a sermon on the low heading of apple trees. The writer was in the orchards of the University of Illinois the next morning after the storm and found a large part of the apple crop on the ground. He said to himself: "The Dunlap orchards at Savoy will be a profitless investment this year, as, without doubt, the 8,000 trees there have shaken off most of their apples." Great was his surprise, however, to find that in the orchard of winter apples at Savoy (5,000 trees), the loss was slight. Here and there a tree had been uprooted on the edge of the orchard, but in the main the trees were not only standing, but were holding their apples. The cause for this immunity was apparent. The trees were all of them headed low, so very low that many of the branches touched the ground. The wind could not get under the trees, but was thrown upward wherever it touched this fruiting forest. The umbrella-shaped tops did not present good material for the work of the tempest. Evidently little whipping was done by most of the branches, compared to what would have resulted to high-topped trees.

Riding through this orchard, Senator Dunlap said: "There are four distinct advantages in low heading of apple trees. First, the wind cannot so well whip the apples from the trigs. Second, the branches protect the trunk against sunscald. Third, it is easier to spray the trees. Fourth, it is easier to harvest the fruit. The only objection to low heading is that we cannot so well get under the limbs to cultivate, but that is not a great matter, as weeds and grass do not grow very well in the shade anyway. The objection does not by any means offset the advantages I have named. After harvest is over we will send a man through here with a scythe and he will mow the few weeds that are found under the trees."

No Poultry and Egg Trust.

There has been talk about a poultry and egg trust. The thing is an absurdity at the present time, though it may become a possibility in the future, if there shall ever rise a trust in farm lands. The cry of a trust was based on the probable fact that the packing companies had bought up large quantities of poultry and eggs and had stored them for a rise. It was simply a speculation on a big scale. The owners of flocks of hens are numbered by the millions and are too numerous to have their product controlled. Besides, under the stimulus of high prices to the farmers the number of fowls in the country could easily be doubled in a single year. Unfortunately at the present time it seems probable that the producers of poultry are not getting the benefit of the high prices being paid by the consumers of poultry and poultry products. If that be so, then the high prices the consumers are paying will not stimulate production, and the present very unsatisfactory state of things will continue. We would like to hear from our readers as to the prices they are at the present time receiving for their poultry and poultry products and a statement as to the prices they have received in past years.

Form of Profitable Feeder.

Prof. H. W. Mumford: The general form should be low-set, deep, broad and compact rather than high up, gaunt, narrow and loosely made. Stockers and feeders should be low-set or on short legs because animals of this conformation are almost invariably good feeders and capable of early maturity. They should be deep, broad and compact because this conformation indicates good constitution, capacity for growth and of ultimately producing a relatively high percentage of the most valuable cuts. They should possess straight top and underlines which should be nearly parallel, should be low at the flanks, thus forming what we have spoken of above as good depth, for the barrel of stockers and feeders as well as dairy cows should be roomy. An animal which is too paunchy, however, is objectionable to the butcher. The matter of low flanks should, I believe, be emphasized, as it is an almost unfailing sign of good constitution and good feeding quality.

Malted Barley as Horse Food.

J. H. Shepperd: Malted barley is not an economical food for work horses, and the addition of one part bran to two parts of malt, as measured by the dry barley, from which it was produced, is neither a cheap nor satisfactory feed for hard worked horses. That splendid finish can be put on stock by feeding malt, has been pointed out by Lawes and Gilbert. These gentlemen base their conclusion upon trials in feeding seventy-four animals upon malt in comparison with an equal number of a similar sort upon other foods. It is probable that animals which are not thriving or are worked down, and those which are low in vigor from any cause may often be built up rapidly by a ration containing malt.

Miss Frances Beverly, colored, was recently awarded $75 damages in her suit against a theater company in Chicago, alleging that she was refused a seat in the house, although holding a ticket.

A Genius.

"There goes a great genius!" exclaimed a Georgia citizen, as a tall figure slouched by.

"Novelist?"

"No; but he reads all the novels the other fellows write."

"You call that "genius?" "

"Well, if it ain't exactly genius, it's the patience of it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Not a Question of Grammar.

It was a question of grammar. "Bill A. looks badly,' is proper. "I'll bet you are wrong," said the other. "I'll take you." And the bet was made. A man who reads a great deal was consulted. "Which is right?" he was asked: "Bill A. looks badly,' or 'Bill A. looks bad?"

The man who reads much stroked his chin, his head dropped slightly and his eyes grew small and penetrating. He said, slowly: "Now, 'Bill A. looks bad' is bad grammar Bill A. can't 'look bad,' because 'bad' is unmodified. If it had been modified by a "very," then Bill A. would 'look very bad," which is all right. It must be 'Bill A. looks badly.' It's a question simply of degree."

The stock broker and his friend held a conference. They decided that Bill A. looked neither bad nor badly, but that he looked good.—Albany Journal.

A Fortunate Postmaster.

Kirk, Ark., July 14th.—Mr. William S. Drennan, postmaster at this office, counts himself a very fortunate man.

Mr. Drennan, in addition to being postmaster, is a Justice of the Peace, a member of the Christian church and a highly respected and useful citizen.

He has suffered for some time with what some people would call "ricketts" or "rigors" of the kidneys—kidney disease in a very painful form. He could not sleep, he had a dull pain over his left kidney, was continually restless, could not lie still, and had to get up through the night several times, and was also troubled in this way during the day.

He used a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy recently introduced in this state and advertised as a cure for Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, Malaria, etc., and in a short time was completely restored to vigorous good health. He is very grateful to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Same at Both Places.

Mr. Bingo—I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for Lacem & Skirts.

Mr. Bango—Arduous job. It must be a great relief to get home nights.

Mr. Bingo—Well, no; I am a "floorwalker" and "buyer" for that house, too.—Judge.

COLE'S COUGH CURE SELLS BEST.

A. L. Woolsey, Druggist, Merriam Park, Minn., says: "I am selling more of Cole's Cough Cure than all other cough medicines combined. It is a great remedy, and it is a pleasure to sell it for it always gives satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by druggists. 25 and 50 cents.

A Sure Thing.

Farmer Mossbacker (behind the striped tent)—Ain't this 'ere a game of chance?

The Three-Shell Pirate (thoughtfully)—Nope! Ask anybody that's ever played it.—Judge.

Homeseekers' Tickets to the West.

Homeseekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway, to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes. Allen S. Olmsted of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease." Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points west, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
SORE THROAT
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT

St. John's University,
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

Cole's Cough Cure
TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT. SO WILL YOU.
SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

BOYS WHO MAKE MONEY

In a dainty little booklet, 25 out of some 3000 bright boys tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business outside of school hours. Interesting stories of real business tact.

We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. If you want to try it, address

BOYS' DEPARTMENT
The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia

The BLACKBOARD

A Monthly Magazine containing Five Short Stories of Interest to JULY, 1902
5
5

FOR SAMPLE COPY
Send 4 Cents in Stamps to
P. O. BOX 358, - - - ST. PAUL, MINN.

N D N U. —NO. 29.— 1902.

A FREE GIFT OF OVER $19,000!

OVER 4,000 PREMIUMS.

Send One Dollar for one year's subscription for Golden Thoughts, a fifty-four page monthly paper, and you will be entitled to one guess free on the Total Vote cast for Secretary of State in Ohio, Nov. 4th, 1902. You will be entitled to as many guesses as you send yearly subscriptions. In case of tie on any one prize, prize will be divided pro rata.

Contest closes noon November 4th, 1902.

Any one guessing the correct number will receive $1,000 extra.

To the one making the nearest correct guess for Secretary of State in Ohio—will get 120 acres of land.......... $6,000

Second nearest—80 acres of land	$4,000	Ninth nearest—50 prizes of $20 each	$1,000
Third nearest—40 acres of land	2,000	Tenth nearest—100 prizes of $10 each	1,000
Fourth nearest—One Piano	500	Eleventh nearest—250 prizes of $4 each	1,000
Fifth nearest—One Organ	200	Twelfth nearest—500 prizes of $2 each	1,000
Sixth nearest—One Phaeton	150	Thirteenth nearest—500 prizes of $1 each	500
Seventh nearest—One Gent's Gold Watch	50	Fourteenth nearest—1,000 prizes of 50 cts. each	500
Eighth nearest—One Ladies' Gold Watch	50	Fifteenth nearest—2,000 prizes of 25 cts. each	500

The vote for the past ten years for Secretary of State in Ohio is as follows:

1892—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 841 480 1896—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 1,008 547
1894—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 793 [illegible] 1898—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 779 [illegible]
1900—Total vote for Secretary of State...... 1,098 434

The official certificate of Secretary will be correct vote.

A prominent committee will decide to whom the premiums go after a careful investigation of your guesses. Write for extra blanks.

Agents Wanted to do writing at home. Cash weekly salary. Enclose stamp for reply.

G. W. CUPP, Mansfield, Ohio.

Baco-Curo

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

Suddenly. It injures the nervous system to do so. Use BACO-CURO and it will tell you when to stop as it takes away the desire for tobacco. You have no right to ruin your health, spoil your digestion and poison your breath by using the filthy weed. A guarantee in each box. Price $1.00 per box, or three boxes for $2.50, with guarantee to cure or money refunded. At all good Druggists or direct from us. Write for free booklet.

EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., - La Crosse, Wis.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Louisville, Ky.
San Francisco, Cal.
New York, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

If Halvor Steenerson secures the Republican nomination for congressman it will not be by votes cast for him in Red Lake County.

It is rumored that Congressman Frank M. Eddy is thinking of removing to Thief River Falls and engage in the real estate and loan business here.

The selection of James Martin as chairman of the Republican state executive committee insures success. There is not a better organizer in the state of Minnesota.

The News today presents its readers with the speeches made by Senator Nelson and Gov. Van Sant at the Republican state convention. Every voter should read them over carefully.

The announcement that James McIntyre, of this city, will be a candidate for the Repuplican nomination for judge of probate is meeting with great favor in this section of the county. Mr. McIntyre is recognized as a capable man for this office, and his popularity in this section will insure that his vote up this way will be large.

Town Tales.

Agent Miller was out to Tweet Tuesday.

Charlie Close returned to the city last week.

Herman Koefod returned to this city yesterday.

Andrew Bjerkbold left Tuesday for Minneapolis.

C. G. Rapp was up from St. Hilaire on Monday.

J. J. Weeks was down to Crookston the first of the week.

M. Murphy was up from Crookston the first of the week.

Capt. Kratka was down to St. Hilaire the first of the week.

P. O. Bergh was down from Rollis the first of the week.

J. D. Abbot, of Rollis, was in the city the first of the week.

D. N. Winton was down to Crookston the first of the week.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Powers last Friday.

County Treasurer Tanberg was in the city the first of the week.

T. G. Thompson was down to Crookston the first of the week.

H. O. Rollog was down to Red Lake Falls Tuesday on business.

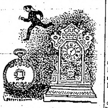
Will Vaughan was down from Germantown the first of the week.

Prof. James Wilson was in the city between trains last Saturday.

Fr. Ansgar, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

Ole Evenson, of Germantown, was in the city the first of the week.



FROM TIME TO TIME

something has been said here about our clock. This is one of the times when a few more words will be appropriate.

"Time's cheap, so to speak. We are offering a lot of excellent CLOCKS at very reasonable prices." Every kind of clock is here, from the bustling little alarm to the dignified and handsome marbleized Iron Mantle clock with its musical Cathedral Gong.

All these clocks are made in the foremost factories and are accurate time keepers.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Windberg visited friends in the city last week.

Postmaster Richardson was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Senator Dickey arrived in the city the first of the week from Zumbrota.

Samuel Tuheim, of Newfolden, held services in the Mission church Sunday.

The Ladies of the St. Bernard's church will meet with Mrs Gosline the 24th of July.

A. C. Wilkinson, the Great Northern attorney, was in the city the first of the week.

Dr. Archibold arrived in the city yesterday and is visiting the family of S. V. Baily.

A dance will be given next Saturday at the Vorachek hall. All are cordially invited.

H. M. Hicks returned to the city Tuesday from a purchasing trip to the Twin Cities.

Thomas Burke, of the S. lway Mercantile Co., transacted business in the city last week.

James Meehan left Monday for Sheboygan, Wis., where he will visit his wife for a week or so.

B. A. Young leaves the latter part of the week for Rugby, N. D., to look after his interests there.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

Chr. Larmoe, of Breese, one of the enterprising settlers of Eastern Marshall county, was in the city last week.

A large number were at the trap Sunday afternoon shooting clay pigeons. S. F. Staples made the high score.

K. M. Hanson went to Red Lake Falls the first of the week to attend a meeting of the county commissioners.

Ed Hance was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $4 in all, by Judge Tarrant Saturday for being drunk and disorderly.

The Misses Johnsons have moved their millinery store into the building north of the First National Bank.

All seats in front of business places in the city were ordered removed the first of the week by Mayor Kratka.

Mayor Kratka wishes to inform the parents of this city that all the children found playing on the logs will be arrested.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

Mrs. J. E. Mabey, who has been visiting in the city during the past month, returned to her home in Lake City yesterday.

E. E. Zeh and wife returned from a trip to Rollis last week. Mr. Zeh reports that crops in that section are looking fine.

W. J. Kelley went down to Red Lake Falls yesterday to talk over the political situation with Democratic friends down there.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet July 18 at 2:30 P. M. at Mrs Douglas. All are requested to be present.

George Humphry has rented his blacksmith shop, and will go in the woods for Bulman Bros. in a few weeks, where he will remain until next spring.

Tolef Tunheim, of Klep, Marshall county, 18 miles northwest of here, was in the city last week and sold 191 pounds of cream to the local creamery.

The German Lutheran church on the East Side was dedicated last Sunday. The services were in the German language and were very impressive.

Rev. J. Peart will preach morning and evening at M. E. Church next Sunday. Excellent singing. Mrs. Wright will sing a solo. All invited to come.

M. J. Evans, president of the First National bank, of Ruthton, Minn., arrived in the city Tuesday and will invest some money in farm lands around here.

Rev. S. Bergstrom preaches his farewell sermon to his congregation Sunday. He leaves next week for China where he will be engaged in missionary work.

Mrs. James I. Goff, mother of Mrs. Perl W. Mabey, accompanied by her three year old daughter, Rhoena, arrived in the city last week and will remain for a few weeks.

Jens P. Jenson, of Germantown, has filed as a candidate for county commissioner of Marshall county. Mr. Jenson is a good man and would make a good county commissioner.

The attention of town supervisors is called to the fact that the best and cheapest culverts can be put in by Red Wing sewer pipe. D. B. Bakke will be pleased to give information and prices upon this.

H. E. Mussey has filed his affidavit with the county auditor for the Republican nomination for clerk of court. J. J. Weeks of this city is also a candidate for the Republican nomination for this office.

W. J. Kelly is the choice of the local Democrats for sheriff, and will be a candidate providing there is not one from any other part of the county. He will not make any fight to secure the nomination however.

The Olson Bros. are enlarging their building and the capacity of their plant and are in a position to take any and all work in the blacksmithing, horse shoeing and wagon making and repairing also steam fitting.

A Red Lake Falls saloon keeper was struck with a base ball at the game down there Sunday. It was reported here that the man died from the effects of the wound, but this proved to be false as the man has recovered.

The school board last week purchased the three lots of Matt Larson on which proceedings had been commenced to condemn for $225. Sometime ago the board offered Larson $240 for the lots, but at that time he asked $750.

Services in the Norwegian Lutheran Synode church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The services will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. J. Blilie, of Flandreau, S. D., superintendent of home missions of the Minnesota district. All cordially invited.

Bulman Bros. sent a crew of men up to their camps on Tamarac river yesterday. The men will engaged in putting up hay for a few weeks. About August 1st another crew will be sent up and logging operations will be commenced for the season.

Two sign painters of Crookston were in the city the first of the week and succeeded in capturing considerable work. Local painters claim that they could have done the work better and cheaper, and ask that business men remember home people in the future.

The concert given by the Schubert Symphony Club and Ladies Quartette in the Odd Fellows hall Tuesday evening was greatly enjoyed by all. Every member of the company was an artist, and it is to be hoped that they will return to this city at some future date.

Louis Hanson went to Red Lake Falls Monday to attend the semi-annual meeting of the board of county commissioners. A number of important items came up for consideration, and the board also reviews the work of the various assessors of the county and equalizes the assessments.

Solomon G. Comstock, of Moorhead, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from this congressional district, was in the city Tuesday interviewing the voters. Mr. Comstock once represented this district in congress, and made a reputation seldom made by a new member.

The people living in Meehan's addition have petitioned the city council to become a part of the city of Thief River Falls. A special election will be ordered by the council at the meeting to be held August 7th and the matter will be voted upon sometime not less than 10 days or more than 40 days from that time.

The Misses Hanney, of St. Hilaire, entertained a large number of friends last Saturday evening. A number of guests were present from Red Lake Falls and Crookston, and those from this city attending were: Messers and Mesdames K. M. Hansen and W. A. Wright, Miss Nellie Curran, Messers, Dobner, McIntyre, Tupper and Lanning.

The people of Breckenridge, Ezra Valentine's home town, are justly proud of the fact that a son of that gentleman has at the age of 21 graduated from Yale and has been awarded three of the highest honors in the gift of the institution beside standing among the first of his class that numbered nearly 300 students.—Crookston Journal.

Services of the Presbyterian Church next Sabbath at the tent. Morning service at 11 at which time members will be received and the sacrament of baptism administered. Sabbath school at 12. Y. P. S. C. E. at 7.00 p. m. Evening preaching service at 8.00 p. m. Subject, "The Lattitude of Christianity toward the Outside World." All are welcome at our services.

Four families of Indians with their lares and penates, dogs ponies and children, passed through the city Saturday, on their way home to the Red Lake Reservation from a visit to their copper colored brothers of the Fort Totten band. Their most precious treasures were transported in two-wheeled carts drawn by scrubby looking ponies haired out like an angora goat. —Crookston Journal.

Frank Chafranek, a Bohemian, hanged himself in a barn on Capt Hancock's place near Euclid, Sunday night. The man was a section hand but quit work some two weeks ago saying that a large sum of money had been left him and that he was going to claim it. He said that he would never need to work any more. He is well known to a number of the Bohemians in this city.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

Advertised Letters.

Arneson, Arne	Baldwin, Ereneat
Bakken, George	Bradford, Thomas
Christopherson, Hans	M. Fiva, Mrs. Beret
Graham, James	Gustafson, T. B.
Hendrickson, Hans	Hick, Miss Bell
Jones, T. Gus	Krows, Max
Leen, Martin P.	McCormack, Ben
Orwald, Alfred	Pederson, Harold
Simonson, Vila

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin

C. Chelin has opened up a board-house in Nylus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

For Sale at C. C. Jackson & Co.

Hay Rakes for 12.00 to 21.00
14 inch Brush Breaking Plow	$14.00
16 inch Brush Breaking Plow	15.25
1 Fuller Johnson Gang Plow 14 inch	48.00
1 J. T. Case, Sulky Breaker and Cross plow	45.00
14 inch cross plow	12.50
16 inch cross plow	13.50
1 only 18 cross plow	14.00
1 only 1¾ inch Lumber wagon	40.00
1 open Concord Buggy	45.00
1 open Road Buggy	33.00

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies!—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

Hotel Ogahmah.

C. A. ROBBECKE, Prop.,

STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS TO HUNTING AND PLEASURE PARTIES.
NEWLY ENLARGED AND REFITTED THROUGHOUT.
BUS LINE IN CONNECTION.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patent taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in The Patent Record, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.,
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, - WASHINGTON, D. C.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, } ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.
County of Red Lake. }

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against
Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
j12j17 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

Official Notice.

Notice is hereby given that on the 12th day of July, 1902, a petition duly signed was filed for record in my office in the city of Thief River Falls, petitioning that that tract of land adjoining said city and described as lot 1 of section 31, 153—43, and known as James Meehan's addition to Thief River Falls, be annexed to and made a part of said city and be designated as James Meehan's addition to Thief River Falls.

Hearing on said petition will be given by the City Council on the 7th day of August, 1902.

Dated this 15th day of July, 1902.

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minn., up to 2 o'clock P. M. of July 26, 1902, for furnishing material and putting in culverts on all County ditches, according to plans and specifications on file in the Auditor's office.

Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated July 10th, 1902.

ADAM ZEPP
County Auditor, Red Lake County.

A FREE PATTERN
(your own selection) to every subscriber. Only 50 cents a year.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR

'A LADIES' MAGAZINE.

A gem; beautiful colored plates; latest fashions; dressmaking economies; fancy work; household hints; fiction, etc. Subscribe to-day, or, send 5c. for latest copy. Lady agents wanted. Send for terms.

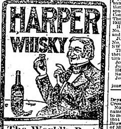
Stylish, Reliable, Simple, Up-to-date, Economical and Absolutely Perfect-Fitting Paper Patterns.

McCALL BAZAR PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢

All Seams Allowed and Perforations show the Basting and Sewing Lines.

Only 10 and 15 cents each—none higher. Ask for them. Sold in nearly every city and town, or by mail from

THE McCALL CO.,
113-115-117 West 31st St., NEW YORK.



The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris, 1900. For sale by

John Morgan.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON CLAIMS, ETC.

State of Minnesota, } ss. In Probate Court, Special Term July, 12th A. D. 1902.
County of Red Lake. }

In the Matter of the Estate of Engebert E. Brown, Deceased.

Letters of Testamentary on the estate of Engebert E. Brown deceased, late of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, being granted to Laurense O. Brown.

IT IS ORDERED, That six months be and the same is hereby allowed from and after the date of this order, in which all persons having claims or demands against the said deceased are required to file the same in the Probate Court of said County for examination and allowance, or be forever barred.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the 5th day of January, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock A. M. at a regular term of said Probate Court, to be held at the Probate Office in the Court House in the city Red Lake Falls in said County, be and the same hereby is appointed as the time and place when and where the said Probate Court will examine and adjust said claims and demands.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That notice of such hearing be given to all creditors and persons interested in said estate by forthwith publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Thief River Falls News a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, this 12th day of July A. D. 1902.

By the Court,
J. T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

July 17 aug 7

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 23, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 2207, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 15, Tp. 154, R., 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiborg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Nordhagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Setnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

June 12 July 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: AUTHUR DEVINE, H. E. 2539 Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 35, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thrond P. Hamre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Roach, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patric Cummerford, of Thief River F., Minn.
Mickael Stirns, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

June 26 July 31

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. 896, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klungnes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Telef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVETER PETERSON,
Register.

June 26 July 31

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1168, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 24, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 32, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 35, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Exbelinden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Sanve Brekke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

A. F. GEORGE,
Receiver.

June 12 6t July 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 25th 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 14th, 1902, viz: ANTON HOREJSH, Jr. H. E. 904, Chippewa Series, for the S½ NE¼, and N½ SE¼, Sec. 22, Tp. 155 N., of R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John Kratochville, of Germantown, Minn.
Henry Roller, of Germantown, Minn.
Joseph Vakoc, of Germantown, Minn.
Charles Klockman, of Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.

July 3 aug7

Subscribe for the News.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1902. NUMBER 29

$100 MORE.

Offered Mrs. Kretzschmar for Additional Power.

The city council held a meeting Tuesday evening and submitted an offer to Mrs. Kretzchmar of $100 additional, or a total of $160 a month for all the power of the dam, excepting that used by the O. K. mill, and the rent of the island. The offer must be accepted within five days, and asks that an expenditure of about $1000 be made to fix the dam up in proper shape. Mrs. Kretzschmar, it is understood, wants $140 a month additional, or a total of $200 for this, and it is doubtful if she accepts. The power for the plant has got to be greatly increased this fall in order to accomadate the rapidly increasing business of the plant, and if additional power is not rented a steam plant will have to be installed this fall.

Removal Sale.

To reduce stock before removing everything in millinery at cost at Mrs. Caldwells, back of New Drug store.

Wanted—Everybody to be liberal and patronize home industry, and smoke the home made cigars. The C. P. and Sparto 10 cent cigars and Tip Top and Beauty 5 cents cigars.

Flags and Bunting

For Fourth of July to Be Had at

FANT'S

Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

☞ Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c. ☜

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store.

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next work.

SCHOOL ELECTION

It Passed off Very Quietly Saturday Evening.

The school meeting Saturday evening was quite well attended, and everything passed off harmoniously. The board was given the power to dispose of lots belonging to the district in block 28, and C. E. Winslow and Emil E. Zeh were elected directors for a term of three years and Mrs. Daniel Shaw to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. S. F. Staples, resigned.

The financial statement showed that the board had collected a tax levy of $9,000; state apportionment of $1516.86, and state aid of $400, making a total of $10,916.86. The expenditures were: Teachers wages, $5762.50; incidentals, $1294.50; fuel, $150.52; furniture, $363.32; text book, s $720.01, and interest, $1352.08 or a total of $9642.96.

The high school building has thus far cost: For lots, $2485; interest, $28.11; deeds, abstracts, and taxes, $94 11; improvements on grounds, $16.50; part of architects fees, $200, which leaves a balance of cash on hand of $15598.28.

The estimated running expences for the next year are as follows: For teachers wages, $7000; for fuel, $400; interest, $1500; sinking fund, $500; incidentals, $600, or a total of $10000. A tax levy for this amount was voted.

IN SOCIETY.

Two Popular Young People Married by Judge Tarrant.

Mr. Adam Lucier, one of the prominent and popular young men of the eleven townships, and Miss Mary Bolieu, a handsome aborigine of the Red Lake Agency, were united in marriage Tuesday evening at Judge Tarrants confectionery store. The writer officiated as best man, while Dellas Douglas acted as bridesmaid in the absence of anyone else to fill this position. The beautiful marriage ceremony of the state of Minnesota was read from one of Booth's manuals by the Judge, who impressed them with the solemnity of the occasion, and at the conclusion kissed the bride.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

MAY CHANG

The Running of Trains on This Branch.

The Great Northern is contemplating making a change in the running of the passenger train on this branch to take effect about August 1st. If the new time card goes into effect the passenger train will leave Crookston at about 9 o'clock and go direct to Red Lake Falls and arrive in this city at about 12 o'clock, remaining here for two hours and then go direct to Crookston arriving there in time to make connections for Grand Forks.

7 to 4.

The second nines of Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls played a game of base ball Sunday in this city and former club was victorious by a score of 7 to 4. The local team played good ball and was in the lead up to the first half of the ninth inning, when by a succession of errors the Red Lake Falls club run in 4 scores and won the game.

W. E. Curtiss, in the Chicago Record-Herald, thus praises the Norwegians and Swedes, who by the way, comprise the larger part of the immigration to this state at the present time: "I suppose the Norwegians and Swedes are the most prosperous of any foreign-born citizen we have in the United States. Their intelligence, industry and frugality enable them to earn better wages than the natives of any other country, not excepting the Germans. One seldom finds a Swede or a Norwegian out of employment. You never see a Swedish or a Norwegian tramp. Scandinavians are preferred to any race by the employers of labor because they are honest, sober, reliable and intelligent. If a census of the jails, prisons and poorhouses were taken the number of Scandinavians would be suprisingly small. As I told you in my letters last summer, poorhouses are not known in Norway and Sweden, and there are no illiterates in either country. If a man or a woman cannot read or write is because he or she has forgotten how."

C. Chelin has opened up a board-house in Nylus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

Subscribe for The News.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

15 A. M.	Leaving	Crookston	Ar. 7.15 P. M.
32 A. M.	"	Shirley	" 6.55 P. M.
51 "	"	Ives	" 6.30 "
10.06 "	"	Wylie	" 6.15 "
10.25 "	"	St. Hilaire	" 5.55 "
10.50 "	Arrive	Thief River F.	Lv 5.35 "
12.05 P. M.	"	Red Lake F.	" 4.15 "

Connections are made at Crookston for all points on the Great Northern system.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, - MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgean.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance.
TELEPHONE NO. 19.
Office first door north of News building.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES
REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.
Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
Proprietors of
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

Modern Methods

Hamm's Beer is honestly Brewed from the best of barley and hops in the only modern brewery in the Northwest. Perfect sanitary conditions and a modern refrigerating plant keep the beer absolutely pure and wholesome while aging. To get the best order

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents everywhere, or
THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
St. Paul, Minn.

"A Popular Fair"

Home and Bengal Brands

of Canned Goods.

Favorable trade promoters representing the best of values in their respective grades. The distribution of these brands show a most flattering increase insuring the best evidence of their superior quality at right prices.

You can bank every time on the superior quality of all articles bearing the label HOME BRAND and we guarantee the goods as representing the very best procurable.

Good Coffee Is a Trade Winner While Poor Coffee Drives Trade Away.

Our line from the cheapest to the highest is carefully selected, comprising the better selections from the various grades, the wants of our customers being kept well in view.

The very large increased sales on our line of coffee is most flattering to us and is the strongest indication of their merit.

We Solicit Your Orders.

Central Mercantile Co.

Phone No 19.

C. L. DOBNER, President. H. G. DOBNER, Cashier. S. F. STAPLES, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

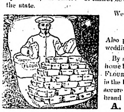
Capital - - - $10,000
Surplus and contingent fund, 8,000

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.



We make a specialty of

Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand PRIDE OF THE NORTH FLOUR made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis, & Pacific Ry. Co.'s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE,
REAL ESTATE,
FARM LOANS
and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Subscribe for the News.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure--some impure--some no earthly good--some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

By John W. Eastman.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN

The man in the moon must have had oceans of trouble with his canals

Mrs. Langtry is now a mother-in-law. The world is no longer at her feet.

Germany, Austria and Italy assert that the triple alliance is still of XXX quality.

Mr. Schwab, having money to burn, gave $5,000 of it to Pittsburg for fireworks.

Sweet may be the uses of adversity, but sour are the uses of prosperity. Vide pickle trust.

Some one has named a cigar after Mary MacLane. It emits a blue flame and sulphurous smoke.

A Kentucky man who proposed to a girl in a joke a few days ago has been accepted. Serves him right.

The fellow who stands on his dignity may discover that dignity is just as slippery as a banana skin.

That Russian prince who has been sued by his butler has bumped up hard against the hired-girl problem.

If the trusts had made coal as cheap as they have made matches there would be far less antipathy for them

It is Sir Charles Wyndham now. It is pretty safe to guess that this actor will never play one knight stands again.

There is no limit to the possibilities of a country that can have snowstorms in June and sunstrokes in January.

When the steel trust advanced the wages of its workmen voluntarily it gave the anthracite coal trust a dreadful shock.

The young king of Spain appears to be quite a sensible child. He is permitting the old men to keep on running things.

If a seaman's hail caused trouble in Venice, what would be the result of a good, live yankee college yell?—New York Tribune.

In employing an Italian composer to work on his libretto Emporor William may have hoped to set the dreibund to music.

America will have to hustle around and develop a case of perityphlitis. It will not do to be behind Great Britain in this respect.

At first it was thought that the Kansas wheat crop would be a failure. Now there is not enough binding twine to tie it up.

The report that Andrew Carnegie has a pseudonym for use on his stock certificates proves that there may be millions in a name.

When a man sits in the shade and watches those at work in the sun, he prefers being called "critic" to "loafer."—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Alfred Austin may have a chance to write another coronation ode, but there is small reason to hope that he will be able to do any better next time.

Science is doing the world a good turn every day. The newest discovery is that the ashes of the West Indian volcanoes are not good for fertilizing purposes.

While we are on the subject of statues and monuments it may be well to note the fact that many of the graves of our notable men are unmarked and almost unknown.

While the Ph. D's, D. D. D.'s and LL. D.'s are flying around these classic days, the C. O. D.'s also have their innings at nearly every man's door after his wife gets home from a shopping tour.

A man who had married the heiress to $17,000,000 died suddenly in Boston the other day. Even if he has gone to mansions in the skies how can he be expected to find it much of an improvement?

The Moorish representative exclaimed on leaving England for his own country, "I am glad I am returning to civilization again." Which once more emphasizes the fact that it's all in the point o. view.

The philanthropist who thinks it is necessary to teach youth the art of play probably hasn't had the experience of trying to keep a small boy's knee trousers and ribbed stockings in an unperforated condition.

The Sultan of Turkey says Turkey has enough books and he has prohibited the publication of any new literary works. This edict proves that there are some points in which an autocracy is far ahead of a republic.

Involuntary servitude except for crime is all wrong and the Constitution says so, but there is no popular howl of rage at the news that Kansas farmers are putting tramps to work in the harvest fields against the protests of said pilgrims.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Consul Meade cables from Canton that over 10,000 persons have died of cholera in Wwelian.

The Spanish war veterans, now numbering 145,000, meet in Detroit Sept. 22-25. The president will address them.

The government has decided to consider the appeal of Bolivia for arbitration between that country and Brazil over the territory of Acre.

Indian Commissioner Jones will return to Washington the latter part of the month, after an extended tour on the Pacific coast and among the agencies and Indian schools of the West.

The secretary of war has directed the appointment of an army retiring board of army officers, with Gen. Kobbe as chairman, to meet at St. Paul to examine such officers as may be ordered before it.

As soon as Gen. MacArthur takes hold at New York it is expected that he will co-operate with Rear Admiral Higginson in drawing up a complete and definite plan for the game of war between the army and navy, which begins the latter part of August.

The navy has pressing need of more regular surgeons than the law allows, so Secretary Moody has had recourse to an old law, permitting him, in such cases, to make temporary use of acting assistant surgeons, not to exceed twenty-five in number. He has appointed, among others, William S. Rucker of Wisconsin.

Personal.

J. N. Faithorn has been elected vice president of the Chicago & Alton Railroad company.

G. W. Curl of Chicago will remarry his former wife, from whom he was recently divorced on account of M. W. Kirk.

Mrs. Maria J. C. Mason, the nearest descendant of Thomas Jefferson, died suddenly at Alto, a., aged seventy-seven years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Daly, aged seventy-three, the mother of Dan Daly, Lucy Daly Ward, Marguerite Daly Vokes and Capt. Billy Daly, is dead at Revere, Mass.

William Heath Lyon, for many years a leading merchant of New York, is dead at his home in Brooklyn. He is said to have been the first American merchant to enter Paris after the revolution of 1848.

Rev. Joseph Elsner, Jewish rabbi, and prominently associated with High street synagogue, left Baltimore recently en route to Jerusalem, accompanied by his wife, where they expect to end their days.

Col. George C. Tichenor, for ten years a sufferer from locomotor ataxia, is dead at Orange, N. J., aged sixty-three.

Gen. T. J. A. Morgan, commissioner of Indian affairs under President Harrison, is dead in New York, aged sixty-two.

Criminal.

Five young men of good character are under arrest at Belleville, Ill., charged with assaulting Mrs. Abraham Gran, a colored woman, beating her husband, and so injuring a two-weeks'-old-baby that it died.

Henry Castle of Houston, Texas, after a pleasant conversation with his sweetheart, Miss Lina Stevenson for a few minutes, drew a pistol and shot her dead. Castle was arrested. Jealousy is the alleged cause.

Four negro women engaged in a fight with razors at the door of a church near Stockbridge, Ga., in which Dollie Miller was cut to death and Rachel Roberts seriously wounded. Jealousy was the cause of the fight.

While rowing on the Ohio river with several friends, a few miles below Caseyville, Ky., Mrs. Samuel Sturgis, the wife of Capt. Sturgis, a well known mine operator of Union county, was shot and killed by some unknown person who fired from the bank of the river. No arrests were made.

James Conover, a farmer, residing twenty miles from Cincinnati, beat his wife to death with an ax and then shrouded her remains for burial. He met his son and struck him with the ax, dangerously wounding him. Conover then escaped. He was recently released from an asylum for the insane.

Because she learned, three months after her marriage, that her husband was her half-brother, whom she believed dead, Mrs. Maggie Wagner, wife of Fred Wagner, a wealthy farmer living near Russellville, Mo., swallowed carbolic acid and died in great agony, in her husband's arms, with his name upon her lips.

From Other Shores.

The coronation bazar, in the botanic gardens, opened in London by the queen, netted $100,000 for the childrens' hospital.

The French tribunal of commerce has declared the "Caisse Generale des Familles" to be insolvent. The liabilities are said to be 40,000,000 francs.

Gens. Maxilon and Moviso, convicted of treason at Cebu, were each fined $2,000; the former also to suffer ten years' imprisonment and the latter seven years.

At the banquet for King Victor Emmanuel of Italy at St. Petersburg, the mutual toasts showed a most cordial state of affairs between the king and the czar.

Cholera is spreading somewhat in the Philippine islands. The ratio for Manila is maintained. The rains now falling not have checked the disease materially.

Prof. Wagner, city architect, says the city of Venice is doomed to destruction. He says the subsoil has deteriorated and the piles and pillars are rotten and no longer able to stand the pressure upon them.

Andor Papp, an agricultural student at Budapest, has been entertained at a banquet by his fellow students and presented with a jeweled rapier, in recognition of his having fought four successful duels in one morning. He received but two slight wounds. He seriously wounded one man and disabled the other three.

Accidental Happenings.

Lightning struck some storage tanks at Jennings, La., spreading oil over a large territory and endangering the entire oil field.

While the United States steamer Michigan lay at her dock at Erie, Pa., the M. B. Grover freighter drove into her, causing $10,000 damage.

A feed wire on the Elevated railway at New York fell, and charged the structures and even the streets below to such an extent that many were prostrated.

Lightning struck the storehouse of J. K. Graven, about ten miles southwest of Carthage, Tex., and killed two men named Fields and Ponder and seriously injured Mr. Graven.

A dynamite explosion occurred in Mine No. 32 of the Berwyn-White Coal company, at Windberg, Pa., while blasting. Four men were injured, Roger Hardy fatally.

Congressman Frank C. Wachter of Baltimore, Md., was badly bitten on both hands, while endeavoring to defend his little daughter Hattie from an attack by a large Newfoundland dog. The daughter was also badly bitten.

Lena Rohmer, aged twenty-two, of Gretna, Neb., jumped in front of a Union Pacific train, evidently with the intention of committing suicide. Both her legs were cut off, and she will die. Miss Rohmer was en route to Glenwood Springs for her health.

Two boys, Anthony Rukhanp, aged sixteen, and Adolph Bureller, eighteen, residents of Detroit, were drowned in Cass lake, a small body of water about twenty-five miles from there. In company with May Weisler, they were rowing. The boat began leaking, and capsized before they could reach the shore. The girl was saved, but both boys sank.

Otherwise.

Baltimore manufacturers will not enter the candy combine proposed by New York capitalists.

Signor Marconi has succeeded in transmitting wireless messages 1,400 miles, over land and sea.

The blind horse Rythmic won the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $10,000 trotting stake at Detroit.

Eighteen clairvoyants and fortune tellers have been ordered to quit their vocations at Cleveland or leave the city.

The new city directory of Chicago will show 18,500 more names than that of last year, with an estimated population of 2,144,000.

Dr. Budau, married a week ago, at Bridgeport, Conn., is defendant in a breach of promise suit by Betsy A. Victory, who demands $15,000.

Trustees of the Cecil Rhodes Oxford college fund desire leading universities in the United States to propose candidates for Oxford, so that they may go into residence in 1903.

Dr. Hovey and George Curtis have returned to New York from Martinique, where they scaled Mont Pelee and were near ending their existence in clouds of dust and steam.

In a lecture at the University of Chicago, Prof. Hart of Harvard, asserted that the "Monroe doctrine" was the work, solely, of John Quincy Adams; also, that it was a dead letter.

F. L. Ruchman, a wealthy politician of Evansville, Ind., when told by his wife that she loved another, escorted her to the depot and furnished her money to elope with a railroad fireman.

The long-overdue steamer Portland arrived at St. Michaels July 2, according to a dispatch received from Dawson. The vessel is in good condition and the passengers and crew are well.

In the airship races at St. Louis in 1904, the principal purse will be $100,000, with minor ones amounting to $50,000. At least twenty miles an hour, average speed, must be made to entitle one to a prize.

Ada Barker, brought to the asylum for the insane at Terrell, Texas, because seemingly demented, has so far recovered as to recall that her home is in New York. It is a case of double consciousness.

It is estimated by close observers of the corn deal that Mr. Gates' profits will not exceed $1,500,000. This amount will be divided up between ten or a dozen millionaires who were interested in the deal.

Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland has announced himself in the field for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. He will probably make a tour of the West this fall in the interests of his candidacy.

Over 100 Boers, formerly prisoners at Bermuda, landed recently in New York, dressed in their South African clothes. Two Americans, James Malloy of Boston, and Michael Halley of Nevada, were with them.

During the coming week it is expected to commence work at Tacoma on the construction of the new 250-ton blast furnace of the Tacoma Steel company. It will be the first modern blast furnace to be erected on the Pacific coast.

The National Building Trades council has sent to the New York unions affiliated with it a notice that it has adopted a metal union label, to be used on all buildings constructed by union mechanics connected with the council.

James Foy of Danbury, Conn., while searching for a daughter he has not seen since her babyhood, found his first wife, whom he had supposed dead. His second wife agreed to a separation, and No. 1 and daughter expect to be reinstated in their home in September.

By the special enrollment certificates filed with the board of elections, Tammany has increased its enrolled membership to 133,000, and the Republican organization in Manhattan to 38,000. The special enrollment aggregated 38,000, of which 6,445 were Republicans and the rest Democrats.

Edwin H. Lemare, organist of the Carnegie institute at Pittsburg, has gone to London to see his sick wife, and the union musicians may not allow him to return to America. Lemare is under a five-years' contract at $4,000 annually, and the unionists claim to be in a position to enforce the contract labor law.

RUIN MANY FARMS

MISSISSIPPI IS POURING FLOOD DOWN UPON MISSOURI FARMERS.

HEAVY RAINS IN IOWA THE CAUSE

THREE HUNDRED SQUARE MILES OF LAND CERTAIN TO BE FLOODED.

LOSS MAY REACH FOUR MILLION

GREATEST DAMAGE EVER KNOWN FROM FLOOD IS PREDICTED.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 20.—Heavy rains in Central Iowa Thursday and yesterday are sending a flood down upon prosperous Missouri farmers which will ruin many of them and cause losses aggregating at conservative estimate two and a half million dollars. There seems to be no hope for the country between the Mississippi River and its Missouri bluffs between Keokuk and Hannibal, 300 square miles, mostly corn land, with some thousands of acres of wheat in the shock. The water had touched the danger line the first of the week, and had begun to recede when heavy floods started again in the Des Moines, Skunk and Iowa rivers. With a stage in the Des Moines river only three feet below the tops of the great levees, the river began to rise three inches an hour at its mouth here yesterday, continuing until the factor of safety was wiped out last evening. A rise of one and a half feet in a short time at Ottumwa, and throughout its length below the capital city was prevented from running out freely by a rise of a foot and a half at Davenport Thursday night, increasing and coming down rapidly.

A Further Rise

Yesterday afternoon the observer of the weather bureau at Keokuk, in charge of this district, sent telegraphic warning to all points south to prepare for danger. The crest is expected here to-day or to-morrow. The Egyptian levee which stood the flood preceding after strenuous efforts to hold it, including the destruction of farm houses to secure lumber for strengthening the dike, is only slightly above the water now, and the coming flood in the Des Moines will top it certainly. This lets the water into hundreds of square miles, including the town of Alexandria, Mo. The inhabitants there are preparing for an overflow of the entire town to a depth of several feet.

The Worst Feature is the time of the year. The corn crop is all made and wheat is in the shock, entailing a total loss of the year's work. Crops were never finer and the yield promised immense. Grain men say the estimate of value is too low and put the figures of the loss nearer four millions between Keokuk and Hannibal. It is believed the Illinois levees will hold and the damage there is likely to be only $20,000 to $40,000 between Keokuk and Quincy. Heavy rains are reported in Southeastern Iowa and this inundates still higher water. Lowland farmers, river men and the weather bureau observer alike predict the greatest damage ever known from flood on the upper river.

Reports late last evening show tremendous rains along the Des Moines river and tributaries. Late reports show half the country for a distance of thirty miles between La Grange and Hannibal was already under water long before the crest of the flood arrived.

Dam Goes Out.

Burlington, Iowa, July 20.—Advices just received report the breaking of the Yellow Springs dam north of here. Fifteen hundred acres have been submerged. The water is the highest in years. At Columbus Junction the recent rains sent the Iowa and Cedar rivers up again, ruining oats that were being harvested, and hundreds of acres of corn.

Entre Island Submerged.

Hannibal, Mo., July 20. — The flood conditions on Bay Island and the bottom lands between Hannibal and West Quincy are alarming. Bay Island contains about 10,000 acres of cultivated land, upon which were the finest crops of wheat and corn, but the entire island is now submerged except a few elevated spots, to the depth of from one to six feet. It is believed that the entire crop of corn is ruined and the wheat, which was in shock, is a total loss.

HEAVY RAIN AT JOLIET.

Many Streets and Yards Are Overflowed.

Joliet, Ill., July 20.—A rainfall of nearly four inches last night has caused another flood in Joliet, overflowing streets and yards adjacent to Spring and Hickory creeks, and creating alarm among hundreds of families. Several manufacturing plants have been compelled to close by high water. The Illinois river is rising rapidly at this point and farmers along the lowlands are again anticipating damaging floods. The river has gone up a foot and is increasing each hour.

Killed in Freight Wreck.

Mattoon, Ill., July 20.—In a freight wreck on the Big Four at Lena, Ind., yesterday Wickliffe Killefer, engineer, of this city, was killed. The engine and five cars were destroyed. Cars projecting from a siding caused the wreck. Several trains following narrowly escaped being wrecked.

Took Carbolic Acid.

St. Louis, July 20.—Maud McMannus, aged eighteen years, formerly of St. Paul, yesterday morning, died in the city hospital from carbolic acid poisoning. According to her roommate, Sadie Taylor, she committed suicide because of a quarrel with Frank Miller, her lover.

Infants Burned to Death.

Walla Walla, Wash., July 20. — The two infant sons of John Smith were burned to death yesterday in a barn near here.

TO ROUT THE HOPPERS.

Areas Infested by the Insects Will Be Plowed Under.

Crookston, Minn., July 20.—The state entomologist, F. L. Washburn, has found that the reports current regarding the grasshoppers near Hill river have been highly exaggerated. He has just left that district, where he has been spending the past few days investigating matters. He states that the grasshoppers have been feeding in the one spot about one mile wide and four miles long. They have confined themselves to this territory and have not spread. The amount of damage done to the crops within this boundary is not nearly so large as has been reported, and as the little insects are now through eating for the season the work of the farmers will be confined to exterminating the pests. It is now the time for them to lay their eggs, and the fields will be watched carefully. This fall the ground will be plowed under wherever the grasshoppers have been seen. In this way Mr. Washburn says the hoppers can be almost wholly exterminated.

CAUGHT IN FAR-OFF CANADA.

Wisconsin Man a Little Napoleon of Finance.

Durand, Wis., July 20. — Elwyn F. Larson, president of the defunct Universal Casualty Company of Milwaukee, who left early in February on the discovery that the company's entire securities of $100,000 deposited with the Wisconsin State insurance commissioner were worthless forgeries, is under arrest at Wetaskiwan, Northwest Territory, Canada. Sheriff Eustin and District Attorney Plummer of Pepin county made the capture. Larson will have a hearing at Calgary on the question of requisition papers.

ADVERTISE IOWA.

Commercial Clubs of Large Cities Organize for This Purpose.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, July 20.—Presidents and secretaries of the commercial clubs of Des Moines, Davenport, Sioux City, Marshalltown, Mason City, Oelwein, Iowa City and Cedar Rapids, at a meeting here, formed a temporary organization to be known as the Commercial Association of Iowa, whose aim is to advertise Iowa and Iowa products extensively throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. A meeting for a permanent organization is to be held in Des Moines Sept. 2.

NO TRACE OF TRACEY.

Seattle Sheriff Returns With Most of His Posse.

Seattle, Wash., July 20.—Not a word has been heard of Harry Tracey, the escaped convict, since he left the cabin on Sawyer lake Thursday morning. Sheriff Cudihee, who returned to Seattle shortly before noon with the most of his posse, refused absolutely to give out any information. It is believed he has received some news from his men, and that he will go out again himself. A few guards were left on duty at Ravensdale, Covington and Auburndale.

GATHERING BLUEBERRIES.

Fine Quality of Berries Grown This Year—Crop Is Large.

Bayfield, Wis., July 20.—Three promises to be a much larger crop of blueberries in Northern Wisconsin this year than before in many years. Already large parties of pickers have left for the berry patches to prepare for the first picking. Next week will see heavy shipments made to the Twin Cities. The berries this year are not only larger, but of fine quality.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Sixteen-Year-Old Boy Lives Four Days on Berries.

Hurley, Wis., July 20. — On Sunday afternoon Ben Bulewitch, sixteen years old, became lost in the woods near here. Hundreds of men have been searching for him night and day and found no trace of him. At noon Thursday he found his way out, and is now home. A reward of $100 had been offered for the recovery of the boy.

CROPS DESTROYED.

Terrific Storm of Hail Near Webster City.

Webster City, Iowa, July 20.—A large strip of country south of this city was visited with a terrific storm of hail last night. Corn is stripped and small grains are all down. The hailstones in many places were as large as walnuts. Crops in the stricken district, which is about ten miles across, will be a failure.

RESULT OF ILLNESS.

Former Auditor of St. Louis Commits Suicide.

Duluth, July 20. — James A. Smith, aged seventy-one, former county auditor of St. Louis county for three terms, shot himself in the head, dying instantly. The deed was due to an unbalanced mind, resulting from recent illness.

SHOT BY BLIND-PIGGER.

Gilbert Bradley, Ranchman, Killed at Minot.

Minot, N. D., July 20.—Gilbert Bradley, a young ranchman living about five miles west of here, was shot and killed by Stephen Davis, a blind pigger at Williston. A drunken row and fight are claimed to have led to the killing.

TO BUILD ELECTRIC ROAD.

Chicago Capitalists Plan to Connect North Dakota Towns.

Minot, N. D., July 20. — Capitalists from Chicago are in the city to consider the matter of organizing a company to build an electric railway which will connect a number of small towns in this vicinity.

Gets Seven Years in Pen.

Pierre, S. D., July 20.—The jury in the case of Robert Adams for the killing of Mexican Ed Sanches brought in a verdict of manslaughter and Adams has received a sentence of seven years in the penitentiary.

Farmer Commits Suicide.

Miller, S. D., July 20.—Reuben Robinson, a single man twenty-eight years old, living northeast of here, committed suicide by hanging. He lived with his mother on the farm

AID FOR STRIKERS

MINERS' CONVENTION WILL FOLLOW MITCHELL'S SUGGESTIONS.

PLAN TO RAISE THE MONEY

RATE OF ASSESSMENT WILL BE 10 PER CENT OR EVEN HIGHER.

REFERRED TO A COMMITTEE

HIGH OFFICERS CONSIDER RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 20. — At the conclusion of a secret session which lasted the entire afternoon the recommendations of President Mitchell for the management of the anthracite strike were referred to a special committee which is to report back to the convention when it meets to-day. This committee consists of President Mitchell, Vice President Lewis, Secretary Wilson and the president of each district which is taking part in the convention. There is little doubt that the committee will urge the adoption of the recommendations and fixing the rate of assessment at 10 per cent or higher.

At the opening of the executive session Vice President Lewis took the floor and delivered an energetic speech on the amendment offered by Delegate Haskins in the morning to the effect that the

Fund to Be Raised

for the aid of the anthracite miners be extended to all of the striking miners where their strike has been sanctioned by the general organization. President Mitchell then took the floor to speak for the adoption of the recommendation made in his speech of Thursday. He told the convention that the strikers in West Virginia and elsewhere were being protected by the organization by the assessments of the union, but the assessments which were under discussion were not necessary for the support of the anthracite strike alone, and should not be diverted from its purpose.

A vote was then taken on the Haskins amendment and it was voted down by a decisive majority. This left before the convention the original motion for the adoption of the recommendations of the president. A number of amendments were then offered, all relating to the manner in which the Agreement Should Be Made.

These were all pending when Secretary Wilson offered an amendment that the matter be referred to a committee made up of the three highest officers of the national organization and the presidents of districts represented in the convention. This prevailed and an adjournment was taken until to-day. At the conclusion of the session Secretary Wilson said:

"It will cost $500,000 weekly to support all the men now on strike in the various districts. An assessment of $1 per week will bring in $250,000 a week. This will leave us $250,000 to raise each week from outside sources, and from the promises and offers that have been made us we are confident that we will be able to do this."

Another Strike Threatened.

Chicago, July 20.—Another strike of the freight handlers of Chicago may be called Sunday night. President Curran of the freight handlers union has issued a call for a mass meeting of all the freight handlers in the city to be held at that time to take action on the refusal of four railroads to reinstate all the old men.

MURDERER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Proper End of a Man Whose Inclinations Were to Kill.

Waukesha, Wis., July 20. — August Amend, who was tried and acquitted of the murder of William Erdman at the May term of the circuit court, committed suicide by taking poison, after trying to poison his wife. Amend and his wife had not been living together since he was arrested on the murder charge. Yesterday he went to her home and tried to get her to return to him. She refused, and he put strychnine in the sugar bowl. She was made critically ill, but will recover. Amend subsequently committed suicide at Hussler's saloon.

PIGEONS ARE SET FREE.

Wreck of Santa Fe Train Liberates Flock of Homing Birds.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 20.—A flock of homing pigeons being expressed southward for a long-distance race was liberated yesterday morning by the wreck of a Santa Fe west-bound fast mail at Ponusuc, Ill. The engine, mail and three express cars were ditched, but the coaches kept the roadbed. Nobody was hurt. The pigeons started for home.

PERSIA SHAKEN.

Severe Earthquake Shocks at Bunder Abbas—Houses Collapse.

Bombay, July 20. — A severe earth shock was experienced at Bunder Abbas, Persia, on the morning of July 9. It lasted three or four minutes and was followed by light shocks. All the chief buildings suffered. The governor's house partly collapsed and the custom house was destroyed. The population was panic-stricken. Only one fatality was reported. It is feared that the destruction at Kishm was heavy.

Old Outlaw Is Killed.

Lexington, Mo., July 20.—Joseph Callaway, a member of the Quantrell band during the Civil war, is dead here from a stab wound inflicted by Doc Johnson in a quarrel on the ferry boat on Tuesday. He exonerated Johnson.

Eluded the Posses.

Gunnison, Colo., July 20.—The Marshall Pass train robbers have eluded the posses and it is now believed they are from twenty to fifty miles ahead of the officers with a good chance of making their escape.

Annual Henley Regatta a Scene of Beauty

The splendid semi-social function which is held annually at Henley-on-the-Thames took on an added interest to Americans this year in consequence of the fact that the two greatest amateurs of the American continent were there to battle with the oarsmen of Europe for the famous diamond sculls, and that no less than two eight-oared crews from this side of the Atlantic contested with the great university teams as well as those from Britain's most famous rowing clubs, for the trophy that up to the present time has never been taken from the oarsmen of the little island.

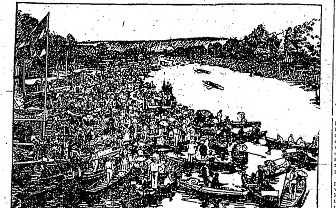
The attendance of Americans at Henley was greater this year than ever before, for it is a safe conclusion that cosmopolitan crowd than the Henley event. Even without the royal patronage, which has never yet been officially given it, the nobility, the visiting nabobs, the smart London set and all visitors who can spare the time to do so, swarm to Henley.

The regatta lasts three days, and during this period, sober little Henley is turned topsy turvey by the roveling crowd. Coachloads of people tumble down upon it; deliberate English, voluble Americans, gesticulating Europeans and on every countenance there is the anticipation of good sport ahead, mingled with the necessary grain of uncertainty which makes the Henley event most attractive.

As early as you choose to go to the the blue of Yale streaming from the parasols and hats of the Americans, the paler blue of Eton and Cambridge, the pink of Leander, the hues of Trinity, worn by English men and women, and waved aloft when the crew comes into sight.

Houseboats gay with bright awnings, flags and bunting, lie lazily along the shore. Smart little naphthas are banked against them. English and Canadian canoes bob restlessly around, between, and rub paint with tubs and family boats. River barges, giddy little skiffs, and standing in the stern of a punt a girl is craftily using a pole to push herself nearer the hem of the crowd.

Elderly Britishers with amusing



THE INTERNATIONAL BOAT RACE AT HENLEY.

of the many thousands who crossed the Atlantic to see King Edward crowned there were few who were not found along the banks of the Thames to cheer their countrymen on to victory.

The Henley course during racing week presents one of the gayest and most brilliant spectacles to be seen in England during the entire season, and there are none who enjoy the festivities more than the light-hearted Americans, who try to forget the defeat of Harvard in '69, Yale in '94, Cornell in '95 and Yale again last year, and who were on hand this summer as usual to trumpet for Old Eli and urge our oarsmen to exert themselves to their best.

Next to the Derby, it may be said that no sporting event in England calls out a larger, more formidable or more little strip of Thames, you will find it crowded with pleasure craft. Hardly a hand's breadth of blue water is vacant, and a newcomer wonders how the boats will ever find room to race.

Nobody cares to move. Everyone is occupied looking for the crews. The scene is far gayer than any midsummer American scene. The men are out in flannels, blazers and straw hats, scaping the river with field glasses, waiting impatiently until their favorite crew pulls evenly down between the cheering line of spectators. Scattered among them are the American men, in sober coats, watching for their countrymen's colors, that they may give them rousing cheers. If American colors are popular at home they are triply inspiring when seen floating by at Henley. On every side there is the flaunt of partisan ribbons, anxiety, stand up in their craft and scan the water. The fluttering draperies of the English women, the smart water costumes of the American girls, add to the lively maze of color that fascinates the eyes of those fortunate enough to occupy seats in the stands and boathouses that overlook the scene.

When the race is over another sort of gaiety begins. Bands of musicians travel along the bank and station themselves near certain barges which pay them large sums for exclusive entertainment. The salmon, cucumbers and champagne cup are brought out. The great crowd feasts. The bank is a line of gaiety, music and song. Night falls and gaiety is still on the increase. Henley looks around and wonders. There are two days more of it, equally festive.

Library Building Erected in Memory of Gladstone

On the brow of the hill from which Hawarden church commands a magnificent birdseye view of the estuary of the Dee and the Cheshire plain, in England, there stands now a new and imposing building which the visitor to Hawarden will be informed is St. Deiniol's library, one of the national memorials to the late Mr. Gladstone.

The origin and object of the structure will be found eloquently expressed on its foundation stone, the laying of which was one of the last public acts performed by Mr. Gladstone's distinguished neighbor and friend, the late Duke of Westminster. Cut in the stone is an inscription which reads thus:

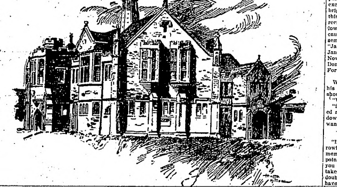
"In this building, erected to his memory by a grateful nation, is preserved the library of William Ewart Gladstone, who, eminent no less as a theologian than as a statesman, established the foundation for the advancement of divine learning."

St. Deiniol's library, erected out of the nation's gratitude to the memory of one of her greatest sons, will thus carry on a work begun by Mr. Gladstone himself. The great statesman after his retirement from the strife of politics had removed to a temporary iron building near the church thousands of the theological and classical volumes which composed his famous library at Hawarden Castle. There he arranged them with his own hands, and there they are to-day, (pending their removal to the new library) to be read and studied by students from all parts of the globe.

An endowment attached to the library has led to an increase of the books bequeathed by Mr. Gladstone, and the number of volumes now available for students is nearly 35,000. The books arranged by Mr. Gladstone in his own peculiar style, will be transferred to the new building when it is ready for their reception, in precisely the same order.

The new building, which is costing £10,000, is rapidly approaching completion. It is built of Helsby stone, and its handsome porch and finely-carved turrets and pinnacles, in Gothic style, give it a classical appearance.

No date has yet been fixed for the opening ceremony.



Put all your eggs in one basket—but watch that basket.—"The Empire of Business."

THE LAST KENTUCKY DUEL.

Was Fought in '66 Between Capt. Desha and Lieut. Kimbrough.

The death of Capt. Jo Desha at Cynthiana a few days ago recalls a duel which was fought in Scott county soon after the close of the civil war—a cold day in March, 1866—in which Capt. Desha and Lieut. Kimbrough of Cynthiana were the participants. Capt. Desha had served in the Confederate army, and Lieut. Kimbrough was in the Federal service. The duel was fought on the line dividing Fayette and Scott counties, on the James K. Duke farm. Lieut. Kimbrough was the challenging party. Two shots were exchanged. At the second shot Kimbrough was shot through the upper part of the thigh, the ball passing through the body. He recovered from the wound, but always limped afterward. He died a few years ago in Texas. At the time of the duel Capt. Desha's left arm was useless in consequence of a serious wound received during the war.

Desha and Kimbrough were neighbor boys and schoolmates, and the trouble began between them when at school. It was renewed after the war, the duel resulting. Major Harvey McDowell of Cynthiana was Desha's second and Major Long acted for Kimbrough. Dr. Benedict Keene, then a prominent physician of Georgetown, was surgeon to the latter. The duel was witnessed by Warren Smith and George W. Downing of Georgetown. This was probably the last duel ever fought in Kentucky.

CAN IT BE POSSIBLE?

"Pure Fruit Jelly" Said to Be Manufactured From Old Boots.

France is not the only nation that knows how to practice economies. Scraps and shavings of the iron mills and forges, once thought too small for consideration, are now turned into writing ink and into that beautiful dye color, Prussian blue. Fusel oil, a dangerous poison, becomes oil of apples or pears, for flavoring purposes.

Beggars' rags are turned into pilots' coats, and the seemingly worthless sawdust into newspapers. Even as the unsavory drainage of the cow barns becomes a basis for the most fashionable perfumery, and the tar waste of our gas works is turned into the most exquisite aniline dyes and into saccharine, the sweetest of all substances. Old boot legs, soles and uppers, bits of harness and the hoofs, tendons and like worthless scraps of our butcher shops, chemically treated and colored and flavored with the products of equally "useless truck," find their way to the best tables as "pure fruit jellies," says a writer in Popular Mechanics. Such is the American method of inventive economy.

An Earthquake Experience.

"Earthquake shocks have their novelty but they are by no means of the sort that charms," said St. John Robinson of New York in an interview with a Washington Post reporter.

"I shall never forget the experience I had in Guatemala a couple of years ago. I was a guest at the magnificent estate of J. C. James in the Santa Maria Mountains, near the town of Quezaltenango, which was destroyed by an earthquake, with tremendous loss of life, just a few days ago. There was a jolly party of guests, and we had just sat down to dinner.

"While the attendants were in the act of filling the wineglasses the shock came, and every glass on the table was overturned. It wasn't so terribly severe, but somehow put a damper on my sports, and though I got another glass of champagne in lieu of the one that was spilled, I had no relish for it. Most of the others had been in the country a long time, and a little thing like an earthquake did not in the least mar their hilarity."

The Woes of Jane.

A dear little boy attended a dame school last winter and, on an occasion when visitors were announced, took part in exercises in their honor. The exercises comprised recitations by the brighter children, and among them this dear little boy was called on. He recited in perfectly good faith the following, which he had learned or caught from an indulgent nurse with semi-poetical instinct:

"Jane ate cake and Jane ate jelly
Jane went to bed with a pain in her—
Now don't get excited,
Don't be misled,
For what Jane had was a pain in her head."

When the youngster told of this to his entirely surprised and somewhat shocked parents they asked him:

"What did the teacher say?"

"She said nothing. She just turned around and looked out of the window, and the scholars and the visitors wanted me to say it again."

A Choice.

"Life," we gravely say to the sorrowing friend—"life, we should remember, is full of grievous disappointments, and though, as you say, you feel that you have made mistakes, you should not repine, for no doubt in making one mistake you have escaped another equally as great, if not more so."

We could talk thus for several hours about the mistakes of others but he interrupts:

"It may all be just as you say," he observes, "but once I had a chance to buy a gold brick and instead used the money to get married on."

Weeping because he would never know the thrilling sensation of being gold-bricked we passed hurriedly on. —Judge.

FAMOUS HOPE DIAMOND

Rumor That Senator Clark of Montana Will Purchase Valuable Gem

Negotiations for the sale of the famous Hope diamond to a rich American have been in progress ever since the big blue gem was brought to the United States last November.

The price of the diamond is $500,000.

It is known that the Hope diamond was recently sent to Senator Clark's office at No. 49 Wall street, and that he examined it with great interest. While he has never been known as a collector of rare gems he is known in Europe and America as a large purchaser of paintings and costly works of art.

The Hope diamond came to the United States on Nov. 26, 1901. It was brought over by Simon Frankel, of the firm of Joseph Frankel's Sons of Nassau street. The diamond was brought in the safe of the German liner Kronprinz Wilhelm in a plain pine case screwed to a shelf.

The Hope diamond is one of these rarest of gems, a perfect blue diamond. It weighs 44¼ carats, and is cushion-shaped, reflecting a deep sapphire blue light from nearly 200 facets. As to its origin, that, like the history of many other famous gems, is shrouded in mystery. In its present size and form it dates back only to 1838, but there is good reason to believe that it is half of what was once the celebrated Tavernier diamond, one of the crown jewels of King Louis XV.—the Kohinoor of the French crown.

The Tavernier diamond was bought in India in the early part of the eighteenth century by a French traveler. It was said at that time to have been one of the royal jewels of the Pharaohs of Egypt. At any rate, it was brought to France and sold to the king.

In 1792 it was seized by the revolutionists along with the other crown jewels and placed in a strong box in the Gardemeuble. From there it was stolen more than 100 years ago, and no trace of it has ever been found. In 1830, however, a trader named Daniel Eliason appeared in London with a blue diamond about half the size of the missing Tavernier gem, of which he could give no history. This was sold to Henry Thomas Hope, ancestor of the present Lord Hope. In 1874 there turned up in Geneva another blue diamond, exactly matching the Hope diamond in size and color, and experts believe this gem, known as the Brunswick diamond, and the Hope diamond, are the halves of the lost Tavernier jewel.

A blue ribbon friendship is better than an honorable mention love.

Bessie and Her Auto

In a gown that is a vision
Noted for its close adhesion
To the figure it is privileged to pinch—
To the figure in its shaping
Like the hourglass it is aping,
Swelling out in both directions from the cinch.
With her soft eyes proudly blinking,
As the pretty queen is thinking
Of the envious admiration she will win,
Charming Bessie looks so queenly
As she gracefully, serenely,
Lifts her skirts and mounts her auto for a spin.

Down the avenue she's sailing
While a film of steam is trailing
In her wake as fleecy as a bridal veil;
At the knob her foot is banging
And the gong is loudly clanging
At pedestrians who turn a deathly pale!
See them rushing helter-skelter,
Seeking for a place of shelter,
While the fair 'mobilist's features flash a grin,
For it is her sweet opinion
None dares question her dominion
When she's out upon her auto for a spin.

In a reckless way she forces
Men who drive the vulgar horses
To skedaddle from the middle of the street,
And she doesn't care a penny
For the blessings (?), which are many,
That are fired at her with fervid vocal heat,
And the wheelman whom she grazes
Fill the air with dark blue blazes,
But for that she doesn't care a safety pin;
To the curb they must go scootin'
Or she'll smash them sure as shootin'
When she's burning up the roadway on a spin.

She's of modest disposition
In her home. You'd think her mission
On this planet was directed from above;
Not a sweeter smile was ever
By an angel flashed—no, never,
And her eyes are gentle as the eyes of dove,
But her traits, so meekly humble
From their base take a tumble
And a spirit of wild recklessness creeps in
When she grasps the waiting lever
In a fit of scorching fever
And is off upon her auto for a spin.

One of the Best of Ian Maclaren's Stories

Mr. Beecher's funny story of the "loaded" drummer which the Journal published last Sunday reminds me that good stories have no local habitation. Ian Maclaren, in his interesting experience of Drumtochty, brought together under the title of "Auld Lang Syne," tells a story of "Jamie" Soutar, who possessed a nippy tongue, which he was very fond of exploiting at the expense of humbugs of all sorts. Dr. Watson says one of Jamie's most felicitous strokes was his guileless response to the humiliating invitation of a lay preacher, who had secured the Free Kirk for an exhortation meeting to wake up Drumtochty to a sense of its sinful condition, not being aware that the people of that village carried their religion deep down in their souls and not upon their sleeves.

"'Now, my dear friends,' said the exhorter, 'all who wish to go to heaven, stand up,' and Drumtochty rose in a solid mass, except Lachlan Campbell, who considered the preacher ignorant of the very elements of doctrine, and Jamie.

"Much cheered by this earnest spirit, the preacher then asked all present who wished to go elsewhere to declare themselves after the same fashion. No one moved for the space of thirty seconds, and the preacher was about to fall back on general exhortation, when Jamie arose in his place and stood with great composure.

"'You surely did not understand what I said, my aged friend.'

"Jamie indicated that he had thoroughly grasped the preacher's meaning.

"'Do you really mean that you are ready to * * * go * * * where I mentioned?'

"'A'm no anxious for sic a road,' said Jamie, blandly, 'but a' cudna bear tae see ye stannin' alane, and you a stranger in the parish,' and Drumtochty went home satisfied that it was not always safe for strangers to come patronizing the village upon their superior goodness, at least while Jamie was to the fore."—H. S., in Boston Journal.

SELF-PROTECTED PLANTS.

Southwestern Vegetation Either Armed or Armored.

Writing in The Century of the Southwest (Arizona and New Mexico particularly), Ray Stannard Baker has this to say of the self-protected plants of the desert spaces:

"In the green hills one loves to lie on the grass, to brush against the trees, to pick a twig here and there and taste the tart sap, but the desert allows no such familiarity. Everything that lives within its confines is either armed or armored. Every cactus stalk is covered with a myriad of spikes and hooks as sharp as needles, that warn one to keep his distance. Thread not on the cactus with your heavy shoes even, for the barbed spines will often pierce thick leather; every rider of the plains has had the experience of picking cactus spines from his bare flesh. The mesquit tree, which is a near relative to the honey locust, is covered with thorns, so that you trespass at your peril; the cat's claw strikes at you as you pass, tearing your clothing and lacerating your skin. Even the agaves and the yuccas, the green foliage of which looks soft enough in the distance, are armed with leaves each of which is a double-edged sword with a spear point. The leaves of the spreading bunches of bear grass, which covers a thousand desert hills, often are so stiff, needle-pointed, and rasp-edged that no animal ever ventures to touch them. Even the greasewood and the strange paloverde tree—the 'green pole' of the Mexicans, a tree with branches, but with almost invisible leaves—while having no spines, yet know well how to protect themselves. Break off a twig of either and the smell of it that clings to your fingers will cure you of further desire to meddle."

If the evil in men is visible it is an easy matter to overlook all the good.

PATCH UP STRIKE

ANOTHER EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO SETTLE MINERS' TROUBLE.

AN APPEAL TO ARBITRATION

COAL OPERATORS WILL BE ASKED TO CONSENT TO THAT METHOD.

CIVIC FEDERATION TAKES HOLD

STRIKERS PREPARING FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE DEFENSE FUND.

Indianapolis, July 22.—It is said now that the miners have defined their position, the civic federation will make another appeal to the coal operators to arbitrate.

President Mitchell expects to leave for Wilkesbarre to-day or Tuesday. The care of the national organization now will be to see to the collection of the defense fund, with which to carry on the strike. Secretary Wilson, who is the financial head of the union, will be in charge of this work, and will lose no time in preparing to handle the funds. It is believed that all the voluntary contributions from the various districts and subdistricts and local organizations will be paid into his hands within the next ten days. These contributions are estimated at about $400,000. A part of the contribution money has already been paid. The Ohio men before leaving turned over to Secretary Wilson a check for their $10,000. The $50,000 from Illinois is expected to arrive to-day. Indiana and Iowa are expected to make their donations at once, and the other districts will do the same. A systematic method will be adopted for canvassing in the large cities. The miners hope to raise $250,000 a week from the public contributions, as that much will be needed to bring the sum up to $500,000. Their exact plan of raising the subscriptions has not been determined upon, as President Mitchell declared the convention is of too recent date to have allowed much time for arranging such details. It is possible however, the central labor unions in all cities where such organizations exist will be asked to take charge of the raising of subscriptions which will be forwarded at once to Secretary-Treasurer Wilson. In some of the largest cities of the country, such as Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and others, headquarters will be established from which the work will be conducted and committees will be appointed to make the canvass.

For Outside Subscriptions

Some aid is expected to come from the national Socialists' organization. Leon Greenbaum, secretary of the national committee, who was here to attend the convention, turned over to President Mitchell the membership lists of that party and $75 in money, which had been sent into the headquarters at St. Louis.

Warm School Election.

Crookston, Minn., July 22. — The school election held here Saturday evening was one of the hardest fought contests of its kind ever held in this city. The two outgoing members of the board, A. A. Miller and A. P. Hanson, made up one ticket, Frank R. Hamel and Edward Peterson another, and still another ticket was put in the field, the latter being made up of two leading Socialists here, J. Klewell and Ole Hagen. Hamel and Peterson were elected. Miller and Hanson were severely criticised for having deposed R. W. Hitchcock as superintendent of schools a year ago.

Fair at Sioux Falls.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 22. — At a meeting in this city of representative farmers and business men of Sioux Falls and Minnehaha county, an organization to be known as the Minnehaha County Agricultural society, was formed. The following officers were elected after a constitution and by-laws were adopted: President, M. Gerin, Sioux Falls; vice president, Walter Crisp, Dell Rapids; secretary, H. M. Avery, Sioux Falls; treasurer, Porter P. Peck, Sioux Falls. The board of managers will select a time and place for holding a county fair this fall.

Meade County Fortunate.

Sturgis, S. D., July 22.—The deed for the Meade county court house having been signed, sealed and delivered to the county commissioners, the county now owns it free from incumbrance. This gives the county a structure that can't be duplicated for a 60 per cent increase in price, and the taxpayers are awake to the fact that the officials have saved them thousands of dollars.

Pioneer Is Dead.

St. Paul, July 22.—Henry L. Moss, a pioneer resident of Minnesota, and the first United States district attorney for the Territory of Minnesota, died suddenly at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning at Lake Minnetonka. Mr. Moss had lived for half a century at 229 South Exchange street. The coroner decided that death was caused by apoplexy.

Explosion Wrecks Sawmill.

Columbus, Miss., July 22.—The sawmill of Pridmore & Reese at McCrary, Miss., was destroyed by an explosion of boilers. Both proprietors and two other men were killed.

Injured in a Collision.

Indianapolis, July 22.—The fast mail on the Pennsylvania railway from New York to St. Louis crashed into an Indianapolis & Vincennes freight in the yards here last night, injuring three persons and wrecking the freight.

Lads Lose Their Lives.

Kewaunee, Ill., July 22.—Don Van Arman, a sixteen-year-old boy, fell into Edwards' creek, four miles north of Galva. His comrade, John Stearns, the same age, went to his rescue, and both lads were drowned.

FIVE MEALS AND FIVE DRINKS.

Why Farm Hands in Kansas Prefer Ellis County.

Topeka, Kan., July 22.—State Labor Agent Gerow, who has been unable to furnish extra harvest hands to all sections of the wheat belt, made a discovery yesterday that surprised him. He has had no trouble for two years to get all the help needed by the wheat farmers in Ellis county. In fact 200 of the 1,000 men secured expressed a preference for Ellis county. Determined to know why men would not go to other localities and insisted on going to Ellis county Gerow visited that section and on his return reported that "it was because the farmers of Ellis county treated the harvesters better. Harvest hands in other sections only get three meals a day," he said, "while in Ellis they get five. Not only this, the Ellis county farmers also give each hand five drinks of whisky a day; one before each meal. They pay the same wages and give two additional meals and five whiskies besides. This has become generally known to the outsiders who come into Kansas to help in the harvest each summer, and especially the Missourians, and they always break for Ellis county. The five drinks of liquor and two extra meals are the great drawing cards."

RIOT AT LEAVENWORTH.

Soldiers Demolish a House and One of Their Number Is Stabbed.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 22.—The incipient riot started late Saturday night by several hundred soldiers from Fort Leavenworth, who demolished the house of a negro in a low quarter here following the stabbing of Eli Loucke, a cavalryman, by an inmate of the place, ended quietly shortly after midnight and yesterday all was quiet. A company of the Fourth cavalry arrived later and rounded up those soldiers who had not voluntarily returned to the post. Loucke was reported to have a chance of recovery. Groups of soldiers continue to discuss the trouble, and there were threats to finish up the work last night, but it is believed no further trouble will occur unless Loucke should die. The general sentiment is with the soldiers and there is general talk of organizing a vigilance committee to drive out the tough characters and thugs unless the police shall take decisive action in that direction.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Sheriff Is Handled Roughly and a Preacher Chased Home.

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.—A telephone message from Nebraska City says that there was a riot at the baseball park when the sheriff attempted to stop the game yesterday. When he arrived at the grounds an angry crowd surrounded him. His revolver was taken away, but he succeeded in arresting four players, and took them before a justice, who bound them over. A number of city pastors were at the justice's office and were jostled and threatened by the friends of the players. Mr. Shepherd, pastor of the Methodist church, was chased to his home. Later, alleging that his life had been threatened and the church property was in danger, Mr. Shepherd applied to Mayor Larue for a police guard for his house and church, and it was furnished. Yesterday's outbreak was the culmination of a long and bitter fight between the law and order league and the friends of Sunday ball.

JOHN W. MACKAY DEAD.

Millionaire Succumbs to the Effects of Heat Prostration.

London, July 22.—John W. Mackay of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday last, died at his residence on Carlton House Terrace at 6:30 o'clock last evening. He was unconscious most of the time and died very peacefully. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure. Mrs. Mackay, her mother and Countess Telfener were present when Mrs. Mackay died, and Princess Galatro Colonna arrived from Paris a half hour after her stepfather's death.

Fire Causes $100,000 Damage.

Dallas, Tex., July 22. — Fire broke out early yesterday in the exposition grounds, located in the suburbs of East Dallas, and in thirty minutes the main exposition building, one of the largest buildings in the country, and five others were destroyed. The loss will reach $100,000.

Family of Three Drowned.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 22.—A cloudburst at Coventry, this county, sent Lump creek over its banks, wrecking several mills and buildings at Afton. The family of James Cook, consisting of three persons, were drowned.

Whalebacks Stranded.

Port Austin, Mich., July 22. — The whaleback steamer A. D. Thompson and consort, bound from Duluth to ports on Lake Erie with cargoes of iron ore, stranded in the fog yesterday afternoon off Point-aux-Barques.

Eleven Stores Destroyed.

Macon, Ga., July 22.—Fire yesterday at Colquitt, Ga., destroyed eleven stores along the public squares. Among the buildings burned were the postoffice and the Masonic temple. The loss is over $50,000.

Killed by Noxious Gases.

Lorain, Ohio, July 22.—John Murphy and John Brandt, employes of the Loraine Street company, were killed by noxious gases while working at the top of the company's furnaces.

Business Houses Burned.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 22. — A conflagration of unknown origin destroyed the business portion of Cargiss, Trigg county. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $25,000.

Dr. Adams Recovers Rapidly.

Redlands, Cal., July 22.—Dr. Charles Kendall Adams' recovery from his recent serious illness has been rapid, and he now declares he is a well man. His handsome new residence is completed and he has moved into it.

Slays Girl He Would Marry.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 22.—Theodore Pullen, aged nineteen years, shot Lella Madren, aged fourteen, killing her, because her stepfather had refused to sanction their marriage. Pullen escaped.

MANY FARMS UNDER WATER

LOSS ALREADY REACHES SIX MILLIONS AND WORST IS NOT OVER.

IS GROWING WORSE HOURLY

THE MISSISSIPPI BELOW KEOKUK SWOLLEN TO A LAKE TEN MILES WIDE.

FARMS NOW RAGING TORRENTS

MOST COSTLY FLOOD IN THE HISTORY OF THE UPPER RIVER.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 22.—Exploration of the flooded districts of the Mississippi river from Keokuk south shows conditions beyond the appreciation or realization of any but people of long experience with the Father of Waters in its most destructive mood.

The situation is growing worse hourly and a great conflagration in a great city would not be more rapidly destructive of values. There is absolutely not the slightest chance of stopping this most costly flood in the history of the great river above St. Louis. People at the river cities give accounts of losses aggregating many millions of dollars. Hundreds of farmers rich ten days ago are penniless and homeless. Careful estimates of the territory covered by the statements of those best informed indicate the loss so far to be about six million dollars, with every prospect of two or three millions additional by the rise above, not yet reaching the lower stretches of the river.

Under Raging Torrents.

Most of this loss is on the Missouri side of the river, between Keokuk and Hannibal. Passing the lumber yards of Keokuk the mouth of the Des Moines river is nearly two miles wide. Normally there are two mouths, and a delta covered with farms, which are now under raging torrents.

Alexandria was protected to the last by the Egyptian levee, the breaking of which would send four feet of water over all the town. Gregory is submerged, except the white church, in which services were held yesterday, the congregation from the country reaching the church by the railroad track, which is still above the flood in a waste of waters miles wide. Other towns and cities on the island are beyond the danger line.

Immense fields are great lakes with the shore visible only with a glass, where the high bluffs bound the bottoms. Islands dotting the river at its normal stage except for the tops of trees or fringe of willows slightly protruding like a circular green coral reef. Occasionally a house on piles or stilts is seen, but generally only roofs protrude to mark the center of farms of corn.

Have Disappeared

On the edge of the flooded river corn gradually rises on a slope, tassels, tops, ears, stalks appearing in order. In the middle of the present river the tracks of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern railroad, normally the Missouri shire, are but a few inches above the water, and under it in some stretches. Shore lights for pilots are standing in the midst of a waste of waters, where steamboats can run over them. The river is five to ten miles wide and another great lake is added to the geography.

All this territory was practically covered with corn a fortnight ago, estimated to make seventy-five to a hundred bushels to the acre. Previous estimates of the loss have been greatly increased by the prospective yield being found much greater than ever before, experts telling of many farms that were good for 100 bushels of corn to the acre before the flood.

The Loss Is Total.

The river is rising all the time, six inches during the day in the immense area of 700 square miles and the worst is to come by the extension of the flooded area by the waters passing levees, which it is now topping.

The chief flood thus far is on the Missouri side from Keokuk to Louisiana, with Canton and West Quincy as centers of the country most injured. On the Illinois side are three continuous levees for forty miles from Warsaw to Quincy, above the waters, which are thus far safe, but farmers are afraid of crevasses from muskrat holes, and every rod of the redoubt is watched day and night.

The breaking of these levees would flood 175 square miles in Illinois and destroy $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 worth of corn. The levees below Quincy are in the same situation except that they are lower and less firm. Opposite Quincy in Missouri is still another center of special devastation which is appalling. North twelve miles to La Grange, and south to Holton, large prairies are well under water, reaching from the Illinois bluffs to the Missouri bluffs, at least ten miles.

PEORIA IN DANGER.

Illinois River Has Already Caused Great Damage.

Peoria, Ill., July 22.—The Illinois river stands in imminent danger of causing thousands of dollars worth of damage to buildings and manufactures in Peoria. The damage already caused along the lowlands by the floods will be but a drop in the bucket as compared with what it will be if the water gets one foot higher, and river men say there is no possibility of the water receding in the next thirty-six hours. Yesterday the river stood 20.5 feet above low water mark and was going up at the rate of half an inch an hour. Should it continue at that rate until to-day noon it will have passed the high water mark for this river, which is 21.4, attained at this point in the flood of 1892. People living along the lowlands, both above and below Peoria, have sought the highlands and have driven their stock with them.

MAY SOLVE A MYSTERY.

South Dakota Farmer Whose Wife Disappeared Several Years Ago Arrested on Charge of Murder.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 22.—A murder mystery of seven or eight years' standing appears about to be solved by the authorities of Bon Homme county. Seven or eight years ago a Mrs. Kucera, wife of a Bohemian farmer living in the northwestern part of Bon Homme county, disappeared, and the husband claimed that she had eloped with a neighbor. As it was known the couple had frequently quarreled, people of the vicinity became of the opinion that the woman had been murdered by her husband, but her body could not be found. Kucera was not arrested. After the disappearance of his wife Kucera sold his valuable farm, but has since remained in the neighborhood. The other day while a pile of stones near the former home of Kucera and his wife were being removed the skeleton of a woman, supposed to be that of the unfortunate Mrs. Kucera, was uncovered, having been buried underneath the pile. So strong is the belief that the remains are those of Mrs. Kucera and that she was killed by her husband that Kucera has been arrested on the charge of murder. He has been lodged in the county jail to await his trial at the next term of the state circuit court in Bon Homme county.

CHEAP FARES FOR SETTLERS.

Northwestern Roads Will Inaugurate a Low Colonist Rate in Hope of Attracting Immigrants.

St. Paul, Minn., July 22. — Colonist rates identical with those that brought 102,000 settlers to the Northwest during the spring will go into effect again Sept. 1. Under an agreement among the northern lines the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Soo, and the lines through the Omaha gateway, special fares will be offered every day in September and October, and this limit may be extended. To Spokane the rates will again be $22.50; to the Kootenai district, $25; to territory west of Cascade range, $25. Tickets will be sold good [illegible] way. The St. Paul-Chicago roads have agreed to an $8 basis in connection with the rates from St. Paul and Duluth west.

BEATEN BY ROBBERS.

Colored Porter on a Superintendent's Car Is Seriously Injured.

Winona, Minn., July 22.—E. J. Smith, colored, whose home is in this city, and whose position is that of porter for the special car of Supt. Sanborn of the Northwestern road, was brought to this city in a serious condition. Several of his ribs were broken and he is wounded about the head. He claims that on Thursday night while at Watertown, he was sent out about 11 o'clock to deliver a telegram. On his return he was held up by two men, who knocked him down and beat him almost to insensibility. They then relieved him of his watch and chain and $9 in money. Although his injuries are severe, it is believed that he will recover.

WISCONSIN 'PHONE WAR GROWS.

Linemen at La Crosse Go Out on Strike in Sympathy With the Milwaukee Men.

La Crosse, Wis., July 22.—The local linemen employed by the Wisconsin Telephone company walked out, having received orders from the president of the state union at Milwaukee to quit work out of sympathy with their fellow workmen in that city. The strike is rapidly spreading over the state, according to the statement made by the local leaders. The telephone construction work in the city and vicinity is at a standstill owing to the strike.

SNAKE FOUND IN SOLID ROCK.

Workmen Digging a Foundation Discover Remains of a Reptile.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 22.—In laying the foundation for a new dwelling house at Hartford, S. D., a workman broke open a rock which contained several sea shells of different shapes and a rattlesnake, all thoroughly ossified. Several specimens are on exhibition in the town. In splitting the rock the rattlesnake was broken, it being possible to preserve and carry away only the rattles. The discovery has aroused great interest among geologists.

FOUND IN THE RIVER.

Body of Mrs. Grant, Who Is Believed to Have Committed Suicide.

Le Sueur, Minn., July 22.—The body of Mrs. Lewis Grant, who disappeared a week ago, was found in the river one mile this side of Henderson. It is believed she committed suicide while demented. She suffered from dementia eight years ago, and recently had a second attack. She left seven children, the youngest a five-months-old babe.

AN ANGRY INVENTOR.

He Shoots a Mine Superintendent at Anaconda, Mont.

Anaconda, Mont., July 22.—Because he had been refused permission to install a smelting device at a mine, an inventor shot and probably fatally wounded W. J. Evans here. Evans is superintendent of machinery of the Anaconda Mining company, and had been asked to allow the installation of the device.

DRAGGED BY A BULL.

Lad's Overconfidence Leads to Fatal Results.

Jackson, Minn., July 22. — Raymond, the fifteen-year-old son of Ed Stone, while leading a young bull, tied the rope around his body and was dragged through the woods by the animal. The boy was missed and found dead with his skull broken.

Found Dead in the Road.

Eldora, Iowa, July 22.—Edward Williams, single, aged twenty-four, son of wealthy and prominent residents here, was found dead north of town. His team had run away, throwing him down an embankment, killing him.

Struck by a Train.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, July 22.—A motor car was struck by an Illinois Central freight at the Broadway crossing. Forty passengers were on the car and eight were seriously but none fatally injured. All were bruised.

FURY OF TORNADO

TERRIBLE STORM BURSTS WITHOUT WARNING UPON CITY OF BALTIMORE.

IT BRINGS DEATH TO ELEVEN

HUNDREDS OF HOUSES UNROOFED AND MANY BUILDINGS DAMAGED.

NINE PERSONS WERE DROWNED

WERE CAUGHT IN OPEN BOATS WHEN STORM BROKE IN ALL ITS FURY.

Baltimore, July 22.—A fierce tornado characterized by a windstorm of extraordinary velocity, thunder, vivid lightning and a heavy rain suddenly burst upon Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. yesterday, coming from the southwest, with the net result that eleven persons lost their lives, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots, many buildings damaged and several people injured. The storm exhausted its fury in less than fifteen minutes. The damage done in the business part of the city was comparatively slight, being confined to the blowing down of signs and injuries to roofs. It was in the residence portions of the city along the river front and in the harbor where the wind spent its violence. Of those who perished in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree and one by a live wire. Three of the victims were out in a rowboat on the river with three companions. When the storm broke the boat was capsized, three being drownd and three being rescued by the tugboat Edna V. George. The boy killed by a live wire had, in company with two other boys, gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and a live wire fell on one of them, resulting in his death. The drowning of Mrs. Schuler and her three children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Joseph Cooper, and his wife, had gone into the harbor for a sail in a thirty-foot boat.

Nine Were Drowned

When the Storm Came

Schuler and Cooper took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin and he stood at the tiller to keep the vessel's head toward the wind. A sudden gust of wind threw the boom of the vessel around, knocked Schuler down and pinned him to the deck. Another gust capsized the boat, releasing Schuler, who, with Cooper and his wife, was thrown into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children pinned in the cabin. Cooper saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat, and Schuler saved himself in the same way after making frantic efforts to get at his imprisoned wife and children. A crew from the schooner Edward H. Hunt rescued Schuler and Cooper and his wife and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her three children taken from the cabin.

DISASTROUS FLOOD.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Damage Done in Seneca County, New York.

Farmer, N. Y., July 22. — The most disastrous flood that has visited this portion of Seneca county, occurred yesterday afternoon. The rain commenced Saturday night, but the heavy downpour came yesterday afternoon, washing everything in the path of the torrent it created. Wheat in the shock, hay on the ground and cocked up, gardens, railways, and in some places bridges washed out. The Lehigh Valley railway on level track reports ballasting washed out in some places. The damage to the town of Covert will reach thousands of dollars.

WILL NOT RENEW STRIKE.

Freight Handlers Decide to Remain at Work.

Chicago, July 22—There will be no renewal of the freight handlers strike in Chicago. This decision was reached at a meeting of the union called by President Curran to consider a report that four of the railways were discriminating against the old men who went out on strike. After a careful consideration the committees appointed to investigate the alleged discriminations reported that all roads with the exception of the Panhandle were living up to their agreements, and most of the roads had agreed to better terms than offered during the strike.

FATAL HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Passenger Trains Crash Together at Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y., July 22.—A fatal head-on collision occurred between two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley railroad near Hospital, this city, last evening, in which one person was almost instantly killed and nineteen others more or less seriously injured. Both trains were running at a high rate of speed at the time. The engine and a passenger coach on one train was thrown from the track down an embankment into the Erie canal and was completely wrecked, the other engine was demolished but remained on the roadbed.

Claims Self-Defense.

Memphis, Tenn., July 22. — Charles Hackinger was shot and killed yesterday afternoon by John Brooke, a photographer. Hackinger came here a short time ago where several brothers reside. Brooke claims self-defense.

Murder and Suicide.

Marshall, Mo., July 22.—George Wiley shot and killed Miss Dovie Flinn, stepdaughter of Richard Dearking, a Chicago & Alton railway employe, at the latter's home here, and then committed suicide. The girl refused him.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

James J. Kelley, an old time minstrel who, during his professional career, appeared in nearly every part of the country, died at his home in Boston. He was sixty-nine years old.

Two natives who were implicated in the massacre of American soldiers at Binangonan, Rizal province, Island of Luzon, on Decoration day, have been arrested on a charge of murder. Their identification is complete.

The Venice correspondent of the London Daily Mail says the Italian minister of fine arts considers it desirable that the campanile should be rebuilt solely by the aid of the Italian subscriptions, and it has been suggested, in view of the world-wide manifestation of sympathy, to use the foreign donations to build a temple in honor of human fraternity.

Gov. Jordan of [illegible] Hampshire has been notified by [illegible]stary Cortelyou that President Roosevelt will visit that state on the 28th of August. The governor will detail members of his staff, with Secretary of State Pearson, to meet the president in Boston and escort him to Concord, whence he will proceed to The Weirs to become the guest of the New Hampshire Veteran association at their annual encampment.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 22. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 79 1-2@80c; No. 2 Northern, 75@77c. Oats—No. 3 white, 49@50c; No. 3, 48@49c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 59@60c; No. 3, 58@59c.

Minneapolis, July 22.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 79 7-8c; No. 1 Northern, 77 7-8c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-4c.

Duluth, July 22.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 77 1-8c; No. 1 Northern, 75c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 71 1-2c; Manitoba, 75c oats, 33 1-2c; rye, 53c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 77@77 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 76@76 1-2c; September, 71 3-8 @ 71 1-2c. Rye—No. 1, 59 1-2c. Barley—No. 2, 71@72 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 white, 53c.

Chicago, July 22. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 75 1-2c; No. 3 red, 70 1-2@73c; No. 2 hard winter, 74c; No. 3 hard winter, 72 @ 73c; No. 1 Northern spring, 75 1-2c; No. 2 Northern spring, 74 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 70@73c. Cash Corn—No. 2, 65@65 1-2c; No. 3, 61@63c. Cash Oats—No. 2, 48@49c; No. 3, 47c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 22. — Cattle — Beeves, $5.50 @ 6; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@5; stockers and feeders, $2.75@4.50; yearlings and calves, $2.50@4. Hogs, $7.50@7.75; bulk, $7.50@7.60.

Chicago, July 22. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.75@8.75; poor to medium, $4.60@7.50; stockers and feeders, $2.40@5; cows, $1.40@5.60. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.20@8; good to choice heavy, $7.80@8.10. Sheep — Good to choice wethers, $3.25@4.10; fair to choice mixed, $2.50@3.25; Western sheep, $2.50 @3.75; native lambs, $3@6.60.

South St. Paul, July 22. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $7 @ 7.50; good, $6.25@6.75; common to fair, $4@5; choice cows and heifers, $5.50@6; good, $4.50 @5; fair, $3.25 @ 4.25; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; good to choice feeding steers, $3.75@4.75; steers calves $2@3.25. Hogs—Range, $7.25 @ 8; bulk, $7.40 @ 7.60; rough sorts, $6.70. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $6 @ 6.10; good to choice fat lambs, $5.50@5.90; fair to good, $4.50@5.25 culls and stock lambs, $2.50 @ 4; good to choice yearling wethers, $4@4.25.

YUKON GOVERNOR IS STRICKEN.

Attacked by Paralysis While on Board a Steamer.

White Horse, Yukon Ter., July 22.—The steamer Columbian has arrived from Dawson with Gov. Ross on board, suffering from a paralytic stroke on the right side, received on the 17th. He has been unconscious most of the time and may not recover. The governor was taken to the home of Maj. Snyder, the officer commanding the district. The governor is popular and has been in charge of many public works, which may suspend operations in consequence of his illness.

PAUNCEFOTE DIED POOR.

Family Left Practically No Estate Except a Small Home Seat.

London, July 22. — The announcement that the late Lord Pauncefote's family was left with practically no estate save a small homestead in Gloucestershire is expected to result of the granting of a larger pension to the widow than is ordinarily given. There is no doubt that Lord Pauncefote's ambassadorial career left his family several thousand pounds sterling poorer than would have been the case had he not been compelled to incur extra expenses.

LEOPOLD VISITS EDWARD.

King of Belgium Spends Half an Hour With British Ruler.

London, July 22. — King Leopold of Belgium, whose yacht Alberta is lying in the Solent, visited King Edward on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert and staid half an hour with him. The latter's condition continues to be all that could be desired.

Sultan Decides to Be Friendly.

Manila, July 22.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, who recently sent an insultingly worded communication to the commander of the American expedition to Lake Lanao, in which he threatened to begin offensive operations in August, has now written a friendly letter to the commander of the American forces, in which he disavows all desire to fight, and says he will confer with the Americans in the future. The general Moro situation is regarded favorable.

Taft Sees the Pope.

London, July 22.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegraph company from Rome says that the pope granted an audience Sunday with Judge Taft, governor of the Philippines, and his assistants in the friar negotiations.

Cholera Is Decreasing.

Manila, July 22.—The cholera is decreasing in Manila and the provinces and the health board has decided to relax the quarantine regulations which have been enforced between cities and provinces.

IN WATERY GRAVE

WHALE BOAT CONTAINING SIXTEEN YOUNG PEOPLE CAPSIZES.

FOURTEEN OF THEM ARE DROWNED

TWO OF THE VICTIMS LOST THEIR LIVES TRYING TO SAVE OTHERS.

CAPSIZED BY SUDDEN SQUALL

VICTIMS WERE ALL YOUNG PEOPLE NOT ABOVE TWENTY YEARS.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 19.—A nineteen-foot whaleboat containing sixteen waiters and waitresses employed at the Oceanic house, Star Island, Isle of Shoals, who had gone out in the bay yesterday afternoon on a pleasure trip in charge of Skipper Fred Miles, capsized during a sudden squall and fourteen of the occupants were drowned. The other three were rescued by fishermen who put out from the shore in their dories.

The bodies of five of the victims have not yet been recovered. All the others were taken from the water to the island where they were worked over for a long time by two doctors, but without success.

Farrington and Alward, two of the victims, were law students at Harvard university, rooming at Forsyth hall. Both were good swimmers and lost their lives in trying to rescue the others.

The victims were all young people whose ages were not above twenty years. Most of the girls were school teachers who have passed their summer vacations here for several years in serving as waitresses in the hotel.

KING SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Enforced Rest Has a Most Beneficial Effect.

Cowes, July 19.—The king is making excellent progress. A more liberal diet has been prescribed. He passes most of the day beneath the awning on the stern of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, where the queen frequently reads to him. He will remain here until Aug. 8, when he will return for the coronation ceremony. He will return after the coronation.

-o-

London, July 18.—The British Medical Journal says: "The king's progress is quite satisfactory. Everything has gone on well. We can give an absolute and emphatic denial to the rumors of the existence of any constitutional malady. We are authorized to state that his majesty has not sign or suspicion of any malignant disease in any part of his body."

The Lancet says: "The king's condition is eminently satisfactory. The wound is filling up surely, if slowly. The freedom from state cares and social duties, together with the enforced rest in bed, has had a most beneficial effect. His majesty looks better now than for some years."

SHOT TWO SISTERS OF CHARITY.

Demented Man Then Attempts to Kill Himself.

New York, July 19.—Henry F. King, thirty years of age, entered the office of the New York foundling asylum yesterday afternoon and shot two Sisters of Charity. He then ran into the grounds of the institution and shot himself in the left breast, making only a flesh wound. King was taken to a police court where he was committed without bail for examination Saturday. King, who has been a frequent visitor to the foundling asylum, is believed to be demented. He suffered for some time from melancholia, according to the police, and on May 7 was arrested in the yards of the institution after he had attempted to commit suicide by taking carbolic acid. When he was arraigned King said he had begged the authorities of the foundling asylum to give him information about his birth, but that they had refused to do so. This so enraged him, he said, that he did not know what he was doing.

GEORGE GOULD RELEASED.

Third Time the Alleged Bank Wrecker Has Escaped.

Wahoo, Neb., July 19.—Judge Sornberger has granted a writ of habeas corpus releasing from custody George Gould, who was bound over to the district court of Butte county on a charge of being an accessory to the wrecking of the Bellwood State bank. Gould has been three times arrested on the same charge. Twice he has secured his release through habeas corpus proceedings, and was once discharged on preliminary examination.

GLASS IS DRIVEN THROUGH IRON.

Strange Freak of Recent Cyclone in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 19.—A strange freak of the recent hurricane in Southeastern South Dakota is on exhibition in a drug store at Viborg. It is a small piece of window glass which was driven through iron siding and imbedded to the depth of an inch in the wood underneath the siding. Where the piece of glass came from is a mystery, as none of similar quality was broken in that immediate vicinity.

Belgian Concessions in China.

London, July 19.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Brussels says that the king of the Belgians has obtained several important railway concessions in China. He has acquired a majority of shares of the Canton-Hankow road.

Freight Train Ditched.

Hull, Iowa, July 19.—A heavy freight train pulling in here struck a defective switch, ditching the engine and wrecking the cab and four cars. The engineer and fireman had a narrow escape, but no one was seriously injured.

MAYOR AMES MAY BE IMPEACHED.

Such Action Is Said to Be the Next Step in Police Trouble.

Minneapolis, July 19.—The impeachment of Mayor A. A. Ames will, it is said, be the next sensation in the Minneapolis police scandal. No definite steps have been taken in this direction, but the members of the city council are seriously discussing the matter, and it is the opinion of those who are in a position to know that the impeachment is more than probable. Nothing has been heard of Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames. It develops that Mayor Ames granted him leave of absence until July 25. If he does not return by that time, and no one expects that he will, the council will declare his office vacant. There is some question of the ability of the authorities to prove that the chief is a fugitive from justice. To do this it will be necessary to prove that he knows of the indictment against him. While there is no question that he does know of it, it would be a difficult matter to prove. Efforts are, however, being made to locate him.

STATE MERGER SUIT.

Agreement Reached Among Attorneys Interested in the Litigation.

St. Paul, July 19.—The state's merger suit will go before the United States circuit court on its merits. Yesterday the attorneys for the state, W. B. Douglas, M. D. Munn and George P. Wilson, entered into a stipulation to that effect with Young and Lightner, attorneys for the Northern Securities company; M. D. Grover, for the Great Northern Railway company, and C. W. Bunn and Frank B. Kellogg, for the Northern Pacific. The stipulation provides that the state shall withdraw its motion to remand the case to the Ramsey county district court. The Northern Securities company, and James J. Hill, as president thereof, agree to withdraw their motion to set aside the service of summons.

INJURED IN WRECK.

Mail Clerk Lawrence Thought to Be Fatally Hurt.

Spooner, Wis., July 19.—In the wreck on the Omaha road here Henry M. Lawrence, a mail clerk, was probably fatally injured. The train, which was traveling thirty miles an hour, was derailed by a broken switch and thrown into a sandbank. Mr. Lawrence was standing with his right side toward the engine and most of his injuries are on that side. He was struck on the head and badly bruised, but the worst injuries were to the spine, just below the waist line. He was found half an hour after the shock unconscious. He was taken to Minneapolis, where his father resides.

WANT TO PLEAD GUILTY.

Burglars Anxious to Begin Serving Out Their Sentence.

West Superior, Wis., July 19.—Percy Grace and Ed Miller, the two men charged with burglary of Vanderburg's jewelry store last week, and who were captured in Minneapolis, have asked Judge Haily of the police court to bind them over to the circuit court, so that they can plead guilty and at once enter upon their term of imprisonment. Both men gave their ages as nineteen years. About 100 rings and 54 watches were recovered, which is all the stolen property with the possible exception of one watch.

TRACEY KEEPS IT UP.

Skipping Convict Again Eludes the Officers.

Black Diamond, Wash., July 19. — Tracey has escaped again. He has eluded the sheriff of King county and many picked men who had advanced on his hiding place three miles from here. The posse arrived at Tracey's hiding place six or eight hours after he had left. He had taken a row boat and had gone to the east of Sawyer lake, presumably about 2 o'clock in the morning, accompanied by his two confederates. Sheriff Cudihee and the posse have returned to Black Diamond. The chase from here has been abandoned.

BITES OFF HIS OWN TONGUE.

Sleeping Iowa Man Unaccountably Injures Himself.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 19.—The victim of a most unusual accident is Chan Leavitt, who bit off his tongue while asleep. The organ is hanging by a small bit of flesh and skin in the center which the attending surgeon hopes will supply sufficient life to the tissues of the severed portion to permit it to grow back on again. Four stitches were taken in the tongue, two at the top and two at the bottom. Leavitt does not know why he bit his tongue unless it may have been that he was dreaming.

SAYS HE WAS HIRED.

Man Arrested at Albert Lea on Charge of Horse Stealing.

Albert Lea, Minn., July 19.—Charles Scoor was arrested here yesterday on a charge of horse stealing. He is in the county jail, and says he is a Swede. He took a horse that was standing hitched on a business street and had been gone some time before the owner, a farmer from the township of Freeman, discovered that the horse was missing. He says he was hired by a man to take the horse and buggy to New Richland.

Power for Electric Line.

Black River Falls, Wis., July 19.—Engineers are in the city to survey a dam site three miles up the river from this city for the La Crosse, Black River Falls and Neillsville electric road. The company expects to get sufficient power to operate the line from this plant. It is estimated that the dam and dynamos will cost not less than $200,000 when completed and wired to this city.

Pinned by Falling Rock.

Lead, S. D., July 19.—An accident in the Homestake mine caused the death of Stephen Orvusch. He was working on the seventh floor of the sixth level when a large rock fell from an upper floor, killing him.

Dynamited Himself.

Cumberland, Wis., July 19. — While blasting stumps with dynamite, Joseph Filer, a rich farmer ten miles south of here, was blown thirty feet in the air and fatally injured. Both eyes were blown out.

BIG LOSS OF LIFE

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION OF POWDER MAGAZINE IN A UTAH MINE.

THIRTY-FIVE MINERS ARE KILLED

OVERCOME BY DEADLY GASES GENERATED BY THE EXPLOSION.

DUE TO ACT OF A CARELESS MINER

HE WENT INTO THE POWDER MAGAZINE WITH A LIGHTED CANDLE.

Park City, Utah, July 18.—Thirty-five miners were killed in the Daly-West and Ontario mines yesterday, twenty-nine in the Daly-West and six in the Ontario.

The disaster was the result of an explosion occasioned by John Burgy, a miner, going into one of the magazines of the Daly-West with a lighted candle. His act cost him his life and the lives of many other miners besides. His own body was blown to pieces. All of the other victims are recognizable, their faces being easily identified by relatives and friends. The explosion occurred at 11:20 Tuesday night, and in a twinkling deadly gas was being generated throughout the mines. It crept through every tunnel shaft and incline and in a very short space of time scores of miners found themselves face to face with death. It is not known how much powder was exploded, but whatever amount there was it went off in a terrible concussion. The shock

Was Something Terrific

and was heard for a long way, although it was nearly 2 o'clock before it was known in Park City, a distance of three miles.

When it is stated that a horse was killed at the mouth of the Ontario tunnel, two miles away, some idea of the force of the explosion may be had. The animal was in use at the entrance to this part of the mine and was hurled against the wall and machinery with such violence as to be killed outright. The other horses were also killed in the Ontario almost as great a distance away. That there was no greater loss of life is miraculous. The work of rescue was quickly undertaken. The men were brought to the surface as fast as the disabled machinery would permit. The victims had to be brought up the shaft in a one-compartment cage, one of the compartments having been wrecked by the explosion.

In the Ontario, which is connected with the Daly-West, six men are dead. Two of the dead are rescuers, John McLaughlin and John Eckstrom. The body of the latter is still in the mine.

GAVE HER LIFE FOR SCIENCE.

Young Woman Inoculated With Tuberculosis Germs Is Dead.

Dover, N. J., July 18.—Miss Emma H. King, who submitted to inoculation with the germs of consumption less than a year ago in order that Dr. George D. Barney of Brooklyn might prove the theories he held in regard to tuberculosis, is dead at Shippenport on Lake Hopatcong. Miss King died of poison self-administered, but it is not believed that she meant to kill herself. There is considerable mystery about the case and the police are investigating. Miss King came to Shippenport on Friday, a mental and physical wreck. She was nervous and excited most of the time. The only thing that would calm her was a cigarette. She smoked cigarettes incessantly. The powder, which she took and which killed her was one of a box of a dozen which she brought with her. Just before she took the medicine she said: "There's arsenic in this and I am a fool to take it."

BREAKS IN COAL STRIKE.

Anthracite Miners Are Returning to Work.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 18.—The coal companies gradually are breaking the strike of the anthracite miners, and only await the action of the Indianapolis convention to make a general move toward resuming operations. It was given out officially from the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western offices yesterday that in the company's twenty-eight collieries there were now at work 110 miners and laborers who went out on the strike and were reinstated at their own solicitation. Supt. Rose, of the Delaware & Hudson, said his company had fifty ex-strikers at work. Other companies reported strikers, but could not give figures. The miners and laborers who have returned to work for the different companies are not employed in cutting or loading coal, but in cleaning up the mines and making repairs.

LIVE STOCK FOR BOERS.

Shipping Camp at Port Chalmette Is to Be Reopened.

New Orleans, July 18.—The British transport service, which for so many months conducted an active trade at Port Chalmette, is to reopen its camp there for the shipment of horses, mules and cattle to South Africa. It is found that the American animals are the hardiest for the veldt work, and the British government will need a great number under its agreement of restocking the farms of the burghers who suffered in the recent war. The officers are now on the way and the camp will be reopened immediately upon their arrival.

Negro Burned at the Stake.

Clayton, Miss., July 18.—At an early hour this morning William Odey, a negro, was tied to a tree and burned. Odey had outraged a young woman. The negro was saturated with oil and a match applied to fagots about him.

Slow Recovery.

London, July 18. — The recovery of Mr. Chamberlain, injured by being thrown from a cab, is retarded by recurrent weakness. His loss of blood has led to an intermittent pulse. Complete rest and change of air is ordered.

GOV. TAFT'S FINAL NOTE.

Negotiations With the Vatican Are Suspended.

Rome, July 18. — At noon yesterday Maj. Porter, of the judge advocate department of the army at Washington, personally delivered to Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, the last note of Judge Taft, governor of the Philippine islands, on the subject of the withdrawal of the friars from the islands, which will probably end the governor's negotiations here, as Maj. Porter simultaneously presented a letter from Judge Taft asking for a farewell audience of the pope. The note reproduced the cablegram received by the governor from Secretary Root, concluding the present negotiations by postponing the settlement of the difficulties to a conference at Manila between Gov. Taft and the apostolic delegate.

The Vatican is buzzing with comments on the last American note, the contents of which were somewhat unexpected, as it was thought that Washington would make counter-propositions. A majority here regard the result as a serious foil for papal diplomacy, while others express the opinion that the friars will not get in Manila better terms than those offered here and that the affair may end in their being obliged to leave the archipelago with less money, as it would be impossible to bring before the courts the 60,000 tenants who occupy their lands, paying no rental therefor. This and the partial failure of the visit to Rome of Judge Taft would be the last straw for the religious orders, as it would be to justify the governments of France, Spain, etc., which took measures against them without having recourse to the Vatican.

FREIGHT HANDLERS LOSE.

Men Return to Work on Terms Offered by Railroads.

Chicago, July 15—The Chicago freight handlers have lost their strike and returned to work. After two weeks of the strike, during which time thousands of tons of fruit, vegetables and other perishable goods spoiled in cars, the men go back to work on the terms offered by the railroads. The strike terminated in an unqualified victory for the railroads. A meeting of the strikers, presided over by President Curren, resulted in an almost unanimous vote to return to work, leaving the wage scale and other questions for settlement between the men and their respective roads. By noon immense quantities of freight which had been held back for days were being rushed to the railroads, or taken from warehouses and cars. Where stagnation had ruled commercial activity again reigned. Chicago merchants expressed unbounded relief at the termination of hostilities, but they were scarcely less happy than the men themselves, although the strike is estimated to have cost them $10,000,000, to say nothing of the trade that has been permanently lost to them.

CANAL TREATY TO BE READY.

Colombian Negotiations Are Practically Completed.

Washington, July 18.—Secretary Hay has practically completed the treaty with Colombia for a new canal concession, and he will leave Washington for his vacation the latter part of the week. The secretary has no doubt that he will be able to submit a treaty with Colombia to the senate when it meets next December. In fact a treaty has been agreed to by the secretary and the Colombian minister. The president of Colombia has approved that treaty. But since the passage of the Spooner act Secretary Hay has suggested certain amendments to the treaty to make it more in harmony with the spirit of the debate in congress on the canal question. The secretary of state, desires that the treaty shall be so acceptable to the senate that it will be promptly ratified without any attempt to amend it or delay it. He has suggested amendments which Minister Concha has sent to Bogota to be approved by the president.

ON HISTORIC BATTLEFIELD.

Dedication at Stony Point Under Auspices of Patriotic Societies.

Stony Point, N. Y., July 18.—Over 15,000 persons witnessed the exercises here yesterday which marked the dedication of the Stony Point battlefield state reservation. The exercises were held under the auspices of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society (custodian), with the co-operation of the Empire State society, Sons of the American Revolution, and the Rockland county citizens' committee. Yesterday was the 123d anniversary of the capture of Stoney Point by the American forces under Brig. Gen. Anthony Wayne. Gov. Odell, who was accompanied by his staff, delivered the principal address.

RESCUED BY HOBSON.

Hero of the Merrimac Saves Young Lady From Drowning.

St. Louis, July 18.—Capt. R. P. Hobson, of Merrimac fame, rescued Miss May Ceref, a young lady well known in St. Louis society, from drowning in the Mississippi river opposite the Chautauqua grounds near Alton Hills. Miss Ceref fell from the deck of a yacht into the stream. Capt. Hobson, who was in swimming near by, at once went to the young lady's rescue and caught her as she was going down the second time.

American Officers Arrested.

San Juan, P. R., July 18.—Lieut. Commander James C. Gillmore and Ensign Andrew T. Graham of the cruiser Cincinnati, which was at La Guaira July 5, with three others were arrested by Venezuelan revolutionists. The officers protested against being held as prisoners, and, with their companions, were released.

Milner to Retire.

London, July 18. — The Telegraph, which is a pro-Milner organ, mentions a report that Viscount Milner is about to resign his post. The paper does not deny the report, but says there is no immediate prospect of his retiring.

Ships for Austria.

Vienna, July 18. — The Neue Freie Presse states that the shipping combine of which J. P. Morgan is the head, has offered to build ships for the Austrian trade and to work the ships when they are completed.

In Far Northland.

LOUIS PIO'S CHILD.

She Returns to Denmark, to Which Her Count-Father Was an Exile.

From a desk in the civil service department of the city hall of Chicago to the title of countess and an honored place in the court of King Christian of Denmark is rather beyond the imagination of the average Chicago girl. Yet this is the good fortune which has overtaken Sylvia M. Pio.

Just now Miss Pio is speeding across the ocean toward her native land, where she is to marry Count Knuth of Knuthenborg, Bandholm, Lolland, Denmark, a member of one of the most illustrious and wealthy families of that country.

Louis Pio, father of the fortunate Chicago girl, was banished from his native land years ago when in the prime of his power. Had the liberal views for which he stood there been victorious, Pio would have been prime minister of Denmark.

Now, after all these years, the principles for which her father struggled rule supreme in Denmark, and the wheel of fortune has turned most extraordinarily for Miss Sylvia. Though her father is dead, she lives to claim her place at the court of her native land, and her marriage will be into one of the families which drove Pio to America.

While at the Palm Beach hotel, Miami, Fla., last January, Miss Pio met Count Knuth, who was making a tour of the world. During his stay at the Palm Beach hotel the Danish nobleman courted Miss Pio ardently. He told her that he loved her, and that if she would marry him he would restore her to the court of King Christian.

Miss Pio told him that she loved him, but that he must first ask her mother. It was accordingly arranged that she should return to her home in Chicago, and he would arrive in Chicago later, while on his tour of the country. Count Knuth came to Chicago in April and met Mrs. Pio. She consented to the marriage, but first the young noble must get the consent of the leaders of the Danish court.

The answer, received a month ago, was an acceptance of the plan, and included an invitation to Miss Pio to come at once to the Danish court. She sailed last week, and will arrive in Denmark in advance of Count Knuth, who is still touring the world.

Louis Albert Francis Pio organized the Danish Liberal party in 1871. He was a leader among the men of his country, and destined to great things. But he lost in the early struggles, and was forced to face the bitter consequences, as many other famous fighters for the cause of freedom have done. But this movement that Pio inaugurated finally triumphed in Denmark, and in July, 1900, King Christian organized the first Liberal ministry in the history of the country.

After coming to this country Pio became interested in turning the tide of Scandinavian immigration southward, and he established a colony in Florida, calling it the White City. To-day it is a thriving town. As a result of his explorations in Florida Pio died in Chicago from fever in 1894.

Sylvia is a type of Northern beauty. She is twenty-four years old, and has long been regarded as one of the most beautiful women in the city hall.

Count Knuth is twenty-five years of age. He was educated in England, being sent there to school when fourteen years old. He lived in England until a few years ago, when he returned to Denmark to claim his titular rank. Since then he has traveled extensively.

BACK TO SWEDEN.

Nameless Writer Seeks to Have Emigrants Come Home.

A nameless writer is seeking to interest the people of Sweden in a movement to secure the return to the land of their birth of the many thousands who have emigrated to the United States. He proposes the appointment of a commission of energetic and practical men to visit this country and induce the Swedes, especially capable artisans, to return to Sweden and introduce their American methods and American industry. His Quixotic plan is ridiculed by the Swedish press in America. As Svenska Folkets Tidning remarks, the Swedes in this country are too well content with their prosperity to want to return to Sweden except for a holiday visit, and the Swedish laborers at home want none of the American strenuous American life in theirs. The immigrants know all about what they had to endure in the old country, and are keenly alive to the advantages and material prosperity they have found in their adopted country. The dream will never be realized.

Sweden's New Ministry.

Sweden's new ministry, which was confirmed by King Oscar on July 5, looks strong. When Admiral von Otter's ministry was given its dismissal, on June 28, Erik Gustaf Bostrom was requested to form another, and he was not long in submitting a list which was satisfactory to the king. It is as follows:

Premier and Minister of State—Bostrom.

Foreign Affairs—Carl H. T. A. Lagerheim.

Justice—Ossian Berger.

War—Jasper Ingevold Crusebjorn.

Marine—Adolf A. L. Palander.

Interior—Westring.

Finance—Edvard Meyer (a wholesale merchant in Cadshamn).

Agriculture—Theo Oldeberg.

Church Department—Carl von Friesen.

Lagerheim, Crusebjorn, Palander and Oldeberg retain the same portfolios they held in the von Otterministry.

Monument to Brun.

Statutes and monuments have been raised to hundreds of illustrious men and women, but Johannes Brun is the only actor in whose honor a public monument has been erected. No one thought of this fact when the statue was unveiled a short time ago, but the fact has been brought to light, and Christiania thus secures a peculiar distinction. There are Shakespeare monuments in England, and one to Beaumarchais, but they were raised in honor of the writers of "Hamlet" and "Figaro" and not to the actors.

Northern Press Meeting.

Harmony and brotherly love were greatly in evidence at the second Northern Press meeting, held at Copenhagen during the week of June 23. The visiting journalists were royally entertained by the hospitable Danes, and the meeting was a series of sexas, receptions and excursion. The sentiment in favor of Scandinavian unity was very much stronger than ever before.

Editor Carstensen of Copenhagen was elected president, and vice presidents were chosen as follows: For Sweden, Editor H. Sohlman; for Norway, Editor N. Vogt; for Finland, Editor Erkko; for Denmark, Editor Sigurd Berg.

Joy in Finmarken.

Even the weather is more certain than the spring fishing in Norway. The fishers were wholly discouraged by their small catches, and conceded a hopeless failure, when there came a welcome change. In places where it was supposed fish had disappeared, phenomenal catches were made. Open boats were filled to the edge in a short time, and one steamer secured 8,000 fish in three hauls. Now all Finmarken is in smiles.

Consular Commission.

The Swedish-Norwegian consular commission, consisting of Baron Bildt and Consul General Ameen, for Sweden, and Dr. Sigurd Ibsen and General Consul Christophersen, for Norway, organized at Christiania on June 25. They have been authorized to draft a plan for the revision of the consular system, to meet the demands of Norway.

Dr. Hedin Returns.

Dr. Sven Hedin, whose explorations in Central Asia have brought him much fame and established him in the highest rank in the world of science, is expected in Sweden very soon. He arrived safely at Kaschgar on May 15, and was preparing to break up his caravan and return home.

Suffers for His Scruples.

No. 103 Ottoson, of Vartofta company, Skaraborg's regiment, has been sentenced to prison for two months for refusing to don a military uniform and render service as a soldier. He belongs to a sect known as "Helgeaner," and contends that he is forbidden by the Bible to bear arms.

Scandinavians.

The exact number of Swedes who emigrated to America in 1901 was 24,800, as compared with with 20,700 in 1900.

Jonas Lie is again in Norway, after an absence of nine years. He will remain during the summer, and then return to Paris to resume his literary work.

The American colony in Copenhagen, which, by the way, is much larger than most people would imagine, celebrated the Fourth of July with a banquet at Hotel Phoenix. The principal response was by L. S. Swenson, United States minister to Denmark.

Miss Louise Petren, who recently took the graduation examinations at Lund university, followed nine brothers through that institution. Four are now physicians, three lawyers, and two doctors of philosophy. All have risen to prominent places.

Premier Deuntzer of Denmark, without giving any names, told the voters of Adense that there were two members of the landsthing who hindered the government on every opportunity, and should be retired. The audience applauded the sentiment with much enthusiasm.

The widow of the late M. F. Wallin has given 125,000 kroner to various hospitals, orphan asylums and homes for the aged in Stockholm; also, 210,000 to various individuals. In addition, she will give to the municipality a large sum as a permanent fund for charitable work.

The samlag, or Gothenborg saloon, which was voted down in Christianssand, Norway, at the previous election, will stay down a while longer, as the counting of ballots on June 19 failed to disclose enough favorable votes to restore the samlag. There were 5,400 qualified electors, and but 1,547 votes were cast.

Capt. Alfred Boivie, one of the oldest Swedes in New York, died last week at the age of sixty-six. He served on one of the monitors in the Civil War, and was afterwards captain of the Swedish Guard, Company G, Fourteenth regiment N. Y. N. G. Capt. Boivie was a jolly tar of the old school, and very popular.

Daniel Jordell who since '88 has compiled the general catalogue of the immense Librarie Francaise, is a Swede, and was born in Falun in 1860. The catalogue is now issued monthly. His bibliography of the French reviews has won him much fame in literary circles. King Oscar recently decorated Mr. Jordell as a Knight of the Order of Vasa.

Bjornson appears to be unwilling to allow the Sverdrup-Bjornson scandal to die out. The announcement of the Sverdrup family that the law suit would be abandoned, in deference to the public demand, brought forth a letter from Bjornson, in which, he taunts the Sverdrup family for not accepting his challenge.

Paul de Chaillu, known to every schoolboy for his famous work, "The Land of the Midnight Sun," has set out on a five-years' tour of Russia to gather material for a new work. He will travel under the protection of the czar, and the old but tireless traveler will doubtless have "the time of his life," romantic and adventurous though it has been.

Shoeshinediness.

He was rolling along in the intermediate stages of intoxication, when his attention was attracted by a sign on the door of an office building. It was, "Shoes Shined Inside."

"That's funny," he said, half-aloud. "Ver' funny. Shushined inside. What anybody want shushined inside for? Can't see inside. Want mine shined outside. Mus' be new style. Le's see."

And he went stumbling into the building to make the bootblack explain.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXV. (Continued.)

Instantly the girl's manner changed. She glanced at the Rembrandt with a shrewd smile that meant something beyond a mere act of prudence well done. Then she went down to the library and began an eager search for a certain book. She found it at length in the "David Copperfield" in the "Charles Dickens'" edition of the great novelist's works. For the next hour or so she was flitting over the pages with the cipher telegram spread out before her. A little later, and the few jumbled, meaningless words were coded out into a lengthy message. Christabel read them over a few times, and then, with the aid of a vesta, she reduced the whole thing, telegram and all, to tinder, which she carefully crushed and flung out of the window.

She looked away down the terrace, she glanced at the dappled deer, knee-deep in the bracken, she caught a glimpse of the smiling sea, and her face saddened for a moment.

"How lovely it all is," she murmured. "How exquisitely beautiful and how utterly sad! And to think that if I possessed the magician's wand for a moment I could make everything smile again. He is a good man—a better man than anybody takes him to be. Under his placid, cynical surface he conceals a deal of suffering. Well, we shall see."

She replaced the "Copperfield" on the shelf and turned to go again. In the hall she met Lord Littimer, dressed for riding. He smiled as she passed.

"Au revoir till dinner-time," he said. "I've got to go and see a tenant. Oh, yes, I shall certainly expect the pleasure of your company to dinner. And now that the Rembrandt—"

"It is safe for the afternoon," Christabel laughed. "It is generally when the family is dining that the burglar has his busy time. A pleasant ride to you."

CHAPTER XXVI.

'An Unexpected Guest.

Lord Littimer returned, as he declared, with the spirits and appetite of a schoolboy. All the same, he did not for one moment abandon his usual critical analysis. He rattled on gaily, but he was studying his guest all the same. She might have been the typical American lady student; but he was not blind to the fact that the plain, muslin and lace frock she wore was made in Paris, or that her manners and style must have been picked up in the best society. She sat there under the shaded lights and behind the bank of flowers like as to the manner born, and her accent was only sufficiently American to render her conversation piquant.

"You have always been used to this class of life?" Littimer asked.

"There you are quite mistaken," Christabel said, coolly. "For the last few years my existence has been anything but a bed of roses. And your remark, my lord, savors slightly of impertinent curiosity. I might as well ask you why your family is not here."

"We agreed to differ," Littimer responded. "I recollect it caused me a great deal of annoyance at the time. And my son chose to take his mother's part. You knew I had a son?"

"Yes," said Christabel, without looking up from the peach she was peeling. "I have met him."

"Indeed! And what opinion did you form of my son, may I ask?"

"I rather liked him. He seemed to me to be suffering from some great trouble, and trouble I am sure that was not of his own creating."

"Which means to say you feel rather sorry for Frank. But when you say the trouble was not of his own creating you are entirely mistaken. It is not a nice thing to say, Miss Lee, but my son was an utter and most unmitigated young scoundrel. If he came here, he would be ordered out of the house. So far as I am concerned, I have no son at all. He sides with his mother, and his mother has a considerable private fortune of her own. Where she is at present I have no idea. Nor do I care. Seems odd, does it not, that I should have been very fond of that woman at one time, just as it seems odd to think that I should have once been fond of treacle tart?"

Littimer spoke evenly and quietly, with his eyes full upon the girl. He was deceiving himself, but he was not deceiving her for a moment. His callousness seemed to be all the more marked because the servants were in the room. But Christabel could see clearly what an effort it was.

"You love your wife still," she said, so low that only Littimer heard. His eyes flashed, and his face flamed with a sudden spasm of passion.

"Are we to quarrel so early as this?" he whispered.

"I never quarrel," Christabel said, coolly; "I leave my antagonist to do that. But I have met your son, and I like him. He may be weak, but he is a gentleman. You have made a mistake, and some day you will be sorry for it. Do you grow these orchids yourself?"

Littimer laughed, with no sign of anger remaining. All the same, Christabel could see that his thin brown hand tainty. Somebody was climbing up the ivy to the window.

Leaning eagerly forward, Christabel could hear the sound of labored breathing. She seemed to see the outline of an arm outside, she could catch the quick rattle of the sash, she could almost see a bent wire crooked through the beaded edges of the casement. Yes, she was right. The window swung noiselessly back, and a figure stood poised on the ledge outside.

With a quick breath and fluttering at her heart Christabel felt for the switch.

"It will be all right," she murmured; "the other one will fancy that the light is necessary. Courage, my dear, courage, and the game is yours. Ah!"

The intruder dropped inside and pulled the window behind him. Evidently he was on familiar ground, was shaking. She noticed the lines that pain had given under those shrewd black eyes.

"You must see my orchids," he said. "Most of these specimens I obtained myself. They tell me I have at least three unique kinds. And now, if you will permit me, I am going to smoke. The drawing room is at your disposal, though I rarely enter it myself. I always retire at 11, but that need not bind you in any way. It has been altogether a most delightful evening."

But Christabel did not dally long in the drawing room. As she went up stairs and along the corridor she heard the snapping of the electric lights all over the house as the servants were preparing to retire. She paused just a moment in the alcove where the precious Rembrandt was, and located carefully the position of the switch there. Then she retired to her own room, where she changed her dress to a simple black gown. A big clock somewhere was striking 12 as she finished. She looked at the door. The whole house was in darkness, the silence seemed to cling like a curtain.

She paused for a moment, as if afraid to take the next step. If it was fear, she shook it aside resolutely and crept into the corridor. She carried something shining in her hands, something that gleamed in the dim, uncertain light from the big window. She stood, just for an instant with a feeling that somebody was climbing up the ivy outside the house. She felt her way along until she came to the alcove containing the Rembrandt, and then she stopped. Her fingers slid along the wall till her fingers touched the switch of the electric light.

She stood for a long time there perfectly motionless. It was a still night outside, and there was nothing to account for the rustling of the ivy leaves. The rattling came in jerks, spasmodically, stopping every now and then and resuming again. It was no longer a matter of imagination, it was a certainty. though he seemed to be seeking an unfamiliar object. Christabel's hand stole along to the switch; there was a click, and the alcove was clothed in brilliant light. The intruder shrank back with a startled cry. He rubbed his dazed eyes.

"Why not come in through the front door, Mr. Littimer?" Christabel drawled, coolly.

Frank Littimer had no words for a moment. He was wondering who this woman was, and what she was doing here. American, evidently, by her accent, and also by the revolver that she handled so assuredly.

"That is the way you used to enter," Christabel proceeded, "when you had been out contrary to parental instructions and the keepers expected to have a fracas with the poachers. Your bed room being exactly opposite, detection was no easy matter. Your bed room has never been touched since you left, the key is still outside the lock. Will you kindly enter it?"

"But—" Frank stammered. "But I assure you that I cannot—"

"Take the Rembrandt away. You cannot. The frame is of iron, and it is fastened to the wall. It would take an experienced carpenter quite a long time to remove it. Therefore, your mission has failed. It is very annoying, because it puts the other man in a very awkward position. The position is going to be still more awkward presently. Please go to your room."

"My dear lady, if my father knows that I am in the house—"

"He is not going to know that you are in the house, at least not for some little time. And when you see him it will be better not to say more than is necessary. Later on you will recognize what a friend I am to you."

"You are not showing it at present," Littimer said, desperately.

"The patient rarely sees any virtue in his medicine. Now, please go to your room. I can hear the other man muttering and getting anxious down below. Now, if you approach that window again, I am pretty certain that my revolver will go off. You see, I am an American, and we are so careless with such weapons. Please go to your room at once."

"And if I refuse your ridiculous request?"

"You will not find my request in the least ridiculous. If you refuse I shall hold you up with my weapon and alarm the whole house. But I don't want to do that, for the sake of the other man. He is so very respectable, you know, and anything unconventional may be so awkward for him. Yes, it is just as I expected. He is coming up the ivy to investigate himself. Go!"

The revolver covered Littimer quite steadily. He could see into the blue rim, and he was conscious of strange, cold sensations down his spine. A revolver is not a pretty thing at the best of times; it is doubly hazardous in the hands of a woman.

"What do you want with me?" he asked.

"My dear man, I want to do nothing with you. Only do as you are told and —there! The other man is coming up the ivy. He can't understand the light, and you not returning. He imagines that you are looking in the wrong place. Please go."

Littimer backed before the weapon, backed until he was in the doorway. Suddenly the girl gave him a push, shut the door to and turned the key in the lock. Almost at the same moment another figure loomed large in the window frame.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Slightly Farcical.

Something bulky was struggling to get through the window. Half-hidden in the shadow, Christabel watched with the deepest interest. If she had been afraid at first, that sensation had entirely departed by this time. From the expression of her face, she might have been enjoying the novel situation. It was certainly not without a suggestion of the farcical.

The burly figure contrived to squeeze through the narrow casement at length, and stood breathing loudly in the corridor. It was not a pleasant sight that met Christabel's gaze—a big man, with a white, set face and rolling eyes and a stiff bandage about his throat. Evidently the intruder was utterly exhausted, for he dropped into a chair and nursed his head between his hands.

"Now, what has become of that fool?" he muttered. "Ah!"

He looked around him uneasily, but his expression changed as his eyes fell on the Rembrandt. He had the furtive look of a starving man who picks up a purse while the owner is still in sight. He staggered toward the picture and endeavored to take it gently from its support. He tried again and again, and then, in a paroxysm of rage tore at the frame work.

"I guess that can't be done," Christabel said, drawlingly. "See, stranger?"

Reginald Henson fairly gasped. As he turned round the ludicrous mixture of cunning and confusion, anger and vexatious alarm on his face, caused the girl to smile.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered.

"I said it can't be done," the girl drawled, coolly. "Sandow couldn't do it. The frame is made of iron, and is fixed to the wall with four long stays. It's a neat job, though I say it myself. I persuaded Lord Littimer to have it done. And when I heard you two prowling about down there I was glad. I've got the other one safe."

"Oh, you've got the other one safe?" Henson said, blankly.

He would like to have burst into a torrent of passion, only he recognized his position. The thing was shamefully funny. It was anything but nice for a man of his distinguished position to be detected in an act suspiciously like vulgar burglary. Still, there must be some plausible way out of the difficulty, if he could only think of it. Only this girl, with the quaint, pretty face and spectacles did not look in the least like a fool. He would have to try what blandishments would do.

"Are you aware who I am?" he asked, blandly.

"What does it matter? I've got the other one, and no doubt he will be identified by the police. If he doesn't say too much he may get off with a light sentence. It is quite easy to see that you are the greater scoundrel of the two."

"My dear young lady, do you actually take me for a burglar?"

There was a note of deep pain in Henson's voice. He had dropped into a chair again, with a feeling of utter weakness upon him. The girl's resolute mien and the familiar way in which she handled her revolver filled him with the deepest apprehension.

"I am a very old friend and relative of Lord Littimer's," he said.

"Oh, indeed! And is the other man a relative of Lord Littimer's, also?"

"Oh, why, confound it, yes. The other man, as you call him, is Lord Littimer's only son."

"Christabel glanced at Henson, not without admiration.

"Well, you are certainly a cool hand," she said. "You are two clever thieves who have come here for the express purpose of robbing Lord Littimer of one of his art treasures. I happen to catch one, and he immediately becomes the son of the owner of the place. I am so fortunate as to bag the other bird, and he resolves himself into a relative of my host's. And you really expect me to believe a Hans Andersen fairy story like this?"

"I admit that appearances are against me," Henson said, humbly. "But I am speaking the truth."

"Oh, indeed. Then why didn't you come in through the front door? The violent exercise you were taking just now must be dangerous to a man of your build."

"I am afraid I shall have to make a clean breast of it," Henson said, with what he fondly imagined to be an engaging smile. "You may, perhaps, be aware that yonder Rembrandt has a history. It was stolen from its present owner once, and I have always said that it would be stolen again. Many a time I have urged Lord Littimer to make it secure."

"How grateful you should be to me for having done so!"

"Ah, you are cynical, still, which is a bad thing for one so young and—er—charming. I came down here to see my very noble relative, and his son accompanied me. I came to try and make peace between father and son. But that is a family matter which, forgive me, I cannot discuss with a stranger. Our train was late, or we should have been here long ago. On reaching the castle it struck me as a good idea to give Lord Littimer a lesson on his carelessness. My idea was to climb through the window, abstract the Rembrandt and slip quietly into my usual bed room here. Then, in the morning, after the picture had been missed, I was going to tell the whole story. That is why Mr. Littimer entered this way, and why I followed when I found that he had failed to return. It was a foolish thing to do, and the denouement has been most humiliating. I assure you that is all."

"Not quite," Christabel drawled. "There is something else."

"And what may that be, my dear young lady?"

"To tell your story to Lord Littimer before you sleep. That kind of romance may do for Great Britain, but it would not make good family reading in the States."

"But, my dear young lady, I beg of you, I implore you—"

"Come off the grass! I'm to let you go quietly to bed, and retire myself, so that when morning arrives you will be missing together with as much plunder as you can carry away. No, sir!"

Henson advanced, angrily. His prudence had gone for the time. As he came down upon Christabel she raised her revolver and fired two shots in quick succession over Henson's shoulder. The noise went echoing and reverberating along the corridor like a crackling of thunder. A door came open with a click, and then a voice demanded to know what was wrong.

"Now, I guess the fat is in the fire," Christabel said.

Henson dropped into a chair and groaned. Lord Littimer, elegantly attired in a suit of silk pyjamas and carrying a revolver in his hand, came coolly down the corridor. A curious servant or two would have followed, but he waved them back, crisply.

"Miss Lee," he said, with a faint, sarcastic emphasis, "and my dear friend and relative, Reginald Henson—Reginald, the future owner of Littimer Castle!"

"So he told me, but I wouldn't believe him," said Christabel.

"It is a cynical age," Littimer remarked. "Reginald, what does this mean?"

Henson shook his head uneasily.

"The young lady insisted on taking me for a burglar," he groaned.

"And why not?" Christabel demanded. "I was just going to bed when I heard voices in the fore court below and footsteps creeping along. I came into the corridor with my revolver. Presently, one of the men climbed up the ivy and got into the corridor. I covered him with my revolver and fairly drove him into a bed room and locked him in."

"So you killed with both barrels?" Littimer cried, with infinite enjoyment.

"Then the other one came. He came to steal the Rembrandt."

"Nothing of the kind," the wretched Henson cried. "I came to give you a lesson, Lord Littimer. My idea was to get in through the window, steal the Rembrandt, and when you had missed it, confess the whole story. My character is safe."

"Giddy," Littimer said, reproachfully. "You are so young, so boyish, so buoyant, Reginald. What would your future constituents have said had they seen you creeping up the ivy? They are a grave people, who take themselves seriously. Egad, this would be a lovely story for one of those prying society papers, 'The Philanthropist and the Picture.' I've a good mind to send it to the press myself."

Littimer sat down and laughed with pure enjoyment.

"And where is the other partridge?" he asked, presently.

Christabel seemed to hesitate for a moment. Her sense of humor of the situation had departed. Her hand shook as she turned the key in the door.

"I am afraid you are going to have an unpleasant surprise," Henson said.

Littimer glanced keenly at the speaker. All the laughter died out of his eyes; his face grew set and stern as Frank Littimer emerged into the light.

"And what are you doing here?" he asked, hoarsely. "What do you expect to gain by taking part in a fool's trick like this? Did I not tell you never to show your face here again?"

The young man said nothing. He stood there looking down, dogged, quiet, like one tongue-tied. Littimer thundered out his question again. He crossed over, laying his hands on his son's shoulders and shaking him as a terrier might shake a rat.

"Did you come for anything?" he demanded. "Did you expect any mercy from—"

"Frank Littimer shook off his grasp gently. He looked up for the first time.

"I expected nothing," he said. "I—I did not come of my own free will. I am silent now, for the sake of myself and others. But the time may come—God knows it has been long delayed. For the present, I am bound in honor to hold my tongue."

He flashed one little glance at Henson, a long, angry glance. Littimer looked from one to the other in hesitation for a moment. The hard lines between his brows softened.

"Perhaps I am wrong," he muttered. "Perhaps there has been a mistake somewhere. And if I ever find out I have—pshaw! I am talking like a sentimental schoolgirl. Have I not had evidence strong as proof of Holy Writ? Get out of my sight! Your presence angers me! Go, and never let me see you again! Reginald, you were a fool to bring that boy here to-night! See him off the premises and fasten the door again."

"Surely," Christabel interfered, "surely, at this time of night—"

"You should be in bed," Littimer said, tartly. "My dear young lady, if you and I are to remain friends, I must ask you to mind your own business. It is a dreadfully difficult thing for a woman to do, but you must try. You understand?"

Christabel was evidently putting a strong constraint upon her tongue, but she merely bowed and said nothing. She had her own good reasons for the diplomacy of silence. Henson and Frank Littimer were disappearing in the direction of the staircase.

"I say nothing," Christabel said. "But, at the same time, don't fancy I shall care very much for your distinguished friend, Reginald Henson."

Littimer smiled. All his good-humor seemed to have returned to him. Only the dark lines under his eyes were accentuated.

"A slimy, fawning hound," he whispered. "A mean fellow. And the best of it is that he imagines that I hold the highest regard for him. Good-night."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Squire of Dames.

A little later, and Christabel sat before her looking glass with her lovely hair about her shoulders. The glasses were gone and her magnificent eyes gleamed and sparkled.

"Good night's work," she said, to her smiling reflection. "Now the danger is passed, and now that I am away from that dreadful house I feel a different being. Strange what a difference a few hours has made! I hardly need my disguise—even at this moment I believe that Enid would not recognize me. She will be pleased to know that her telegram came in so usefully. Well, here I am, and I don't fancy that anybody will recognize Christabel Lee and Chris Henson for one and the same person."

She sat there brushing her hair and letting her thoughts drift along idly over the events of the evening. Reginald Henson would have felt less easy in his mind had he known what those thoughts were. Up to now that oily scoundrel hugged himself with the delusion that nobody besides Frank Littimer and himself knew that the second copy of "The Crimson Blind" had passed into Bell's possession.

But Chris was quite aware of the fact. And Chris, as Chris was supposed by Henson to be dead and buried, and was, therefore, to play her cards as she pleased. Up to now it seemed to her that she had played them very well, indeed. A cipher telegram from Longdean had warned her that Henson was coming there, had given her more than a passing hint what Henson required, and her native wit had told her why Henson was after the Rembrandt.

Precisely why he wanted the picture, she had not discovered yet. But she knew that she would before long. And she knew, also, that Henson would try and obtain the print without making his presence at Littimer castle obvious. He was bringing Frank Littimer along, and was, therefore, going to use the young man in some cunning way.

That Henson would try and get into the castle surreptitiously Chris had felt from the first. Once he did so, the rest would be easy, as he knew exactly where to lay his hands on the picture. Therefore, he would have no better time than the dead of night. If his presence were betrayed, he could turn the matter aside as a joke, and trust to his native wit later on. If he had obtained the picture by stealth, he would have discreetly disappeared, covering his tracks as he retreated.

Still, it had all fallen out very fortunately. Henson had been made to look ridiculous; he had been forced to admit that he was giving Littimer a lesson over the Rembrandt, and though the thing appeared innocent enough on the surface, Chris was sanguine, later on, that she could bring this up as evidence against him.

"So far so good," she told herself. "Watch, watch, watch, and act when the time comes. But it was hard to meet Frank to-night and be able to say nothing. And how abjectly miserable he looked! Well, let us hope that the good time is coming."

Chris was up betimes in the morning and out on the terrace. She felt no further uneasiness on the score of the disguise now. Henson was certain to be inquisitive, it was a part of his nature, but he was not going to learn anything. Chris smiled as she saw Henson lumbering towards her. He seemed all the better for his night's rest.

"The roses bloom early," he said, gallantly. "Let me express the hope that you have quite forgiven me the fright I gave you last night."

(To be Continued.)

Odd or Even?

An incident which casts a very clear light on one side of the characteristics of the Western steel "magnates" and their bravado carelessness over money, occurred in an up-town hotel the other night. It occurred in the cafe, of course.

"John," said one, throwing a bill down —they are always John and Tom to one another—"John, what is it, odd or even?"

"Odd," was the nonchalant reply. The bill was picked up. It was a note for $500.

"I don't believe I have the cash with me, Frank, said the loser. He drew a roll of bills from his pocket, and, finding he had more than he expected, extracted one for $500 and handed it over to him. No more was said on the matter, and the interrupted thread of conversation was picked up.—New York Post.

New York's Real Rulers.

Count Matsukata, the former premier of Japan, during his trip through the financial district on Tuesday, expressed amazement at the physical greatness of the city; but when the Japanese consul general, Yasnoske Chki, took the statesman of the Flowery Kingdom to the city hall to present him to Mayor Low, the count was perplexed.

"Is this where the great city is governed?" he inquired.

Told that it was, he looked at the big buildings which dwarf the city hall, and inquired:

"How does a government so humbly housed command obedience? In Washington your capitol embodies the majesty of the nation. But here your government sits at the feet of giants. Are not the lords of these great palaces, pointing to the sky-scrapers, the real rulers here?"—New York Times.

Mrs. Lewis' Gifts to Charity.

Few people in England or elsewhere do as much in the cause of charity as Mrs. "Sam" Lewis, upon whom the sultan of Turkey, not long ago, conferred a decoration, in recognition of her remarkable liberality to the destitute of all faiths who are living in his capital. There is scarcely a field of charitable endeavor in which Mrs. Lewis does not figure, either as a giver or as a worker, or as both. When the organizing committee of the King Edward hospital fund published its last report, the list of announced contributors contained Mrs. Lewis' name conspicuously published opposite a quarterly subscription of £2,500. Fifty thousand dollars a year to one charity is liberal giving, indeed.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Superstition Hard to Kill.

For more than a millenium England has been a Christian nation, yet in the museum at Oxford we see images bristling with rusty nails and needles, which demonstrate the late survival of a belief in sympathetic magic in the rural communities whence these objects come. Within the university itself I secured a dessicated specimen of a familiar vegetable which an officer of one of the colleges had carried for years as a preventive of rheumatism. Neither centuries of enlightenment nor the revolutionary changes of this progressive age have exterminated such beliefs. They even adapt themselves to the new conditions, as in the case of the lady living within the shadow of the walls of Harvard university, who maintains that carbons from arc lamps are a sure preventive of neuralgia!—Journal of American Folk-Lore.

In one of the Philadelphia colleges, a professor of chemistry asked a student the other day:

"Now, suppose you were called to a patient who had swallowed a heavy dose of oxalic acid, what would you administer?"

"I would administer the sacrament," replied the student, who, by the way, is said to be studying for the ministry, and taking chemistry because it is

Their Words Stuck.

When Mark Twain was in Egypt, he one day arranged with a friend to meet him at one of the pyramids. The latter engaged two old but experienced Arabs to guide him to the place. He afterwards complained that, although he had some knowledge of the native language, he could not understand anything that his guide had said to him.

"You should have hired younger men," Mr. Clemens told him. "These toothless old fellows talk only gum-Arabic."—New York Times.

Taking It Literally.

One day while Pat was walking along the street he caught sight of the bill, "Apartments Furnished," whereupon he boldly knocked at the door.

It was opened by the landlady in person, and the following conversation took place:

"Phat would you furnish my room for?" asked Pat.

"Furnish your room for?" said the landlady. "What do you mean?"

"Why, you've got 'Apartments Furnished' in your windows," said Pat.

"Well, that means that I've got a room to let already furnished," and she slammed the door in his face, leaving him to think it over.—London Spare Moments.

What Might Have Been.

Sonoma, Mich., July 21st.—Mr. Delos Hutchins of this place says: "If I could have had Dodd's Kidney Pills 25 years ago I would not now be crippled as I am."

Mr. Hutchins spent from 1861 to 1864 in the swamps of Louisiana as a Northern soldier, and with the result that he contracted Rheumatism which gave him much pain till Mr. Fred Parker, the local druggist, advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first two boxes did not seem to help him very much, but Mr. Parker, knowing that Dodd's Kidney Pills would eventually cure him, pressed Mr. Hutchins to continue, and by the time four boxes were used, the short, sharp, shooting pains which had tortured his back, hip and legs, were entirely gone. Mr. Hutchins says: "I cannot tell you how much better I am feeling. If it were not for the way my hands, feet and knees are drawn out of shape, I would be about as good as ever."

Settled.

Jenks—Haven't you and that neighboring farmer settled your differences yet?

Farmer Akers—No; but our lawyers have settled.

Jenks—Settled? How?

Farmer Akers—On our farms.—Catholic Standard.

ITCHING SKIN DISEASES.

Eczema, Tetter, Eruptions and torturing skin diseases are quickly relieved and permanently cured by Cole's Carbolisalve. Your money back if not satisfactory. Always get Cole's. 25 and 50 cents, by all druggists.

Not the Usual Way.

"Yes; he's going to marry the girl who used to work for him. Think of it!"

"Well, what of it? Most men marry a girl, and let her work for him afterward."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years, according to the ability of the student. ST. EDWARD'S HALL, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-eight years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

The Appropriate Vehicle.

"She seems to be a stickler for doing everything appropriately."

"I should say so; she always does her marketing in a basket phaeton."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets, St. Paul or Minneapolis, to all points west, including Montana and Washington, on the first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, 1902. Rate, one fare for the round trip.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Artists and poets frequently get their high ideals by living up close to the roof.

WE WANT YOUR TRADE
You can buy of us at wholesale prices and save money. Our 1,000-page catalogue tells the story. We will send it upon receipt of 15 cents. Your neighbors trade with us—why not you?
Montgomery Ward & Co.
CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

The Arraignment

Why curse your fate for what your hand has done?
Who shook the glass and made the swift sands run
Yet swifter still? Who mocked the warning sage
And dashed aside the kindly hand of age?
Who is to blame?

Whose was the hand so prodigally wide
Sowed the wild oats which now at harvest tide
Await the reaping and the garn'ring in
The fruits of folly and alluring sin?
Who is to blame?

Who placed the blight upon the brow of youth,
Flung jeers at virtue, ribaldry at truth?
Who drowned sweet reason in the fiery drink
Till it went gibb'ring to the Lethe's brink?
Who is to blame

Who is to blame that you, a broken slave,
Gaze hopeless, old, into an open grave
With staring eyes that no salvation see
Down the long vistas of eternity?
Who is to blame?

A Talisman of Brass.

BY GLENN ROY McCLINTOCK.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

An old log house, stuck on the slope of a West Virginia hill, and a cornfield, which looked as though it might, at any time, slip off into the valley below, was the heritage which fell to Sarah McCoy and her daughter Elizabeth upon the death of the husband and father, Henry Stonewall McCoy. Had his bequest been of a more pretentious nature Elizabeth and Jim Gardner, long since betrothed, would not, in all probability, have been sitting on the worn stoop gloomily trying to figure out a means to circumvent the difficulties that enthralled their matrimonial hopes.

The beauty of the night did not appeal to them. The sea of moonlight and the mystic shadows below them, the humble family burying ground in its depths, from which arose a shaft of spectral white marble, were all stern reality; an unproductive valley, a grave yard in which father, grandfather and great-grandfather lie buried, a bit of marble that represented the savings of years.

The notes of a whip-poor-will floating across the hills, the answering call of its mate, from the distance, bore no sentiment or romance to them. They were the discordant cries of a very ordinary bird.

"Liz?" without looking around.

"What is it, Jim?" after a pause. Another wait and then:

"When be we a goin' to get married?"—pause somewhat longer—"if we ever be?"

The long silence following is broken only by the chirping of the crickets until:

"Does seem as though me and you've been a powerful long time a gettin' married" (another pause), "Don't it, Jim?"

More silence.

"Liz?"

"What Jim?" Short pause, and then:

"I be goin' away." More silence.

"Where be you goin', Jim?" Presently he answered:

"To the Ohio river. I've hearn tell that folks is gettin' rich findin' oil out there."

"When d'ye 'low to go?" after an interval.

"T'morrow."

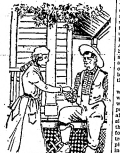
"No tellin' when you'll be back, I s'pose?"

"I 'low not." Long silence again.

"Jim?"

"What?"

"Take this with you," and she drew from the pocket of her homespun a



"Take this with you."

brass button, that had graced the rebel uniform once worn by her father, and handed it to him. He took it slowly and holding it in the palm of his hand examined it curiously.

"What's it for, Liz?"

"It's a tal-talisman."

The blank look on his face showed that she had propounded a mystery that was too much for him to solve. She divined this and after a silence added:

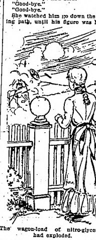
"It means good luck." (Pause.) "I read about it in a book, once."

He shuffled to his feet, took a couple of steps and said:

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

She watched him go down the winding path, until his figure was lost in



The wagon-load of nitro-glycerine had exploded.

the rising fog from the valley below, then turned slowly and disappeared into the house.

In the course of three years the oil industry in West Virginia had assumed unthought-of proportions and the Standard Oil Company had begun to extend its operations into the interior of the state. Farms that could have been bought before for two dollars an acre were bringing thousands and were eagerly sought at those prices. The oil belt, extending southeasterly, was thought to cross the farm owned by Liz and her mother. An eastern syndicate, having paid them a big price for an oil-lease and allowed a royalty, had erected a derrick and the clanging of the jars was now heard in the near-by corn-field.

It had never occurred to Liz that her lover would not return. She knew he would and was content to wait. When the day arrived on which the well was to be shot she was filled with an inexplicable feeling that a crisis was at hand. The "shooter" had been ordered from Wheeling and would arrive some time that afternoon. She resolved to watch for him as her view, from the cabin, commanded the road up the valley over which he must come. Presently her vigilance was rewarded. A stout wagon, drawn by two tired horses, appeared on the road from around the base of a hill. She could see the driver urging his jaded beasts over the rough, broken road until a bend in its course, and a thicket, hid them from view.

He did not reappear and she was wondering if an accident had occurred when, from the very spot she was watching, a shaft of dirt, stones and parts of a buggy shot high into the air, followed immediately by an explosion so loud and terrific that it seemed the hills must be torn from their rock foundations. The wagon-load of treacherous nitro-glycerine had exploded, an occurrence not uncommon in the oil-fields.

As she sat, dazed and bewildered, watching the flying debris fall to the earth, an object dropped at her feet. She stooped and picked it up—a brass button, blackened and bent.

That evening Liz discerned a familiar figure approaching the house. She did not move from her seat on the stoop, but, as it drew near, said quietly:

"Hello, Jim."

"Hello, Liz."

"When did ye get back?"

"T'day."

"Jim?"

"What?"

"Here's yer button."

"Thank ye." (Pause.) "'Lowed I'd lost it. Left my coat on the wagon seat while I went to water the horses. Bin in my coat pocket 'bout three years now."

A long silence.

"'Low we kin marry now, Liz."

"'Low we kin." Another pause, and then:

"When?"

"T'morrow, I 'low."

"All right. Good-night, Liz."

"Good-night, Jim."

BOYS AND GIRLS OF CUBA.

Question of Providing Schooling for Half a Million.

Where and how shall the 500,000 children of school age in Cuba be provided for, where there is only room and teachers for 180,000? If we could reach the ears of the mothers of the 80,000,000 of people of the great and powerful nation to the north, whose children are all comfortably clothed and provided with a snug little desk in the hundreds of thousands of school buildings where education is as free as air, we would ask them to come here and watch the faces of these uncared-for waifs as they see their more fortunate fellows go by with their satchel or packet of books on their way to school, as the writer has done. We are sure they would be deeply moved. If their thoughts could be portrayed in words as their feelings are upon their faces, they would wring tears from a stone image.

Surely, if the truth of the condition of these 320,000 children could be brought to the minds of these mothers, some action would be taken, some movement set on foot by which this moral tragedy could be brought to an end. For 300 years it has shrouded the greater part of the people of these islands in mental darkness. In the name of God and humanity may it now terminate!

Surely some public movement might be set on foot and money raised by subscription, even if it cannot be supplied by act of Congress. Some of the Rockefellers or Carnegies, who are endowing colleges and public libraries with their millions, might be persuaded to take a little interest in these forsaken, neglected little boys and girls who are now only able to hopelessly and sadly look at the outside of a schoolhouse, and who, unless times quickly change for the better on this island, are doomed to grow up in ignorance and vice, and be added to the illiterate class which three years ago comprised about 95 per cent of the inhabitants.—Cuban Agriculturist.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

Of the Deathlike Stillness Following the Stopping of a Clock at Night.

"Ever hear a clock stop in the middle of the night?" said the retired burglar. "I did, once, and I never was much more scared by anything, for a minute, in my life.

"I'd just picked up a watch that was layin' on the top of a bureau in a house that I was in when all of a sudden there seemed to drop right down, somehow, a stillness that was like death; and I found myself standing there holding that watch and looking around in the dark in all directions expecting something terrible to happen; and scared?

"Why, for a minute I was scared almost out of my senses. And then all of a sudden it struck me that a clock I'd been hearing ticking away good and strong up to that minute in the room back of the one I was in had stopped.

"That's all, but that was enough for me, and I just slid out.

"I like a quiet house, but I don't like one with that kind of stillness in it; and then, sometimes folks are woke up by a clock stopping just about as quick as they could be by the firing of a gun."

Clever Trick Did Not Work.

A printer on one of the Philadelphia morning newspapers recently took a "night off" in a small game of poker and finished a winner by $15. When he cashed he received his money in "cart-wheels." He knew his wife was not averse to searching his pockets when he slept late o' mornings; and, fearing the jingle of the silver pieces would lead her into temptation, he slipped a dollar under the carpeting of each step as he climbed the stairs to his bedroom. When he arose for breakfast and dressed he remembered his precaution on home-coming, and quietly chuckled as he prepared to make a profitable descent to breakfast. As he stopped on the landing in front of his bedroom door his shoes rang out on bare boards, and, glancing down, he saw the stairs stripped of carpet. His wife had begun her spring house-cleaning.

Their Opinions of Royalty.

When I first went to London, says Julian Ralph, I used to question the people about their feelings toward their rulers—the plain people, I mean, as I met them on the omnibuses and here and there. They always said that the old queen was a saint and "almost too good to be true," as it were. Of the prince they said: "Oh, 'e's all right. 'E's a fine man, 'e is; a 'ard workin', straightforward man who 'as 'ad a lot of abuse wot he don't deserve and a deal of patience a-waitin' to come to the throne." And then I would ask what they thought of the present queen. The reply usually was: "She: Why, she's a perfect hangel."

"Why does everyone call her an angel?"

"Why? On account of what she's ad to put up with from 'er 'usband, to be sure."

PELVIC CATARRH CAUSES
Palpitation of the Heart, Cold Hands and Feet, Sinking Feelings—Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. X. Schneider.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably, not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great catarrhal tonic Peruna. Congressman Crowley says:

"Mrs. Crowley has taken a number of bottles of Peruna on account of nervous troubles. It has proven a strong tonic and lasting cure. I can cheerfully recommend it."—J. B. Crowley.

A catarrh book sent free by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Discounted.

First American Boy—My papa lives like a prince.

Second American Boy—That's nothing. My papa lives like the pesident of a trust.—Detroit Free Press.

BURNS BUT NO SCARS.

Think what that means. No matter how bad the burn or scald, Cole's Carbolisalve will quickly stop the pain and cure without scars. Always get Cole's. There is nothing made that is as good. 25 and 50 cents, by all druggists and dealers in medicines.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

Notre Dame, Ind.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy which apears in another column of this paper. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the same high standard as that of Vassar and Bryn Mawr, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher at St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of classic conditions—all these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.

Where Charity Begins.

"How much did you realize from that play you gave for charity?"

"We hadn't a cent left over."

"Why, you had a splendid house."

"I know; but the committee realized that charity begins at home, and they couldn't possibly have found actors any poorer than ours."—Philadelphia Press.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of the throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

Beat His Wife.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—You say he beat his wife with a club?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Several clubs.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—The monster.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Oh, I don't know. You see, he beat her at golf!—Yonkers Statesman.

Homeseekers' Tickets to the West.

Homeseekers can buy excursion tickets via the Great Northern Railway, to points in Manitoba, Montana, Washington and the West, at about one fare for the round trip, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October. Tickets and information from all Railway Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Then and Now.

Mrs. Growells—The idea of your calling me a goose! When you were courting me you said I was an angel.

Growells—Well, suppose I did? What is the use of twitting a man about the lies he told three years ago?—Chicago News.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75 cents

Arrival and Escape.

Critic—Well, Dick, I suppose you owe all that you are to your wife?

Successful Author—No; I think I owe about three-fourths of my stimulus to all those other women who wouldn't have me.—Detroit Free Press.

Didn't Harmonize.

"Haven't you read that lovely new novel?" asked the first summer girl.

"No," replied the other. "The only edition of it I've seen has a horrid yellow cover that doesn't accord with any of my gowns."—Philadelphia Press.

Round Trip Homeseekers' Excursions to the West.

The Great Northern Railway sells homeseekers' tickets to Manitoba, Montana, Washington and all points in the West, on first and third Tuesdays of July, August, September and October, at rate of about one fare for the round trip.

Information from all Ticket Agents, or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul.

Different.

Cholly—May Gabble tells me you said Gussie Gayboy and I would never find any girls to marry us because we are too fastidious.

Miss Pepperey—There was a slight misunderstanding there. I said you were "two fast idiots."—Philadelphia Press.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, Specialist,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

Her Class.

Mollie—Your're fond of fruit?

Chollie—Oh, yes; and I'm looking for a "peach," with a lot of money.

"I wouldn't call a girl with a lot of money a peach."

"What would you call her?"

"A plum."—Yonkers Statesman.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Noble C. Darrow, Minneapolis, Minn., typewriting machine; August Gruenwald, Columbia, S. D., chair grace; Charles Sowden, Asin, Mont., automatic threshold; Henry E. Way, Custer, S. D., ore-testing tablet; Frederick Whitehead, Butte, Mont., water attachment for power drills.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Weigh your friends in the scale of prosperity and they will be found wanting—to borrow your money.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

Work is a great thing to keep a man's mind off his troubles, unless work happens to be his trouble.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

No matter how many cook books a bride owns, she keeps right on cooking things the way her mother taught her.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL FOR HEADACHE
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT.

Cole's Carbolisalve
The Great Skin Remedy
will stop the pain of burns and scalds at once and there will be no scar. Don't wait until someone gets burned but keep a box handy. 25 and 50 cents by all druggists.

IF CLAIMANTS FOR PENSION write to NATHAN BICKFORD, Washington, D. C., they will receive quick replies. B. 5th N. H. Vols. Staff 20th Corps. Prosecuting Claims since 1878.

Pair Lace Curtains FREE with 12 cakes Cream Complexion Toilet Soap. $1 per 12 cakes. Kerrigan & Co., 477 Bowen Ave., Chicago, Ill.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 & $3.50 SHOES UNION MADE
W. L. Douglas shoes are worn by more men in all stations of life than any other make, because they are the only shoes that in every way equal those costing $5.00 and $6.00.
W. L. DOUGLAS $4 SHOES CANNOT BE EXCELLED.
1899 sales, 1st 6 months, $1,103,820! 1902 sales, 1st 6 months, $2,340,000
Best imported and American leathers, Heyl's Patent Calf, Enamel, Box Calf, Calf, Vici Kid, Corona Colt, Nat. Kangaroo. Fast Color Eyelets used.
Caution! The genuine have W. L. DOUGLAS name and price stamped on bottom.
Shoes by mail, 25c. extra. Illus. Catalog free.
W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASS.

EDUCATIONAL.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
FULL COURSES IN Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.
Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses.
Rooms Free to all students who have completed the studies required for admission into the Junior or Senior Year of any of the Collegiate Courses.
Rooms to Rent, moderate charge to students over seventeen preparing for Collegiate Courses.
A limited number of Candidates for the Ecclesiastical state will be received at special rates.
St. Edward's Hall, for boys under 13 years, is unique in the completeness of its equipment.
The 59th Year will open September 9, 1902.
Catalogues free. Address
REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
(One mile west of the University of Notre Dame.)
Thorough English and Classical Education, including Greek, Latin, French and German. On completing the full course of studies, students receive the Regular Collegiate Degrees.
The Conservatory of Music is conducted on the plan of the best Classical Conservatories of Europe.
The Art Department is modelled after the best Art Schools of Europe.
Preparatory and Minim Departments. Pupils are here carefully prepared for the Academic and Advanced Courses. Gymnasium under direction of Graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Bookkeeping, Phonography and Typewriting extra. Every variety of Fancy Needlework taught. For catalogue address
DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,
St. Mary's Academy, Notre Dame P. O. Indiana

St. John's University,
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

BOYS WHO MAKE MONEY
In a dainty little booklet, 25 out of some 3000 bright boys tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business outside of school hours. Interesting stories of real business tact.
We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. If you want to try it, address
BOYS' DEPARTMENT
The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia

GOOD THINGS TO EAT
From Libby's famous hygienic kitchens. We employ a chef who is an expert in making
LIBBY'S
Natural Flavor Food Products
We don't practice economy here. He uses the very choicest materials. A supply on your pantry shelves enables you to have always at hand the essentials for the very best meals.
LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY
CHICAGO, U. S. A.
Write for our booklet "How to Make Good Things to Eat."

ESTABLISHED 1879.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

As the date of the primary election approaches it becomes more apparent that Ezra G. Valentine will be the successful aspirant for the congressional nomination.

Word comes from Bemidji to the effect that County Attorney Street will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator in this congressional district.

The News will wager its reputation as a prophet upon the statement that Ezra G. Valentine will have clean majority over all candidates combined for congressman in Red Lake county.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette reports that there is a great deal of opposition to the fusion of the Democrats and Populists on the county ticket in the southern part of the county. It is the same all over the county.

The following from Wheelock's Weekly, published in Fergus Falls, states the situation in Otter Tail county:

One of the most common items in township correspondence this summer is: "Hon. Ezra Valentine was in town yesterday." Hon. Ezra is making the days count before the Republican primaries. We predict he will land the nomination for congress

The congressional canvass is rapidly developing the fact that the main contestants are to be Steenerson in the northern and Valentine in the southern part of the district. These two stand out in relief on the political stage with Grindeland, Comstock and Smith in the back ground. Steenerson and Valentine are the two men whose long residence and prominence before the people in professional life and business capacity brings them into the lime light of the political stage. A careful survey of the field especially in the northern part of state, shows that the other candidates have friends, and from the fact of his residence in that portion of the district Andrew Grindeland has more than either Valentine or Comstock. But the voters are rapidly coming to the belief that the real fight is as stated between Steenerson and Valentine and those who have been friendly to Mr. Grindeland, are turning, and will continue turn to to Mr. Steenerson as their second choice, as they have a pride in naming a congressman from the northern part of the district and are coming to believe that with him they can win out at the primaries. --Crookston Journal.

The Republicans in this section who are supporting Grindeland, will never go to Steenerson. in fact many of them state openly that they will not vote for Steenerson if he secures the nomination. If they desert Grindeland they will be found in the Valentine column.

Advertised Letters.

Brudvick, Nels K.
Ishister, Joe
Johnson, Miss Mary
Sir, T. (or P.)
Halvorsen Augustine D.
Jonson, Lars
Milan, Jos.
Soenmsen, Lars

FROM TIME TO TIME

something has been said here about our clock. This is one of the times when a few more words will be appropriate.

Time is cheap, so to speak. We are offering a lot of excellent CLOCKS at very reasonable prices. Every kind of clock is here, from the bustling little alarm to the dignified and handsome marbleized Iron Mantle clock with its musical Cathedral Gong.

All these clocks are made in the foremost factories and are accurate time keepers.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Town Tales.

Wm. Lennon was in the city the first of the week.

Robert Morrison came up from Detroit last week.

M. K. Wall was down to Red Lake Falls Monday.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dibble Monday.

Matt Hughs was down to Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hanson Monday.

Chas. W. Wilson left last week for Winnipeg on business.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. Panek last Saturday.

Herman Koefod went up to Breese the first of the week.

Hugh Dean came down from the Red Lake country last week.

County Attorney Grady was in the city the first of the week.

L. J. Higgans went up to the Red Lake the first of the week.

Ira C Richardson was down to Crookston the first of the week.

R. B. Vining was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Joseph Smith was up from Crookston the first of the week.

A. P. Kirsch, of Crookston, was in the city the first of the week.

Wiley Tindolph was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Martin Mossefin was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Herman Gruel came down from the Red Lake country last week.

Mrs. Kretzschmar spent Sunday in Red Lake Falls visiting friends.

K. J. Weeks and John Burke were down to St. Hilaire yesterday.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

D. N. Winton and J. G. Ballard were down to Red Lake Falls Monday.

Nels K. Nelson was in the city the first of the week from Germantown.

H. W. Lee was a business visitor in Crookston the first of the week.

A. J. Hanson, the baker, was down to Crookston the first of the week.

W. A. Shriter, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week

Grant Van Sant, a son of the governor, was in the city last Saturday.

W. C. Smiley left the first of the week for Minneapolis to visit his mother.

Reduced prices on millinery goods at B. M. Remmem's millinery store.

Chas. Hughes and Dan Patterson, of St. Hilaire, were in the city Monday evening.

H. F. Brown, the Crookston cigar manufacturer, was in the city the first of the week.

The Misses Johnston, of Minneapolis, are in the city, the guests of Mrs. C. C. Jackson.

A team belonging to Lars Rundall indulged in a lively runaway in town last Saturday.

Mrs. Leonard Peterson and daughter went down to Crookston Monday to visit relatives.

The county commissioners expect to sell the ditch bonds at the meeting held tomorrow.

A. Stenseth, wife and children went to Crookston Tuesday to visit friends for a short time.

I am prepared to pay all outstanding orders against District No. 107. E. E. Zeh, treasure.

A. L. Himle came up from Minneapolis the first of the week to look after his interests here.

W. A. McIntyre, of Red Lake Falls, candidate for judge of probate, was in the city over Sunday.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

Dave Benzie was in the city the first of the week from Park River, N. D., visiting his father and brother.

C. J. Knox went down to Crookston yesterday.

J. D. Ward was down to Crookston the first of the week on business.

J. J. Weeks and Attorney James McIntyre were down to St. Hilaire yesterday.

A lodge of the Catholic Order of Foresters, which has been organized here for some time was formally instituted here Tuesday evening,

S. E. Atkins, of the state auditor's office, was in the city yesterday and made the News a pleasant call.

Rev. Weld and wife, of Norwood, N. D., were in the city the first of the week the guests of Rev. and Mrs Dade.

John Remmem and Charles Swenson left for Warren last week where they will remain until late in the fall.

Mrs. W. A. Murphy returned to the city Monday from Red Lake Falls where she had been visiting her parents.

The Misses Johnsons have moved their millinery store into the building north of the First National Bank.

County Commissioner Louis Hanson went to Red Lake Falls to attend a meeting of the board of equalization.

E. J. Brink, the genial St. Hilaire landlord, accompanied by Norman Hanney was in the city last Saturday.

Farmers in this section are very busy just at present putting up hay, and they are having excellent weather for this work.

Chris Amundson and R. B. Vining came down from the Red Lake country last week and on Monday proved up their claims.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will meet on Friday, Aug. 1 with Mrs. Rogers. All are invited to attend.

J. W. Wallin and his two daughters, Misses Helen and Florence, went up to the Red Lake the first of the week for a short vacation.

Ed Rolf has presented the public library with a complete set of Washington Irving's works, handsomely bound in 15 volumnes.

Miss Ina McAlester, who had been in the city visiting her uncle, N. W. Tarrant, returned to her home in Minneapolis last Saturday.

The statement of the condition of the First State Bank published in another column shows that institution to be in a very prosperous condition.

John E. King, of the Red Lake Falls Courier, and S. A. Swanson, candidate for the Populist nomination for state senator, were in the city last week.

Messrs. and Mesdames C. L Dobner and K. M. Hansen were down to St. Hilaire Monday evening to attend a dancing party given by Mr. and Mrs. Juluis Ploth.

The fight between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries takes place in California tomorrow night and arrangements have been made to receive the returns in this city by rounds.

Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, was in the city last Saturday. Mr. Steenerson is a candidate for congressman from this congressional district and says he is much pleased with his prospects.

Chas. R. Aldrich, the Minneapolis architect who drew the plans for the new high school building, was in the city the first of the week inspecting the work, and giving instructions to the contractors.

The Olson Bros. are enlarging their building and the capacity of their plant and are in a position to take any and all work in the blacksmithing, horse shoeing and wagon making and repairing also steam fitting.

George Turville, Chris Porter, Tim Craig and L. J. Higgans returned to this city last Saturday from a trip to Northwestern Canada. With the exception of Mr. Turville they were not pleased with the country.

The second base ball nine of this city will go to St. Hilaire on Sunday to play with an aggregation gotten up by Bob Frits of that place.

There will an ice cream social at the tent near the bridge on Friday evening, July 25. Ice cream and cake will be served in the afternoon and evening. All are invited.

Dr. Watson was up from Red Lake Falls yesterday and in company with Dr. Tupper, of this city performed a surgical operation upon Miss Lila Jackson, daughter of C. B. Jackson.

A number of people left this city yesterday for Winnipeg to attend the fair. Among those going from this city were: C. L. Dobner and wife, K. M. Hansen and wife, James Martin Wm. Bulman, C. Jacobson, George Jarman,

The county commissioners have adopted a resolution favoring the township system of caring for the poor, and this plan will be in operation providing there is no objection from the state board of corrections and charities. It would be much cheaper.

Will Lennon, the expert timber cruiser, has returned from a trip to Idaho, where he spent a month looking over the pine in that region. He will return there later on, and it is likely that his future operations will keep him engaged there. He is making some private investments and has a friend or two associated with him.

A. A. Granum, a farmer living southeast of town, came to Thief River Falls about the 1st of June, mortgaged his farm for $800 and at once got drunk. He stayed in this condition until Monday, when was he locked up by chief Lee, and on Tuesday he was removed to Riverside hospital, his health being nearly ruined by the protected spree, and it is doubtful if he ever recovers. When arrested he had $19.50.

Big Boom For Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., July 22—Mayor Steidl and P. J. Russell, city attorney, have returned from St. Paul, where they closed a deal for the location of the Shelvin-Carpenter mill at this point.

As a result of the enterprise, a big boom for Bemidji is expected. The price of property has already advanced and several substantial brick blocks are under construction

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

Council Proceedings.

Regular Meeting of City Council, July 17, 1902 C. L. Dobner, presiding.

Aldermen present, C. L. Dobner Chas. A. Robbecke, S. F. Staples, D. N. Winton, and Mett Harzer. Absent, none.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Reported paid to the City Treasury since last meeting, for Electric Light account, by Leonard Peterson.......... $398 55

Communication from the Supt. in regard to increased power for the Light Plant read in the council.

Moved by Alderman Staples, seconded by Alderman Robbecke, that a special Committee of Aldermen Dobner, D. N. Winton, and Harzen confer with Mrs. Kretzschmar in the matter of additional power for the Light Plant, said committee to have full power to act in the premises. Motion adopted.

Moved by Alderman Winton, seconded by Alderman Staples that permit be granted Minnie Caldwell to erect a frame building on lot No. 10, block 29, original townsite. Motion adopted.

Moved by Alderman Staples seconded by Alderman Robbecke, that application of Tollef Olson for permit to erect an addition to his blacksmith on lot 12 of block 28, original townsite, be granted. Motion adopted.

Moved by Alderman Robbecke, seconded by Alderman Staples that application of E. M. Evenson for correction of taxes on lot No. 9 block 28, original townsite be granted. Motion adopted.

Petition for cross-walk across 3rd street from and to connect with alley crossings in block 29, and 36 original townsite, granted.

Moved by Alderman Winton, seconded by Alderman Staples, that the bill of Hon. F. H. Kratka Mayor, for expences and services at Washington in behalf of city be allowed at $1800.00. Motion adopted.

The following bills were audited and allowed.

Anton Skog, for street work	$1 50
K. Rannestead, for street work	11 02
Stalk, for street work	16 00
A. O. Bjorseth, for street work	1 50
Ed Johnson, for street work	5 00
George Humphrey, for blacksmith work	8 25
John W. Eastman, for printing	8 00
Wagner and Lafree, cleaning chimney for the City Hall	3 25
Swenson & Aas, for merchandise	5 05
W. C. Smiley for surveyor	28 00
Frank Tilton, for street work	4 50
C. C. Perkins, assistant surveyor	1 00
George Perkins assistant surveyor	13 00
O. Olsen, for street work	16 00
M. Schmitz, for street work	7 25
Joseph Hollan for street work	4 00
Nils Severson for street work	1 20
F. Cernousek street work overseen	20 00
Albert Voss street work with team	27 30
James Novak, for street work	11 40
Stephen Waring, for street work with a team	7 50
James Meehan, Jr. 20 loads of gravel	8 00
Special Police for the 4th	12 00
George Jarman, for special police	10 50
Chas. A. Robbecke, hard coal for the city	7 00
T. R. F. Lumber Co. for lumber	253 00
W. J. Kelley, for street work	7 50

Moved to adjourn, adopted, adjourned.

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.

I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.

Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.

Lowest rates. Call and see me.

Hotel Ogahmah.

C. A. ROBBECKE, Prop.

STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS TO HUNTING AND PLEASURE PARTIES.
NEWLY ENLARGED AND REFITTED THROUGHOUT.
BUS LINE IN CONNECTION.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patent taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in The Patent Record, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.,
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, - WASHINGTON, D. C.

Statement of the condition of the FIRST STATE BANK, at Thief River Falls, at the close of business on July 16, 1902.

RESOURCES.
Loans and discounts		$105,630 38
Overdrafts		1,247 20
Other bonds, stocks and securities		11,147 85
Banking house furniture and fixtures		3,735 30
Due from banks	58,718 66
Checks and cash items	2,147 80
Currency	2,122 00
Gold	4,030 00
Silver	1,134 60
Fractional	26 94
Total available assets		69,179 80
Total		190,940 63
LIABILITIES.
Capital stock		$10,000 00
Surplus fund		2,000 00
Undivided profits, net		2,865 63
Deposits subject check	$97,532 74
Demand certificates	17,543 92
Certified checks	200 00
Total immediate liabilit's	111,276 66
Time certificates	64,738 34
Total deposits		176,015 00
Total		190,940 63

State of Minnesota, county of Red Lake—ss. I, H. O. Dobner, cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

H. O. Dobner, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23th day of July 1902.

Olaf Nyhus,
Notary Public.

SUMMONS FOR RELIEF.

State of Minnesota, } ss. District Court,
County of Red Lake. } Fourteenth Judicial District.

Ruth E. Young, Plaintiff, against Harry S. Young, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the Office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said Complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this Summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Dated June 10th, A. D. 1902.

IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
j12j17 Residing at Thief River Falls, Minn.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minn., up to 2 o'clock P. M. of July 26, 1902, for furnishing material and putting in culverts on all County ditches, according to plans and specifications on file in the Auditors office.

Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated July 16th, 1902.

ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor, Red Lake County.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test

Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris 1900. For sale by

JOHN MORGAN.

For blacksmithing, and horse-shoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

Presbyterian services at the tent next Sabbath as follows:
S. S. at 12 a. m. C. E. at 7 P. M.
Evening preaching service at 8.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON CLAIMS, ETC.

State of Minnesota, } ss. In Probate Court,
County of Red Lake. } Special Term July, 12th A. D. 1902.

In the Matter of the Estate of Engebert E. Brown, Deceased.

Letters of Testamentary on the estate of Engebert E. Brown deceased, late of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, being granted to Lourense O. Brown.

IT IS ORDERED, That six months be and the same is hereby allowed from and after the date of this order, in which all persons having claims or demands against the said deceased are required to file the same in the Probate Court of said County for examination and allowance, or be forever barred

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the 5th day of January, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock A. M. at a regular term of said Probate Court, to be held at the Probate Office in the Court-House in the city Red Lake Falls in said County, be and the same hereby is appointed as the time and place when and where the said Probate Court will examine and adjust said claims and demands.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That notice of such hearing be given to all creditors and persons interested in said estate by forthwith publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Thief River Falls News a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, this 12th day of July A. D. 1902.

By the Court:
J. T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

july 17 aug 7

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 6th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on July 25, 1902, viz: GUSTAF OPSETH, H. E. No. 23807, for the NE¼ NE¼ Sec. 13, Tp. 151 N., R. 44 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Victor Wiberg, of Strip, Minn.
Gjermund Nordhagen of Strip, Minn.
Ole Setnes, of Strip, Minn.
Olaf Opseth, of Strip, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

June 12 july 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: AUTHUR DEVINE, H. E. 2839 Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 35, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thrond P. Haugre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Roach, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patric Cummerford, of Thief River F., Minn.
Mickael Stirns, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

June 26 july 31

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. 880, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klungnes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Telef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVETER PETERSON,
Register.

June 26 july 31

CONSOLIDATED NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office at Crookston, Minn., May 27th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their respective claims before Nels K. Nelson, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thorwick, Marshall county, Minn., on July 21st, 1902, viz:

HAROLD OEN, on homestead application No. 1008, Chippewa Series, for the lots 8 and 9, and E½ SE¼, Sec. 24, Tp. 155 N., R. 43 W.

JOHN W. DAHL, on homestead application No. 32, Chippewa Series, for NW¼ SE¼, and SW¼ NE¼, and lot 3, Sec. 26, Tp. 155 N. R. 43 W.

They name the following witnesses to prove their continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz:

John Easthouse, of Thorwick, Minn.
John O. Fabelloden, of Thorwick, Minn.
Harold Oen, of Thorwick, Minn.
Saave Brokke, of Thorwick, Minn.
John W. Dahl, of Thorwick, Minn.

A. F. GEORGE,
Receiver.

June 12 to july 17

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 25th 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 14th, 1902, viz: ANTON HORBISH, Jr., H. E. 891, Chippewa Series, for the S½ NE¼, and N½ SE¼, Sec. 22, Tp. 155 N., of R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John Kratochvile, of Germantown, Minn.
Henry Roller, of Germantown, Minn.
Joseph Vakoc, of Germantown, Minn.
Charles Kookman, of Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON
Register.

July 3 aug 7

Subscribe for the News.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN, THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1902. NUMBER 30

SWAMP FEVER

A New Disease Among Horses in This Section.

The following, taken from the St. Paul Pioneer Press is of local interest:

A new disease among horses in the northern part of the state is baffling the veterinary department of the state board of health. The disease is populary known as "swamp fever". It has been known in Manitoba for several years, and veterinarians of that province have been studying it in vain for several years to ascertain what really causes it.

Thus far the greatest number of cases have been reported from Polk, Red Lake and Norman counties, although cases have also been reported from Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, and the disease is supposed to have caused the loss of many animals in other counties in the northern part of the state whose death was a mystery.

Many of the residents of the counties where the disease is most common believe it was brought in from Manitoba by horses imported by contractors building railroads.

It somewhat resembles a disease known among horses in the Philippines, but there is nothing to make veterinarians believe that it has been transplanted from those islands, although the origin of the two diseases may be similar.

"Swamp fever" is an extremely difficult disease to study, as it is slow, animals frequently living for months after they contract it. They gradually waste away, until they become too weak to walk and the legs become partially paralyzed, but the victims retain to the last a hearty appetite. There is a fever, but it is low, and does its work slowly.

Dr. Brimhall of the veterinary department of the state board of health recently investigated a case in which the stricken animal was partially paralyzed and was dragged on a stone boat into a field for an autopsy. The animal's eyes were clear and it ate eagerly of the grass by the way as it was dragged along.

The veterinary department of the state board of health is studying the disease carefully and hopes soon to isolate the bacillus of the disease. The great difficulty is in obtaining material to work with. The department is usually notified after the animal has wasted away, when it can live only a few days.

New Time Card.

The new time card for the passenger train on this branch of the Great Northern went into effect Monday. The train now leaves Crookston at 9:32 and goes to Red Lake Falls, arriving there at 11:10, and at Thief River Falls at 12:25, remaining here until 4, when it goes to Crookston by way of Red Lake Falls. Passengers going or coming from this city to Crookston will have to stop off at St. Hilaire while the train goes to Red Lake Falls. The new time card does not give general satisfaction.

Missionary Meetings.

265,000 children of public school age in Minnesota are still out of Sunday School.

How shall we reach them?

Mr. F. A. Bartlett, of St. Paul, State Missionary under the auspices of the American Sunday School Union, in connection with the missionary of this district, C. M. Williams, will help us to solve the problem. Come and hear him at the Methodist Church, Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 9th. Mr. Bartlett will speak to the children in a union meeting at 3:30 in the afternoon. The union service will be held in the evening at 8 o'clock.

Fined $1.

Four young boys about 13 years of age were arrested last Friday for stealing candy from the Great Northern depot, and were each fined $1 and costs before Judge Tarrant on Saturday morning. The names of the boys were: Earl Dolan, Frank Golls, Louis Bushey and Henry Olson, and with the exception of the last named all pleaded guilty.

Many articles have been stolen from the depot in the past, presumably by other boys and Agent Miller will from now on prosecute all offenders. He requests that boys wishing to avoid arrest must keep away from the depot.

Proposed Constitutional Amendments.

The voter will have no more important duty at the next election than to vote on the proposed constitutional amendments. Under the constitution no amendment can be passed except by a majority of all the votes cast. It has to have over half of all the votes put in the ballot boxes and therefore the man who does not vote at all on the amendments, that is does not mark them at all, in effect votes against them. To vote for them you have to mark the ballot, to vote against them you merely have to do nothing. It is therefore absolutely essential that the voter mark his ballot if he wants the amendments to pass. This year's proposed amendments also are the most important ever submitted in this state.

Four constitutional amendments will be on the ballots. The first is on the increase of the gross earnings tax of railroads from three to four per cent. The second is to increase the size of the state loans that can be made to cities, villages, towns and school districts. The third concerns state aid in road and bridge building. The fourth is to permit the drawing of a model tax law.

Not Our Fault.

A dispatch from Solway to the Minneapolis Journal says, that about 300 Red Lake Chippewas are engaged in picking blueberries near that place, and are all dissatisfied because the treaty for the cession of the 11 townships east of this city was not ratified by congress. There are others.

Removal Sale.

To reduce stock before removing everything in millinery at cost at Mrs. Caldwells, back of New Drug store.

TOMORROW

Republican County Committee to Meet.

Chairman C. L. Dobner, of the Red Lake county Republican committee, has called a meeting of the members to be held in this city tomorrow. The meeting is to be held for the purpose of forming a stronger organization in the county, and it is expected that some of the candidates for county offices will be present. Reports from various points in the county indicate that Red Lake county will be found in the Republican column this year, and the committee proposes to make an aggressive campaign.

Saving in Good Roads.

An Indiana engineer has been estimating the cost of transportation by road, and has produced a strong argument for the very best roads.

He figures that the cost of moving one ton by horse power over one mile of dry, sandy road is 64 cents; over wet sand, 32 cents; over ruts and mud, 39 cents; over broken stone and ruts, 26 cents; over an earth road that is dry and hard, 18 cents; over a broken stone road in good condition, 8 cents; over a compact gravel road; 8.8 cents; over stone paving, 5.33 cents; over asphalt, 2.7 cents.

The engineer argues that if wagon transportation at a cost of 5 cents a mile a ton could be universal in this country, many millions of dollars would be saved and millions of tons of merchandise which cannot now be handled at a profit, would be available in the markets.

The pronounced characteristic of Republican legislation in Minnesota has been that honest, every day, common sense—that—in the aggregate is said to amount to genius. In its forty years of state control the party has shown a positive genius in wise legislation and no where has this been more evident than in the laws for the control of railroads. The party has not at any time hurled upon the statue books a mass of drastic anti-railroad laws to unsettle business, cripple transportation and breed evil during years of adjustment, but gradually as the interest and business of the state have demanded, fair and just measures have been passed until today Minnesota stands foremost in the states of the Union in its spendid series of laws for the control of transportation. Every session of the legislature adds to these laws as the needs of the shippers increase and the latest movement in this direction was to make the railroad commissionerships elective offices. The Republican party has not only given the state the best railroad code of any state in the Union, but has put its enforcement in the hands of a board directly elected by the people and answerable to them.

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store.

(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)

We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

For All Kinds of Fruit go to FANT'S Tropical Fruit Store.

The Thief River Falls Meat Market.

Always to be found with a complete line of meats, fish, poultry and game and oysters in season

Highest cash price paid for hides, fur, wool, &c.

JOSEPH H. WERSTLEIN, Prop.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure--some impure--some no earthly good--some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

"A Popular Pair"

Home and Bengal Brands of Canned Goods.

Favorable trade promoters representing the best of values in their respective grades. The distribution of these brands show a most flattering increase insuring the best evidence of their superior quality at right prices.

You can bank every time on the superior quality of all articles bearing the label HOME BRAND and we guarantee the goods as representing the very best procurable.

Good Coffee Is a Trade Winner While Poor Coffee Drives Trade Away.

Our line from the cheapest to the highest is carefully selected, comprising the better selections from the various grades, the wants of our customers being kept well in view.

The very large increased sales on our line of coffee is most flattering to us and is the strongest indication of their merit.

We Solicit Your Orders.

Central Mercantile Co.

Phone No 19.

C. L. Dobner, President. H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.

FIRST STATE BANK OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.

General Banking Business Transacted.

Capital - - - - $10,000
Surplus and contingent fund, 10,000.

Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

VIENNA BAKERY

Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.

We make a specialty of Bread

Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.

By actual test we find that our home brand Pride of the North Flour made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.

A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby, RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

General Banking.

Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis. & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE.

Collections Promptly Attended to.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Subscribe for the News.

THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

By John W. Eastman.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN

What a constitution King Edward must have had at the start.

Ages will have to pass before we can have a firecrackerless Fourth of July.

Nursery reformers who propose to abolish the cradle are attacking a rock of ages.

The Polish officials who intend to try snubbing the kaiser will be wiser after their experiment.

Prof. Albion W. Small thinks the idle rich should be obliged to work. But who would employ them?

By careful economy in his library fund Mr. Schwab is able to build a bigger house than Mr. Carnegie's.

By all means, ladies, adopt the reform dress proposed by a Cincinnati woman. Making and all, it costs $1.25.

Emperor William is reducing his weight by violent exercise at ping-pong. This is equivalent to swearing it away.

A man's idea of a good wife is one who never asked him for money and who doesn't sit up for him when he is out late.

People who kill themselves because it is hot must be thoroughly convinced that the other hot place exists only in fiction.

The American artist who was engaged to paint the coronation will probably now proceed to sue King Edward for damages.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to be troubled with an affection of the eyes. Still, it does not appear that he is overlooking much.

The Duchess of Marlborough spent over $100,000 getting ready for the coronation. She is probably taking the king's illness sadly to heart.

The monkey that drank too much at a fashionable Newport dinner given in his honor proved that men are only the victims of a far-off heredity.

The girl who was preparing for a wedding with a man named Alred and who eloped with a man named Swope certainly can't be very particular about names.

The Moorish coronation envoy has left London for Morocco, rejoicing that he was "going back to a civilized country." Perhaps he saw them "mafick."

Wonderful to relate, the automobile race from Paris to Innspruck was completed without the destruction or even the mutilation of a single spectator.

When the cashier of that Newport bank was through with it the vaults contained just $35, while the liabilities are $300,000. But why did he leave the $35?

A man may figure that he is growing old when it is disinclination rather than dignity that prevents him from getting on the picnic merry-go-round and taking a spin.

Hamlin Garland has announced that there are two great English writers now living. One is William Dean Howells. The name of the other he can mention with one capital letter.

The Nebraska girls who have declared a boycott on all young men who swear and lie will have a chance to discover the truth of Mark Twain's remark: "Be good and you will be lonely."

It costs $31.62 per capita to govern the city of New York, and, considering the sort of government the people of the metropolis get, and considering other facts, also, the price is infernally steep.

The news that Prof. Bristol has shipped from Bermuda a pocket sea serpent leads the public to feel sure that the brand of American whisky exported to the island is not what it ought to be.

A British naval captain has committed suicide because he was left a fortune of $2,000,000. He considered his responsibility too great to be borne. What an enigma such a man must be to Hetty Green.

Another note of warning has been published against the use of iced drinks during the season of hot weather, although it would seem that an honorable exception might be made in favor of the mint julep.

The Northwestern Elevated Railway Company has devised a car attachment called the "fool catcher." It is to be hoped that it is not so perfectly protected by patents that it cannot be operated outside of Illinois.

The New York courts have decided that a woman's picture may be used for advertising purposes whether she approves of the same or not; all of which, to the layman, looks like a particularly vicious slap at common sense.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

From the Capital.

Senator McLaurin declines the appointment to fill the vacancy on the court of claims, basing his action on adverse criticism of a Southern newspaper.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant has been offered the command of the Department of Texas, to which Gen. Jacob Smith had been assigned before his retirement by the president.

Orders have been received at the New York navy yard to proceed with the preparations for the building of the new battleship Connecticut. Work on the launching ways has been started.

It is said that President Roosevelt is trying to decide whether to appoint Representative Sherman or Representative Ray, both of New York, to the vacant judgeship of the Northern New York district.

The state department has decided that Filipinos who are natives of the islands and loyal to the United States, when absent therefrom are entitled to be protected by diplomatic and consular officers of the United States.

Mrs. O. H. Rask is very desirous of having the body of her husband, Lieut. O. H. Rask of the Marine corps, returned to this country for burial in Arlington cemetery. Mrs. Rask is soon to visit her husband's parents at La Crosse, Wis.

People Talked About.

Capt. B. S. Wood, a prominent Pittsburg coal man and former president of the National Board of Transportation, is dead at New Orleans.

James McNeill Whistler, the American painter, has telegraphed to friends in London that he has practically recovered from his recent illness.

Brig. Gen. W. H. Carter has been detailed as acting adjutant general during the absence of Gen. Corbin in Europe in addition to the duty as a member of the war board.

Gen. William H. L. Barnes, one of the leading lawyers and one of the most eloquent orators of the Pacific coast, is dead at San Francisco of hemorrhage of the lungs. He was sixty years old.

The Rev. Walter Calley, pastor of the Tabernacle church, Bowdoin Square, Boston, has decided to accept the position of general secretary of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, recently tendered him.

Criminal.

James Cockrill was fatally shot from the court house window at Jackson, Ky., by a member of the Harges faction.

Dennis Bowen, a guard with Forepaugh's circus, being reprimanded, answered with a revolver, killing Lee Bruce, a teamster.

Monroe Hallum and Jim Gaston, negroes, were lynched near Kosciusko, Miss., simply for being leaders in inciting race prejudice.

Masked men took two O. & M. mine employes from their bunks at Ouray, Col., and forced them to leave camp. No reason was assigned for the act.

John R. McGehee, charged with the murder of F. L. Miller, a Confederate veteran, committed suicide in his cell at Rome, Ga., by cutting his throat with a shoe string.

Steve West, colored, was hanged in the jail yard at Vicksburg, Miss., for the murder of Minnie Fisher, a nineteen-year-old negro girl, a year ago. The execution was private.

Ed Bakewell, a guard at the Chandler mines, at Florence, Col., was forced to flee to the woods by drunken miners. Later he shot and killed one of the latter, a negro, named W. H. White.

The stabbing of Eli Louckets, Company F, Sixth cavalry, in a negro resort at Leavenworth, Kan., was followed by the razing of the place by his comrades, during which several were severely clubbed by the police.

David Miller, who lives near Osceola, Pa., went home intoxicated and abused his wife. His son-in-law, Robert Roach, compelled the old man to desist. Miller then secured his repeating rifle and shot Roach three times. The latter died.

Their plans having miscarried, two men who attempted to bunco E. Homann, a farmer of Mattoon, Ill., fled, leaving behind letters and $500 in currency. Later, a detective appeared with power of attorney and recovered the money, the letters being retained.

William S. Byers, a leading lawyer of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, and Democratic nominee for congress, has been arrested on three charges, for the robbery of $250,000 from the venerable Jacob Byers, who swore to the information. The bond is fixed by the court at $250,000, which Attorney Byers seems unable to give.

From Other Shores.

A cyclone swept over Kiew, Russia, damaging much property and killing twenty persons.

The population of Hayti is badly divided on the question of president, and trouble is liable to ensue.

G. W. Cook, a retired British soldier, is under arrest at Halifax, N. S., on a charge of murdering his six-weeks-old bride.

A sailboat sixteen feet long, containing a man and wife on their honeymoon, has arrived at Dover from Nova Scotia.

United States Minister Buck at Tokio, Japan, has cabled the department of state that Asiatic cholera has broken out there.

The Biegenland, after drifting three days with a broken shaft, was towed into Halifax, N. S., with her 203 passengers, by the Harrison line steamer Scholar.

Mrs. Stanley Spencer, wife of the aeronaut, who navigated her husband's airship about the Crystal Palace, London, so successfully, is the first lady to accomplish such a feat.

Several shocks of earthquake, throwing furniture and crockery about and cracking buildings, have been felt at Kingston, St. Vincent, during the past few days, and much alarm is felt.

In a supplementary estimate, the British government asks for £25,000 for coronation expenses, the original £100,000 proving insufficient.

Holbein attempted to swim from Dover to Ramsgate, but was forced to give up within four miles of the latter point. He was in the water four hours and three-quarters and swam eighteen miles.

The fact of dissensions between small tribes throughout the Philippine isles will inure to the benefit of the government, as one or the other in every quarrel is sure to appeal for protection by the authorities.

The Rhodes bequests for Oxford scholarships will be in operation in the autumn of 1903, and students from the United States, the British colonies and Germany will be admitted to the university, in compliance with the conditions of the will. The educational work projected by Mr. Rhodes will be supervised by an Oxford man.

Accidental Happenings.

A Dutch lieutenant and eleven soldiers were killed in a brush with insurgents in the island of Sumatra.

Two children of W. H. Feather of Pinto, Md., were cremated in a fire that burned Feather's home. An exploding gasoline stove caused the fire.

By the capsizing of their sailboat on the Ohio river at Aurora, Ind., Ben Watts, Albert Miller and Robert McLaughlin, young men, were drowned. Clayton Kaston saved himself.

Fire at Owensboro, Ky., destroyed the Osborne planing mill, the Continental Tobacco factory and a number of railway cars. Loss, $95,000. A passing engine is supposed to have caused the blaze.

The business portion of the winter resort of Camden, S. C., is in ruins, as the result of a fire which started from the explosion of a lamp. Several handsome old colonial residences and business blocks were destroyed.

A Baltimore & Ohio freight locomotive exploded near Olney, Ill. Engineer Conaty of Washington, Ind., was instantly killed, and Fireman Michael Muster, also of Washington, was fatally injured. Fifteen cars were completely wrecked.

Fire in the exposition grounds, in the suburbs of East Dallas, Texas, in thirty minutes, destroyed the main exposition building, one of the largest buildings in the country; the music hall annex, the poultry building and several private buildings. The loss will reach $100,000.

Otherwise.

Joe Gans knocked out Rufe Turner of Stockton, Cal., in the fifteenth round at Oakland, Cal.

Nineteen different unions are now engaged in the garment workers' strike in New York, which includes some 4,000 people.

A Pana (Ill.) paper will publish the Bible as a serial. Fifty years will be required for the purpose, as the installments will be small.

The Tocajo Cocoa and Sugar company, capital $2,000,000, was incorporated at Trenton, N. J., to grow and manufacture sugar and cocoa.

Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $20,000 for the building of a library in Lorain, Ohio, on condition that the city furnish a site and provide for its maintenance.

Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, who was recently injured in a cab accident, has started on a cruise aboard the admiralty yacht Enchantress to recuperate.

Charles M. Schwab's residence, to cost $3,500,000, will not be located on Fifth avenue, New York, but will be the most palatial in the city, with large grounds and an Italian garden.

Justice Hall, of the state supreme court of Utah upholds the "sealing for eternity" marriage contract, and declares the church divorce of John R. Park and Annie F. Park void.

The supposed heirs to the "Cronkhite" estate of $60,000,000 in Amsterdam are again pushing their claims, and feel confident of success, through the efforts of Mrs. M. L. Wood of Chicago.

Russell Sage, hanging to the hand rail, was dragged some twenty feet by an electric car in New York before he could be released. A sudden start as he was alighting threw him off his feet.

The Cape Town correspondent of the London Daily Mail cables that the government engineering commission has recommended an extension of the harbor works at Table Bay, Cape Colony, at a cost of £3,500,000.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Republican state committee Hon. John D. Long, formerly secretary of the navy, was selected to preside over the state Republican convention, which it was voted to hold on Oct. 3.

From an official of the Cambria Steel company at Johnstown, Pa., it is learned that about one-half of the company's 12,000 employes will participate in an advance of wages which will average 10 per cent, to date from July 1.

Russell-Wilson of Milan, Ohio, acting as physician with an alleged filibustering expedition in Nicaragua, was captured and sentenced to death, but Senator Hanna is endeavoring to secure his release.

Preparations are being made for an entertainment in New York of the thirtieth convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers, which is to be held in the Grand Central Palace, Sept. 16-19.

Brig. Gen. Charles King has formally notified the Council Bluffs, Iowa, committee that he would surely be in attendance on the third annual reunion of the National Society of the Army of the Philippines, which is to be held in that city Aug. 13, 14 and 15.

The American consul general at Cape Town thinks that there will be a great boom in trade in South Africa, now that peace has been restored. This country at present ships more than twice as many goods to South Africa as any other country save Great Britain, a condition which will swiftly change, with the return of peace.

AMES IN BAD SHAPE.

Detective Nelson Arrives Home and So Reports.

Minneapolis, July 26. — Detective Charles Nelson has returned to Minneapolis, after being away several weeks, in the course of which he saw the mayor and his brother, the chief of police. Speaking of the two he said: "Doc Ames is a sick man. I don't think you will ever see him alive in Minneapolis. You ought to see him. His face is as sharp as a razor. It is drawn and haggard, and he is growing gray rapidly. The mayor has aged ten years in the last three months. I never saw a man so nearly broken down. The mayor has been worried to death. Every time anything happened some fool ran to him and told him about it. The threats that have been made against him and his administration and the doings of the grand jury have made him a nervous wreck. Fred Ames will return to Minneapolis. He will be back here at the end of the week at the latest. He went away for a little rest after his trial. He is thoroughly rested now and will return to face the music."

AMES BROTHERS' COUPE.

Mayor and His Brother Meet in a Chicago Hotel.

Chicago, July 26.—A conference was held at the Palmer house yesterday between Mayor A. A. Ames of Minneapolis, Mrs. Ames and Fred Ames. Capt. Alfred Coffin was expected, but it is understood that if he was in the city he met his friends without any one being aware of it. Mayor and Mrs. Ames arrived from West Baden, Ind., in the morning. The mayor presented a letter of introduction to the manager of the Palmer house, in which he was referred to as "the house surgeon of the leading hotel in West Baden." To inquirers the information was given out that the guest was not the mayor, but "Dr. Ames." It was not until in the evening that it became known about the hotel that the guests were Mayor Ames and his wife.

RUSTY NAIL KILLS GIRL.

After Seemingly Healing, Lockjaw Results From Scratch.

La Crosse, Wis., July 26.—The eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris of North La Crosse, died of lockjaw yesterday, after two days of terrible suffering. Some time ago the girl scratched her ankle on a rusty nail, but the wound apparently healed. She was not troubled again until Monday, when she began to complain of pains in her throat. When a doctor arrived she was fast becoming rigid about the neck and arms, and nothing could be done to save her. She died in great agony.

HELENA WANTS WATER.

Injunction Prevents Company From Stopping the Supply.

Helena, Mont., July 26.—On the application of the city, Judge H. C. Smith of the district court yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining the Helena Water Works company from turning off the water for fire and sewerage purposes. The company had served notice that unless its demands for $1,500 for June were paid it would shut off the water at noon yesterday. The order of the court was made returnable July 30.

MASONS LAY CORNER STONE.

Grand Forks Temple Ceremonies Followed by Banquet.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 26. — The corner stone of the new Masonic temple here was laid last night with elaborate ceremonies. Grand Master Stockwell of Grafton laid the stone, assisted by Masonic dignitaries from all parts of the state. The edifice will be a handsome one, costing $30,000. After the laying of the stone a banquet was held at Masonic hall, at which addresses were delivered by many prominent Masons.

KILLED BY HIS APPETITE.

South Dakota Man Found Dead on the Broad Prairie.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 26.—The dead body of Richard D. Smith, a score of years ago one of the best known clerks of Sioux Falls, but whose life was wrecked by excessive drinking, was found yesterday afternoon on the prairie southwest of Sioux Falls, where he died alone. For a few days he had been mildly insane as the result of drinking.

LABOR LEADER FOR CONGRESS.

Democrats Nominate Reece to Oppose Lacey.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, July 26.—John P. Reece of Albia, Monroe county, was nominated in this city yesterday afternoon by the Democrats of the Sixth congressional district in opposition to John F. Lacey for congress. The nominee is president of the Iowa State Mineworkers.

La Follette to Review Troops.

Madison, Wis., July 26.—According to present plans Gov. La Follette will review the First regiment and battery of the W. N. G. at Camp Douglas on Monday, Aug. 4; the Second regiment and cavalry, Aug. 14 or 15, and the Third regiment and battalion Aug. 21.

Dead Man Unidentified.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 26.—The identity of the man killed by the cars between Eau Claire and Altoona last night is unknown. The coroner's jury returned a verdict to that effect and attached no blame to the railroad.

Drowned While Bathing.

Wahpeton, N. D., July 26. — Last evening while a company of boys were bathing in the Red river George Chezick, aged seventeen, was drowned. The body has not been recovered.

Intense Heat in North Dakota.

Lisbon, July 26.—A dispatch from the scorching weather yesterday—the hottest day of the season—damaged all late sown crops, coming as it did after a prolonged period of abnormally cool weather. It was above 90 degrees.

Horse Traders' Reunion.

Pierre, S. D., July 26.—Fort Pierre will hold a horse fair on the 6th of next month, when the owners of horses, or those who desire to own them, can get together and buy and sell in any number they desire.

IN OPEN DEFIANCE

FRENCH CATHOLICS WILL RESIST EXECUTION OF PREMIER'S ORDERS.

PEASANTS ARE UP IN ARMS

REPORTERS FROM PARIS SET UPON WITH PITCHFORKS AND STICKS.

BLOODSHED IS VERY LIKELY

PEASANTS SAY THEY WOULD RATHER BE SHOT THAN ABANDON SISTERS.

Paris, July 27.—A serious situation is prevailing in the Catholic country around Brest on account of the closing of the unauthorized schools.

The countryside has taken up arms and is determined to resist any attempt at the forcible execution of the orders of the premier. An incident yesterday evening at Saint Menin, eighteen miles from Brest, shows the spirit of the peasantry. Two newspaper men of Brest drove there in an automobile to investigate the situation at the Sisters' school.

Immediately after they had entered the commune a boy sounded a bugle and crowds of peasants swarmed from the fields armed with pitchforks and iron-bound sticks, shouting "Long live the Sisters!" "Long live liberty!" One of the reporters was dragged from the automobile and the

Fanatics Beat Him

with their pitchforks and sticks. The newspaper man explained in broken dialect that he had only come in search of information, but they refused to listen to him, and the reporter had to keep them at bay with a revolver. He succeeded in regaining the automobile and drove off at full speed, followed by a shower of stones.

A school at Ploudanic, in the same neighborhood, had been converted into a fortress, barricades have been erected and the inhabitants have formed a cordon about the surrounding area. The lady superior said:

"You see our barricades. They must shoot us before we yield. There will be bloodshed if any one attempts to enter."

Placards have been posted in the townships urging resistance to the police. The population of Landerneau, twelve miles from Brest, has formed relays and peasant women sit on benches opposite the gate, knitting while awaiting the coming of gendarmes. They are greatly excited and declare they prefer to be shot rather than abandon the Sisters. The lady superior of the Landerneau convent said:

To Guard the School,

"Like true Bretons, we will only yield to force. The women and other people who are guarding the school night and day have given us a courageous example."

The population of Roscoff is guarding the schools day and night. Sentinels are watching the roads and men are sleeping on the ground in the neighborhood in order to be ready at the first alarm.

Count Albert de Mun, the clerical leader in the chamber of deputies, is stumping the country, denouncing the action of the government and urging resistence.

KITCHENER MOBBED.

It Was a Friendly Demonstration, However.

London, July 27. — Lord Kitchener, who had been largely lost to public view since his triumphal re-entry into London July 12, received an unexpected demonstration of London enthusiasm yesterday when a cab in which he traversed the city was actually mobbed close to the Bank of England and the conquerer of South Africa had to be rescued by the police. Lord Kitchener drove to a private bank near the Mansion house. He was instantly recognized and such a crowd collected outside that he had to escape by a side door. He was detected, however, and drove off amid frantic cheers, which he smilingly acknowledged with a salute. While passing through Queen Victoria street Lord Kitchener was again recognized and the cab was held up by a cheering crowd. The police had to open a way before the vehicle could proceed.

WRECK IN ARIZONA.

Brakeman, Engineer and Three Mexican Employes Are Killed.

Tucson, Ariz., July 27.—Five persons were killed and a number injured in a wreck yesterday near Llano, on the Sierra railroad. The northbound International train was derailed by a washout and the engine, baggage car, two passenger coaches and a Pullman sleeper toppled over an embankment. The baggage car and one passenger coach were smashed to kindlingwood, but the first-class coaches and the Pullman escaped with little injury. A brakeman and an engineer who were dead-heading and three Mexican employes were killed outright. Three passengers were seriously injured. Many others received slight injuries and bruises.

Killed by a Premature Explosion.

New Cumberland, W. Va., July 27.—The premature explosion of a shot in the clay mine at Black Hawk works, just below here yesterday, instantly killed John Carnahan and Thomas Sheets. Both leave families.

Will Question Balfour.

London, July 27. — Thomas Gibson Lowler, Conservative, next Monday will invite Mr. Balfour, in the house of commons, to make a statement of the government's policy regarding the Atlantic shipping question.

To Demolish Santo Stefano.

Venice, July 27. — A technical commission has ordered the demolition of the Santo Stefano clock tower, which has shown signs of collapse. Several houses also have been ordered to be demolished.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

Oil has been discovered in large quantities in the island of Trinidad and is being worked under Canadian auspices.

Fire destroyed the plant of the Bryant Lumber and Shingle company at Fremont, a suburb of Seattle. Loss, $50,000.

The census bureau has issued a bulletin on the manufacture of musical instruments and materials in the United States.

According to the Rome Tribuna King Victor Emmanuel will visit Emperor William in Berlin during the last week in August.

Figures have been issued showing that the British army during the war in South Africa consumed 24,500,000 pounds of jam.

The London Daily Mail says there is reason to believe the powers will decline Russia's invitation to take part in a conference on trusts.

The civil service commission has issued a statement expressing gratification at the remarkable showing made by native Porto Ricans in the postal service examinations recently held at San Juan. The natives made generally higher averages than the Americans who entered the examinations. They even made higher averages than the Americans in answering questions on the geography of the United States.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 28. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 80 @ 81c; No. 2 Northern, 75@77c. Oats—No. 3 white, 50@51c; No. 3, 48@50c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 63@64c; No. 3, 61@63c.

Minneapolis, July 28.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 80c; No. 1 Northern, 75c; No. 2 Northern, 73 3-4c.

Duluth, July 28.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 78 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 76c; No. 2 Northern, 74c; No. 3 spring, 72 1-2c; Manitoba, 76c; oats, 33 1-4c; rye, 53 1-4c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 28. — Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 79 @ 79 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 78@78 1-2c; September, 72c. Rye—No. 1, 61 1-2c. Barley—No. 2, 70c. Oats—No. 2 white, 61 1-2@62c. Corn—September, 60 1-8@63 1-4c.

Chicago, July 28. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 76c; No. 3 red, 71 @ 73c; No. 2 hard winter, 74c; No. 3 hard winter, 72@73c; No. 1 Northern spring, 78 1-2c; No. 2 Northern spring, 77c; No. 3 spring, 70@76c. Cash Corn—No. 2, 66 1-2@67c; No. 3, 65 @ 65 1-2c. Cash Oats—No. 2, 51c; No. 3, 45c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 28. — Cattle — Beeves, $5.50 @ 7.25; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@5; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.50; yearlings and calves, $2.50@4. Hogs, $7.20@7.60; bulk, $7.35@7.45.

Chicago, July 28. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.85@8.75; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.25; heifers, $2.25@6.50, calves, $2.50 @ 6.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.15 @ 7.95; good to choice heavy, $7.70@8.02 1-2. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $4.25@5; fair to choice mixed, $2.75@4.25; Western sheep, $2.50@4.75; native lambs, $3@7.

South St. Paul, July 28. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $7@7.50; good, $6@6.75; choice butcher cows and heifers, $5.25@6; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; good to choice feeding steers, $3.75@4.75; good to choice stock steers, $3@3.40; steer calves, $2@3.25; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.65@3; Hogs—Price range, $7.35 @ 7.55; bulk, $7.35@7.45; rough sorts, $6.65. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.60@5.75; good to choice fat lambs, $5.25@5.50; good to choice yearling wethers, $3.75@4.25; heavy wethers, $3.50@3.75.

LA CROSSE FAVORED.

President Roosevelt Promises to Visit That City.

La Crosse, Wis., July 27.—In a letter from the private secretary of President Roosevelt, received by representative commercial bodies, who joined in an invitation to the president to visit La Crosse in September during the interstate fair, the invitation was accepted. The private secretary says La Crosse is included in the itinerary for Sept. 25.

DR. BEARDSHEAR DYING.

Well-Known Iowa Educator Can Live but a Short Time.

Ames, Iowa, July 27. — President William D. Beardshear of the Iowa State college is critically ill with dropsy, and his physicians say he can live but a short time. Oxygen has been administered for some time to sustain life. Prof. Beardshear is one of the most popular educators in the West.

CANNOT TARRY LONG.

German-American Can Remain in Germany Only a Limited Time.

Berlin, July 27.—The minister of interior again calls attention to the fact that under the rules German-Americans are only allowed to remain in Germany for a strictly limited time. This provision is binding, even when the cause of their emigration was not due to a desire to evade military service.

TEMPLE OF SOLOMON.

Austrian Scientist Makes a Discovery in Palestine.

Vienna, July 27.—The Neues Weiner Tageblatt says that Dr. Sellin, a professor at the Vienna university, who is exploring Palestine in behalf of the imperial academy of sciences, has discovered the walls and gateway of the ancient temple of Solomon in the neighborhood of Janohah, in Samaria.

Earthquakes in Persia.

Bombay, July 27.—Earthquakes have occurred daily at Bunder-Abbas, Persia, since July 9. The inhabitants are escaping to the beach and there is great suffering on account of the abnormal heat.

Mrs. Carruth Near Death.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 27.—Mrs. E. C. Carruth, wife of the former proprietor of the Plaindealer, lies at the point of death at the Deaconess hospital. She was operated on three days ago for appendicitis, and the physicians say she cannot recover.

Trust Conference.

Washington, July 27.—The Russian call for an anti-trust conference has now included the United States, but this country cannot constitutionally participate.

HASTE NOT, REST NOT.

Without haste, without rest;
Bind the motto to thy breast.
Bear it with thee as a spell,
Storm or sunshine, guard it well;
Heed not flowers that round thee bloom—
Bear it onward to the tomb.

Haste not; let no reckless deed
Mar for aye the spirit's speed;
Ponder well, and know the right—
Forward, then with all their might!
Haste not; years can not atone
For one reckless action done.

Rest not; time is sweeping by—
Do and dare before you die;
Something mighty and sublime
Leave behind to conquer time.
Glorious 'tis to live for aye,
When these forms have passed away.

Haste not, rest not; calmly wait;
Meekly bear the storms of fate;
Duty be thy polar guide—
Do the right, whate'er betide!
Haste not, rest not; conflicts past,
God shall crown thy work at last!
—Schiller.

Anita's Vow.

BY HARRY O. CONNOR.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The old dance hall at Manila, which "Uncle Sam's" soldier boys had rechristened "Volunteers' Rest," was ablaze to-night with gaily colored lights and lanterns and profusely decorated with the "Stars and stripes."

The "boys" were giving a "blow-out"—a sort of farewell one to the officers and men of the Fifteenth Kansas, who were to sail for the States in a few days.

The Filipino maidens with their flashing eyes, swarthy skin and fantastic garments, as they were whirled to and fro in the mazes of the civilized dance by the "boys" made an attractive picture one would not soon forget.

While the revelry was at its height a stalwart officer, with a handsome native maiden clinging to his arm, made his way to one of the refreshment booths in the rear.

No one paid special attention to their movements, and if they were, indeed, noticed at all, it was with a shrug of the shoulders and a smile, as all the "boys" had long known of the attachment existing between Capt. Dick Johnston and pretty Anita Amarido, a daughter of one of Aguinaldo's ex-cabinet members.

"Nita"—"Dick" was bending low over her chair—"what you ask is impossible. I could not live the balance of my life in this place, besides my native land holds all that is dear to me."

"And I, my Dick, am I nothing to you? Have you not oft said to me, 'My Nita, you are the flower of this land and I love you so much that I shall never part from you?' Ah, my Dick, did you not teach me to love as the fair-skinned ladies of your land love?"

"Yes, yes, Nita, but"—a frown of annoyance flitted over his countenance—"things in the States are far different to what they are over here."

"My Dick, you are always right; you must not stay here; you must go home on the big ship when she comes and"—a look of pleading love softening her flashing eyes—"you must take me with you to your beautiful land."

"No, no, Nita. I don't think that would do; you would soon tire of our mode of living in the stuffy cities, and long for this open country and grassy hills. No, the States would not suit you—you had better remain here."

"You will leave me here, Dick—you will cast me off—what when my child comes—no father to see its dimpled cheeks—no, no; it must not be; rather death than that. You swore you loved your Nita—you promised you would wed me in the church as your people do," and her form was shaken by a passionate outbreak of grief.

A stalwart officer with a handsome native maiden on his arm.

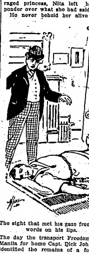
"Come, come, Nita, don't take it so hard; you are something fierce. I will provide for you and see to it that when trouble comes you will not want for anything; but, of course, you can't go with me."

"Dick, you made me love you. I was a good girl till your lying tongue led me astray. God help me. I believed all you said—believed you loved me. Now you throw me aside; curse your white American skin, you have played with me, ruined me, and I swear by my mother, go and leave me in my disgrace, and my spirit shall follow you till my wrongs have been avenged," and with the air of an outraged princess, Nita left him to ponder over what she had said.

He never beheld her alive again.



The sight that met his gaze froze the words on his lips.

The day the transport Freedom left Manila for home Capt. Dick Johnston identified the remains of a female, which had been fished from the bay by a patrol boat, as all that was mortal of "Nita."

* * *

Six months had passed, and to-day old St. John's church of Topeka was thronged with a fashionable assemblage, it being close to the hour set for the marriage of Miss Nettie Colburn, daughter of the Hon. Francis Colburn, to Capt. Richard Johnston of the Kansas volunteers, who had lately returned from the Philippines.

Carriage upon carriage was depositing its brightly arrayed occupants at the door of the old edifice; the gray-haired priest was standing at the chancel rail; the appointed hour had arrived, and passed; ten, twenty and now the half hour was here, and still no bridal couple.

The wedding guests sat in feverish expectancy; the reverend father, eyeing the entrance impatiently; when the doors were thrown open to admit an officer in full uniform, who hastened to the altar and spoke to the priest in a low tone.

There was a look of sorrow on his kindly old face as he dismissed the assemblage with the startling announcement that "there would be no wedding to-day."

The evening prior to his wedding day Capt. Dick Johnston was passing quietly at his bachelor apartments with his friend and comrade, Jack Dunn, captain in the Fifteenth U. S. Regulars.

"As I was saying, Jack, to-morrow should see me the happiest of men; and yet the recollection of that affair with Nita I can't get off my mind—it almost drives me frantic at times."

"Jack"—Dick's voice was solemn and tremulous—"I swear to you I have seen her—Nita— three times this week, and right here in this room."

"Oh, the devil, Dick," laughed Jack, "you have been tippling too much; late hours and loss of sleep will make a healthy imagination, you know."

"Damn it, man, how could you have seen her when she has been dead six months or more? Did I not see her buried in the old Jesuits' ground at Manila? Cheer up, old man; I almost believe the nearness of your wedding day is making you nervous."

"Ugh, Jack, I will never forget her threat that night—'I will never forgive you, and if you leave me, my spirit shall follow you and avenge my wrongs.' See, I hear it now, Dick; it has been ringing in my ears all day."

"Poor little Nita," he continued, meditatively, "I did treat her shabby; but, Jack, I could never have married her, though I wish now I had not wronged her so."

"You will be on time in the morning, old fellow," as Jack arose to leave. "You have been my comrade through everything else, good and bad, so it is a fitting end that you see me safely through matrimony; good night," and with a cynical smile playing over his lips, he listened to the echoing of his friend's footsteps, as they died away through the hallway.

Consternation reigned supreme at the Colburn mansion on the wedding morn. The bride was becoming hysterical despite the comforting words of her attendants. Such was the state of affairs when Capt. Jack Dunn arrived. Upon learning Dick had not arrived he hastened to his apartments with feelings of anxiety in his heart he could not subdue.

Rushing into Dick's room he sang out, "Come, come, old man, you're late; the bride is shedding her first tears for you"—the sight that met his gaze froze the words on his lips.

Lying on the floor, dressed as he had been the night before, with a look of intense horror on his face, was Dick—dead.

As Jack looked on that countenance he could not but remember the proverb,

"The wage of sin is death."

Bending over the prostrate form he took from the clenched, cold hand several long strands of jetty-black hair.

The daily papers dwelt on the affair as follows:

"Capt. Richard Johnston, U. S. Vols., was found dead at his apartments this morning. Heart failure was the cause of his sudden demise. His death is more than sad and pathetic, as he was to have been married this morning to Miss Nettie Colburn, who is prostrated with grief."

Among "Dick's" papers was a letter addressed to "Jack," written after Jack had left him the night before the day set for his wedding, which ran thus:

"My Dear Jack: Nita has troubled me again—ten minutes after you left; her oath rings still in my ears, and, old comrade, I have a presentiment that it will be fulfilled. If anything happens to me guard my past from the public and know that Nita's vow has been kept. Dick."

"Jack" reads the letter, and, as he looks at the strands of hair he had taken from "Dick's" hand that fateful morning, he knows the truth; whatever passed between Dick and Nita—spirit or what (?)—is locked into his loyal heart to remain.

Why Faith Could Not Cure.

Dr. Herbert W. Spencer tells the following story of his attempt to corner a Christian Scientist:

"Every time we met this Scientist took occasion to scoff at medical science and to dwell upon the wonders which could be performed through faith. 'You are convinced that through faith you can do anything?' I said to him one day.

"'Yes,' he replied, 'faith will move mountains.'

"A week later he was in my office with a swollen jaw due to a toothache. 'What, you here!' I exclaimed, with feigned astonishment.

"'Oh, Doctor,' he said, 'I have suffered agony all through the night. I simply can't stand this pain any longer.'

"'Have you tried faith?' I said to him. 'You know you told me the other day that faith could move mountains.'

"'But this is a cavity, Doctor; this is a cavity.'"

His Sympathy.

A Chicago lady who had a birthday recently received as a present from one of her friends a $10 bill. Accompanying the money was a note, in which the writer, after explaining that she couldn't think of anything tasteful to buy and had therefore sent the cash, made some tender references to bygone days and dear old scenes. While the recipient was sitting with the bill in one hand and the letter in the other, and permitted tears to drip down upon both, her little son went up to her and, putting his arms around her neck, tenderly asked:

"What's the matter, mamma? Isn't the money good?"

Oriental Logic.

A man bought three pounds of meat and brought it home to his wife to cook for dinner, and then went his way to his place of business in the bazaars. The wife was hungry and ate the meat.

In the evening the man came home and asked for his dinner.

"There is no meat," said the wife, "for the cat ate it."

"Bring the cat," said the man, "and a pair of scales."

"Weigh the cat," said the man. The cat weighed three pounds.

"If this is the cat," said the man, "where is the meat? And if this the meat, where is the cat?" —Harper's Magazine.

She Was No Gordon Bleu.

Several ladies sat in their club a few evenings ago, discussing the virtues of their husbands.

"Mr. Bingleton," said one of them, referring to her life partner, "never drinks and never swears—indeed, he has no bad habits!"

"Does he ever smoke?" someone asked.

"Yes... He likes a cigar just after he has eaten a good meal. But I suppose, on an average, he doesn't smoke more than once a month."

Some of her friends laughed, but she didn't seem to understand why.

PATHETIC INSCRIPTION ON GRAVE OF FRIENDLESS AMERICAN IN MEXICO

"When I was in Mexico not long ago," said a New Yorker, who has interests in that country, "I went out with a countryman to take a stroll in one of the cemeteries. My attention was called to a plain slab on which was this inscription:

To the Memory
of
SAM KING, AMERICAN.
He Always Protected the Woman Who Had a Child.

"That would excite the curiosity of almost any one, and I asked my friend if he knew what it meant.

"He said that a few years ago the man now under the slab went to Mexico on business. One evening he was walking in the street when he noticed a woman accompanied by a child about six years old. The woman appealed to him to protect her from a man who had been following her.

"King was a true American. He was chivalrous. He saw the woman and her child to their hotel.

"In returning he met the man who had been the cause of annoyance to the woman. King said to him:

"'When any woman is accompanied by a child that means protection, and any man who fails to extend that protection is a coward. I have always extended it.'

"The man resented what he called King's interference. There was a scuffle. King was stabbed. His assailant fled.

"King was taken to the hospital, lingered a few days and died. The Sister of Charity who nursed him to the end asked him if he had any home or friends or wished any message sent.

"He told her the world was his home, that he had friends all over it so far as he had traveled, but that it made no difference where he was buried. He had some money. He gave all to the Sister and asked her to take enough of it to buy him a burial spot and a slab.

"When she asked him what she should have inscribed upon the slab he dictated what I have told you. It was enough.

"Before I left the city I sent some flowers out to the grave of my dead countryman, whose memory I was delighted thus to honor."

Prophets are often without honor, but seldom without competition.

Diary of an Automobilist Covering One Short Week

Monday—Bought a 40-horse power Panarracq. Christened it the Solferino Spook. Engaged a Swede for Chauffeur. Bought a pair of goggles, a leather coat and a fried-egg cap.

Tuesday—Was out on the road for the first time. Runs like a watch. Think I'll like this game.

Wednesday—Tried to run the Spook without any help from the Swede. By the time I got home found I knew more about an automobile than he did. Guess I'll leave him in the stable next time. On the second speed beat the champion of the cycle police quarter of a mile in a 20-block chase he gave me. I'll like this game, I know I will.

Thursday—Negotiated a corner at full speed. Wasn't much hurt, but let the Swede take the Spook to the repair shop. He seemed put out about being thrown out, but it's all in the sport. Promised to race Bertie Burnell to-morrow at 12 o'clock from the Castoria to the Battery for the street scorching championship and a barrel of gasoline. I like this game, all right.

Friday—Nothing but hard luck. Ran into a beer wagon, collided with a cable car, got arrested for breaking the speed ordinance, lost to Bertie in consequence. Sent the Spook to the repairer's. Swede gives notice he's got enough. The game is all right, but—

Saturday—Tackled Long Island. Seems as though every fool fowl on the entire island waited for me to run over it. Paid for six ducks, eleven chickens and two geese, paid well, too. Crazy calf tried to take up the whole road, and I just hoisted him over into a neighboring field out of harm's way. Held up by a telephone message, sent by the calf's owner, and arrested. Owner said he wanted $5,000 for being deprived of that calf's services and affections. Refused to pay; left the Spook as collateral. Trained into Long Island City, told my experiences to Bertie and the boys, and found myself the hero of the hour. Two or three functions and a ping-pong party announced in my honor. Swede has quit, saying my autoing is too strenuous for him. Great game!

Sunday—Wrote checks for the driver of the beer wagon, the motorman, the repair man, the lawyer, the calf's owner, the Swede and some others. Concluded I'd rest for the remainder of the day.—Automobile Magazine.

How Booth Got Skull for Use in "Hamlet"

The elder Booth acquired a skull for use in "Hamlet" in an odd manner, according to a story in "Seen and Heard." The tragedian, somewhat in his cups, was traveling near Louisville, when he took a horse from a field and rode off with it. Horse stealing at that time was a capital offense in Kentucky, and the greatest horse thief was a man named Fontaine. Booth was soon overtaken, and when asked where he got the animal, said:

"I captured him in a field back here."

"Indeed!" said one of the farmers. "And what might your name be?"

"My name is Fontaine," said Booth without a smile.

"Fontaine!" ejaculated both men simultaneously. "Then you are the very man we want. Come back to town with us."

"Certainly," said Booth, in the most good natured manner; and, wheeling the horse, he rode back to Louisville with his captors.

The city jail was then in charge of Col. Thomas, who knew Booth well. "We have brought you Fontaine, the horse thief, and claim the reward," said the farmers, proudly, addressing the jailer.

"Where is he?" they were asked. Booth was produced. "Why, what does this mean, Mr. Booth?" asked Thomas.

"I haven't the slightest idea," said the great tragedian, with the utmost simplicity. "I met these two men with this horse, and they insisted upon giving it to me. I guess they stole it. I think one of them is Fontaine."

The rustics were about to be locked up, when, by the most singular coincidence, a man rushed to the prison door on horseback and shouted out the information that the real Fontaine had been taken into custody. Booth made Fontaine's acquaintance in jail, and the horse thief, who was executed later, left by will his skull to the actor.

BOY WEARS NO. 20 SHOES.

He Is 16 Years Old and Tips the Beam at 289 Pounds.

When Louis Merjanen, a youth of Boston location, buys a new pair of shoes the shoemaker must "build," not "make" them. There is a distinction. Louis does not wear an ordinary shoe. He wears quite an extraordinary one, for in size it is No. 20. Louis is just 16 years old. Notwithstanding his youthfulness, he is 7 feet tall and weighs 289 pounds. He is the wonder of his community, for his parents are small. His mother is not over 5 feet tall, while his father is medium sized.

Louis went to a local shoe dealer yesterday and ordered a new pair of shoes and now the wielder of the awl is busy "building" a pair of lasts the size of Louis' feet. The lad grows three inches a year on an average and if he does not stop growing—which is unlikely—he will be 8 feet and 2 inches in height when he is 20 years old. Two years ago he wore a No. 16 shoe. Last year when he was confirmed at the Finnish church the shoemaker "built" a pair, size No. 18, for that event. At this rate if his feet continue to grow as they have he will require No. 28 when he is 20 years old. Louis had some difficulty in entering the door of the shoe store, for there was just a fraction of an inch to spare, but he made it all right. However, Louis is good natured and happy, as most large people are, and will go to work in the Boston mine in a few days.

Francis Murphy Still Working.

Francis Murphy, the famous temperance apostle, has become a resident of California. He has a beautiful home and is in a position to enjoy the rest he so richly deserves. But that he has not quit fighting the drink traffic is shown by an account of one of his meetings printed in the Santa Barbara Independent and an appreciation by Rev. B. E. Newton in the same newspaper.

Progress of the African Railway.

The Cape to Cairo Railway has been completed as far as the Zambesi, where a great steel bridge, having one span of 500 feet, will carry the line across the river at the Victoria falls. The whole section from Bulawayo to the Zambesi, 275 miles in length, or nearly 1,700 miles from Cape Town, is expected to be open next year.

Meant to Make It Intelligible.

Prof. Blinkers—I hope you did not find my lecture too technical, Miss Baynes. Miss Baynes (with pride)—Oh, no, professor. I was able to follow it all. Prof. Blinkers—I am glad of that, as I tried to make it intelligible to the meanest comprehension.—Punch.

Overdone heartiness is nearly as nasty as underdone mutton.—"Comments of a Countess."

CURES DIPLOMATIC AMBITION.

A Short Term in the Zanzibar Consulship Generally Sufficient.

Undesirable consulships have long given rise to humorous incidents. But Zanzibar, to which the President has appointed Mason Mitchell, a rough-rider, seems to be in the lead in unattractiveness, if the length of consular terms proves any test, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post. Indiana has usually claimed the honor of furnishing candidates for this place, but after the resignation of a man named Rogers of Shoales, the Indiana senators notified the President that they were through with it. They had constituents who were willing to take chances, but the senators were not prepared to promise that these venturesome individuals would stay more than a month. Before Rogers took the place it was held for nearly a year by "Bob" Mansfield, at one time private secretary to Senator Beveridge, and now consul at Valparaiso. Mansfield came back, according to Indiana descriptions, "as thin as a toothpick and as yellow as June butter." He said he had stuck it out as long as the insurance company would let him, and that he returned to save his premiums. Before Mansfield, there was an Indianian named Billheimer, described as a husky Hoosier, with a large nose and frame pickeled in malaria. He was cured of diplomatic ambition in about two months, and has never asked for a place since. Before Billheimer, Judge Riley of Virginia served; he remained as long as his aversion to the negroes would permit. Finally, he is said to have taken a gun and emptied a load of fine birdshot into the dusky natives who persisted in taking a daily bath in front of the American consulate, which, the Judge "allowed," was an indignity to be resented by this government's representative.

HE LIKES FRIED POTATOES.

Grand Duke Alexis Has a Favorite Dish, So They Say.

Grand Duke Alexis of Russia is very fond of fried potatoes, and during his recent visit to Paris he was wont to buy a few every day from a woman in the street and to eat them beside her stall.

The woman did not know him, but as he paid her in princely fashion, she was very anxious to find out who he was.

"I can tell you who he is," said a neighbor one day. "He is Grand Duke Alexis, uncle of the czar and one of the greatest men in Russia."

Utterly amazed, the woman asked: "In heaven's name, how should I address him?"

"Oh, call him 'Your Excellency,' or 'Your Royal Highness,'" was the answer.

The woman resolved to do so, and the next day, as she was sprinkling some salt over the smoking potatoes which the grand duke had bought, she said: "I can recommend them to your royal highness, for I know your excellency has never tasted better potatoes."

The grand duke burst out laughing, and paid more for the potatoes than he had ever paid before, but he was annoyed at finding himself recognized and never returned to buy another potato.

Girard Was Considerate.

One of the sea captains in the employ of Stephen Girard had a rural Yankee's fondness for whittling with his jackknife, and on one trip succeeded in getting away with a large part of the rail, although, feeling that he was not without the artistic sense, he really regarded the rail as greatly improved in appearance. When the vessel came to Philadelphia Girard went aboard, made a general inspection in the captain's absence, and, as he was about to return to shore, asked one of the seamen who had been cutting the rail. The seaman told him the captain, and then, afraid his telling might have unpleasant consequences were the captain to learn of it in a roundabout way, informed that official of the interview with Girard. The captain was in terror of a reprimand, but, hearing nothing from his employer, supposed the incident closed. As he was about weighing anchor ready to leave port, a dray loaded with shingles drove down to the wharf, and the driver hailed the vessel.

"There must be some mistake!" shouted the captain. "Our bill of lading doesn't mention shingles!"

"This is where they belong!" sung back the driver. "Mr. Girard, himself, told me to deliver them! He said they're for the captain to whittle!"

Standing on the Bias.

During the trial of a street railway damage suit in one of the circuit branches of the supreme court of the District of Columbia a few days ago an important eyewitness of the accident took the stand in the person of an elderly colored man. The plaintiff had been injured while the car was at a street crossing, and one of the attorneys was endeavoring to elicit from the witness just where the latter was standing at the moment the plaintiff was struck by the car.

"As I understand you," remarked the attorney, after a number of questions had been asked, "you were standing at the street corner diagonally opposite the point where the accident occurred."

"No, sir, I wasn't," declared the witness. "I guess I was standing kinder sort or on the bias from the spot."

Wild Animals Kill Many.

Tigers killed 357 persons and panthers 295 last year in the Indian central provinces.

N°97½

MAY DROP PANAMA

REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA PROMISES TO CAUSE SOME DELAY.

RETURN TO NICARAGUA ROUTE

PRESIDENT MAY TAKE SUCH ACTION IF OUTLOOK DOES NOT CHANGE.

PEACE PROPOSITION REJECTED

LEADER OF REBELS NOT SATISFIED WITH THE GOVERNMENT'S OFFER.

Washington, July 29—The rejection of the propositions made by the Colombian government to Gen. Vargas Santos, the leader of the Colombian Liberals, who for thirty-eight months have been waging war against President Manoguin, has encouraged the ministers from Nicaragua and Costa Rica to hope that the isthmian canal may yet be constructed by the Nicaragua route.

This government expects to purchase the Panama canal, and the state department has practically completed a new treaty with Minister Concha, representing Colombia. The success of the negotiations depends on the election of a congress in Colombia to ratify the treaty. There has been no congress in that country for three years, and Gen. Cabriel Vargas Santos says that the Liberals will keep up the fight for three years more. Gen. Vargas Santos has rejected the proposal of Minister Concha for peace, and it is regarded as impossible to have a congress in Colombia until there is peace. The Colombian Liberals are receiving aid from Nicaragua, and it is suspected here that this aid is for the purpose of preventing a congress in Colombia to act on the canal treaty. It will be impossible to close the negotiations for the transfer of the Panama canal concession to the United States without a Colombian congress to ratify the treaty.

This government is not willing to wait three years for Colombia to ratify the treaty before proceeding with canal construction, and unless some agreement is reached within the next few months by which there will be a congress to ratify the treaty for Colombia the president may have to drop the Panama proposition and resume negotiations with Nicaragua and Costa Rica for the concession for the Nicaragua canal.

The minister of Nicaragua is still hopeful that he will secure the canal by the old route, as his government is ready to close negotiations and grant a concession on the terms of the United States.

KILLS HER INFANTS.

Made Delirious by Drink, Brooklyn Woman Strangles Three Little Ones.

New York, July 29.—Richard Meade, a night watchman, on returning to his home in Brooklyn found his two little daughters dead from strangulation caused by twine tightly tied around their throats. The third child was unconscious from the same cause and his wife lay in a comatose state on the floor, apparently suffering from alcoholism, combined with poison. According to the police the woman was of intemperate habits and the supposition is that she strangled the children while in a delirious condition.

WORST STORM IN ITS HISTORY.

Michigan Community Suffers Great Damage—Crops Ruined.

Oxford, Mich., July 29. — The worst storm ever known in the history of Oxford swept over a strip of country reaching from Thomas to Rochester, a distance of eighteen miles yesterday afternoon. In this village several houses were unroofed. The residence of Harry Humphrey which was not quite completed, was blown to the ground. The corn crop is leveled, while oats are lying in a tangled mass. Orchards are stripped of their fruit and the losses to farmers will amount to thousands of dollars.

BAD MEN CAUGHT.

Sheriff and His Deputy Round Up Some Horse Thieves.

Guthrie, Okla., July 29.—A desperate battle was fought in Caddo county between Sheriff Jim Thompson and Deputy Sheriff Smith and a band of horse thieves under the leadership of Charles Johnson, an alleged Mexican outlaw, for whom a big reward is offered by President Diaz. The officers raided a pasture where the horse thieves had rounded up a bunch of stolen animals. The fight followed. Johnson and several of his men were wounded and captured with their horses and guns. The officers escaped unhurt.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Bride of Two Months Kills Husband and Then Herself.

Woodsfield, Ohio, July 29.—Mrs. Everett Spice, aged twenty-nine, yesterday morning, killed her husband, aged twenty-one, and then killed herself. She shot her husband while he was asleep and then used the same weapon on herself. They had been married less than two months and were both well connected. It is thought that she was temporarily deranged.

SHOOTS STEPFATHER.

Indiana Girl Admits the Crime but Claims Self-Defense.

Kokomo, Ind., July 29.—Albert Milton, a local pugilist, was shot and killed here. His stepdaughter, Myrtle Smith, was arrested and charged with the homicide. She admits the shooting but pleads self-defense.

Money for the Reds.

White Earth, Minn., July 29. — The sum of $153,744, arising from the sale of dead-and-down timber cut on the Chippewa Indian reservation since 1889, will be paid per capita to the Indians interested early the coming fall.

Explosion Kills Two.

McCurtain, Ind. T., July 29. — Two men were killed and two others seriously burned by an explosion of gas yesterday in one of the Sansbert Coal company's mines, ten miles east of here.

WILL START UP A MINE.

Effort Will Be Made This Week to Break the Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 29.—The beginning of the eleventh week of the anthracite miners' strike finds apparently no change in the situation, although the rumor has been revived that an effort will be made some day this week on the part of one of the large companies to start up one of their collieries. The companies have a sufficient number of coal and iron policemen enlisted now to prevent trouble should it arise, and all that would be necessary to get a mine in operation would be a sufficient number of miners and laborers to blast the coal and load it on the cars. No doubt plenty of ordinary laborers could be secured to go into the workings. At strike headquarters the belief is as strong as ever that the operators cannot resume and that it is idle talk to even suggest such a thing. President Mitchell simply says that the situation is about the same and that the strikers are as firm as ever.

HAGGERTY'S RICH STRIKE.

An Old-Time Prospector Who Is Now a Millionaire.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 29.—James H. Haggerty, an old-time prospector, yesterday got assays on 200 pounds of Thunder mountain quartz in Salt Lake, showing a value of $3,513.90 per ton. And he has something like sixty tons of this quality piled upon his dump. Haggerty owns ten claims, known as the Perseverence group, out of which the samples were taken. He went into the country through a blizzard, on snowshoes, arriving there April 2, and has come out a millionaire in a little more than three months. He went right to prospecting, he says, and while men were hunting for property all around him, in quest of another Dewey mine, and others were sinking holes to a depth of ten feet in easy places, he sunk on the ledge and struck rich. Haggerty has prospected all over the West, and was in Shasta county, Cal., when the Thunder mountain fever caught him.

TAMS BIXBY RAIDS JOINTS.

Sworn in by Determined U. S. Marshal as Deputy.

Vinita, Ind. T., July 29—United States Marshal Bennet is raiding all gambling places in the Indian Territory, arresting the gamblers and burning their devices. He is closing up "Hop Ale" and "Simcos Mead" joints and arresting their operators. At Okmulgee he made a raid, and being in need of assistance, had Tams Bixby, acting chairman of the Indian commission, sworn in to assist him in his raids. Mr. Bixby led the van in the raid on gamblers, jointkeepers and booze peddlers.

KING CANNOT STAND.

May Be Carried in a Bath Chair to His Coronation.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, July 29.—King Edward is much better, but is not yet able to walk or stand. Yesterday for the first time his majesty used his new invalid chair, which enables him to move himself about.

-o-

London, July 29.—The Standard this morning, referring to the health of King Edward, expresses the opinion that his majesty will only be able to attend the coronation in a bath chair as an invalid.

BIG LIVE STOCK SHOW.

European Countries Will Be Asked to Send Their Best.

Washington, July 29.—Senator Harris of Kansas will go to Europe next week as the representative of the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis, to interest the horse and cattle breeders of England, Germany, France, Holland and Russia in that exposition and send some of their finest herds of cattle and best horses to the international live stock exhibition to be held in connection with the exposition.

AS BAD AS MARTINIQUE.

Costa Rican Scientists Say Volcanoes Promise Trouble.

San Jose, Costa Rica, July 29. — The official report of the commission appointed to inquire into the recent eruption of the Costa Rican volcanoes, Miravallis and Rincind de la Vieja, eight and sixty miles southeast of Lake Nicaragua, is alarming. Prof. Pittier says: "We are in the same conditions as the Island of Martinique." No alarm, however, is yet felt.

PROMPTED BY JEALOUSY.

Man Kills His Former Sweetheart and Then Commits Suicide.

Springfield, Mo., July 29. — Charles Weyley, aged twenty-five, of Norwood, Mo., late last night, shot and killed Miss Josephine Sheridan, his former sweetheart, at her home here and then shot and killed himself. Jealousy was probably the cause. The two had known each other for four years, and up to a month ago had been engaged to be married.

JILTED MAN TAKES LIFE.

Concludes Life Is Not Worth Living Without Sweetheart.

Clarinda, Iowa, July 29.—Harry Faber, traveling for a Keokuk firm, shot and killed himself because his sweetheart had jilted him. Torn bits of a letter and the revolver were by his side. The girl lives in Texas.

Wrecked by a Washout.

Tyler, Tex., July 29. — The southbound International & Great Northern passenger train was wrecked yesterday by a wash-out three miles south of White House. The engine was telescoped by the tender. The fireman was killed and the engineer injured.

Two Girls Drowned.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 29.—Anna and Rose Glaw, aged 6 and 16 years respectively, were drowned in Lake Erie yesterday. The girls, with two other children were sailing with their father when a squall overturned the boat.

Scourge of Plague.

Cairo, Egypt, July 29. — Fifty-two fresh cases of cholera and thirty-eight deaths from the disease were reported in this city yesterday. One English woman has been attacked by the disease.

ATTEMPT AT RIOT

NATIONALISTS AND SOCIALISTS TRY TO MAKE TROUBLE IN PARIS.

MILD DEMONSTRATIONS OCCUR

MANY FIGHTS TAKE PLACE BE-CLERICALS AND ANTI-CLERICALS.

PRIESTS ARE ROUGHLY HANDLED

A LARGE NUMBER OF WELL DRESSED WOMEN PARTICIPATE ACTIVELY.

Paris, July 29.—Dense crowds of Nationalists and Socialists filled the Rue Royale and Place de la Concorde yesterday and attempted to riot over the closing of the religious schools under the religious association law.

The mounted police charged the crowds at a trot and dispersed them without much trouble. A number of Socialists seized a priest and attempted to throw him into the Seine. The trouble did not prove as serious as it was expected it would, owing to the stringent measures of the police, which were energetically carried out.

Gen. Andre, minister of war, in a speech last night at La Roche declared that the government had decided to break up clerical which hitherto had prevented France from progressing as it should. Nothing that the adversaries of the republic could do would prevent Prime Minister Combes from carrying out the policy for which he had assumed office.

Tyranny and Despotism,

The demonstration yesterday proved to be quite as much of a manifestation in support of the government as of opposition to its anti-clerical measures. The crowd which gathered in the Place de la Concorde numbered 15,000 persons, while as many more thronged the Champs Elysees. The clerical and anti-clerical forces about equally divided the gatherings. The former were distinguishable by the red, white and blue paper flowers which they wore, while the latter sported red eglantines. Though many fights occurred, they nor was any person seriously injured. An imposing force of police and mounted municipal guards had much trouble in keeping the manifestants constantly moving, and at times they were forced to charge to prevent the crowd from becoming too dense.

Never Became General,

On the whole, the crowds were good natured and mainly confined themselves to shouting "Liberty! Liberty!" "Long live the Sisters!" and "We want the Sisters!" To which the anti-clericals replied: "Viva la republique!" and "Down with the priests!" The occasional appearance of a priest was a signal for much hooting and several fights were due to their presence. A striking feature of the manifestations was the large number of women, many of them well dressed,

Who Actively Participated.

Nor were these all clerical in their sympathies, for the anti-clerical women were also out in strong force, and they occasionally made things lively for their clerical sisters, whom the police had some difficulty in protecting. In one instance a detachment of mounted guards had to rescue three well dressed ladies from the hands of a group of Socialist women who were bent on mobbing them.

The clericals made several attempts to reach the Place Beauveau, on which the Elysee and the ministry of the interior are situated, but were prevented from doing so by strong cordons of police and municipal guards, which were stationed at all the approaches in order to prevent demonstrations in front of these buildings.

LOSS TO CASTRO.

Thousand Reinforcements Defeated by the Revolutionists.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, B.W. I., July 29. — The Venezuelan revolutionary general, Luciano Mendoza, learning that President Castro was receiving reinforcements from Trujillo, State of Los Andes, awaited near Alto de la Palma a body of these reinforcements 1,000 strong under command of Leopoldo Baptista. An engagement ensued, resulting in the defeat of the reinforcements by Mendoza's troops and the capture of their ammunition. The forces of Baptista were driven back to Carache, State of Los Andes.

"BLACK JACK" GONE.

Noted Desperado Is Killed in His Saloon in Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., July 29.—"Black Jack" MacDonald, a noted desperado, was shot and killed in his saloon at Juarez, Mex., late yesterday by an American whose name is unknown. The fight resulted from a game of dice in which "Black Jack" and three Americans were engaged. Two of the Americans fled, the other is held.

FAST STEAMERS ARE PLANNED.

Canadian Pacific Will Build Fourteen Vessels to Secure a Share in Proposed Bounty.

Montreal, July 29.—Four twenty-knot steamers and ten or eleven freighters are planned by the Canadian Pacific railway to be used in conjunction with its land lines. This is a result of the plan of the government to subsidize shipping to the extent of $1,500,000 annually.

FATAL FIST FIGHT.

Two Men Quarrel About Two Girls and One Man Is Killed.

Portland, Or., July 29.—Frank Carlson and George Baldwin, aged nineteen years, quarreled over two girls to whom both were paying attention. Carlson challenged Baldwin to fight. The fight took place with bare knuckles, and lasted about twenty minutes. At the end of that time Carlson received a blow in the stomach and fell to the ground. When picked up he was dead. Baldwin is in jail.

SHOOTING SCRAPE AT DULUTH.

One Man Fatally Injured as Result of a Quarrel.

Duluth, Minn., July 29.—James Taylor, master of the tug Abbott, of the local branch of the Great Lakes Towing company, last night shot George Wilson, engineer of the tug Raber, at West Superior. Two shots were fired, one striking Wilson on the hand and the other entering the stomach. Wilson is expected to die. The men quarreled over unionism. Capt. Taylor, who is under arrest in Duluth, claims that Wilson and others engaged in throwing rocks at his boat, and that he warned them before shooting not to repeat it, but they did not heed the warning.

WILL HAVE CLAMS AND DOGFIGHT

South Dakota Red Men to Enjoy a Day at Yankton.

Yankton, S. D., July 29. — Preparations for the Red Men clam bake and barbecue to be held Aug. 14, are going forward rapidly and smoothly. The day will be the biggest single day in South Dakota lodgedom. Excursion rates have been secured on all lines running into Yankton so low that they are bound to bring big crowds. The celebration, besides parades of lodges in costume for prizes, prize drills, etc., will include a regular down East clam bake and the barbecue of two big oxen and the sports will include a sparring match and bulldog fight.

WILL HARNESS A RIVER.

Wisconsin Industrial Concern Plans Immense Power Service.

Menomonie, Wis., July 29.—A corps of civil engineers from Chicago have just completed a survey of the Red Cedar river from Rice Lake, Barron county, to Downsville, this county, a distance of seventy miles, for the Knapp-Stout company, and are now formulating a plan for the electrical development of this extensive water power. The powers from the various falls between the points mentioned will be brought to this city by wire and will be used in various manufacturing industries.

SQUAW KILLS A BRAVE.

Whisky and Jealousy Cause Tragedy in Camp Near Tenghay.

White Earth, Minn., July 29. — Saturday night several Indians were encamped near Tenghay, having a general good time, and whisky flowed freely. A quarrel arose, and in the melee John W. Fairbanks, a member of this reservation residing at Beaulieu, was stabbed and killed by his wife. It is reported that jealousy and whisky were the cause of the murder. The murderess fled and has not yet been apprehended.

BOOKEEPER MISSING.

An Apparent Shortage of Over Sixteen Hundred Dollars.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 29.—R. C. Smith, bookkeeper for Collins & Stinson, machinery dealers, is missing. A hasty examination of his books shows an apparent shortage of over $1,600, which it is believed will be reduced when the books are more perfectly audited. Smith came here last January and his father is understood to live in New York. He is about twenty-three years old.

FOND DU LAC IS FLOODED.

Streets of Wisconsin Town Are Turned Into Raging Torrents.

Fond du Lac, Wis., July 29.—Fond du Lac was flooded by a rain storm which turned some of the principal streets into raging torrents and tore up many blocks of cedar pavement. The rainfall aggregated 3.23 inches, and the damage in the city alone is estimated at $50,000. The crops are seriously damaged and many oat fields cannot be saved.

SERIOUS FOR FARMERS.

There Is a Scarcity of Harvest Hands in South Dakota.

Miller, S. D., July 29.—The farmers here are confronted with quite a problem of harvesting their immense crops of wheat and other small grain, and particularly hay, as they are the lines usually followed by harvest hands. The difficulty is liable to be a serious loss to many who have insufficient help.

CATCHES BURGLAR ALONE.

Single - Handed Capture After a Chase Into a Cornfield.

Currie, Minn., July 29. — Charles E. Price's clothing store was broken into last night. Charles Gorman took after the burglar and ran him into a corn field just west of town, where he captured him single handed. The burglar has a broken nose. He is in jail.

Rain Checks a Fire.

Waterloo, Iowa, July 29.—East Waterloo was visited by a fire early yesterday which did damage to the extent of $80,000. It originated in the basement of the Waterloo Fruit & Commission company. The firemen were almost helpless but a heavy rain checked the flames. Three business blocks were burned.

Longshoremen Raise the Price.

Duluth, Minn., July 29.—The longshoremen's union raised the price of loading all boats not in the Lumber Carriers' association and with the owners of those vessels with which the union has no contract, 10 cents an hour above the scale, which is 52 1-2 cents an hour.

Killilea Is Dead.

Winneconne, Wis., July 29.—Matthew Killilea, the well known baseball magnate, died here yesterday after an illness of several months. Though he had not been confined to his bed until three weeks ago, it was known that his illness was fatal.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Lamberton, Minn., July 29.—Yesterday morning Willie Roth, the sixteen-year-old son of John Roth, was accidentally shot while placing a gun in a buggy on his uncle's farm near here. His condition is critical.

New Lumber Concern.

Menomonie, Wis., July 29.—The Wisconsin Lumber company has been organized and incorporated here and will establish retail yards at a number of points, including Menomonie, Durand and Elmwood.

DEED OF BOOZERS

FIVE MEN ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TROLLEY CAR AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

SEVEN PASSENGERS INJURED

REAR-END COLLISION IN WHICH BOTH CARS ARE WRECKED.

OBSTRUCTIONS ON THE TRACK

CREW OF ONE CAR STOPS TO REMOVE THEM AND IS RUN INTO BY ANOTHER CAR.

Rochester, N. Y., July 29.—An attempt by five men to wreck an incoming trolley car at the rifle range, a short distance north of this city on the Rochester & Irondequoit railway late last night resulted in a rear-end collision in which seven passengers were seriously and several others slightly injured and two score more passengers narrowly escaped.

Shortly before 10 o'clock car 457 left Summerville, on Lake Ontario, bound for the city, heavily laden with passengers, with orders not to stop at the rifle range, which is a flag station only. As the car approached this point the motorman discovered an obstruction on the track and brought his car to a stop just in the nick of time. The obstruction, which consisted of several lengths of picket fencing and other material, had been placed on the track by five men under the influence of liquor, because, as they said, they had attempted to flag other in-bound cars without success, and determined to make sure of the next attempt. While the crew of car 457 was trying to clear the track in order to proceed, car 454, also in-bound, came along at a rapid speed and crashed into the rear of the car ahead. The vestibules on both cars were smashed and their interiors were wrecked. The police are making every effort to apprehend the five men who placed the obstruction on the track. They disappeared immdiately after the wreck and have not yet been captured.

"PREXY" ADAMS DIES IN WEST.

Former President of University of Wisconsin, Passes Away in California After Long Illness.

Redlands, Cal., July 29.—Dr. Charles Kendall Adams, aged sixty-seven years, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin, died yesterday from Bright's disease, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Adams, who was exhausted by her months of care for her husband, is prostrated by his death. Dr. Adams has been ailing for several years. While president of the university he was granted a long leave of absence, going to Europe, where he seemed to recuperate. Shortly after returning to his work about a year ago the ailment which affected him soon told upon his system, and at the end of a few months he resigned and came to California. The end came painlessly and was the result of a relapse similar to many which had occurred during the past week.

CUT OFF AT THE AGE OF 130.

Native of India With Romantic Career Is Dead.

San Francisco, July 29.—Aupi Mam Mari, a native of India, who has resided in this city as far back as the memory of the white man runs, is dead at the age of 130 years. Aupi Mam Mari had a most romantic career. According to the story of his life, told several years ago, before his mind became clouded, he was the son of an Indian prince and was kidnapped when he was a child and taken to the Hawaiian islands. There he lived for some years a slave to a Chinese planter, and finally came to California as a fugitive. From a Malay on a sailing vessel he learned that his father and brothers had wasted years in trying to trace him and had finally met death in resistance to British rule in their own country.

MAKES THRILLING LEAP.

Young Man Jumps From a High Bridge in Presence of a Large Crowd.

Clinton, Iowa, July 29.—Peter Lind of Chicago, aged twenty years, yesterday made a thrilling leap from the high bridge which spans the Mississippi river here. Fully 10,000 people watched the youth make the perilous leap to the water, 108 feet below. He turned a complete backward somersault and landed square on his feet in the water. Dozens of skiffs and a number of steam launches were near by ready to render all assistance necessary, if help was needed, but the precaution was unnecessary, as the young man quickly came to the top, climbed into a skiff and was rowed toward shore.

FOUND IN THE DEBRIS.

Body of an Unknown Man Taken From the Wreck of the Train at Etter.

Hastings, Minn., July 29.—An unidentified body of a man was found in the debris of the railway wreck at Etter yesterday afternoon. Coroner F. W. Kramer had the remains, minus one leg, brought to this city to be prepared for burial. The man was about thirty years of age, of dark complexion and dressed in a blue serge suit, with gaiter shoes.

CHEMISTS FIND ACONITE.

Some Light May Be Thrown on the Deaths of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 29.—Aconite was found in the stomach of Mrs. J. C. McCormick by the chemists at the University of Minnesota. This was, therefore, the cause of the deaths of both Mr. and Mrs. McCormick. The inquest will be resumed to-day and the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will be investigated, and it is expected that some light will be thrown on the bath tub tragedy of three weeks ago.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Overflow From the Wires in a Condensed Form.

The Petit Bleu announces that King Leopold has obtained from China a concession of 125 hectares (about 309 acres) of land north of Tien-tsin.

The body of the late John W. Mackay, who died in London recently, will not be brought to the United States until September, Mrs. Mackay's health forbidding her earlier departure.

"Farmer" Martin Burns won his wrestling match at Davenport, Iowa, with Charles Wittmer of Cincinnati. Burns won two falls, catch-as-catch-can, Wittmer winning the first fall, Graeco-Roman.

Gen. Lord Methuen, who was wounded and captured by the Boers, but subsequently released, and who arrived in England early this month, has undergone a successful operation for the extraction of bullets from his leg.

Philip H. Kumler, aged sixty-five, a prominent attorney, died suddenly at his home in Cincinnati from cholera morbus. He has been city solicitor, United States district attorney, common pleas for many years and held other public positions.

The correspondent in St. Petersburg of the London Daily Mail reports that cholera has broken out in the government of Astrakhan, European Russia, and that fifteen deaths were recorded last Friday. The government is keeping the fact of the epidemic secret.

National Secretary Anthony Matre, of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, reports the program complete for the second national convention in Chicago Aug 5, 6 and 7, and that the indications are that the convention will be the most representative gathering of Catholics ever held in this country.

Carl F. Klotz, to whom letters patent for an airship were recently granted, died in Indianapolis of cancer of the stomach. He was a machinist, born in Germany in 1845. He has made a study of airships for years and had invented a controllable ship which he was to enter in the trials at St. Louis during the exposition.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 29. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 80 @ 81c; No 2 Northern, 75@77c. Oats—No. 3 white, 50@51c; No. 3, 48@50c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 63@64c; No. 3, 61@63c.

Minneapolis, July 29.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 80c; No. 1 Northern, 78c; No. 2 Northern, 73 3-4c.

Duluth, July 29.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 78 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 76c; No. 2 Northern, 74c; No. 3 spring, 72 1-2c; Manitoba, 76c; oats, 33 1-4c; rye, 53 1-4c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 29. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 79 @ 79 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 78@78 1-2c; September, 72c. Rye—No. 1, 61 1-2c. Barley—No. 2, 70c. Oats—No. 2 white, 61 1-2@62c. Corn—September, 60 1-8@68 1-4c.

Chicago, July 29. — Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 76c; No. 3 red, 71 @ 73c; No. 2 hard winter, 74c; No. 3 hard winter, 72@73c; No. 1 Northern spring, 78 1-2c; No. 2 Northern spring, 77c; No. 3 spring, 70@76c. Cash Corn—No. 2, 66 1-2@67c; No. 3, 65 @ 65 1-2c. Cash Oats—No. 2, 51c; No. 3, 45c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 29. — Cattle — Beeves, $5.50 @ 7.25; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@5; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.50; yearlings and calves, $2.50@4. Hogs, $7.20@7.60; bulk, $7.35@7.45.

Chicago, July 29. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $7.85@8.75; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.25; heifers, $2.25@6.50, calves, $2.50 @ 6.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $7.15 @ 7.95; good to choice heavy, $7.70@8.02 1-2. Sheep—Good to choice wethers, $4.25@5; fair to choice mixed, $2.75@4.25; Western sheep, $2.50@4.75; native lambs, $3@7.

South St. Paul, July 29. — Cattle — Choice butcher steers, $7@7.50; good, $6@6.75; choice butcher cows and heifers, $5.25@6; good to choice veals, $4.50@5.50; good to choice feeding steers, $3.75@4.75; good to choice stock steers, $3@3.40; steer calves, $2@3.25; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.65@3. Hogs—Price range, $7.35 @ 7.55; bulk, $7.35@7.45; rough sorts, $6.65. Sheep—Fancy lambs, $5.60@5.75; good to choice fat lambs, $5.25@5.50; good to choice yearling wethers, $3.75@4.25; heavy wethers, $3.50@3.75.

COOKED ALIVE.

Two Workmen Fall Into a Boiler in a Mill.

Dyersburg, Tenn., July 29. — Will Young and Dan McAuliffe met a horrible death while repairing a steam pipe at a mill here. The scaffolding on which they were working gave way and they fell onto one of the boilers and were literally cooked, the flesh dropping from them in large pieces when they were pulled out.

Famous Doctor Suicides.

Washington, July 29. — Dr. Eugene Grissom, once well known as an alienist and neurologist, committed suicide here yesterday at his son's home, No. 1227 G street northeast, by sending a bullet through his brain. Dr. Grissom had been dejected and morose for several weeks and had become physically and mentally weakened from the use of strong narcotics.

Found a Mangled Body.

Plattsville, Colo., July 29.—The badly mangled body of a man was found on the Union Pacific tracks two and one-half miles south of here yesterday. He was fairly well dressed and in his pockets were cards bearing the names of George McLean, E. Jones and C. A. Cameron.

Killed by a Stray Bullet.

Springfield, Ohio, July 29.—Mrs. William Gebauer, wife of a well known merchant, was shot yesterday and died from a stray bullet fired by Homer Beekford, who was intent on shooting another person.

Ruins Crops in Great Britain.

London, July 29. — The gale which prevailed in England Saturday caused great destruction to crops throughout the United Kingdom. Incoming steamers report terrific weather on the Atlantic.

FITZ KNOCKED OUT

JEFFRIES PUTS CORNISHMAN TO SLEEP IN THE EIGHTH ROUND.

TWO LUCKY PUNCHES DID IT

FITZSIMMONS HAD ALL THE BEST OF FIGHT AND LOOKED SURE WINNER.

CHAMPION TERRIBLY POUNDED

BRIEF BATTLE THAT WILL LIVE LONG IN PUGILISTIC HISTORY.

San Francisco, July 27.—After fighting a battle of eight rounds that was fraught with brilliant and courageous work, Robert Fitzsimmons last night forfeited his last claim upon the heavy-weight championship. He was knocked to the floor by James Jeffries and counted out after he had so badly punished the champion that it was a foregone conclusion among the spectators that the Cornishman must win. Bleeding from a number of gashes in the face, apparently weakening, and clearly unable to cope with Fitzsimmons' superior skill, Jeffries delivered two lucky punches at Fitzsimmons paused in his fighting to speak to him, and turned the tide. The battle was brief but noteworthy, and will live in pugilistic history.

Fitzsimmons tried once to arise from the mat, but sank down again in helplessness and heard himself counted out, where but a moment before he had apparently all the better of it.

Fitz Says Best Man Won.

"I will never fight again," said the battle-scarred veteran of the ring, when he had sufficiently recovered to talk. "The fight was won fairly, and to the best man belongs the laurels."

"You are the most dangerous man alive," said Jeffries in return, "and I consider myself lucky to have won when I did."

Fitzsimmons had been fighting at a furious gait, cool and deliberate, and chopping the champion to pieces with the terrific rights and lefts that have made him famous.

It was the draft horse and the racer from the tap of the gong. When the men came together Fitzsimmons appeared rather worried, but upon the opening of the first round he assumed an air of absolute confidence, and fought with the deliberation of the general that he is. As early as the second round Fitz had Jeff bleeding profusely from the mouth and nose.

Again and Again He Landed on his bulky opponent, getting away in such a clever manner that it brought down the house with cheers.

It seemed indeed that Jeffries could scarcely weather out the gale. In the eighth round it came, and under a series of hot exchanges Fitzsimmons paused with his guard down and spoke to the champion. The latter's reply consisted of the two terrible blows that brought back to him the fleeting championship and forever removed the veteran Fitzsimmons from the fistic arena. Fitzsimmons took his defeat with amazing good cheer. He walked to the center of the ring and, raising his hand, addressed the multitude, saying:

"The best man has won. Had I beaten Jeffries to-night, I would have conceded him the championship and then forever retired. I retire just the same now, but without having accomplished my ambition. I am satisfied."

Jeffries Is Jubilant.

After the fight Champion Jeffries was seen in his dressing room. He was jubilant over his success despite the terrible scars of battle. He said to the Associated Press:

"Well, I have won, just as I expected to. It was a fierce fight, the fiercest I ever had, but I won. Yes, I got a good beating as far as the marks of battle count, but then I rather expected that. I knew Fitzsimmons had a cutting punch and would land it at some time of the fight. But the few marks and the loss of a little blood won't hurt a man. I took them and only waited for the opportunity to land my punch. I found out Fitz could not far me, even with his famous right. He cut me up, of course, but that didn't hurt. I never was tired at any stage and was stronger than Fitzsimmons at all stages. You saw that he wore heavy bandages. It was these that cut me up. I wore no bandages. Fitz certainly is a wonder. He is the greatest fighter of his weight that ever lived. As old as he is he is the shiftiest and cleverest, the hardest hitting man I ever met."

KING IS DOING NICELY.

Projects Discussed to Save Him Exertion on Coronation Day.

London, July 27.—The fullest satisfaction is expressed at King Edward's progress, but as his majesty is still unable to walk projects are being mooted for the adoption of means to avoid exertion at the coronation. Among others are that the king sleep at the deanery of Westminster on the night previous to the day of his coronation and enter the abbey by another door in order that he may avoid the long walk of some 400 feet from the entrance of the Abbey to the throne, also that modifications be made in the coronation ceremony so that his majesty may avoid wearing the heavy investure robes and sword.

WOMAN KILLS HERSELF.

Mrs. Davis, Wife of Sam I. Davis of Le Sueur.

Le Sueur, Minn., July 27.—Mrs. Jennie Davis, wife of Sam I. Davis of the Park hotel, committed suicide early yesterday morning by shooting herself in the mouth with a 32-caliber revolver. Her husband found her dead at 7 o'clock. She was thirty-eight years of age and left a son of twelve years. She had been ill for some months and is believed to have been temporarily insane.

TWO KILLED IN CRASH ON RAILS.

Collision Near Hasting on the Milwaukee Road.

Hastings, Minn., July 27. — Northbound passenger train No. 5 on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul was wrecked at 9:20 o'clock last night at Etter, in collision with ten box cars left in some unaccountable manner on the main track by a freight train which had been switching cars at the station. The killed are Peter Burns of Lake City and an unidentified tramp. The passenger train, coming through from Chicago, consisted of eight cars. It was making about forty miles an hour at the time of the accident. The engine and tender went down the embankment, carrying the mail car off the rails. The coaches kept the track and none of the passengers were hurt. Several were badly shaken up, but escaped with a few scratches. The mail clerk and an express messenger were badly bruised. William Chadwick, the engineer, was terribly burned by the escaping steam, and was also severely bruised about the head and body.

HAIL RUINS GRAIN.

Redwood County Suffers Greatly and Wisconsin Is Also Hit.

Marshall, Minn., July 27.—One of the most disastrous hailstorms known in this vicinity occurred at noon yesterday. A strip of country thirty miles long and six miles wide was struck and the crops totally destroyed, including grain which was cut and in the shock. Redwood county suffered the greatest loss. Only a strip of eastern Lyon county was affected. No damage west of here.

Menomonie, Wis.—A terrific storm of wind, rain and hail passed over Dunn county yesterday afternoon, lodging hundreds of acres of heavy grain, riddling tobacco and corn in many districts and doing incalculable damage to farm crops over a wide area.

Madelia, Minn.—One of the worst hailstorms ever known in this section of the country occurred east of here late yesterday afternoon. It is impossible to give a reasonable estimate of the damage, several hundred acres of the grain being totally destroyed.

LONE WOMAN IS RELEASED.

South Dakota Prison's Only Female Inmate Given Freedom.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 27.—In accordance with the pardon granted by Gov. Herreid upon recommendation of the state board of pardons, Mrs. Vanie Dickman, the only woman inmate of the Sioux Falls penitentiary, was yesterday released from custody and permitted to return to her home in Brule county to serve one year for adultery. She had been in the prison only a few weeks. The pardon was also recommended by the state board of charities and corrections and Dr. W. A. Germain of this city, the prison physician, because of the rapidly declining health of Mrs. Dickman.

Dividends Come Regularly.

Lead, S. D., July 27.—The Homestake Mining company has declared its 285th consecutive dividend. The July dividend is 50 cents per share, amounting to $105,000, and is payable at the principal office of the company in New York. With this dividend the Homestake will have distributed $11,388,750 among its stockholders, without missing a monthly payment during a period of twenty-three years and nine months.

Two Children Drowned.

St. Paul, July 27.—Mary Seller, fifteen years old, and Josephine Kastner were drowned soon after noon yesterday in Long lake, twelve miles from the city. Josephine Kastner lost her life by jumping into the lake to save her cousin, Mary Seller, and little Willie Kastner, eight and a half years old, was nearly drowned in a brave attempt to save the lives of his sister and his cousin.

Body Found in Red River.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 27. — The body of a man was found yesterday in the Red river. In the pockets of the deceased were found a rosary and other articles and the address of James E. Ryan, with the addresses Escanaba, Mich., and 1330 Superior street, Duluth. The man had evidently been dead several days. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of drowning.

Drove His Daughter From Home.

Crookston, Minn., July 27. — Action has been commenced against Cass Gillette, formerly a sawyer in the lumber mills here, now a resident of Red Lake Falls, to compel him to support his fourteen-year-old daughter, whom he has driven from his home. Three years ago the girl's mother died, Gillette marrying again, and the girl has not agreed with the second wife.

Paralysis Takes a Pioneer.

Osceola, Wis., July 27.—Joseph Corey, a pioneer resident of this county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Isaac Hale, from the result of a stroke of paralysis he received over six months ago. Mr. Corey was about eighty years of age and a veteran of the civil war, having served with distinction in Company F, Fourth Wisconsin cavalry.

Dead Man Identified.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 27.—The man killed at Altoona by a train Wednesday has been identified as Carl Koehler, a prominent architect of Seattle, father of Mrs. Glen Meyer of Chicago.

Two Men Scalded to Death.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 27. — While Orrin and Charles Johnson, brothers, were crossing a bridge with a traction engine the bridge broke and they were scalded to death.

Cattle and Horses Killed.

Alma, Wis., July 27. — The town of Lincoln was visited by a heavy storm. The large barn of August Schoepp at Cream, Wis., was blown over and is a total loss. Three valuable horses were killed, also cattle.

Swallowed Paris Green and Died.

Prentice, Wis., July 27. — Connor F. Goffin, a nineteen-year-old boy living eight miles west of here, committed suicide by taking paris green. He lived several hours after taking the poison.

ARE IN CONTEMPT

JUDGE JACKSON SENTENCES AGITATORS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

HAD VIOLATED AN INJUNCTION

ALL ARE SENTENCED TO JAIL WITH THE EXCEPTION OF "MOTHER" JONES.

DEFENDANTS ARE SURPRISED

CRITICISE BITTERLY THE DECISION OF THE COURT—WILL APPEAL.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 26.—Judge Jackson, in the United States district court, yesterday held "Mother" Jones and seven other organizers of the United Mineworkers and a a number of Hungarian miners guilty of contempt in violating his injunction order of June 19 and passed sentence on them of from sixty to ninety days in jail with the exception of "Mother" Jones and the Hungarians.

The occasion had been anticipated with anxiety so that many society ladies as well as attorneys, operators and miners were present. It was currently reported that the house of Judge Jackson had been guarded for several nights, and that guards were in the court room. It is stated that this was done without the knowledge of the judge. There was intense interest shown by every one as Judge Jackson earnestly read his decision.

Defendants Are Surprised.

"Mother" Jones was surrounded by other defendants and Vice President Lewis of the United Mineworkers was with them. The defendants were surprised with both the decision and the sentences, and expressed themselves bitterly.

Counsel for the imprisoned miners are preparing for habeas corpus proceedings in the United States court of appeals at Richmond, Va., alleging Judge Jackson had no jurisdiction in the cases of "Mother" Jones and her associates. John J. Coniff of Wheeling and one of the counsel of the miners will leave at once for Richmond to present habeas corpus papers. He said the proceedings here were brought not by the representatives of the fuel company but by a bondholder, and for that reason an ouster will be asked.

Sentences Considered Severe.

While the sentences given are considered severe, it is anticipated that Judge Jackson will deal firmly with W. B. Wilson, secretary of the United Mineworkers, who has also been held in contempt, but who is at his home in Detroit. Attorney Blizzard filed an affidavit stating that Secretary Wilson violated the injunction of June 19 by making an inflamatory speech at Clarksburg on July 5. Judge Jackson issued an order that Wilson be arrested and brought within the jurisdiction of his court. Haggerty, who was given ninety days, was an organizer. He lived at Reynoldsville, Pa. Rice and Morgan are also organizers and members of the board of United Mineworkers. Rice lives at Dubois, Pa., and Morgan in Massillon, Ohio. These organizers and others were working in the mines of West Virginia when Judge Jackson issued his order. The prisoners have been distributed among the jails of a half-dozen or more counties.

Mitchell Is Angry.

Chicago, July 26. — President John Mitchell of the United Mineworkers, who is in Chicago, expressed his disapproval of the court's action. He said that the decision was an outrage, and that it would take away from citizens all the rights and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution, and would shake the confidence of the people in the stability of the judiciary. He added that Judge Jackson's decision would be laid before President Roosevelt at once with protests, and that the president would be asked to intercede in behalf of American citizenship. The cases will be carried to the United States supreme court.

EXODUS OF CHINKS.

Commissioner of Immigration and His Helpers Have Been Very Busy and to Good Effect.

Washington, July 26.—Wholesale deportations of Chinese laborers who have come to the United States in violation of law will occur during the present month, and for the remainder of this year. There is great activity on the part of Commissioner General Sargent of the immigration bureau and his assistants, who have filled the jails along the northern border with Chinese who have slipped into the United States when the officials were not looking. The culprits were apprehended later, however, and as a result thirty-one coolies will sail for their native land next Monday. They will embark at San Francisco and come from a number of Eastern and Western cities, where they were arrested.

Rioters Are Punished.

Paris, July 26. — Penalties varying from the payment of a fine of 5 francs to three months have been imposed upon seven of the persons arrested for having taken part in the demonstrations in connection with the closing of the congregationalist schools. It is asserted that Abbe Bardinal, the cure at Levallois, a suburb of Paris, who was prominent in the disturbances, will be disciplined.

Passenger Train Wrecked.

Omaha, July 26. — The west-bound passenger train on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific was wrecked three miles west of South Omaha at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fireman was killed and two were injured.

Church Bears Bishop's Name.

Anoka, Minn., July 26. — The Joyce M. E. church, in the town of Anoka, has been dedicated. This is the only church of the denomination that bears the bishop's name. He conducted the dedicatory services.

FOUR MILES PER MINUTE.

Chicago Millionaires Back an Airship Project.

Chicago, July 27.—The coterie of Chicago millionaires, John W. Gates, John A. Drake, Isaac L. Ellwood, John Lambert and Orson C. Wells, who forced the price of corn to 90 cents, have become interested in aerial navigation. The man around whom they have centered their attentions is E. L. Drake, a country doctor of Winchester, Tenn. Through communications the inventor received assurances of financial aid of the Chicago capitalists, and yesterday a $3,000,000 corporation was formed to push the completion of a machine which the inventor claims will penetrate the skies at a speed of 250 miles an hour. The flying machine will be entered in the aerial races at the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Gates was enthusiastic over the prospects of riding through the heavens at the rate of four miles a minute, and said, in speaking about the venture:

"It is a serious matter—no wind or air in the deal. Drake wanted something to startle the world. Here it is. He ought to be able to soar, and I'm willing to have him take a chance with some of my money. I'm in for $100,000 and I hope he wins out."

ISSUED BOGUS TICKETS.

Alleged Railroad Ticket Forgers Are Arrested in Chicago.

Chicago, July 27.—Four men and a woman, who are said to compose a gang of railroad ticket forgers, were arrested yesterday by detectives from the central police station. The headquarters of the band were raided by officers immediately after the arrests had been made, and $4,000,000 worth of bogus railroad tickets found. Besides this there was a full outfit of inks, blank tickets, ticket punches and other tools necessary to carry on the work. One of the prisoners is Charles J. Allardt, a well known ticket scalper and proprietor of the National ticket office, at 192 Clark street. Allardt is said to be the head of the gang and has been in trouble over the same kind of work before. There are two indictments now pending against him. According to the police some of the prisoners have told their connections with the affair. All the Western roads and most of the Eastern lines have been victimized to the extent of thousands of dollars by means of bogus tickets.

CHURCHILL IN POLITICS.

The American of That Name Going Into New Hampshire Legislature.

Concord, N. H., July 27. — Winston Churchill, the author, will probably be a notable figure in the next legislature of this state. He has announced to the residents of Cornish, his summer home, that he is a candidate for membership. There can be no question as to his eligibility, as he spends nearly half the year in New Hampshire, which he claims as his political home. Voters in that part of the state are staking their reputations as prophets on the statement that Mr. Churchill will be given a practically unanimous vote.

DAMS BROKE.

Town Flooded and Manufacturing Establishments Shut Down.

Irwin, Pa., July 27.—Not a manufacturing establishment in town is running as a result of last night's storm. The breaking of the two dams flooded the entire western part of Irwin, and at Coal Hollow, houses, bridges and railroad sidings were washed away. The big Westmoreland car shops were damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars. In the country many coal shafts are flooded and dozens of bridges have been destroyed.

BY WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Clarence Mackay Receives News of His Father's Death.

Mackay, son of the late John W. Mackay, Queenstown, July 27. — Clarence H. who was a passenger on board the Cunard line steamer Campania from New York, July 19, which arrived here to-day, received the news of his father's death by wireless telegraphy at 3 p. m., July 24, from the westbound steamer Saxonia of the same line. Mr. Mackay received a large number of telegrams here. The wireless news created the greatest sympathy for Mr. Mackay among the Campania's passengers.

CUBAN FINANCES.

Budget Calls for $3,917,363 for Education.

Havana, July 27.—At a cabinet meeting held yesterday Senor Yero, secretary of public instruction, presented the budget of his department, showing the amount required for educational purposes to be $3,917,363. Senor Diaz, secretary of public works, submitted an estimate of the value of the buildings at Camp Columbia, which he placed at $250,000.

TALK ANNEXATION.

Planters of Larger West Indian Islands Are Dissatisfied.

Kingston, Jam., July 27. — All the planters of the larger West Indian islands are talking of annexation to the United States owing to their dissatisfaction over the small amount of money contributed by the imperial government to help the sugar industry. The newspapers reject the idea, but the annexation feeling is evidently growing among the planters.

PUZZLE FOR DOCTORS.

How to Account for Life Remaining After Wounds Like These.

Baltimore, July 27.—An investigation by the coroner into the death of Mrs. Cecilia M. Sullivan, from bullet wounds self-inflicted, shows that she lived eighteen hours, part of which time she was conscious, with one bullet wound through the heart, another that penetrated the stomach, liver and spleen, and one that grazed the heart.

His Neck Broken by a Fall.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, July 27. — Dan Condon's body was found in an alley at midnight, with his neck broken. He had fallen fourteen feet from a landing on a stairway. He was despondent and out of work.

To Serve on Miles' Staff.

Washington, July 27. — Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles has selected Col. John B. Babcock, senior colonel of the adjutant general's department, as his chief of staff to succeed Gen. Thomas Ward, retired.

WELCOME IS WARM

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TENDERED AN OVATION IN NEW JERSEY.

REVIEWS THE NATIONAL GUARD

STATIONS ALONG THE ROUTE THRONGED BY THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE.

TALKS TO THE GUADSMEN

PRAISES THE NATIONAL GUARD AND PROMISES TO GIVE IT HELP.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 26.—No president ever received a more sincere, heartfelt and patriotic welcome than that accorded yesterday to President Roosevelt by the people of New Jersey. From the time he landed on New Jersey soil at the Atlantic Highland pier at 1:35 yesterday afternoon until he left in his launch for the war yacht Mayflower, anchored several miles off the pier, at 3:15, he was the recipient of a continuous ovation.

The president, on invitation of Gov. Franklin Murphy, extended through Senator Kean, visited the encampment of the Second brigade of the national guard of the state at Sea Girt. Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt and Assistant Secretary Loeb, the president left Sagamore Hill at 7 o'clock yesterday morning and boarded the Mayflower, his official naval vessel, from a launch. The run to within sight of Atlantic Highlands was made in five hours, but the vessel came to anchor there as the water was too shallow to admit of her approaching the pier.

Welcomed by the Governor.

Maj. Franklin Murphy, Jr., and Capt. Parker of the governor's staff, boarded the Mayflower from a launch and conveyed the greetings of Gov. Murphy and the people of New Jersey. Soon afterward, at 1:35, the president and his party landed at the pier from the Mayflower's electric launch while the harbor resounded with the din of steam whistles and cheers of people in craft of every sort which scurried about the pier. As President Roosevelt and his party stepped upon the pier they were greeted by Gov. Murphy, Senators Kean and Dryden, Former Secretary Cornelius N. Bliss of New York, and the governor's staff in gorgeous uniforms.

The party was conducted to a special train of Pullman cars in waiting and started immediately for Sea Girt. The run was made in forty-five minutes. At every town along the route elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the president.

Greeted by Thousands.

Ten thousand people greeted the presidential party at the Sea Girt station. After a brief rest and an informal reception at the governor's cottage President Roosevelt and Gov. Murphy and staff reviewed the troops in camp, the president being mounted on a magnificent chestnut bay. At the conclusion of the review Mr. Roosevelt was escorted to a stand adjoining the parade ground and there addressed the assembled troops and the multitude which had gathered and which numbered nearly 15,000.

The president complimented the national guardsmen of New Jersey upon their soldierly bearing and spoke in highest terms of the national guard in general.

At 3:15 the presidential party again boarded the special train and amid the cheers of the thousands started for Atlantic Highlands, arriving at the pier at 4 o'clock. At 4:05 the party left for the Mayflower in a steam launch.

BIG "HARMONY" MEETING.

Four Thousand Democrats Listen to Bryan and Other Leaders.

Boston, July 26.—Nearly 4,000 Democrats gathered at Nantasket yesterday and participated in the "harmony" meeting arranged by the New England Democratic League, the new political organization which is expected to develop its strength in the fall campaign. Mayor P. A. Collins of this city acted as "moderator," as he expressed it, and presented in order Edward M. Shepard of New York, Senator Edward W. Carmack of Tennessee and William J. Bryan of Nebraska, who expounded and discussed the issues of this campaign to the marked satisfaction of the audience. Col. W. A. Gaston and Charles S. Hamlin, rival candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Massachusetts, were both present, while Lewis Nixon of New York and Congressman Wilson of that state and John R. Thayer of Massachusetts were conspicuous among the guests.

TWO NEGROES LYNCHED.

Race War Is Feared Near Philippi, West Virginia.

Philippi, W. Va., July 26.—Two negroes whose names were unknown were lynched at Womelsdorf, near here, by an angry mob numbering several hundred. The first black man was shot and killed in the station house, the second was taken to the park, where he was hanged, then riddled with bullets and cut to pieces. Both whites and negroes are enraged and in arms. More trouble is hourly expected. The trouble grows out of the murder of Chief Bud Wilmoth on July 22.

Advance in Coal.

New York, July 26.—There was an advance in the retail price of anthracite coal yesterday to $8 a ton for all sizes. This is an increase of 50 cents a ton to the users of domestic sizes and 75 cents to users of steam sizes.

Killed by Storm.

Indianapolis, July 26.—A severe electrical storm passed north of the city last night, instantly killing one man, fatally injuring a boy and destroying a number of barns, a church and causing other damage.

CROWDS WATCH CHILD BURN.

Though He Could Have Easily Been Rescued No One Makes a Move.

Minneapolis, July 24.—Johnny Beach, the four-year-old son of Leslie Beach, 1717 Third street northeast, was burned to death yesterday morning while a crowd of fifty men and women, some of whom, it is said, could easily have rescued the boy, stood about the burning Beach home and watched the little boy as he slowly roasted to death within their sight. Plainly visible from the street below, the boy was seen trying to raise the attic window. With his scorched hands the little fellow finally broke the glass and screamed frantically to those below to save him. Any active man among the crowd could have successfully climbed to the top of a porch near the window and rescued the boy, but through thoughtlessness, fear or indifference, none made the attempt. Little by little the boy's screams grew fainter until he finally fell back into the flames. The fire was started by the boy while he was playing in the attic with matches. The house and contents were completely destroyed.

TO SAIL THE LAKES.

Contracts Are Awarded for Three More Modern Ships.

Duluth, July 24. — President W. L. Brown and General Manager J. C. Wallace of the American Shipbuilding company were in the city yesterday and left for Chicago late in the afternoon with contracts for three more modern lake ships in their possession. G. A. Thompson, who gave the company an order for a 7,000-net tons ship last Saturday, gave it another order yesterday for a duplicate ship. The former was for the Superior Steamship company, and the order yesterday was for the Duluth Steamship company. The boats will be 436 feet over all. Each boat will cost $250,000. The other two boats for which contracts were awarded were for the Provident Steamship company, of which Commodore A. B. Wolvin is the head. Each boat is to be 400 feet over all, to cost $225,000 each.

ANOTHER GOLD FIND.

Quartz Ledge Discovered Adjoining the Dousman Farm.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 24.—Another ledge of gold-bearing quartz has been discovered on the bluffs belonging to Frank Smrcina. These bluffs adjoin the Dousman property, upon which the first discovery of gold in Wisconsin was made last November, and where a large force of men are now employed, and the quartz which is being taken out is bringing in more satisfactory results. Blasting began on the Smrcina property yesterday. Specimens have been sent in, and the assays prove that the discovery is quite valuable. A large force of men are now at work, with a view of ascertaining the full extent of the ledge.

WISCONSIN GUARDSMEN.

They Will Begin Their Encampment at Camp Douglas, Aug. 2.

Milwaukee, July 24. — The encampment of the Wisconsin National Guardsmen begins at Camp Douglas Aug. 2. The First regiment will be the first to enter camp, and will remain one week, returning Aug. 9. The Second and Third regiments follow in order, each remaining a week at Camp Douglas. The camp will be named in honor of Sergt. Swanson of Company L, Third Wisconsin volunteers, who was killed at Abonita Pass, Porto Rico, in the Spanish-American war. Inspection will be conducted by Capt. Edward Chynoweth this year. He is from the Seventeenth Infantry, United States army.

COWPUNCHER IN THE PEN.

Murderer of "Mexican Ed" Goes to [illegible]

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 24.—Sheriff [illegible] of Stanley county has arrived with Robert N. Adams, who was recently convicted in that county of the killing of Edward Sanches ("Mexican Ed"), and sentenced to a term of seven years in the Sioux Falls penitentiary. Adams has been turned over to Warden Swenson and assigned to a cell. This latest arrival at the pen is a Texas "cowpuncher" who had been employed on ranches in the ceded Sioux lands. He committed the crime last February.

BOLD HORSE THIEVES.

A Hundred Thefts Committed and [illegible]

Winona, Minn., July 24.—A gang of [illegible] in Southern Minnesota for some time past have reached Winona county. On Sunday night a valuable team, consisting of bay gelding and bay mare, were stolen from the barn of William Tews, two miles north of Lewiston. Sheriff Lins is endeavoring to run down the thieves, but there is little on which to work. Close to a hundred horse thefts have been committed in this locality the past few weeks, and the offenders are still at large.

Warner Is Selected.

Pierre, S. D., July 24.—E. A. Warner of Eureka has been selected as secretary of the Republican state central committee. Mr. Warner is at present private secretary to Gov. Herreid.

Drowned From a Tug.

Washburn, Wis., July 24. — Herbert Urquhart, aged twenty-seven years and single, of this city, was drowned while at work on a tug on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Will Meet in Milwaukee.

Waukesha, Wis., July 24.—The Democratic state central committee, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, decided to hold the state convention in Milwaukee Sept. 3.

Cyclist's Fatal Fall.

Mitchell, S. D., July 24.—Omie Harris, twenty-one years old, fell from his bicycle last night and injured his head. He lived two hours and died from concussion of the brain. The remains were taken to Harrison, Douglas county.

Overdose of Morphine.

Little Falls, Minn., July 24. — E. S. Smith, since 1872 a resident of this city, a prominent Democrat and attorney, died of an overdose of morphine. He was fifty-five years of age and had a wife and one son.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XXVIII (Continued.)

"I guess I don't recollect the fright," Chris drawled. "And if there was any fright, I calculate it was on the other side. And how are you this morning? You look as if you had been in the wars. Got some trouble with your throat, or what?"

"A slight operation," Henson said, airily. "I have been speaking too much in public lately, and a little something had to be removed. I am much better."

The ready lie tripped off his tongue. Chris smiled slightly.

"Do you know, you remind me very much of somebody," he went on. "And yet, I don't know why, because you are so different. Lord Littimer tells me you are an American."

"The Stars and Stripes," Chris laughed. "I guess our nation is the first on earth. Now, if you happen to know anything about Boston—"

"I never was in Boston in my life," Henson replied, hastily. "Have you been in England very long?"

Chris replied that she was enjoying England for the first time. But she was not there to answer questions, her role was to ask them. But she was dealing with a past-master in the art of gleaning information, and Henson was getting on her nerves. She gave a little cry of pleasure as a magnificent specimen of a bloodhound came trotting down the terrace and paused in friendly fashion before her.

"What a lovely dog!" she exclaimed. "Do you like dogs, Mr. Henson?"

She looked up, beamingly, into his face as she spoke; she saw the heavy features darken and the eyes grow small with anger.

"I loathe them and they loathe me," Henson growled. "Look at him!"

He pointed to the dog, who showed his teeth with an angry growl. And yet the great, sleek head lay against the girl's knee in perfect confidence. Henson looked on uneasily and backed a little way. The dog marked his every movement.

"See how the brute shows his teeth at me," he said. "Please send him away, Miss Lee. I am certain he is getting ready for a spring."

Henson's face was white and hot and wet. His lips trembled. He was horribly afraid. Chris patted the silky head and dismissed the dog with a curt command. He went off instantly, with a wistful, backward look in his eye.

"We are going to be great friends, that doggie and I," Chris said, gaily. "And I don't like you any the better, Mr. Henson, because you don't like dogs and they don't like you. Dogs are far better judges of character than you imagine. Dr. Bell says—"

"What Dr. Bell?" Henson demanded, swiftly.

Chris had paused just in time; perhaps her successful disguise had made her a trifle reckless.

"Dr. Hatherly Bell," she said. "He used to be a famous man before he fell into disgrace over something or another. I heard him lecture on the animal instinct in Boston, once, and he said—but, as you don't care for dogs, it don't matter what he said."

"Do you happen to know anything about him?" Henson asked.

"Very little. I never met him, if that is what you mean. But I heard that he had done something particularly disgraceful. Why do you ask?"

"Nothing more than a mere coincidence," Henson replied. "It is just a little strange that your should mention his name here, especially after what happened last night. I suppose that, being an American, you fell in love with the Rembrandt. It was you who suggested securing it in its place, and then prevented my little jest from being carried out. Of course, you have heard that the print was stolen once?"

"The knowledge is as general as the spiriting away of the Gainsborough 'Duchess.'"

"Quite so. Well, the man who stole the Rembrandt was Dr. Hatherly Bell. He stole it so that he might pay a gambling debt, and it was subsequently found in his luggage before he could pass it on to the purchaser. I am glad you mentioned it, because the name of Bell is not exactly a favorite at the castle."

"I am much obliged to you," said Chris, gravely. "Was Dr. Bell a favorite once?"

"Oh, immense. He had great influence over Lord Littimer. He—but here comes Littimer in one of his moods. He appears to be angry about something."

Littimer strode up, with a frown on his face, and a telegram in his hand. Henson assumed to be sympathetic.

"I hope it is nothing serious?" he murmured.

"Serious!" Littimer cried. "The acme of audacity—yes. The telegram has just come. 'Must see you to-night on important business affecting the past. Shall hope to be with you some time after dinner!'"

"And who is the audacious aspirant to an interview?" Chris asked, demurely.

"A man I expect you never heard of," said Littimer, "but who is quite familiar to Henson, here. I am alluding to that scoundrel, Hatherly Bell!"

"Good Heavens!" Henson burst out. "I—I mean, what colossal impudence!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Man With the Thumb Again.

Chris gave Henson one swift, searching glance before her eyes dropped demurely to the ground. Lord Littimer appeared to be taking no heed of anything but his own annoyance. But, quick as Chris had been, Henson was quicker. He was smiling the slow, sad smile of the man who turns the other cheek because it is his duty to do so.

"And when does Dr. Bell arrive?" he asked.

"He won't arrive at all," Littimer said, irritably. "Do you suppose I am going to allow that scoundrel under my roof again? The amazing impudence of the fellow is beyond everything. He will probably reach the Moreton Station by the 10 o'clock train. The drive will take an hour, if I choose to permit the drive, which I don't. I'll send a groom to meet the train with a letter. When Bell has read that letter he will not come here."

"I don't think I should do that," Henson said, respectfully.

"Indeed! You are really a clever fellow. And what would you do?"

"I should suffer Bell to come. As a Christian I should deem it my duty to do so. It pains me to say so, but I am afraid that I cannot contravert your suggestion that Bell is a scoundrel. It grieves me to prove any man that. And in the present instance the proofs were overpowering. But there is always a chance—a chance that we have misjudged a man on false evidence."

"False evidence! Why, the Rembrandt was actually found in Bell's portmanteau."

"Dear friend, I know it," Henson said, with the same slow, forgiving smile. "But there have been cases of black treachery, dark conspiracies that one abhors. And Bell might have made some stupendous discovery regarding his character. I should see him, my lord; oh, yes, I should most undoubtedly see him."

"And so should I," Chris put in, swiftly.

Littimer smiled, with all traces of his ill-temper gone. He seemed to be contemplating Henson with his head on one side, as if to fathom that gentleman's intentions. There was just the suspicion of contempt in his glance.

"In the presence of so much goodness and beauty, I feel quite lost," he said. "Very well, Henson, I'll see Bell. I may find the interview diverting."

Henson strolled away, with a sigh of gentle pleasure. Once out of sight, he flew to the library, where he scribbled a couple of telegrams. They were carefully worded, and related to some apocryphal parcel required without delay, and calculated to convey nothing to the lay mind. A servant was dispatched to the village with them. Henson would have been pleased had he known that the fascinating little American had waylaid his messenger and read his telegrams, under the plea of verifying one of the addresses. A moment or two later and those addresses were carefully noted down in a pocket-book.

It was past 5 before Chris found herself with a little time on her hands again. Littimer had kept her pretty busy all the afternoon, partly because there was much to do, but partly from the pleasure that he derived from his secretary's society. He was more free with her than he had been with any of her sex for years. It was satisfactory, too, to learn that Littimer regarded Henson as a smug and oily hypocrite, and that the latter was only going to be left Littimer Castle to spite the owner's other relations.

"Now you run into the garden and get a blow," Littimer said, at length. "I am telling you a lot too much. I am afraid you are a most insinuating young person."

Chris ran into the garden gaily. Despite the crushing burden on her shoulders, she felt an elation and a flow of spirits that she had not been conscious of for years. The invigorating air of the place seemed to have got into her veins, the cruel depression of the House of the Silent Sorrow was passing away. Again she had youth and hope on her side, and everything was falling out beautifully. It was a pleasanter world than Chris had anticipated.

She went along more quietly after a time. There was a tiny arbour on a terrace overlooking the sea to which Chris had taken a particular fancy. She picked her way daintily along the grass paths between the roses until she suddenly emerged upon the terrace. She had popped out of the roses as swiftly as a squirrel peeps from a tree.

Somebody was in the arbor, two people, talking earnestly. One man stood up, with his back to Chris, one hand gripping the outside ragged bark of the arbor frame with a peculiarly nervous, restless force. Chris could see the hand turned back distinctly. A piece of bark was being crumbled under a strong thumb. Such a thumb! Chris had seen nothing like it before.

It was as if at some time it had been smashed flat with a hammer, a broad, strong, cruel-looking thumb, flat and sinister-looking as the head of a snake. In the center, like a pink pearl dropped in a filthy gutter, was one tiny, perfectly-formed nail.

The owner of the thumb stepped back the better to give way to a fit of hoarse laughter. He turned slightly aside, and his eyes met those of Chris. They were small eyes, set in a coarse, brutal face, the face of a criminal, Chris thought, if she were a judge of such matters. It came quite a shock to see that the stranger was in clerical garb.

"I—I beg your pardon," Chris stammered. "But I—"

Henson emerged from the arbor. For once in a way he appeared confused; there was a flush on his face that told of annoyance ill-suppressed.

"Please don't go away," he said. "Mr. Merritt will think he has alarmed you. Miss Lee, this is my very good friend and co-worker in the field, the Reverend James Merritt."

"Is Mr. Merritt a friend of Lord Littimer's?" Chris asked, demurely.

"Littimer hates the cloth," Henson replied. "Indeed, he has no sympathy whatever with my work. I met my good friend, quite by accident, in the village just now, and brought him here for a chat. Mr. Merritt is taking a well-earned holiday."

Chris replied, graciously, that she didn't doubt it. She did not deem it necessary to add that she knew that one of Mr. Henson's mystic telegrams had been addressed to one James Merritt, at an address in Moreton Wells, a town some fifteen miles away. That the scoundrel was up to no good she knew perfectly well.

"Your work must be very interesting," she said. "Have you been in the church long, Mr. Merritt?"

Merritt said, hoarsely, that he had not been in the church very long. His dreadful grin and fog voice suggested that he was a brand plucked from the burning, and that he had only recently come over to the side of the angels. The whole time he spoke he never met Chris's glance once. The chaplain of a convict prison would have turned from him in disgust. Henson was evidently ill at ease. In his suave, diplomatic way he contrived to maneuvre Merritt off the ground at length.

"An excellent fellow," he said, with exaggerated enthusiasm. "It was a great day for us when we won over James Merritt. He can reach a class which, hitherto, we have not touched."

"He looks as if he had been in gaol," Chris said.

"Oh, he has," Henson admitted, candidly. "Many a time."

Chris deemed it just possible that the unpleasant experience might be endured again, but she only smiled and expressed herself as deeply interested. The uneasiness in Henson's manner gradually disappeared. Evidently the girl suspected nothing. She would have liked to have asked a question or two about Mr. Merritt's thumb, but she deemed it prudent not to do so.

Dinner came at length, dinner, served in the great hall, in honor of the recently-arrived guest, and set up in all the panoply and splendor that Littimer affected at times. The best plate was laid out on the long table. There were banks and copplees of flowers at either corner; a huge palm nodded over silver and glass and priceless china. The softly-shaded electric lights made pools of amber flame on fruit and flowers and gleaming crystal. Half-a-dozen big footmen went about their work with noiseless tread.

Henson shook his head playfully at all this show and splendor. His good humor was of the elephantine order, and belied the drawn anxiety of his eyes. Luxurious and peaceful as the scene was, there seemed to Chris to be a touch of electricity in the air, the suggestion of something about to happen. Littimer glanced at her admiringly. She was dressed in white satin, and she had in her hair a single diamond star of price.

"Of course Henson condemns all this sort of thing," Littimer said. "He would have you believe that when he comes into his own the plate and wine will be sold for the benefit of the poor, and the seats of the mighty filled with decayed governesses and antiquated shop-walkers."

"I hope that time may be long deferred," Henson murmured.

"And so do I," Littimer said, drily, "which is one of the advantages of being conservative. By the way, who was that truculent-looking scoundrel I saw you with this afternoon?"

Henson hastened to explain. Littimer was emphatically of opinion that such visitors were better kept at a distance for the present. When all the rare plate and treasures of Littimer Castle had been disposed of for philanthropic purposes it would not matter.

"There was a time when the enterprising burglar got his knowledge of the domestic and physical geography of a house from the servants. Now he reforms, with the great advantage that he can lay his plan of campaign from personal observation. It is a much more admirable method, and tends to avert suspicion from the actual criminal"

"You would not speak thus if you knew Merritt," said Henson.

"All the same, I don't want the privilege," Littimer smiled. "A man with a face like that couldn't reform; nature would resent such an enormity. And yet, you can never tell. Physically speaking, my quondam friend, Hatherly Bell, has a perfect face."

"I confess I am anxious to see him," Chris said. I—I heard him lecture in America. He had the most interesting theory about dogs. Mr. Henson hates dogs."

"Yes," said Henson, shortly, "I do, and they hate me, but that does not prevent my being interested in the coming of Dr. Bell. And nobody hopes more sincerely than myself that he will succeed in clearly vindicating his character."

Littimer smiled sarcastically, as he trifled with his claret glass. In his cynical way, he was looking forward to the interview with a certain sense of amusement. And there was a time when he had enjoyed Bell's society immensely.

"Well, you will not have long to wait now," he said. "It is long past 10, and Bell is due at any moment after 11. Coffee in the balcony, please."

It was a gloriously warm night, just a faint suspicion of a breeze in the air. Down below, the sea beat with a gentle sway against the cliffs; on the grassy slopes a belated lamb was bleating for its dam. Chris strolled quietly down the garden with her mind at peace for a time. She had almost forgotten her mission for a moment. A figure slipped gently past her on the grass, but she utterly failed to notice it.

"An exceedingly nice girl, that," Littimer was saying, "and distinctly amusing. Excuse me if I leave you here—a tendency to ague and English night air don't bied together."

CHAPTER XXX.

Gone!

It was the very moment that Henson had been waiting for. All his listlessness had vanished. He sprang to his feet and made his way hurriedly across the lawn. Dark as it was, he slipped along with the ease of one who is familiar with every inch of the ground. A man half his weight and half his size could have been no more active.

He advanced to what seemed to be the very edge of the cliff and disappeared. There were rocks and grassy knolls which served as landmarks to him. A slip of the foot might have resulted in a serious accident. Above the gloom a head appeared.

"That you, Merritt?" Henson asked, hoarsely.

"Oh, it's me, right enough," came the muttered reply. "Good job as I'm used to a seafaring life, or I should never have got up these cliffs. Where's the girl?"

"Oh, the girl's right enough. She's standing exactly where she can hear the cry of the suffering in distress. You can leave that part of the drama to me. She's a smart girl, with plenty of pluck, but, all the same, I'm going to make use of her. Have you got the things?"

"Got everything, pardner. Got a proper wipe over the skull, too."

"How on earth did you manage to do that?"

"Meddlin with Bell, of course. Why didn't you let him come and produce his picture in peace? We should have been all ready to flabbergaster him when he did come."

"My good Merritt, I have not the slightest doubt about it. My plans are too carefully laid for them to go astray. But, at the same time, I firmly believe in having more than one plan of attack and more than two ways of escape. But if we could have despoiled Bell of his picture it would have been utterly useless for him to have come here. He would have gone back, preferring to accept defeat to arriving with a cock-and-bull story to the effect that he had been robbed of his treasure on the way. And so he got the best of you, eh?"

"Rather! I fancied that I was pretty strong, but—well, it doesn't matter. Here I am with the tools, and I ain't going to fail this time. Before Bell comes the little trap will be ready, and you will be able to prove an alibi."

Henson chuckled hoarsely. He loved dramatic effect, and here was one to hand. He almost fancied that he could see the white outline of Chris's figure from where he stood.

"Get along," he said. "There is no time to lose."

Merritt nodded and began to make his way upward. Some way above him Chris was looking down. Her quick ear had detected some suspicious sound. She watched eagerly. Just below her the big electric light on the castle tower cast a band of flame athwart the cliff. Chris looked down steadily at this. Presently she saw a hand uplifted into the belt of flame, a hand grasping for a ledge of rock, and a quickly-stifled cry rose to her lips. The thumb on the hand was smashed flat; there was a tiny pink nail in the center.

Chris's heart gave one quick leap, then her senses came back to her. She needed nobody to tell her that the owner of that hand was James Merritt. Nor did she require any fine discrimination to perceive that he was up to no good. That it had something to do with the plot against Bell she felt certain. But the man was coming now; he could only reach the top of the cliff just under the wall where she was standing. Chris peered eagerly down into the path of light until the intruder looked up. Then she jerked back, forgetting that she was in the darkness and absolutely invisible. The action was disastrous, however, for it shook Chris's diamond star from her head, and it fell gently, almost at the feet of the climber. An instant later, and his eyes had fallen upon it.

"What bloomin' luck," he said, hoarsely. "I suppose that girl yonder must have dropped it over. Well, it's as good as a couple of hundred pounds to me, anyway. Little missie, you'd better take a tearful farewell of your lumps of sugar, as you'll never see them To Chris's quivering indignation, he slipped the star into his breast pocket. again."

For a moment the girl was on the point of crying out. She was glad she had refrained a second after, for a really brilliant thought occurred to her. She had never evolved anything more clever in her life, but she did not quite realize that as yet.

Nearer and nearer the man with the maimed thumb came. Chris stepped back into the shadow. She waited until the intruder had slipped past her in the direction of the castle and prepared to follow at a discreet distance. Whatever he was after, she felt sure he was being ordered and abetted by Reginald Henson. Two minutes, five minutes elapsed before she moved.

What was that? Surely, a voice somewhere near her moaning for help. Chris stood perfectly still, listening for the next cry. Her sense of humanity had been touched, she had forgotten Merritt entirely. Again the stifled cry for help came.

"Who are you?" Chris shouted. "And where are you?"

"Henson," came the totally unexpected reply. "I'm down on a ledge of rock. No, I'm not particularly badly hurt, but I dare not move."

Chris paused for a moment, utterly bewildered. Henson must have been on the lookout for his accomplice, she thought, and missed his footing and fallen. Pity he had not fallen a little farther, she murmured, bitterly, and broken his neck. But this was only for a moment, and her sense of justice and humanity speedily returned.

"I cannot see anything of you," she said.

"All the same, I can see your outline," Henson said, dismally. "I don't feel quite so frightened now—I can hang on a bit longer, especially now I know assistance is at hand. At first I begun to be afraid that I was a prisoner for the night. No; don't go. If I had a rope I should have the proper confidence to swarm up again. And there is a coil of rope in the arbor close by you. Hang it straight down over that middle boulder and fasten your end around one of those iron pilasters."

The rope was there, as Henson had stated! Indeed, he had placed it there himself. With the utmost coolness and courage Chris did as she was desired. But it took some little time to coax the rope to go over in the proper direction. There was a little laugh of triumph from below, and presently Henson, with every appearance of utter exhaustion, climbed over the ledge to the terrace. At the same moment an owl hooted twice from the long belt of trees at the bottom of the garden.

"I hope you are none the worse for your adventure?" Chris asked, politely.

Henson said, sententiously, that he fancied not. His familiarity with the cliffs had led him too far. If he had not fallen on a ledge of rocks, goodness only knows what might have happened. Would Chris be so good as to lend him the benefit of her arm back to the castle? Chris was graciously willing, but she was full of curiosity at the same time. Had Henson really been in danger, or was the whole thing some part of an elaborate and cunning plot? Henson knew very well that she had taken a great fancy to the upper terrace, and he might—"

Really, it was difficult to know what to think. They passed along slowly till the lights here and there from the castle shone in their faces. At the same time a carriage had driven up to the hall door and a visitor was getting out. With a strange sense of eagerness and pleasure, Chris recognised the handsome features and misshapen shape of Hatherly Bell.

"The expected guest has arrived," Henson said.

There was such a queer mixture of snarling anger and exulting triumph in his voice that Chris looked up. Just for an instant Henson had dropped the mask. A ray of light from the open window streamed fully across his face. The malignant pleasure of it startled Chris. Like a flash, she began to see how she had been used by those miscreants.

"He is very handsome," she contrived to say, steadily.

"'Handsome is as handsome does,'" Henson quoted. "Let us hope that Dr. Bell will succeed in his mission. He has my best wishes."

Chris turned away and walked slowly as possible up the stairs. Another minute with that slimy hypocrite, and she felt she must betray herself. Once out of sight, she flew along the corridor and snapped up the electric light. She fell back with a stifled cry of dismay, but she was more sorrowful than surprised.

"I expected it," she said. "I knew that this was the thing they were after."

The precious copy of Rembrandt was no longer there!

(To be Continued.)

Locked-Out Viennese.

While Londoners may groan under the law which compels restaurants to close at 12:30 a. m., and theatergoers to sup with unpleasant haste, or not at all, they may account themselves happier than the Viennese. For if London has its refreshment restrictions, it, at all events, has its latchkey, while in Vienna every man's home is his dungeon from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. Vienna is a city of flats, and at 10 p. m. the common entrance door of each block is closed and bolted. Thereafter persons passing in or out must pay a fine of 2d to the concierge until midnight, and 4d from that hour until 6 a. m. To go out to post a letter costs 2d, and the same amount to return. To prolong a visit to a friend after 10 p. m. means 2d to get out of his house and 2d more to enter your own. A natural result of this irritating tax is that, of all capital cities, Vienna is earliest to bed.—London Chronicle.

Advice to Young Women.

Editors are just as likely to be affected by appearances as other people are. They try to be impartial. But they are only human. Strive as they may to live up to the conception that some of you have of them as superior beings who are above the influences that sway ordinary mortals, they cannot always avoid being pleasantly impressed by attractive-looking manuscipt. Its literary merit may in reality be no greater than that of the poorly-prepared manuscript lying alongside of it. But its more presentable appearance may bring out its good qualities so much more effectively as to make it seem to the editor to be decidedly the better piece of writing, and thus lead to its acceptance in preference to the other.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Freddie's Wise Offer.

A five-year-old boy of Greenwich, Conn., on being put to bed a few nights ago, threw his arms around his mother's neck and said:

"Please don't leave me, mamma. I'm afraid to be left alone in all this dark."

"But you mustn't be afraid, Freddie," was the mother's reply. "You are not alone; God is with you."

The little fellow was silent, and, thinking he had lost all fear, his mother stole quietly away and joined her husband down stairs. A few moments later Freddie's voice was heard coming from the top of the stairs:

"Mamma, mamma!" he cried. "Come up, you, and stay with God in the dark, and I'll stay with papa in the parlor."—Exchange.

Soldiers' Coats at $175 Each.

The accounts of the British army clothing factory for the past financial year were issued recently. The value of the production continued to increase steadily, owing to the war, and is returned for the twelve months as £749,324, or an increase of nearly £100,000. Some of the items seem rather high, but all pale before the state coats of the Guards. The most is returned as: Household cavalry, £35 14s 51-4d; foot guards, £32 5s 103-4d. It is true the war department can make a shirt for "Tommy" for 10 1-4d, and it is something to their credit. At the same time, it was recently reported from Colchester that some soldiers have no clothing fit to wear in the public streets.—London Express.

What Ailed Harold.

A certain small boy is distinguished for his large and healthy appetite, a fact which is known to all his friends. A short time ago he attended a children's birthday luncheon, and it was observed that he hardly touched anything that was put before him, while he had a weary and uninterested look, uncommon in his case, at meal time.

"Why, Harold," said his anxious hostess, taking him aside afterward, "what is the matter? You had no appetite for luncheon."

"Well," said Harold, impatiently, "you see mother said that I was always disgracing her with my big appetite. So she made me eat ten bowls of rice before I left home."—New York Evening Sun.

Wonderful.

"I read to-day," remarked the Observant Boarder, "that a man in Maine was seized with all the symptoms of intoxication after eating a bologna sausage."

"I don't doubt it," commented the Cross-Eyed Boarder. "Strange phenomena are continually occurring in prohibition states."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

What's in a Name?

Hewitt—There's nothing in a name.

Jewett—I agree with you. I know a fellow who named his goat "Oleomargarine," and yet the goat has turned out to be a good butter.—Exchange.

MAP OF THE PRESIDENT.

How He Located a Soldier With It for the Man's Friend.

School boys may well envy President Roosevelt a map which makes the study of geography a joy. Twenty feet long and eight feet high, it covers an entire wall in a White House office, and represents the entire world. Different colors show at a glance the possessions of the twelve powers, with a character of their principle cities. Submarine cables, railroads, steamship lines, mail routes, are all distinctly traceable.

The naval and military forces of all nations are indicated by miniature flags. Those representing the United States bear the names of commanders, and are readily shifted as the forces move from place to place. The cavalry, artillery and infantry are represented by flags of their respective colors, yellow, red and white, giving the number of the regiment and the letter of the troop, battery or company. Even the smallest hospital corps is marked by a tiny red cross. Ships of every class are shown by red, white and blue flags bearing the name of each, and the number of her guns.

The week after President McKinley's death a clerk was explaining the great map to President Roosevelt and a guest. The visitor suggested:

"Can you find the son of my old cook? I know his name, because I cash the checks he sends his mother."

The president stepped forward.

"Let me find him," he said, and began under the clerk's guidance to consult the records and examine the little markers.

"There is his company," he soon said, touching a white flag in a small island of the Philippines. "Tell his old mother I am keeping an eye on her soldier boy."

"Bress de Lor'!" was her exclamation on hearing the story. "My name and Jack's been spoke in de White House."

REMARKS ABOUT $30,000 CASH.

To See It Lying in a Window Losing Interest Grieves One Practical Spirit.

The Italian bankers of Elizabeth and Mulberry streets are filling their show windows with greenbacks in an effort to attract trade and convince the public that one has more money than the other. In the window of one banker, Patti's place in Elizabeth street, $30,000 was on exhibition yesterday. Bills of all denominations were strewn carelessly around the window, attracting crowds.

"Them ain't all real money," remarked one woman; "them's imitation."

"Yes," replied a man in the crowd, "that's the genuine long green we all struggle for."

"I never t'ought dere was dat much money in de world," chimed in a ragged boy.

Two Italian laborers got into an argument as to the amount of cash in the window. One thought there must have been at least $1,000,000.

About noon two men with long whiskers stopped their vending wagons in front of the place. They had come over from the east side of town.

"Vhat? Tirty thousand dollar in dot vindow all der time!" exclaimed one.

"Dot is it," replied the other. "It ain't too much for a bank, vhat?"

"No; but look at der interest vhich it is losing every minute. Vhat a shamefulness! Interest! Lost interest twelve hundred dollar a year."

Ostrich Eggs as Food.

Ostrich eggs are only a twelfth the cost of hen eggs, that is, so far as South Africa is concerned. Hen eggs cost 75 cents a dozen, but ostrich eggs, each of which is equivalent to 20 or 24 hen eggs, cost 10 cents. When required for use the housewife makes a small hole in the top of the egg. The quantity required is shaken out, and the shell containing the remainder is corked up, as though it were a bottle. So treated, the contents of the egg keep quite a long time when care is taken to place the corked shell in a cool place.

The authorities have strictly prohibited the exportation of ostrich eggs, but the birds have been acclimatised to South Africa. An American has also founded an ostrich colony in the south of France, at Nice. The results are that South Africa has dangerous rivals in the field, and that ostrich eggs may soon figure on our breakfast tables.

Result of Fall of Interest.

A common note in the financial reports of institutions of all kinds is the regret at the decline of income caused by the fall in the rates of interest. The basis is now three or three and a half instead or six or seven a dozen years ago. This means that endowments must be doubled in order to keep up the income returns. The lower rate also has a far-reaching effect upon the chances open to the average man of retiring in his age with a competency. He has to save twice as much money to secure the income that he desires as in the early seventies.—Boston Watchman.

Music That Soothed Not.

The guest came down to breakfast sleepy and wild-eyed, but the hotel proprietor cheerfully queried:

"Did you enjoy the flute-playing in the room next to you last night?"

"Enjoy it? I spent half the night pounding on the wall for the idiot to stop!"

"Goodness! Why, Herr Wiffler told me that he played over all the tunes he knew four times because the person in the next room encored every one!"

The criticism of the sermon often uproots the good seed.

OLD SOLDIER'S STORY

Regular Effectually Dampens the Joy of Successful West Point Cadet

One of the recent graduates of West Point tells this story:

"I fell in with an old army officer after the exercises. He looked me over and asked me a good many questions. Among others he asked how I came to be appointed and I told him that it came about in the usual way.

"'A recommendation does not necessarily mean merit,' he said.

"I assented to this.

"'I do not think that passing an examination always means merit,' he added as a crusher.

"I said I supposed not. I had resolved that I would not violate any of the rules by getting into an argument with an old regular, now on the retired list.

"'I know a young man who got here,' he continued, 'just after the civil war, because he was mentioned by the commanding officer in an engagement, for bravery, and the youngster never intended to be brave—he did it because he did not know what he was doing, or because he could not help it. He is dead now and I do not mind telling you about it.

"'He was at headquarters in the Army of the Potomac, and as he was a good sort of a fellow he got in with a general of one of the divisions who lived pretty high. He and this young man went on a bat on one occasion. Not to speak disrespectfully of the dead the young man got as drunk as a sailor on shore leave.

"'While he was in that condition the division got orders to go to the front and this young fool was put in the saddle and told to go in the other direction. But the engagement came on quickly and the horse on which he sat being like Job's war charger, smelled the battle and turning, dashed into the thick of the fight.

"'The young fool who rodé him had just enough sense to hang on and the horse plunged and neighed into the fray. It was a miracle that horse and rider came out of it alive.

"'The commander of the division witnessed what I related, and in his report to Grant he made special mention of the daring of the fellow. The result was that the fellow was appointed a cadet. He was a graduate, I believe, of the Missouri university before he went into the army, so he was able to pass here.

"'But what I want to impress upon you, young man, is this, if this fellow had not been drunk he would have kept his horse from being so reckless. And in that case he might not have been mentioned for bravery, and consequently he would not have been appointed a cadet.

"'He was a good fellow—peace to his soul—but he owed his education by the government to his horse.'

"'And to getting drunk,' I added.

"'Well,' said the old regular, 'you know what Lincoln said when somebody told him Grant got drunk.'

"And with that he turned away, evidently satisfied with his lecture."

NEEDED SYMPATHY

And the Physician Was Perfectly Willing to Give It to Her at $5.00 an Hour

"When Dr. Pills went abroad," said the young physician, "he left me in charge of his practice, and opposite one address in his book he made a mark—I won't say what it was—but it meant that I was to call at that house every day, without fail. I naturally expected to find the case a serious one, but owing to another mark beside the name I learned that nothing in the world was amiss with the patient.

"It was a woman, and she lives in a handsome house in the best quarter of the town. She has a husband who is wrapped up in his business, and two grown sons, who have their own affairs to attend to. I found her in bed, her elderly face topped by a coquettish invalid's cap. A lace shawl lay about her shoulders, and a silk quilt was spread carefully over her.

"Every time I went to see her I found her in a different toilet. Even the quilt was never alike two days in succession. There was absolutely nothing the matter with her but what I may call heart ennui. She was rich, but she hadn't anything in the world to interest her, and that is all. They didn't pet her, nor make of her. She was simply pining for a little sympathy. It diverted her to see me come in.

"It pleased her to be able to talk about herself to somebody who would listen. She gained in her own estimation from having her pulse felt every day. She wanted the doctor to plan her day for her. Some days I ordered her to drive in a closed carriage. Other days I told her a drive in her victoria would do her a world of good. I always cautioned her to wrap up well. I gave her sympathy and attention, and I made her feel that she was an object of interest to at least one person.

"Of course, she was silly, and selfish too, but if her thickheaded family had only thought of flattering her, of making of her, of treating her with anything besides their unvarying, unemotional kindness she'd never have fancied herself an invalid. As it was, and as it is, she pays $5 a visit for the chance to talk to somebody who is sympathetic, and I'm willing to supply sympathy to the whole town at that price."—Washington Post.

RECALLS TRAGIC EVENT

Loss of Chinese Man-of-War Causes Renewed Discussion of Maine Explosion

Recently there has been a good deal of quiet discussion among naval men concerning the explosion of the Maine, excited by the news which arrived from China that the warship Kai Chih exploded and sank within thirty second while lying in the Yang-tse-Kiang river, killing 150 officers and men.

The explosion of the Maine was one of the most mysterious affairs that ever happened in naval history. Notwithstanding the report of the board of inquiry into the manner of her loss, there are naval officers who maintain that the cause of the explosion of the Maine has never been cleared up. They say that no positive evidence was adduced to show that the Maine was exploded from the outside, although the report of the board pointed out many significant facts which supported this contention.

On the other hand there was some evidence tending to show that the explosion was of interior origin. Among this was the fact that about half an hour before the explosion there was an unaccountable and sudden rise in the temperature of one of the magazines, which fact was reported to Capt. Sigsbee and entered in the records.

Some thought this was occasioned by spontaneous combustion in one of the coal bunkers and which subsequently exploded one of the magazines. Such combustion is known to be liable to occur, especially when vessels are lying in tropical waters. A British man-of-war had previously been exploded by fire from spontaneous combustion reaching one of the magazines.

Now comes the mysterious explosion of a Chinese warship of large dimensions. She went to the bottom in about the same time as the Maine, and although the total loss of life was not so great as on the American ship, it was relatively higher, as only two escaped. The Kai Chih was an up-to-date ship, having been built in 1884, and she resembled the Maine in many particulars.

The Chinese general code was founded 2,000 years ago.

THE EXTREMES OF INDOLENCE.

Japanese Women of Rank Are the Laziest on Earth.

In a recent address in Tokyo a prominent Japanese educator said: "The indolence of Japanese ladies is something amazing. I know a daughter of a certain peer, neither an old court nor a feudal peer, but a brand-new one, and this young lady's indolence is really beyond the idea of ordinary mortals. She will not even open her mouth of herself. As soon as the time to retire to her bed arrives she issues her order, 'Now I will retire,' and at at once three or four maids spread the underquilts, help her—or, rather make her, for she simply stands like a doll—to change her clothes, and at last the girl, swaddled in her night garment, is put to bed just like a person suffering from a serious illness, and so the poor thing goes to sleep and releases her maids from their trouble till the morning, when the daily routine is resumed. First of all she issues to the maids waiting in her anteroom this extraordinary order, 'I shall get up now,' and then the process exactly the reverse of that of the night before is forthwith commenced by the girls. Day after day this routine is gone through and the spoiled child of the proud upstart peer forces herself from her mistaken notion as to dignity to lead the life of an invalid and to cripple the normal development of her body."

Gillette a Real Sherlock Holmes.

William Gillette, whose impersonation of Sherlock Holmes has become so famous, has acquired much of the cunning of the character he portrays, and on being interviewed by the newspaper reporters extracts from them all they know without himself imparting any information. On his return from Europe the other day all the Boston scribes sought to learn of his future plans, but were obliged to abandon the effort.

AN EPIGRAM INSTEAD OF $50.

Gallant Washingtonian Regrets Chance Woman Acquaintance.

A certain prosperous looking resident of Washington who is stopping at the Fifth Avenue hotel will think twice before he forms another chance acquaintance. Saturday afternoon he was standing in front of the hotel when a good-looking and elegantly gowned woman passed, and, being jostled by some rude pedestrian, dropped her purse. Quick as a flash the rather elderly gentleman stepped forward, picked the purse from the sidewalk, and handed it to her, lifting his hat politely. She thanked him profusely, and a conversation was opened. That evening they dined together, and then went to see "The Show Girl."

Yesterday afternoon the prosperous looking man went to the West Thirtieth street police station and told the story of the meeting and the evening. He said that while in the theater the woman he was with deftly abstracted from his vest pocket two twenty-dollar bills and one ten-dollar bill. In their place she left a slip of paper upon which this was written:

Here's to the girl that is strictly in it,
Who doesn't lose her head even for a minute,
Plays well the game and knows the limit,
And still gets all the fun there is in it."

The prosperous looking Washingtonian refused to give his name.—New York Times.

Giving the Game Away.

A sad story is told of a sportsman who rented a big shoot near London on which the head of game did not coincide with the advertisement. It was felt that something desperate must be done, for royalty itself—though of a minor sort—was going to attend.

A wire was dispatched to London, and on the morning of the shoot a large number of baskets, containing aggrieved and somewhat compressed pheasants, arrived at the mansion. These were subtly conveyed to a small cover on a rising ground, it being intended that just before luncheon the noble sportsmen should be dazzled by the cloud of birds let loose upon them.

The day wore on, with indifferent sport; but at length, placing his guns round the little cover, the host smilingly promised them something above the common. The beaters entered, led by the head keeper who wore a knowing look.

Only four pheasants were flushed There followed a dreadful pause, during which the host wiped the perspiration from his brow. Then suddenly the head keeper broke from the undergrowth, with an expression of despair stamped on his bibulous features.

"Oh, sir," he cried to his furious master, "them baskets is all wired down and we've forgotten the nippers!"

She Protected Her Chaperon.

The chaperon is not so much of an institution in the breezy west as she is in the east, and in some quarters there are rather hazy ideas as to her duties and responsibilities. One western girl, the freedom of whose life had made her exceptionally independent and self-reliant, gave an excellent illustration of this at an eastern summer resort. She was under the protecting wing of an eastern patron with very strict ideas of propriety. The matron found her charge one day sitting on the hotel veranda with a strange man, and naturally she was perturbed. She took a chair reasonably near them, to give the girl a chance to present the young man, but the girl ignored her. Finally, in desperation, the matron tried to instruct the girl by signals what to do, but the latter only smiled and shook her head.

When the young man left the matron asked who he was.

"Oh, he's from Denver," answered the girl.

"It is a chaperon's duty to decide who are proper acquaintances for a young girl," explained the matron. "You should have presented him to me."

"I suppose so," answered the girl, nonchalantly, "but, you see, he hasn't a very good reputation, and so I thought it better you should not meet him."

Got Rid of Sharks.

"The waters around Martinique are usually swarming with sharks," said old "Skipper" Perry, a retired sea captain. "They have the reputation of being man-eaters, which makes bathing dangerous as well as an exciting sport. I shall never forget how, on one of my visits to the island, the engineer effectually got rid of the monsters. He took a lot of bricks, heated them to a white heat, took them down in the fire room, and then poured oil over them. Then he quickly got them on deck, and, with the aid of a pair of tongs, he threw them overboard one by one. The first one had scarcely struck the top of the water before a hungry shark swallowed it whole. The scorching brick inside naturally made him feel as though there was a volcano in his stomach, and he started to do all sorts of crazy stunts before disappearing in deep water. Each one of the hot bricks was swallowed by a shark, and in a few minutes there wasn't one to be seen."—Philadelphia Record.

Result of Annual Crow Hunt.

The annual crow hunt of the Elkin (Ill.) Gun Club resulted in the slaughter of 1,396 crows.

Buddhism was introduced into the country about 66 A. D.

Her First Marketing.

Mrs. Youngwife—I want to get some salad.

Dealer—Yes'm. How many heads?

Mrs. Youngwife—O, goodness! I just want plain chicken salad.—Philadelphia Press.

Discerning Germs.

"What is this stuff?" asked the testy husband, sputtering over a mouthful of the strange dish which he finds on the breakfast table.

"That," answers the thoughtful wife, "is the new health food."

"It ought to be healthy," declares the husband. "I'll bet no germ of any sense would try to live on it."—Baltimore American.

Appearances.

Customer (looking at photo)—Who is this serious, intellectual-looking gentleman, with the eye-glasses, and surrounded by all the books?

Photographer—That, sir, is a portrait of Bill Dubbs, the famous comic opera comedian.

Customer—Ah, I see; and over there you have a picture of him in a tramp make-up?

Photographer—Not at all, sir; that is a photograph of Prof. Thinkdeep, the celebrated biologist.—Exchange.

A Foolish Lift.

Stratford, Wis., July 28th.—William Junemann was working with a farmer near this place last summer, and one day they got stuck with a load of grain. Mr. Junemann says: "We had to lift like fools, and my back cracked and started to hurt me so that I couldn't stand it any longer. The man I was working for took me home and I went to bed. I saw an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the paper, and I sent and got one fifty-cent box. Before I had this box used up I began to feel better, and I kept on, and very soon my back was well again.

"I can't say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I cannot understand why anyone should continue to suffer with backache when Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it so quickly."

Fast.

"Young man," said the solemn-looking gentleman in the throng, "do you know you are on the path to quick destruction?"

"I do," replied the youth, as he detached himself and hastened forward; for he had only ten minutes to spend in the quick-lunch room.—Baltimore News.

TO CURE CATARRH
Use Cole's Carbolisalve.
Apply it in each nostril at night. It quickly relieves and will cure this disease, or your money refunded. Be sure to get Cole's. 25 and 50 cents, by all druggists.

A New Meaning.

"Mrs. de Steighl has had P. P. C. engraved on her visiting cards. Is she going to leave the city?"

"Why, of course not. What made you think so?"

"Well, if P. P. C. means—"

"Ping Pong Champion, my dear Algy. How dull you are."—Baltimore News.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Frank O. Carlson, Valley City, N. D., cloth cleaning device; Richardson W. Dickenson, Sioux Falls, S. D., index cabinet; Patrick Glynn, Adrian, Minn., clothes pounding; Charles Shabley, Wessington Springs, S. D., harrow; John T. Thompson, St. Paul, Minn., shoe string; George A. Wadsworth, Montevideo, Minn., adjustable stand.

Lothrop & Johnson, patent attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Brutal Papa.

"Since you were afraid to tell papa of our engagement, I told him myself," said Flossie Featherly.

"And what did he say?" asked Mr. Doolittle, anxiously.

"He said it was clear that the fools weren't all dead yet!"—Detroit Free Press.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children
Successfully used by Mother Gray, nurse in the Children's Home in New York. Cures Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. Over 30,000 testimonials. At all druggists, 25c. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. L.

What It Wants.

"It wants five minutes of 4 o'clock," said the ungrammatical person.

"I hope it will get it," answered the smart aleck.

"Get what?"

"What it wants."—Exchange.

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB, Specialist,
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat,
Fargo, N. D.

A Koh-i-noor.

Teacher (in mineralogy class)—Johnny, give me the name of the largest known diamond.

Johnny—The ace.—Tit-Bits.

He who would rid himself of relatives needs only to fall from prosperity to poverty.

A collar button is a small thing, and yet there are those who charge it with being the root of all evil.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

The man who holds his tongue gets credit for being brainy, while he may merely be deaf and dumb.

Dramatic Art Elocution taught by mail. Prepare for stage. Entertain at home, schools, churches. Manuscript for entertainments, full information, examination determining talent, p.pd. $1. Positions secured when competent. Darwins Dramatic School, Chicago.

One can never tell how much brains a man has by the size of his hat; the man's head may be swollen.

To Cure a Cold in One day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

To-day is only cloudy; I borrow the rain and storm from to-morrow.

In a Higher Position.

"Me darter Nora is goin' t' marry Carey, that wurrucks in th' basemint iv thot buildin'. B't Oi do be tillin' her that she moight hev looked higher."

"Indade?"

"Yis; she cud hov hod Murphy, that wurrucks on th' top story iv that same skolscraper." —Baltimore Herald.

A Variety of Reasons.

"Why is she going to the mountains this year?"

"Oh, she has several reasons. The doctor has ordered her to go, her husband has ordered her to stay at home and she is sick of the shore and the country."—Judge.

Wanted Money's Worth.

Mr. Grump—That confounded doctor charged me $5 for telling me there was nothing wrong with me.

Mrs. Grump—Outrageous!

Mr. Grump—Yes; if he had discovered dangerous symptoms I shouldn't have minded in the least.—Ohio State Journal.

MARRED FOR LIFE.
Thousands bear the scars from burns or scalds received in childhood, which could easily have been avoided by using Cole's Carbolisalve. It instantly stops the pain and heals without scars. Always get Cole's. In 25 and 50 cent boxes, by all druggists.

Hibernicism.

Laborer (waving flag)—Yez'll hav ter turn back. This sthreet's closed.

Driver—What's it closed for?

Laborer—Bekase it's jist been opened be the tillyphone company ter put in their wires. That's why it's closed.—Philadelphia Press.

Moving Audiences.

Ding—Spinks may not have dramatic talent, but I assure you he greatly moved the audience at that recent meeting.

Dong—He moved the audience?

Ding—I should say so. The cussed fool yelled "Fire."—Baltimore Herald.

The Locomotive Whistle Nuisance.

The Belgian railway authorities are struggling with the locomotive whistle evil. The engines will carry whistles producing two tones, one much softer than the usual one. This will be used in railway stations, or when the train is passing platforms crowded with passengers.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes
One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Uncopyrighted Idea.

Wife (to her husband)—Arthur, love, I want you to give John a good scolding to-morrow morning.

Husband—What for? I am perfectly satisfied with the fellow.

Wife—Well, you see, he has to beat the carpets to-morrow, and he strikes ever so much harder when he's in a bad temper.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Different Thing.

"No," said Toplop, "I don't believe in paying $40 or $50 for a suit of clothes."

"Well," replied the other, "if I were asked my opinion, I'd swear that was at least a $40 suit you have on."

"But you wouldn't swear I had paid for it, would you?"—Philadelphia Press.

Lettered Leisure.

"So you have seen better days?" inquired the lady.

"Yes," answered Tatters. "I used to give short talks on things literary."

"Ah, you were a lecturer?"

"No, ma'am, a book agent."—Indianapolis Sun.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Two Points of View.

She—How terrible it must be for a great singer to realize that she has lost her voice.

He—Yes. And how much more terrible for her audience, when she doesn't realize it.—Chicago News.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Ave. N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

A man who has little money is justified in saying that happiness does not consist in having wealth.

When nations cease to complain they cease to think.

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL
FOR BURNS, SCALDS
ALL DRUGGISTS SELL IT.

BOYS WHO MAKE MONEY
In a dainty little booklet, 25 out of some 3000 bright boys tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
Pictures of the boys—letters telling how they built up a paying business outside of school hours. Interesting stories of real business tact.
We will furnish you with Ten Copies the first week Free of Charge, to be sold at Five Cents a Copy; you can then send us the wholesale price for as many as you find you can sell the next week. If you want to try it, address
BOYS' DEPARTMENT
The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia

Cole's Cough Cure
TASTES GOOD AND IS GOOD. CHILDREN LIKE IT. SO WILL YOU.
SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

$30 PER WEEK to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Remedies. Send stamp. NATIONAL MFG. CO., Dept. D, Emporia, Kan.

SURGICAL OPERATIONS
How Mrs. Bruce, a Noted Opera Singer, Escaped an Operation. Proof That Many Operations for Ovarian Troubles are Unnecessary.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Travelling for years on the road, with irregular meals and sleep and damp beds, broke down my health so completely two years ago that the physician advised a complete rest, and when I had gained sufficient vitality, an operation for ovarian troubles. Not a very cheerful prospect, to be sure. I, however, was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash; I did so, fortunately for me. Before a month had passed I felt that my general health had improved; in three months more I was cured, and I have been in perfect health since. I did not lose an engagement or miss a meal.

MRS. G. BRUCE.
"Your Vegetable Compound is certainly wonderful, and well worthy the praise your admiring friends who have been cured are ready to give you. I always speak highly of it, and you will admit I have good reason to do so."—MRS. G. BRUCE, Lansing, Mich.
$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.
The fullest counsel on this subject can be secured without cost by writing to Mrs Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be entirely confidential.

Ward's Big Bargain Book wards off high prices, by wholesaling goods to all. Worth a dollar. Will save you many dollars.
It contains over 1,000 pages quoting wholesale prices on 70,000 different articles—17,000 illustrations are used to help you understand what the goods look like. Send 15 cents for catalogue and learn how to make four dollars do the work of five.
Montgomery Ward & Co.
5 CHICAGO
The house that tells the truth.

EDUCATIONAL.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
FULL COURSES IN Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.
Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses.
Rooms Free to all students who have completed the studies required for admission into the Junior or Senior Year of any of the Collegiate Courses.
Rooms to Rent, moderate charge to students over seventeen preparing for Collegiate Courses.
A limited number of Candidates for the Ecclesiastical state will be received at special rates.
St. Edward's Hall, for boys under 13 years, is unique in the completeness of its equipment.
The 59th Year will open September 9, 1902. Catalogues free. Address
REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
(One mile west of the University of Notre Dame.)
Thorough English and Classical Education, including Greek, Latin, French and German. On completing the full course of studies, students receive the Regular Collegiate Degrees.
The Conservatory of Music is conducted on the plan of the best Classical Conservatories of Europe.
The Art Department is modelled after the best Art Schools of Europe.
Preparatory and Minim Departments. Pupils are here carefully prepared for the Academic and Advanced Courses. Gymnasium under direction of Graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Bookkeeping, Phonography and Typewriting extra. Every variety of Fancy Needlework taught. For catalogue address
DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,
St. Mary's Academy. Notre Dame P. O., Indiana.

SHORTHAND and TYPEWRITING
TELEGRAPHY
100 Students Wanted in Shorthand and Typewriting. 100 Students wanted in Telegraphy. Will contract to furnish paying position as soon as graduated. Address O. H. LONGWELL, Highland Park College, Des Moines, Iowa.

St. John's University.
COLLEGEVILLE, MINN.
Conducted by Benedictine Fathers. Oldest largest and best Catholic College in the Northwest. Location unexcelled. Commercial, Classical, Scientific, Philosophical and Theological courses. Splendid new gymnasium. Rates moderate. Address,
The Rev. Vice-President.

$9.95—Gent's Gold Filled Watch, open face, screw bezel, Elgin movement, guaranteed 7 yrs., case 20 yrs. P. pd. Bates Co., 1046 S. Central Park Ave., Chicago.

EAGLE FOUNTAIN PEN (Retail Price $1.50) sent postpaid on receipt of 35c. Tuttle & Co., 1620 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

N. D. N. U. —NO. 31— 1902.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

ESTABLISHED 1870.
MINNEAPOLIS. Woodward & Co., Grain Commission. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,
By John W. Eastman.
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. O Hanson, of Stephens, a former business man of this city, is a candidate for the legislature in the Marshall, Kitson and Roseau district.

The Warroad Plaindealer, published in the most northern village in the Ninth district says of the congressional situation: "Ezra G. Valentine appears to be the leading man in the race for the Republican nomination for congress."

The total deposits in Red Lake county banks according to statements issued last week amounts to $635,079.65, divided as follows: In Thief River Falls banks, $294,205.59; in Red Lake Falls banks, $274,427.79; In St. Hilaire bank, $66,446.28.

The following clipping serves to show how the Fergus Falls Free Press feels as to the congressional situation in this district:

> From all corners of this congressional district the same report keeps coming in: "Valentine is the man." The other candidates are bound by their respective county lines and are not talked of outside.

Town Tales.

W. C. Smiley returned to this city yesterday.

R. E. Moffat, of Ada, was in the city yesterday.

S. L. Hensley went down to Crookston yesterday.

M. K. Wall was down to Red Lake Falls last Friday.

Dr. Grundy went down to Crookston last evening.

P. O. Berg, of Rollis, was in the city the first of the week.

Hugh Dean went up to the Red Lake the first of the week.

J. J. Weeks was down to Red Lake Falls last Saturday.

Mrs. H. O. Hanson, of Stephen, is in the city visiting friends.

R. E. Miller, of Bemidji, was in the city the first of the week.

The hotel Ogahmah is being treated to a new coat of paint.

Tollef Olson was out to Newfolden Sunday visiting friends.

Wiley Tindolph was down to Crookston the first of the week.

H. E. Mussey was down to Crookston the first of the week.

R. E. Sotheran was down to Terrebonne the first of the week.

Attorney Richardson was down to Crookston the first of the week.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

Miss Brown, of Crookston, is in the city visiting Mrs. C. C. Jackson.

D. N. Winton transacted business in Crookston the first of the week

W. A. Schreiter, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week.

Miss Nellie Curran spent Sunday in Red Lake Falls visiting friends.

Cleanliness Is Next

but every one knows that proverb. Not every one knows how or where to purchase the cleaning agents—soaps, sponges, toilet waters, etc. The wise ones, and their number is increasing, come here where things For The Bath are required. We sell the best, and although the best are worth most, we charge very little.

City Drug and Jewelry Store.

Dan Linehan, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week.

James Meehan returned to this city yesterday after an absence of a few weeks.

Reduced prices on millinery goods at B. M. Remmem's millinery store.

M. K. Wall left Monday for Chippewa Falls, Wis., to visit for several weeks.

The ladies of St. Bernards's church will meet with Mrs. Best on August 7th.

Attorney James McIntyre transacted business in Red Lake Falls last Saturday.

Chris Amundson went up to his claim in the Red Lake country the first of the week.

B. Christienson was down to St. Paul the first of the week with three car loads of cattle.

Clearing sale in millinery goods for the next thirty days at Miss B. M. Remmem's millinery store.

Dr. Francis, formerly located here, is now practicing at Haines, Oregon, and is doing a good business.

Alton Bauman was down from Rollis last week and took up some supplies for the Eastern Marshall County News.

B. Bjerkhold went up to Breese the first of the week to take charge of the large store of A. L. Himle's at that place.

Judge J. T. Knight, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week looking after probate matters.

Will Ford and a crew of men arrived in the city the first of the week with a drive of logs for the St. Hilaire Lumber company.

Mrs. P. E. Denney, who had been in the city visiting her sister, Mrs. Mark O'Neill, returned to her home in Manitoba Friday.

Sheriff Sampson was in the city yesterday. Mr. Sampson is a candidate for the Repuclican nomination for sheriff again this year.

The fair sex will have a chance to test the primary election system. They may cast their ballots for the office of superintendent of schools.

Alex Dixon went up to the Red Lake the first of the week to bring down a number of poles for the Thief River Falls Telephone exchange.

Mrs. J. S. O.Brien, of Stillwater, arrived in the city last Saturday to visit her sister, Mrs. S. F. Staples. Mr. O'Brien arrived Tuesday and both left yestorday for Saratoga, N. Y.

The "Mystic Toilers", of this city, will give a dime social at the home of Edward Hilson, Friday evening August 8th.. Everybody is welcome. Come and have a jolly time.

The Red Lake Falls Co-operative creamery, whice is a comparatively young institution, is paying its farmer patrons over $1,000 a month. The highest individual payment is $88.

Miss Martha Sevatson, one of the bright young school teachers of Windom, this state, was in the city the first of the week and invested some of her surplus earnings in farm lands near here.

Daniel Shaw and wife were up to Germantown Sunday. Mr. Shaw reports that farmers in that section will be through haying by the last of this week and will at once commence to cut barley.

Mayor Kratka wishes to inform the public that people will not be allowed to go in swimming between the Thief River bridge and Red Lake bridge. unless they have bathing suits.

Just to show who "pays the freight" on this branch of the Great Northern it may be stated that on Tuesday there were 4 passengers from Crookston to Red Lake Falls and 40 to Thief River Falls. It is the same every day, too.

C. Chelin has opened up a boardhouse in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable.

Mrs. C. C. Jackson entertained a company of youngfolkslastevening

The Misses Johnsons have moved their millinery store into the building north of the First National Bank.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will meet on Friday, Aug. 1 with Mrs. Rogers. All are invited to attend.

Those who attended the fair at Winnipeg last week returned Saturday and report having a good time. C. J. Knox, a farmer living in the town of North, was robbed of $5 by an accomodating light fingered man at the fair.

A number of people will go to Warren this morning to attend the shooting tournament to be held there today. Among those going are: H. Lawson, W. C. Spurgon, S. F. Staples, C. A. Robbecke, C. A. Nason and Robert McGinn.

The county commissioners last week contracted to sell $48,000 ditch bonds of the county to a St. Paul firm at 4½ per cent. The firm buying the bonds asks to have time for their attorney to see if the proceedings were legal.

The second base ball nine of this city was down to St. Hilaire Sunday and played a game with the club at that place, being victorious by a score of 18 to 4. A large number from this city went down to witness the game.

Rev. Peart will preach Sunday morning at the Methodist church. In the evening there will be a song service. The pastor will give a history of six noted hymns which will be sung. There will also be solos, duets, etc. This will take place of sermon.

The thirteenth session of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress will be held in St. Paul August 19, 20, 21 and 22. This city is entitled to three delegates and anyone wishing to attend should notify Mayor Kratka. Railroads make a rate of one fare for the round trip.

The Standard Oil Co.'s tank which was being brought from St. Hilaire to this city yesterday morning tipped over and fell into the ditch just south of town. The road along this portion of the ditch is in very bad shape and it is a wonder that an accident has not happened before. The city may be defendent in a law suit as a result of this accident.

Not since the 12th of July in the year A. Piche left Canada, did that gentleman ever do so fast running as yesterday morning. His old white horse, which heretofore had always stood without being hitched, took a notion to run away, but after an exciting race was captured by its owner, and now Mr. Piche has purchased a hitching strap and the occurrance will not be repeated.

A team being driven by R. J. Copper and Bert Dantuly, two brick masons employed on the new school house, indulged in a lively runaway Sunday afternoon on LaBree avenue. Besides these two gentlemen were their wives and three children in the carriage, which was tipped over in front of the Northern hotel. All were more or less bruised, but none seriously.

Advertised Letters.

Anderson, Martin A.
Amundson, Olle
Erilsen, Ole
Gilbertson, Tom
Greendahl, Miss Carrie
Gunderson, Mike
Hauer, Mrs Sophia
Targen, O.
Jacobson, Hans
Wiken, A. H.
Johnnsen, Gustav
Newman, Aug
Olson, Miss Tena B.
Olson, Olaf Emanuel
Sorenson, Miss Olga
Sanders, Oscar J.
Skjolstad, Joseph
Hansen, C.
Vibert, Percy

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

9.32 A. M.	Leaving	..Crookston....	Ar. 7.15 P. M.
9.51 A. M.	" "	....Shirley....	" 6.55 P. M.
9.54 "	" "	....Ives....	" 6.30 "
10.06 "	" "	....Wylie....	" 6.15 "
13.06 "	" "	....St. Hilaire....	" 5.53 "
12.25 "	Arrive	...Thief River F.	Lv 4.00 "
11.10 P. M.	"	....Red Lake F....	" 5.15 "

Connections are made at Crookston for all points on the Great Northern system.

He Has Cured Thousands Given up to Die.

DR. REA

Next regular professional visit to THIEF RIVER FALLS Friday, August 22nd, from 8 a. m. until 3:30 p. m. at the Ogahmah Hotel.

Returning every month. Consult him while the opportunity is at hand.

DR. REA has no superior in diagnosing and treating diseases and deformities. He will give $50 for any case that he cannot tell the disease and where located in five minutes.

All curable medical and surgical diseases, acute and chronic catarrh, and Special Diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Lung disease, Early Consumption, Bronchitis, Bronchial Catarrh, Constitutional Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Stomach and Bowel Troubles, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney, Liver, Bladder, Prostatic and Female diseases, Dizziness, Nervousness, Indigestion, Obesity, Interrupted Nutrition, Slow Growth in Children and all wasting disease in adults. Many cases of Deafness, Ringing in the Ears, Loss of Eyesight, Cataract, cross Eyes, etc., that have been improperly treated or neglected, can be easily restored. Deformities, Club Feet, Curvature of the Spine, Disease of the Brain, Paralysis, Epilepsy, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Swelling of the Limbs, Stricture, Open Sores, Pain in the Bones, Granular Enlargements and all long-standing diseases properly treated. Young, middle-aged and old, single or married men and all who suffer from lost manhood nervous debility, spermatorrhoea, seminal losses, sexual decay, failing memory, weak eyes, stunted development, lack of energy, impoverished blood, pimples, impediments to marriage also blood and skin diseases, Syphilis, Eruptions Hair Falling, Bone Pains, Swelling, Sore Throat, Ulcers, effect of Mercury, Kidney and Bladder troubles, Weak Back, burning Urine, pass urine too often, Gonorrhoea, gleet, stricture, receive searching treatment, prompt relief and cure for life.

CANCERS, TUMORS, GOITER, FISTULA, PILES

Varicocele and enlarged glands with the subcutaneous injection method absolutely without pain and without the loss of a drop of blood is one of his own discoveries, and is the most really scientific and certainly sure cure of the nineteenth century. No incurable cases taken. Consultation to those interested. $1.00

DR. REA & CO.

Minneapolis, Minn. Louisville, Ky

TEACHER'S EXAMINATIONS.

To the Teachers of Red Lake County:

The semi annual teachers' examination for Red Lake county will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, August 11, 12, and 13. Teachers who are to make up conditions or secure renewals will please bring their certificates with them.

The following program will be followed closely:

First Day.
Monday, August 11, 1902.
A. M. 8:00 to 8:30. Enrollment.
8:30 to 9:00. Spelling.
9:00 to 10:00. Professional Test.
10:15 to 11:00. Reading.
11:00 to 12:15. Physiology-Hygiene.
P. M. 2:00 to 3:50. Grammar.
4:00 to 5:45. U. S. History

Second Day.
Tuesday August 12, 1902.
A. M. 8:00 to 10:00. Arithmetic.
10:05 to 12:05. Geography.
P. M. 2:00 to 4:00. Music. Drawing.
4:00 to 5:15. Civics.

Third Day.
Wednesday, August 13, 1902.
A. M. 8:00 to 9:50. Physics.
10:00 to 12:00. Geometry.
P. M. 1:30 to 3:00. Algebra.
3:05 to 5:00. Physical Geography or General History.

State High School Board Certificate in Chemistry may be substituted for Physics, and Botany for Geometry.

Frank Jeffers,
Co. Supt.

Evins, Edmunds & Paulson
-- Proprietors of --
City Dray and Transfer Line.
Great Northern Express Handled
Everything in Our Line Done Promptly and at Very Reasonable Rates.

ALWAYS GOOD
In purity and wholesomeness Hamm's Beer cannot be excelled. This is due to Honest Brewing.
The capacity of Hamm's Brewery is double the output, so that the brewing may continue to be a purely natural process, and that the beer may be properly aged.
HAMM'S BEER
THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
St. Paul, Minn.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olson Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

K. J. Weeks, Insurance and Real Estate.
I have 10 houses and 50 good residence lots and several good farms for sale. Lots $40 and up. Terms to suit.
Insurance written in the best companies:—Home of N. Y. (largest company in the U. S.) Phoenix of Hartford (the old reliable.) Also in the New York Life Insurance company.
Lowest rates. Call and see me.

Hotel Ogahmah.
C. A. ROBBECKE, Prop.,
STRICTLY FIRST-CLASS.
SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS TO HUNTING AND PLEASURE PARTIES.
NEWLY ENLARGED AND REFITTED THROUGHOUT.
BUS LINE IN CONNECTION.

PATENTS GUARANTEED
Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.
Patent taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in The Patent Record, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.
Send for sample copy FREE. Address,
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.,
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, - WASHINGTON, D. C.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of thirteen hundred fifty-seven and 71-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Reed and Huldah Reed, his wife, Mortgagors, to Jerome W. Wheeler, Mortgagee, bearing date the first day of October, 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of October, 1892, at 2 o'clock P. M., in book 50 of Mortgages, on pages 223, and transcribed into the Mortgage records of Red Lake County in Book B. on page 321.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Jerome W. Wheeler, Mortgagee, to John Steele the present holder thereof by written assignment dated the 21st day of February, 1899, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds for Red Lake County, on the first day of April, 1899, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book F. of Mortgage Assignments on page 448, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1) and two (2) and the north half (½) of the northwest quarter (¼) of section number twenty-one (21) in township number one hundred and fifty-four (154) north of range number forty-three west, according to the United States survey thereof in Red Lake county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the Village of Red Lake Falls in said County and State on the fifth day of September 1902, at one o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of thirteen hundred fifty-seven and 71-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated July 25th, A. D. 1902.

John Steele,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

A. A. Miller,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee.
Crookston, Minn. July 31 sept 4.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON CLAIMS, ETC.

State of Minnesota, } ss. In Probate Court,
County of Red Lake. } Special Term July, 12th A. D. 1902.

In the Matter of the Estate of Engebert E. Brown, Deceased.

Letters of Testamentary on the estate of Engebert E. Brown deceased, late of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, being granted to Lourenso O. Brown.

IT IS ORDERED, That six months be and the same is hereby allowed from and after the date of this order, in which all persons having claims or demands against the said deceased are required to file the same in the Probate Court of said County for examination and allowance, or be forever barred

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the 5th day of January, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock A. M. at a regular term of said Probate Court, to be held at the Probate Office in the Court House in the city Red Lake Falls in said County, be and the same hereby is appointed as the time and place when and where the said Probate Court will examine and adjust said claims and demands.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That notice of such hearing be given to all creditors and persons interested in said estate by forthwith publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Thief River Falls News a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, this 12th day of July A. D. 1902.

By the Court:
J. T. Knight,
July 17 aug 7 Judge of Probate.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 21st, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 4th, 1902, viz: AUTHUR DEVINE, H. E. 2839 Chippewa Series, for the W½ SW¼, Sec. 35, Tp. 155, R. 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Throud P. Hamre, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
James Roach, of Thief River Falls, Minn.
Patric Cummerford, of Thief River F., Minn.
Mickael Stirns, of Thief River Falls, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
June 26 July 31 Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 17th, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minn., at Thorwick, Minn., on August 1st, 1902, viz: GUNDER GUNDERSON, H. E. 886, Chippewa Series, for the Lots 3 and 4, Sec. 18, lot 1, Sec. 19, Tp. 155 N., R. 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Gjermund Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.
Marie Klungnes, of Thorwick, Minn.
Otto Everby, of Thorwick, Minn.
Telef Johnson, of Thorwick, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
June 26 July 31 Register.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 25th 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn., on August 14th, 1902, viz: ANTON HOREJSH, Jr. H. E. 901, Chippewa Series, for the S½ NE¼ and N½ SE¼, Sec. 22, Tp. 155 N., of R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John Kratochvile, of Germantown, Minn.
Henry Roller, of Germantown, Minn.
Joseph Vakoc, of Germantown, Minn.
Charles Klockman, of Germantown, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON
July 3 aug 7 Register.

HARPER WHISKY

The World's Best by Every Test
Gold medals for high-standard quality at New Orleans 1885; Chicago, 1893; Paris 1900. For sale by John Morgan.

Drs. Tupper & Vistaunet,
Physicians and Surgeons.
Office and Residence Over First State Bank. Phone 27.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, - - MINN.

Dr. F. H. Gambell,
Physician and Surgeon.
Office over New Drug Store.

Dr. G. R. Lanning,
DENTIST.
Office over First National Bank.

James McIntyre,
ATT'Y AT LAW
Office in First National Bank Building.

Dr. A. Ekern,
(LATE OF BERLIN, GERMANY.)
Specialist—Eye ear nose and throat.
GRAND FORKS NORTH DAK.
Office in Herald Block.
Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 and to 7 p. m

LAW OFFICE OF
PERL W. MABEY
PERL W. MABEY, Lawyer.
M. K. WALL, Lands, Loans and Insurance,
TELEPHONE NO. 89.
Office first door north of News building.

SHERMAN F. STAPLES
REAL ESTATE,
LOANS,
INSURANCE,
CITY PROPERTY,
HOUSES FOR RENT AND SALE,
TORNADO INSURANCE.
Thief River Falls - - - Minn.

Subscribe for The News.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1902. NUMBER 31

Town Tales.

L. G. Browning was up to Rollis the first of the week.

County Attorney Grady was in the city last Saturday.

A. Stenseth was down to Crookston the first of the week.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dolan last Thursday.

Dr. Bratrude, of Warren, was in the city the first of the week

Miss Gruber, of St. Paul, is in the city visiting Mrs. J. Borry.

Joe Blair was in the city last Saturday from Red Lake Falls.

Money to loan on improved farms, L. M. Hoag Land & Loan Co.

Miss Florence Wallin, of St. Hilaire, spent Sunday in the city.

John Clair, the well known Red Lake homesteader, is in the city

Miss Sarah Vaughan was down from Germantown the first of the week.

Michael Fricker, of St. Hilaire, visited friends in the city last Saturday.

Reduced prices on millinery goods at B. M. Remmem's millinery store.

The ladies of St. Bernards's church will meet with Mrs. Best on August 7th.

A. L. Himle came up from Minneapolis Tuesday to look after his interests here.

Mrs. C. C. Jackson entertained a company of lady friends last Saturday afternoon.

K. M. Hanson was down to Red Lake Falls the first of the week transacting business.

Mrs. Ira C. Richardson entertained a number of lady friends last Saturday evening.

A dance will be given in the Odd Fellows hall tomorrow evening by the base ball boys.

Clearing sale in millinery goods for the next thirty days at Miss B. M. Remmem's millinery store.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. Scribner on Friday, August 15.

A regular term of the municipal court was held Tuesday and a large number of civil suits were tried.

Mrs. F. J. Stebbins and children who had been at St. Charles, Minn., returned to this city Tuesday.

Services in the Norwegian Lutheran Synode Church next Sunday at 8 P. M. All cordially invited.

Mrs. Thorvald Morck and two children, Fred and Jennie, are in the city visiting Mrs. C. A. Robbecke.

C. Chelin has opened up a boardhouse in Nyhus building. Everything in first class shape and prices reasonable

The Misses Johnsons have moved their millinery store into the building north of the First National Bank.

Mrs. Marshall, of Red Lake Falls, accompanied by Mrs. Lamb of Litchfield, visited Mrs. C. C. Jackson last Saturday.

C. W. Johnson's Cash Bargain Store.
(Successor to Rollis & Johnson.)
We handle a complete line of fancy groceries. Shoes to be sold at a discount next week.

County Commissioner Louis Hanson was in Red Lake Falls the first of the week attending a meeting of the county board.

Martin Evenson, a farmer living about 11 miles north of here, died Monday at the hospital on the East Side, of tuberculosis.

Fred Bentley, a saw mill man who arrived in the city last week from Milaca, is suffering from an attack of delirium tremens.

W. A. McIntyre, candidate fo the Democratic nomination for judge of probate, was up from Red Lake Falls the first of the week.

The Ladies aid of the Norwegian Lutheran Synode congregation meets with Mrs. Anton Gunderson Thursday at 3 P. M. All invited.

Allen Benzie left Monday for Park River, N. D., with his team and will work thereduring harvest. About sixteen others accompanied him.

Cass Lake's box factory is a success, even though it has turned out 125,000 boxes with out being able to keep pace with the blueberry crop.

An Argyle 10 year old was sentenced to nine days in jail for stealing cigars. Warren ladies refused to stand for this and paid his fine and set the lad at liberty.

M. C. Harlow's building was struck by lightning last Friday afternoon, and the chimney and roof of his building were damaged to considerable extent.

Jens P. Jensen, of Germantown, candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner in the 5th district, Marshall county, was in the city last week.

Robert Sotheran and John Cyr of this city have purchased a merry-go-round and will have it in operation here in a few days. They will also go with it at nearly towns.

Miss Evans, who had been in the city visiting her sister, Mrs. Ira C. Richardson. left Monday for Rochester, Minn. She was accompanied by Wayne and Glen Richardson.

Joseph J. Gierock and Charles Dillan, two homesteaders from Esplee, were in the city the first of the week enroute to St. Thomas, N. D., where they will work in the harvest fields.

Chr. Larmoe, of Breese, was in the city last week. Mr. Larmoe has filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner from the Eastern Marshall county district. He has plenty of ability and would make an excellent member of the county board.

P. O. Bergh was down from Rollis the first of the week.

C. L. Dobner and Perl W. Mabey were up to Germantown the first of the week.

Dr. Wiener, of Grand Forks was in the city yesterday looking after his interests here.

A. L. Himle and C. M. Evenson have presented the city library with two handsome chairs.

Mrs. C. C. Jackson and the Misses Jonhston left Tuesday for the Red Lake for a short outing.

Hon. Ezra G. Valentine will arrive here today from Breckenridge, and campaign in Red Lake county for a few days.

The Thief River Falls Public Library association will give a ball in the Odd Fellows' hall on Friday evening, August 15th.

C. G. Rapp, of St. Hilaire, was in the city Tuesday. Mr. Rapp has not as yet filed his certificate for the Republican nomination for representative from this legislative district, but informed friends that he would do so this week.

Rev. Peart will preach Sunday morning at the Methodist church after which the sacrement of the Lord's Supper will be administered. In the evening there will be a song service, and the pastor will give the history of some noted hymns as he did last Sunday evening.

Kenison and Conery have puchased the interest of Mr. Robinson in the C. O. D. Clothing House and will conduct the busnees in the future. All bills due the firm will be collected by Kenison and Conery, who also assume all liabilities.

Bids for building the Rocksbury and Emardville ditches were opened Monday by County Auditor Zeh. There was but one bid for each ditch, and they were for 30 per cent more than the surveyor's estimate. Both bids were registered, and new ones will be advertised for.

Organized.

The school board held a meeting last Saturday evening and organized for the ensuing year by electing C. L. Dobner, president; Mrs. Daniel Shaw, clerk; E. E. Zeh, treasurer; Mrs. C. C. Jackson purchasing agent. No business of importance was transacted.

For blacksmithing, and horseshoeing and general woodwork go to Olsen Bros. Cheapest and best shop in the city.

COUNTY FAIR

One to Be Held in Thief River Falls.

A number of interested people have organized an agricultural society and propose to hold a county fair in this city every year in the future. Twenty acres of land has been leased of C. J. Knox for a term of five years at a rate of $75 per year, and it is here that the fair will be held. The officers elected are as follows:

President—S. F. Staples.
Vice-President—F. H. Kratka.
Treasurer—C. L. Dobner.
Secretary—W. C. Smiley.

Committies were appointed to have charge of various affairs, and it is proposed to hold a county fair here sometime during the month of September this year.

NEW TREATY

Mayor Kratka Will See if One Can Be Made.

Mayor Kratka goes up to the Red lake this week to have a talk with the Indians regarding the making of a new treaty for the cession of the 11 townships just east of Thief River Falls. The present treaty asks the government to advance the money for the purchase of the lands, and Mr. Kratka is going to see if they will not consent to an agreement whereby the land can be purchased by the settlers and the government act as a trust agent. The only objection to the present treaty being ratified by congress is that it carries with it an appropriation of $1,000,000, and if this obsticle was removed there would be no difficulty in securing its passage by congress.

If Mr. Kratka finds that another treaty can be made, it is thought that Major McLaughlin will come and do the job.

Bemidji Mill.

The following dispatch from Bemidji appeared in the Minneapolis Journal:

The Thief River Falls Lumber company is holding an option on the John Steidl sawmill property, in this city, and in all probability a deal will be consummated this week for the property. So far, everything in connection with the deal has been done on the quiet. Even the local papers have not been able to get the facts. Members of the company are in St. Paul making a deal with the Bemidji Townsite company for a certain tract of land lying close to the Steidl property, which is wanted for yard purposes. It is the intention to build at once a sawmill with a yearly capacity of 25,000,000 feet. The company's money is in the First National bank of this city and will be turned over to John Steidl as soon as the townsite company sells the land needed for the yards.

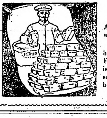
The Thief River Falls Lumber company is not interested in this deal at all, it being C. J. and D. N. Winton, two stockholders of the company who own considerable pine in the vicinity of Bemidji.

If you have a farm for sale call on the Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

"A Popular Fair'
Home and Bengal Brands
of Canned Goods.
Favorable trade promoters representing the best of values in their respective grades. The distribution of these brands show a most flattering increase insuring the best evidence of their superior quality at right prices.
You can bank every time on the superior quality of all articles bearing the label HOME BRAND and we guarantee the goods as representing the very best procurable.
Good Coffee Is a Trade Winner While Poor Coffee Drives Trade Away.
Our line from the cheapest to the highest is carefully selected, comprising the better selections from the various grades, the wants of our customers being kept well in view.
The very large increased sales on our line of coffee is most flattering to us and is the strongest indication of their merit.
We Solicit Your Orders.
Central Mercantile Co.
Phone No 19.

C. L. Dobner, President. H. G. Dobner, Cashier. S. F. Staples, Vice-President.
FIRST STATE BANK
OF THIEF RIVER FALLS.
General Banking Business Transacted.
Capital - - - - $10,000
Surplus and contingent fund, 10,000
Foreign and domestic exchange bought and sold. Money to loan on improved farms. Fire insurance written in old reliable companies. Interest paid on time deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

VIENNA BAKERY
Have you seen the display of fine pastry and cakes exhibited by Hansen, our baker? It cannot be surpassed in any city in the state.



We make a specialty of
Bread
Also pastry made to order for weddings and parties.
By actual test we find that our home brand Pride of the North Flour made at the O. K. mill is the best on the market, and to secure the best results we use that brand to the exclusion of others.
A. J. Hansen, Prop.

Sortedahl & Bjorneby,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
General Banking.
Agent for the Great Northern and Minn., Wis, & Pacific Ry. Co.s Lands in Red Lake County.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, REAL ESTATE, FARM LOANS and INSURANCE.
Collections Promptly Attended to.
Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, the only complete set of Abstract Books for Red Lake County.
M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Subscribe for the News.

TAKE A THINK!
Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure--some impure--some no earthly good--some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb.	Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.
20c a lb.	Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.
30c and 35c a lb.	Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

By John W. Eastman.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN

'All royal roads now seem to include a run through America.'

The czar is going in for reform and the Cossacks will be given more target practice.

On a western race track there is a horse named Crime. Is it not almost a crime to run him?

China appears to need Minister Wu in her business, but his recall savors of an unfriendly act to us.

Lord Salisbury has refused a dukedom. How that man must be pitied by William Waldorf Astor.

Automobile scorchers won't be completely happy until their machines are equipped with torpedo tubes.

A man who fights for freedom and wins is a patriot; if he fights and loses, he is a pig-headed old imbecile.

When airships are perfected they will do a great business on the Fourth of July with old ladies who love quiet.

A government bulletin announces that the United States uses 9,792,000,000 pins every year. What becomes of them?

Lillian Russell has been arrested for fast driving in an automobile. Does the poor, overworked press agent get no vacation?

Do we see in the increasing number of train robberies an indication that the days of the wild and woolly west are returning?

France has an ultimatum in pickle for Turkey. Hope it will keep until Thanksgiving, or at least until after the hot weather.

Peary is ready to come back. He hasn't found the north pole, but he has enough material for a new lecture and another book.

Joseph Chamberlain's accident must be considered something of a stroke of luck, for he has also had bulletins issued by the doctors.

This "epigram" is found in one of the new books: "There's no friend in this world like a $10 bill." What's the matter with a $20?

They tried to give the impassive Kitchener a warm welcome in London, but it was like trying to melt an iceberg with a parlor match.

The petrified remains of Noah's ship have been uncovered in Alaska. It must have been a cold day when the great navigator landed.

The packers keep on consolidating. But let the vegetarians refrain from merrymaking. The first thing they know there will be lettuce and turnip trusts.

The ball which hit a Dallas man in the stomach and killed him was not a highball. When a highball hits a Texan in the stomach he immediately begins to live.

Much as we boast of our rapid advancement, we have not discovered as yet any means whereby the boat-rocker can be rocked out before he rocks the boat.

A Pittsburg man killed himself because his wife left him. If every man whose wife left him took it as seriously as that this would be a terrible month for fatalities.

J. Pierpont Morgan says the kaiser is a great man. The latter should get the testimonial framed to hang on his wall that he may proudly point it out to visiting monarchs.

A Chicago school teacher has sued a real estate dealer for $50,000 damages for an alleged attempt to kiss her. Great Scott! What would the figure have been had the man succeeded?

It's too bad that so many people will never have a chance now to see the Campanile. The canals and several other landmarks—if an Irish bull may be permitted here—are still in place, however.

As pilots are reported to have seen a 300-foot sea serpent off Cranberry Head, C. B., just as J. J. Hill's yacht was entering the harbor, it is possible the sailors were frightened by the great American octopus.

J. Pierpont Morgan's denunciation of the American game of poker shows the demoralizing influence of his association with the crowned heads of Europe. He may be expected to laud baccarat in his next cabled interview.

The whistling of Schumann's "Traumerei" and "The Mocking Bird" by a young woman in a New York church once more invites attention to the fact that some churches are crowding the vaudeville shows a trifle hard just now.

A proposed bazaar raffle during the coronation of the King of England has been forbidden by the police of London. Evidently gambling on the king's life has given the English people quite enough of this sort of "speculation" for a while.

The News Of the Week

Washington Notes.

About 30,000 volumes of the 1900 census report have been mailed, and 40,000 remain to be issued.

The probabilities are that Gen. Bragg will be recalled from Cuba or transferred to some other post.

The First National Bank of Minneapolis has been approved as a reserve agent for the Redfield (S. D.) National bank.

Consul Hollis cables that the law allowing no passengers with less than $100 to land at Lorenzo Marques has passed.

The census bureau has issued a bulletin on the manufacture of musical instruments and materials in the United States.

Monuments to Gen. W. T. Sherman and Dr. B. F. Stephenson will be dedicated during the G. A. R. encampment in October.

Efforts by the federal government to effect a settlement of the differences between Brazil and Bolivia, over Acre, are not meeting with the success hoped for.

So far, four persons—Lieuts. Hobson, Ward, Buck and Blue—have been selected to receive meritorious medals for services in the West Indies naval campaign.

Advices from Manila state that the four teachers murdered in the island of Cebu were repeatedly warned not to penetrate beyond a certain point, but disregarded the advice.

Lieut. Col. Philip Harvey, deputy surgeon general, will be assigned to duty as chief surgeon of the department of California at Sacramento to relieve Col. Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army.

Supt. Machen, of the free delivery service of the postoffice department, will give visitors to the Minnesota State fair some interesting facts regarding the good roads movement and its bearing upon the prosperity of the country.

An order was published by the war department announcing that Brig. Gen. Carter would act as adjutant general until Nov. 1. This fixes the probable date of the return of Gen. Corbin from Europe, where he is to be the guest of Emperor William during the maneuvers of the German army.

Personal.

Prince Ouroussoff, brother of the Russian ambassador to France, is dead.

Jacob Josephs, chief rabbi of the United Jewish congregation in New York, is dead.

Col. James B. Maynard, former editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, is dead, aged eighty-three.

W. K. Vanderbilt has purchased "The Vampire," Burne-Jones' painting, at a price near $18,000.

An East Indian, said to be 103 years old, a resident of San Francisco since before the gold excitement, is dead.

Paul Van Der Voort, past commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., died at Puerto Principe, Cuba, aged fifty-six years.

Capt. Matthew Knobler, for more than half a century a steamboat captain on the upper Mississippi, died at the home of relatives in St. Joseph, aged ninety-five.

Gov. Odell of New York, it is said, has decided to retire from politics to engage in the railroad business. The dispatch says Gov. Odell will assume an executive office in the Union Pacific railway system, at an annual salary of $100,000.

Isaac Lehman, aged fifty-two, one of the richest merchants of St. Joseph, Mo., being the head of the department store of Lehman Bros., died from cancer of the stomach. He was born in Germany and emigrated to the United States in 1872.

Col. John H. Lord, for thirty years a recluse at Rio, Pa., a mountain settlement near Port Jervis, N. Y., is dead, at the age of eighty-five. Nearly fifty years ago Col. Lord's family was prominent in politics, and he exercised a tremendous power in the Keystone State.

A sidewalk in Chicago collapsed while it was crowded with men, women and children, who were watching a wounded man being carried to a doctor's office. Fifty persons were hurled ten feet downward. Four were badly injured, and a dozen more were bruised and shaken as they fell on the planks and earth below the sidewalk.

Sins and Sinners.

Six men were hanged at Little Rock, Ark., for murder in different localities throughout the state.

Armed men shot and killed 250 sheep, the property of J. C. Mor of Mt. Vernon, Ore., while on the range near Murderer's creek.

H. A. Faulkner, another boodling alderman of St. Louis, was found guilty of perjury and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

John Gehr of Colorado, organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, pleaded guilty, at Parkersburg, W. Va., of contempt of court.

F. B. Rounds, former superintendent of the Metropolitan Street Railway company of New York, died from a pistol shot, supposedly self-administered, the result of dissipation.

Frank Velisek, a Burlington railroad employe, is under arrest at Chicago for the non-support of his wife, she charging that 4 cents was his daily allowance for herself and three children.

Alfred B. Cunningham, "king of Chicago counterfeiters," has been arrested by federal secret service officers, on the charge of being the shrewdest maker of counterfeit half-dollars in the country.

Eva Beck of Van Buren, Ark., stole a ride on a freight train in Kansas City. En route another girl entered the same car, and the two traveled together. Before reaching Kansas City the last comer decamped with all the clothing of the two, so Miss Beck arrived at Kansas City naked, and was taken in charge by the police matron.

Kingdon, the eldest son of George J. Gould, was accidentally struck in the face with a polo mallet at Saratoga, N. Y., suffering a severe bruise and ending the contest for the day.

James Hosey and Ed Roberts were arrested at Kansas City charged with postoffice robbery and the theft of a horse and buggy. A posse of farmers armed with shotguns, chased the fugitives into the city.

Casualties.

Gen. Lew Wallace's automobile ran away at Crawfordsville, Ind., throwing him out but not doing any serious injury.

Fire in the McCormick Harvester company's twine factory at Chicago did $100,000 damage. Seven persons were injured, five of whom were firemen.

Helen Vanderbilt Wackerman, who recently had trouble in London with an artist, was badly cut with glass while attempting to escape from supposed danger from fire at Buffalo, N. Y.

An unattached train of fourteen freight cars, on the Reading railway broke loose at Prospect street, Trenton, N. J., and, running about a mile, crashed into the rear end of the company's station. Three of the cars were piled up inside the station, and the building is so badly damaged that considerable of it will have to be rebuilt.

Foreign Notes.

Cholera is reported at Astrakhan, Russia, but the government is endeavoring to keep it secret.

Oil has been discovered in large quantities in the island of Trinidad and is being worked under Canadian auspices.

According to the Rome Tribuna King Victor Emmanuel will visit Emperor William in Berlin during the last week in August.

Figures have been issued showing that the British army during the war in South Africa consumed 34,500,000 pounds of jam.

Business is paralyzed at Caracas, Venezuela, in consequence of the revolution and yellow and typhoid fevers now raging at Valencia.

The London Daily Mail says there is reason to believe the powers will decline Russia's invitation to take part in a conference on trusts.

Prof. Schweninger, famous as physician to Bismarck, has been removed from his position as professor of skin diseases in Berlin university.

For fear of its falling, the Santa Stefano clock tower at Venice, has been ordered taken down, as well as several private residences in the same neighborhood.

The settlement of the country, according to Johannesburg advices, is being taken in hand with all possible dispatch. Each department of state is working at full pressure.

Disagreement among political cliques in Bulgaria are likely to bring to light the true inwardness of the imprisonment of Miss Stone and develop who received the money paid for her ransom.

Advices from Honduras state that on July 17 the British cruiser Psyche reached Ruatan, and issued a proclamation to the effect that England withdrew all claim to the allegiance of inhabitants of the Bay islands.

The correspondent in St. Petersburg of the London Daily Mail reports that cholera has broken out in the government of Astrakhan, European Russia, and that fifteen deaths were recorded last Friday. The government is keeping the fact of the epidemic secret.

Otherwise.

The estate of Potter Palmer of Chicago foots up $7,520,000.

Chicago brewery employes are on the verge of a strike for an eight-hour day.

The largest shipment of gold from Nome this season—$1,000,000—arrived at Seattle on the Roanoke.

E. B. Ewing, the Washington lawyer who disappeared last week, has been located on a ranch near Alexander, Wyo.

Another art treasure, "The Shower of Gold," with Rembrandt—1652" in the corner, has been unearthed in the Museum of Fine Arts, in Boston.

A commission has been appointed by the Evangelical Lutheran Synodical conference to locate two preparatory schools in the South for negroes.

It is stated that the young earl of Rosslyn, who went bankrupt at Monte Carlo last winter, is to be used as a star card at a new gambling house at Saratoga.

A negress, Mary Wisdom, of Rochester, N. Y., has just learned that she is not a slave, and sues Silas A. Snell, a farmer, for wages at $100 per year, for twenty years.

The new army post to be constructed at Monterey, Cal., will cost $125,000. The increase in troops stationed in that state has made additional barracks necessary.

The trust companies of New York city now transact nearly as much business as the banks composing the clearing house association, their deposits aggregating $760,000,000.

While Benjamin Saurwine of Reading, Pa., was cleaning away brush and digging post holes, he unearthed a partially-decayed box containing $3,400. How the money got there is a mystery.

Malvin Smith killed Calvin Senter at Middlesboro, Ky., by shooting him through the heart after being mortally wounded by Senter. A dispute over a woman was the cause.

Myrtle Smith was acquitted at Kokomo, Ind., of a murder charge. In self-defense she fatally shot her step-father, Albert Milton.

Rev. Alex. P. Doyle, secretary of the Catholic missionary union, has received a gift of $10,000 for the establishment of the Apostolic mission house for the training of Roman Catholic priests and missionaries.

WORRY OVER CUBA

THINGS IN THE NEW REPUBLIC ARE NOT MOVING SMOOTHLY.

TALK OF ANNEXATION RENEWED

CUBANS ARE BECOMING GREATLY DISCOURAGED OVED CONDITIONS.

PLANTERS READY TO GIVE UP

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS ARE FALLING OFF AT A REMARKABLE RATE.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The economic conditions in Cuba are causing uneasiness in administration circles.

The customs receipts at Hanvana are no longer reported daily, and this is said to be due to the fact that they have fallen off heavily in the last two months. While Col. Taskar Bliss of the United States army was in charge of the Cuban customs the average daily receipts amounted to $41,000, and it is reported that they have fallen off to less than one-quarter of that amount and on some days have reached $5,000. There are other rumors regarding Cuban customs that are disturbing and there is some anxiety over the new republic lest President Palma and his associates in the government and give up the effort to keep it going in a conservative way.

Become Discouraged

Gov. Gen. Wood left a number of American officers in Havana to aid the Cubans with their experience in handling the customs service and the sanitary regulations. These officers have nearly all returned to Washington. They are not inclined to give their reasons to the public, but they have reported to the war department. Several clerks who remained for a time in Havana are also back in Wasington, occupying less important positions and receiving less salary than they had in Cuba. They are not allowed to talk.

It is not a matter of surprise that the customs receipts should decrease, since the Cubans have not been able to dispose of their sugar crop and are unable to buy as they would. And it is not surprising that the Cubans should be discouraged in their efforts to make their receipts cover the expenses of their government. But this condition is said to have revived the among the Cuban planters. It is predicted by some of the officers who were in Cuba with Gen. Wood that before congress meets next winter there will be a strong movement for annexation in Cuba, just as there was in Hawaii a few months after the independent government was inaugurated. The planters have been so much discouraged by their failure to secure reciprocity with the United States that they are talking annexation. It is not through animus toward the present Cuban government, but with the hope of saving themselves from bankruptcy and ruin that they seek annexation. The reduction of the revenues has compelled the Cuban government to curtail its expenditures, and it is doing this in some of the most important reforms inaugurated by the United States while in control.

Talk of Annexation

Yellow Fever Outbreak Feared.

It is neglecting the sanitary measures inaugurated by Gen. Wood in Havana and Santiago. There is already fear of a new outbreak of yellow fever in those cities, and should such a danger appear it will be incumbent on this government to inquire why the sanitary measures have been abandoned after the Cuban constitutional convention had adopted the Platt amendment, which provided that Cuba should execute plans of sanitation to be mutually agreed upon for the sanitation of the island to prevent the recurrence of epidemic and infectious diseases. Without any desire to embarrass the Cuban government, the United States must insist on the continuance of these plans of sanitation as a means of protecting this country from yellow fever.

STRONG HINTS AT SUICIDE.

May Yohe Sobs for Her Bradlee, Who Stays Away.

London, Aug. 3.—May Yohe's trip to Paris was suddenly abandoned yesterday afternoon when a messenger arrived at the Savoy hotel, where Miss Yohe is stopping, with a note from Putnam Bradlee Strong, dated London. It began:

"Dear Mazy: Excuse the shakiness of my writing. I am nearly crazy. How could you accuse me of stealing? This will be handed to you by a messenger who knows my address and who will forward any mail or wire. If you love me, write or wire, if possible the latter, as a letter may reach me too late. Remember, I am, even until the next world, your,

—"Bradlee."

Upon the receipt of this note Miss Yohe hastily wrote: "Come back; I forgive all.—Mazy."

This was sent by the waiting messenger, who refused to give Strong's address. Miss Yohe then canceled her Paris arrangements and awaited an answer, or the arrival of Strong, but there was no answer and Strong did not appear. Time and again she broke out amid a sob saying: "Why don't he come? My God, I would give my soul for Bradlee."

TYPHOON A GOOD THING.

Streets of Manila Are Thoroughly Cleaned.

Manila, Aug 3.—A second typhoon has been prevailing here for a day or two. The velocity of the wind was very high and the storm cleansed Manila thoroughly.

The sea was forced into the canals and flooded the districts where cholera has been raging. The result is that there were only twenty-five deaths in the last twenty-four hours. Delayed telegrams from various points throughout the archipelago bring reports of heavy storms. Numerous wrecks of small vessels are reported in addition to the loss of three coastwise steamships.

THE STORY OF THE PLAINS.

Valuable Work on the Geology of North Dakota Just Issued.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 3. — "The Story of the Plains," by Daniel E. Willard, A. M., a treatment of the landscape geology of North Dakota, has just been issued. It contains eighty-three illustrations, and is an exhaustive treatise on the geological formation of the state that will be in demand by North Dakotans and will probably be adopted by a majority of the schools as a reference book.

DON'T KNOW WHAT AILS KING.

Edward's Illness as Much a Mystery as Ever.

London, Aug. 2.—Apropos of the rumors that the coronation may again, at the eleventh hour, be postponed on account of the enfeebled condition of the king, the Lancet authorized the following statement:

"If King Edward was an ordinary hospital patient he would have been discharged cured several days ago, with a mild caution to be careful. It must be remembered that the incision in the side is extremely deep. The rigid precautions of the king's medical advisers in declining to allow his majesty to move about as soon as might have been expected were dictated merely by a desire to give the healing process ample time to consolidate. There has been at no time the remotest sign of anything pointing to malignancy, and all talk of a second operation is without the slightest foundation."

From other well informed medical sources it has been ascertained that while the king's physicians and surgeons entirely relieved his ailment, the actual cause of the illness has never been definitely ascertained. All that Lister, Barlow, Laking and Treves are believed to know themselves is that they successfully removed a dangerous abcess. Having accomplished that result it seems they are content to ignore the cause, in the absence of complicating possibilities.

NAMED BY MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS.

State Ticket Is Nominated and Platform Adopted.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2.—Judge George H. Durand of Flint, who filled a vacancy on the supreme bench of this state during the year 1892 and who is generally credited with being a Gold Democrat at heart, though not a bolter in 1896, was nominated yesterday afternoon on the fourth ballot to run for governor this fall on the Democratic ticket. The balance of the ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, John F. Bible of Ionia; secretary of state, John Donovan, Bay City; treasurer, Wilbur F. Davidson, Port Huron; auditor general, David A. Hammond, Ann Arbor; attorney general, W. C. Knight, Grand Rapids; superintendent of public instruction, Prof. Woodbright M. Ferris, Grand Rapids; commissioner of land office, Arthur P. Watson, Cheboygan; member state board of education, Charles Field, Hastings; clerk of supreme court, to fill vacancy, Benjamin J. Brown, Menominee. The convention adjourned sine die at 10 o'clock last night. The platform adopted is devoted almost entirely to state issues, the only mention of national issues being an indorsement of the election of United States senators directly by the people.

MILLENIUM IN THREE YEARS.

Three-Months-Old Child in Russia Does Some Prophesying.

Washington, Aug. 2—A letter has been received by Solomon Berlin, a merchant of this city, conveying the information that the millenium will come in 1905. Mr. Berlin's letter came from his father, who lives in Russia. It relates that a child three months old living in Warsaw recently began to talk. The child was left for a few moments by its mother in charge of her seven-year-old daughter. The daughter became frightened at something and began to cry, when the baby startled her by exclaiming: "Don't cry: mamma will be back soon." This speech from a child three months old scared the girl extremely and she summoned her mother. When the mother arrived the child said: "Send for the rabbi." To the rabbi the precocious infant uttered clearly a prophesy to the effect that in one year from that time there would be a great war between the world powers, and that in three years the millenium would arrive. The letter related that this prediction has created great consternation among the Jews of Russia. Several Hebrews have been interviewed in regard to the alleged prophesy. They said that according to the Torah, the millenium is due in about three or four years, and they consider the Warsaw child's prophesy as a reminder of the approaching reign of the Jews.

TWO WOMEN DROWNED.

Undertow Was Responsible for the Accident.

Hull, Mass., Aug. 2.—Miss Anna D. Collier, a school teacher of Worcester, and Miss Jean Brown of Detroit, both summer guests at Bay Side, were drowned in the surf while bathing yesterday. The undertow was responsible for the accident. Miss Collier, who could not swim, had waded into rather deep water and was carried off her feet by the undertow. Miss Brown and Miss Christina McAdam, also of Detroit, who could swim, started to save her. Both reached Miss Collier, but she in her fright seized and dragged them down. After a struggle Miss Collier and Miss Brown disappeared, while Miss McAdam managed to keep afloat. The danger of the three women had been seen from the beach and several volunteers started out, rescuing Miss McAdam.

ELEVEN MEN BURNED.

Explosion Due to Leaking Gas Fatal to Three.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Eleven men were frightfully burned yesterday by an explosion in one of the buildings of the Stoddard Manufacturing works. Three will probably die. The explosion was caused by a leakage of natural gas. It is not known how the gas was ignited.

CHOLERA BAD IN MANCHURIA.

Not Only Chinese but Russians and Other Europeans Are Victims.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Official returns show that cholera is spreading with terrible rapidity throughout Manchuria. The epidemic now claims hundreds of victims daily, mostly Chinese, but Russians and other Europeans are dying of the disease.

Peril in China.

New York, Aug. 2. — Miss Christina Williams of Minneapolis is on the corps of Methodist missionaries working in Szecknen province, China, who, according to Dr. Cartwright, vainly seek protection from the authorities.

After the Lynchers.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 2. — Gov. White offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of parties engaged in the recent lynchings in Randolph county as a result of the assassination of Police Chief Wilmoth.

CRONAN IS NAMED

CANDIDATE OF THE NORTH DAKOTA DEMOCRATS FOR GOVENOR.

STATE CONVENTION AT FARGO

RAILWAY MERGER IS STRONGLY DENOUNCED IN THE PLATFORM.

HOT FIGHT ON RESUBMISSION

PLANK IS FINALLY ADOPTED BY A COMFORTABLE MAJORITY.

Governor—J. E. Cronan, Fargo.
Lieutenant governor—M. C. G. Innes, Jamestown.
Secretary of State—John Quarum, Abercrombie.
Auditor—J. F. Morrison, Bottineau.
Treasurer—James McDonald, Grafton.
Attorney General—M. J. Barrett, Minot.
Superintendent of Instruction—V. Stefanson, Grand Forks.
Commissioner of Insurance—F. A. Wilson.
Congress—L. A. Ueland, Edgerley, and V. R. Lovell, Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 3.—The foregoing ticket was nominated last night by the Democrats of North Dakota. The convention met yesterday morning, and after electing R. H. Shadrich of Fargo chairman and T. D. Hogan of Grand Forks secretary, the temporary organization was made permanent and the committees appointed to report at the adjourned session at 2 o'clock.

The afternoon session was marked by a fierce fight over the adoption of the resubmission plank of the platform. Repeated efforts to kill off the measure were made and on a final roll call the plank was retained by a vote of two to one. Considerable oratory was let loose as a result of the contest, and there were some heated expressions of opinion by delegates who felt that the convention would make a mistake in making the fight on resubmission and obscuring the main ground for a fight on the railway merger proposition. The platform indorsed former national issues without referring definitely to the Kansas City platform. Direct election of senators was favored, government by injunction condemned, the railway merger strongly denounced, and the Republican party condemned for being dominated by railroad interests. A primary election law was favored, an equitable taxation of corporations demanded and the initiative and referendum indorsed. The income tax was indorsed. An amendmen and a motion was made urging the adoption of the fellow-servant law, similar to the Minnesota measure.

In the nominations there was great enthusiasm on the nomination for governor, when Cronan was given quite an ovation. He was once United States marshal and is extremely popular. There was not more than one nomination for any office. Delegates were very much in earnest and believe a good showing is possible on the anti-merger and resubmission planks.

HE WAS A PRODUCER.

Jack McAleer of Deadwood, Once Wealthy, Dies a Poor Man.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 3.—One of the unique characters of Deadwood, Jack McAleer, died yesterday at St. Joseph's hospital here. He came to the gulch in 1876 and owned one of the richest placer claims in the diggings. It was a heavy producer, and as long as it lasted McAleer was lavish with his money. For several years he kept a teapot full of gold dust in his cabin and it was dispensed as freely as water. At one time he owned several large blocks of real estate in Deadwood and $50,000 in government bonds. His wealth gradually slipped from him, and he parted with his last piece of real estate some three years ago, when taken to the hospital. He died practically without money.

THE HESSIAN FLY.

The Pest Comes Late, but Is Industriously Plying His Vocation.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 3.—E. W. Dewey was in from the town of Buse and reports that the Hessian fly is doing a great deal of damage in the grain fields of that town and similar reports are coming in from the adjoining towns. Mr. Dewey states that the insects appear to have begun work last Saturday and he believes that one-quarter of his grain is already destroyed. His only hope lies in getting it cut as quickly as possible and he proposes to begin on his wheat at once.

TRAMPS ARRESTED.

Assault on Young Boys at Moorhead Lands Five in Jail.

Moorhead, Minn., Aug. 3.—J. W. Kelly and four other hoboes are held on a charge of unnaturally assaulting two young boys. The boys fully identified the five men, who will be held to the grand jury.

DOCTOR ENDS HIS LIFE.

Old Resident of Minnewaukan Found Dead.

Minnewaukan, N. D., Aug. 3.—Dr. J. O. Brown, for eighteen years a physician here, last night committed suicide, using laudanum. He was found dead on the floor of his office.

To Cultivate Sand Cherries.

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 3. — Professors Kerr and Hanson of the state agricultural college left this city for a trip on the range country looking up native shrubs and fruits which will be experimented with at the college, and their capacity for improvement tested. The special mission of their present trip is to gather plants of the sand cherry, which fruit has shown itself susceptible to great improvement by care and cultivation. The gentlemen will visit as much of the range country as possible on their trip.

DARKEST AFRICA TO GLOW WITH ELECTRIC LIGHT

VICTORIA FALLS TO BE HARNESSED AND ITS POWER, GREATER THAN THAT OF NIAGARA, WILL BE UTILIZED TO DEVELOP A COUNTRY RICH IN GOLD, COPPER AND PRECIOUS GEMS

Cecil Rhodes had a notion that some day, long after he had gone to his rest beneath the bowlders on the Matappo hills, South Africa would rise up to compete with the United States just as the United States has risen to make Europe "hustle."

Whether or not that dream was too big for its foundation of facts, it is certain that one branch of its support is about to be erected, and that the results are going to be of far reaching interest and importance.

It will not be permissible to call Africa the Dark Continent when it has a tremendous electric light in the middle of it. Yet that is what it is going to have. The plan is not merely a dream, for within a few weeks an expedition sets out from London to make an actual beginning on the work of establishing at Victoria falls, on the Zambesi river, an electric power plant that will in time put to blush the famous turbines at Niagara falls, just as Victoria falls themselves greatly exceed in height, width and grandeur those at Niagara.

It was Prof. George Forbes, an American engineer, who had taken a prominent part in the "harnessing" of the Niagara falls, who first suggested that the millions of horse-power which had been going to waste in the heart of Africa should be put to practical use.

A commission of electrical engineers, which may include two or three Americans, is now preparing to leave England to make all the arrangements for putting in the plant as soon as the machinery can reach the falls. That will be when Rhodes' Cape to Cairo railway, over which the material will have to be sent, is built up to the great cataract.

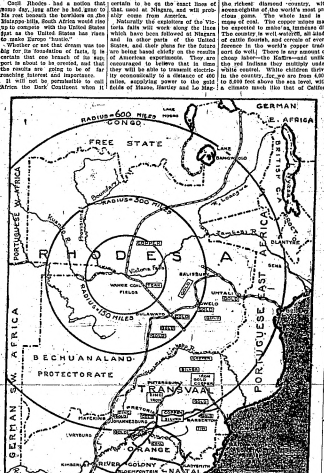
The men who are to build the power plant at the Victoria Falls probably will have as many close calls from wild beasts as those who have been working on the Cape to Cairo railroad and telegraph line have done, but they are not likely to have any trouble with the natives. Some time ago they elected to come under the protection of the Chartered company, and one of its administrators lives among them.

In speaking to the writer the other day, W. A. Willis, the secretary of the syndicate which is going to "harness" the Victoria falls, said that they expected to be supplying power wholesale in about fifteen years from now.

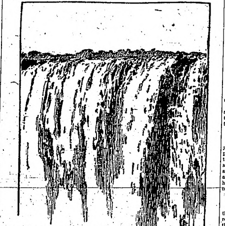
Nothing definite has been decided yet about the machinery that will be used for the plant, but it is almost certain to be on the exact lines of that used at Niagara, and will probably come from America.

Naturally the exploiters of the Victoria falls will work along the lines which have been followed at Niagara and in other parts of the United States, and their plans for the future are being based chiefly on the results of American experiments. They are encouraged to believe that in time they will be able to transmit electricity economically to a distance of 400 miles, supplying power to the gold fields of Mazoe, Hartley and Lo Maghunda, as well as to the towns of Buluwayo, Salisbury and Gwelo—power for electric lighting, telegraphs and telephones and the other up-to-date conveniences that make such a startling contrast to the hippopotami and lions.

But after all the immediate possibilities of the Victoria falls in South Africa count for little in comparison with the remoter future in which Rhodesia may step forward as the great industrial country of the world. "That is my dream," said Mr. Willis, "and it seems to me not at all an absurd one. In the first place it is the richest gold country in the world—one-third of the world's most precious metal within eleven square miles—the richest diamond country, with seven-eighths of the world's most precious gems. The whole land is a mass of coal. The copper mines may be expected to make an immense dif- The country is well watered, all kinds of cattle flourish, and cereals of every ference in the world's copper trade. sort do well. There is any amount of cheap labor—the Kaffirs—and unlike the red Indians they multiply under white control. White children thrive in the country, for we are from 4,000 to 5,000 feet above the sea level, with a climate much like that of California. In time Rhodesia will be the one place in the world for a young man to go to. In fifty years we will have a tremendous population there and what part the Victoria falls may play then is a subject that is too big even for my imagination."



THE DISTRICT OF SOUTH AFRICA THAT CAN BE REACHED WITH ELECTRICITY FROM THE VICTORIA FALLS



THE VICTORIA FALLS OF THE ZAMBESI, TWICE AS WIDE AND OVER TWICE AS HIGH AS NIAGARA

OLD TOOLS FOUND IN MINE.

Implements Used Two Centuries Ago Discovered in Massachusetts.

A remarkable collection of implements used by miners in 1683 has been discovered in a deserted shaft of the Sturbridge graphite mine at Webster, Mass., ninety feet below the surface.

The discovery includes a wooden pump stock, twenty-five feet long and almost intact; a section of chain formerly weighing fifty pounds and now tipping the scales at but five, and some hammers of ancient make.

More than this, it has become positively known that the Sturbridge graphite mine was the first mine of any kind discovered and worked in the United States.

The discovery was recently made by C. E. and Francis Husbands of Philadelphia, export graphite men, who are now operating at the mine.

For something like 219 years these implements have lain in ice-cold water deep in the ground, and, in the line of ancient tools, are probably more valuable than any others in the country.

An investigation conducted by the Philadelphia men has developed the facts, which first became known outside to Edward S. Hill of Webster, president of the Massachusetts Graphite company, which owns the property.

Mr. Husbands and son believe they are now in a fair way to unearth a very rich bed of graphite, and it was during their investigation that the relics mentioned were discovered. In cold water, away from the air, the pump had lain for more than 200 years, apparently, and is to-day in almost a perfect state of preservation.

HAD A GOOD THING.

Mr. Rockefeller's Opinion of the Medical Profession.

When Mr. William Rockefeller had appendicitis Dr. McBirney was called in to perform the necessary operation.

After his recovery Mr. Rockefeller received the doctor's bill in due course, and, drawing a check, went to pay the account in person. In the conversation which followed appendicitis was naturally their main theme.

"You told me," said Mr. Rockefeller, "while I was sick, doctor, that everybody in the world had a vermiform appendix."

"With a few exceptions I believe that to be the case," answered the doctor.

"And that sooner or later," pursued the oil magnate, "every one would have to be operated on, either to cure or prevent the disease."

"That is the generally recognized opinion among the medical fraternity," was the answer.

"Well," said Mr. Rockefeller, rising, "if you will pardon me saying so, it seems to me that you have a better thing of it than has the Standard Oil Company."—New York Times.

Rivalry Over Beethoven Statue.

Much rivalry has existed between the cities of Leipzig and Vienna for the possession of the remarkable statue of Beethoven, recently executed by Max Klinger of Leipzig. Subscription lists were opened in both places, but it is understood that the city council of Vienna finally decided to make no contribution to the fund, so Leipzig now has the best chance of securing it. It represents the labor of fifteen years and depicts the great German musician seated upon a bronze throne which is supported by symbolical figures in relief. An eagle, chiseled in black marble spreads its wings at the feet of the massive figure. The unconventional treatment as well as its fine execution has created quite a sensation throughout Europe. It is said to have cost $37,500 for materials alone, and is held by the sculptor at a purchase figure of $100,000.

No Boat Free from Danger.

Once upon a time a small boy asked permission of his father to go rowing in a boat with a friend.

"You may go, my son," said the parent, "if you are careful to keep away from the rocks."

"Certainly," replied his son; "we are going in deep, clear water, where there are no rocks."

They went, and as it happened, his friend was a fool. So, when they were from shore, he swayed the boat from side to side, thinking that it was great fun to do so. Finally the boat turned bottom side up, and the occupants had a very narrow escape from drowning.

Moral—Rocks may appear in any water when there is a fool in the boat

Two Hundred Miles to Buy a Hat.

A writer in the Boston Journal is responsible for the following story:

"What are you doing in Boston?" I asked a friend of mine, a New Yorker, the other day, as we met in Postoffice square.

"Came on to buy a hat."

"Why come to Boston for that?"

"Well, you see, in New York when you put on a new hat all your friends promptly remove it and look inside to see if it was bought at a swell store. Not having the price the swell store wanted and being favored with a railroad pass, I came on to buy mine here and fool the crowd. Going back to-night."

Roman Philosopher's Words.

You will do the greatest service to the state if you shall raise, not the roofs of the houses, but the souls of the citizens; for it is better that great souls should dwell in small houses rather than for mean slaves to lurk in great houses.—Epictetus.

There is a great difference between poker spots and polka dots.

EARLY AMERICAN PIONEER

How English Lad Blazed Path in Wilderness That Is Now Kentucky.

In London, England, some 200 years ago or less it was a custom among blackguards to steal lads and men. The thieves would trump up some charge, carry their captives to court, get them convicted and ship and sell them as servants or slaves in the British colonies of America.

During those times—about the year 1760—a Jewish boy, Samuel Sanders, was one day sauntering lazily through the street when he was seized and carried before a court, and there charged by his kidnapers with clipping coin. Sanders was innocent, but false witnesses sustained the charge and the lad was put on board a ship. When the vessel came to its Virginia landing he was sold into service for a number of years—really into slavery.

But Sanders was a strong, active youth and he abhorred bondage. A few weeks of his slave life set his mind all the more earnestly toward escape—toward flight to the South, where the lands were broader and the people fewer.

He fled to North Carolina. What must have been the adventures of that London lad! Tramping days through dense woods and asking food from any farmhouse or camp he chanced to meet!

When he reached North Carolina by singular good luck he fell in with that great pioneer and leader of daring men, Daniel Boone. Boone was then starting over the mountains to penetrate the fertile wilderness which is now Kentucky. He liked the lad and made him his companion.

Once in the Kentucky camp Sanders took a hand in furnishing all the simple needs of pioneer life. He hunted animals for food, cured skins for clothing, cut trees for fires and house building, made salt at the various licks and gathered honey from the wild bees' store. In these duties he went here and there with Boone, and he finally shared the fate of his friend and guide in being captured by the Indians.

The Indians were Shawnees and they carried him to one of their towns and finally adopted him as a son and brother. Boone was also adopted. But Boone escaped, while Sanders was so well satisfied that he stayed with his new people and finally married a Shawnee girl.

The descendants of this Jewish lad of London and Shawnee girl of Ohio are living in honor and prosperity to this day.

Perhaps some clouds have a silver lining, and I guess they'll keep on lining.

STRANDED IN THE DESERT

Equipped Ship Rests on Sands Bordering the Colorado River.

There does not seem to be much use for a ship in the desert country of California which borders on the Colorado river, yet travelers in that region may see there a veritable "ship of the desert." Far from any body of water capable of floating even a mudscow, may be found a big sternwheel steamer, accustomed to ply up and down the river carrying passengers and freight. She has been lying there since last September, stranded high and dry on the sands a mile and a half from the stream's present course.

This strange condition of affairs has come about simply because the Colorado, a mighty stream, but one of the most treacherous of rivers, chose to cut a new channel for itself in the early fall without notice or warning.

One night last September the Alviso, Capt. J. W. Babson, tied up to the shore a couple of miles above Needles, awaiting telegraphic orders. She was loaded with passengers and supplies, and as travel is sometimes leisurely pursued on the Colorado all hands turned in for a good night's sleep. Between 3 and 4 o'clock Capt. Babson was aroused by Indians, who warned him that for some reason the river was falling rapidly, and advised him to pull out into midstream as quickly as possible. This the captain tried to do, but the water had already gone down so low that his prow stuck fast in the mud when he got up steam and tried to turn his paddle wheels and move out into navigable water. And there he has stuck ever since, becoming resigned to the situation perforce and hopefully awaiting the flood water that comes down at the time of the melting of the Colorado and Wyoming snows in June.

By this freak the Colorado river, which is always accomplishing some unusual feat, has annexed to California a strip of land from three-fourths to a mile wide and about four miles long. This kind of land annexation is going on all the time along the Colorado, which is the official dividing line between California and Arizona. Sometimes Arizona steals from California and sometimes the state steals from the territory, but this is the first time on record that a steamer has been held up as a pledge in the transaction.

THE BRAIN THE ONLY ORGAN OF THE BODY THAT RESTS DURING SLEEP

If the organs of the body cannot be said to sleep neither can the voluntary muscles. Witness the phenomena of sleep-walking, the postillions in stage coach days who slept in their saddles and cavalrymen who do it to-day; infantry who have been known to sleep on forced marches; sentinels who walk their beats, carrying their guns in a fixed position while they sleep. For all we know, policemen may do it too. People who talk in their sleep are familiar to all of us. Experiments made by Speir, Armstrong and Child on 200 college students of both sexes show that 47 per cent of the men and 37 per cent of the women talked in their sleep. A number of things might be proved by these statistics. Of these sleep talkers one-half of the women and one-third of the men are able to answer questions while asleep. More women than men could answer questions on any subject, not alone that of which they had been talking. It has also been found that most sleep-talkers are under 25 years of age.

Evidently, then, with the muscles and organs of the body all working, it is the brain only that sleeps, and by no means all of the brain. The senses of sight, hearing touch, smell and taste may be very much awake while the subject sleeps. A sleeping person hears and answers questions, rearranges his bed clothing, covers his eyes to keep out light, draws away his hand when the experimenter tickles it. A child is broken of the habit of sucking his thumb while asleep by putting aloes on it. He is conscious of the bitter taste and dreams of wormwood. The nerves, then, and the brain centers corresponding to them are awake. A busy lawyer, exhausted by overwork, one night went out to supper with some friends, ate, talked and walked with them, and the next day remembered absolutely nothing of the occurrence. He had not been drinking; the man was simply asleep during the whole evening. His conscious memory—that is, consciousness itself—slept.

Many a man sets himself up as a hero because he has no valet.

A KENTUCKY SUMMER OUTFIT.

Senator Blackburn's Little Daughter Knew What He Required.

Have any of the warm days this summer recalled to the mind of Senator Blackburn of Kentucky the time he was suddenly summoned to Washington, twenty-odd years ago, in the middle of June, to look after a small matter of patronage? His departure was so sudden, and the prospect of his staying more than a day or two away from home so remote, that he carried with him only a handbag. But business heaped upon him after his arrival at the capital and he was obliged to telegraph back a request for a trunkful of summer clothing. His little daughter happened to be the only member of the family at home when the dispatch arrived, and, thinking it her duty to respond promptly, she packed a trunk and shipped it, first slipping a note inside, as follows:

"Dear Papa: I send you all the clothes I can find, and hope you are well."

The trunk contained seven white shirts, six winter scarfs, one tooth brush, one bowie knife, and two revolvers. It was a rueful outlook for Blackburn, with the thermometer up among the nineties, but he listened to no proffered condolences. "My daughter has done right," he said. "She sent me what a real Kentucky girl regards a suitable summer outfit for a gentleman."—Harper's Weekly.

The Heighth of Ignorance.

Lawyer Grover delights in nothing more than in hearing a good story, and he can tell a few himself, says the Boston Record. He was telling me of a quaint old Yankee who had quarreled with his brother. The old fellow didn't like the brother a bit, and when the latter was summoned to appear in court his testimony was subjected to considerable criticism.

"See you had that brother of mine on the stand down to court yesterday," he said, as he met Grover.

"Yes."

"Have to be pretty careful about what he tells you!"

"Why, he is a man of more than ordinary intelligence, is he not?"

"Intelligence! Why, Mr. Grover, you could lose information talking with that man!"

REDS HELD DOWN

PARIS POLICE DEFEAT EFFORTS OF ANARCHISTS TO CREATE TROUBLE.

DISORDERS IN THE PROVINCES

SOCIALISTS HOLD DEMONSTRATION IN SUPPORT OF GOVERNMENT.

FEELING STILL RUNS HIGH

GENDARMES WHO ATTEMPT TO CLOSE A SCHOOL ARE MOBBED.

Paris, Aug. 5.—The Socialist demonstration in support of the government in the schools question, which was held in the Place Maubert, in the Latin quarter, yesterday, passed without disorder.

A procession of 3,000 persons formed in front of the Hotel De Ville. A majority of the paraders wore socialist emblems, a little red flower in their buttonholes. They marched, singing socialist songs and shouting "down with the priests," to the Place Maubert, where red wreaths and a bouquet of roses were laid at the foot of the statue of Etienne Dolet. An imposing force of police and municipal guards preserved order. They split the crowd into small fractions and prevented collisions of the clericals who were attending a Meeting of Protest

in a hall in the neighborhood. Efforts of one or two anarchists to create trouble after the demonstration were speedily suppressed.

Advices received here from the provinces report the occurrence of few noteworthy incidents in connection with the closing of the unauthorized schools by commissaries of police. There were slight disorders at Bordeaux, where conflicts with the clericals occurred.

The mayor of a township near Roanne, Loire, rang the tocsin and incited a crowd armed with pitchforks and cudgels against the police commissary, who was unable to expel the Sisters. The mayor was suspended for this action by the prefect.

Part of the garrison at Brest is being held in readiness to assist the police commissaries close the schools in Finistere, where feeling is still running very high.

At the meeting of the Place Maubert a demonstration was made against the schools of the friars in Rue Furs, Cemburg. The windows of the buildings Were Shattered With Stones.

The police arrested an anarchist named Libertad. At an anti-clerical meeting held in a hall in the Latin quarter last evening M. Tourgnol, Radical Socialist member of the chamber of deputies, declared that on the resumption of the sitting of the chamber he would propose the suppression of all congregations and the denunciation of the concordat, and that he hoped all Republicans would support him. M. Tourgnol was cheered by the audience.

At Vienna, near St. Etienne, a crowd of 4,000 persons opposed the police commissary, who wished to close the nuns' school. It hooted and stoned the commissary and his escort of gendarmes until they retired. The effort to close the school is unsuccessful.

WHITEHEAD AT WORK.

He Resumes the Construction of His Flying Machine.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 5.—After several weeks of enforced rest, due to his inability to procure funds for the continuation of certain experiments, Gustave Whitehead has resumed work upon his flying machine invention. Asked who was assisting him, he said: "I have a brother, John Whitehead, who has spent the past decade in the West prospecting. He has accumulated some money, and we have formed a mutual partnership. He is my sole backer, and we are going to compete for that $100,000 prize for the best dirible balloon airship or flying machine at the St. Louis exposition."

KILLED HIS OWN FATHER.

Son Is Refused Use of a Horse and Commits Murder.

McArthur, Ohio, Aug. 5. — David Morris, a farmer aged forty-five, was killed by his son David Morris, aged twenty-two, near Prattsville. The son was living with his father and demanded the use of a horse. When the farmer refused the son struck him with a club. The father died within an hour. Young Morris was held without bail.

Bandit Is Captured.

Manila, Aug. 5. — Pablo Maurna, a bandit who had terrorized the island of Romblon for the past ten years, was captured by the native constabulary on the neighboring island of Sibuyan. With his arms bound, he was placed in a boat to be conveyed to Romblon, but sprang overboard in a dash for liberty, and was drowned.

THREE KILLED IN A WRECK.

Head-On Collision Between Two Milk Trains.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A head-on collision between milk trains on the Ontario & Western railway at Horton's, Delaware county, resulted in the death of three persons, the wrecking of two engines and the ditching of several cars.

Sailor Commits Suicide.

New York, Aug. 5.—Given E. Brocar, a landsman of the cruiser Montgomery, committed suicide by taking poison. It is thought his recent failure to pass an examination for naval yeoman caused him to become despondent.

Runaway Boy Is Killed.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Ernest French, thirteen years old, who, when dying, said he belonged in Los Angeles, fell from the bumpers of a freight train at Braintree yesterday, lost both legs and died. He was a runaway.

LOVESWAR IS GUILTY.

Convicted of Murder by Jury of His Peers.

Sturgis, S. D., Aug. 5.—"We, the jury, find the defendant, Ernest Loveswar, guilty of murder as charged in the information, and we fix the penalty at death." The above verdict was late Saturday night brought into court by the jury, who heard the evidence in the trial on the charge of murdering George Puck. So keen has been the interest taken by the entire public that, notwithstanding the late hour, the large court room was crowded, all standing room being filled. The defendants, as the verdict of the jury was read in a clear voice by the clerk of the court, and while the entire audience held their breath, sat stolidly by his counsel with downcast head and never lifted his eyes from the floor. Judge Rice fixed Wednesday, Aug. 6, for passing sentence and fixing date of execution.

LIND FOR CONGRESS.

Former Governor Announces His Candidacy.

Minneapolis, Aug. 5.—Acting Mayor John Lind is formally a candidate for congress in the Fifth district. Mr. Lind Saturday notified Chairman Elijah Barton, of the Hennepin county Democratic city and county committee that he will make the run. Chairman Barton received the following letter, definitely setting at rest any doubts either side entertained about the former governor's ultimate decision:

"Minneapolis, Aug. 2. — Elijah Barton, Chairman Democratic County Committee. Dear Sir: I write to advise you that I have concluded to become a candidate for congress in this district. In due time I will take the necessary steps to have my name go before the voters at the ensuing primary election. Yours truly, —John Lind."

PRISONER IS SLIPPERY.

Minnesota Sheriff Fails to Land Fish He Hoped to Fry.

Albert Lea, Minn., Aug. 5.—Patrick H. Harrington is not in the county jail here, as it was expected he would be, but as far as heard from he is at large. Thursday Sheriff Fossom of this county arrived in Toledo, Iowa, armed with a requisition from Gov. Van Sant, and fully expected to bring Harrington back on a charge of bigamy. When Mr. Fommom arrived in Toledo the sheriff was absent from the city and the county attorney decided a wait was necessary until the sheriff returned, and in the meantime the prisoner escaped and got into the woods under cover of darkness. A large crowd went in search of the fugitive, but he has not yet been found.

REPORTER MAYOR IS OUSTED.

Thomas R. Brown, Who for a Time Acted as Executive of Minneapolis, Is Removed.

Minneapolis, Aug. 5. — Former Gov. Powers Saturday demanded and received Thomas R. Brown's resignation as mayor's secretary, and appointed in his stead Stiles P. Jones, a newspaper reporter. The demurrer to the indictment of Former Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames for extortion was overruled by Judge Simpson, who agreed to hear arguments as to a postponement of the case till September. The defense indicated that it would file an affidavit of prejudice against Judge Simpson before the case came to trial in order to secure some one of his colleagues as trial judge.

RAILROADS OBJECT.

They Do Not Want Their Montana Assessment Increased.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 5. — The state board of equalization received protests from representatives of railways operating in Montana against an increase of 18 per cent in the railway assessment of the state. They will be given a hearing next week. A raise in the assessment means that railways will pay between $320,000 and $450,000 more taxes in the state this year than last year. Gov. Toole favors an increase of 300 per cent, but the state auditor and state treasurer, who, with himself constituted the majority of the board, induced the governor to accept the assessment as made.

MYSTERY IN HIS DEATH.

Hon. Albert Potter Dies at Des Moines Hospital.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 5.—Hon. Albert Potter of Waverly, a member of the Iowa legislature, died at Mercy hospital at 3:20 yesterday afternoon from the effects of poison. It is not known whether he administered the dose himself or was murdered. He was found in his room in the Kirkwood hotel and taken to the hospital. For years he was at the head of the Red Cross fraternal association, a mutual insurance organization, and for some time there has been a dispute over the funds, which Potter had in charge.

MINERS KILLE DBY CAVEIN.

Two Men Crushed Under Falling Rock at Lead, S. D., and Many Have Narrow Escapes.

Lead, S. D., Aug. 5.—John Porier and Joseph Varvais, Frenchmen, were killed by a cave-in on the seventh level of the Homestake mine. Five floors of the level came down, with fifty feet of the loose rock. There were a number of other miners working in the stope, but they all got out. It will require some time to recover the bodies of the men.

Relieved of His Roll.

Le Sueur, Minn., Aug. 5. — Edward Daily of this city was yesterday knocked down by two tramps just across the Minnesota river bridge and relieved of $30. Two tramps have been jailed on suspicion.

Miner Killed by Lightning.

Hill City, S. D., Aug. 5. — Frank Thompson, a miner employed near Hill City, was killed by lightning during a severe thunder storm. He went under a tree to get out of the rain when the lightning struck the tree.

Two Boys Drowned.

Milwaukee, Aug. 5.—Two boys, eight and fourteen years old, sons of James Wilburth, were drowned in the Milwaukee river yesterday. The lads were catching grubs and waded into a deep hole.

MOB HOLDS SWAY

STRIKERS COMPLETELY TIE UP AN INTERSTATE ELECTRIC ROAD.

NON-UNION MEN ARE MOBBED

PELTED WITH DECAYED FRUIT AND DRIVEN FROM THEIR CARS.

POLICEMEN KEEP OUT OF SIGHT

MORE SERIOUS OUTBREAKS ARE ALMOST CERTAIN TO OCCUR.

Ironton, Ohio, Aug. 5.—The strike of the employes of the Camden Interstate Electric railway almost completely tied up the lines from Guyandotte, W. Va., to Hanging Rock, Ohio, and intermediate points yesterday. In seven hours all the non-union men were driven from the cars in this city by violence. Crowds gathered at street intersections, hurling fruits, eggs and other missiles at motormen and conductors. At noon James Sanders, a union man who refused to quit, was taken from his car and dragged toward the Ohio river. On promising not to resume his car he was escorted home in a round-about way to escape the crowds. The conductor on the same car and linemen were taken home in cabs to escape the mobs.

Cars Were Held Up

all over the city until noon, when traffic was suspended. The non-union men were also afraid to run through the crowds at Cattlettsburg and Ashland, Ky., and other points on the Kentucky and West Virginia side of the Ohio river. The Ironton strikers ran cabs and secured more passengers than the street cars, women who chose that method of conveyance in preference to street cars, being cheered by the crowds. The concert at Beechwood Park, the railway company's pleasure resort, was abandoned, the Ironton orchestra declining to play after the strike was declared. The crowds of union sympathizers had full sway without molestation from the authorities, not a policeman appearing at any of the points of disturbance. The local militia will leave for camp at Newark to-day, and the preservation of order will devolve upon the officials in case of more serious outbreaks which are almost certain to occur if the cars shall be operated.

Disorder in Other Towns.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 5.—There has been general disorder throughout Huntington, Central City and other towns through which the lines of the Camden Interstate railway runs, as a result of the general strike order of motormen and conductors in West Virginia and Kentucky, and every man quit work along the line in towns on the Ohio side of the river. The lines here were blockaded by the friends of union labor and the city authorities made no effort to preserve order. The sheriff also refused to act and the company officials have appealed to Gov. White for protection. Motormen, conductors and passengers have been dragged from cars and the disorder seems on the increase, but cars are still running with non-union labor on this side of the Ohio river.

BOLT CURES DEAFNESS.

Eastern Man's Affliction Departs After Twenty Years.

Torrington, Conn., Aug. 5. — Robert Innes of Thomaston, who slightly shocked by lightning during a recent storm, has had his hearing completely restored. During the last twenty years Mr. Innes has suffered from deafness, but when he recovered from the effects of the lightning shock he could hear a clock tick and now can hear as well as before he became afflicted.

ATTEMPT TO SHOOT LOUBET.

French President Is Reported to Have Been Attacked by Assassin at Rambouillet.

Paris, Aug. 5.—It is rumored that an attempt was made to shoot President Loubet at Rambouillet Saturday. It is said the president requested that the matter be kept quiet. He was not injured.

GEN. SMITH IS FREE TO ACT.

Retired Soldier Not Ordered to Washington, But Told He May Proceed to His Home.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Gen. Jacob H. Smith, who arrived in San Francisco Friday, is not under orders to report to the adjutant general. The order heretofore published directed Gen. Smith to proceed to his home, the usual order in the case of retired officers.

FEAR OF INSANITY.

It Causes a Texas Man to Kill His Daughter and Himself.

Grainger, Tex., Aug. 5.—While brooding over a fear of insanity G. W. Gay shot and killed his daughter, Mrs. Earl Johnson, and the committed suicide. The family recently removed to this state from Arkansas.

THIS CHILD HAD MATCHES.

Barn Burned, With a Large Number of Horses and Sheep.

Slayton, Minn., Aug. 5.—A barn, six horses and sixty-five sheep on the farm of Julius Wepp in Chanarombie township were destroyed by fire started by a child. Insurance, $800.

Invents New Boat Wheel.

Aberdeen, S. D., Aug. 5. — Frank Elm of Geddes, S. D., has invented a new steamboat wheel that is attracting considerable attention. Tests are being made at Racine, Wis., and it is estimated that fully one-third in power is saved by the invention.

Found Burning in the Field.

Ada, Minn., Aug. 5.—George Williams was instantly killed by lightning. He was driving in his field and one of his horses was also killed. When found his clothes were burning.

MAYOR AMES RESIGNS.

Asks to Be Relieved of Duty Sept. 6—Chief Ames May Be Fired.

Minneapolis, Aug. 2. — Mayor Ames will tender his resignation as chief executive of Minneapolis at the city council meeting next Friday evening, asking to be relieved of official duties, responsibilities and worries Sept. 6. Ald. Fred Powers, vice president of the city council and acting mayor, will to-day remove Col. Fred W. Ames from the office of superintendent of police unless the superintendent acts upon a kindly suggestion and resigns. The police department, under the acting superintendency of Capt. C. R. Hill, will be reorganized somewhat, and there will be a new order of things so far as law enforcement is concerned. Mayor Ames, sick and sore in mind and body, will remain at West Baden until his health permits him to return to Minneapolis and face the latest indictment. The decision of the mayor to resign comes as the expected. His closest friends have for weeks predicted that he would resign at a date that would obviate the necessity of a special election. It is the judgment of practically all Mayor Ames' closest friends in Minneapolis that, considering all the circumstances, he has done the sensible thing.

TRACEY SHOWS UP AGAIN.

Accompanied by His Arsenal He Makes Unwelcome Visits.

Ellensburg, Wash., Aug. 2—Sam Evans who lives fifteen miles north of here, reports that last Monday a man came to his cabin and said that he was Tracey.

He had a Winchester and two revolvers. He compelled Evans to furnish him with food. The stranger showed Evans a wound in the back of his head, and said that he was shot by a member of a posse on the west side. A Wenatchee special says:

From 10 o'clock yesterday morning until 9 o'clock at night Harry Tracey was an unwelcome guest at the ranch of W. A. Sanders and S. J. McEldowney, six miles down the Columbia river. Tracey came out of the Cascades riding one horse, packing another, and leading a third in reserve. He carried a Winchester and two revolvers.

He took dinner and supper at the ranch, having the men well covered with his rifle. Toward evening he forced McEldowney to bring him two fresh horses and turn loose his jaded animals. He went south.

THE ROCK ISLAND.

Mammoth Combination of Roads Engineered by Moore Brothers.

New York, Aug. 2.—Articles of incorporation have been filed at Trenton for the Rock Island company, a combination taking in all roads in control of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad. In the list of incorporators none of the names of the men who have engineered the deal appear. President W. B. Leeds has kept in the background and William H. Moore & Bro., who are principally responsible for the development of the Rock Island system, are not mentioned. They, however, will figure in the combine later on. Interested parties emphatically deny that they are getting their roads merged so as to oppose the Northern Securities company or fight the Morgan-Hill combination. It is claimed the roads in the combination are neither parallel nor competitive. Notwithstanding the denials there is strong evidence that Moore Bros. are reaching out for a direct line to the Pacific slope.

WU WILL LINGER.

It May Be Six Months Before He Returns to China.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The announcement from China that Minister Wu is to remain here indefinitely is explained by the further announcement here that there has been a change of plans, and that Liang Cheng, the newly appointed minister to the United States, who is now in London acting as secretary to Prince Chen, instead of coming directly to Washington to assume his office, as originally intended, is going first to make a visit to China. This will consume some four to six months, so that Minister Wu probably will not be able to leave the United States this year.

DREYFUS AGAIN.

Ex-Captain Declares That He Will Yet Be Vindicated.

Paris, Aug. 2.—Ex-Capt. Dreyfus has written a letter to the Radical protesting against and denying the statement that he had been in communication with Russia. He says the day is coming when he will obtain a retrial and regain his honor in the eyes of the law. In the libel suit of Col. Picquart, who was prominent as a champion of ex-Capt. Dreyfus, against the Echo de Paris, a verdict of 20,000 francs was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. In a similar action against the same paper, M. Joseph Reinach, the journalist, was awarded 1 franc damages.

MAFIA MURDER.

Ex-Deputy and Two Accomplices Receive Long Sentences.

Bologna, Aug. 2.—After a trial lasting eleven months ex-Deputy Palizzolo and two accomplices have been sentenced to thirty years' rigorous imprisonment for the murder of a man named Notarbartolo. Three others who were accused of complicity in the crime were acquitted. Palizzolo is the leader of the notorious Mafia society.

THROAT SLIT WITH JACKKNIFE.

Minnesota Farmer Ends Life in Despondency.

Northfield, Minn., Aug. 2. — Joseph Fletcher, aged forty-two, a farmer residing five miles west of here, committed suicide early yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a pocket knife. He had been sick about a year and was despondent. He was a pioneer and leaves a wife and several children.

English Treaty a Model.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The commercial treaty between Great Britain and China is to serve as a pattern for similar treaties by the powers with China. By the terms of the Pekin agreement each of the powers have equal trade advantages.

Fatal Mine Cave-In.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—By a cave-in at the Lervi mine, the largest gold mine in Canada, Supt. Dunkle was killed and W. T. McKenzie, vice president of the miners' union, severely injured.

ESTIMATE OF CROP

SUMMARY OF VIEWS OF GRAIN AND RAILROAD MEN ON THE SITUATION.

FALLING OFF IN WHEAT YIELD

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE STATE IS CONSIDERED QUITE SATISFACTORY.

FLAX YIELD WILL BE DOUBLED

CORN AND BARLEY CROPS INCREASED—NO ESTIMATE OF DAMAGE BY HAIL.

In all probability, with average weather from this time on, the wheat harvest in this state will be well under way in about three weeks. Crop predictions at this time are apt to be risky, and there are few men who care to go on record as to the quantities of various kinds of grain that will be raised. From conversation with elevator and railroad men and others who are as familiar with the conditions as it is possible for any one to be, some facts have been gathered which bear out the situation, and which will help to indicate what sort of crop may be expected this season. Taking the state of North Dakota through, the crop is good. All kinds of grain have grown well, and, while there will be shortages here and there, the general average will be very satisfactory, notwithstanding local damage by storms. As close an estimate as it is possible to make, from all the sources of information at hand, is as follows:

	Bushels.
Wheat	45,000,000
Flax	25,000,000
Oats	25,000,000
Barley	12,000,000
Corn	2,000,000

It is estimated that there will be a falling off in the wheat crop. There has been a great reduction in the acreage, from various causes. In the Red River valley the spring was late, and the conditions were such that only a small proportion of the usual amount of wheat could be sown. This has been partially made up by increase in the west, but not entirely, as the greater portion of the new land in the west is devoted to flax. Since seeding the crop has done well, and estimators put the average yield at twelve to fourteen bushels per acre of the land sown. When it is remembered that a good deal of the crop in the eastern counties was sown late, and that there has been an unusual amount of damage done by hail, this will be seen to be a very good yield for the land on which the crop was grown, under ordinary conditions.

The flax area has been doubled, and the yield will be doubled, unless something happens to the crop before harvest. The increase is principally in the western counties. From Nelson county west there have been thousands of acres of land turned over this spring and sown to flax, and all accounts agree that the crop looks as well as it could possibly do. In some sections seeding was continued until late, and, of course, the crops on such land will have to run the risk of frost.

The oat crop will not vary much from that of last year, and the yield promises to equal it. In barley there is a material increase. This is especially the case in the valley, where wheat seeding was impossible. Barley, like all other crops, has grown well, and there are fields near Devils Lake that have already been cut, though the general barley harvest will not begin for two weeks.

There has been a great increase in the acreage of corn, though this has been confined principally to the southern counties. In practically all the counties south of the Northern Pacific road there is a disposition to raise corn. Last year it was a profitable crop, and this year the acreage was greatly increased, both of corn for fodder and corn for grain. In the northern counties the crop has grown in popularity, and last year it was expected there would be a great increase all over. There has been some increase, but not what was expected. This is due to the fact that the heavy rains of the late spring gave the grass such a start that it was felt that there would be an abundance of hay, and there was no great necessity for corn for fodder. The land that would have been sown to corn was, therefore, in many cases, sown to other crops.

One element that must be taken into consideration in making any sort of crop estimate is the damage by hail. This has undoubtedly been the worst season for hail that the country has experienced since large crops began to be grown west of the valley. Within the past two weeks many thousands of acres of crops have been wiped out. Before the storms of this week the damage was confined to small areas; but these were so numerous that the aggregate damage was considerable. This week's storms, however, have affected the entire northeastern part of the state, Richland being the only valley county not affected by the storm of Monday. At present it is impossible to estimate the loss, and any guess that would be made would be valueless. The storm was general over the valley, but the hail was spot. The damage is scattered here and there, and there are spaces many miles in width which were not touched by hail or destructive wind. Some of the hail streaks were wide, and swept everything clean, while others were less severe. Allowance must be made, also, for exaggerations in the reports of damage. Many farms which are reported totally cleaned out, will, undoubtedly, prove to have been only slightly damaged. It is certain that there are many losers. The insurance people have been busy with reports from all over the valley, and their clerical force has not got over more than a fraction of the correspondence that has come in during the past few days. In many cases there have been serious losses by heavy rains and high winds, though no hail has fallen. Where the grain was very heavy, as it is in many places, the crop will be so lodged that it will not recover.

Aside from the hail and attendant weather conditions, the chances for the crop have been all that could be desired. In the western part of the state there was beginning to be a cry for rain, as the lighter soil showed quite dry. But before the most nervous individual had a chance to declare that the crop was ruined, the rain came down in great sheets, and the thirsty soil drank it up. During the past five days there has been rain in every part of the state, and the ground is now sufficiently moist to last until after harvest. Occasional showers will be acceptable, however. For the first time in its history, the Red River valley yields to the western counties in the production of grain crops. Heretofore it has been considered that west of the valley nothing could be raised but cattle. Now the west is the great grain-producing section of the state.

—W. P. Davies, in Grand Forks Herald.

Side Light on the Same.

Upgarson—What a tiresome bore history is!

Atom—Yes; it's always repeating itself.—Boston Journal.

BANKS FULL OF MONEY.

In Two Years the Number of National Banks in North Dakota Has Doubled.

Bank Examiner W. A. Gordon has just returned to Grand Forks, from a trip over the state on one of his regular tours. He states that the State Bank of Rugby has been changed into a national bank, and will hereafter be known as the First National Bank of Rugby, of which E. C. Bates is president; F. W. Wilder, vice president, and Andy Jones cashier. The capital has been increased from $10,000 to $25,000, and the institution is said to be in a very flourishing condition.

The First National Bank of Churchs Ferry has also been licensed to do business. Messrs. Whipple and Baird, of the First National Bank of Devils Lake, are behind the bank, which is already open for business.

In speaking of the general banking situation in the state, Examiner Gordon stated that, where two years ago the total number of national banks in the state was twenty-three, the total number at the present time is forty-nine, having doubled in the past two years. This is a very remarkable record, and indicates a condition of prosperity that is eminently satisfactory to everyone. Regarding the condition of the banks, Mr. Gordon states that never in the history of the state were the banks as full of money as at the present time. They are all full of money, and, as a result the money market of this state was never so easy or independent of outside capital as at the present time.

This means more than would be apparent on the surface; it shows that North Dakota is growing more independent than ever before. The time has arrived when the Northwest is independent of Eastern capitalists. There is no East, no West in the financial world—it is one great whole.

FLAX IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Conditions Give Promise of an Immense Crop.

George Helsing, of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, recently made a trip through North Dakota. Mr. Helsing gave special attention to the condition of flax, and brings very favorable reports. The general promise is for a magnificent yield, as the flax in its present stand, is almost perfect. In places the bulb has already formed and the plant is beginning to change color.

